Russian Division Murders Officers and Surrenders

BOLSHEVIKI FORCES IN BAD WAY—ONE COMMANDER SUICIDES AFTER SMASHING OF HIS COMMAND BY POLES — REDS ON NORTH FRONT COMPLETELY ROUTED—TROTSKY'S PLANS UPSET.

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer, Canadian Press, Limited.

WARSAW, Oct. 1.—Defeat of the Russsians on the Polish northern front seems virtually complete. Soviet troops are reported fleeing eastward in disorder in an effort to avoid being surrounded by the Poles who are in close pursuit. The result of the Polish victory is declared by military experts as eliminating any chance of the Bolsheviki launching a fall offensive, which War Minister Trotsky was credited with planning to drive back the Poles from territory they occupied after the failure of the Soviet drive on Warsaw.

Advices from the front report that one Russian division surrendered to the Poles after having murdered all officers with it who tried to compel the troops to offer resistance to the Polish advance.

An official communique declares the Bolsheviki were whipped unmercifully, much to the discouragement of their commanders. The commander of the Third Bolshevik Army committed suicide, it is asserted, when he realized that his command had been completely smashed.

B.C. Goverment Tottering To Fall

Vote Expected in Favor of Government Control.

VICTORIA, Oct. 1.—A tariff inquiry at work, a prohibition referendum in progress, and a provincial election in sight, are giving British Columbians much entertainment and some excitement. The people here are almost unanimous for protection, nearly equally divided between the wets and drys, but it will take the provincial contest to register the relative strength of Liberals, Conservatives, Farmers and Laborites. There is only one certainty in the provincial contest and that is the defeat of the Oliver Government, but no one can name its successor. It will be seen that British Columbia has its full quota of economic, social and political issues stirring the electorate.

For many years British Columbia governments were as unstable and uncertain as British Columbia weather. They averaged a new one every year. There was no strict party division, and parties and governments rose and fell as combinations of groups and interests could be formed. Then came Sir Richard McBride, and for fifteen years he gave stability to the political affairs of the province. He was succeeded by Hon. W. J. Bowser, for many years his aggressive lieutenant, who went down to defeat in 1916 under the load of criticism accumulated in fifteen years of the McBride-Bowser rule, accentuated by a business depression prevailing at the time of the election. A Liberal administration headed by Hon. W. C. Brewster came into office, but within a year Hon. Mr. Brewster died very suddenly and his successor and the present Premier, Hon. John Oliver, succeeded to power. Now he must face the electorate and his success is extremely doubtful.

Conservative Revival.

The Conservative party has been greatly rehabilitated through the energy of Hon. W. J. Bowser. The province is English and protectionist; and naturally Conservative. Hon. Mr. Bowser has many enemies, but more friends. He is said to be very autocratic both in party management and in government administration, but no one can deny his great ability. He has successfully outlived the many errors charged to the McBride-Bowser Government and appears to have a fair chance of returning to power within six months. With little money or aid, he has done much to organize the party. It is claimed that the Conservatives will sweep Vancouver and Victoria and carry the fruit and mixed farming areas. This alone would give him a substantial majority.

Farmers Conservative.

The farmers are conservative. They may organize, but as a rule their political action will be within and not without the Conservative party. Labor will win four or five seats. It is only powerful in the mining areas and will probably capture Nanaimo, Newcastle and Fernie, and possibly one seat in Vancouver. But there is another factor which may upset the calculations of the old parties. The soldier element is very strong in British Columbia and may seek direct representation in many constituencies. As a rule the soldier groups are more closely associated with the Conservatives than the Liberals, and the Conservatives hope for joint action with them at the election rather than co-operation afterwards. At present the defeat of the Oliver Government is almost unanimously forecasted, but there is doubt as to whether Hon. Mr. Bowser can win through with a clear cut majority over all classes. If he fails, then will arise another Manitoba situation, with a coalition of some parties a necessity.

Drink Question.

British Columbia has a referendum vote this month. It differs from that in any other province, there being but two choices, as it is now with unrestricted importation, or Government control with no definition of Government control. At present bootleggers and blind pigs abound, with good liquor selling at an enormous price and bottled poison almost as expensive. Vancouver and Victoria abound with thirsty Americans from Spokane, Seattle, Tacoma, Portland and San Francisco. The administration of the liquor law is a farce. The people don't want bone-dry prohibition, nor do they want to be robbed or poisoned. It is possible they make take refuge from the present state of affairs by voting for Government control. The Government will await the referendum vote and go to the country.

Dominion Politics.

In federal politics the outlook is very bright for the Meighen Government. British Columbia wants neither Mackenzie King nor free trade. The soldiers are against Hon. Mr. King and the business interests, fruit growers and farmers against free trade. The Opposition leader will have large meetings here and few votes. His tour at the present time will hurt the Oliver Government. It will intensify the feeling of the soldiers against the local administration. Hon. Dr. Tolmie, Minister of Agriculture, has done much to strengthen the Meighen Government. He is an excellent practical agriculturist and a native son, knowing his own people and their requirements. The new administration in Ottawa does not need to fear a contest in British Columbia.

Knew Games Were Crooked.

Chicago, Oct. 1.—Charles Comiskey, owner of the Chicago White Sox, asked State Attorney Hoyne to investigate last year's world's series immediately after the games, Hoyne said today after his return here from New York. Hoyne's office conducted an investigation for three or four days and found enough evidence to satisfy him that the series was crooked, he said. Not enough evidence was found however, to prove the fact, he added.

PONZI SAYS HE PAID $50,000 FOR SMALL LOAN OF $200

Boston, Sept. 30.—Charles Ponzi testified today that he settled for $50,000 a suit of Joseph Daniels based on a loan of $200, because the action brought by Daniels for a division of profits had tied up $512,000 of the money invested in Ponzi's get-rich-quick scheme, and with a run on, Ponzi needed the money to meet demands. As a further reason for paying $50,000 to settle the suit, which he termed preposterous, Ponzi said he wanted to be able to withdraw all his funds from two local banks against which he had developed "personal feeling."

Jury Award Damages Judge Finds For Defendant

KINGSTON, Oct. 1—Justice Lennox has dismissed the action of Smith Elliott against the Grand Trunk for damages for personal injuries following the accident on Sept. 17th, of last year, when his auto truck was hit by a Grand Trunk train.

A jury in the Supreme Court, Wednesday noon, awarded Mr. Elliott $6,000 damages, but when the court resumed in the afternoon, Justice Lennox dismissed the action. His lordship made the following award:

"That judgment be entered for the defendants, dismissing the action with costs, but in the event of the case going no further, without costs.

The following list of questions were submitted to the jury by Justice Lennox, and the finding of his lordship was based on these answers. While finding that the railway company had been negligent the jury was also of the opinion that the plaintiff with reasonable care, could have avoided the accident, and that the plaintiff failed to exercise reasonable care, in that he did not stop his car or look toward the approaching train.

(1) "Were the injuries complained of caused by the company's negligence?"

Ans.—"Yes."

(2) "If you say 'yes,' what were the acts of negligence to which you refer?"

Ans.—"That the grade or elevation of the approach to the track was higher than the law allowed; that the roughness of the road on the company's property made it difficult to approach or go over the track, taking all the attention of the driver to make the grade. There is no doubt in the minds of the jury that the height and number of trees obstructed the view of the track at certain places, and that these should not have been allowed to grow on the company's property."

(3) "Notwithstanding the negligence of the company, could the plaintiff, by exercise of reasonable care, have avoided the accident."

Ans.—"Yes."

(4) "If you anwser 'yes,' to the last question, in what way did the plaintiff fail to exercise reasonable care?"

Ans. "Plaintiff did not stop his car or look toward the approaching train, owing to the fact that he did not hear any whistle; that the difficult approach to the track took all his attention to drive his car."

The jury assessed the damages at $6,000. Justice Lennox entered judgment for the defendants without costs in the event of the action going no further.

Protest Made by Howard Ferguson

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer, Canadian Press, Limited.

TORONTO, Oct. 1.—Protesting that the public was getting a wrong impression of his attitude from newspaper reports and comments by commissioners, Hon. G. Howard Ferguson, former Minister of Lands, Forests and Mines, this morning took issue with timber commissioners Justices Riddell and Latchford, stating that their object seemed to be a personal attack on him. "The papers can't get all the evidence and a wrong impression is being given to the public. I object to the comment of the commissioners, which seems to attribute to improper motives," declared Mr. Ferguson.

Philip Roy, Canadian Commissioner of Paris, France; [illegible] Mr. Justice Howard, Montreal; His Honor Judge Constantineau L'Original; Dr. Atherton, Professor of English McGill University; F. W. Stewart, President Canadian Manufacturers' Association, Col. McCullough; H. J. Gagne; Col. L. Ledue; Papan[illegible] Mathieu, K.C.; W. C. Mikel, K.C.; [illegible] McMahon; Ald. Robert Ryan; J. O. [illegible]tieu; J. H. Fortier; Rodolph Bedard; Chas. Duquette and J. C. Lamothe.

Hon. [illegible] that France had given [illegible] of land in Paris on [illegible] erect a home for Canadian students [illegible] to France to complete their studies and he intended asking the school children of Canada to give ten cents each to assist in erecting the Home. He warmly approved of the efforts at Canadian Unity.

Col. Chas. [illegible] of Hamilton, on behalf of the Canadian Club promised to assist every effort towards Unity.

H. J. Gagne of Montreal suggested a trans-Canada trip by newspaper men.

F. W. Stewart, President of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association said the manufacturers of Quebec had invited the manufacturers of Ontario to take a trip through Quebec to meet the people.

W. C. Mikel, K.C., of Belleville who has been promoting the Better Understanding Movement through the Canadian Fraternal Association was called on and said:

A happy and contented people is the greatest need of Canada today. We possess great stores of natural resources. The political parties are deeply concerned in providing us with the best methods of carrying on our affairs and making us a prosperous people, but we cannot live by bread alone.

Civil Dissension

The apple of discord destroyed the great wealthy City of Troy. Shakespeare says: "Civil dissension is a viperous worm that gnaws the bowels of the Commonwealth." And in both ancient and modern times we have many examples of the desolation, destruction, loss of treasure and loss of life brought about in communities of sober, sensible, educated, reasonable men by discord. Ridpath the American Historian says the American Civil War was not brought by slavery or state rights because these and bigger questions had been settled time and again by people no more capable than they, but solely by a lack of understanding of the two peoples due to the fact that they mingled so little with each other and therefore grew to be suspicious and prejudiced.

Psychological Moment

This seems like the psychological moment for a great forward step in the movement for a "Better Understanding" between the French and English speaking Canadians.

Hon. Phillip Roy, Com. Gen. for Canada in Paris is promoting an Educational Entente between Paris and Canada similar to the Rhodes Scholarship Trust.

La Bonne Entente of 1917 has done some good. The Canadian Unity League has also directed public attention to this great question.

The "Better Understanding" movement started by the Canadian Fraternal Association in July 1918 at Belleville, Ontario, has called forth words of approval from Hon. Arthur Meighen Premier of Canada, Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King, Leader of the Opposition, Hon. L. A. Taschereau, Premier of Quebec, and Hon. C. E. Drury, Premier of Ontario.

"Never in the history of any country has a national industry succeeded and advanced in the right proportion unless it was backed by public sentiment." This applies to the "Better Understanding" movement.

Our desire therefore is to awaken public sentiment and make it an active force in favor of this movement.

Direct Method Has Failed

Some insist that the grievances enumerated on each side of the controversy be first wiped out and then proceed to cultivate a better sentiment, forgetting that the alleged grievances are the result of the sentiment and when the sentiment is right the grievances will disappear or be regarded in a less hideous light.

These grievances are deeper than mere words, acts and Legislative Enactments. The sentiment that brought into existence these grievances was the result of temperamental differences and a failure of each side to appreciate the view point of the other. Let us try the plan of first bringing about a Better Understanding. Each side has been trying the direct method of producing its respective lists of grievances and urging prompt removal of same. This has not succeeded. On the contrary we have gotten farther apart. The difficulty of course is that while each side sees in great prominence its own grievances it fails to see at all or appreciate the grievances on the other side and while one side is willing and anxious for the removal of its own grievances, does not offer to remove the grievances alleged by the other side. Having failed in the direct method, let us now try the plan of bringing about a "Better Understanding" and an improved sentiment.

Old Animosities Gone

There is no deliberate desire in either Province to injure the other. Any old animosities that existed centuries ago between the parent nationalities have surely passed away. The soldiers of each have fought side by side in the Great War for a common cause. Each is equally touched by the sentiment of the poem—

"There's a grave across the water which I know I'll never see There's a picture on the wall that is dearer now to me.
For I know I'll never see him as here alone I sit
With only this to comfort me, I know he did his bit."

The Bridge of Better Understanding

The situation appears like this:

The two sides of the controversy are separated by a deep chasm of ignorance and prejudice. We desire to build the bridge of "Better Understanding" across the chasm so that the people can get together on this the most important question in Canada. On each brink of the chasm are the extremists, small in number but very active and mostly sincere men, who are preventing the building of the three last named groups we can neutralize the efforts of the extremists and build the bridge.

Appeal to Women

We wish to appeal to all classes but more especially to the women and the younger citizens of Canada and if they respond we can have in the some what changed words of a poet

A union of lakes, a union of lands
A union of provinces none can sever
A union of hearts, a union of hands
With Canada united forever.

The newspapers are appealed to with special force. It is hoped they will not only give prominence to news of the Better Understanding movement but will favor it editorially.

Legislatures Exchange Visits

We hope to interest the Legislatures of the Provinces of Ontario and Quebec to the extent of paying each other fraternal visits. We would like to see the members of the Legislature of the Province of Quebec accompanied with representatives of the Fraternal Societies of Quebec pay a visit to the Legislature at Toronto next winter, and this followed by a similar visit from the members of the Ontario Legislature and representatives of the Ontario Press and Ontario Fraternal Societies to Quebec. This would focus the attention of the people on the great movement and get them thinking and talking about it, from which good would undoubtedly flow. It would cost something but it would be money well spent. No question of material advantage is of as great importance to Canada as that of a Better Understanding between the Canadian people. To recast the well known lines—

Then none will serve the Party
Then all will serve the State
Then the rich will help the poor
Then the poor will help the great
Then lands be fairly portioned
The goods be fairly sold
Then Canadians be like brothers
Then Peace our County fold.

Ten Gamblers Made $250,000 by Bribing Ball Players

MASTER MIND ENTERED AND OPERATED THE SCHEME, SAYS ABE ATTELL—GRAND JURY CONTINUES WORK AS SPECIAL INVESTIGATING BODY—ADVISED RELATIVES TO BET ON THE WHITE SOX.

NEW YORK, Oct. 1.—Ten gamblers made at least $250,000 as a result of bribing members of the Chicago American baseball team in the 1919 world's series, said a statement made here by Abe Attell, former featherweight champion, whose name has frequently been mentioned in connection with the Chicago investigation.

"There is a master mind who evolved and operated the entire scheme," said Attell. "Of course, he was assisted by several others. His name and their names I know, but I do not care to reveal them at the present time. Later I shall give names and particulars."

MADE THEM HUSTLE.

PITTSBURGH, Sept. 30.—Players of the world champion Cincinnati Reds today agreed with Manager Pat Moran that the Chicago White Sox made the Red Sox play their best throughout the entire world series games last year. "'We had the jump on the Sox in every game," said Jake Daubert, first baseman.

Commenting on Joe Jackson's confession that the eight players implicated tried to "kick away" the third game of the series, but were beaten because of Dick Kerr's pitching, Daubert said: "We hit Kerr harder than we did Williams. The Sox's fielding in the third game looked square to me."

URGED TO BET ON SOX.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Sept. 30.—"Happy" Felsch, one of the Chicago baseball players against whom indictments were voted for alleged throwing of the 1919 world series, told the home folks to bet on his team. Friends here say he urged his father-in-law to bet on the White Sox after they had lost three games.

CONTINUE PROBE.

CHICAGO, Sept. 30.—The Cook County Grand Jury will continue its investigation into crooked baseball, Chief Justice McDonald of the Criminal Court announced today. He said he would appoint the grand jury as a special investigating body on Monday after its term expires, and instruct the members to continue the probe.

TRENTON HORTICULTURAL SHOW

There was a large attendance on Tuesday and Wednesday at the fair, being held in the arena at Trenton under the auspices of the Horticultural Society of that town. The display of roots, fruits and flowers, and especially the latter is the best ever seen in this section and all are arranged in a most artistic and attractive manner. The display made by the merchants is also most creditable. This is the first exhibition of its nature held in the town and the affair has created such a favorable impression that the management have decided to make it an annual event.

The proceeds of the four days' Memorial Fair at Picton, amounted to $5,400 which is a record sum. The fair was in every respect the most successful ever held.

MEETING POSTPONED

Owing to the inclement weather, the meeting called for last evening at the Chamber of Commerce building to consider what proposition would be submitted to the electors of Belleville and the adjoining municipality of Prince Edward, relative to the purchase of the bay bridge, did not materialize. On Tuesday evening next, a meeting will be held at Picton in reference to the matter and Hon. F. C. Biggs, Minister of Public Works and Highways is expected to be present.

Premier Drury Put the Baker Out of Business

BARRIE, Sept. 29.—Premier E. C. Drury, whirling through the main street of Barrie in a Ford car, crashed into another Ford car containing several hundred loaves of bread. For a second the air was full of bread, but nobody was hurt.

The Premier had come in from his farm in the township of Oro to catch the Toronto train which leaves here at 8.45, but breakfast had been a trifle late, or something, and the time was short. Mrs. Drury was beside him, and two friends occupied the rear seat. Premier Drury was at the wheel.

The Barrie station is visible for three miles along the Penetanguishene road, and as soon as the Premier and his party came within earshot they could see the Toronto train standing at the platform.

Race or Miss.

It was evidently a question of race or miss.

Premier Drury opened up and sent his little Ford scuttling Barrieward. The little car reached the turn down to the depot just as the train slid out As the train makes a short stop at Allandale Junction there was time to overtake it. Mr. Drury started out past Owen street on the way west. The stores were all open and doing business, and in the middle of the block at the north curb a red bread wagon was parked.

Shower of Bread.

At this moment the Premier became aware that his club bag, which stood on the running board, had been shaken out of place. He reached out with his left hand to put it back in place. The car swerved a trifle to the right and its mud guard crashed into the mud guard of the red car and a shower of bread flew into the air and fell into the mud.

The Premier's Panama hat flew off, and a smart northern breeze sent it sailing up the street. The driver of the bread car, Pete Leclair, came running out of a passage where he had been making a delivery and saw his wrecked vehicle, at the same moment Premier Drury pursuing his Panama hat. Leclair thought he was running away to avoid paying damages.

"Hey, you! Come back here' You can't get away like that!" he shouted.

The Premier, having recaptured his hat, returned, gave his name, ordered the repair bill for the red car to be sent to him, re-entered his Ford, stepped on the gas, and caught his train at Allandale.

Canada's Own Matterhorn

CANADA'S Matterhorn is Mount Assiniboine, one of the giants of the Rockies, a kingly peak of the great Cordillerean range that makes the backbone of the continent.

And yet comparatively few have been privileged to feast the eye on the mighty pyramid that thrusts its white crown skyward, 11,870 feet above sea level, and fewer still have conquered its cliffs and, from its apex, have stood on the roof of the world in this Alpine corner of it.

Thirty miles or more due south of Banff is the wonder world of which Assiniboine is the centre, and the way thereto is the way of the mountain trail—the kind that is not yet beaten into a path. A practically untrodden route it is, negotiable it is true by the tough little bronchos of the Alberta plains, or by the pedestrian who has not forgotten how to walk, or to do a tight-rope stunt on a tree felled to span a roaring mountain torrent, or to trip lightly over a treacherous hog.

Mount Assiniboine has just been rescued from its age-long obscurity, for it was the mecca, during the past summer, of hundreds of mountain lovers, members of the Alpine Club of Canada, who held at its base their fifteenth annual camp, such a camp as has been held in previous years in the Yoho and Paradise valleys, by the mirroring waters of Lake O'Hara or amid the towering peaks of Rogers Pass, in the Selkirks. This 1920 camp was farther away from a railway base than ever before. The journey into this heart of the Rockies was made in three-day stages, making Sunshine Camp at the end of the first leg of the trip, Golden Valley Camp on the second, and Assiniboine Camp on the third. The route was via the Bow River and Healy Creek and Simpson River valleys, amid Alpine scenery of the grandest type.

The Great Divide was crossed no less than four times on the way, revealing from their lofty viewpoints glorious panoramas of wide open alplands, flower-bestewed and green-carpeted; of forests of Aden, of rocky wildernesses like the Valley of the Rocks, strewn with giant boulders shaken down from the upper heights by earthquakes and landslides, and, on every hand, a world of hills where "Hills peep o'er hills, and Alps on Alps arise."

This camp of 1920, which was run from July 20 to 31, was known as Welcome Home Camp, in order to give an official welcome home from the war of the scores of members who saw military service overseas. While the war was in progress, some of its members, while at the front, foregathered at the same time the annual meeting was being held in Rockies or Selkirks and held a European get-together.

Twenty members of the Alpine Club (England) were also invited to participate in what was a unique gathering of mountaineers, while the presence of the well-known Swiss guides, Rudolph Aemmer and Ernst Feuz, gave an international tone to the gathering. They conducted the aspiring Alpinists to some of the many peaks that enclose the delectable valley. Their very names are alluring: Wonder Peak and Marvel Peak, with their similarly-named passes; Cave Mountain, containing a cavern world awaiting exploration like the Cougar of the Selkirks or the towering walls of Cascade and Gibraltar Rocks, rising 2,500 feet sheer above the valley, with a waterfall dropping from the skyline between them.

The first conqueror of Assiniboine was a Scot, James Outman, who, in 1901, performed this most difficult feat of mountaineering despite his modest description of it as merely "a decidedly difficult bit of climbing." I will let this intrepid Alpinist tell his own story as found in the record book in the C.P.R. hotel at Field.

"Chr. Hasler, Chr. Bohren and I went by train to Banff on August 30, 1901, and were met there by Peyto, our outfitter. Next day we started with four pack horses, passing up Healy Creek. On September 1st we did a huge day's work of over thirty miles, crossing ridges over 7,000 feet high, and with much timber work and climbing to the lake side at the north base of Assiniboine.

"On September 2 we started on our climb, passing around to the southwest arete by the two cols northwest and west of the mountain. We were then enveloped for a day in mist and sleet, but got up to a pinnacle on the southeast ridge about 11,000 feet high.

"On the following day in good weather we got off at 6.10, reached the northwest col (9,000 feet, at 7.55, the west col (9,500 feet) at 8.45 and the southwest arete at 9.20. We next climbed up the base of the big cliff belt (10,700 feet) and turned to the left gap between the Sept. 2 pinnacle and the main peak, ascending ledges, gullies and rocks to the south arete, 11,500 feet at 12.10 and the summit, 11,800 feet at 12.33.

"The summit is a twin one, snow-covered and much corniced. Descent by north arete and face—the most difficult bit of work yet undertaken in Canada. Steep, insecure, broken rocks and very steep ice slopes for 2,000 feet. Then easier rocks to a glacier and so to camp at 7.45. A snowstorm the following night closed the peak for the season."

One would hardly gather from this unadorned tale that the lofty roof of Assiniboine was before this regarded as inaccessible, that two of its sides are nearly perpendicular, one being a sheer precipice hundreds of feet in height, and that the upper part of the pyramid is glare ice and partly loose limestone rock. But once conquered, others will follow.

Comedy Featured in Week-end Bill

Traffic is tied up for fifteen minutes one traffic cop is dropped in the sewer, the Mayor and Aldermen are tapped on the head with a twelve four dry goods box and Charlie Chaplin is stuck in a pile of hot tar in some of the scenes of "A Day's Pleasure." The production marks Chaplin's fourth and latest picture of the million dollar class, and is being shown at Griffin's this week end. The comedy embodies all the hearty laughs of his preious successes, "Shoulder Arms," and "A Dog's Life," but is in itself the most unqualified laugh success he has yet produced. The famous comedian makes a decided departure from his preious pictures, intending to eschew the slap-stick for cents that are likely to happen on a busy street corner and on an excursion boat.

"Upstairs," a five-reel farce comedy featuring the popular screen comedienne, Mabel Normand, proed a splendid starring vehicle for the ever welcome Mabel, and is packed with many humorous situations. A beautiful Outing Chester Traelogue and Charles Hutchison in a thrilling and interesting chapter of "The Whirlwind," completes a splendid bill of light entertainment.

Noted Chef Came To Hate All Food

Dainties With Which He Delighted Other People Could Not Even Tempt Renaut

"I couldn't have believed that any medicine would give such wonderful relief as Tanlac has me, after what I had suffered from indigestion," said Joseph Renaut, chef at the Hotel Kennebec, Lels, P.Q., and formerly head chef at Bouillon's famous French restaurant in Montreal.

"I was so bad off for two years that I came to hate the very sight of food. I couldn't eat without suffering afterwards, and frequently had awful headaches. My sleep was broken and I always felt tired and worn out. My nerves became upset and I was so weak that I hardly knew how to drag through the day.

"Before I had finished my first bottle of Tanlac I began to eat like a horse and could digest anything without suffering afterwards. I am no longer bothered with headaches, my nerves are steady and I sleep so fine that I get up in the mornings feeling tip-top. After I had an attack of the grippe some time ago Tanlac built me up and led to my quick recovery."

Tanlac is sold in Belleville by Ostrom's Drug Store and by the leading druggists in every town.

MUSIC AND DRAMA

"MY SOLDIER GIRL"

Full of pleasing melodies and offering an amazingly lavish production the tuneful musical comedy, "My Soldier Girl," will be presented at Griffin's next Monday night, October 4th, and should lie up to its phenomenal magnet for the playgoer when it appears here. The excellent cast, including Georgia Emmett, Maxine Lockwood, J. Lorch Baber, Moore and Murphy, Geo. B. Hall, Robert Grace and many other talented musical comedy players, are supported by a brigade of wonderful girls, who sing and dance so cleverly that the audience wonder if the management have cornered all the pretty girls in this country. The story is laid in two acts, the opening shows a grand fete' in progress at Colonel Stone's home, Miami, Florida, in honor of the many "overseas" boys and girls. The last act presents a bewildering production of the Follies show during its final dress rehearsal under the management of Colonel Stone. The scenic production is carried out in both acts in its entirety blending pretty color schemes and novel effects artistically. There are some twenty big song hits, among the favorites are "My Soldier Girl," "That Dixie Wedding Tune," "Bundle of Love" "Jasper's Ragtime Band," "Just For You, Dear," "I Want a Regular Man," "New York," and "When You Dance With the Girl You Love." Seat sale opens at Griffin's to-morrow morning at 10 a.m.

Airman's Record Glide.

What is believed to be a world's record for gliding with a dead motor was accomplished at Ithaca, N. Y., in a Thomas-Morse two-seater biplane, says the Scientific American. This machine flew to the head of Cayuga lake, a distance of 35 miles, and having attained a height of 17,500 feet, the pilot glided to Ithaca, at which point he still had 5,000 altitude. If his glide had been continued it is estimated that an additional 15 miles could have been covered, making a total of 50 miles without the use of his motor. The longest glide previously recorded was that of Captain Raynham, according to Aeronautics, when he glided from Brooklands to Hendon, a distance of 22 miles.

FIRST TO TEACH PHILOSOPHY

Honor Is Accorded Thales, Who Established a School Which Exerted Wide Influence.

The first school of philosophy was established in Miletus (Asia Minor) by Thales, one of the wise men, and was quite a remarkable institution, exerting an influence for more than a century.

Thales seems to have given himself more entirely to this school than to any of his other undertakings. There is a legend that he never married, and when his mother pressed him to do so he said: "It is not yet time." After his youth was passed she again urged him to marry and he said: "It is no longer time."

Many of the subjects taught in his school, such as astronomy, geometry and geography, show the influence of Egypt and Phoenicia; but the philosophy was probably an original product, for while some of the sciences were somewhat advanced, the philosophy was apparently a first attempt at an explanation of the origin of the world. It originated a movement which culminated more than a century later in the idealism of Plato.

We may perhaps understand something of the attitude of the common people toward Thales' school of philosophy from the story of the old woman who laughed when the master fell backward into a ditch after gazing too long at the stars. The old woman not only laughed, but she is said to have called after him: "If you cannot see what is under your feet, how can you understand what is in heaven?"

The geography and astronomy taught in this school were very primitive: The earth was flat, the sun circled around it horizontally, being concealed at night by high hills. One writer of the time describes the world in the following poetical way: "God makes a mantle, large and fair and embroiders on it earth and ocean and ocean's dwellings."

DIFFERENT KINDS OF SPEED

Aviator and Motorist Didn't Have the Same Kind of Comparison as They Traveled.

The motorist was taking an aviator friend, recently returned from the army air service, out for a spin. Thinking of the 125-mile-an-hour speed to which the airman was accustomed, the motorist felt that it was incumbent upon him to "let 'er out." His friend, he felt, would feel badly ambling along at the land rate folks are used to traveling. So he cut loose and the car was zipping along at something like 50 miles an hour.

Then the motorist felt a hand laid upon his arm.

After the motorist had slowed down he asked: "Why, I thought the best speed I could make would seem slow to you. How is it that it appeared so fast?"

"You see, in the air, even at our greatest speed, we seem more or less stationary unless we look below us and see objects flitting past," explained the aviator. "You know speed can only be reckoned visually—by things one is leaving behind. Now, the gait you were moving a few minutes ago looked mighty fast, uncomfortably fast I might say, to me. I kept noticing things we are leaving behind."

"Well, I'll be darned," said the motorist. "I never thought of it in that way before."

And the hand of the speed clock jiggled back to the 25-mile mark.—Kansas City Star.

If It Only Were!

The late Ella Wheeler Wilcox, though the most popular poet of modern times, steadfastly refused to enter New York society. The most exclusive Fifth avenue portals were open to her, but Mrs. Wilcox passed them indifferently by.

A New York magazine editor once sought her out with an invitation to a Fifth avenue dinner party.

"I'm sorry," she said, "but I can't go."

"Oh," said the editor, "you must accept this invitation!"

"Why must I?" said the poet.

"Our host," the editor answered, "is rich—rich—a multimillionaire. You must accept."

"Well, I would," said Mrs. Wilcox, with a smile, "if it were catching!"

He Was No Mollycoddle.

A neighbor's son was entertaining about twenty of his little boy and girl friends at his birthday party. The children were supposed to return to their respective homes at eight o'clock in the evening; however, they were having such a good time when the going home hour arrived, its passing still found them hard at it. The mother of the little host suggested to him the advisability of intimating to his little friends the lateness of the hour. This is how he did it:

"Say, it's nine o'clock; I'm getting sleepy, and you kids have got to go home!"

"What's that? Go home this early?" said one of his indignant little guests. "I thought this was to be an all-night affair!"

Some Did.

"So you've been in the army, eh?" asked the old gentleman kindly. "And tell me, did you do much shooting while you were over there?"

"I won $80 the first day I landed in France," answered the gambler, proudly.—Home Sector.

Dye From Sorghum Waste.

The discovery of a new dyestuff in sorghum waste is announced to the French academy of sciences as of much importance. From the husks of sweet sorghum and those of sorghum with black seeds the coloring gum is obtained; it is stated to have many very fine shades of color, ranging from pink to bright red, salmon, scarlet, pearl gray, dark gray, dark brown, and khaki. The colors are described as suitable for wool, silk, leather and vegetable fibers, and for such materials are pronounced proof against sunlight and washing with soap.

Want Mud Guards on Autos.

An effort is being made in Paris to require all automobiles, and especially motortrucks, to be fitted with fenders which shall prevent the splashing of pedestrians with mud. M. Georges Lemarchand, as reported by the Paris correspondent of the American Medical association, tells the authorities that these splashes not only damage clothing, so expensive at this time, but also constitute a menace from the hygienic standpoint.

SURE THING SPORTS FLEECE THE PUBLIC.

The amazing revelations of crookedness in professional baseball in the United States will deal a severe blow to all branches of sport in that country and strengthen the prevailing suspicion that all branches of professional sport in the United States is more or less tarred with the same dirty stick. Some of the big sporting events have looked very queer, and it is now evident that United States gamblers are of the "sure-thing" variety. With the mighty dollar as their god, Americans have never been choice in their big business methods, and their sport seems to be tinged with the same methods.

TIME FOR ACTION ON RIVER NUISANCE

Spring floods causing damage amounting to thousands of dollars, much inconvenience and actual loss not covered by any scheme of recompense, followed by low water conditions inimical to health, have marked the moods of the Moira River in recent years.

Citizens have suffered these annoyances more or less patiently, but patience has its limits, and in all fairness and good business sense public patience should not be tried any farther.

Expert engineers say that high and low water in the Moira can be controlled by dams, and it would be the part of wisdom for the authorities to take up this matter vigorously and get a report on the feasibility and estimated cost of a controlling dam on the Moira to prevent the spring floods and provide a flow of water in the low water season and do away with the unhealthful conditions which have been such an annoyance this season, and a poor advertisement for Beautiful Belleville.

RATEPAYERS CURIOUS AS TO CIVIC FINANCES.

With a high assessment and a high tax rate the high cost of living in Belleville naturally causes ratepayers to wonder if they are getting full value for their money and where the large program of civic expenditure this year is leading to.

As the heavy tax bills this year do not include present expenditures prospects of a heavy reckoning in the future occasion anxious consideration on the part of those who will have to pay the bills.

As the City Council was warned early in the season by the bank that finances would not be available for heavy civic expenditure this year, and as the civic expenditure has been by no means light, the ratepayers are entitled to an explanation of the plan of financing and the cost of the money secured to provide for the heavy expenditure undertaken.

Civic financial statements come as a rule a considerable time after a new Council is elected, but it would be far better to lay all the cards on the table now and take the ratepayers into the fullest confidence of the present City Council, who can best explain the whys and wherefores of this year's civic administration.

HIGH PRICES SEEM TO BE ON TOBOGGAN

For a long time, says the New York Times, high prices seemed like the weather, about which, as Mark Twain said, everybody talked but nothing was done. Latterly, however, official reports have been pointing to a small, but steady recession. This has usually been figured in such trifling percentages as not to affect the imagination of the public. But now, in swift succession, we are getting dramatic announcements which must convince the most incredulous that a real turn downward has set in. Henry Ford has again demonstrated his keen commercial instinct by making a drastic cut in the price of his cars, so as to bring them virtually to their pre-war level. In Chicago, the two great mail-order houses, Sears, Roebuck & Co., and Montgomery, Ward & Co., have made reductions in their various lines of merchandise ranging from 10 to 20 per cent. On top of this comes the notice given by the Amoskeag Mills of a cut in cotton goods to the extent of 33 per cent. We are certain to see other equally striking evidences of the way in which the tide is now running.

THE POET'S CORNER

THE FIELD BY THE SEA
Bliss Carmen

On a grey day by the sea,
I looked from the window and saw
The beautiful companions of the daisies bow
And toss in the gusty flaw.

For the wind was in from the sea;
The heavy scuds ran low;
And all the makers of holiday were abashed,
Caught in the easterly blow.

My heart, too, is a field,
Peopled with shining forms,
Beautiful as the companions of the grass,
And herded by swift grey storms.

A thousand shapes of joy,
Sunlit and fair and wild—
All the bright dreams that make the heart of a man,
As the heart of a little child.

The star trodden ageless tune,
Glad as the wind-blown multitudes of the grass,
White as the daisies in June.

But over them, ah, what storms—
In from the unknown sea,
The uncharted and ever-sounding desolate main
We have called Eternity!

They shudder and quake and are torn
As the stormy moods race by,
And then in the teeth of remose, the tempestuous lull
Once more the hardy cry:

"Fear not, little folk of my heart,
Nor let the great hope in you fail!
Being children of light, ye are made as the flowers of the grass,

GIVE US MEN!

Give us men!
Fresh and free and frank
Men of thought and reading,
Men of light and leading,
Men of royal breeding,
The nations' welfare speeding;
Men of faith and not of fiction
Men of lofty aim and action;
Give us men—I say again,
Give us men!

Give us men!
Strong and stalwart ones;
Men whom highest hope inspires,
Men whom purest honor fires
Men who trample Self beneath them,
Men who make their country wreath them,
As her noble sons,
Worthy of their sires!
Men who never shame their mothers,
Men who never fail their brothers,
True, however false are others;
Give us Men! I say again—again!
Give us men

Give us men!
Men who, when the tempest gathers,
Grasp the standard of their fathers
In the thickest fight;
Men who strike for home and altar
(Let the crowd cringe and falter),
God defend the right!
True as truth, though lorn and lonely,
Tender, as the brave are only;
Men who tread where saints have trod
Men for Country—Home—and God!
Give us Men! I say again—again
Give us such men.
—The Bishop of Exeter.

"That was very nice and generous of you, Jimmy," complimented his mother. "And did your teacher eat it?"

"Yes; I think so," answered Jimmy "She wasn't at school today."

Just a minute, please!

ARE you chummy with your watch?

Will it go—and keep going—where you go; will it stand jolting and banging and heat and cold and rain and dust and fog—will it be cheerful and dependable if it gets mixed up with the tools on your auto, or the fishing tackle, or the hunting outfit?

The Ingersoll Maple Leaf is a good chum, a bully pal. Usually a more expensive watch is temperamental and a bit delicate, unhappy under unusual conditions, peevish if it isn't treated tenderly.

The Maple Leaf is a hard-boiled sportsman, built for rough going, a trusty, lusty comrade you can take where you choose and know he'll keep up his end. That's the kind of a little guy he is!

And you can buy this sturdy chum for $3.25—or for $4.00—if you want his face to light up in the dark for you.

Physician Crushed to Death in Field

Dr. Shearer Was Trying To Lift a Heavy Branch Across Fence.

Simcoe, Sept. 29.—Dr. Robert Shearer, who had recently returned from practising medicine in Milwaukee, was fatally crushed by a large limb of a tree in a field in his farm near Walsh this morning.

He had gone out with a team to do some cultivating, in preparation for wheat sowing. Carpenters at the farm house, noticing the horses standing idle in the field a long time, investigated and found his body close by.

Further investigation by the Coroner revealed that the doctor had evidently been attempting to put over the fence a large tree limb that had fallen into the field, and that he was not able to get the heavy end across the fence but had fallen under or upon it, his breast being crushed and several ribs being broken. The Coroner considered that death must have been instantaneous and deemed an inquest unnecessary.

Dr. Shearer was about 52 years of age, and married, and without children. In young manhood he attended the high school here.

Some Real Work

"Well," said Farmer Corntossel. "I reckon I've done apretty good afternoon's work."

"But all you did," commented Jud Tunkins contemptuously, "was to sit on the fence and whittle.'

"Yes; but what I whittled up was the family ouija board."

The Thirteenth Commandment

By RUPERT HUGHES

Copyright by Harper & Brothers

One day, toward the end of her first week, she was startled to find before her a card bearing the legend "Duane, Thomas." His address was given, and the facts that he had bought the three-quarter morocco Balzac, the half-leather Fielding and Smollett, and the levant Court Memoirs. He had not yet taken the bait for the De Maupassant.

Daphne pondered his card and his taste. She was shaken from her pensive mood by the sudden commotion of all the women. All eyes had seen the minute and the hour hands in conjunction at XII. Names were left off in the middle; pens fell from poised hands.

Daphne found herself alone. She was glad of the quiet and the solitude, while it lasted—which was not long, for Gerst came back unexpectedly early.

His eye met Daphne's. He started toward her, and then, seeing that she glanced away, went on to his desk. He stood there manifestly irresolute a moment. He glanced at Daphne again, at the fire escapes, at the empty room. Then he went to the first of the tables and with labored carelessness inspected the work of the absentee. He drifted along the aisle toward Daphne, throwing her now and then an interrogative smile that filled her with a fierce anxiety.

She knew his reputation. She had seen his vulgar scuffles with some of the girls, had heard his odious words. She was convinced that he was about to pay her the horrible compliment of his attention.

Her heart began to flutter with fear and wrath. She felt that if he spoke to her she would scream; if he put his hand on her shoulder or her chair she would kill him, with a pair of scissors or the knife with which she scraped off blots. . . . No, she must not kill him. But she would have to strike him on the mouth.

But that meant instant dismissal at the very least. He might smash his fist into her face or her breast or knock her to the floor with the back of his hand. She had seen too much of life recently to cherish longer the pretty myth that the poor are good to the poor. She had seen how shabby women fared with street car conductors and subway guards. She had seen her own prestige dwindle as her clothes lost freshness.

But the violence of Gerst's resentment would be a detail. The horror was the mere thought of his touch.

She rose quickly and tried to reach the fire escape. That was the solution—to join the crowd.

But Gerst filled the aisle. She sidled past two tables into the next aisle. He laughed and sidled across to the same aisle. She tried to hasten by. He put his arms out and snickered:

"What's the rush, girlie? Nobody hollered 'Fire!'"

"Let me pass, please," she mumbled.

"Wait ta minute, wait ta minute. What 'd you say if I was to ast you to go to a show tanight, huh? What'd you say?"

"Thank you. I have another—I couldn't."

"S'mother eve, then? Or to a dance, huh?"

"Thank you, I'm afraid I can't."

"Why not? Come on! Why not? 'Ain't I got class enough for you?"

"Oh yes, but— Please, let me by."

He stared at her, and his hands twitched, and his lips. His eyes ran over her face and her bosom as if she were a forbidden text. She was trying to remember what Duane had told her about the way to quell a man. With great difficulty and in all trepidation she parroted her old formula.

"Mr. Gerst, you don't have to flirt with me. I don't expect it, and I don't like it, so please let me go."

He stared at her, trying to understand her amazing foreign language. Then he sniffed with amused unbelief, dropped his hands, and stood aside.

Daphne could hardly believe her eyes. The charm had worked the third time! She darted forward to get away before the spell was broken. As she passed him—whether he suddenly changed his mind or had only pretended to acquiesce—he enveloped her in his arms.

She almost swooned in the onset of fear and the suffocation of his embrace. Then she fought him, striking, scratching, writhing. He crowded her against the nearest table and tried to reach her lips across her left elbow.

Her outflung right hand struck against an inkwell, recognized it as a weapon of a sort, and, clutching it, swept it up and emptied it into his face.

His satyric leer vanished in a black splash. His hands went to his drenched eyes. Daphne, released, dropped the inkwell and fled to the locker-room while he stamped about, howling like the blinded Cyclops. Daphne did not stay to taunt him nor to demand her wages. She caught a glimpse of faces at the fire-escape windows, but, hugging her hat and coat, she made good her escape.

She knew what she was escaping from, but not what to.

CHAPTER XVIII.

Daphne scuttered for the subway as a fugitive rabbit to its burrow. But she was not a rabbit and she felt suffocated in the tunnel. She could not endure to be quiet in the presence of so many goggle eyes like aligned buttons. She left the train at the next station and walked rapidly to Fifth avenue, and up it homeward.

She walked rapidly for the comfort of the restlessness, but there was no comfortable destination ahead of her. She found Mrs. Chevvis at home with her disconsolate husband. Daphne dared not tell them just yet that she had lost her place. She would tell them when she got another one. For fear that they might ask why she was home so early, she went down to Bayard's apartment.

Her Outflung Right Hand Struck Against an Inkwell.

She wanted to tell Bayard and Leila what had happened. It was safe, she felt sure. Bayard would never attack Gerst. He would be more likely to rail at Daphne for bringing the trouble on herself.

Leila let her in at the door, but she was in a militant humor. She said, "Hello!" grimly and stepped back for Daphne to enter. Daphne found Bayard still aglow with interrupted quarrel. He said, "Hello!" with a dismal connotation.

"What do you suppose that brother of yours orders me to do now?" said Leila, whirling Daphne toward her.

"I can't imagine," said Daphne, incredulous of Bayard's ordering Leila to do anything.

"He wants me to go to Dutilh and put up a poor mouth and humiliate myself."

Bayard snatched Daphne to him and stormed: "She bought the clothes, didn't she, without consulting me? She wouldn't send 'em back as you did yours; she wore 'em out, paraded 'em before other men there in Newport while I was slaving here. And now that Dutilh insists on money that I haven't got, and can't get, she won't even go explain it to him. That's all I ask her—to explain it to him and ask him to be patient so that I won't be sued. I can't stand that. I've had every other calamity but I've never been sued for debt. I ask Leila to go tell him about my hard luck and my fine prospects—play fair with him—and with me. But will she do it? No! She won't do anything for me."

Daphne was swayed by his emotion. She pleaded: "Why don't you, Leila? You have such winning ways. I'll go with you."

Leila hesitated, then answered by taking up her hat and slapping it on her head. She paused, took it off again, and went to her room, unhooking her gown as she went; she knew that in asking favors one should wear one's best appearances.

Bayard grumbled, "How are you getting along at your office?"

Hand Tailored Shapeliness

What makes one suit give you several seasons' wear and hold its shapeliness as long as you care to wear it . . . . while another suit loses its shape on the first damp day?

Because the shape of the first suit is made permanent by intricate hand tailoring, while the shape of the second is merely pressed in by the hot iron.

Join in Appeal For Protection

VERNON, B.C., Sept. 29.—With the fruit growers of the Okanagan district 4,000 strong and representing over 40,000 acres of garden and orchard lands, and an invested capital of over $35,000,000 coming out strongly before the Tariff Commission in favor of continued tariff protection for the fruits of the interior of British Columbia the larger interests of this province, including farming, lumbering and fishing, still present a united front in their battle against free trade. From the standpoint of capital and production, the Okanagan district represents the most progressive fruit raising centre in the whole province, and the stand which they took before the Tariff Commission was just a little stronger than that of the Fraser and Chilliwack Valley growers in favor of a continued protection against the invasion of the fruits raised in the big orchards just across the line in Washington and Oregon.

What the official representatives of the four thousand growers impressed upon Sir Henry Drayton and his colleagues was the fact that they must have some protection against the "great disaster of low prices," the low prices being the inevitable controllary of the dumping of American fruits which must accompany any lowering or removal of the present tariff. At the same time, many figures were submitted that substantiate their claim that the Canadian public have not suffered from the protection which the tariff has given to the fruit growers in the past, for though there have been times when the American growers shipped fruit into Western Canada at rates much lower than the Canadian prices the grades of fruits were of a much inferior quality. The Okanagan growers did not appear to fear any competition on an even basis, but the trouble which they have experienced in the past, as outlined to the commission, was that the United States growers will keep their best grades of fruits for their own market, shipping the lower grades to Western Canada and getting the Westerners into that state of mind where they will not pay any more for the No. 1 Okanagan apples than they are obliged to pay for the inferior No. 3 United States grades.

Free Trade Would Be Ruin

The general claim of the Okanagan growers was that free trade would be the ruin of the whole fruit-growing industry of this famed valley and with that ruin there would come a financial calamity to the four thousand men who have invested their thirty-five millions in the orchards.

Belleville Man Elephant Trainer

BOSTON, Mass., Sept. 29.—The Transcript, America's most conservative journal prints a story today of the death last night of William Powers, a native of Belleville, Ont. Canada who was the only man in the world to teach an elephant to shimmy.

This famed animal trainer produced by Ontario died in a hospital at Spuyten, Dayvil. He was born in '65 and took up animal training late in life and at the time of his death was known as America's foremost animal trainer. His greatest, latest and most popular stunt and one which caused millions of persons to double up with laughter was his perfection of the elephant shimmy. It took him a year to teach "Jennie" one of the smartest of the New York Hippodrome elephants to go through the wicked movements of the modern dance and "Jennie" is doing this today while her master lies dead.

This famous man trained the largest herd of elephants in the world. They performed in New York for fifteen years starting at the Hippodrome in 1905. Once he stopped a herd of these huge animals on Fifth Avenue, New York, when a passing bus stampeded them. Many lives might have been crushed out had not the frightened elephants been stopped in their mad flight. Curiously enough it was not his own herd Mr. Powers stopped, but another's.

Tell Dyspeptics What To Eat

Indigestion and practically all forms of stomach trouble, say medical authorities, are due nine times out of ten to an excess of hydrochloric acid in the stomach. Chronic "acid stomach" is exceedingly dangerous and sufferers should do either one of two things.

Either they can go on a limited and often disagreeable diet, avoiding foods that disagree with them, that irritate the stomach and lead to excess acid secretion or they can eat as they please in reason and make it a practice to counteract the effect of the harmful acid and prevent the formation of gas, sourness or premature fermentation by the use of a little Bisurated Magnesia at their meals.

There is probably no better, safer or more reliable stomach antiacid than Bisurated Magnesia and it is widely used for this purpose. It has no direct action on the stomach and is not a digestent. But a teaspoonful of the powder or acouple of five grain tablets taken in a little water with the food will neutralize the excess acidity which may be present and prevent its further formation. This removes the whole cause of the trouble and the meal digests naturally and healthfully without need of pepsin pills or artificial digestents.

Get a few ounces of Bisurated Magnesia from any reliable druggist. Ask for either powder or tablets. It never comes as a liquid, milk or citrate and in the bisurated form is not a laxative. Try this plan and eat what you want at your next meal and see if this isn't the best advice you ever had on "what to eat."

CENTENARY.

Centenary Epworth League visited the White's Church League, Bayside, on Tuesday evening last to take part in a debate, "Resolved, that the cost of high living, rather than the high cost of living, was what made the cost of living high." Miss Marjorie Thomson and Miss Myrtle Francis of Centenary were on the affirmative side, while Mr. Jas. Saylor and Mr. Gerald Pine of White's, were on the negative. Both sides presented their arguments well, bringing out many excellent points, showing that they had given the subject much careful study. The judges, Rev. Mr. Joblin, Messrs. Rowe Hunt and Geo. Cumming, after careful consideration, pronounced the result a tie. Miss Helen Cummings and Miss Stella Wellman each gave a solo, Miss Hubbell a recitation, and Messrs. Clayton and Clinton Eggleton, Mr. Chas. Francis and Mr. Oscar Clapp gave several selections on the mouth organ which were much appreciated. The Young People of White's furnished refreshments and every one spent a most enjoyable evening.

A large number from here attended the school fair at Wallbridge on Monday last. The exhibits from Centenary school were good, the pupils carrying off five first prizes, namely, Harold Thrasher, spring calf; Maude Wellman, 1 dozen eggs; Muriel Thrasher, sewing; Clara Bell Rutter, spring chickens; Delbert Nelson, pigs. The school has forty-one pupils and is under the supervision of Miss Marjorie Thompson, of Belleville.

Rally day service was well attended here on Sunday. The regular program was carried out by the superintendent, Mr. John Thrasher, with special music by the choir, duet by Mrs. Hart and Mrs. Calvert, and a splendid address by the pastor, Rev. Mr. Mutton.

Little Philip Ray, who had the misfortune to have his hand lacerated in the cogs of a straw-cutter, is now out again.

Miss Stella Wellman and Mr. Norma Wellman were "at home" on Monday night to over thirty of the young people of Centenary. A most enjoyable evening was spent in games, singing, etc., a light luncheon being served at midnight.

Mr. and Mrs. Judson Kelley and Miss Thompson spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Phillips, at Rednerville.

CONDENSARY NOT CLOSED

Reports published in Toronto and other Ontario newspapers recently state that the condensaries at Picton and Bloomfield had closed. This is untrue as far as the Picton factory is concerned. Mr. R. E. Trimble, manager of this condensary, states that his plant has no intention of closing down. Part of the milk is now being manufactured into cheese but the manufacture of condensed products is being continued. It is understood that the Bloomfield condensary has ceased operations and that the milk is being manufactured into cheese at the factory of the Bloomfield Cheese Co.

LADIES FRIGHTENED

It was reported to the police that last evening two ladies whilst walking up Bridge street east had been frightened by the action of a man who, it was alleged, was following them. An officer who responded to the call was unable to find any trace of a suspicious party.

RUG STOLEN

Mr. A. C. Cronk reports to the police that a plaid rug was taken from his auto which was left standing for a short time in front of his residence on Patterson street.

MISCELLANEOUS SHOWER

On Tuesday evening last, a pleasant and enjoyable event took place at the home of Miss Grace Barragar, Octavia street, when she held a miscellaneous shower for her friend, Miss Gladys Wiley. A large number of Miss Wiley's girl and boy friends were present, and needless to say all enjoyed the function thoroughly. Miss Wiley, who is to be married shortly, was the recipient of a number of costly and beautiful gifts, and although taken by surprise made a most appropriate reply. Games were then indulged in on the lawn which was lighted for the occasion, fresh fruits being served after which a marshmallow roast on the lawn was participated in by all present bringing a most delightful evening to a close. All voted Miss Barragar a very capable hostess.

AUTOS MIRED

Two automobiles were mired within a block of each other Thursday night, one at the corner of Victoria avenue and Charles street and the other at the corner of Charles and Queen streets. Both machines came to grief in holes too lightly filled in part of the great trench system with which Belleville is at present honeycomed. The machines had to be abandoned until daylight when they were dragged out by high powered motor trucks.

DROVE PAST TOLL GATE

Yesterday afternoon a party in a Chevrolet car drove fast over the bay bridge and passed the toll gate without paying and repeated the occurence upon the return trip. The affair was reported to the police but it was later ascertained that the toll had been paid.

SUSPENDED SENTENCE

Mrs. Lester Bates who was apprehended at Kingston and brought here on a charge of shoplifting was yesterday afternoon committed for trial by Magistrate Masson and later appeared before Judge Wills, pleading guilty to the offence. As restitution had been made in the matter and all costs involved paid, the accused was allowed her liberty on a suspended sentence Mr. Carnew for Crown and Mr. C. A. Payne for the accused.

POWER SCARCITY

Belleville industries dependent upon the Trent river and in fact all industries depending upon this source of power have been very much handicapped of late by the scarcity of power, some factories having to shut down several days at a time. The Hydro officials have endeavored to divide up the power as equitably as possible but the situation seems to be getting worse on account of the prevailing low water.

SPORTS POSTPONED

It was arranged to hold today the annual sports in connection with Belleville High School, but the elements interfered and a postponement was made until Wednesday next.

Col. W. N. Ponton leaves on Saturday for a Western tour and will address Masonic gatherings in a number of places beginning at Port Arthur and closing with Banff.

Rev. Dr. Crozier Graham Adams and Mrs. Adams of Rutherford, New Jersey, who have been visiting friends in Belleville and vicinity left Thursday for Toronto on their way home. Dr. Adams thinks that Canada is a fine country and will ultimately be capable of supporting 400,000,000 population.

Miss Marion Wyllie of Kamloops, B. C., who has been visiting her aunt, Mrs. O. A. Marshall, left on Monday to attend Toronto University.

Mrs. W. Powers, of Chicago, is visiting her sister, Mrs. D. Hyland, 162 Coleman street, city.

OUR REVENUE.

August Returns Indicate Effect of New Taxes.

With an increase of $6,321,171.88, as respects war tax collections (which included sales and luxury taxation for the month of August), as compared with August of last year, the new taxes have begun to make their weight felt in the National Treasury. Canada's total revenue for the month of August was $11,374,290.98, as against $5,251,802.41 for the corresponding month of last year. The increase in the amount of war tax wiped out the decrease of $198,915.76 in the total amounts received from excise and seizures, fines, methylated spirits and law stamps, and left a net increase in Inland Revenue for the month of $6,122,489.57.

The total revenue for the fiscal year, ending March 31 last, was slightly over $58,900,000. A very conservative estimate, based on the August totals, places the total collections for the current year at approximately $115,000,000. However, it is expected, that the total revenue for the fiscal year will be $150,000,000 or more. The luxury and sales tax collections, it is stated, are expected to show a substantial increase in coming months.

For June, July and August of this year the war tax collections have totalled $18,185,037.34, as against $3,973,287.43 for the corresponding three months of last year, an increase of $14,211,749.91. If the increase of last month is borne out during the balance of the fiscal year, the total increase would approximate $75,000,000.

Roads In Nova Scotia.

Over three thousand men are employed in road construction in Nova Scotia to-day, writes John N. Wilson in the current issue of Canadian Motorist.

Approximately $1,500,000 is being spent on contracts on semi-permanent roads already let.

Fifty gangs or patrols of men, averaging in strength seven to fifty, are working on the maintenance of secondary roads.

One hundred engineers, draughtsmen and surveyors are applying the most scientific knowledge of the age toward working out the great highway system of Nova Scotia.

All this is being done under the most comprehensive and most constructively devised road legislation of any province of Canada or state of the Union.

The program of road construction planned by the Murray Government for the next five years and involving an expenditure of $13,000,000, is one that epitomizes the faith, progress, and loyalty of the people. The completion of this program should have a vital influence on every phase of Nova Scotia life and development, opening it to an era of growth and expansion exceeding anything hitherto dreamed of.

Good roads are more essential to the development of Nova Scotia today than any other factor. The enormous value of a thoroughly modern system of roads has been forced on the province within the last ten years. The automobile was the factor which awoke everyone to the absolute necessity of discarding all old methods and ideas and immediately acquiring the latest scientific principles for good construction.

Even before the war the statute labor system was obsolete — it was worse than obsolete. Until the public demanded and were therefore willing to pay, the old system remained, for the new system required public opinion and money.

Two Statten Stories.

Taylor Statten, secretary of the National Boys' Work Council, has two good jokes. And only he can tell those jokes so that the thousands of boys he addresses at conference throughout Canada laugh till their sides ache.

That jet-black-haired, tanned complexioned gentleman tells them with a droll style of his own. The first one goes something like this:

"The fond parents stood silently over the cradle of their one and only precious baby boy, peering under the bed clothes. The mother was thinking of her boy. He would grow up, go to school, to business, get married, and build a home. She was happy and proud. She turned to John, her husband. He, too, was gazing quietly at the cradle. "John," the wife said softly, "what are you thinking about?" "I was just wondering," was the reply, "how the mischief the makers can turn out a cradle like that for $3.98?"

And the other—

Harry Brown was dippy about his butterfly hobby. Pinned to cards he had specimens of every description of butterflies and moths. And the story goes on to tell how Harry bought a book from a Yonge street book shop — "Advice to young mothers," and as Harry put it — "I couldn't see any advice all through the book to young moth-ers."

But only Taylor Statten can do justice to those two stories.

Milky Manitoba.

A total of 70,000,000 gallons of milk were produced in Manitoba in 1919, according to a Health Department report, just made public. Of this quantity, 5,000,000 gallons were consumed in Winnipeg, 10,000,000 outside the capital city and the balance exported. A total of 45,000,000 gallons was utilized in butter making, 7,000,000 were used as sweet cream and to make ice cream, 1,000,000 for cheese, and 2,000,000 gallons fed to young calves on the farms.

Enough milk is manufactured into butter, cheese and ice cream to supply ten cities with an equivalent quantity of milk as that consumed in Winnipeg.

"It requires 50,000 cows, each giving 5,000 pounds of milk a year, to keep us supplied with dairy products," the report continues. "That is an average of one good cow for each four persons."

$6,250 MONTHLY TO KEEP THE HOME FIRES BURNING

Detroit, Oct. 1.—An allowance of $75,000 a year was made to Mrs. Marguerite Talman Walker, widow of James Harrington Walker, millionaire, Canadian distiller, by the consent of Judge Durfee in Probate court. Mrs. Walker said she needed $6,250 a month to keep up her home at 576 Iroquois avenue here and her summer home in Magnolia, Mass.

Work of Census Taking.

Airplanes were used by census takers enumerating the dwellers on the islands off the coast of Florida, and snowshoes were used in the northern states and in Alaska. Near Oswego, N. Y., an enumerator found the man of the family in an isolated farm dwelling sick and helpless, and stopped long enough to do the chores, dig out paths through the deep snow and put things in order before continuing his journey.

Tobacco Crop Greater Than Mining

In 1906 the famous Cripple Creek gold field yielded $14,253,000 worth of the precious yellow metal. That year all of the state of Colorado yielded $23,210,629 in gold. The 1919 crop of tobacco in the "burley district" Kentucky will bring $75,000,000, more than five times as much as the Cripple Creek gold field yielded in one of its bonanza years, and within $1,000,000 of as much as the value of the gold mines in the United States in 1913.

NEEDED NEITHER PHYSICIAN, CORONER NOR UNDERTAKER

Port Hope, Sept. 30.—To have a supposedly dead man walk into your house with a cheery greeting was the shocking experience of a woman in this neighborhood last night.

The man, who has apparently risen from the edge of the grave, was a resident of Port Hope. He had been driving with a friend to Millford, when without warning he collapsed. His companion reverently laid him on the bank beside the road and telephoned for a physician.

The physician figured there was little he could do for a dead man and notified the Coroner, who in turn passed the word to the undertaker.

Ere the undertaker arrived with his "pick-up basket" the man came to life, and finding himself alone—the watchers having gone down the road to meet the undertaker—arose and strolled over to a neighboring house where he gave the good housewife the greatest shock of her life.

The explanation is that the man merely suffered a "weak spell" such as he had been subject to at intervals for the past thirty years.

PETERBORO PIONEER KILLED BY FALL

Peterboro, Oct. 1.—Due to the shock received when he fell down a flight of steps at his home at midnight Wednesday night, John Smith Stephenson, a pioneer resident of this city died some time later from heart failure. Mr. Stephenson was retiring and after climbing nearly to the top, evidently missed his footing and slipped, falling down the stairs. His wife, who had retired, hearing him fall, rushed out to find him lying in an unconscious state at the bottom of the stairs. A slight scalp wound was the only mark received in the fall. Dr. W. D. Scott was called but life was extinct when he arrived. The deceased never spoke after being picked up by his wife.

The late Mr. Stephenson was born in this city on August 15, 1831 and had lived here during his entire life. He was one of the pioneer residents of Peterboro and a boat builder by trade

LET THERE BE HARMONY IN THINGS ESSENTIAL—LIBERTY IN THINGS NOT ESSENTIAL—CHARITY IN ALL

BELLEVILLE, ONTARIO, SATURDAY, OCTOBER 2, 1920. PRICE TWO CENTS

Relief In Sight For Users Of Hydro Electric Power

MEMBER FOR WEST HASTINGS, E. GUSS PORTER, K.C., INTERVIEWED GOVERNMENT ON BEHALF OF MANUFACTURERS OF QUINTE DISTRICT USING TRENT POWER AND SECURED PERMISSION FOR DIVERSION OF WATER TO INCREASE POWER SUPPLY — SCARCITY OF POWER HAS RESULTED IN SHUTTING DOWN OF INDUSTRIAL PLANTS, LACK OF EMPLOYMENT AND MATERIAL LOSS TO MANUFACTURERS.

The abnormally low water this season in the rivers and lakes has had a serious effect upon the supply of electrical power for industrial purposes and in common with all other waterways the Trent River has been affected, resulting in a scarcity of power in this district supplied by the Hydro Electric Commission. Efforts have been made by the Hydro officials to conserve the power available in co-operation with manufacturers by shutting down plants for short periods. As the situation grew worse the shut-downs became more prolonged, causing much inconvenience, loss and lack of employment.

Local manufacturers inquired into the situation and found that more power could be secured if permission could be secured to divert water from some of the lakes along the Trent waterway and the canal itself. This would result in lowering the water in the lakes and canals somewhat and conflict with private rights which the government was bound to protect.

Realizing the position of the manufacturers and in the public interest generally E. Guss Porter, K.C., M.P., member for West Hastings in the Dominion Parliament, went to Ottawa to interview the Government in the matter, seeking a solution of the problem by permission to divert water urgently needed for power purposes. Mr. Porter first interviewed the Department of Railways and Canals but without securing much satisfaction. He then interviewed the Premier, and a Cabinet council was called to consider the matter. Mr. Porter's representations were so urgent and effective that he was successful in making an arrangement whereby the power situation can be materially improved. Permission will be given for the diversion of certain water to the Trent contingent upon power users assuming any possible damages that may result from such diversion.

Friday afternoon local power users met in Belleville and approved the arrangement made by Mr. Porter with the Government and passed a hearty vote of thanks to that gentleman for his prompt and effective efforts in their behalf. Committees were appointed to go to other places using Hydro power in this district and get the signatures of power users to the agreement requested by the Government.

The indictments of which there were two, of 43 counts each, were the longest returned here in years. Ponzi is now a Federal prisoner at the East Cambridge jail and is under indictment also by State Courts for larceny.

Brooklyn Team Not Approached

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer Canadian Press Limited

NEW YORK, Oct. 2.—District Attorney Lewis, of Kings County, today issued a statement in which he declares that the investigation by his office had failed to disclose any plan to fix the 1920 world series. My investigations have not disclosed a single suspicion that there has been any attempt to fix the coming series," said Mr. Lewis in his statement exonerating members of the Brooklyn Nationals, a competing team in the series.

ONTARIO PREMIER HAS INNOVATION

Toronto, Oct. 1.—An innovation in Provincial politics was introduced yesterday by Hon. E. C. Drury, when he called together the U. F. O. members of the Legislature for a pre-session caucus. Hitherto in the framing of legislation the Government prepared its program and early in the session submitted it to its supporters in caucus. If the supporters had any ideas about legislation the Government should bring forward, they were presented, but often the suggestions, while worth while, could not be acted upon owing to the time necessary for considering them from all angles.

With this in mind Premier Drury decided to get his supporters together in good time before the calling of the House to give them an opportunity to lay before the Government any matters they might consider should be taken up by the Government in their program. Yesterday's meeting for that purpose lasted for some time, but did not produce any very radical proposals.

Among the subjects brought up was the question of regulating the system of fixing prices of sugar beets in the beet-growing districts. The members also brought forward suggestions for changes in the Municipal Act, dealing with municipal representation on county councils and other matters.

Farmer of Coast is Protectionist

VERNON, Oct. 2.—On the questions of tariff there is a wide gap between the farmers of British Columbia and the farmers of the Middle West, as represented by the Canadian Council of Agriculture, so wide that the former do not hesitate to declare that the latter, in calling for free trade are "willing to sell their birthright for a mess of pottage." The width of the gap was shown in the policy of the United Farmers of British Columbia which was presented this afternoon to the Tariff Commission, and which showed that the fruit growers, dairymen, agriculturists, stockmen, poultrymen beekeepers and all other farm interests are all insistent that there must be an adequate tariff to guard them from the encroachments of the farmers in the United States. In presenting their platform, the British Columbia farmers declared that they recognized that tariff affects the country as a whole, and they added their conviction that it is inconsistent for anybody to demand protection in their particular commodity which a community or association is interested in producing and to ask for free trade upon the machinery which is used in the production of that particular commodity.

The United Farmers of British Columbia as a body, recommended that a tariff board be appointed similar to the Railway Board and that the farmers should be represented upon such board as a means of raising revenues to meet Canada's obligations. The farmers suggested that the tariff board, if appointed should consider the possibility of raising revenue from the protective manufacturing industries, by imposition upon such industries of a pro rata tax on their net profits, equal to the amount of protection afforded. The United Farmers went on to point out that they were fully in sympathy with the resolution of the fruit growers to the effect that there must be a tariff to protect them against any repetition of the dumping of United States goods on the Canadian market, and added that they are seeking to find a basis of understanding with all other farmers.

"To effect such an understanding," the statement continued, "it is necessary first to discover the points on which general agreement may be conceded." Their points are:—

(1)—That the injection of the tariff into the political field is a lamentable but apparently necessary evil, owing to the facility it offers for raising revenue and its appeal to selfish interest.

(2)—That in all, countries which have a large surplus of food products for export the producer or farmer is naturally a free trader in all this surplus of products.

(3)—That in those countries that import a large quantity of food products, most of which can be produced in the importing country the farmer is naturally a protectionist.

(4)—That, in consequence, no comparison between such countries as Great Britain and Canada on the general principle is possible or profitable.

(5)—That whatever changes are made in the tariff affect the revenue of the country, and that any reduction in the revenue must be made up from some other source.

NO HUSBANDS FOR 15,000,000 WOMEN

Leipzig, Oct. 2.—Because 35,000,000 lost their lives in Europe and Asia during the World War, 15,000,000 European women will die old maids. These figures are given by Dr. Schweishelmer in the Zeitung and are considered official. For every 1,000 men between the ages of 18 and 45 years there are, in France 1,230 women, in England, 1,175, in Italy, 1,228, in Germany 1,180 and in Austria-Hungary 1,230.

HUSBANDS—WIVES ARE YOU HELPING EACH OTHER?

Here is what J. C. Penney, of the Penney Company Chain Stores has to say in October Good Housekeeping:

"Unless a woman is right behind her husband and encourages him all the time, and is continually spurring him on, she is far more of a handicap than a helpmate, and a man with a wife who is selfish, extravagant and nagging has a mighty hard time ever making a success. He is apt to be continually discouraged and discontented. The kind of man I know and want, the kind of man who has the capabilities and qualities that make him a possible partner for me sometime, is the kind of a man who has—and knows that he has—a wife who will go through any hardships to aid him in achieving success. It has often been said that a man can accomplish anything in the world, if he makes up his mind that he wants it hard enough. I have discovered that in addition to a man's wanting it hard enough, his wife has to agree with him and help him attain the object he is striving for. No matter how good his ambition may be, a man who is unhappy in his home life, who is continually nagged and made to do things which he knows are extravagant in money or health, is apt to become discouraged and eventually find himself passing up a future possibility for present extravagance forced upon him by his wife."

Quebec Convent Prey To Flames

QUEBEC, Oct. 1.—With the wind raging at the rate of 50 miles an hour this afternoon fire broke out in Limoulou Convent on Eighth Avenue, and for a while threatened to destroy the entire building, as well as a section of the Limoulou Ward.

The fire caught in the roof, and is thought to have been caused by a spark from a nearby mill. As soon as the fire was discovered the first thought was to get the children out in safety. There were in all 134 children in the building at the time, and 100 nuns and novices. The children were promptly removed without any panic, and were taken to the St. Maurice School on the same avenue.

For three hours the firemen battled with the flames before they could get them under control.

While it was only the roof that was damaged by fire, the interior of the building on all floors was flooded, owing to the large volume of water required to fight the blaze.

Men Of Belfast Show Sentiment For Settlement

Said to be Willing to Accept Pending Home Rule Bill

BELFAST, Oct. 2.—Followers of sentiment among business men in Belfast declare a strong desire for a settlement of the Irish question is manifesting itself among them, there being even a willingness in some sections of the business world to accept the pending Home Rule Bill as the "lesser of two evils." It is being frankly admitted in some quarters that the trade in the city is suffering as a result of the boycott, but estimates of the amount of the loss are difficult to obtain.

In Belfast alone the disturbances since July have resulted in the killing of 64 persons, the injury of 600 others and property damage estimated at more than $7,000,000.

Bridegroom Missing at Wedding Ceremony

MONTREAL, Oct. 2.—An after effect of the great war dramatically delayed a wedding at St. Lambert last evening and today the authorities in charge of the Prince of Wales Hospital under the jurisdiction of the Soldiers Civil Re-establishment are using their best efforts to locate the bridegroom. The Anglican Church at St. Lambert had been decorated for the marriage of Miss Doreen Hicks to Bryce Muir, an overseas man. The guests had assembled and the bride was ready to walk down the aisle on the arm of her father J. T. Hicks, well known in St. Lambert and in business circles in Montreal. There was a delay of almost an hour and then the clergyman was told over the telephone that the bridegroom had had a recurrence of shell shock early yesterday afternoon and that the ceremony would have to be postponed.

Later on it was learned that Mr. Muir had been picked up in an unconscious condition on Peel street. From the soldier's button he was wearing something out of the ordinary was suspected and he was taken to the Prince of Wales Hospital. He spent a fitful night and this morning, Dr. F. MacKay, Neurologist, was to examine him. In some way not yet known he got out of the hospital and was later found in the lobby of the Windsor Hotel.

Clever Tricks With Bank Bills

TORONTO, Oct. 2.—An ingenious trick of banknote manipulation, the police say, was revealed following the arrest of Jacob Ackerman, of Picton, Ont., yesterday afternoon, by P. C. McLellan. Ackerman, who is charged with attempting to obtain money by fraud, is alleged to have entered a Yonge street store yesterday afternoon and asked for a fifteen-cent pair of insoles, for which he tendered what seemed to be a ten-dollar bill. The salesman examined the note and his suspicions were aroused. Bidding Ackerman wait a few minutes, he went to the door and called the officer, with the result that Ackerman was arrested. When searched at Court street station he was found to be possessed of over $800 in money. Examination of the note tendered to the shoe salesman showed that it was composed of five separate pieces stuck to a backing colored to match the face of the note. The other bills in Ackerman's possession were then examined by Detective Sullivan. Some of them were found to have been mutilated. They were cut into sections, the method of operation being to clip pieces from various parts of the bills and insert in the space thus made some thin paper. This on cursory examination would seem to be a patched bill and would be accepted by any unsuspecting person. By this process of cutting another ten-dollar bill would be created and went to the balance side of Ackerman's ledger.

Further reprisals were feared as the police recently threatened to sack three towns if Lendrum was not surrendered alive and well.

MACKENZIE KING WAS ROMANCING

Ottawa, Oct. 2.—"I am sorry to interfere with Mr. King's romancing," said Hon. C. C. Ballantyne, Minister of Marine and Fisheries, when shown Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King's reference, in his speech at Victoria, B.C., to the Canadian Government Merchant Marine.

"No person of sense would credit such a statement as that," Mr. Ballantyne added. "It is wholly false—not a contract was signed, not a dollar was spent until the authority of Parliament was first obtained."

Mr. King's reference to the Merchant Marine to which Mr. Ballantyne takes exception, was reported as follows:

"Scarcely less autocratic has been the Government's procedure in the expenditure of seventy millions of the people's money in the creation of a merchant marine. No ministry should have ventured to award contracts of one-tenth or one-hundredth of this sum without in the first instance coming to Parliament for authority to do so."

SAYS SALARIED MAN THE HARDEST HIT

Toronto, Oct. 2.—Sir Robert Falconer, president of the University of Toronto, in welcoming the students for the fall and winter term of the University, said that the men and women of the community who had been most effected by the high cost of living were those who, on fixed salaries, preserved society on the spiritual side—the school teacher, the university professor, the minister, the judges, and the permanent government officials. "These people endure without saying much," Sir Robert said. "They have no practical redress. They endure hardship and carry on as best they may, but the people must no deal unjustly with them, for in the long run injustice brings evil results."

"Your whole body," Dr. Fitzgerald explained, "is divided into ten perpendicular zones, corresponding to the ten toes or fingers. There are hundreds of little—what we might call electric buttons—on the body. If you press one you switch off the pain somewhere else. It's a sort of medical jiu jitsu. It is nature's own relief."

Poor Health Life,s Handicap

Rich, Red Blood and Strong Nerves Needed to Win Out

It has been well said that life is a race. The full blooded man with sound nerves, the bright eyed, rosy-cheeked woman invariably win. The nervous, dyspeptic man, and the ailing anaemic woman are left behind. Success in life is largely a question of good health and sound nerves. It is never the shaky, undecided men who are chosen for promotion; the sickly looking, pale woman is not sought after like her happy rosy sisters.

What makes all the difference is condition of the blood. If your blood is thin and poor, your nerves are bound to suffer, because they have to depend upon good red blood for nourishment. Headaches, undecided will, a shrunken figure and pale, unattractive face tell only too plainly that the blood is at fault.

Both men and women in great numbers have found deliverance from their inferiority in life's race, caused by impoverished blood through the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. They are a remedy that has been a household word for a generation, because they tone up the whole system, make the blood rich and red and strengthen the nerves. Mrs. B. Miller, Elmira, Ont., says: "I look upon Dr. Williams Pink Pills as a family medicine and have reason to praise them for what they have done in our home. Some years ago, while we were living in Alberta, my husband was so completely run down that he was unable to do any work, and even to carry a pail of water would exhaust him. A doctor was called in who said his heart was affected and that medicine would be of little use to him. This greatly worried me and I finally urged him to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. He began their use and in a short time the swelling in his hands and feet disappeared. We decided to return to Ontario, but the doctor said he could not stand the trip. But the doctor was mistaken, for through the use of the pills, he gained such strength as to be able to look after the harvest, and in a month later we returned to Ontario. My husband still takes a box or two of the pills twice a year, and they keep him in good shape. I have also found the pills good for my growing daughters, and we are never without them in our home."

One of the best things about Dr. Williams' Pink Pills is that they do not contain the slightest trace of opiates or harmful drugs. While they are overcoming disease they are building up general conditions of good health. You can get these pills through any dealer in medicine, or by mail at 50 cents a box, or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

MUSIC AND DRAMA

"SAN TOY" COMING

Probably the most opportune revival of musical comedy in recent years is F. Stuart Whyte's newest English importation, "San Toy," coming, as it does at a time when the theatre-going public is convalescing from an overdose of jazz music and acrobatic dancing, masquerading under the name of musical comedy.

'San Toy' embraces both music and comedy of the highest order, and when presented by a carefully chosen company of English artists, headed by Miss Zara Clinton such as Mr. Whyte has brought to Canada, it offers an evening's entertainment of such delightful possibilities that it should be marked as a red letter day on the theatrical calendar."

Mr. Whyte has given "San Toy" a splendid production, making the scenic part of the performance a much more important feature than is usually the case where the artists and the music can be depended upon to make a success of a piece without the aid of any elaborate scenic investure. "San Toy" will be the attraction at Griffin's Monday, October 11th.

A SHOW OF NOVELTIES

"My Soldier Girl," coming to Griffin's Theatre, this Monday night, October 4th, presents more than a score of feature novelties of which the grand illumination of New York City is a revelation in electrical effects. "Flirtation Walk," an illuminated runaway extending from the stage out over the orchestra seats, and extending more than half way to the rear wall of the theatre is probably the most popular. During the two acts the big "pony" ballet offers four tuneful and entertaining numbers on the "walk" and each receive their share of encores. Gorgeous costumes are a feature on the runboard worn by bewitching beauties who are good to look upon. A night at a lawn fete at Colonel Stone's home, Miami, Florida, features many new and novel dances drills, and ensembles and the pretty illumination forms a beautiful picture for a brilliant affair. Novel drills and dance ensembles participated in by a bewitching "pony" ballet in the smartest of costumes makes "My Soldier Girl" a show worth while.

ONLY LAUGHS AT GRIFFIN'S

Unwittingly and unwillingly Charlie Chaplin in his latest comedy, "A Day's Pleasure" is the cause of a 250 pound traffic cop falling into the grime of a large city sewer. It all happens when Chaplin (film) family decides to take a day's recreation. They repair to the family automobile which is neither expensive, good looking or reliable, and attempts to wander to the brooklets. The traffic cop decides that it is impossible for him to re-organize the street regulations of the city to fit the Chaplin automobile and he serves the famous comedian with a summons. With the dignity that made him famous, Chaplin undertakes to put the unfortunate car through a series of legal manoeuvres with poor avail. The climax of the incident arises when the street-repairers spill a bucket of hot and sticky tar in front of the family machine.

Mabel Normand appears on the same program in an amusing 5-reel Goldwyn farce comedy, "Upstairs."

A beautiful Outing Chester Travelogue and a new chapter of the thrilling serial, "The Whirlwind," featuring Charles Hutchison are also being screened on the same program. The above program is being shown at Griffin's today, matinee and night.

HERE'S A HOWD'YE DO

Salutary lessons to young brides who think themselves neglected by their hard working husbands and who engage in more or less harmless flirtations with other men, are embraced in the development of the story of "Let's Elope," the Paramount starring vehicle of Marguerite Clark, which will be presented at Griffin's next Tuesday and Wednesday evening. The theme is a fascinating one and its treatment by producer and star has been guided by delicacy and taste with superb effect.

The story is based upon Fred Jackson's successful play, "The Naughty Wife," which made a big hit in New York during the season of 1917-18. The plot deals with the young wife of an author who believes herself neglected and plans to elope with a shallow-brained young man. How the husband learns of this and takes a hand in the subsequent proceedings combines to make this one of the greatest comedies in which Miss Clark has been seen in many a day. Miss Clark wears several stunning gowns in this picture, all of which will interest her women admirers.

A new Burton Holmes Travelogue, a Selected 2-reel comedy, and Jack Dempsey, in a new chapter of "Daredevil Jack" serial will also be exhibited.

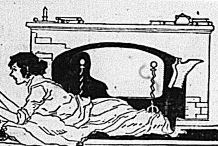
THE HOME OF GOOD MUSIC



THERE is a harmony in dress quite as attainable as in music—and quite as desirable. There may be discordant notes that clash unless one is discriminating with that good taste which spells elegance and comfort.

Hosiery that is chosen without regard to fit and texture may be the jarring note that puts the whole scheme of dress out of tune.

Mercury Hosiery is manufactured not merely as an article of clothing that covers the limbs but with regard to the requirements of particular people. First of all, comes quality of material, then the careful designing that makes for perfect fitting, and added to these the refinements, such as lack of seams, that harmonize in the finest finished hosiery product in Canada.

LESSON IN FRANKLIN'S LIFE

Great American Statesman and Patriot Rose to Immortal Fame From Humble Beginnings.

On the 17th of January, in 1706, Benjamin Franklin was born at Boston. His father was a soap and candlemaker, his mother, the daughter of a Quaker poet of Nantucket. When Benjamin was ten he was taken from school and set to work in his father's factory. He never again attended a regular school, yet he became a scholar. He was inept and unhappy at his first occupation, so his father apprenticed him to his brother to learn the trade of a printer. When he was seventeen he ran away from his brother and opened a printing office in Philadelphia. He pursued the career of printer and publisher until 1736, when he was made clerk of the Pennsylvania assembly. This was the beginning of his public career, and he rose steadily until he became one of the most striking figures in America. In France, when he was sent there as ambassador after the Revolutionary war, he became as widely known and loved as in his own country.

He Got the Job.

The colonel of a negro regiment in France charged the adjutant with selecting a suitable soldier to serve as orderly at his billet. The adjutant combed the command for the proper man and finally found one who had been an elevator boy in a hotel—a smiling, gracious darkey, neat and respectful.

When the man reported the colonel impressed upon him the necessity for tact.

"Do you know just what I mean by tact?" he asked.

"Yas, suh. W'en it comes to tac' I'se right on de spot. Why, cunnel, jus' las' week I went into the bathhouse near mah billet, an' foun' one of de madamselles there. I jest stepped back an' says, 'Pardon, monsieur!' Now ef dat warn't tac' den I don't know what is."—The Home Sector.

Not at Home.

I was busy cleaning my gas stove when the door bell rang. I was just about to open the door when I saw it was our pastor. So I stood back behind the door and told my little son, Louis, to open the door and tell him I was at the store.

But he pushed the door so far back that my toes stuck out from under the door, and when Louis told him I was out, he laughed and said: "All right, sonny, but the next time your mamma goes out, tell her to take her feet with her."

The Genuine Culver Racer is the niftiest auto for girls and boys ever built. It is a genuine motor car—not a toy. It has real steering wheel and gears with shifting lever, steel springs, powerful brake, pneumatic tires, handsomely enamelled body and good upholstery. Runs up to 25 miles an hour speed and uses very little gasoline. You will be proud of it if you win it. Dozens of boys and girls have won them and are proud of them.

HERE are four riddles for boys and girls with wise heads. We told the artist to draw the pictures to represent the riddles, but he guessed the right answers—and put them in too! So we barred him from the contest and told him to keep it a secret. Luckily, he got the answers all jumbled up, so you won't be any the wiser.

If you can unscramble the jumbled letters beneath each riddle picture and put them in their right order to spell the right words, you will have the right answers. It isn't an easy task. Good thinking, patience and perseverance may find you the answers. Try it.

If you think you have found the answers, write them carefully on a sheet of white paper. Put on nothing but your four answers and your name and address in the upper right-hand corner of the page. Handwriting, spelling, punctuation and general neatness will count if more than one answer is correct.

We will write and tell you immediately if you are correct, and send you a handsome illustrated

POT OF GOLD UNDER A RAINBOW.

Ratepayers are wondering how the extensive program of public works this year is going to be financed. The warning from the bank to go slow on civic expenditure produced no visible effect, but public works can not be carried on without money.

Take for instance the paving of Bridge street east, the estimated cost of which is $83,300, and for which it is estimated that more than twenty-five thousand dollars will have to be paid out of the general fund on account of street intersections and corner lots. In addition a sum estimated at five thousand dollars will be required to pay for the relaying of the waterworks main necessitated by the lowering of the street grade.

Bridge street roadway was in fairly good condition and apparently was good for several years.

Civic money heretofore spent on improving the roadway on Bridge street demanded its use as long as practicable and the tearing up of the road before its period of usefulness was ended meant the sacrifice of civic money.

That the street will look decidedly better with permanent pavement is obvious, but it does not seem good business to destroy good roads when there are poor roadways needing attention.

A great deal of work has been undertaken this year which could have profitably been spread over several years and the 1920 Council will be known for its large expenditure in a year when labor and material were abnormally high.

The tax rate this year is fixed at the highest legal limit together with a higher assessment, and this without providing for the street improvements under way. No wonder the ratepayers are puzzled over the present problem of financing and apprehensive over future civic indebtedness.

An explanation from the Council as to its plan of financing would be appreciated by the ratepayers, who are entitled to the information.

WISE SAWS AND MODERN INSTANCES

The psychology of business relationship and experience has never been more succinctly analyzed and expressed than in the concise little work of our former fellow citizen (who still calls Belleville "home"), Mr. W. C. Sills of New York. The book, entitled "Sales Talks," of which Mr. Sills is the author, is artistically printed and crammed full of "wise saws and modern instances," and mingled with the philosophy is a shrewd humor which the author developed in his early days of good comradeship on the Bay of Quinte. The author has made a real success of his chosen life work in the Metropolitan centre, and his many friends, and those of his wife—also from Belleville—wish him continued progress in his useful and productive career. He has always a warm welcome for anyone from the City of the Bay.

A few quotations from "Sales Talks" may interest our readers:

Success comes to the man who meets business half way.

You cannot win a game of football by watching it, nor can you win business battles by sitting in your office and hoping for business success to come to you.

"Wishing Wells" are "Wishing Wells." That's all. It is well to wish, but it is more important to will. If you will long enough and hard enough, you will get what you wish.

The sixth sense is common sense, and most important. When in doubt, heed your common sense. Let it be your guide always. It will show you the way to solve many problems.

Put hope, desire and work together. Keep them fresh and strong and constant each day, and each day will count for something well done.

Think in the positive, not in the negative.

When you think of what you can't do, you are not thinking of what you can do. You should be thinking of what you can do instead of worrying over what you can't do.

Remember that the brain grows. The more work you give it to do the more it will do and want to do.

Just couple enthusiasm with knowledge, faith and persistency, and no one can stop you. The enthusiastic man always lands on top.

A smile encourages a smile. Smile yourself into a prospect's heart and his brain will respond more readily to what you have to tell him.

An optimist thinks success instead of failure. An optimist sees sunshine all the time. He drives gloom away. He has the cheery, happy hopeful mind.

Add one idea to each business day, and at the end of a year you will have collected at least three hundred of them.

Modern business has no room for the grouch. We are all human and want to be treated with consideration.

You work is not the only source of your bread and butter and clothes and other necessities. It is your opportunity for personal development.

Holding a little convention with yourself is not a bad idea.

It's more worth while to be able to talk about what you have done than to explain why you failed.

Strengthen your organization and you strengthen your position.

Everyone has his dreams, but only the man who acts makes his dreams come true.

There is always a best in everything. There is always a way to get the best out of everything. The man who is looking for it will be the first to see opportunity and win success where others would not see a chance.

High cost of paper raises the temperature of newspaper publishers.

A story comes out of Winsted, Connecticut, of a railway brakeman who went back to flag a train clad only in his shirt and was arrested for playing September morn on an August afternoon. Weird stories emanating from Winsted are always looked upon with suspicion, for that dot upon the map harbors a fancy fictionist whose press despatches always keep editors guessing whether to put them in the funny column, the front page, or the waste paper basket.

The Pilgrim Father, who founded the United States of America upon Plymouth Rock, would be more than astonished could they but see the crazy antics of the New York fanatics who broke up a meeting intended to celebrate the tercentary anniversary of the landing of the Pilgrim Fathers. English delegates were insulted and called spies by the misguided fanatics who imagine they are helping Ireland by trying to foment war between Great Britain and the United States.

There were ninety-and-nine that safely lay in the shelter of the fold, but one was out on the hills away preaching against conscription. Now the Liberal lost sheep pretends he was searching for the ninety-and-nine.

Ratepayers would like to see a trial balance showing how Belleville stands on the year's business in order to decide whether to give the City Council a banquet or a foot race.

The Best Defensive is the Offensive
Calgary Herald

Premier Arthur Meighen evidently believes in the science of the offensive on the political battlefield. Instead of waiting for enemies of the Union Government to come after him, he is carrying the war with fire and sword right into their territory. One thing is certain, when the scrap is over, both Hon. Mackenzie King and the United Farmer leaders will know they have been in a fight.

THE POET'S CORNER

ALONE

The crowd, the crowd—oh, he could almost cry
To see those myriad faces hurrying by,
And each a strong tower rooted in the past
On dark, unknown foundations, each made fast
With locks nobody knew that perhaps love
Might push the bars half back and just peep in—
And see strange sights, it may be. But for him
They were locked donjons, every window bright
With beckoning mystery; and then, Good Night!
The lamp was out, they were passed, they were gone
For ever and ever. And one might have been
The hero or the friend long sought, and one
Was the loveliest face his eyes had ever seen (Vanished as soon), and he went lonely on.

Then in a sudden fearful vision he saw
The whole world spread before him—a vast sphere
Of seething atoms moving to one law:
'Be individual. Approach, draw near,
Yes, even touch: but never join, never be
Other than your own selves eternally"
And there are tangents, tangents of thought that aim
Out through the gaps between the patterned stars
At some fantastic dream without a name
That, like the moon shining through prison-bars,
Visits the mind with madness.

Some Inducement

It was a beautiful little place. The house was small, but perfect, and the garden lovely with flowers and fruit and vegetables and hens and all. And the surrounding country matched it for prettiness.

"However did you get such a fine house?" asked the friend after the host had proudly shown him round.

"It was this way," said the host, casting a cautious look around to where his lady was inspecting and condemning the gardener's work. "This property was for sale, so I brought my wife to see it. When she had looked round the house and the gardens, and admired the views from the windows, I asked her what she thought of it. 'Henry,' she replied, 'it is so pretty it leaves me speechless!"

Premier Meighen answers Premier Drury. Never said or insinuated that Farmers or Labor were Bolsheviki.

BUY Long-Term Securities NOW!

The Question of the Rate of Interest

A great many people do not realize that the Federal Income Tax applies to the income from securities.

Investors should give thought to this fact.

Those who are taking advantage of present low prices to buy bonds should consider carefully the bonds selected.

The interest return from bonds which are subject to taxation, is in many instances lower, after the Income Tax has been deducted, than that obtainable from tax-free Victory Bonds

All long-term bonds are just now priced low.

VICTORY BONDS are among the best long-term securities available. We recommend those, FREE FROM INCOME TAX, falling due in 1933 and 1937.

The Thirteenth Commandment

By RUPERT HUGHES

her shoulders. It is a kind of white lie, the shrug.

"Hang on to your job as long as you can, old girl, for you'll have to support us all, I guess. You're the only one of us that can get a job or earn a cent. That's the advantage of being a pretty girl."

Daphne was almost moved to tell him some of the disadvantages of being a pretty girl, but she felt that the time was unfit for exploiting her own woes. She ached for some one to disclose them to, but she withheld them.

Leila came in, arrayed in her very finest. She was smiling in the contentment of beauty at its best. "When you ask credit you've got to look as if you didn't need it," she said.

They found Dutilh in a state of unusual excitement and exhaustion. There were few customers in his place and he left them to the other salespeople. He advanced on Leila and Daphne and gave a hand to each.

"Why, oh why in the name of Paul Poiret didn't you come in a week ago? The pirates have taken every decent gown I had. The sewing women are working like mad to reproduce 'em, but there's nothing left fit to show, except to Pittsburgh and Plattsburg tourists. Where did you get that awful rag you have on?"

"Here," said Leila.

"Oh, of course, I remember. It's beautiful. Sit down. I'm dead. Have a cigarette? Have a cup of tea? Oh, Miss Galvey—tea for three, please. I didn't forget either of you when I was in Paris. I have a siren gown for you, Mrs. Kip, that will break your heart with joy. You'd murder to get it. And as for you, Miss Kip—well, you'll simply be indecently demure in the one I call 'Innocence.'"

Daphne was a trifle shocked, but Leila's eyes filled with tears at the mockery of such talk. She moaned: "I didn't come to buy. I came to apologize and beg for mercy. I owe you a lot of money, and I haven't a cent."

"Who has? What of it? Nobody's paying anybody."

"But I had an urgent letter from your bookkeeper, or somebody."

"Don't mind her. She gets excited. Nobody pays me. You come in and get another gown and you'll catch a millionaire with it."

It was hard for Dutilh to keep his clients clear in his memory.

"But I can't afford it."

"And I can't afford to have my children going round in last year's rags. You do as you're told and come around next week. I'll get my money out of you some day. Trust me for that."

Leila felt a rapturous desire to kiss him and call him names of gratitude. He was generous by impulse and patient, and nobody's fool at that. The thoughts of tailors are long, long thoughts.

Leila Felt a Rapturous Desire to Kiss Him and Call Him Names of Gratitude.

Daphne sat thinking, but not of clothes. The labor problem had almost defeminized her. She was studying the models as they lounged about the shop. Suddenly she spoke. "Oh, Mr. Dutilh, how much money does a model earn?"

"You mean what salary do I pay? Common clothes-horses get fifteen or sixteen dollars. Better lookers get better pay. You're worth a thousand a week at least. Want a job?"

"Yes."

His smile was quenched. He studied her across his cup. He saw the anxiety in her curiosity.

"What's the matter?" he said. "Has he run off with another girl, or do you expect to go fishing for a millionaire in my pond?"

"I need the money. I've had hard luck." Daphne said it so solemnly that he grew solemn, too.

"That's too bad! Well, I've got more girls now than I need. Nobody as beautiful as you, of course, but—I suppose I could let some one go."

"Oh, I couldn't think of that!"

"Neither could I. Well, I'll squeeze you in somewhere. But I can't pay you as much as you are worth. Would —umm—twenty dollars a week interest you?"

"It would fascinate me."

"All right, you're engaged. You can begin next Monday." He turned to Leila. "Do you want a job, too?"

"No, thank you!" Leila snapped. Her eyes were blacker than ever with rage, and her red-white cheeks curdled with shame. She could not trust herself to speak. Her brunette beauty had the threat of a storm-loaded thundercloud.

When she and Daphne had taken their departure, Leila still dared not speak to Daphne on the way home. She dared not speak to her at all.

Leila brought triumph to Bayard. She told him what Dutilh had told her of his willingness to wait for his money.

Bayard embraced Leila and hailed her as an angel. When she had taken full toll of her success, she told Bayard what Daphne had done. She told it simply, without emphasis, knowing its effect.

"Daphne!" he roared. "You asked Dutilh for a position among his models? Great Lord of heaven, I'll telegraph father to come take you home."

"That's all right," Daphne taunted. "You'll send the message collect, and he'll never be able to pay for it, so he'll never know what he missed."

"But surely we are not such beggars that—"

"Who has any money? Who has anything left to pawn?"

"But there must be other jobs."

"Get me one."

"There must be some other way."

"Show me."

Clay Wimburn came in after dinner. His protests against Daphne's project were louder than Bayard's, with the added rancor of jealousy. But he had no substitute to offer.

She forebore to tell him of the Gerst affair. He was deep enough in the mire. He went away a little later and she returned to her cubbyhole with the Chivvises.

Those were black days for all America, suffering under the backfire from the sudden war and from the long fatigue of hard times. There were weeks of dread lest the United States be sucked into the maelstrom at a time when it was least prepared in money, arms, or spirit. Never, perhaps, in human chronicle had so many people looked with such bewildered misery on so many people locked in such multifarious carnage.

At such a time, as in an epoch of plague, there came a desperate need of a respite from woe; soldiers skylarked in trenches; war widows danced in gay colors; festivals were held in the name of charity; frivolities and vices were resorted to that good souls might renew themselves for the awful work before them.

It was in such a mood of imperative demand for cheer of some sort that Tom Duane swam back into Daphne's gloomy sky.

Daphne had come home after a morning of rebuffs. She was heartsore and footsore, in shabby boots that she could not replace. She was called to the telephone, and Duane's voice chanted in her ear with a tone of peculiarly comforting melancholy.

"That you, Miss Kip? This is me, Mr. Duane. Poor Tom Duane. Poor Tom's a-cold. I came back to town unexpectedly early. I have something important to say to you. Will you take a little ride with me in my car?"

"Why not?" she said, with a laugh. She was glad that he could not see the tears that gushed across her eyelids.

"Three cheers for you! I'll be there in a jiffy. You couldn't arrange to dine with me, could you? Or could you?"

Again she answered, "Why not?"

Duane's voice rang back: "Tip-top! You've made me happy as a box of pups. I'm half-way there already."

Letters to the Editor

WHY?

Belleville, Oct. 1, 1920.

To the Editor of The Intelligencer:

Dear Sir,—Would you kindly give me space in your valuable paper for the following:

In May of this year, a petition, signed by between three and four hundred residents of Bleecker and Baldwin Wards, was presented to the Board of Education, requesting that the services of Miss Fleming be retained at Pine Street School. I would like to ask why, in the face of this, Miss Fleming was transferred to Grier Street School, where the staff was complete, a very long distance from her home, which she owns. Her work in the Belleville schools speaks for itself, as well as her loyalty as a citizen. Thanking you for the publication of the above,

FRANK POTTER.

HEAVY SNOWFALL

Toronto, Oct. 1.—Strong northwesterly gales during the night followed by a heavy snowfall this morning gave this part of the Dominion an early taste of wintry weather. The temperature is quite low and the prospects are for a continuance of the same weather throughout the day.

CLIMBS LIKE FLY

Mountain Goat Most Sure-Footed of All Animals.

Hunter Tells of Remarkable Performance He Witnessed in the Rocky Mountains—Amazing Exhibition of Calm Confidence.

"To me the most wonderful thing about the mountain goat is his mind," writes Dr. William T. Hornaday, director of the New York Zoological park, in an article on "The Rocky Mountain Goat at Home" in Boys' Life. "He is so calm and self-confident, so levelheaded and sure-footed, that often and often he marches and climbs where no other four-footed animal of North America dares to follow him. I never get over my original amazement and admiration of his summit work.

"Early in our studies of white goats in that goat paradise we were treated to an exhibition of climbing that opened our eyes. As we were passing across a tiny goat pasture at the foot of a rocky precipice we surprised a party of four goats on the side of the wall, about 100 feet up. We halted, to see what they would do. The face of the rock wall was reasonably rough, but it could not have been more than ten degrees from being perpendicular.

"Two goats stood safely upon the summit, looking down on their entrapped comrades. The unlucky four could have been shot as easily as picking grapes; but it is not all of goat-hunting to kill goats!

"Finding that they were not being shot at, the four goats started to get away from us by climbing straight up the face of that precipice! For ten minutes we watched an amazing exhibition. Each goat chose an independent course, reached up with his front feet for a foothold, then, by sheer muscular strength lifted his heavy body up the three or four feet to be gained. Often sidestepping was necessary to find a new foothold; but there were no slips, and never once a turning back.

"They climbed in that way about 200 feet while we watched them, then reached easy going and quickly disappeared over the summit. We hunters all agreed that no mountain sheep could make a climb like that; but of course we don't really know.

"Several times we saw goats serenely promenade across the faces of perpendicular cliffs of bare rock so smooth that no sign of ledge or path was visible to us, even with our glasses. In every such case it looks as if the animal were walking on air. The feet are planted with great precision and firmness, and this imparts to the animal a stiff gait, and the general appearance of a mechanical toy in motion.

Far From Shakespeare's Style.

How far the English language, as written by officials and some journalists, has departed from the style of the days of Shakespeare is pungently illustrated by the following that appeared in a popular English newspaper in an "Answers" column:

The man you inquire about is a "ham-bone," and very "dud" at that. He is green at the game and has now, I believe, dried up. . . . I wish you would warn your members against fit-ups and combinations, except those which are under recognized managements.

In an educational report that was issued from Whitehall, London, the same week was found the following gem of perfunctory English:

The examination system has made ineradicablel upon chief inspectors' references, and the psychology of control, in its strictest sense, is imperious inquisitiveness involved to infinity upon the simplest statement that filters to the microscopic section.

Sister Nations.

When Canada's houses of parliament were burned down, New Zealand sent a consignment of kauri timber of use in the interior finishing of the new building, a courtesy much appreciated at Ottawa. Several years previous New Zealand's house of parliament had also been destroyed by fire, and is now at last being rebuilt. Canada has been swift to reciprocate, and it is most probable that the prime minister's room in the new parliament buildings in Wellington will be paneled in Canadian maple with walnut framing. It is fitting that as the political homes of Canada and New Zealand arise from their ashes there should be built into each the record of a sister nation's remembrance.—Christian Science Monitor.

Doves Hatched a Hen's Egg.

A novel experiment of Mrs. Ernest Hirsh of Pittsburgh has proven a success. Two doves owned by Mrs. Hirsh, after three weeks of waiting, became the foster parents of a baby chicken.

Several weeks ago Mrs. Hirsh, as an experiment, placed a full-sized hen's egg under the mother dove. At the time she did not believe the dove would hatch the egg, and day after day watched the nest, expecting the dove to leave the nest. However, the birds alternated in sitting upon the egg and finally their patience was rewarded. A "chick" pecked its way out of the shell and immediately tried to get out of the nest.

Vote of Thanks for Monash.

It is suggested in Melbourne, Australia, that the federal government should accord a vote of thanks to General Monash for his great services to the country.

LETTER "R" NOT POPULAR

Many Writers Would View With Equanimity Its Complete Disappearance From the Language.

In a tract recently issued under the auspices of the Society for Pure English, Dr. Robert Bridges deplores the practical disappearance of the letter R from the speech of southern Englishmen, according to the Manchester Guardian. Yet, some people would be disposed to regard the extinction of this letter with composure or even approval. John Aubrey, for instance, appears to have nursed a prejudice against those who sound it too prominently in their speech. In his "Lives" Aubrey animadverts on the fact that "Milton pronounced the letter R (littera canina) very hard—a certain sign of a satyricall witt."

In Germany the "canine letter" has found many enemies, who maintain that its abounding employment largely accounts for the ruggedness of Teutonic speech. Some writers have gone so far as to produce works from which it is entirely banished—a remarkably difficult feat, seeing that it figures in about 50 per cent of German words.

Two minor luminaries of the eighteenth century, Brockes and Gottlieb Burmann, wrote a number of poems from which the letter is deliberately excluded, so as to produce an atmosphere of "sweetness and light."

These facts were eclipsed by a nineteenth century author, Grans Rittler, who held the letter in aversion, though it appears twice in his own surname. He published two novels, "Die Zwillinge" and "Lisette und Wilhelm," in which no R can be found.

Paul von Schonthau and Leo Kobe are responsible for similar works on a lesser scale.

KING ALFONSO'S FIRST SMOKE

Experience of Spanish Monarch Very Much Like That of Some American Small Boys.

The incident, it appears, occurred immediately after he had been formally enthroned as king of Spain when attaining his majority on his sixteenth birthday.

Up to that time he had not been allowed to smoke, nor even then was the prohibition withdrawn. Nevertheless, he came to the conclusion that, as a ruling monarch, he might at least do as he liked is this respect.

Accordingly he asked his brother-in-law, the prince of Asturias, for a cigarette.

"I haven't got one," said the prince, faithful to family orders.

Then the king applied to the officer of the guard, who said solemnly:

"I regret that I do not smoke them, your majesty."

At last the young king made his way to the sentry at the palace door, who amiably produced a plug of black tobacco from his trousers pocket and rolled a cigarette for his majesty, who smoked it proudly through the palace.

"It made me violently sick later on," he said in telling the story; "but I enjoyed it at the time. I felt, as I puffed and puffed, that I was really and truly grown up at last."

Supplying Palestine With Water.

From the average yearly rainfall of 26 inches enough water could be stored up in Palestine to support a population of 15,000,000, according to James Haines, secretary of the Zionist Society of Engineers, which is laying plans for a water supply system for the Holy land as part of the restoration work necessary to make the land ready to receive the hundreds of thousands of Jews from all over the world who will emigrate there as soon as the political status of the country is cleared up.

Allowing for a 50 per cent loss through evaporation and running off, Mr. Haines has figured that the yearly rainfall over the 20,000 square miles of Palestine will provide a future population of 6,000,000 with a daily per capita supply of 2,055 gallons. The average daily consumption in New York at present is estimated at about 800 gallons per capita.

"Silly Old Fool."

Of the stories told by Mr. Pett Ridge, the popular author, one of the best, perhaps, is of an incident which occurred outside a London railway station.

"I wanted a taxicab," says Mr. Ridge. "A small boy ran to fetch one and came back with it, holding the handle of the door as a signal of temporary ownership. As the cab pulled up a bigger lad tried to obtain possession of the handle.

"Out of it!" ordered the young boy, aggrievedly. "I was the one sent to get the taxi for the silly old fool"—he turned to me and touched his cap respectfully—"wasn't I, sir?"—London Tit-Bits.

Among Humorists.

"Ever borrow an idea?" asked the young husband.

"Among us professionals it is considered permissible to borrow back and forth," said the old timer. "However, I hope you'll avoid something a friend of mine once did, and has been sorry for ever since."

"What was that?"

WHAT IS A SPECIALIST?

The dictionary says, "a specialist is a person devoted to some one line of study or professional work," so that a person engaged in different lines of business or professional work cannot be correctly called a specialist, we devote all our time and study to ONE line of professional work, namely, Refractive Errors of the Eye and as we are the only one in Belleville who can make this claim we therefore call ourselves "Exclusive Eye-Sight Specialist."

Some of our methods of examination, 1st the Optholmoscope, by means of which we detect any abnormal condition of the surface of the eye and also which is more important can tell if any disease in the Retina or Optic Nerve, if so we advise medical treatment at once. 2nd The Opthalmometer, which reveals Astigmatism if present, and the approximate amount. 3rd The Retinoscope, or "Shadow Test" by which we measure the amount of Myopia (or near sight), also Hypermatropia, (the opposite of near sight) by this method we can correctly fit a person who may be unable to answer questions. Your eyes are worthy of the best available service. Consult Alexander Ray, Exclusive Eye-Sight Specialist.

CURIOS OF A KING.

George V. Has Strange Mementoes In His Collection.

Probably few of the thousands who visit Windsor Castle every year have seen the museum near the Equerries' entrance, in which King George treasures his private collection of curious, ranging from war relics to walking sticks, says Answers.

Here you will see mementoes of every campaign of recent years, including King Theodore's cap and gold seal, presented to Queen Victoria at the conclusion of the Abyssinian war; the scarlet saddle, edged with gold, captured from the late Ameer of Afghanistan, and the crimson banner of Wad Bishara, which fell into Lord Kitchener's hands at Firket.

Here, too, is to be seen a wonderful collection of old china, consisting of 10,000 pieces, and valued at three-quarters of a million dollars.

One, a beautiful dessert service of Sevres ware, alone represent a value of $150,000, while a breakfast service given to George 3, on his birthday in 1810 by his daughters is worth $50,000.

Among the furniture are the writing desk given by Henry VIII. to Anne Boleyn on their wedding day, and a Venetian chair, used by the Doges and dated 1670. There is also a solid silver table of the same period.

The King's collection of feather cloaks is valued at $50,000. They are composed of gold, black and crimson feathers from the wings of a now extinct species of parrot, and were given to George IV. by the king of the Sandwich Islands in 1824.

Not far away may be found the collection of walking sticks King Edward inherited from his mother, numbering 187 in all, many of them of great value. One, purchased at the Culloden sale in 1897, is carved to represent Wisdom and Folly; another, of black oak, originally belonged to Charles II., while a third is made from the wood of the luckless Alabama.

Not the least interesting feature of the royal museum is the collection of gold keys, presented to King George and his royal predecessors on the occasion of opening buildings, to each of which is attached a brief account of the ceremony with which it is connected.

Malay Prince Against Polygamy.

The Crown Prince Ismail of Johore, who has a strong bias for monogamy, has just left England for his native land, where custom expects him to remain staunch to polygamy.

According to the custom of Johore, the crown prince has to take four wives. The first wife is the choice of his father, the Sultan; the other three the prince may choose as his fancy dictates. But the prince, having become a convert to British customs during his stay in this country, does not approve of this custom.

He prefers the English practice, particularly where it concerns individual choice. There is likely to be an interesting discussion on the marriage question when his royal highness reaches Johore.

It is eight years since the crown prince went to Europe to be educated. He has a great regard for English institutions, and would like to see similar institutions adopted in his own country. He is afraid, however, that the population is not yet sufficiently educated for this to be done.

He has a great reverence for his father, the democratic sultan. It was a summons from his father, who will soon visit England, that necessitated the return of the prince, who will probably act as ruler during his father's absence.

Like his father, who has a large racing stud, the crown prince is an enthusiast of the turf. During his stay in England he was frequently seen at the race course. He was, however, not an adept at selecting winners.

Prince Wore Right Hat.

The Prince of Wales changed his coat for what the English call a bowler on Flemington racecourse, Melbourne, Australia, when he found the members of the reception committee more ceremonially clad than he had anticipated.

Joseph Chamberlain would have been glad of the opportunity of making a similar change at Durban in 1902. When he reached that city during his South African tour the Colonial Secretary caused some amusement by driving through the thronged streets wearing a helmet. Durban is not in the tropics, and the vast majority of Durbanites never wear helmets. Straw hats and soft felts are the usual thing, silk hats seeing the light only on very special occasions.

The Colonial Secretary's visit ranked as one of these, so a wonderful collection of antique toppers was displayed in his honor. The Durbanites were trying to pay a compliment to Chamberlain by looking English, and the great man was attempting to look Durbanish in a helmet.

King Pays Penny for Seat.

In the soft sunshine a man entered Hyde Park, London, with a companion, and after a short stroll round they sat down in the shade of a tree and chatted for a while.

The man who demands a penny a seat called on them and got a coin.

As he came away a police officer who had been standing by asked, "What did you get?"

"A threepenny bit."

"Give you sixpence for it."

"So will I," said a photographer.

"Give you a shilling for it," said the policeman.

"Let's have your bob," replied the chair controller.

The man who had paid for his chair was the King of the Belgians.

He Didn't Care.

Pupils from Technical high school were making the usual afternoon trip to town on an overcrowded East Michigan street car. Mr. Flirt was also making the trip to town on this particular afternoon, and from an advantageous position was making eyes at the girls.

"That fellow doesn't seem to care who he winks at," suggested one of the feminine members of the crowd. Then five seconds later: "Oh, heavens—he winked at me."—Indianapolis News.

where Society Brand Clothes are sold

MADE IN CANADA

There's a new style note

You will see the new style note this fall wherever the best-dressed people gather—in homes or at clubs, at play or at work. The new style is a welcome change to most men. It's a change from the high-waisted, pinched-in and skirted effects to ample-chested, full coats that hang almost straight from the shoulders. Vents will be shorter, noticeably shorter, in fall suits.

Society Brand Suits for fall embody correctly these style changes. The highest priced and proudest custom tailor in town is cutting his fall suits along these lines.

We have the style in Society Brand Suits. Also the fabrics and the fine tailoring. A call at our store is like visiting an exhibit of advanced style.

Doughnuts that melt in your mouth!

The EASIFIRST way

What is the secret? Well, the cook and the recipe both count, but the big factor is really the frying fat you use. You see, EASIFIRST will stand a high temperature—you can make it 100 degrees hotter than lard and 200 degrees hotter than butter before it smokes or burns. This means that when the doughnut is dropped into the hot EASIFIRST a protecting crust is instantly formed around it—no grease soaks in to make the doughnut heavy or soggy.

A DOUGHNUT RECIPE
that means Success

1 heaping teaspoonful EASIFIRST
2 eggs.
1 cup white sugar.
½ teaspoonful salt.
1 cup sweet milk.
3 level teaspoons baking powder
⅓ teaspoon nutmeg.
3 cups flour.

Mix sugar and EASIFIRST together. Add well beaten eggs, milk and nutmeg. Sift flour, baking powder and salt twice. Mix with above ingredients. Roll out, cut with doughnut cutter and fry in hot EASIFIRST.

The EASIFIRST that's left over may be used again without carrying any flavors.

Be sure you get EASIFIRST—your dealer will supply you. In cartons and tins. Costs less and goes farther than butter or lard.

Water From Storage Lakes Can Relieve Power Shortage

MANUFACTURERS IN BAY OF QUINTE DISTRICT FACED WITH SERIOUS LOSS IF POWER SCARCITY IS NOT SPEEDILY REMEDIED—1500 EMPLOYEES AFFECTED IN BELLEVILLE ALONE—GOVERNMENT ASKED TO DIVERT WATER FROM STORAGE LAKES ON TRENT VALLEY CANAL SYSTEM.

Power shortage in the Central Hydro district caused by the low water in the Trent River daily grows worse, an dthe manufacturers concerned are very much alarmed over the serious situation which has developed. The district supplied with electrical energy by the Hydro Electric Commission from its power development on the Trent River includes all the territory from Oshawa to Kingston and between Belleville and Peterborough.

Some weeks ago when the power shortage, owing to low water in the Trent, first became noticeable the Hydro officials coped with the situation by cutting off the power from industries for short periods, alternately, a group at a time, and the inconvenience was inconsiderable. Gradually the situation became worse, however, until it was necessary to shht the power off for days at a time.

Most of the industries in the Bay of Quinte district have been working at high pressure getting out orders, some working day and night, and the enforced closing down has caused heavy financial loss, besides throwing many out of employment.

RELIEF PROMISED.

The manufacturers of Quinte district, upon investigating the situation, found that more power could be secured by diverting water from the storage system of the Trent Valley Canal system in the upper lakes and through E. Guss Porter, K.C., parliamentary representative for West Hastings, approached the government at Ottawa for relief. Mr. Porter laid the matter before Premier Meighen, members of the Cabinet and the Department of Railways and Canals, with the result than an arrangement was reached whereby the Department of Railways and Canals will permit the storage waters of the canal system to be let down and reduced for power purposes to the extent of one-tenth of one foot per week from now until the present critical condition to manufacturers from lack of power owing to the low condition of the waters of the river Trent and said Trent Canal is relieved by fall rains or otherwise. In order to protect the governmet from any possible action for damages to private power developments or otherwise the manufacturers of Bay of Quinte district have signed an agreement relieving the government and Department of Railways and Canals from all claims for injury or damage that may arise in consequence of lowering the water in the storage lakes.

All of the manufacturers in the following places have signed the agreement: Belleville, Trenton, Napanee, Deseronto, Cobourg, Madoc, Deloro, Port Hope, Corbyville, Havelock

1500 OUT OF WORK IN BELLEVILLE.

Several of the largest industries in Belleville were closed down almost the whole of last week and fifteen hundred employees thrown out of work. Orders are being cancelled and the prospect is most discouraging unless the government takes quick action to relieve the situation. The fact that the Hydro Electric Commission, supplying the power, is a provincial institution, and the control of the storage waters is vested in the Department of Railways and Canals, under the Dominion Parliament, complicates the situation.

LOSS TO FISHERMEN.

One of the industries in Quinte district shut down through power shortage is a box factory engaged on large orders for fish boxes for the fall catch from Quinte waters. These boxes are necessary for the shipment of $750,000 worth of fish, and if the boxes are not forthcoming the fishermen will be in a sorry plight and an enormous loss will result.

The Judge-Jones flour milling industry at Belleville have been working day and night on large orders dependent upon delivery during the season of navigation, and if the power shortage continues their loss will be heavy. Other milling industries in the Trent district are similarly affected.

Industries in this district have many orders for quick delivery which will be lost if the power shortage is not relieved at once.

SCHIFF'S FORTUNE OVER $50,000,000

New York, Oct. 4.—Jacob H. Schiff's private fortune will exceed $50,000,000, according to an estimate made by one of the partners in the banking firm of Kuhn, Loeb & Company. That estimate was generally understood by well-informed Wall street men to mean that the estate of the dead man would be something over $50,000,000 and considerably less than $75,000,000.

When E. H. Harriman died the first will estimate placed the value of his estate at $200,000,000. The the first official statement placed the figure at $70,000,000. Finally it was understood by insiders that the real Harriman estate, including gifts made before his death, amounted to $125,000,000.

Mr. Schiff gave away during his life a great deal more than Mr. Harriman, and Mr. Harriman also took speculative chances that were not taken by Mr. Schiff.

SWALLOWED HIS TEETH

London, Oct. 4.—Surgeons at the King Edward VII. Hospital at Windsor have made a remarkable recovery of a plate of false teeth swallowed by a man. They inserted a tube and after "fishing" for nearly an hour, they secured the teeth by fine wire clips and drew them through the throat.

PEACHES, 11 QUARTS FOR 25c.

St. Catharines, Oct. 3.—Today, in answer to the advertised invitation of fruit farmers, people went with their baskets to the peach orchards and got eleven quarts of the best fruit for 25 cents. Growers declare they are money in pocket this way, as by shipping peaches to Toronto and other cities they don't clear a quarter dollar a basket. Baskets costs them 20 cents each, they say.

If the public would only use reasonable care and not break down the trees they could have all my crop that way," said one grower today.

Another grower stated that he figured on a consignment of peaches he sent to Toronto recently, and found he was just $10 out. "I would have been money in pocket had I left the peaches right on the trees and let them rot," he said.

Drastic Cutting Of Prices On Chicago Wheat Market

NEARLY TWELVE CENTS A BUSHEL SLASHED FROM VALUES IN SOME CASES—DECEMBER DELIVERY DROPS TO $1.95—FLOUR PRICES REDUCED FROM TEN TO SIXTY CENTS PER BARREL.

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer, Canadian Press, Limited.

CHICAGO, Oct. 4.—Drastic cutting of prices took place on the wheat market today. In some cases nearly twelve cents a bushel was slashed from values, December delivery at one time bringing only $1.96 as against $2.07 at Saturday's close. Increased liquidation by holders was in progress ,especially from rural sources.

FLOUR PRICES DOWN.

MINNEAPOLIS, Oct. 4.—Flour prices continued their downward trend when the mills effected a reduction of ten to sixty cents a barrel for family patents here today. The low wheat market is responsible for the decline, millers said.

New York Explosion Suspect Arrested

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer Canadian Press Limited

NEW YORK, Oct. 4.—Renewed vigor was instilled today in the investigation of the origin of the mysterious Wall street explosion on Sept. 16th, as a result of the arrest at Pittsburgh yesterday of Floreen Zelenaka. Department of Justice agents said they attached special significance to the arrest. Immediately Government investigaters learned of the arrest they started an investigation at the Brooklyn address given by Zelenaka and early today ascertained that the man left his little room in the heart of the foreign section an hour or so before the disaster occurred. When he left he carried a reddish yellow bag and left in his room a quantity of Russian literature said to be of a radical nature. He had once been employed by the Hercules Power Co.

WOMAN FATALLY BURNED

Kitchener, Oct. 4—Mrs. A. Schwartz of Breslau sustained fatal injuries by being burned while pouring coal oil over a wood fire at her home yesterday morning. The oil caused an explosion, which blew out the bottom of the can, and her clothing took fire and was burned off her body. Her one-year-old child was also severely burned, and the father had his arm badly injured in extinguishing the burning clothing. The mother and child were removed to the Kitchener and Waterloo Hospital. Mrs. Schwartz succumbed to her burns at an early hour this morning and little hope is held out for the recovery of the child. The arrival of Mr. Schwartz, who conducts the Breslau Hotel, saved the destruction of the building.

Strange Charges Made By Patient

Farmer Claims $10,000 Damages For Ill-Treatment In Sanitarium

GUELPH, Oct. 4.—Claiming $10,000 damages from the Homewood Sanitarium of this city, for alleged malicious arrest, false imprisonment, assault, an operation and a false declaration that he was a lunatic, George Aaron Annette, a farmer of Lambton county, at the Assizes here, when his action against the sanitarium was tried, acted as his own lawyer and was on the witnes stand for three hours. The case has been before the courts more or less for ten years. The alleged offences date back to May, 1910.

Annette testified that on the date in question, he and his wife visited the Homewood Sanitarium under the impression that it was an inland summer resort. While he was looking over the place, upon the invitation of Dr. Hobbs, medical superintendent of the sanitarium, the witness said, he was seized by an attendant and kept in confinement. When he protested against such treatment, he was ducked in a bath-tub, and the ducking followed each of his protests. Annette said he was beaten and was prohibited from communicating with his wife. On one occasion, he said, an attendant poked his false teeth loose with a stick because he had refused to eat.

Annette told the court that he was forced to submit to an operation for hernia. When he awoke the wound was almost healed and an attendant told him he had been asleep for almost three weeks. He was detained in the institution for almost a year, the plaintiff said and he was still suffering from mental and physical injuries as a result of his treatment at the sanitarium.

The case was dismissed.

Higher Prices For Imported Cigars

The price of imported Havana cigars will be raised to the consumer $4 per hundred. This increase has been announced by the local retail cigar men in Montreal, and presumably the same situation will affect all parts of Canada. The increase in the price of cigars is due to the abrupt increase in wholesale cost by the Cuban manufacturers.

While so far it is only the smoker of imported cigars who is to be affected, the probabilities are that the Canadian manufacturers will shortly follow suit, and all classes of cigar smokers will be concerned.

CHEAPER ALCOHOL FOR INDUSTRIES

Ottawa, Oct. 4.—A change in the regulations governing the denaturing of alcohol for industrial purposes has been made with a view to making industrial alcohol available to the arts and industries at a more reasonable price than the present. Circulars are being sent out by the Department of Inland Revenue authorizing the manufacture and sale without restrictions of a new grade to be known as grade two benzol. The denaturants used in this are benzol, nitro-benzol and pine oil, and the cost of these denaturants will be very small as compared with the cost of methyl alcohol, which was formerly the only denaturant allowed to be used. The cost of the denaturant was responsible in a large measure, it is stated, for the high cost of industrial alcohol, and therefore a committee composed of three members from the Department of Inland Revenue with two from the research council held several meetings to decide on the form of a new and cheaper denaturant to be allowed. This has now been set forth in the circulars which are being issued from the department.

While nine distilleries have been licensed for the manufacture of industrial alcohol, it is stated that only two have yet begun the work. The operation of prohibition in Canada has reduced the output of the distilleries to a great extent, and some of them had closed down entirely. As a result there is a great shortage of alcohol for industrial purposes, but it is expected that within a short time several distilleries will be manufacturing industrial alcohol, which has been spoken of as the successor of gasoline as a motor fuel.

THINK THIEVES PLANNED TO BLOW UP BANK SAFES

Kingston, Ont., Oct. 4.—That the burglars who stole the automobile of F. V. Samwell and the acetylene welding plant from the Bishop machine shop, in this city, last Thursday night, intended to blow the safes of the banks at Harrowsmith and Sydenham is the opinion of the Kingston police, who yesterday recovered the stolen car and the welding plant. The car had been abandoned on a road near Harrowsmith, being stalled in the heavy mud, and the burglars hid the welding plant in the shed of a church. The police also found a complete burglar's kit hidden under a stump.

The Countess holds a physician's degree and is the widow of the late Belgian Minister to Russia. She said that the cure was the discovery of a famous French doctor, who is preparing to follow her to the United States. She would not discuss the details of the discovery.

Floral Tributes For Honored Dead

Memorial Service For Soldiers Buried In Belleville Cemeteries—Graves Decorated

Under the auspices of the G.W.V.A. and Argyle Light Infantry of this city, a Decoration Day Service was held on Sunday afternoon and it proved to be most impressive. It was intended to hold the service on the lawn of the Armouries, but owing to inclement weather the exercises were held in the Armouries.

There was a large attendance of citizens who took a deep interest in the proceedings. The G.W.V.A. band under the capable leadership of Bandmaster Hinchey was present and rendered music suitable to the occasion. Adjutant J. Cavender of the Salvation Army lead in the singing of the hymns. The speaker for the occasion was Rev. Maj. Kidd, M.C. of Kingston chaplain of the 4th Infantry Brigade who saw active service overseas. A number of the clergy of the city were present namely Ven. Archdeacon Beamish, chaplain of the Argyle Light Infantry. Revs. Dr. Cleaver, A. S. Kerr, W. H. Wallace, Geo. Marshall and Rural Dean Swayne. There were a large number of returned veterans present, many of whom were in uniform. This was the first service of its kind held in the city and was most successfully carried out by those having the matter in charge. Many military officers were also present.

The proceeding opened with a selection by the band after which Rev. A. S. Kerr read a scripture lesson. Ven. Archdeacon Beamish offered up an appropriate prayer, the audience taking part in the repeating of the Lord's Prayer. The hymn, "Abide With Me," was sung followed by Chopin's Funeral March by the band. The address was then delivered.

Chaplain Major Kidd

In his opening remarks Major Kidd said it was a pleasure for him to have had the opportunity of accepting an invitation of the Belleville G.W.V.A. to take part in the ceremony. It was a service of sadness and pleasure; sad of the necessity which arose to lay flowers on the graves of our departed comrades as an act to remember them. We also remember across in France, Belgium and other places there are thousands of graves containing the bodies of loved ones. We think of those lives that were offered as a sacrifice on the altar of an Empire's work. We mourn their loss and will continue to do so, so long as we are blest with life. They were to us something noble and wondrous. We feel a wonderful sense of comradeship. It was a wonderful bond that bond of comradeship. On occasions such as this, we have pleasant memories of comradeship, although they are surrounded with sadness. These were our comrades in social life, and they played an important part and their memories we will keep alive for the great things done by them. The graves here and the graves beyond the seas are silent witnesses for the preservation of a nation's goodness and greatness. They offered themselves and by the Providence of God gave up their lives for this Canada of ours and the Empire. When Canada sent the message that she would help the Empire in her hour of sore affliction her noble sons responded to the call and their noble deeds were demonstrated at Ypres, Govinchey, Somme, Hill 70, Vimy Ridge, Paschendale and Mons. Through the heroic deeds of Canadians, Canada today has a certain pride in the making of the world's history. These silent witnesses are an inspiration of greatness. These graves are memorials that stand for right and justice. Canada in the future as in the past endure and make sacrifices for justice and righteousness. The speaker referred to the fact that it was a coincident that five years ago this day the first member of the 21st Battalion was killed in action and buried with military honors. Pte. Cecil Bowyer fell in action on October 3rd, 1915. Up to that time the 21st Battalion was a composite whole. Those who made the supreme sacrifice did so for a righteous cause. They assisted in securing victory for a cause we represent. We rejoice in the victory of peace and we will keep green the memories of those who helped to secure peace. Comradeship can be transplanted. There is a fraternal spirit that will bind us together for what is right and good. We will conserve our country for what is right and just. We must be watchful and on the alert and aim for a comradeship that will work for the building of the state and to help upbuild a country that will have a great future. We should cultivate lofty ideals as we cannot progress higher than our ideals are. Have high ideals of our country, high ideals of social life; high ideals of home life and march along the path that leads to right. If we do this we will be doing our part to make our country great and it will assist to solve the problems of the day. We are handing on the torch that our brave comrades held to help build up this country, a country worthy of the deed that costs the lives of many. We will preserve the spirit for which they died.

At the conclusion of the address the hymn "O God Our Help in Ages Past" was sung followed by the benediction by Rev. Dr. Cleaver. The proceeding closed with the National Anthem rendered by the band.

Members of the G.W.V.A. and Infantry were then taken by autos to St. James and Belleville cemetery, where floral designs were placed upon the graves of deceased comrades who died here during enlistment and since the ending of the war. Those whose memories were thus commemorated were as follows:

NEW GAME AND FISHERY OFFICIALS

Hon. F. C. Biggs has announced that the reorganization of the Game and Fisheries Department is about completed. In the place of 243 part-time officials throughout the province, all of whom have resigned, 33 overseers and four wardens have been appointed. The four wardens and nine of the overseers are ex-officers, according to the Minister, but the other 24 overseers are all returned men.

The province is divided into four districts, Western, Eastern, Central North and Northern Ontario, the wardens having their headquarters at London, Ottawa, North Bay and Port Arthur or Fort William, respectively.

The new staff commenced work on Oct. 1 and will be directly responsible to the department at Toronto. All will devote their whole time to the work.

Salaries to overseers will be $1,100 and to wardens $2,000. The cost of administration, said Mr. Biggs, will come to about the same totals as the old system.

Demoralized Red Forces Deserting In Large Numbers

RUSSIAN REDS IN FULL RETREAT ON ALL FRONTS—EFFORTS OF TROTSKY TO RECRUIT NEW FORCES FAIL—PEASANTS AND WORKMEN REBEL AGAINST MILITARY SERVICE—GREAT ANXIETY REPORTED IN SOVIET CIRCLES.

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer, Canadian Press, Limited.

LONDON, Oct. 4.—Press despatches reaching Stockholm from Finland, according to the London Times correspondent, continue to represent that a state of great anxiety prevails in Soviet circles. Reports conveyed across the Russian frontier says that the Red forces are in full retreat on both Polish fronts and in the Crimea, demoralized, suffering from hunger and surrendering and deserting in large numbers. Trotsky's efforts to recruit new forces in Siberia and the eastern provinces have failed, reports say. Peasants in agricultural districts and workmen in towns equally revolt against further reinforcements.

The Soviet Government has instituted forced contributions of clothing for troops. The order says: "Let everyone who has two coats, two pairs of boots, two fur caps, give one and save soldiers from perishing from cold."

INSURE YOUNG PEOPLE TO PAY CHURCH DEBT

Winnipeg, Oct. 4.—A novel system of financing evolved by the Home Street Presbyterian Church here will clear the church of debt within 20 years with hardly an effort on the part of the congregation.

By insuring 150 of their young people for 20-year endowment policies of $250 each, the members will adequately meet the $37,000 loan taken out when a new building was constructed. The plan provides that the insured pay their own premiums. 'A "200" club will pay the policy rates for junior members until they are old enough to meet the expense themselves.

The policies taken out did not necessitate the applicants undergoing medical examination, and the church is permitted to substitute other names when any of the present policy-holders move away.

CHICAGO LANDLORD CUTS ALL RENTS

Chicago, Oct. 2.—J. A. Greenburg, who owns a number of apartment buildings, announces a ten per cent. reduction in all rents, effective October 1, and stated that a similar reduction would be made next May.

"We are following in the footsteps of the manufacturers in the country, who have inaugurated a decline in prices," Mr. Greenburg said.

One of the largest manufacturers of men's collars in the middle west has announced a twelve and one-half per cent. reduction in the price of its product.

Statistics tending to show that high prices had come to an end, and that a definite downward trend had set in, were presented yesterday at the hearing on demands of stock yard employees for higher wages by Swift and Company, as an argument against granting the employees' demands. L. H. D. Weld, head of the commercial research department of the packing company, said an increase in wages will keep prices up.

MUSIC AND DRAMA

(What the Press Agents Say)

"MY SOLDIER GIRL" WELL RECEIVED IN LONDON

The London Free Press, in reviewing the performance of the musical comedy "My Soldier Girl" which is being presented at Griffin's to-night speaks of the performance in the following terms:

"With an entirely new score of dances, songs and music, the 1920 edition of "My Soldier Girl," played before a delighted audience at the Grand last night. A bevy of pretty girls, just the right amount of humor and the latest of catchy music help to make this production one of the brightest of musical comedies which have yet appeared in the city.

It is undoubtedly a gorgeous spectacle. The costuming and the scenic effects are all good and permit an admirable display of beauty before the footlights. More than a score of numbers are included in the two acts and each contains some novel feature which goes to make the whole performance a worth while one.

Billy Moore, as Jasper, the colored gentleman, is the mainstay of the show. Without his inimitable darky talk and mannerisms it would be difficult to get the audience worked up to any degree of enthusiasm. But he injects the spontaneous wit and punch which makes it impossible for the performance to drag at any time.

His sparring partner, Ricketts, with his six feet syncopation and nonsense, also adds considerably to the liveliness. When the two get together laughing becomes contagious among the members of the audience who repeatedly encored them for their work last night.

The other leading part, taken by a woman, was that of Mabel Parker which was played in a captivating way by Georgia Emmett.

A special feature was the renditions from the quartette of the Follies, Jack Barry, Foster Elliott, Clyde Olney and H. Ohman are the members and on their appearances made a decided hit.

The chorus itself has been selected not alone for their beauty, but for their ability to dance, as was amply demonstrated. The costumes worn are kaledioscopic in their colorings and their variety and appear especially well on the flirtation walk."

MARGUERITE CLARK IN "LET'S ELOPE"

Admirers of dainty Marguerite Clark will find her in a most congenial environment when they see her in the Paramount photoplay 'Let's Elope' which will be dsplayed at Griffin's tomorrow night and Wednesday night. The picture is an adaptation by Katherine Reed of Fred Jackson's successfcl play, "The Naughty Wife," which was produced at the Harris Theatre, New York, November 17, 1917.

The new play is a farce and abounds with amusing situations. One of the funniest of these takes place on the night of the elopement of the young wife with a chap who is younger, and, temporarily at least, more attractive than her hard working husband. The latter, hearing of the adventure, insists upon helping the young pair to make a success of it, by offering them his own bungalow in the woods for a romantic setting, and his own presence as a chaperon. The gowns and negligees worn by Miss Clarke in the producton were designed especially for the part she plays and are considered the most attractive creations she has ever worn in the pictures. Frank Mills is the leading man.

"Mirrors of Nature," a very beautiful Burton Holmes Travelogue, "Her Bridal Nightmare," a funny 2-reel Christie comedy, and Jack Dempsey in a new chapter of the popular "Dare devil Jack" serial will also be presented on the same program.

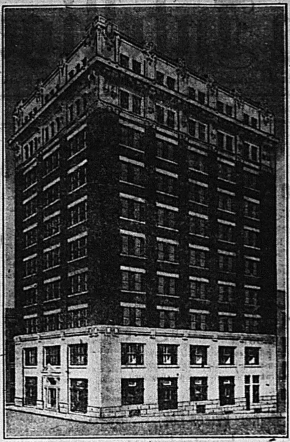
CHEAPER BREAD.

Montreal, Oct. 3.—Bread has dropped one cent a loaf, commencing Monday morning. This was the announcement of leading bakers of this city, and it follows as a result of the two drops in the price of flour in the last month, and also because the price of flour fell last week.

The loaf, which is a standard of 1½ pounds, will fall from 15½ cents to 14½ cents.

A Morning Dish of Grape-Nuts makes for improved health and better energy for the day's work.

The Sugar Saver



WONDERFUL NEW TEA WAREHOUSE.

The magnificent building shown above, and situated at the corner of St. Lawrence Boulevard and La Royer Streets, Montreal, will be occupied by the SALADA TEA COMPANY about February 1st, next. The building at present occupied by SALADA, at the corner of St. Paul and St. Sulpice Street, Montreal, was erected by them eleven years ago, but for some time has proved inadequate for their business.

Other SALADA warehouses are situated at TORONTO and BOSTON.

AND THEY ALL "STOOD PAT"

While Mr. James Corbett, Who Had Manipulated the Deck, Sat Apart and Laughed.

In a club much frequented by men of the theatrical business, a poker game which began as a mere pastime grew, by degrees, to an undesirable intensiveness. The chaps who usually "sat in" were all friends and fellow-laborers in a none-too-lucrative occupation. They agreed among themselves that there must be no more raising of the limit and no more reckless betting. The game must be one for amusement only. On the night when this agreement was solemnly concluded, they sat down and sent for the cards. Jim Corbett brought them. "I'll just sit and look on for a while," he said. "May take a hand a little later."

One man took the cards out of the box and threw around for a deal. The dealer shuffled them and passed them for the cut. Then he dealt a hand while the banker was giving each man his checks. The first man after the deal bet the limit. Every man of the seven around the table came in, each "tilting" the pot for the limit.

"Say," said Corbett, "I thought you fellows were going to play light. That's a fine way to start out."

This evoked not even a response from the players. Each was sitting tight and covertly eying his neighbors. The dealer asked the first man how many cards he wanted. He stood pat. Every player around the board looked startled. Then the next man stood pat. And after him the next and finally all seven. It was at that moment that some one observed Mr. Corbett apparently about to choke in his secluded corner. Corbett had combined 25 per cent of four separate decks, so that the 52 cards he had handed the players were all spades. Each man had a pat flush when the betting began.—Cincinnati Times-Star.

Better Postage Stamps.

Whether or not one is interested in postage stamps, except as a very temporary possession, a lick and a promise, one might say, that the post office will deliver the letter, it is pleasant to know, on the word of a writer on philately, that the new stamps that come after the war are much finer artistically than those which formerly circulated. The subject offers itself to an essayist; and his study would perhaps show a steady improvement during the last few decades in the artistic quality of many everyday things, coins, banknotes and advertisements, for example, that prepared the way for the artistry of the posters that played so large a part in the war, and now expresses itself in the design of the new postage stamps. Artists of distinction, in fact, have been called upon to design many of the new stamps, as during the war they designed many of the posters.—Christian Science Monitor.

Made Study of Ocean Currents.

Admiral Pillsbury, who has just died at the aged of seventy-three, never shirked a fight, yet in the development of his career he came to be known more as a scientist than as a fighter. He had made a more careful study of the Gulf stream and of ocean currents generally than any other naval officer; and in this field of research he had few rivals. Among those rivals was the prince of Monaco, who has also made a specialty of currents. Admiral Pillsbury's monographs contribute very largely to the world's stock of information. The ultimate destination of drifting mines gave particular value to this phase of oceanography, after the armistice.

Humans Reared by Wild Animals.

In view of the success of "Tarzan of the Apes" as a film and as a novel, it is interesting to note that there have been Tarzans in real life.

Not long ago there was the case of a child who was reared by monkeys. A human being was discovered near Naini Tal having a thick coating of hair which gave him the appearance of a monkey. It is thought that owing to this curious resemblance a troop of monkeys had adopted him as a child. When discovered, this strange creature was treated as a wild animal, but on further examination vaccination marks on both arms gave convincing proof of his true origin.

Another curious incident befell a shooting party in India in 1884. Dr. Condon, of the Indian Civil Service, was in command. In a forest they discovered an unkempt object which they prepared to shoot, but which, on closer inspection, proved to be a boy walking on all fours.

It was at first difficult to capture him, but after a good deal of trouble he was persuaded to come nearer. Later it was found that he had lived in a den of wolves and ate only the raw flesh brought to him by his animal foster parents. His arrival in Europe created surprise and consternation, but willing guardians were soon found.—Tit-Bits.

CHAPTER XIX.

When Duane came up to the door he greeted her with the beaming joyousness of a rising sun. He praised her and thanked her for lending him her time. The elevator that took their bodies down took her spirits up. She noted that he had not brought his big car with his chauffeur. He stowed her into a powerful roadster built for two. But she had no inclination to protest. The car caught them away and they sped through Central park with lyrical, with dithyrambic, sweep.

"The trees!—how wonderful they are!" she cried.

They had been wonderful for weeks, but she had thought them dismal.

"They're nothing to what they are in Westchester," said Duane. "We're going to have a look at them and dine up there somewhere."

"Are we?" was all she said.

And he said, "We are."

After they left the park and reentered the hard streets she found the courage to remind him: "But you said you had something important to tell me. What was it?"

"Miss Kip, you've played the very devil with me. I thought I was immune to the lover germ, but—well, I told you the truth about going abroad to shake off the—the fever—the Daphnitis that attacked me. But I couldn't get you out of my mind for long, or out of my heart at all. I'm a sick man, Miss Kip, a lovesick man."

"Mr. Duane, you mustn't—I can't allow you—really!"

"Oh, yes, you can!" he said, and sent the car ahead with a plunge. "You're going to listen to me for once. You can't help yourself. I'm not going to hurt you. I just want you to help me a little. I went up in the Berkshires and tried to get my sanity back, but I couldn't! I couldn't even play golf—or cards—or drink. People drive me crazy. I can't get interested in anything or anybody but you."

"Mr. Duane, please— You oughtn't to— I beg you. I have no right—"

"Oh, I know you're engaged to Clay Wimburn. He's a nice kid. I'm not one-two-three with him. I'm not trying to cut him out—I couldn't if I would. I like him. I'd like to help him, and your brother, too. I don't mean to be impertinent, either; but—well, the main thing is, I want to beg you to let me see you once in a while.

"I want to take you out riding and dining and dancing and—you can take Wimburn along if you've got to, but I want you to save my life somehow. And, by the Lord Harry! I think it will save yours. You don't look well, my dear—Miss Kip. It breaks my heart to see it. No, I don't believe you're getting as much fun out of life as you ought to. There isn't much fun in the world any more, but what little's left is very precious, and I want you to get all that's going. Won't you let me help you go after it?. Won't you?"

They swung up to a height that commanded a vast reach of the Hudson. Between its banks it semed to be a river of wine. The western sky was like a forest of autumn leaves with the last sad red pitifully beautiful, since it must turn so soon to rust.

In a spirit of haste the fleetly spinning wheels murmured, "Why not, why not, why not, why-notwhynotwhynot?"

Before the sunset had quite relinquished the sky the moon was over the horizon—the harvest moon, huge and close and of a meditative mein. It paled and dwindled as it climbed, but its power seemed to grow.

It left Daphne more alone with Duane, a little afraid of him and of the gloaming. They emerged above the chain of Croton lakes and ran across the big dam and wound along the shore, crossing iron bridge after iron bridge, till they came to a little roadside inn whose lights had a yellow warmth.

"We're stopping here for dinner, if you don't mind," said Duane.

Daphne was a trifle ill at ease, but she was hungry, too, and the adventure was exhilarating. There were not many people at the tables, and they were of an adventurous cast as well.

When Duane had given his order he asked Daphne if she would join the rest of the diners who had left their chairs to fox-trot. She shook her head and he did not urge her.

But by the time their dinner was served and eaten the nagging, interminable music had played away nearly all her scruples.

When Duane looked at her with an appealing smile, she smiled back, nodded and rose. He leaped to his feet and took her in his arms.

Somehow, it was not mere dancing now. He had told her that he loved her. There was in his embrace an eagerness that was full of deference, but full of delight as well. After all, she was alone with him in a company that seemed not to be very respectable, and was growing less so every hour.

Her feet and all her limbs and every muscle of her reveled in the gambol, but her heart and mind and conscience were troubling her till she stopped short at last and said:

"I'm sorry, but I—I'd rather not dance any more—here."

Duane paused in a moment's chagrin. Then he sighed: "All right."

They retreated to their table, and he looked at her sadly, and she sadly at him. Then he seemed to like her even better than before, and he said, with a very tender smile:

"Want to go home?"

"If you don't mind."

When they came out upon the veranda of the hotel the lake was a vast charger of frosted silver among the hills. They stood admiring it for a moment and the music from the hotel seemed to come from another world. He helped her into the car and they whisked away southerly.

He returned to the road along the Hudson, and it was so beautiful in the moonglow that it seemed a pity to hurry through the wonderland at such speed. And what was she going back to that she should be in such haste?

She hinted as much to Duane, and he bettered the suggestion. Not only did he check the speed, but at one wooded cliffside with a vista of peculiar majesty he wheeled out of the road and stopped the car, shut down the chuttering engine and turned off the strenuous lights.

They sat utterly content till Duane shook off the blissful stupor. They could not stay here thus forever. They could not stay much longer. It was growing cold and late.

He did not dare to look at Daphne. He did not quite need to. He could imagine her pretty head and the drowsy, adorable eyes, the lips pursed with childish solemnity, the throat stem in the urn contour of her shoulders, the vaselike curves of her young torso. He imagined these from memory, for they now were swaddled in a thick motorcoat. But without turning his head he could see her little hands clasped idly at her knees, the little gloves turned back at the wrist. He thought that he would like to take them in his—he would like to take all of her in his arms, into his heart, into his keeping.

Yet he did not want to marry her. He did not admire marriage in its results as he saw them in other people. Like many another, he cherished wicked ideals because the everyday virtues worked out so imperfectly, so unbeautifully.

Daphne was musing almost as vaguely. On the river a yacht at anchor poised like a swan asleep. She would like to own a yacht. On the opposite side of the river along the road she could see motorcars like inquisitive crickets with gleaming eyes and feelers of light. She would like to own a motor or two.

If she were the wife of as rich a man as this man at her side, how quickly she could help her father and Bayard and the wretched victims of the massacre in Europe and so many people—yes, and even Clay, poor, dear, hopeless, helpless Clay Wimburn, to whom she had brought nothing but expense of money and heartache and torture.

CANADIAN SHOES FOR CANADIAN PEOPLE

The Price of Shoes
vs.
The Price of Other Things

IT has been said that "comparisons are odious." And so they are—as a rule.

But it has been so repeatedly stated that shoe prices are "excessive" or "ridiculous," that we feel justified in making a comparison between the present price of shoes and the price of some other things that we buy.

Advance in price of Iron and Steel - - -	124 per cent.
Average wholesale advance in all commodities	146.4 "
Advance in price of Textiles - - -	296.2 "

Shoe prices had to increase—naturally. The price of everything that enters into a pair of shoes has gone up tremendously in late years. For instance, hides have advanced 154.6 per cent. in six years. One of the principal materials used in making fine shoes has advanced 500% in the same period. In fact, there is no single commodity used in the manufacture of shoes that has not advanced by leaps and bounds during late years.

But in spite of this a close margin of profits, efficient manufacturing methods, and keen domestic competition, has resulted in lower prices than the above advances would seem to make inevitable.

These comparisons will show why shoe prices are higher—they have simply followed in the wake of general advancing prices.

But, in Canada, they are neither "excessive" nor "ridiculous," but proportionately lower than most other things.

The Shoe Industry in Canada is an efficient and competent one—making shoes for the Canadian people which, grade for grade, are as low, or lower in price, as shoes obtainable in any Country.

SALVATION ARMY FOE OF RED RADICALISM.

In all parts of the world the Salvation Army in their own quiet way are doing a mighty work for humanity among people to whom the churches carry no appeal and who can not be reached by any other agency than that of the Salvation Army with its open air meetings, house-to-house visitations in the poorer districts, and police court and prison work.

In Belleville the same quiet, effective work, which characterizes the Salvation Army the world over, goes on day by day and far into the night. In sickness, sorrow and death, poverty and affliction of whatever kind the helping hand of the Salvation Army is always ready with cheery assistance. To visit the poor and afflicted, to lift up the fallen, is ever the watchword of the Army, and their work, although unseen and unknown to the many is a mighty one for good. Men and women, boys and girls, who have strayed from the narrow way and become enmeshed in difficulties have been assisted to redeem their mistakes and become good and useful citizens and a great community service thereby rendered.

The Salvation Army, with its manifold activities and many rescue homes and training schools, requires considerable financial assistance and is well worthy of hearty support from all communities and individuals.

S. A. Officers serve faithfully and well upon salaries barely sufficient to provide the necessaries of life and money given to the Army is almost entirely used in its humanitarian activities. An institution which attracts workers embued with the love of humanity and without the lure of comfortable living and large salaries must be a worthy one and in this age of unrest more than ever before should the Army be vigorously supported as it is one of the strongest forces in the world today combatting dangerous radical ideas and movements.

Let us give liberally to the Salvation Army, for every dollar given is an investment in better humanity.

PASSING BEAUTY.

(Montreal Gazette)

We put off our harvest thanksgiving until the fields are bare and desolate and something, therefore, of the golden beauty of the season, warmly inspiring the common gratitude, is lost; but the brief season which antedates the official function is the glory of our Dominion. The woods are aflame with color. Every leaf is streaked with divine pigments. A solemn hush falls upon the world. A mellow haze gives a yearning beauty to the fleeting day. A murmurous hum is in the warm and drowsy air. The golden harvest waves in blessing. The goldenrod burns with vivid flame. In the open spaces the sense of peace and rest and solace is all-pervasive. That it is passing, that the air will become thin and sharp and melancholy, as it rustles the falling leaves—that is the poignant regret. The utter beauty of nature in the golden light is so exquisite as to be almost pain.

Many of our visitors come to us in the heat of summer, or amid the snows of winter, which Robert Louis Stevenson found so delightful; but our autumn is incomparable for a splendid and prodigal beauty, which haunts the heart and gives, in its poetical appeal the sense of an exquisite sadness.

Beauty is always allied to melancholy; and the nature lover finds at once in the glory of the season and the sense of evanescence a solemn joy and pensiveness linked to sorrow.

The only English poet who has adequately expressed this feeling is Tennyson, whose love of nature was deep and constant, and, at the same time, happily free from precise detail, which was the weakness or defect of Wordsworth.

"Tears, idle tears, I know not what they mean;
Tears from the depth of some divine despair
Rise in the heart and gather to the eyes
In looking on the happy autumn fields,
And thinking of the days that are no more.
Dear as remembered kisses after death,
And sweet as those by hopeless fancy feigned
On lips that are for others; deep as love,
Deep as first love, and wild with all regret—
O death in life—the days that are no more."

General Booth Upon Work

Country Life

General Booth, whose sympathy with the working man will not be questioned, has been making a tour of Australia, New Zealand, Canada and Ceylon. He comes back with an uneasy feeling in regard to labour questions. It arises from a discovery that in every country there is emerging what he calls "a kind of antipathy to work." It is different altogether from the ambition to obtain better wages. He seems to think that the laboring man is cultivating the idea that "there is something inimical to human work and happiness in work per se." He was asked in Australia to use his influence in favor of a five-day week, found, on examining the proposition that it meant four and a half days, whereupon he told them about an old Book which says "six days shalt thou labor."

General Booth is of opinion that the backbone of labor in this country is made up of men of sound religious training and moral integrity, and the rank and file of the Labor Party consists largely of men of moral character who "look with contempt on this Bolshevist cackle." He wants them to come out into the open and not be led by extremists. There is no doubt about his having struck the right nail on the head. The vast majority of working men are anything but lazy. They are perfectly content to do a full day's wage; but, unfortunately, are under the influence of a little gang of leaders whose aim is not to improve the condition of the poor, but revolution pure and simple.

The Poet's Corner

THE VILLAGES

I can not hope that Sorrow's feet forever and a day
Will pass my little house of love where latticed sunbeams stray
But when she lays her hand at last upon the swinging latch,
And steps where happy years have smiled beneath our spring-sweet thatch,
Grant me, ah, God, this heartfelt prayer, that somewhere it may be
Where little, small-town sympathy may fold and comfort me.

The little, small-town sympathy that runs across the fields
In blue-checked gingham aprons and with flour upon its hands
That bakes and brews and sweeps and dusts, that wakeful serves and shields,
The little small-town sympathy that knows and understands.

Thy cities, God, are builded high with carven stone on stone,
But hearts may ache, and lives may droop unheeded and alone,
And souls may dwell unknown, unloved, a single wall between—
Not so the quiet, home-sweet lives that fringe the village green.
Let others reap the splendors, Lord but give instead to me
The homely round of living blent with small-town sympathy.

The little, small-town sympathy that steals on neighbor feet
The little, small-town sympathy—the maple-shaded street;
That lends its strength on tear-dimmed ways its own bruised feet have trod,
The little small-town sympathy—the very soul of God.

"But my darling! I never said I'd go through the bankruptcy court."

A New Order

"Please," gasped the young wife excitedly on giving her first order to the butcher, "please send me a pound of steak and some—some gravy."

And Still Eggs Are High!

The hens need a walking delegate. Grinding the beaks of the poor unprotected fowls seems to be the modern poulterer's long suit. Witness the modern working day of an unhappy hen on an up-to-date chicken farm, where as many as 18,000 eggs are hatched at one time.

Electric light has done it. The lights burn steadily until 10 p. m. At 4 a. m. they are turned on gradually until their full glare wakes the hens. The poultry then sit up and rub their eyes and think. "How short the nights are getting! Yet it's certainly daylight. Well—just one darned day after another!" Nights are short. The touching innocence of the hen victimizes it to the extent of getting only six hours' sleep a night. Eight-hour day? Why, the chicken works as long as the farmer!—The Nation's Business.

Stepped Anyway.

While motoring with four girls my clutch got out of order and it was necessary for the girls to get out and push in order to get the car in motion. On the way back it was arranged that when we got to the home of the girl where they were all staying they would jump off while the car was moving slowly, thus to prevent my stopping and being stalled again. Imagine my horror when they all jumped off backwards and falling over in a bunch rolled into the ditch. I surely had quite a time explaining my seemingly ungentlemanly act to the girls' parents, who had witnessed the incident from the porch.—Exchange.

Brazil Seeks Experts.

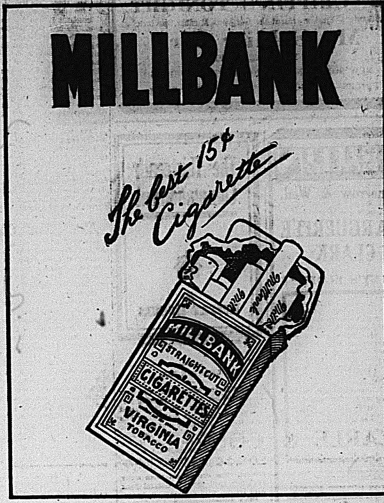
According to advice from Commercial Attache J. E. Philipi, at Rio de Janerio, the government of the state of Minas Geraes, Brazil, has sent to the United States to contract for the services of one expert in the cultivation and production of cotton; two experts in fruit culture, including vineyards; three grain experts, one expert in tobacco culture, two live stock experts, including one veterinarian, and one dairy expert. These men will be employed as traveling teachers in the interior districts of the state of Minas Geraes.

A Patient Man.

"I wish I had one of those fellows here who are trying all the time to get into communication with Mars."

"Why?"

"I could use him right now. He'd be just the man to try to get the four telephone numbers I've got to call."



Women of Canada Who Testify

Tillsonburg, Ont.:—"Ever since I can remember, Dr. Pierce's medicines were used in our family at home and they never failed to give good results. The 'Golden Medical Discovery' was used as a tonic and blood purifier and for bronchial trouble, and it proved excellent. I have personally taken 'Golden Medical Discovery' for bronchial trouble, and the 'Favorite Prescription' to build me up when I was run-down and they both were very beneficial. Mother always used Dr. Pierce's Compound Extract of Smart-Weed for pain; it also was very good. I feel safe in recommending all of Dr. Pierce's medicines knowing them to be good."—MRS. CLIFFORD MITCHELL.

Central Butte, Sask.:—"I have used Dr. Pierce's Medical Discovery for a number of years and am pleased to recommend it as a blood purifier. I know it has no equal, as I used it for my boy for tuberculosis of the knee joint. My neighbors and friends were surprised with the results; in fact, I do not think he would be alive today had it not been for the 'Medical Discovery.' I also keep it on hand for coughs as it differs so from other cough medicines, instead of upsetting the stomach as most cough syrups do it is good for the stomach. I only wish I had known about Dr. Pierce's medicines sooner."—MRS. PERCY WOOD.

When you take Golden Medical Discovery, you are getting the benefit of the experience of a doctor whose reputation goes all around the earth. Still more, you get a temperance medicine that contains not a drop of alcohol or narcotic of any kind. Long ago Dr. Pierce combined certain valuable vegetable ingredients—without the use of alcohol—so that his remedies always have been strictly temperance medicines.

City And Country

SHRINERS VISIT.

Ottawa is the oasis to which great numbers of Mystic Shriners have been wending their way to attend the great gathering there this week of this Masonic association. A special train from Toronto with Shriners from Rameses Temple arrived in Belleville shortly after eight o'clock Sunday evening and halted here one hour, during which time the travellers detrained and inspected the city. The Shriners were accompanied by the Rameses Temple band, an excellent musical organization, which rendered a program of patriotic airs in a march along Front street. Several Belleville members of the order boarded the train here. It is said that the engineer and conductor of the special were Shriners and all of the train crew Masons of greater or lesser degree. R. A. McVean, Travelling Passenger Representative, Canadian National Railways, himself a Shriner, accompanied the train to Ottawa. Rameses Temple, Toronto, has a membership of over 2,000.

FAST RUN

Speeding a distance of 234 miles in less than seven hours is a record. This is the distance between Montreal and Toronto, and was handled by a Grand Trunk special train early Friday morning. At one point, between Brockville and Toronto 209 miles was made in four hours and two minutes. The special was chartered by the general superintendent of the Dupont Powder Co., of Delaware, who had an appointment in Toronto at 9.15, and the train reached the Union station at 9.08 to the delight of the man who wanted to keep his appointment, and of the train crew, who were thanked in a substantial way by the temporary owner of the train, who through misunderstanding of both G.T.R. and C.P.R. regular trains leaving Montreal Thursday night and was forced to engage the special at a cost of $1,300. To the train crew he said it was worth it to test the roadbed and G. T. R. equipment. The train was made up of a locomotive, two baggage cars and a coach. Conductor . G. Eaman, Montreal was in charge of the train. From Montreal to Brockville the train was in charge of Engineer Dickinson at the throttle of locomotive No. 192. The run of 125 miles was made in 130 minutes, with five stops; at Coteau Jct., at Cornwall diamonds, at Cornwall for water and at Cardinal for a hot box. Leaving Brockville, Engineer Orne, Belleville, was at the throttle. The run of 95 miles to Belleville was made in 110 minutes, with two stops en route. Locomotive No. 5397 one of the most recent type, hauled the train to Belleville.

PARLOR MEETING

The Y's held a parlor meeting on Tuesday last at the home of Miss Deacon, George street. It was decided that they would assist the W.C.T.U. with their rummage sale. Miss Helena Hill was the delegate appointed to attend the W.C.T.U. Convention at Smith's Falls. Miss Marjorie Bird sang a solo during the evening. Miss Templeton gave a talk on her sewing classes held each week at the Mission Church and made a plea for more workers. Light refreshments were served at the close of the meeting.

HARVEST SERVICES

Harvest Thanksgiving services were held in St. Thomas' Church on Sunday with large congregations morning and evening. The church was tastefully and appropriately decorated for the occasion and special music was rendered by the choir under the leadership of Prof. Wheatley, organist. Interesting sermons were preached by Major the Rev. W. E. Kidd, M.A., M. C., and the rector, Ven. Archdeacon Beamish.

Wedding Bells

HORNSBY—GAWLEY.

A quiet but very impressive ceremony was performed in Bridge street Methodist church on Saturday, Oct. 2, at 2 p.m., by the Rev. Dr. Cleaver, when Miss Anna M. Gawley, of Belleville, Ont., became the bride of Mr. W. Fred Hornsby, of Hartford, Conn. The bride and groom entered the church to the strains of the wedding march, played by Miss Winnifred Pearce, the bride wearing a brown velour suit with beaver trimmings and duvetyn hat to match, and a corsage bouquet of roses. During the signing of the register "Oh, Promise Me" was beautifully rendered by Mrs. Arthur Hall. Immediately after the ceremony the happy couple left for a two weeks' tour of the White Mountains, in New Hampshire, and New York city. On returning they will make their residence at their new home in Hartford, Conn.

MORRISON—SCANTLEBURY.

A very pretty wedding was solemnized on Saturday, October 2, at 2.30 o'clock at Rosenheim, the home of Mr. C. B. Scantlebury, Esq., when his second daughter, Miss Mary Aileen Scantlebury, was united in marriage to Mr. Lancelot B. Morrison, of Toronto. The bride was accompanied to the marriage altar by her father, and the bridal party assembled under an exquisitely beautiful arch composed of sumach and mountain ash, while the background was covered with maple boughs carrying the gorgeous autumn crimson color. The beautiful marriage service of the Methodist church was read by Rev. John Morrison, D.D., father of the groom, and the prayers by Rev. E. A. Seymour, brother-in-law of the bride. The bride was gowned in white taffeta and georgette, pearl beaded. She wore a pearl beaded coronated bridal veil and carried a shower bouquet of cream ophelia roses.

Miss Helen Vickers Scantlebury, sister of the bride, was the bridesmaid. Her gown was pink organdy, and she carried a bouquet of pink carnations. Miss Alma Sanders, of Vancouver, B.C., was maid of honor. She was gowned in white taffeta with overdress of orchid georgette and carried a bouquet of pink ophelia roses. Mr. John R. Morrison, of Sarnia, brother of the groom, was groomsman. The wedding march was played by Mrs. (Rev.) E. A. Seymour, sister of the bride. While the register was being signed, Miss Alma Sanders sang, "At Dawning I Love Thee."

The groom's gifts were: To the bride, a pearl necklace; to the bridesmaid and maid of honor, each, a dorien box; to the pianist a pearl mounted brooch, and to the groomsman gold cuff links.

The bride has graduated in three departments of Albert College—domestic science, commercial science, and in June last with double first honors in expression. The groom was thirty-three months overseas with the C. E. F., closing his military service with the army of occupation in Germany.

The gifts were numerous and costly.

Out of town guests included: Mr. and Mrs. N. H. Woof, Mr. Ernest Woof, and Mrs. Harry Henney, Syracuse, N.Y.; Mrs. Charles and Mr. Gerald Raymore, Toronto; Rev. and Mrs. E. O. Seymour, Havelock; Miss Alma Sanders, Vancouver, B.C.; Mr. Wm. Osborne, Revelstoke, B.C.; Mr. Harold Caniff, Edmonton, Alta.; Rev. Dr., Mrs. and John R. Morrison, Sarnia; Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Harrison, Picton; Miss Eva Mitchell and Mr. Ellsworth Beacock, Orono.

A dainty wedding breakfast was served to about forty guests by girl friends of the bride—Misses Dona Boulter, Edith Elvins, Eva Mitchell, and Mrs. Lulu Harrison.

Showered with confetti, and the best wishes of the guests who accompanied them to the depot, the bridal couple left by the 5.30 train to spend the honeymoon in Detroit and Sarnia, after which they will reside at 169 Rushton Road, Toronto, Mr. Morrison holding a responsible position in the head office of the Imperial Oil Co., Ltd.

MRS. ROSE E. TUTTLE, of Portland, Maine, who says she feels like she has taken a new lease on life since taking Tanlac. Her rheumatism and other troubles have been overcome.

"Tanlac is the grandest medicine on earth, and I just wish it was so every woman who suffers like I did could know what it will really do," said Mrs. Rose E. Tuttle, of 293 Congress street, Portland, Maine, recently.

"No one will ever know how I suffered," she said. "My stomach was so disordered I had to be very careful about what I ate. Potatoes and other starchy foods would completely upset me. Frequently after meals I would have a depressed and uneasy feeling about my heart. Often I was troubled with pains under my shoulder blades and I frequently had bilious attacks.

"I also suffered with rheumatism, and this, together with my other troubles, was simply wrecking my health. I felt weak, nervous and rundown all the time, and seemed to be losing weight and strength every day. My sleep was poor and often I was in such misery I wouldn't close my eyes all night long.

"Before I finished my first bottle of Tanlac I realized I had at last found the right medicine. My condition improved daily as I continued taking Tanlac, my appetite picked up and I was soon eating three hearty meals every day without suffering in the least afterwards. That horrible indigestion has disappeared. I am no longer nervous. I sleep soundly all night and feel splendidly all during the day. My strength has been increased until I can now do all my housework with ease. I am praising Tanlac every opportunity I have."

For some months deceased had been in ill health and his demise was not unexpected. Mr. Haight was the eldest son of the late Mr. John D. Haight and was born in the Township of Sidney in 1857, being thus 63 years of age. In early life, with his father he was engaged in the butcher business in Cannifton. For the past twenty years he had been the janitor in the post office building, performing his duties in a manner that was satisfactory to all concerned. Mr. Haight was a member of the Tabernacle Methodist church and one of its officials. He was a member of Mizpah Lodge, I.O.O.F., the A.O.U.W. and a Mason. THOSE SEVEN SEAS.

Are No Better Known Than Nine Points of Law.

Which are the Seven Seas? This is an expression as old as Shakespeare, yet even to-day nobody is quite sure about the seventh. Anybody can name six — the Atlantic, Pacific, Arctic, Antarctic, and Indian Oceans, and the Mediterranean Sea —but there has always been a doubt whether the seventh was the Baltic or the North Sea. The expression "the Seven Seas" is really another way of saying all the world.

What were the Seven Wonders of the World? This question can be answered in rhyme—

The Pyramids first, which in Egypt were laid;
Next Babylon's garden, for Amytis made;
Then Mausolos's tomb of affection and guilt;
Fourth, the Temple of Diana, in Ephesus built;
The Colossus of Rhodes, cast in brass, to the Sun;
Sixth, Jupiter's statue, by Phydias done;
The Pharos of Egypt, last wonder of old,
Or the Palace of Cyprus, cemented with gold.

It appears that, as in the case of the Seven Seas, only six wonders were agreed upon universally, opinion being divided as to which constituted the seventh.

What are the Nine Points of the Law? It has been said that success in litigation requires a good deal of patience, a good deal of money, a good cause, a good lawyer, a good counsel, good witnesses, a good jury, a good judge, and, last, a part of the proverb which says that "possession is nine points of the law," and that anybody is welcome to the tenth if they can get anything out of it.

When you have answered these number-puzzles it will be a little change to attempt to recite the Ten Commandments, and to name the Twelve Apostles, the Four Evangelists, and the Twelve Minor Prophets. —Tit-Bits.

England's First Elephant.

The first instance of an elephant being brought to the west was in the year 897, when the Caliph Haroun al Rashid presented one to Charlemagne, says Answers.

It was not until 1255, however, that this well known and sagacious animal came to England, and it was in that year that the King of France made King Henry III. a gift of one ten years of age. It arrived at Sandwich, and was then taken to the Tower of London, where, by the king's command, a house had been built for it. Ten feet high to the top of its back, England's first elephant lived to the age of forty-one years. Its keeper was John Goach.

An elephant's skin is generally of a deep ash-brown, but sometimes is white or cream-colored. The latter variety is very valuable and highly prized, being one of the attributes of royalty in Siam. One of the titles of the King of Siam, by the way, is "Lord of the White Elephant."

Whilst on the subject, it is interesting to find that in many parts of India elephants have been appointed official executioners of justice. They will break the limbs of a criminal, trample him to death, or pierce him with their tusks, according to their master's instructions.

According to an Austrian naval officer gas bubbles rising from a depth bomb dropped into a stormy sea pacified the water as effectually as oil would have done.

How Glasses Help Sight

To see, light must be focused on one small spot at the back of eye. The eyeball is a set of lenses, which the muscles of the eye so manipulate that light is properly focused. If the shape of the eye is even slightly defective, the extra hard work required strains the muscles, causing distress, and sight is not good. Glasses are an extra lens before the eyes, and when fitted at Blackburn's they are so accurately measured and made they end eye strain, and improve, protect and preserve sight.

Belleville City Council Warned By Finance Chairman

SERIOUS CONDITION OF CIVIC FINANCES RESULTING FROM HEAVY PROGRAM OF EXPENDITURE THIS YEAR—COUNCIL OF NEXT YEAR WILL FIND IT DIFFICULT TO MAKE ENDS MEET—APPROPRIATIONS ALREADY EATEN UP.

Last night's session of the City Council proved to be one of the longest drawn out of this year, as an adjournment was not reached until after eleven o'clock. Every little matter was discussed at considerable length. Ald. Bone, in speaking of expenditures, intimated that next year's Council would find it almost impossible to meet the expenditures on account of the commitments resulting from the heavy expenditure of this year. Retrenchment was necessary as some of the committees had almost expended their appropriations.

The minutes of the last regular meeting and the special meeting were read and confirmed.

Reports of committees, communications, etc., were laid upon the table and the Council went into committee of the whole on reports, etc., Ald. Adams in the chair.

The accounts recommended to be paid by the various committees were unanimously passed.

Walk Wanted.

A communication was read from the A. S. Richardson Company relative to a walk being built on a portion of Church street below Dundas street.

Ald. Bone—The Public Works Dept. has all it can do.

Ald. Ponton—This work should be done. Foster Ward, the speaker said, had been neglected this year in regard to work. We must also encourage industries.

Ald Bone—The financial situation is becoming serious. He found when he came back from a holiday that Bridge street east was being gone on with. It will be almost impossible for the Council next year to meet the regular expenditures if we incur any more debts. We have got to the end of our tether and all work should be cut off right away. The City Treasurer presents a statement which shows that some of the committees have about expended their appropriation. Something drastic must be done to get certain measurement of sewers, etc., in order that bonds may be sold.

Ald. Woodley commended the Public Works committee for the work it had done.

All. Bone wanted East Bridge street Pinnacle street and Murney hill completed this year before any further work is undertaken.

An Optimist.

Ald. Ostrom said the city had undertaken great expenditures, but he was not a pessimist and thought that all would come out right.

Bear Our Burdens.

Ald. Ostrom spoke of the work on Murney's hill that needed to be done. All citizens will enjoy the improvements that are being made in the city. We will bear our burdens manfully.

Business Tax.

Mr. A. E. Brown addressed the Council relative to the business tax imposed on the Brown & Sword Co. Last year the business tax was $68. This year it was $144. The firm was a young concern and Mr. Brown asked the Council to do something in the matter.

On motion the matter was referred to the City Clerk to look into.

A motion prevailed that the Clerk notify the Hydro Electric Power Commission that lights be installed on Lingham street between Victoria Ave. and Pine street as passed by the Council last year.

Mr. Armitage addressed the Council relative to doing something towards repairing Lingham street as it was in a deplorable condition.

The matter was referred to the street foreman and the Chairman of Public Works.

Frank Street Walk.

Mr. A. Duncan asked the Council to do something towards making a walk on Frank Street.

Ald. Hanna said he would like to see Frank street opened up.

A motion prevailed that the Mayor and the chairman of Public Works take up with the G.T.R. the matter of opening up Frank street.

More Light Wanted.

Mr. George Babcock wrote the Council relative to the building on Moira street west, used for smallpox patients. He asked the Council to take action to have no more patients placed in that building. The matter was referred to the Board of Health.

Dead Fish Obsequies.

An account presented of $22 for the cleaning of dead fish out of the river caused considerable discussion.

Ald. Bone thought if the city paid the account it should be repaid by the Canadian Industrial Alcohol Company, Limited.

Ald. Ponton was of the opinion that the Council should not do anything that might cause the company to remove its plant.

Ald. Adams—It cost the G.T.R. thousands of dollars when the nuisance was at its height.

The account was ordered to be paid.

The committee rose and reported. Report received and adopted.

A number of enquiries were asked and satisfactorily answered.

Stop River Pollution.

Ald. Bone moved, seconded by Ald. Hanna, that the City Clerk notify the Canadian Industrial Alcohol Company Limited that no more sewage be allowed in the River Moira that pollutes the water.

Ald. Ponton asked the Council to have this matter looked into by a competent person and have a proper report. Do not make any censure until you have heard the evidence. There is a sanitary sewer that empties into the river near the lower bridge. Let us have an investigation and see where the blame is, said Ald. Ponton.

Ald. Woodley—There is vegetation in the river that was not in the river before. There is supposed to be no sewage coming out at the lower bridge.

Ald. Adams—There is no doubt where the trouble comes from as the odors went away when the Canadian Industrial Alcohol company ceased to put anything in the river.

Ald. Doyle—Something should be done in the matter.

Mayor Riggs—A report has been received from the Provincial Govern-

Ald. Ponton—Where is that report? The Council is not seized with its contents. He moved an amendment that the account be paid, and reference to the Canadian Industrial Alcohol Company be eliminated.

Ald. Bone's motion prevailed.

An application of the Salvation Army for a grant was laid over until next meeting of the Council.

Zelenko Not The Man Says Flynn

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer, Canadian Press, Limited.

NEW YORK, Oct. 5.—William J. Flynn, chief of the Bureau of Investigation of the Justice Department, today expressed the belief that Florean Zelenko, held in Pittsburgh, had no connection with the Wall Street explosion. After having completed the local investigation he said he believed no real conspirator would have left himself as open to suspicion.

A despatch from Columbus, Ohio, said that Zelenko is wanted there for theft of dynamite caps and fuses from a construction company on Sept. 21.

Invents Charge For Pleasure Of Refuting It

Premier Meighen Did Not Say Farmers and Labor Were Bolshevists.

OTTAWA, Oct. 4.—"Mr. Drury has invented a charge in order to have the pleasure of refuting it," said Right Hon. Arthur Meighen, Prime Minister, when his attention was directed to a despatch from Oshawa in which Hon. E. C. Drury, Premier of Ontario, is quoted as having resented a charge alleged to have been made by Mr. Meighen that the farmers and labor were Bolshevists. In connection with Mr. Drury's remarks, Mr. Meighen said:-

"Not only were the words attributed to me not made, but no person could draw any such inference from what I did say. My words in Sherbrooke were precisely as follows: 'A new party has arisen in Canada, best described as a farmers' free trade party. It took its birth in the western provinces, and for some 12 years or more it has been gaining strength. It has adopted the old Liberal free trade policy of 1893. It has issued a platform. It demands to be placed in power in Canada. It has gathered under its banner and trails behind it every class of theorists and malcontents, and today, beyond all doubt, it constitutes the most numerous and strongest organization opposed to the present Government."

"Indeed," Mr. Meighen further remarked, "indeed at other points I plainly stated that the Farmers were not in any sense inimical to responsible Government, but unfortunately had aligned with them many others who were. If anyone wishes to challenge the correctness of this statement he should first make enquiry as to what took place in recent by-elections in Temiskaming and Colchester."

Mystic Shriners Invade Ottawa

Members From Vancouver to St. John Join in Imposing Ceremonial.

OTTAWA, Oct. 5.—Some 1,100 nobles of the Mystic Shrine are in Ottawa, bringing with them a breath of Arabic splendor. The occasion is the annual Fall ceremonial of Rameses Temple, at which 135 candidates were initiated including about 50 prominent Ottawa Masons. The local members of the Rameses Temple, which has its headquarters in Toronto, and the Karnak Temple, of Montreal, have worked as a unit to make the occasion a surpassing success.

Besides the nobles of the order from Toronto and Montreal, caravans from as far east as St. John, N.B., and to the west from Vancouver, B.C., took part in the imposing ceremonial. The Shriners spent the morning in registration at the Masonic Temple on Metcalfe Street, and in sight-seeing. At noon many of them, who were members of Rotary Clubs, were guests of Ottawa Rotarians at the Chateau Laurier. A motor trip of the city was held, starting at 2.30. Nearly 100 motor cars were volunteered by Ottawa nobles and Masons. At 4 p.m. the nobles formed in a parade at Cartier Square and marched through the principal streets to Lansdowne Park.

The band of the Aleppo Temple, of Boston, which accompanied the Ancient and Honorable Artillery Company of that city, took part in the parade, and the streets were crowded with people to see the brilliant spectacle.

The ceremonies by which 135 were initiated into the mysteries of the Shriners were performed by Potentate A. J. Brown, of Toronto. He was assisted by Chief Rabban J. Sallows, Assistant Chief Rabban Dr. A. E. Wright and Oriental Guide Percy Rogers. The ceremony was conducted in Howick Pavilion, Exhibition Grounds.

PLEADED GUILTY.

Earle Ashley, a young man, this morning pleaded guilty to the theft of $26 from the till of the Belleville Vulcanizing Company's premises on Moira street. Ashley had been an employee at the plant and knew where the money was kept. Magistrate Masson reserved judgment for a few days, remanding the accused to jail.

Wilson Issues Personal Appeal

Vindicate Country's Honor by Ratifying Versailles Treaty.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 4.—In a statement issued from the White House and understood to have been written by his own hand, President Wilson made a personal appeal to the country on behalf of the League of Nations, which he describes as the "most momentous issue that has ever been presented to the people of the United States."

In his statement the President tells the people of the country that they have been "grossly misled with regard to the proposed character of the League of Nations, by those who have assumed the serious responsibility of opposing it."

He brands as "absolutely false" the statement that Article Ten of the covenant will "make it possible for other nations to lead us into war whether we willed it or not," and insists that the article nowhere interferes or impairs the right of Congress to declare war according to its own independent judgment.

"The chief question," says the President to the voters, is: "Do you want your country's honor vindicated and the treaty of Versailles ratified?"

Flat Ra tes For Mothers Pensions

Difference is Made by Board Between City and Country.

City.

Widow with five or more children, $55 per month.

Widow with four or more children, $50 per month.

Widow with three or more children, $45 per month.

Widow with two or more children, $40 per month.

Country.

Widow with five or more children, $45 per month.

Widow with four or more children, $40 per month.

Widow with three or more children, $35 per month.

Widow with two or more children, $30 per month.

One Thousand Apply.

Approximately 1,000 applications for mothers' allowances have been received by the Mothers' Pensions Board.

It was to give time for this to be done that the board adopted a temporary flat rate.

Many of these are from women who have been working against great odds to keep a family at home. The principle underlying the Mothers' Allowance Act, is that the allowance paid to all who are eligible under the Act, shall be sufficient to enable the mother to provide proper clothing for her children.

The Ontario Commission hopes, by careful consideration of each application, taking into account all the circumstances, to provide an adequate allowance. Sufficient time, therefore, must be given to the commission to accomplish this end. The local boards must be appointed, the applications for allowances passed by them, the report of the investigators received and the amount of allowance to be paid decided upon by the commission.

Fatal Farm Fire Youth And 14 Horses Perish

Two Men Seriously Burned—One Was Carrying Boy to Safety.

PETERBORO', Oct. 5.— Edward Corkery, sixteen years old, was burned to death, and John Brick and Timothy Crough were severely burned, in a silo fire which occurred this afternoon on the farm of Timothy Crough, Ennismore township.

The fire started in the barn during a high wind. The men, who were filling the silo, had a narrow escape. Crough was carrying Corkery to safety, through the burning barn, when one of the horses in the stable started kicking, compelling Crough to drop the boy. The body is still in the ruins. Fourteen horses were burned to death. Many of them belonged to neighbors who were assisting in the work at the silo.

It is believed a spark from the engine set the barn on fire. The loss will be a heavy one. Both Crough and Brick are in the hospital and will recover unless complications set in.

TALKED TO ROTARIANS.

Little talks and walks with Belleville industries might well have been the slogan for Belleville Rotary's Monday meeting at Hotel Quinte. After the inner man had been well garnished with one of Rotarian Jim's choicest menus the program of song, speech and story was taken up and put through with the customary Rotary pep and peptimism. The feature provided by the program committee for the occasion was a series of three-minute rapid-fire talks by representative men from leading industries of Belleville. Those who contributed short and interesting talks were Messrs. W. Leonard, of the H. A. Wood Automatic Valve Mfg. Co.; Geo. B. Jones, of the Judge-Jones Milling Co., Limited; E. V. Taplin, of the Natural Tread Shoe Co.; L. M. Buckhardt, of the Teco Mfg. Co.; E. T. Davis, of the Standard Paving Co.

United States Demand Causes High Paper Prices

PULP AND PAPER EXPORTS OVER $200,000,000—AUGUST RETURNS SHOW INCREASE OF 118 PER CENT.—PRICES SOARING—NEWSPRINT AVERAGES $24 A TON MORE, AND BLEACHED SULPHITE $65 A TON—IMPRESSIVE FIGURES FOR FIVE MONTHS.

The August export figures of pulp and paper reach levels both in volume and unit value far in excess of any previous reports, and indicate that so far at least commodity prices in these two allied products of Canadian manufacture show the reverse of the general tendency to recede. Indeed the rather have they gained a momentum for the totals of the exports of pulp and paper for the past month show more than double those of one year ago, $18,258,727 compared with $8,358,179, while for the first five months of the fiscal year ending August 31, 1920, the total reaches $70,752,774, or almost double the amount of $35,415,415 shown one year ago. The exports for the five months of 1920 far exceed the total exports for the fiscal year of 1918, of $63,506,222.

Values Far Higher.

The detailed returns are reflecting now the heavy advances in prices that have taken place recently. In the case of newsprint there was an increase in exports of 13,134 tons for the month in quantity, and $3,160,793 in value, or an average of $24.06 per ton. This is reflecting the change from $80 one year ago to $100 and $110, as paid in August, 1920. Then in bleached sulphite pulp the exports increased from 3,899 tons to 9,[illegible], while the values rose from $400,411 to $1,598,001. The average value per ton works out at $167 in 1920, as against $102 in 1919.

Sulphate and Groundwood.

Taking sulphate pulp the exports rose from 12,318 tons to 13,371 tons, but the value from $829,129 to $1,284,365; the average per ton from $67 to $96.

In the case of groundwood the exports increased from 19,371 tons to 40,804 tons, and the valuation from $475,735 to $2,809,266; the value per ton rising from $25 to nearly $70. An in all these instances it must be considered that the average falls far below the current market price for "spot" sales, as a large proportion is sold under older contracts.

Doubling Export Values.

Taking the month of August by itself the exports of pulp and paper were at an average for the year of over $219,000,000, while even the average for the five months of $70,752,774 works out to exceed $200,000,000 for the year, as compared with a total of $104,000,000 for the fiscal year ending March 31, 1920. A very striking evidence of the pulp and paper boom.

BABIES ILL-TREATED IN PRIVATE NURSERY

Winnipeg, Oct. 4.—All private nurseries here may be closed as a result of neglect and mistreatment of children, disclosed at the trial of Daisie Brown, who operated a private nursery at 418 Simcoe street, J. W. E. Hague, city health officer, announced. Proof was given that Miss Brown had systematically underfed and neglected her infant charges "farmed" out to her by mothers who worked during the day.

She was arrested when six months old Frank Raed, who had been entrusted to her care was found half-famished in the bush. Further investigation disclosed that similar conditions were true for the majority of private nurseries.

Miss Brown's plea and that of proprietors of other homes was that parents would not pay sufficiently to ensure proper care for their children. She was sentenced to six months in jail.

WORLD'S LARGEST UNCUT GEM

"Black Opal," Found in Nevada in 1917, Was a Quarter the Size of a Brick.

What is believed to be the largest uncut gem in the world has come to light in a recently opened mining district in Nevada, where it was discovered in the spring of 1917. The stone is a "black opal," so-called because dark tones predominate in it. It shows mostly dark peacock blues and emerald greens, with a considerable amount of red, and several less prominent shades.

In size this great gem approaches a quarter of an ordinary brick, being three and fifteen-sixteenths inches in length, three and one-eighth in width, and two and one-eighth thick at the bulkiest point. Its weight is eighteen and six-tenths avoirdupois ounces, which expressed in gem diction is 8,186 grains, or 2,566.56 carats. More than a pound of opal is surely some stone! And it is all solid, uncracked, flawless gem material, free from matrix or adhering rock except for a paper thin skin encrusting the two major surfaces. Little specks broken from this skin here and there reveal the brilliant play of colors within, while the exposed ends and edge exhibit the full refracting radiance of the mass.

This stone is about half again as large as the largest of the noted gems of the world. The Cullinan diamond was roughly the size and shape of a small fist, and, if it had been an opal, would have weighed but 1,720 carats. It is compared with the new opal on this basis since the specific gravity of the diamond is 75 per cent greater than that of the opal.—Archie Rice in the Scientific American.

ANOTHER LINK BROKEN

BARONESS MACDONALD PASSES AWAY.

Was Wife of Sir John A. Macdonald and Her Death Removes One of the Last Person to Bind the Canada of Confederation With the Canada of To-day—Her Marriage Was Romantic.

THE death of Baroness Macdonald of Earnscliffe, who passed away on September 7, removes another connecting link between the Canada of Confederation days and the Canada of today. Lady Macdonald was married to Sir John but a few months previous to the formal accomplishment of Confederation. It was on February 16, 1867, that the knot was tied by Bishop Fulford, Metropolitan of Canada, and for the following quarter of a century Lady Macdonald gave faithful service to husband and country. Sir Joseph Pope relates how Sir John first met, and was attracted by his future wife. Dining in Ellah's hotel on Front street, Toronto, in 1856, he saw her and her brother enter, and enquired who they were. His companion, J. C. Morrison, replied: "An English family settled on Lake Simcoe. I do not know their names." They were Richard and Miss Agnes Bernard. In 1858, Miss Bernard's elder brother became private secretary to Sir John, and at a concert in Shafesbury Hall, Toronto, Col. Bernard pointed out Sir John to his sister.

Pope writes: "I have heard Lady Macdonald ask Sir John what his first impressions were. He made some jocular answer and finally said, 'I thought you both very tall, very much alike and that you had fine eyes'."

In 1858 Col. Bernard, a brother of Miss Bernard, became Macdonald's private secretary, and Pope continues: "Soon after that Miss Bernard was present with her brother at a concert in Shaftesbury Hall, Toronto. During the evening the colonel pointed out his chief, who was sitting in the middle of the front gallery with some ladies. 'I remember distinctly,' Lady Macdonald has said, 'how he looked; a forcible yet changeful face with such a mixture of strength and vivacity, and his bushy, dark, peculiar hair, as he leaned on his elbows and looked down.'"

In 1859 the Government of United Canada removed to Quebec, and Sir John called upon Mrs. Bernard, then staying at the ancient capital. He liked his private secretary so well that he wished to have the pleasure of his mother's acquaintance. It was then also that Sir John first met his future wife. During the next few years they saw little of each other, and in 1865 Mrs. Bernard and her daughter went back to England. In the following autumn Sir John, with several of his colleagues, were in London, preparing the bill which when passed by the Imperial Parliment became the British North America Act—the Confederation Act. Mrs. Bernard and her daughter accidentally met Sir John in Bond street, and he was glad to see them. A few days before Christmas, he proposed to Miss Bernard and they were married after the holidays, the ceremony taking place in St. George's Church, Hanover Square, on February 16, 1867, the officiating clergymen being the first Metropolitan of the Church of England in Canada.

On the death of Sir John in 1891, Queen Victoria was graciously pleased to raise Lady Macdonald to the peerage, making her a baroness in her own right, the only colonial up to that time thus honored.

Besides her social and philanthropic work, Baroness Macdonald had written frequently for magazines on Canadian topics dear to her heart. Since 1896, when she disposed of "Earnscliffe," her beautiful home in Ottawa, she had resided for the greater part of the time in England.

Dentists' Dream Realized.

From Ottawa comes the news that at last the dream dear to every dentist's heart has come true—a society known as the Canadian Dental Research Foundation has been formed.

During the next couple of years Ontario men will direct the work which will be specially active along preventive lines. This side of the work has not been developed in the past as it will be in future. Problems relating to scientific methods of dentistry, operative procedure, immunity to dental diseases, education of school children as to diet with the object of preventing instead of waiting for cavities to appear in their teeth by artificial methods, and other important dental problems will be gone into.

A fund, objective $100,000, of which $50,000 will be subscribed by dentists and the balance by public-spirited men, has been started. So far the total amount received in the hands of the National Trust Co. is $9,000. The largest donation received to date is $1,877.53 from the Dental Hockey Club, being their balance in hand at the end of 1917 season.

Build Mystery Towers.

To H. A. Clift, a Canadian engineer, is given the credit for the construction of two "Mystery Towers," built to the order of the British Admiralty for defence purposes during the war and one of which was towed recently from Shoreham to Portsmouth. It will be used there chiefly as a mark for navigation, but originally, it was one of sixteen, between which anti-submarine nets were to have been spread and which were to be crowned with power searchlights. These towers are erected on ships of ten thousand tons each, but after being floated to their new positions their air spaces will be filled with concrete and they will be allowed to settle on the bed of the ocean.

Crown Dating From 1000 A. D.

The rumor, current in the European press some months ago, when the Bela Kun administration ruled in Hungary, that the Hungarian crown was to be sold, seems to have disappeared, and the later government apparently means to keep it. It was an odd circumstance, says a writer commenting on that rumor and its disappearance, that, with so much talk of discarded insignia of royalty, the one crown actually mentioned as being for sale should have been the most ancient one, with a single exception, in Europe. For whereas the German crown, for example, is comparatively modern, and was made no longer ago than 1871 for the former kaiser's grandfather, this crown of Hungary traces back, at least in legend, to the year 1000, and the sum of 100,000 Swiss marks, about $19,000, which, last summer, was circumstantially reported as the price for which it was to be sold, does not seem particularly exorbitant.

Breaking Down Caste.

When a Brahmin will violate the laws of caste to the extent of going into the fields and putting his hands to a plough it means that a great light must have dawned in his consciousness. And that is what has happened in India. Returned Brahmin soldiers who, at the front, became inoculated with western ideas, are beginning to release liberalizing influences. At Midnapore, India, one hundred and fifteen Brahmins held a mass meeting where several fervid addresses were made on the agricultural needs of the country. The dignity of farming as a calling was emphasized. After the addresses the meeting by unanimous decision adjourned to the field, and there the high and mighty Brahmins, for whom ploughing had become taboo, took hold of plough handles and had their first practical lessons in agriculture.—World Outlook.

MARGUERITE CLARKE

Marguerite Clarke's Paramount picture, "Let's Elope," a picturization of Fred Jackson's famous farce, The Naughty Wife, which was a hit in New York in November in 1917, is filled with action from start to finish and provides Miss Clarke with one of the best roles in which she has been seen since she became a screen star. "Lets Elope" will be shown at Griffin's tonight and Wednesday night.

"Her Bridal Nightmare" a funny 2 reel comedy, a beautiful Burton Holmes travelogue, Jack Dempsey in "Daredevil Jack", and an interesting Canadian News Pictorial showing important happenings from Coast to Coast will also be shown on the same program.

"SAN TOY"

Probably the most opportune revival of musical comedy in recent years is F. Stuart-Whyte's newest English importation, "San Toy," coming, as it does, at a time when the theatre-going public is convalescing from an overdose of jazz music and acrobatic dancing, masquerading under the name of musical comedy.

"San Toy" embraces both music and comedy of the highest order, and when presented by a carefully chosen company of English artists, such as Mr. Whyte has brought to Canada, it offers an evening's entertainment of such delightful possibilities that it should be marked as a red letter day on the theatrical calendar.

Mr. Whyte has given "San Toy" a splendid production, making the scenic part of the performance a much more important feature than is usually the case where the artists and the music can be depended upon to make a success of a piece without the aid of any elaborate scenic investiture. "San Toy" will be the attraction at Griffin's next Monday, Oct. 11th. Seat sale opens Friday, 10 a.m.

Coral's Varying Colors.

Genuine coral may be red, pink, white, blue, yellow, green or black, the last being the rarest and most highly prized. The next valuable is the red coral, which is susceptible to a high polish and is most in use for jewelry, being the coral of commerce. Corals are roughly classed under two heads, the horny corals and the lime or stone corals. To the former belong the red and black forms and the white to the latter. Red coral is chiefly found in the Mediterranean. The corals found on the Atlantic coast of Florida are the lime, or stone corals, which are the reef-building forms.

CLEANLINESS IS HEALTH
By the use of Gillett's Lye, house cleaning is made a pleasure instead of a drudgery. It softens the water and cleans thoroughly whether the dirt is visible or invisible. Destroys all bacteria and infectious germs, removes obstructions from drain pipes, closets, sinks, etc. Refrigerators are made delightfully fresh and clean by using one teaspoonful of Gillett's Lye dissolved in two gallons of water.

South Africa to Celebrate Arrival of Chapman, Which Carried the First Settlers

SOUTH AFRICA has its Mayflower, the little ship Chapman, the first of a fleet of sailing ships which a hundred years ago brought to its shores a body of British settlers who left an enduring mark on the country. It is coincidence that in the very year in which America will be celebrating the tercentenary of the arrival of the Pilgrim Fathers on the Mayflower, South Africa is celebrating the centenary of the arrival of British settlers, or, as they are commonly called, the 1820 Settlers. At that time the Cape had been under British rule less than a quarter of a century, and was occupied almost entirely by Dutch speaking settlers, who had mostly settled in the western districts owing to the distress and economic pressure resulting from the Napoleonic wars.

The British Government decided to promote the settlement of the eastern province. On this project they were prepared to expend the sum of £50,000. The scheme was eagerly taken up, and out of a large number of applications some 4,000 men, women and children were selected, and never has so small an expenditure been more fruitful. The settlers proved to be of the true pioneer blood, and though they found a wild country, uninhabited except by savages, teeming with wild beasts, under totally unfamiliar conditions and faced with every imaginable hardship and difficulty, they soon began to make progress, and to-day their descendants are scattered throughout South Africa bearing some of the most honored names in the community.

The first batch landed on April 10, 1820, at Port Elizabeth, then a barren sandy beach, now a busy and prosperous seaport and manufacturing centre, and before many years had passed they had reclaimed from barbarism the whole of the eastern province, one of the richest and fairest portions of South Africa, and dotted with many busy towns, villages and smiling farmsteads.

At the suggestion of the Prime Minister, Gen. Smuts, the special celebration of the centenary has been postponed till next year, owing to the abnormal conditions caused by the war and the difficulty of making suitable arrangements. The hope is also expressed that next year the Prince of Wales will be present, which would undoubtedly add much to the success of the celebration.

The chief centre of the event will be Grahamtown, a small but flourishing town in the eastern province, which a hundred years ago was the centre of the activities of the settlers, and where this year local celebration is being held by the Wesleyan Church, which played a very prominent part in the religious and social life of the early settlers.

South Africa has as much reason to be proud of the 1820 Settlers as America has of the Pilgrim Fathers. Though the cause of the exile was different, the spirit of indomitable perseverance and love of liberty were the same.

HOW TIMES CHANGE.

Old Fashions Disappear and New Ones Develop.

Except for the very young, whose gaze is wholly towards the future, a comparison of customs and living conditions in different periods is always interesting.

Modern examples of such comparisons are, in the drama, "Milestones"; in the novel, Booth Tarkington's "The Magnificent Ambersons"; and in the Movies, "Intolerance." There is also the discussion engendered by Mrs. Asquith's opinion that women are not as beautiful as they used to be.

A more practical and materialistic survey of modern life, contrasted with former days, is found in the story by the president of one of the great mail order houses.

It is the opinion of the president of this organization, an opinion based on his firm's sales, that the standards of living and of taste are growing better every year.

"There are items in our catalogue now," he says, "which we would not have dreamed of putting there even a few years ago. Then they appealed only to the select few. Now the millions want them."

He thinks the three chief factors in educating people to a higher standard and a better taste have been "movies, motors and magazines." They have made all the people familiar with the best of things.

This executive head makes several comparisons between the buying customs of to-day and of yesterday.

In a metropolitan shoe store, he thinks it would be hard to discover a "congress gaiter," that comfortable soft shoe with a rubber gore set in at the sides which our grandmothers and grandfathers used to pull on with a sigh of satisfaction. Yet this firm sells by mail enough congress gaiters every year to convince them either that there are a lot of comfort-loving old folks surviv[illegible] or that some of the younger ones like to take their ease now and then.

Toronto shoe-dealers, by the way, report that although rubber gored shoes for outdoor wear have largely disappeared, there is a demand for house shoes of this style.

"There is one style of foot-wear," reports this authority, "which is literally on its last legs—the old high-top boots which took muscle to get on and a bootjack to get off. The high cowboy boot, with its fancy stitched top, and its high heel for holding the stirrup still survives."

Another survival is the percussion cap for muzzle-loading rifles and shot guns. This firm recently sold in one year 500,000 of these caps, for weapons that one would have thought almost obsolete.

Many women still buy flatirons, made of solid metal, handle and all, instead of the iron with a detachable wooden handle or the electric iron.

The demand for the old iron kettle and the iron skillet has almost ceased, except from the Pennsylvania Dutch, "where the art of good cooking is said to be in high repute."

The taste in wallpapers is improving. Soft colorings instead of garish ones, artistic designs instead of crude, are said to be chosen now by people of all classes.

Among canned vegetables, the most popular are, in order, tomatoes, corn, peas. Tomato is the most called for among the canned soups. In canned fruit, peaches come first, with apricots and pears next.

There hasn't been much of an increase in the sale of books. "Because of the prevalence of talk machines, we sell more music cabinets than bookcases. And we sell more kitchen cabinets than either."

Bedroom sets used to be sold in only three pieces; bed, bureau and washstand. Now just one set of this kind is shown in the catalogue. Most of them have seven pieces; bed, bureau, chairs. Twin beds are becoming common. Their sales would be greater if the size of bedrooms permitted them. Beds are longer than they used to be.

Cradles have practically gone out of use. The twentieth-century baby sleeps in a crib.

"Sideboards" have given way to the "buffet."

Rocking chairs maintain their popularity. Porches are now furnished with as much care as the interior.

In children's clothing, the most popular colors are the same, year in and year out—pink and blue.

Among foodstuffs, more vanilla flavoring is sold than all the others put together. Codfish is more in demand than any other kind of dried or smoked fish. There is an insatiable appetite for canned salmon, and, of recent years, tuna has been added.

Strange letters and orders reach the firm. One customer, asking for a suit of clothes, suggested that the man whose name appears in the firm-name, but who has been dead for years, should try on the suit first, for if he were satisfied, the purchaser would be too.

"Mister" and "Esquire."

"Mister" or "Esquire"? For that matter, one might ask, "Why either?" The answer is that either is a courtesy title, whether in this country or in England; and courtesy is a good thing, easy to bestow, churlish to withhold. There is a fancy that the address, "Thomas Smith, Esq., carries a little more honor than "Mr. Thomas Smith," but in America "esquire" means no more than "mister," if either really means anything.

Matthew Arnold explained the difference in the English custom by an assertion which signified that a gentleman, or any one who is engaged in a "gentlemanly" occupation, is denominated "esquire," but that the tradesman is entitled to nothing better than "mister."

Nevertheless, the Englishman is not always sure of himself in making the distinction. One of the London papers amused itself with the experience of a correspondent who found that the railway companies vouchsafe to those passengers only who care sufficiently about their social standing to be holders of first-class season tickets the honor of "esquire."

One day when the correspondent held a first-class ticket, he received a letter from the company addressed "esquire." But on the next day, when he transferred his patronage to second class, he was humiliated to find himself relegated to the common crowd known as "Mr."

This gentleman gives a burlesque etymology of the word. When the Conqueror came over in 1066, those of his retinue who could afford cushions to sit on at an audience were known as "esquires," or "esquatters," and those who had to sit on hard wooden seats were called "misters."

The real derivation of the word is, as everyone will remember, from "escuyer," old French for "shield-bearer," and so came to be applied to the chief retainers of knights. When the feudal days passed the word remained.

Sir William Orpen.

Sir William Orpen, the official painter of the Peace Conference, who recently declined an offer of $5,000,000 to go to America and paint 300 pictures, is the precise opposite in appearance of the popular conception of a great artist. His hair is not long and ruffled; it is short and smooth. He does not wear a flowing collar; he wears a stiff one. He has none of the airs and affectations of the Bohemian, but impresses one as a typical business man.

A Busy Hen.

A record yet to be beaten in continuous egg-laying has, according to F. C. Elford, Dominion poultry husbandman, been made by a barred rock pullet at the Experimental Farm at Kentville, N.S. This pullet has laid 104 eggs in 104 days. As a rule a hen lays two or three days and then misses a day, and some are known to have laid five or six dozen without a break, but never before, in the knowledge of the Dominion Poultry Department has a hen laid 104 eggs without a miss.

The Friendly Smoke
THERE is something mighty comforting and satisfying about "OLD CHUM" Tobacco; a sort of soothing restfulness that pipe smokers have come to associate with this friendly smoke.
"OLD CHUM" is an old, old chum with all pipe smokers.
It has the perfect tobacco taste—the mellow richness—and men know that they can be chummy with "OLD CHUM" all day long and that the "good night pipeful" will be as sweet and cool as the one enjoyed just after breakfast.
For years and years "OLD CHUM" has been Canada's favourite pipe tobacco and today is more popular than ever.

My Soldier Girl Very Entertaining

Merry Tuneful Melange of Absurdities Amuses Large Audience.

A capacity audience greeted "My Soldier Girl" at Griffin's Monday evening and the hearty laughter, applause and frequent encores testified to the appreciation of those present. This musical comedy has been greatly improved since its appearance here last season and provides a very satisfying entertainment to lovers of light musical productions. Billy Moore, as Jaspar, a colored valet, made a decided hit as fun-maker, and the audience seemingly could not get enough of him as he was recalled again and again until he finally announced that he "didn't know no more." He was ably assisted in the fun-making line by Billy Murphy, as Ricketts, an elongated comedian, who was very amusing. The musical selections were tuneful and catchy, and the costumes and scenery bright and pleasing.

The song hit of the show was the vocal solo, "Just Like a Gypsy," a decidedly catchy and melodious number, sung by George B. Hall, in the character of Capt. Tom Lawson. Mr. Hall in this number was generously applauded and recalled several times, the song being so appealing in theme and tune that the audience was humming the strain from the first chorus. Mr. Hall has a splendid voice and was also heard to advantage in other numbers, notably "My Soldier Girl," from which the production takes its name.

WOMAN MURDERER ESCAPES THE SCAFFOLD

Madame Gagnon, mother of twin babies, sentenced to be hanged for murder in Quebec, has escaped the scaffold through executive clemency. Life imprisonment will be the punishment of this unfortunate woman and the twins, if they live, will have visited upon them, in a measure at least, the sins of their parents, the father also undergoing a life sentence. Commuting the sentence of the woman was a wise and humane thing to do as her death upon the scaffold would only be adding another tragedy to a chapter of tragedies.

COME BACK, SAYS MR. HARDY, AND FORGET THE HORRID PAST.

A. C. Hardy, of Brockville, President of the Ontario Liberal executive, in addressing a meeting of the Toronto and York County Liberal Association, said that the farmers had undermined the Liberal organizations throughout the province. Mr. Hardy said he could not understand why men when they got a little money together left the Liberal party and went over to the Conservatives.

Where else would they go when they got their eyes open?

Liberals could not win elections on the old Grit lines, said Mr. Hardy, who issued an invitation to the Liberal Unionists to come back into the party and forget the past.

To "see ourselves as others see us" is a gift which Mr. Hardy seems to be cultivating.

IMMIGRATION MAY CUT LIVING COST

Possible and probable effects upon conditions in America of the present emigration from Europe are discussed in "Forbes' Magazine" by Paul Clay: "The worker desires to know whether it contains any threat against the size of his pay envelope; the employer wonders if it means a fair supply of efficient labor; the farmer asks whether it signifies that he will be able to obtain help enough to prevent his crops from rotting in the field, and the great middle class of our people are wondering if it will bring relief from the excessive cost of living."

Dealing with these points, Mr. Clay says:

The greatest single factor in bringing about the high cost of living has been the labor shortage of the war period. Admittedly the direct cause of the big rise in food prices was the great demand and the small supply; but the farmers were anxious enough to take full advantage of the high prices, and but for the labor shortage the production of food products would have come much nearer keeping pace with the demand. Many a farmer absolutely discontinued certain lines of production, especially in the Eastern States, because of inability to hire necessary help.

The great wave of immigration now definitely promises to restore a normal supply of common labor within a reasonable time. This should replenish our supplies of raw materials and bring their prices down to a fair basis at which industries can go ahead. It should bring building materials down where the housing shortage can be eliminated; it should bring farm products down where the cost of living can be moderated. And it should bring coal and iron down to such a basis that our constructive industries can thrive. Big movements of this kind do not occur over night. They take weeks and months, and we are not going to see any immediate results in this case. Yet under the peculiar conditions now existing immigration and prosperity mean pretty much the same thing, and we should begin to realize the prosperity some time next year—possibly early in the year.

CRISP COMMENT

With the extensive program of street paving this year in Belleville it is to be regretted that Station street was not included. This is one of the principal arteries of traffic in the city and should have been the first to receive consideration.

As the River Moira shows no disposition to be decent and respectable, gets on a rampage every spring and tears up things generally, then dries up in the summer and becomes a disease breeder, it is high time something was done to control its vagaries.

If Arthur Meighen could be convinced that what the Toronto Globe says about him is true, he would probably go away to some solitary place, lay down and die. But we don't believe he believes it, says the Hamilton Herald.

With a great show of indignation Provincial Premier Drury calls Dominion Premier Meighen to account for statements never made. Of course Premier Drury is simply playing politics, and while pretending to answer Premier Meighen, was simply talking to distorted statements made by newspapers seeking the political life of Hon. Arthur Meighen. Premier Drury is playing the U. F. O. harp just now, but he has by no means put his Grit fiddle away for keeps.

The Toronto Mail and Empire makes "the obviousation" that if twenty days are cut off the beginning and end of the furnace days some 250,000 tons of coal would be saved. It suggests substitutes, oil, gas and electricity. People, however, are not likely to begin using coal too soon considering its price. But there are other things they can do than use substitutes. They can sit in the kitchen, or some one else's kitchen, they can use foot warmers and hot water bottles, they can practice deep breathing, which warms the body, they can take to their beds, they can—but we need not become frivolous; the point is, the Mail must not become anxious, people will save coal because it is too precious to waste, remarks the Kingston Standard.

Alderman Bone, chairman of the Finance Committee of the City Council, told the members of the Council Monday evening that the civic finances were in a serious condition on account of the heavy expenditure this year, and next year's Council would have a hard row to hoe to meet obligations incurred this year. Ald. Bone advocates drastic action to curb expenditure at once. This justifies warnings issued early in the year by the city banker and The Intelligencer, the only flaw in Ald. Bone's warning being that it comes about six months too late.

OTHER VIEWS

Cure For Wife Beating
Toronto Globe

A cure for wife-beating has been discovered by Elwood City, Pennsylvania. It is a simple one and consists in choosing women as jurors to deal with wife-beating cases. Presumably the Pennsylvania town will insist on men jurors in all cases where husbands are beaten by their wives. Just to even up.

Waste Paper
Boys' Life

Few of us realize the importance of saving waste paper. Today when the country is threatened with a wood and paper famine and our forests are disappearing so rapidly every effort should be made to save every scrap of paper. It is estimated that the saving of paper would make it possible to save more than 1,000,000,000 feet of lumber each year. Waste paper, such as old magazines, books, all kinds of printed matter and paper books, takes the place of wood pulp and saves millions of trees. Such material is used for paper, making paper boxes, roofing and building boards and paper shipping containers of all kinds, which carry as much as 100 pounds. If every one would save the waste paper in his home it would not be necessary to use a single tree for such material. It would require more than 500,000,000 feet of lumber each year to make the paper shipping cases used throughout the country.

The Liberal Champions
Edmonton Journal

The other day, in taking note of a very foolish attempt, which is being made to convey the idea that Premier Meighen and the Hon. Robert Rogers are close political associates The Journal said that it would be quite as far and reasonable to attack the Hon. W. L. M. King on the ground of his one-time political association with "Hug-the-Machine" Preston. When this was written we were obviously not prepared for the news which comes less than a week later, giving the result of a federal Liberal convention in the constituency of Durham, Ontario. This convention chose as its candidate at the next ensuing Dominion election no less a personage than the famous Hug the-Machine.

The Poet's Corner

HE GOETH BY ME, AND I SEE HIM NOT

Who knows His name? Himself hath written it.
In radiant light against an awful sky.
Where bleaching sands their changing forces pit.
Against the towering waves that swell and die,
In crystal snow, in globes of dew and rain—
A name is there, but who can read it plain?

Thunders and lightnings pass me by; no length
Of human wisdom fathoms their design;
Seeds fall and dream themselves into the strength,
The soaring peace of steadfast oak and pine.
A flash!—and living light has felled their pride!
His sign was here, but He—where does He hide?

When Greed and Malice wage their wasteful war
Within the frail and foolish hearts of men,
And, somehow, latent God comes to the fore,
And truth, unconquered mounts her throne again,
Here too, He passed, and made his Presence felt,
Though men who asked with tears where Justice dwelt!

From inarticulate, unthinking state;
His wisdom through their ignorances surged
And led their strivings to a worthy fate:
Truth— Wisdom— Guidance; these His will proclaim—
These are but letters of His mystic name!

A LAUGH OR TWO

Liked Her Mother

Six-year-old Margaret often played with Nellie, a neighbor's little girl. One rainy day, the two were just starting across the clean ktchen floor at Margaret's home when the latter's mother seeing their muddy shoes, headed them off and sent them out to play on the porch. After a moment Nellie remarked:

"My mother don't care how much I run over the kitchen floor."

There was quite a long interval of silence. Then Margaret said:

"I wish I had a nice, dirty mother like you're got, Nellie."

On the Straight Path

"My son," said his father solemnly, "when you see a boy loafing about street corners do you suppose he is street corners at all hours, what place in life do you suppose he is fitting him self for?"

"To be a policeman," replied the young philosopher promptly.

BUY Long-Term Securities NOW

What Percentage of Your Income is Taxable?

Many wise investors, taking advantage of the present low prices of good long-term securities, are buying bonds.

But good judgment advises also discrimination in bond purchases.

Securities which pay good interest rates may yield comparatively small net returns when the income tax has been deducted.

Some Victory Bonds are tax free, and—

VICTORY BONDS are among the best long-term securities available. We recommend those FREE FROM INCOME TAX falling due in 1933 and 1937.

A SURGERY IN YOUR HOME

ZAM-BUK for Quick, Clean Healing.

THE lacerated Cut, severe Burn, crippling Ulcer, or disfiguring Skin Disease used to mean a visit to your doctor's surgery. They can now be treated by Zam-Buk safely, quickly, and successfully in your own home.

Lord Lister's famous discoveries in antiseptic healing revolutionised the science of Surgery. Their introduction into the home by Zam-Buk has brought new and immense possibilities in self-treatment of everyday injuries and skin sores.

Zam-Buk represents a highly concentrated combination of rare herbal extracts, unprecedented in their soothing, healing, and germicidal power. Totally different in character to fatty ointments and salves, Zam-Buk is also immeasurably superior to them in having a threefold action on the skin.

FIRST, Zam-Buk is instantly soothing where there is pain, irritation, or inflammation. SECONDLY, it purifies the tissues, kills harmful germs, and ends all danger of a cut or wound becoming festered or poisoned. LASTLY, when the injured or diseased surface has been thus antiseptically cleansed, Zam-Buk promotes the speedy growth of healthy skin.

Zam-Buk, easily the safest and most reliable skin remedy on the market should have its place in every Canadian home. It's often described as "A Surgery in a Two-Inch Box."

"Simply Indispensable"

Writes this Manitoba Mother.

Mrs. T. Fothergill, of Ridge Farm, Bousman River, says:—

"When my children get cut, bruised, or burnt, Zam-Buk is simply indispensable. When I cut my wrist badly the doctor tried stitching it, but it would not heal. Zam-Buk soon put it right. I have also found Zam-Buk excellent for Piles, Heat Rash, and other Skin Irritation."

"Our eldest boy recently sustained a deep, nasty cut on the face. I was afraid he might lose his eye. But we kept the injury clean, regularly dressed it with Zam-Buk, and it healed perfectly.

"My husband always carries Zam-Buk about with him on the farm, prepared for any accident. One time it cured him of a nasty outbreak of Boils. Everyone should know this fine healer, Zam-Buk."

For Eczema, Ringworm, Ulcers, Abscesses, Poisoned Wounds, Bad Legs, etc., Zam-Buk gives tenfold in healing value, yet costs no more than the ordinary ointment or salve.

Not Just Good—The Best Roof

The tendency to-day is to use the best roofing material as a covering for all roof surfaces. This is not due to people having more money to spend, but to the realization that the first cost of a good roof is practically its only cost.

NEPONSET PAROID

provides a roof that is serviceable and long-lived. Lay a Paroid Roof to-day and forget it for the next twenty years or more. Before the roof needs repairs you will have spent far more than its original cost in repairs to other parts of the building. Hundreds of buildings throughout the Dominion of Canada conclusively bear out this statement.

The base of Neponset Paroid is a high-grade rag felt thoroughly impregnated with asphalt, making it positively water-proof, and fire-resisting.

Roofed with Neponset Paroid you may rest assured that your buildings are perfectly weather-proof and sound.

Easy to lay—With every roll of Neponset Paroid is supplied sufficient nails and cement with full directions.

There is a Neponset dealer in your district. Write us for his name and a copy of our illustrated booklet "Roofing Canada."

Suddenly but quietly upon this current of her thoughts a thought of Duane's was launched like a skiff congenial to the tide. He spoke almost as softly as a thought, at first with a quaint shock such as a boat makes, launched.

"How often do you go to church?" he said, whimsically.

"Why—never, I'm afraid," she gasped in surprise.

"You were planning to be married in church?"

"Such funny questions! Yes, of course."

"Why?"

"Oh, it wouldn't be nice not to."

"You don't believe in divorce, then?"

"Oh yes—yes, indeed—if people don't get along together. I think it's wicked for people to live together if they don't love each other."

"It's love, then, that makes marriage sacred?"

"Yes. Yes, indeed! Of course!"

"Is it all right for two people who are not Christians to live together according to their creeds?"

"How do you mean?"

"Well, the people who lived before there were any Christians—or people who never heard of Christianity—was it all right for them to marry?"

"Of course."

"It's not any one formula, then, that makes marriage all right?"

"Of course not, it's the—the—"

"The love?"

"I think so. It's hard to explain."

"Everything is, isn't it?"

"Terribly."

There was more silence. He took a cigar from his pocket, held it before her for permission. She said, "Please." He struck a match. She glanced at his face in the little limelight of the match. It was very handsome. A pearl of drowsy luster gleamed in the soft folds of his tie. The hands sheltering the match were splendid hands.

She watched the cigar fire glow and fade and the little turbulent smoke veils float into the air and die. One of them formed a wreath, a strange, frail, writhing circlet of blue filaments. It drifted past her and she put her finger into it—her ring-finger by some womanly instinct.

"Now you're married to me," said Duane.

There was a sudden movement of his hands as if to seize upon her. She recoiled a little; his hands did not pursue her. They went back to the steering wheel and clung to it fiercely. She turned from his eyes, but he gazed at her cheek, and she could feel the blood stirring there in a blush.

"If you loved me, would you marry me?" he said.

"I—I love— I'm going to marry—somebody else."

When?"

"Some day."

"If you're not happy with him, will you leave him?"

"Oh, but I'll be happy with him."

"So many people have said that. You've seen how seldom it worked. If you ceased to love him, or he you, would you leave him?"

"'If' is a large order. Maybe."

"Wouldn't it be wiser if two people who thought they loved could live together for a while before they married?"

She felt her muscles set as if she would rise and run away from such words. "Mr. Duane! I don't think it's nice even to be talking of such things. Besides, it's growing late."

"It's not so late as it would be if you married a man and found that your marriage was a ghastly mistake."

"Hadn't we better start back?"

"Please don't leave me just yet. This is very solemn to me. I've been studying you a long time, trying to get you out of my mind, and only getting you deeper in my heart. I love you."

"I don't believe it."

"I know it."

"Then you oughtn't to tell me."

"Not tell a woman you love her? Not try to save her from wrecking her life and my own?"

"How wrecking my—her life?"

"I believe that if you marry Clay Wimburn you'll be unhappy. He can't give you a home. He can't buy you clothes. He can't support you."

"That's not his fault, just now—with the hard times and the war. Please let's go home."

"To my home?"

That insolence was too appalling to answer, or even to gasp at, or protest against. It stunned her. He took advantage of her daze to explain, hurriedly:

"You're not going to be one of those silly, old-fashioned idiot girls that a man can't talk to earnestly and frankly, are you now? Of course you're not. You're not one of those poor things whose virtue consists in being insulted every time anyone appeals to their intelligence, are you? No, you're a fine, brave soul, and you want to know the truth about truth, and so do I.

"I'm a decent enough fellow at heart. I want to do the right thing and live squarely as well as the next fellow. I've got a sense of honor, too, of a sort, and I take life pretty seriously.

"I tell you, the world is all turned topsy-turvy the last few years. The old rules don't rule. They never did, but people pretended to believe in 'em. Now we're not so afraid of the truth in science or history or religion or anything. We want to know the truth and live by it.

"What they used to call the decent thing we call indecent. You said yourself that marriage without love was horrible. And it is; it's all quarrel and nagging and deceit. If people are faithful to each other morally they seem to quarrel all the more. Long ago I vowed I'd never marry, and I don't intend to. I don't want to marry you. But I want your life."

"Mr. Duane! Really, this is outrageous."

"No, it isn't! Hush and listen, honey—Miss Kip—Daphne—whatever you'll let me call you. I told you I was stark, starving, crazy mad about you. When I think of you looking for work, living in that awful spare room of those awful Chivvises—when I think of you going from place to place at the mercy of such men as you're sure to meet—when I think of you waiting for poor Wimburn to get out of the poorhouse, I want to grab you in my arms and run away with you. It breaks my heart to see you in distress and anxiety; for I want you to have everything beautiful and cheerful in the world. And I can get it all for you. Let me! Let me love you and try to make you happy, won't you?"

He had crowded nearer and he held her fast against the door of the car.

His right hand clung to hers; his left slid down to her waist. He drew her toward him, staring up beseechingly. He laid his cheek against her left side like a child, the big man pleading to the little woman for mercy.

She felt sorry for him and for herself. She regretted that cruelty was her one unmistakable duty. She had no right to be kind, and charity would be a sin. She wrung her hands free from his with slow persuasion and shook her head pityingly.

He accepted the decision with a nod, but before she could escape from his arm she felt that he pressed his lips against her just above her heart. It was as if he had softly driven a nail into it. Tears flamed to her eyelids and fell on his hands as he carried them to his bent brow. He crossed them on the wheel and hid his face in them, groaning.

"Daphne! Daphne!"

She was more afraid of him now than ever. All the splendors he could promise her were nothing to that proffer of his longing.

She Was More Afraid of Him Now Than Ever.

While she waited in a battle of impulses, he regained self-control with self-contempt, in a general clench of resolution. "I apologize," he mumbled. "I'm a fool to think that you could love me."

CHAPTER XX.

Duane did not speak till miles and miles of black road had run backward beneath their wheels. Then he grumbled, "What a fool I was to dream of such a thing!"

More miles went under before her curiosity led her to say, faintly, "What were you dreaming of?"

Your Railways And The Cost of Living

BEFORE the Privy Council at Ottawa protest against the new railway rates has been made on the grounds that the giving of the new rates would raise the cost of living by a percentage many times higher than the percentage actually charged by the Canadian railways.

It was pointed out that the numerous middlemen who act as the distributors of goods would each add his percentage of profit to the freight rate, so that although the railways might only receive say 40 cents additional freight charge on a shipment the public would be forced, by the distributing middlemen, to pay many times that amount.

The managements of the various Canadian railways desire, through this, their association, to draw the attention of newspaper readers to the highly significant fact that the recent increase in United States railway rates—an increase similar to the increase in Canada—has actually been followed by a decrease in the cost of living in that country.

Furthermore

A great Canadian manufacturer recently made public—without any solicitation and without the previous knowledge of the railway managements—figures which proved that the retail selling price of a yard of plain white cloth in Winnipeg after being hauled from Montreal to Toronto and Toronto to Winnipeg, would be increased only one-half a cent even after the wholesaler had added 20 p.c. profit to the new freight rate and the retailers another 50 p.c.

He showed that these distributors, whether rightly or wrongly, added 15 cents to his mill price of 16 cents per yard.

Yet the railways carried the raw cotton for this yard of goods from Texas to Montreal, and the finished goods from the mill to Toronto and Toronto to Winnipeg for one-and-one-half cents.

We venture to believe that, whatever the explanation or the justification may be, the same serious additions to cost by the distributing trades will be found in relation to almost every article of common household use.

This is not to attack distributors. They may themselves be victims of a bad system or of an overcrowded trade. But it is to point out that if they add whatever percentages they, as a trade, find convenient, on top of the freight rates, the railways cannot help either themselves or the public. The oppressive results of these practices should not be charged against the railway managements, nor cited as reasons for holding freight rates down—merely because railway rates can be held down—while other prices soar as the various trades find necessary.

RAILWAY charges always must be a serious item in determining cost of production. But the managements of your railways urge upon your attention this fact: that antiquated, over-loaded and wasteful systems of distributing goods are much more properly a subject for public anxiety.

Canada cannot prosper without prosperous railways. Canadian railways cannot prosper unless Canada prospers

In all sincerity let us suggest that the people of Canada beware of those who would restrict and even strangle the railways simply because control exists there and is not so convenient in other departments of commercial activity.

RAY GOSSENS.

The funeral of Ray Gossens took place on Thursday afternoon from the family residence, Frankford, to Trinity Church, where service was held. The church was crowded to the doors with friends of the grief-stricken family. The school children, playmates of little Ray, attended in a body, each wearing a white flower. Two of the Sunday School hymns, "Gentle Jesus, Meek and Mild," and "Jesus Loves Me, This I Know," were feelingly rendered by the choir and children. Rev. Isaac Snell read the lesson, from the eighth chapter of Romans. Rev. B. F. Byers, rector of Trinity Church, officiated, and preached an eloquent and heartfelt sermon, full of comfort to the stricken hearts of the bereaved ones, taking as his text II. Samuel, verse 12, "I shall go to him, but he shall not return to me."

The floral tributes were very many and most beautiful, requiring a separate car to convey them to the cemetery. Very appropriate was the beautiful pillow of white flowers with the word "Schoolmates," in colors, sent by the school children.

Interment was made in Frankford cemetery. The pallbearers were six of his boy friends, David Cory, Reginald Simmons, Max Malone, Dan Snider, Grant Sine and Maurice Mallory.

The deceased was 12 years and 4 months old, of a merry, sunny disposition, and was loved by all who knew him.

The sympathy of the whole community goes out to the bereaved parents and sisters.

ESTHER KETCHESON.

Yesterday afternoon many relatives and friends were in attendance at the obsequies of the late Mrs. Esther Ketcheson. At the homestead, Front of Sidney, Rev. Rural Dean Swayne, Rector of Christ Church, Belleville, conducted the service and officiated at the interment at the family plot, Belleville cemetery. The many beautiful floral tributes were mute expressions of sympathy. The bearers were immediate relatives of the deceased, namely, James and Harry Ketcheson, Chas. H. and Daniel Grass, Chas. Grass, Jr., and H. Sculthorpe, of Port Hope.

IS REAL VETERAN.

Brockville, Ont., Oct. 4.—Ex-Sapper Terence Glazier, who served in France with the 110th Battalion, Royal Engineers, at the age of 71, today received from Great Britain the Mons Star in recognition of his services. Glazier was sent to Britain by a local subscription after his repeated efforts to enlist in the C. E. F. had failed. He also holds medals for the Fenian Raid of 1870, the South African War and the Russo-Japanese war, having served with the Japanese forces in Manchuria.

APPOINTED ORGANIST.

Cobourg, Oct. 4.—Mr. J. A. Jefferies of Pembroke has been appointed organist and choir leader of the Methodist Church here, to take the place of Mr. M. B. Chenhall, who recently resigned.

SCOTTISH CLAIM CHALLENGED.

Was the First Organized Golf Club English?

The oldest golf club in the world is not in Scotland, as might be imagined, but at Blackheath, England, writes Harold Saunders in the London Daily Express. James I. of England was not over-popular as a monarch, says the story, but his name deserves to be honored wherever golfers forgather. For it was he who introduced the game into England, and really was responsible for the institution of the Royal Blackheath Club in 1608. This was 127 years before the Edinburgh Burgess Golfing Society come into existence and 146 years before even the Royal and Ancient Club was formed.

The curious thing is that golf at Blackheath to-day is similar to what it was when James and his golfing cronies set out by coach from Whitehall for a round of "ze links." In a word, it is "primitive."

The course consist of seven holes, which have to be played three times for a complete medal round. There are no tee boxes and no flags to indicate the positions of the holes. Nor are there any awe-inspiring bunkers. For the most part the Blackheath hazards consist of iron rail rings, lamp posts, nursemaids and children.

There is something almost solemnly processional about a round at Blackheath, for it is enacted that each match shall be preceded by a fire caddy carrying a red flag. Unless you get used to it you are apt to feel like a steam roller.

The club house is a museum of historic treasures relating to the game. The walls are hung with oil paintings of past and present members of the club—its captains and field marshals, bewigged old gentlemen, and scarlet coats and epaulets—and other worthies of the links. There is one painting showing the caddies of the past, old Greenwich pensioners in three-cornered hats, blue coats and white ducks. It is said that these old salts made themselves invaluable to their employers by the richness of their vocabularies. If the player foozled his drive his henchmen was ready with a ripe oath suitable to the occasion.

Blackheath also possesses a set of clubs 200 years old and a couple of balls stuffed with feathers, similar to those with which the first Stuart King used to take his recreation. The clubs are fearful to look upon and must be difficult to use. The wooden putters and drivers are massive affairs with thick shafts and enormous heads, but the most astonishing weapon in the collection is an iron club over four feet long with a head almost as big as a two-handed battle-axe.

The Blackheathans pride themselves on maintaining the traditions of their historic past. The club dinners are attended with considerable pomp and circumstance. The members wear their picturesque scarlet uniforms and the captain is preceded to the table by an official carrying a silver club hung with silver balls, much in the same manner as the macebearer precedes the Lord Mayor.

Historical Inn Signs.

There doesn't seem any connection between the "Bag o' Nails" and "Bacchanals," but there is! This is how it came about: An innkeeper put the sign of the "Bacchanals" over his door, but his customers, not understanding it, pronounced it like "Bag o' Nails," so it means practically the same thing as the "Jolly Topers," says Answers.

"The Goat and Compasses," was once "The God Encompasseth." Another of a similar nature is the "Pig and Whistle." It is very old, being derived from the Anglo-Saxon phrase, "Pigs Wassail," or "Hail, Virgin!" The "Lamb and Flag" is also religious in origin, but it retains its form unaltered. The "Swan With Two Nicks," for its beak was marked with two cuts, or nicks, to show who owned it.

Some inn signs are historic. The "Bull and Mouth," for example, is the "Boulogne Mouth," from a sea fight which occurred outside the mouth of the harbor. So is the "Cat and Fiddle." It should be the "Caton Fidele," or "Faithful Caton," after a governor of Calais. Others are distinctly humorous. The "Good Woman" has no head, while trying to wash a black boy white is the "Labor in Vain."

Signboards have often been painted by famous artists, including Holbein, Hogarth and Millais, some of whose are still extant. In the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries the signs of taverns were often very elaborate, that of the "White Hart," at Scole, in Norfolk, costing $5,000. Another in London was so heavy that it brought down the side of the house, killing four people. The result was an act of Parliament prohibiting dangerous signboards.

Jerry-Built Religion?

Dean Inge, at Dulwich College Chapel, London, England, dedicated the memorial erected there to the boys who fell in the war. Referring to the war in his sermon, the dean said that the day came for the testing of our religious architecture during the last hundred years. Had we been building for eternity, or even posterity, or was the modern jerry-built villa a type of our religion? He was afraid that we had been presuming on our fancied security, and that we had become self-indulgent and careless, like the rich fool in the Bible.

POETRY ON WINDOWS.

Famous Men Scratched Verses on Glass.

From time to time, rhymes scratched on window panes or written on walls, are brought to light, says the Edinburgh Scotsman. These are to be found up and down the country in ancient inn or feudal castle, in humble cottage or lordly hall. It would be a pity, in these days when the road has become more popular than at any time since the advent of railways, if some wanderer, afoot or awheel, does not take the trouble to collect and preserve them. At odd times, the transcript of one of these rhymes appears in the newspapers, there is a two days' wonder in the correspondence column, and then the matter is laid to rest.

The most recent is that discovered at the historic Head Inn of Kirkcudbright. In the course of renovations, the following lines, written on one of the walls were uncovered, unfortunately partially obliterated in the process:

When January winds are blawin' cauld,
* * * I took my way;
But mirksome night did me enfauld,
* * * till earlyest day.
—R. Burns.

In one of the ground floor windows of Moreton Hall, in Cheshire, there was scratched in Elizabethan characters, the following rhyme:

A diamond and glasse
For a fule and an asse—

a sentiment which was elaborated by someone into:

When I see a man's name
Scratched upon the glass
I know he owns a diamond
And his father owns an ass.

Poets such as Pope and Burns and great writers such as Swift and Carlyle have not disdained to use the window pane for their rhymes. Swift nearly always left a sting in his verse. Once, while on his way to Ireland, he called at the Four Crosses Inn (originally the Three Crosses), a few miles from Rugby. Disliking his reception by the hostess, he wrote these lines on the window with his diamond:

You have three crosses at your door,
Hang up your wife and you'll have four.

And thus the name of the house was changed. It may have been on the same journey that the dean, arriving at Chester, found that none of the cathedral dignitaries responded to his invitation to sup with him. This was an insult that the hot-headed satirist could not tolerate. He could not retort as he would have wished, so he once more resorted to his diamond and left on the window pane of the Yacht Inn, where he was staying, the following couplet:

Rotten without and mouldering within,
This place and its clergy are nearly akin.

The following lines of Aaron Hill are well known, beginning:

Tender handed stroke a nettle,
And it stings you for your pains,

but not one man in a thousand knows that they were written on a window pane by the poet during a tour in Scotland.

It was at the Black Bull at Moffatt, in Dumfriesshire, that Burns left his epigrammatic "Apology to Scrimpit Nature," on a window pane. Miss Deborah Davies, a beautiful young English woman of small stature, had ridden past, accompanied by a tall and portly lady. The poet was asked why one was so tall and the other so little, and this was his reply:

Ask why God made the gem so small
And why so huge the granite?
Because God meant mankind should set
The higher value on it.

Some years ago there was sold in London a pane of glass from Carlyle's lodgings in Edinburgh, on which the student philosopher had scratched the following stanza:

Little did my mother think,
That day she cradled me,
What land I was to travel in,
Or what death I should dee.
Oh, foolish thee!

In this connection the following lines are of interest:

While Scotland's sons in every clime are found
Bearing the banner of their country's fame,
So long will "Sartor's" laurels be renowned,
And honest Scots revere his deathless name.

They were written on a pane of the little old-fashioned window of the house at Ecclefechan, where Carlyle was born.

Modern Methuselah.

A modern Methuselah has been revealed. According to the Amrita Bazar Patrika, great interest has been aroused in the town of Karimganj by the arrival of the well-known Sadhu Swami as Schachitanda (better known in the Himalayas as "Kalambi Babe"). The venerable Mahratta saint is reputed to be over 330 years old, and claims to have been for eleven years the spiritual adviser of the king of Nepal.

People flock to see him and to hear him speak. Hindu is the medium of intercourse. He is everywhere treated with the greatest respect and affection.

He says he remembers vividly the first battle of Paniput more than 300 years ago, and other historical events of three centuries gone are recalled as of to-day.

In Bournemouth, England, police court recently an air pilot was fined $250 for flying at a dangerously low altitude and for trick flying over Bournemouth, contrary to the air navigation regulations of 1919. The defendant executed two Immelmann turns at an altitude of 500 to 600 feet. Had the engine failed he would have had no place to land without danger to the public. The defence was that the Immelmann turn was not trick flying, but merely a quick way of turning. The defendant said he did two Immelmann turns over the sea and during his flight he was never under 1,450 feet. This was the first prosecution of the kind in England.

BUT LUMBER CAMPS CAN EMPLOY THE IDLE

Winnipeg, Oct. 4.—At least 16,000 men will be out of work in Winnipeg by freeze-up, according to officials of the Employment Service of Canada. Of this number 12,000 went out to the harvest fields, and will soon filter back. The remaining 4,000 are city men, who will find their work gone when the freeze-up comes.

J. Nelsh, superintendent of the Winnipeg Branch of the Employment office, declares that the lumber camps will be able to accommodate twice 16,000, but that past experience has shown that many prefer to live over the winter in the cities on the money they made in the harvest fields rather than work in the camps.

Easterners, who came to the Prairie Provinces for the harvest are advised by officials to return home rather than stay in Winnipeg and complicate the situation.

While there is still some demand for laborers, there are more men than professional or business positions.

Heavy Fines For False Statements

Three Ottawa Physicians Condemned to Pay $6,000 for Income Tax Evasion.

OTTAWA, Oct. 5.—Fines aggregating $6,000 were imposed in police court by Deputy Magistrate Kidd, upon three prominent local physicians, who were either found guilty or entered a plea to this effect, of having made false returns to the Department in connection with their income tax.

The doctors who were fined are Dr. J. R. O'Brien, who pleaded guilty to making false returns for 1917, 1918 and last year, and was fined $3,000, or $1,000 on each charge; Dr. Gordon E. Booth, who also pleaded guilty to three charges and was fined $500 on the first count and $1,000 each on the other two; Dr. Rudolphe Chevrier, who pleaded not guilty to having made false returns for the year 1918, but was found guilty and was fined $500. A. E. Fripp, K.C., who appeared on Dr. Chevrier's behalf, intimated that he would appeal the conviction to a higher court, in order to have a test case as to the meaning of the word "false" under the act. He contended that while his client had admittedly made incorrect returns to the department, he had done so unwittingly, and with no intention of defrauding the Government of the proper amount collectable under the tax.

Legless Veteran Not Neglected

Malicious Charges by Reckless Agitators Refuted by Veteran's Father.

TORONTO, Oct. 6.—A letter from John J. Hoare denies the circumstances in connection with the death of his son, Pte. John Hoare, of the Princess Pats, a legless veteran well-known in Toronto, who was reported as suiciding in Chicago last month. Mr. Hoare not only discredits the suicide theory, but denies that his son was in want and that Ottawa had reduced his pension. "His case allowance of $20," writes Mr. Hoare, "was off after six months' leave of the service, which is right according to law, and when he was married $15 a month was allowed to his wife, which made his pension $75 a month. He was not in need and had access to my pocket-book at all times. His wife was earning a big salary." Mr. Hoare adds that his son was to be head of a convalescent home proposed for Chicago by the Armour and other interests at a large salary. His only grievance against the Canadian authorities was that they had refused him training as an advertising expert.

Shearer, of the Halifax air station, in the station flying boat.

CHILDREN SELDOM NEED DRUGS, SAYS DR. WILEY

There is a growing belief that the physician called to a sick infant should use drugs in the most sparing manner. The infant vitality is already low when the infant is ill, and cannot react under the influence of a drug as a more mature human being is able to do. There may be cases where certain remedies are indicated, but as a rule the sick child needs a proper diet and proper nursing far more than he needs a pill or a pellet. The great trouble is not with the physician at the present time, but with the father and mother. If the doctor is called for their sick child and he does not write a prescription, they think he has not done anything for the child. The child doctor has to treat the three persons, but he should not do it at the expense of the sick one of the three. It may not be good ethics to write a prescription which is chiefly a placebo and intended for the benefit of the father and mother, yet there are times when such a prescription may be advisable. The father and mother make much better nurses, if they are fully convinced that the physician has done everything in the world possible for the sick baby. A trained nurse is not always available, and after all, no nurse can really take the place of a mother or a father.—From "The League for Longer Life", October Good Housekeeping.

Poles Make Great Clean-Up Of Prisoners And War Material

FIFTY-TWO THOUSAND PRISONERS TAKEN DURING PAST WEEK, TOGETHER WITH 180 GUNS, 1100 MACHINE GUNS, SEVEN ARMORED TRAINS, AND OTHER WAR MATERIAL.

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer, Canadian Press, Limited.

RIGA, Oct. 6.—The Polish official communication received yesterday by the peace delegates says that during the past week the Poles have taken fifty-two thousand prisoners, 180 guns, eleven hundred machine guns, seven armored trains, twenty-eight locomotives and much other material. Attaches of the Polish general staff here say that the Poles now occupy the major part of the old German trench system on the Baranovitch line, notably in the Lida sector and in the direction of Minsk, which they insist, however, is not their objective.

Minister Of Labor Protests Liberal Leader's Charges

Declares Reference to G. T. Employes' Dispute Contrary to Facts.

CALGARY, Oct. 5.—Senator Gideon Robertson, Minister of Labor, makes strong objection to a recent statement made by the Hon. Mackenzie King, leader of the Opposition, that the representatives of the Railroad Brotherhoods had petitioned the Prime Minister and himself to see that the pension rights of certain of the employees of the Grand Trunk Railway were definitely secured in any agreement which might be reached, adding that "they might as well have spared themselves the trouble of making any representations, for the Government ignored them altogether."

"I don't know whether the Hon. member has been quoted correctly," remarked the Minister of Labor in an interview in Calgary, "but if he has, his statement is quite contrary to facts which are briefly as follows:

"A strike of Grand Trunk trainmen and conductors occurred in 1910, their claims being for rates of pay and working conditions similar to those of the C.P.R. Mr. King, then Minister of Labor, properly interested himself in endeavoring to bring about an adjustment of the dispute and obtained an agreement from the then president of the Grand Trunk Railway to the effect that all of the striking employees who had not been guilty of criminal action would be reinstated as soon as possible.

"The company," said Mr. Robertson, "refrained from reinstating some 120 men, contending that the term 'as soon as possible' did not mean any definite time, while Mr. King argued that there was an understanding that all would be reinstated within a period of three months and claimed to have an understanding from the Grand Trunk Railway to this effect.

Men Reinstated.

"So after the general elections in 1911, the Hon. Mr. Crothers, who succeeded Mr. King as Minister of Labor, again took the matter up with the Grand Trunk Railway, and succeeded in bringing about the reinstatement of the hundred odd trainmen and conductors. In 1916, some of these men, however, were retired from active service because of having reached the age limit or because of physical disability, and were denied the benefits of the Grand Trunk Railway pension scheme on the ground that their service, with the company had not been continuous and therefore under the pension regulations they were not eligible to participate in its benefits.

"The railway organizations endeavored to obtain a settlement of this dispute with the Grand Trunk Railway management," continued the Minister, "carrying the case to the Board of Directors in Britain at the time the Grand Trunk Railway bill was before Parliament.

"The employees well understand," said Mr. Robertson, "that when the Grand Trunk Railway arbitration matter has been adjusted, that the employees will be fairly and justly treated with regard to pensions. They furthermore fully understand that their claim against the Grand Trunk Railway Company for pensions unpaid since 1916, is a claim against the Railway Company and not against the Government.

Men on Equal Footing.

"They, and their counsel, are putting their case to the Board of Arbitration and the Department of Labor has placed at their disposal correspondence interchanged between the department and the Grand Trunk Railway on the subject, so that both the employees and the Railway Company will be on an equal footing as regards access to all the facts, including the communication from the Grand Trunk Railway Company which Mr. King retained in his private possession from 1910 until June 1920, at which time he filed it with the department in keeping with his promise to Parliament when the Grand Trunk employees pension matter was under discussion in the House.

"The representatives of the Grand Trunk Company's employees themselves," concluded the Minister, "will, I am sure, not corroborate Mr. King's statement as to the attitude of the Government toward this matter."

THRILLING FIGHT WITH TWO BANDITS

New York, Oct. 5.—During a thrilling fight with two armed bandits, Nathan Schrader, forty-two years old, a pawnbroker at 1746 Madison avenue, was shot through the right shoulder, but managed to hold one of the bandits until the police arrived.

Saving Water For Future Possible Power Reqnirments

GOVERNMENT ENGINEERS SAY RELEASE OF STORAGE WATER NOW WILL CAUSE POWER FAMINE LATER MANUFACTURERS SAY PRESENT NECESSITIES MORE IMPORTANT THAN FUTURE POSSIBILITIES—OPPOSITION TO PLAN FOR INCREASED POWER.

OTTAWA, Oct. 6.—Strong representations are being made to the Government with reference to the supply of power in such places as Oshawa, Belleville and Kingston, where the Ontario Hydro-Electric Commission has contracted to supply more power than it is presently possible to develop unless water is released from storage in the Trent watershed, or unless central Ontario generally is blessed with an early and abundant rainfall. The Department of Railways and Canals is in charge of the water conservation of the Trent area, and while requests are being received from lakefront manufacturers to permit the drawing off of water from the navigable stretches of the Trent to relieve the present shortage, there is no truth in the report emanating from Belleville that such a course had been agreed on by the department.

FEAR GREATER SHORTAGE.

Engineering officers of the Canals Department state that to comply with these requests might precipitate a more acute and lasting shortage. They do not hesitate because of the possible effect on navigation, which is not in itself a serious matter, but after the close of navigation each fall it should be the custom to distribute the flow throughout the winter to the industrial areas in the Peterboro' and lower Trent districts. To use this water now and take a gambling chance on replenishment before winter sets in might easily mean a winter shut down for the large industrial plants of the central Ontario district.

Faced with this position the manufacturers dependent upon a steady water flow are now coming to make their protests to the scheme. There are distinct limitations to the amount of water conservation possible.

MUST KEEP LEVEL.

In the case of certain lakes a stipulated level must be maintained under an agreement with riparian owners. Either excess or deficiency of supply would result in a flood of damage claims, with which the department has already had expensive experiences. It is a somewhat involved and intricate situation, with the right to develop power by both the Dominion and Province, and with the Ontario Hydro-electric Commission, as it is claimed here, disposing of power in excess of present production, while it is contended it is doing little or nothing to install additional units or develop fresh sources of supply.

LESS RAIN LAST YEAR.

PETERBORO', Oct. 5.—The power situation has reached a crisis in this city, and several meetings have been held in connection with the matter. Each day several factories are deprived of power, entailing heavy losses to the manufacturing interests of the city. It is claimed here that the shortage is due to politics and jealousy between the Department of Railways and Canals and the Hydro-Electric Power Commission. The reason given out for the shortage of power, as low water in the Trent and Otonabee Rivers, caused by a dry spell, is not borne out by the official figures of the rainfall, which show that there was a considerably heavier rainfall in September of this year than in September of 1919. September, 1919, had 1.51 inches of rainfall, and September, 1920, had 4.05 inches.

A deputation from the local Utilities Commission is going to Toronto on Thursday to make representations to the Hydro-Electric Commission.

HYDRO NOT OVERSOLD.

"That part of the despatch which claims we are oversold on our production in central Ontario is absolutely incorrect," declared Engineer F. A. Gaby last evening. "The average amount of power being delivered in the central Ontario district today is less than it was in 1918 in the war period.

"So far as the load is concerned," the Chief Hydro Engineer added, "it is very much less than the production. It is not a question of load at all; it is a question of holding up the water and not getting a natural flow and we can get only what they regulate. We have more plant in the central district than is necessary. If we could get the natural flow of the river we would have lots of power."

In addition, Engineer Gaby pointed out that the commission is working on a development at Ranney's Falls capable of producing an additional 10,000 horsepower, and this will be completed next year.

Starvation Faces Petrograd Citizens

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer, Canadian Press, Limited.

LONDON, Oct. 6.—Despatches to the Exchange Telegraph and Central News from Helsingfors quote Russian reports of an increasing exodus from Petrograd in order to escape threatened starvation. The despatches say that two hundred thousand persons have left the former capital and that outgoing trains are crowded.

LINDSAY SHORT OF POWER.

Lindsay, Ont., Oct. 6.—Seven local industries have been requested to shut down their plants one day a week by the Hydro-Electric Co. because of the great shortage of water-power in the Trent Valley district.

Peace Parleys Proceed Favorably

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer, Canadian Press, Limited.

RIGA, Oct. 6.—It was said this morning at headquarters of the Polish peace delegates that the head of the Russian mission had accepted virtually the whole Polish peace draft based on eleven points framed by the Riga delegation and made public at the beginning of the Riga conference. These, it is stated, have been approved at Warsaw but have not yet been formally presented to the Soviet delegation.

AUTOMOBILE BANDITS ESCAPE WITH PAYROLL

New York, Oct. 5.—Four men who lay in wait in an automobile at First Avenue and Fifty-second street got away with a satchel containing $8,870, the payroll money of the American Cigar Company. After beating the paymaster and his armed guard, the men sped down Second avenue and out of sight. No trace of them has been found.

Murdered And Body Hidden

Hector Dumont Found Guilty of Murdering Returned Soldier.

NORTH BAY, Oct. 6.—Before Mr. Justice Latchford and a jury Hector Dumont is being tried at the fall assizes here on a charge of murdering Cyril Raymond at Sturgeon Falls in the spring of last year. The prisoner was arrested by Provincial Constable Fred LeFebvre on May 8 last. Raymond, according to evidence given here today by his widow, was felled with "an ordinary rye bottle" in his home on April 23, 1919, Dumont delivering the blow after words had passed between them.

Drs. Aubin and Calonne both scouted the theory of suicide and told of the wounds found on Raymond's body after its discovery in the bush near Sturgeon Falls on May 8 of that same year. He had been struck down with some blunt instrument they both said and afterwards strangled, a piece of rope being found tied around his neck.

Dumont was found guilty.

German Plotters Set At Liberty

Planned Military Expedition Against Canada and Blowing up of C. P. R. Tunnel.

LEAVENWORTH, Was., Oct. 6.—Two German consular agents who, during their wartime activities, planned to set on foot within the United States a military expedition against Canada and the blowing up of a C. P. R. tunnel in British Columbia, will probably be set at liberty today. They are Eckah Von Shack and Franz Von Bopp, former Consul-General and Vice Consul-General for the Imperial Government at San Francisco.

Cleveland Wins First Game

World's Baseball Series Opens With Well-Played Game.

BROOKLYN, Oct. 5—After the aisles had been jammed with people, the emergency bleachers loaded with dollar-a-head fans, and every available space that could be safely utilized packed with humanity at Ebbets Field today, the Police Department ordered that no more tickets be sold.

Thousands of would-be spectators were turned away from the tremendous Flatbush stadium. That was the answer to the question as to whether the public of Greater New York and the country generally would view the present Brooklyn-Cleveland series askance as a result of the revelations of the Cook County Grand Jury at Chicago in connection with the series of 1919. Cleveland won by 3 to 1.

Manager Speaker of the American League representatives played his ace, Stanley Coveleskie, in the box and the Polish pitcher, enjoying one of his good days, beat the National Leaguers at every turn. Manager Robinson of the Dodgers used three twirlers against the Indians.

It was a fighting game, in which twenty-six players were used, fourteen by Brooklyn and twelve by Cleveland. All the wiles and strategies of the game were resorted to by the respective managers by way of changes of pitchers, substitute batters and substitute base-runners. The utmost in speed, in defence and offence, that could be mustered by either side was brought into play.

Perhaps the American Leaguers displayed more dash and finish than did the National League candidates for the supreme honors of baseball, but the fact that Coveleskie had his opponents under control at all stages, and that the Indians won the game, gave the color of truth to the old baseball saying to the effect that "they all look good when they win."

The reverse has not dismayed the National Leaguers. Their followers feel that the Dodgers will win the series.

NO DAMAGE FROM FROST.

Hamilton, Ont., Oct. 5.—Farmers from the Niagara fruit belt state that the recent frosts had done little or no damage to the fruit crop. In most parts the frost was very light. In the region of Grimsby and Stoney Creek, especially, no harm was done. What little damage there was, was nearer Dundas and West Hamilton. Peaches did not suffer to any extent.

Sweetest Girl in Motion Pictures Scores a Hit in New Picture Play.

Marguerite Clark, known as the "sweetest girl in motion pictures," has scored another decisive hit in her Paramount photoplay, "Let's Elope," which is being presented at Griffin's for the last time tonight. Miss Clark has a charming role in this picture, and her gowns are remarkable creations. Miss Clark is the bride of an author who, believing herself neglected, plans an elopement with highly interesting results. The production is far above the average and the supporting cast of unusual excellence. A beautiful Burton Holmes Travelogue, "Mirrored Nature," "Her Bridal Nightmare," a funny 2-reel Christie comedy, Jack Dempsey in "Daredevil Jack," and the Canadian News pictorial, showing important happenings in Canada are also being shown on the same program.

No "Bolt or Bar or Brand" Can Shut Out Nervy Reporter Bent on an Interview.

The Hon. James Henry Smith, trust magnate and profiteer, sat in the mahogany and plush drawing-room of his mansion at Stingem-by-the Sea and smiled. For days the federal grand jury had tried unsuccessfully to arrest him for raising the price of red flannel underwear. For weeks his wife had tried to serve a summons on him to appear and pay back alimony. For months a stenographer had been trying to collect a judgment for breach of promise.

Hon. James Henry Smith was entitled to smile. At Stingem-by-the-Sea he was safe. Armed guards patrolled his grounds. Charged wires protected the entrances. Bloodhounds sniffed the pathways. There was a bronze padlock to the front door to which the Hon. James Henry held the key. A detective sat in the hallway with a shotgun in his lap. Just outside the drawing-room door a burglar alarm was concealed under a rug. Yes, take it all in all, it seemed safe.

As the Hon. James Henry mused, a little, smiling individual appeared at the front entrance. He jumped nimbly over the charged wire, slapped the captain of the guards on the back, patted the bloodhound on the head, fitted a duplicate key in the padlock, shoved a cigar in the detective's face, skipped nimbly over the burglar-alarm rug, and, pushing open the door to the drawing-room, stepped inside.

"Hello Jimmy!" he said affably.

The banker rose heavily.

"Who in h— are you?" he asked in a hoarse voice.

The blithe, smiling individual chucked his hat on a table and pulled out a wad of copy-paper and a pencil.

"Who, me?" he chuckled. "I'm a reporter. Nice place you have."

And the interview was on. . . .—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

The Thirteenth Commandment

He laughed, and did not answer for another while. Then he laughed again.

"Do you really want to know?"

"I think so."

"Well, you couldn't hate me any more than you do, so I'll tell you. I said to myself that I would never be the slave of any woman.

"It's not that I am stingy about my money, not that I wouldn't take the greatest pleasure in pauperizing myself for the woman I loved, but that I want her to take my gifts as gifts, not as a tax or a salary. Some of these women think they are doing a man a tremendous favor by letting him support them. That doesn't get me a little bit. I believe a man does a woman just as much honor as she does him, and sacrifices a blamed sight more. He gives up his freedom, and if she gives up hers she's only giving up something she doesn't know how to use anyway."

Daphne had rarely found a man who would talk to her with Duane's frankness, and if there is anything that interests a woman more than another it is to hear womankind analyzed, even satirized. She was eager for more vinegar.

"You won't be shocked and angry?" he asked.

"I don't think so."

"You don't know how pleasant it is to talk life and love to a woman who doesn't rear up and feel insulted at everything. At first you gave me a couple of how-dare-you's, but they don't count. And if you do hate me a little more, why, so much the better. When I thought you had broken with Wimburn I said to myself, 'She's the one girl in the world for me. I'm going to ask her to marry me.' But I was afraid to, for I was afraid of marriage. And then—I— Well, I'd better not— Yes, I will. I said, 'She believes that men and women are equal and have equal rights, and she's going to get out and hustle for herself, like a little man. Maybe she could learn to love me well enough to go into a partnership of hearts.' That's what I said to myself. You mustn't think it's because I don't want to cleave to one woman; it's because I do. But I hate handcuffs. Do you see? And now you know what I was dreaming of. What do you think of it?"

The answer to his long oration was complete silence. Duane waited for his answer, and, not getting it, laughed harshly: "Well, that's that. The next number on our program will be a ballad entitled 'I Never Dream but I Bump My Head.' Go on! Marry Clay Wimburn on nothing a year and live miserably ever after."

She said nothing to this, either. Duane was in a wretched state of bafflement. He put the car to its paces, and it ripped through space at fifty miles an hour. Daphne had a new terror added to the load of her nerves.

The car went bounding up a steep incline toward the swerve of a headland cut in rigid silhouette by the far-reaching searchlight of a car approaching from the other direction. Duane kept well to the outside of the road, but just as he met the other motor and winced in the dazzle of its lamps, a third car trying to pass it on the curve hurtled into the narrow space with a blaze like lightning searing the eyes. There was a yelling and hooting of horns and a sense of disaster.

Daphne bent her head and prayed for life, but without faith. Duane, half-blinded, swung his front wheels off the road and grazed a wall. The rear wheels were not quick enough. The other car smote them, crumpling the mudguard and slicing off the rear lamp.

Daphne was thrown this way and that, and it seemed that her spine must have snapped in a dozen places. When she opened her eyes again the car was standing still. Duane turned to her with terrified questions, and his hands visited her face and her arms and shoulders. He held her hands fast and peered into her eyes while she promised him that she was not dead.

The car that had bested his did not return, but the other did, offering help from a safe distance till its identity was established. In the light of its lamp Duane got down and examined his own car. Besides the damages in the rear, it had sustained a complete fracture of the front axle, a twisted fender, and a shattered headlight.

The driver of the other car came up and joined the coroner's inquest. He stared at Duane, and cried in the tone of an English aristocrat, "Gobbless my soul, ain't you Tom Duane?"

Duane, blinking in the light, peered at him and said: "Yop! I can't see you, but the voice would be Wetherell's."

"Right-o; it's me. Oh, pardon me, you're not alone. Nobody hurt, I hope and pray."

"No, but we're pretty far from home and country."

"I see! Hum-m! Pity I couldn't get the number of the swine that hit you. I rather fancy I'll have to give you a lift—what? I was out on a tango-hunt, but that will wait—if you don't mind trusting yourself to bad company."

Duane lowered his voice anxiously. "Is it very bad?"

Wetherell put the mute on his voice. "As good as yours, I'll wager. But let's not go into family history. Come along and we'll take you to the next neutral port. That would be—"

"Yonkers."

"Oh, yes. I fancy those were the Yonkers we came through a few miles back. Well, come along."

Duane was embarrassed, but he could do nothing except take Wetherell to his car and introduce him to Daphne. "Miss Kip," he said, "I've got to present Mr. Wetherell. He wants us to ride with him as far as Yonkers. We'll get another car there."

Wetherell came close and said: "Did he say Mrs. Kip? I can't see you, but I hope you are the fascinating Mrs. Kip I met at Newport. Have you forgotten me so soon?"

"I am Miss Kip," said Daphne.

"Oh, so sorry! I don't mean that, either. But my Mrs. Kip was a siren—Leila was her first name. I called her De-leila, you see. And she called me Samson. She was a—"

"She is my brother's wife," said Daphne.

"Oh, you don't tell me!" Wetherell gulped, and his abrupt silence was full of startling implications that alarmed Daphne, angered Duane, and threw Wetherell into confusion.

Duane helped Daphne to alight from the derelict and transferred her to the other car, where Wetherell introduced them to a mass of shadow whose name, "Mrs. Bettany," meant nothing to Daphne and everything to Duane.

Duane arranged to have a wrecking crew sent out to his roadster, and chartered a touring car and a chauffeur for the trip into New York.

He sat back with Daphne and murmured prayers for forgiveness because of the dangers he had carried her into and for the things he had said. Daphne's nerves had been overworked. She had been rushed from adventure to adventure of soul and body. She had been invited to enter a career of gorgeous sin, and she had been swept along the edge of a fearful disaster.

Mrs. Chivvis met Daphne at the door. Her recent affection had turned again to scorn, and she glowered at Daphne, who crept to her room in hopeless acceptance of the role of adventuress.

Tired as she was she could not sleep. The clangor of the morning called her to the window. A gray day broke on a weary town. The problem of debt and food and new clothes dawned again. Everything was gray before her.

Tired as She Was, She Could Not Sleep.

MUSIC AND DRAMA

(What the Press Agents Say)

"SAN TOY"

"San Toy," the brightest musical comedy gem in all the gay galaxy of old London Gaiety Theatre successes, will be the offering at Griffin's next Monday night, October 11th.

The 1920 revival is under the personal direction of the noted English manager, F. Stuart Whyte, whose annual pantomimes have become an important factor in the development of Canadian things theatrical.

In the matter of staging, both scenery and costumes, lighting and effects, everything that goes to make a super-perfect production, "San Toy" is supreme. The seat sale opens at Griffin's next Friday morning at 10 o'clock.

NEW FARNUM PICTURE.

William Farnum's latest picture, presented by William Fox, which comes to Griffin's tomorrow to Saturday, with a matinee Saturday, is called "The Joyous Troublemakers." The attractive title promises more than a glimpse of the famous Farnum smile. The story itself is just as promising. "The Joyous Troublemakers" is the story of a youth who finds gold where nature has hidden it for ages. Farnum appears first as the care-free youth spending golden hours on a rock in the sunshine, trying to coax fish to swallow a hook. But he finds more than fish in the water—they are golden hours indeed. He acquires secretly, from the government, the acres where the gold lies. Later Farnum appears as the man come back after years to claim his own. Again he gets more than he comes for. The rest of the story must be guessed from the fact that Louise Lovely is playing opposite Mr. Farnum. Louise Lovely, as all picture-goers know, is at her best in love passages. But the story is not quite so simple as that. True love does not always run smooth and the possession of gold is sometimes dangerous. So there is pathos, and even tears in the story as well as smiles, despite the title.

A selected 2-reel comedy, a beautiful Travelogue, and Charles Hutchison in "The Whirlwind" will also be shown

Contrary to popular belief, the mosquito lays only 50 or 100 eggs at a time; we naturally would suppose it laid about 1,000,000. The larval stage lasts seven to fourteen days. If you have a barrelful of mosquitoes under your eaves trough have a look at them. It is easier to spot the malarial kind than others. The harmless wrigglers hang with their heads down, but the malarial mosquito lies with its body parallel to the surface of the water. If a fullgrown mosquito bites you, look at its back, preferably with a microscope. If it has the figure of a lyre on its back it is bad medicine. If it is all one color it won't hurt you.

Only the female mosquito will bite, according to a writer in the Saturday Evening Post. The males die in the fall, the females hibernating and then living one or two months. The male lives but a few days. No doubt you believe that mosquitoes live on blood alone, though you may have wondered how they get along in the remote wilderness where there seems to be no animal life, as, for instance, in the subarctic and arctic country. The truth is that the mosquito also lives on the juice of plants. They will bite almost any sort of animal, will bite reptiles and even caterpillars. Some mosquitoes can bite through a leather moccasin. Any of them can bite through a human hide.

340 CASES THROWN OUT.

Boston, Oct. 5.—The federal grand jury failed to return indictments in 340 cases of alleged violations of the Volstead Liquor Act. This is believed to have been the largest number of "no bills" ever reported by a grand jury at one time in this country.

Fifty-eight persons were indicted, chiefly for possession of stills or transportation of large amounts of liquor. The foreman made no statement as to the jury's reasons for the throwing out of so many cases.

Secret History of Arabian War

I HAVE been reading references to the war in Arabia between the King of the Hejaz—gladiator of the Foreign Office—and the Emir of Nejd—of the India Office—with great interest, since the whole history of the quarrel is before me, and I have wondered how long it would be before the curious ineptitude of policy displayed by his Majesty's Government in permitting this fight would come out in the press.

The King of the Hejaz was invited by us to join the side of the Allies in 1916, and his troops and resources and influence played a part in Allenby's two campaigns against the Turks. His effort in the war exhausted his country, and the nature of the peace settlement—which may be unsatisfactory to the Arabs—has prevented the diversion of forces to defend the Eastern frontier of the Hejaz against the desert.

The Emir of the Desert is Abd el Aziz ibn Saoud, the strongest personality of the princes of Arabia. He regained the throne of his ancestors some years ago by his own efforts, and has since greatly extended his dominions by becoming at once a political and a religious leader. The ascetic tribes of the desert are always looking for a new creed, and the stern puritanism with which the Wahabi name was associated appealed to the most energetic of them.

They joined his banner in large numbers, reverence him as their Imam, and profess obedience to any order he gives. He sends out quantities of paid missionaries, and has lately been making converts among the hill tribes south of Mecca.

The King of the Hejaz looks on the spread of the new movement with alarm. To the "Brethren"—the name of the devoted in the new sect—he is the great unbeliever, as the chief supporter of the old "High" party among the Moslems, the warden of the twin shrines of Mecca and Medina, and the senior descendant of the Prophet.

The Brethren will not admit to their houses travelers from the Hejaz unless they first wash themselves and leave off their contaminated clothes, and a precept in their creed allows them to kill or enslave Moslems who do not join their sect and abandon tobacco, silk, and precious metals as ornaments.

The Wahabi threat to the Hejaz began in 1917, but was staved off till the end of 1918. King Hussien overestimated his strength and sent—against our advice—a column of irregular camel corps against the advance party of the Brethren, who had converted and occupied the village of Khurma, once in the King's hands. The camel corps went unwillingly, since their relatives were in the Wahabi ranks, and almost without fighting gave up their guns and dispersed.

The King was now seriously alarmed, and called his second son, Emir Abdulla, to take command of the expedition against Khurma. Abdulla marched out with a column of 250 Mesopotamian infantry, volunteers for the Arabs army, and some camel corps. The British officers on the spot opposed his going, and he was accompanied, of the foreign military missions in Arabia, only by a French Moslem officer. He won some preliminary successes, but was finally surprised asleep in camp one night, and fled with his mounted men, leaving his 250 infantry behind him, with his guns and machine-guns.

The British Government was now as alarmed as the King of the Hejaz at the apparently imminent fall of Mecca, and made hasty arrangements for the evacuation by sea of the 8,000 British-Indian residents of Mecca. Meanwhile officers were sent out by airplane from England to Egypt to try to persuade the combatants to make peace.

In my opinion Mecca could only be made safe from Nejd by garrisoning its eastern frontier by a regular division. The job was offered to the Government of Feisul in Damascus. Feisul refused, as I knew he would. He had offered to do it when in London at the end of 1918, and had asked for tanks and armored cars for the purpose. There had ensued the usual three-part comedy — the Foreign Office pressing, the War Office wavering, the India Office opposing. Eventually the War Office agreed to supply tanks only to one side—that of Mecca.

Then they began to want their armored cars in Ireland and Egypt—and after six months' correspondence they offered their tanks too late for Feisul's convenience.

The present policy is to try to reconcile the two rulers—a temporary measure, which will not stop a new religion any more than would the delimiting of a frontier by a mixed commission. These outbreaks of puritanism in the desert happen every hundred years or so, by a kind of biological law, and die away after their success, as this one will die away. Unfortunately, sometimes, Moslem opinion demands that their death be hurried, and then a costly expedition, like that of the Egyptian Government a hundred years ago, becomes necessary.

The European Powers, that seem to act as midwives to the new movements of Asia, will be hard put to it to meet such a crisis to-day—unless, of course, they show greater adroitness than they have shown in the last two years and adopt an obvious procedure, urged upon them from several directions, but involving that most difficult thing: Agreement between three Governmental departments.—Col. T. E. Lawrence, in the Toronto Mail and Empire.

"My Friends Must Hear That Wonderful Voice"

You listen to a great singer. The beauty of the rendition almost overcomes you. Yet, mingled with the pleasure is a new desire. You must hear that voice again—many times. Also your friends must hear it, because you wish to share such joyful emotions with them.
With the New Edison you can do so. The New Edison brings to your own home the world's best music by the world's greatest artists. And as you doubtless know, the New Edison does more than imitate or mechanically reproduce this great music. The New Edison actually RE-CREATES music.
A few weeks ago Miss Lillian Peteler came to this city and sang in direct comparison, with the New Edison. Part of the time you were hearing the artist and part of the time the New Edison. BUT YOU COULD NOT TELL THEM APART. There was no difference. The New Edison gives you in your own home everything but the living presence of the artist.

Let us exhibit to you at your own home the marvelous music powers of the New Edison. We will on request bring a New Edison to you, and after demonstrating it, leave it for you to examine at your leisure. Take advantage of this pleasant method of inspection.

TORONTO PAPERS NOT PLEASED WITH BELLEVILLE MOTION.

Belleville delegates took quite a prominent part in the deliberations of the Chambers of Commerce of the Empire recently held at Toronto. A resolution submitted by Mr. E. P. Fredericks, Secretary of the Belleville Chamber of Commerce, to the effect that public utilities should be made self-supporting caused considerable comment of a more or less sarcastic nature from Toronto papers, echoed and emphasized by Ottawa journals. It was not so much the text of the resolution as the speech of Mr. Fredericks accompanying it which aroused the ire of the Toronto and Ottawa newspapers. Mr. Fredericks' address was an attack upon public ownership and he claimed that Toronto citizens would have to pay higher fares when the the city took over the street railway at the expiration of the franchise.

Public ownership is a wide subject and the principle can not be applied to all undertakings with successful results, but there are cases involving public service where public ownership is necessary even if the self-supporting idea can not be rigidly applied.

> Mr. E. P. Fredericks, of the Belleville Chamber of Commerce, broke into the limelight at the Congress of the Chambers of Commerce of the Empire by moving a resolution that all public utilities should support themselves out of their own revenue.
> This resolution, quite unobjectionable in itself, was as irrelevant to the business of the congress as a pious hope that the coal famine would be mitigated by a mild winter, but it furnished a convenient excuse for Mr. Fredericks to explode a diatribe against public ownership. His stupid and inaccurate statements were worthy of the best efforts of the Financial Post or the Montreal Gazette.
> Belleville's sage aid near economist professes to believe that there is some peculiar virtue of efficiency which clings to enterprises conducted under the auspices of so-called financiers who, in most instances, know nothing of and take no part in the actual administration of these enterprises.
> Mr. Fredericks, by implication, assumes that when public utilities are administered directly by and for the public, instead of as mere incidents in the manipulation of stock-ticker enterprises, such as the Toronto Railway, they are invariably unsuccessful and impose heavy burdens on the taxpayers. This is a hallucination common to such minds as the Belleville philosopher-financier, and has just about the same basis of fact as has the legend of the super-efficiency of "financial" management of public services.
> Before Mr. Fredericks and the Chamber of Commerce of Belleville set out on a crusade to educate the world they should clean up their own back yard.
> Belleville citizens can bear elequent testimony as to how private enterprises have been operated in that city and whether public ownership could possibly be worse from the standpoint of the small taxpayer.

PAPER MILL OWNED AND OPERATED BY THE GOVERNMENT.

Practical government seems to be gaining ground. The Ontario Legislature went into the fish business with very satisfactory results and now there is a possibility of the same government undertaking to establish and operate a paper mill. According to the Toronto Mail and Empire a plan for operating a pulp and paper mill as a provincial enterprise has been receiving the serious consideration of the Ontario Cabinet for the past three months. The establishment of such a plant as a publicly-owned and operated concern is stated to be by no means improbable. According to the plan under consideration, the mill would be established in the Nipigon district at some point to which power could be transmitted from the new Hydro-Electric power development plant at Nipigon Falls.

While neither the details of the plan nor the general policy has yet been decided upon, it would occasion no surprise in Government circles if a favorable conclusion was reached. The plan is unique in that it would be the first time an Ontario Government had ever undertaken the utilization of the province's pulp resources for the production of paper as a publicly-owned enterprise. If decided upon it is probable that the large timber limit in the district chosen will be set aside for the project.

The Nipigon Hydro-Electric plant will have a surplus of power available for some years. A Government-owned pulp mill, supporters of the idea argue, would furnish a good customer and the basis for a mutually satisfactory contract for power. Another important feature from the Government's standpoint is the results obtained in a plant of this nature would provide the means of ascertaining with far more definiteness than is now the case, what remuneration the province is entitled to in return for timber and pulp-wood concessions granted to private enterprises.

The paper output of the government mill if it is established should be reserved for Canadian newspapers and sold at a fair price, thus relieving a situation which is forcing newspapers out of business and resulting in steadily increasing rates of subscription and advertising to keep alive the papers which survive.

CRISP COMMENT

Now that the price of eatables is sagging perhaps the price of wearables will also hit the toboggan.

There are nineteen different ways of spending money for every one way of getting it back again, says the Toronto Star, and civic legislators should consider this fact.

Hon. Howard Ferguson may retire from provincial politics, but despite all the vicious attacks upon his integrity he bids fair to retire with a clean sheet. The election charges against him when aired in court proved to be mere gossip masqueraded as fact, and the charges against his administration of the lands and forest department of the province were given a severe jolt when he appeared as a witness before the investigating commission.

The world's baseball series may not suffer in attendance this year as a result of the revelations of crooked play in connection with the 1919 series but interest in the game will suffer widespread weakness which will be reflected in next season's games.

Following false gods generally leads to destruction, and from the remarks of the Chairman of the Finance Committee of the City Council it would appear that the advice of the bank was better than the jeers of those who painted ugly pictures of an economical city as Punkville.

Ratepayers who have viewed with anxiety the huge program of civic expenditure this year undertaken in the face of warnings from the city's bankers to go slow, and the plain presentation of facts by The Intelligencer, will find ground for serious consideration in the warning of Ald. Bone, Chairman of the Finance Committee of the City Council, as to civic finances. It is to be regretted, however, that the Chairman of the Finance Committee should not have taken this stand earlier in the year.

Aviators have a new danger to contend with, as the beasts of the field have evidently taken a dislike for the flying machines which invade their domains. At Buffalo a Toronto aviator left his airplane in a field and horses chewed up the rudder and part of the tail, besides kicking holes in the lower wing. Now if this had happened to a motor car one might understand it.

"Oh, Martha!" she said, "always bring the milk to me on a tray!"

Martha apologized, and promised to remember in future.

A week later the bell rang and the same request was made. This time Martha appeared with a tray and the milk emptied into it. Anxious to please, she curtsied and inquired: "Shall I bring a spoon, ma'am, or will you just lap it up?"

The Poet's Corner

IN MY GARDEN.

I sat in the shade in my garden,
  To rest from the heat of the day,
My musings were many and varied
  As the minutes sped quickly away.
With the fragrance of flowers around me,
  In colors of every hue,
A comforting peace came into my soul
  And a hallowed companionship, too.

I noticed the sun-flower, so stately,
  It towered above them all,
With its head bent so gracefully, bearing
  A crown, like a golden ball.
The old-fashioned balsam, its rival,
  Grew there and nearly as high,
Dressed in a bower of blossoms
  In color a rainbowed sky.

The fuchsia blushed crimson, its ear-drops
  Were the loveliest color and shade;
Nestled close to my side were the lilies
  So fragrant, modest and staid.
At my feet grew the dearest of daisies,
  So small, so perfect, so plain.
Near by the petunia, in the softening air,
  Nodded sweetley again and again.

The pansy serene in her velvety gown,
  Smiled contentedly, proud of her race.
The rose in its beauty looked down on them all,
  Filled the air with its fragrance and grace.
Geraniums of every color and tint
  Were blooming on every side.
Carnations, such dreams of perfection
  In color, in glory and pride.

With a host of their friends around me,
  All charming, dressed and gay,
I lingered till cool of the evening
  And daylight faded away.
Methought that out of the shadows
  Somewhere the flowers ne'er fade,
Where God is the light of a day without night,
  And nothing, no nothing, decayed.

City And Country

SHRINERS RETURN.

Pilgrims to the Mystic Shrine Convocation at Ottawa have returned. Belleville Shriners who took part in the festivities included Messrs. W. R. McCreary, R. Zufelt, Aubrey Lott, Harry Smith, Wm. Hunter, J. McIntyre, E. T. Cherry and Drs. R. Tennant and J. A. Faulkner. All report a big time in the Capital City.

MADOC FAIR.

A number from the city and vicinity were today in attendance at the Madoc Fair, one of the best exhibitions ever held by the Agricultural Society of that thriving village.

DWELLING BURNED.

On Sunday evening fire destroyed the residence of Mr. Harry Fitzgerald which was situated in the second concession of Sidney Township. Owing to the rapid progress of the flames but a small portion of the contents were saved. The loss was partially covered by insurance.

REACHED THE MINIMUM.

Every circuit in the Brighton district of the Methodist Church has come up to the new minimum appropriation for minister's salary, $1500 for salary and $150 horse keep. There are eleven circuits in this district. Eight of these have two or more preaching places.

TALL FISH STORY.

On Wednesday, while R. M. Hope, manager of the Bank of Nova Scotia, Perth, and a friend from Montreal were trolling on Christie's Lake, the former hooked something which broke the copper line. He had a silk minnow on for bait. The following Sunday he noticed something flopping on the beach near the shore and with friends went and found it was a loon in distress. On examination it was noticed that the loon had partly swallowed the silk minnow and in trying to free itself from it caught one of its feet in the hook also. Mr. Hope recognized the bait as his own and the incident recalled his experience of the previous Wednesday.—Exchange.

MONEY DISAPPEARS.

An Ops farmer while on the grounds at Lindsay Fair on Saturday last was relieved of $45 in a mysterious manner. He did not report the matter to the police, as he claimed that a man who could touch him for that amount in broad daylight was too clever to be caught. That may be a sensible way of looking at it, but to us it appears to be a slam at the Lindsay police.

SHORTAGE OF BARRELS.

The apple barrel shortage is a very serious matter. Barrels are now worth $1.75, compared with 40 or 50 cents five years ago. This will hit the apple growers and it looks as if the apple buyer this year will pay as much for the barrel as for the fruit. Grocers and fruit dealers are paying the lowest price for apples they have paid in recent years and it is said that barrels of apples are going to waste because the farmers are too busy to bring them to town, and because of the impossibility of bringing any great quantity and the low price prevailing now. The farmers' hogs are enjoying themselves in many orchards now, reports declare.

GETS HIGH I.O.O.F. POST.

The appointment was announced of Dr. George M. Hermiston, of Toronto, as General Commander of the Patriarchs Militant, the uniform rank of the Oddfellows. Joseph Oliver, the new Grand Sire of the parent body, made the announcement.

Who Was Chippendale?

In announcements of the numerous furniture sales which are taking place all over the country one finds prominence given to articles by Chippendale. Who was Chippendale? asks Tit-Bits.

Almost all the mahogany of the eighteenth century is vaguely assigned to that illustrious designer, Thomas Chippendale, who, as a matter of fact, was not in the zenith of his vogue until 1760.

Chippendale established himself at a house in St. Martin's lane, London, as a cabinetmaker. His style was heavier in technique and less severe in decoration than those who came after him.

He published a volume of designs for furniture in 1754, which he called "The Gentleman and Cabinetmaker's Director." This work ran to three editions, and at the time it must have been impossible to foresee the coming triumphs of Heppelwhite and Sheraton, who superseded him.

The latter was born in 1751, and thus was a boy of nine when Chippendale was in his glory. Brought up without regular education, Sheraton taught himself the elements of geometry and drawing.

Like Chippendale, he, too, was a cabinetmaker, but seems to have met with little success in that calling. But as a designer of furniture his influence made itself felt almost immediately. His designs were regarded with extraordinary respect, but, none the less, they proved financial failures, and Sheraton lived and died a poor man.

The word "Chippendale" is constantly on the lips of people who have the very vaguest notions as to whether there ever was such a person in the world as Thomas Chippendale.

WAS REWARDED AFTER FIFTEEN YEAR SEARCH

Halifax Woman Says She Will Never Cease Praising Tanlac For the Way It Has Restored Her Health.

'I have been fifteen years looking for something that would relieve me of my awful sufferings, but it was only when I got Tanlac that I found just what I'd been needing all the time," declared Mrs. Frank Walker, 144 Duncan Street, Halifax, N. S.

"For many years I was in a terribly run-down condition, and my nerves were in a dreadful fix. I had such awful spells of sick headaches that I was in bed for days at a time. At night I was so restless I would lie awake for hours, and I felt tired and worn out all the time. Every time I tried to do anything it was an effort, and was so weak I had to lie down and rest. I was advised to go away for my health, but when I returned I was worse off than before. My friends were all worried over my condition, and as I could find nothing to help me I was almost desperate.

"One day after hearing so much about the good Tanlac was doing others I decided to give it a trial, and it is surprising the way four bottles of the medicine built me up. My nerves are as steady as a clock and I sleep good and sound all night long. I never have a sign of a headache and have regained my strength and energy and my housewok is now a real pleasure."

Tanlac is sold in Belleville at Ostrom's drug store, and by leading druggists in all other cities and towns.

Wedding Bells

MARISETTE—FAUL.

A very pretty wedding was solemnized on Wednesday morning, Sept. 29th, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Manson Faul, 3rd concession of Thurlow, when their eldest daughter Bertha A. was united in marriage to Clayton Marisette, of Gilmour, Rev. Mr. McMullen of Canniton officiating.

Promptly at eleven o'clock, to the strains of Lohengrin's Wedding March played by Miss Clive Walker, the bride, leaning on the arm of her father, entered the parlor, which was tastefully decorated for the occasion. The bride was charmingly attired in white georgette over pale pink silk with silver bead trimmings and wore the customary bridal veil and blossoms and carried a bouquet of pink and white carnations and asters. Miss Florence Wilson of Belleville acted as bridesmaid and wore a dress of grey duchesse satin and georgette trimmed with gold beads and carried white asters. Mr. Roland Faul, brother of the bride, did honors for the groom. After the ceremony about fifty guests proceeded to the dining room, where the wedding dinner was served.

The groom's gift to the bride was a gold brooch set with cameo and pearls, to the bridesmaid a gold and cameo brooch, to the pianist a white enamel bedroom clock, to the groomsman a gold tie pin set with pearls.

Mr. and Mrs. Marisette left amid showers of rice and confetti, motoring to Belleville, where they took the train for Toronto to spend their honeymoon. The bride travelled in an Alice blue silk dress with navy serge coat and hat to match.

On Friday and Saturday evening previous to the wedding the bride's many friends tendered her showers at her home. The many useful and costly gifts testified to the high esteem in which the young people were held.

The guests from a distance at the wedding were Mr. and Mrs. James Marisette, Gilmour; Mr. and Mrs. N. Adams, of Thomasburg; Mrs. P. Sweet and Miss Maude Faul, of Trenton; Mrs. Bryant, of New York; Mrs. Stewart, Mr. Miller and Mr. Bradshaw of Napanee.

Rupture Relief

Retention Not Influenced By Age Or Length of Time, Reports Visiting Expert.

Rupture is not a tear or a breach in the abdominal wall, as commonly supposed, but it is a stretching or dilation of a natural opening. J. Y. Egan, 1057 College Street, Toronto, the long established Canadian Rupture appliance specialist, will visit Belleville, Hotel Quinte (Monday afternoon and night) (Tuesday all day and night) 1½ days—October 11, 12.

These new surgical appliances have received highest approval wherever shown, and are designed in accordance with the principles laid down by the world's text-book authorities on this subject, producing results without harmful ready-made hard pad and old fashioned steel trusses. Mr. Egan has testimonials from our own section for inspection. If interested, call; he will give you free demonstration and examination of samples. Now is the time to make yourself safe and comfortable for your daily work. Note dates; ask at hotel office for his sample room—tear this notice out now for future reference.

WILL MEET HERE.

The Ontario Public Service Commission, of which Mr. W. D. Gregory is chairman, will meet in the Court House here tomorrow morning at nine o'clock.

Hamilton, Oct. 6.—Although 500 houses have been erected in the city this year, at least 1200 more will have to be built before the end of next summer, according to Building Inspector Whitelock. The City Council is endeavoring in many ways to stimulate building, but will not eas off on the building restrictions.

WHEN FOOD DOESN'T DIGEST

Give the Stomach a Rational Rest by Proper Aid, Not by Harsh Starvation Methods. Use Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets.

A sour stomach may indicate an acid condition that calls for an alkaline effect.

This you will get from one or two Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets after a meal. Sour risings, gassiness, a heavy bloated feeling and such distress due to indigestion or dyspepsia are usually only temporary. And yet they may lead to serious disorder. The regular use of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets after meals reflects to a high degree the intelligent selection of preventative measures.

One cannot always select or inspect the quality of food to be eaten nor its method or manner of preparation. But it is possible to avoid the acidity that is so often the result. And it is a far better plan to eat without worry over what may happen, than to starve for fear it will happen. Many physicians recommend these tablets for stomach distress due to indigestion or dyspepsia.

In Salisbury's Steps.

The Barnes magistrate who recently fined Mr. Winston Churchill for exceeding the speed limit have complained that the cheque was sent in an unstamped Government envelope. One of the magistrates said that "It was a fine imposed upon a private person," and the envelope should have been stamped.

But Mr. Churchill was merely exercising the privilege of a Minister of the crown. When the right of having correspondence "franked" was withdrawn from British M.P.'s an exception was made in the case of Cabinet Ministers, who can, if they choose, send all their letters unstamped.

The late Lord Salisbury had a remarkably expansive and feudal conception of his office as Prime Minister. His letters were always unstamped. But when he omitted to pay the railway fare to Hatfield, the Great Northern Railway timidly remonstrated. "I am the Prime Minister," was the simple retort. "Sue me you cannot," and for years the marquess used the railway as if created for his benefit. The story of Mr. Gladstone stopping the Irish express "in the Queen's name" is well known.

HOMES IN HEAVEN

Said to Depend on Materials One Has Sent Before.

Therefore, the Occupier of a Mansion on Earth Will Not Necessarily Be Sumptuously Lodged Hereafter —Story That Points Moral.

There were stories told at the annual meeting of the Travelers Aid meeting at the Princess theater the other day that were too good to be lost. One by President S. L. Cox of the Silk Travelers' association is specially interesting in these days when every one seems to be thinking more or less of the life hereafter. Some one had gone to the pastor of Mr. Cox's church to ask his idea of heaven and in answer he related a dream told him by another member of the church, a man of prominence and high financial standing. This gentleman in his dream had died, reached the gates of heaven, was admitted and courteously taken on a personally conducted tour through the pearly street of the country now to be his home. A number of houses were in process of construction, and a large one was pointed out as being the future home of the man who on earth had been the new arrival's gardener.

"For my gardener!" exclaimed the gentleman in surprise. "Why, on earth he lived in such a small house! He needn't have done so, of course, but he never had anything, he gave everything away. He lived in the little lodge at the entrance to my grounds."

The guide assented to the truth of this statement and the personally conducted tour was continued until they came to another house in process of erection, so small that the new arrival asked curiously for whom it was intended, and was amazed upon being told that that was to be his own home.

"I am to live in that little place, when on earth I had such a great house!" he exclaimed.

"Yes," said the guide, "but you see here we have to use the materials we have on hand, and when you were on earth you sent very little over."

Another story was told by Miss Eleanor Perry, a young woman who is one of the Travelers' Aid workers at the railroad stations and goes to show that South Dakota has a good climate which tends to the longevity of its inhabitants and enables them to retain qualities of alertness to an advanced age.

Miss Perry was on duty at the station one night when the matron brought to her a nice old lady of eighty who had come from South Dakota and wished to go to Brooklyn to see a daughter who was seriously ill in a hospital, but she did not know the way. Miss Perry undertook to act as guide, found her companion very alert, much interested in the subway, which she saw for the first time in her life, and learned the short notice upon which she had undertaken her trip from the West.

Catch Your Beef as You Need It.

Columbia must be an Elysium of cheap living. Senor Ernesto Ponce de Leon, reputed a lineal descendant of a great Spanish adventurer, has large ranch interests in the young republic. He has just given some envious particulars of its social life at this hour, from which we learn that there is a craze for cattle-raising among all classes of the community. "We have savannahs," he states, "capable of supporting 200,000,000 head of cattle. Excellent sirloin steak is retailed at 14 cents a pound. Wild cattle roam the savannahs by hundreds of thousands. The custom is for cowmen to go after them, perhaps taking three days' journey on horseback, and bring back several hundred at a time for fattening in the grazing fields of cattle estates. The vaqueros use a leather rope which they are very expert at throwing and rope the bulls and drive them and the cows to some central point, whence the whole lot are driven into the estate."

Workers Get Glasses Production Increases

Whiting & Davis, Plainfield, Mass., had an optometrist examine the eyes of every employee. He found 8.4 per cent. did not need glasses, and 8.3 per cent. were already properly fitted. The firm supplied the glasses for the remaining 83.3 per cent., and efficiency of production was increased at 28.03 per cent. A pair of glasses fitted at Blackburn's will make you a better worker, because every detail in connection with them is given the careful, expert attention that assures best results.

Curios Carry Curses

A WOMAN who bought recently a pair of fantastic Turkish slippers found that every time she put them on before going to bed she experienced a terrible nightmare, in which some unseen influence connected with them sent her at midnight into a Turkish town where she felt she had killed someone and was evading justice.

It is believed that the shoes belonged to a murderer, says Pearson's Weekly.

Several instances are on record where objects, once connected with crime, have assumed uncanny properties.

Not many years ago a major in the army took over a quiet little house in Surrey. He lived an uneventful life in his new home until one day in rummaging through a lumber room he was surprised to find a stuffed gorilla. It was a splendid specimen, and the major, who had an appreciation of wild animals, decided that it would make a magnificent ornament for his room.

Then his troubles began. The very night he placed the animal opposite his bed he had an unnerving experience. He had the sensation of being suddenly awakened and seeing the great beast glaring at him. Then it seemed to come to life, and, coming to the major's bedside, threw itself upon him, clutching his throat with its huge hands.

The terrified man felt that he was being throttled to death. Then suddenly he awoke to find he had been the victim of a ghastly dream.

The gorilla which had inspired it stood motionless where he had put it the evening before.

On repetition of this nightmare the major grew alarmed, and began to probe the past history of his "find."

It transpired that a former tenant had kept the gorilla, which he had captured when young, as a pet. One night it stole into its master's room—the one which the major had occupied—and, catching him in its hairy hand, choked him to death.

The animal had been killed, but the man who took the house next, being an ardent naturalist, had had the brute stuffed.

A Birmingham lady once saw in an antique shop a beautiful ring to which she took a great fancy. But its purchase brought her no happiness, for every time she wore it she became invested with a nameless dread. She felt as if some sword were hanging over her head, and that death might overtake her at any instant. Yet the moment she removed the ring she lost all panic and made light of her fears.

Before long, however, it became necessary for her to give up wearing the ring, and, curious as to the reason of its uncanny effect, she gave it to a jeweller for examination.

In it he found a small duct which had been used some hundreds of years ago to inject a secreted poison into the finger of the wearer. The lady had not been terror-stricken for nothing, seeing that the ring had probably been the cause of at least one woman's death.

People who have terrible dreams of battle and bloodshed often attribute them to the keeping of war trophies of their bedrooms. One woman, the possessor of a fervid imagination, described to her husband a battle scene she had witnessed in her sleep centering around a German helmet he had brought home. To his amazement the details were exactly those of the way in which he had captured the trophy.

One most extraordinary account of the "sympathetic" nature of articles concerns a certain lady who had purchased a costly wig from a well-known coiffeur. Whenever she was wearing the wig she became almost unaccountable for her actions, and it was found later that the hair composing it had been taken from the head of a maniac.

"Baby Commandments."

Among the propaganda issued by the Harrow (England) Committee for Health were the following "Baby Commandments":

Thou shalt not:
Kiss me on the mouth.
Sneeze or cough in my face.
Give me a rattle to suck.
Thou shalt give me:
Boiled cold water to drink.
The right things to eat.
A bath every day.
Clean clothes.
My own bed.
A comfortable room with windows open.
Plenty of sleep, with fresh air.

The Zuyder Zee.

Large as is the Zuyder Zee, it is a comparatively modern feature in the scenery of Holland. It is said to have been formed toward the end of the thirteenth century after a great storm when the sea swept inland through the isthmus connecting Friesland with northern Holland and converted the Flevo lake into a sheet of salt water.

Where Do Ground Birds Sing?

The ground birds are all tree singers or air singers; they must have an elevated stage to speak from. Our brown thrasher, like its congeners the catbird and the mocking bird, delights in a high branch of some solitary tree, when it will pour out its rich and intricate warble for an hour together.

POWER OF VIBRATION.

Scientists Say Music Could Wreck Buildings.

Many have laughed at the story of the old fiddler who said he would destroy a bridge with his violin, says Tit-Bits.

Day after day, so it is said, he stood on the bridge playing on one string of his instrument. After a time the bridge began to sway; it continued to sway so violently as he played one particular note that eventually it cracked and collapsed!

Absurd though the story may seem, it is based on scientific reasoning. Every building or bridge structure possesses its own fundamental or vibrating note. If that note can be ascertained, and the structure can thus be set vibrating at full resonance, it will eventually vibrate so powerfully that it will fall to pieces.

You may have noticed when walking over a bridge across which heavy traffic is passing, a certain peculiar sound; it is the note of the bridge, which, imitated in a sufficiently intense degree, would increase the vibration and might possibly lead to collapse.

In the opinion of scientists who have studied the phenomena of sound, it is possible to "play down" the tallest of buildings. This could be accomplished by placing musical instruments on certain floors and in certain parts of the building. By playing these instruments for a considerable time on the fundamental note of the building — say B flat— the structure would eventually collapse.

Engineers and architects who design tall buildings always pay particular attention to these vibration strains. It is unlikely, however, that a deliberate attempt would ever be made to "play down" a building.

Just as the hand which touches a vibrating tuning-fork absorbs the vibration, so buildings absorb persistent vibration.

With the aid of two tuning-forks one can conduct a simple experiment to prove the action of sympathetic vibration. Place the forks upright in small wooden bases, one on each side of the room. If one of the forks is struck smartly with a small hammer it will sound a natural note, say "A." If the second tuning-fork is of the same pitch, the vibrations set up in the air by the first fork will be transmitted, and will act upon the second fork, which will start vibrating and give forth a sound of its own, although it is several yards away and quite untouched.

A practical demonstration of how a structure can be vibrated by sound until it falls apart is afforded by building over the second tuning-fork a miniature building of small wooden blocks. When the first tuning-fork is struck, the fork inside the little building will start vibrating, and when it reaches full resonance the building will fall over.

Another illustration of the oddities of sound is afforded by the fact that when a piano is being played it often causes glass vases, metal picture frames—in fact, any adjacent article made of metal or other hard material, such as porcelain—to give out a vibrating note of their own. This is sometimes so insistent that the articles have to be removed, while in some cases glass vases, wine glasses and tumblers have been smashed by a sympathetic note being struck on the piano.

In making an order that, when crossing a bridge, a regiment of soldiers must break step, the military authorities are actuated by the vibratory dangers which would arise if the men marched over in step. The tramp of the regulation step would cause a steady wave of vibrational force to travel along the length of the bridge. This force would grow stronger as the men marched, and soon the bridge would be heaving up and down with a dangerous possibility of collapsing.

Bird Notes.

"There are certain bird notes which strike strange chords, whose vibrations are lost in a mist of dreams," says Samuel Scoville, Jr., writing in the Yale Review. "I remember a little runaway boy who stood in a clover field in a gray twilight and heard the clanging calls of wild geese shouting down from midsky. Frightened he ran home a vast distance—at least the width of two fields. As he ran there seemed to come back to him the memory of a forgotten dream, if it were a dream, in which he lay in another land on a chill hillside. Overhead in the darkness passed a burst of triumphant music and the strong singing of voices not of this earth. From that day the trumpet notes of the wild geese bring back through the fog of the drifting years that same dream to him who heard them first in that far away, long ago clover field."

Signal Tones.

Three different signal tones from an electric bell of ordinary appearance, calling the householder to the front, the rear or the side door with unerring precision, are now made possible by the ingenious device of an Ohio manufacturer. The two electromagnetic coils of the bell have separate armatures, one of which carried the bell clapper, while the other constitutes a buzzer.—Popular Mechanics Magazine.

Fighting Field Fires.

An automobile equipped with buckets, shovels, and a thirty-gallon tank full of fire-extinguishing chemicals, last summer paid for itself many times over in service rendered to grain farmers living about a small western town, according to Popular Mechanics Magazine. As each farmer has his telephone, the first sign of a fire in a grain field resulted in a request for the chemical truck.

A LAND OF ROMANCE.

Brittany Is Filled With Traditions and Charm.

Opposite the Seven Islands on the extreme north of the coast of Brittany loom the huge red granite rocks of the promontory of the Ploumanac's, a relic of the Tertiary age, some call it, or of some dim period when chaos ruled the world. No tree, only wind-swept stubble, may take root on those cliffs. A spot of wild and awful beauty, to some it is the "chaos of Ploumanac'h," a "territory so savage, a desert, yet more terrible in its character of desolation than any desert could be." But others speak of its grandeur, of the intense blue of the surrounding waters, smooth as a lake; of the island beyond, faint in a purple haze, says the Kansas City Star.

Those to whom the forbidding aspest of the Ploumanac'h does not appeal, see rather the work of a giant hand, which pyramided the immense granite blocks one on the other in Titan playfulness. Yonder is the counterpart of a kneeling dromedary, which some ancient Michael Angelo might well have executed, one writer believes. Or that monstrous jar there—it might have come from the chisel of a Cellini of the Paleolithic age. Or the whole prodigious mass might be some Babel cast up from the depths of the sea.

But it is in its legendary lore as well as in its natural beauty that the potent charm of the Ploumanac'h and its domain lies. Brittany, ever a land of romantic myth and fanciful tradition, outdid herself under the stimulus of the setting which the wild haunts of the north coast afford. Once, they say, dragons lurked in caverns under those red granite boulders to come forth to combat, belching smoke and flame; once, true saints baptized the heathen in those little shrines; once King Arthur and a gallant cavalcade of knights spurred their steeds along the beach.

On the knoll of one of the granite cliffs stands the little stone chapel of St. Guirec or Kirec. St. Guirec must at least be honored as a pioneer missionary, for it was only the year 547, the Celtic legend has it, that he sailed over from England. In the manner of his passage, St. Guirec is said to have followed the fashion of saints of the day; he crossed on a large slab of stone. That served a double purpose. It furnished the element of the miraculous, which was rather expected of saints, and it provided material for the statue of the saint in his new shrine, should none be handy in the new location.

It is in a shrine on the rocks by the bay that the stone statue of St. Guirec stands. On the pillars of the shrine there are ancient carvings of goat heads, which are believed to establish the period of the work as the sixth century.

The effigy of the saint in the chapel on the knoll is of wood and to it is accorded the greater attention and reverence. For it is to this shrine that the maidens of the countryside wend their way, there to pray to their patron, St. Guirec, for husbands. As part of the ritual of such supplications, each maiden must stick a pin point in the statute of the saint. Millions of faint indentations cover the statue's surface, it is related, with here and there the evidence of some very vicious little digs indeed.

The little Breton village of La Clarte also houses an ancient chapel, that of Notre Dame de la Clarte. Dim tradition has it this "Our Lady of the Light" might be the fiery Isis, goddess of Egypt, whose far flung cult might have reached out to the distant north. But the pilgrimage made yearly to the chapel by a Christain throng would call the chapel the abode of the Virgin. Those who come groping to seek Our Lady of the Light all are blind.

The land is rich in legends of King Arthur and the Knights of his Round Table, for it is opposite Tregastel, on the west side of the Ploumanac'h promotory, that the island of Avalon lies, burial place of Arthur, the Bretons say. The dry speculation of the historian calls the legends the result of an English migration from Cornwall to Brittany. But the poets tell that when the traitor, Modred, had fallen at the hand of Arthur among the heaps of the slain, three queens bore Arthur, himself faint from mortal wounds, to a barge and thence the king called in farewell to his last surviving knight as he was being carried to the "island valley of Avilion":

Nor ever wind blows loudly, but it lies
Deep meadow'd, happy, fair with orchard lawns,
And bowery hollows crowned with Summer seas."

Other legends have it that King Arthur came to Avalon or otherwise. Arthur, old wives relate, was riding along the beach in brave array, when Morgane Le Fay, sister of Merlin, set eyes on him.

Already enamored of the king, she was unable to resist the opportunity, but wrapped him, steel and all, in a cloud, and by her sorcery conveyed him to her realm of Avalon. And there, the old wives whisper, the king was immured in an underground palace and never allowed to come forth by the jealous queen, save in the guise of a raven. And who knows what magic and dire spells still are woven by moonlight on Avalon in the offing of the granite crags of the Ploumanac'h? What might you not expect to see—with King Arthur a raven?

"Have you ever seen King Arthur?" Frances Gostling once asked an aged Breton, who spun the tale to her.

"Well," temporized the old fisherman, "I've seen a raven sitting on a rock, and maybe so have you."

The Flapper.

Mother—Why don't you dress sensibly, Marie?

Daughter—Oh, ma, it would seem so foolish.

TRAPPING THE DODGERS UNDER LUXURY SCALE

Winnipeg, Oct. 4.—A comprehensive checking-up system, designed to prevent evasion of luxury and sales tax payments, was announced here by Inspector A. Cole of the Inland Revenue Department.

Three principal methods are provided in the new regulations. They are:

A rigid licensing system as a result of which each business concern will have a number.

An auditing system by which statements accompanying tax payments will be examined by expert accountants.

A stamp system providing for the attachment of a stamp covering the tax for every sale and its cancellation by perforators to be supplied by the Government.

By the operation of the new system, which is expected to be working smoothly by Nov. 1, the Government will have complete control over every business concern in Canada, in so far as the collection and forwarding of sales manufacturers' and luxury taxes are concerned, Inspector Cole said.

Illica a Creative Genius.

Luigi Illica, the famous poet and librettist who recently died at his villa, Castel Aquatto, at Milan, created the plots for more operas than any other writer for the last quarter century in Italy. His most famous operas were written in collaboration with Guiseppe Giacosa, and are "Boheme," "Fedora," "Manon" and "Adriana." He wrote "Iris" and "Maschere" with collaboration, and has at least forty less famous operas to his credit. Many composers drew upon him for plot and lines, says the Detroit News.

Although he was fifty-eight years old when Italy entered the world war, Illica volunteered for service and was with the artillery for one year. He suffered a fall from which he did not fully recover, and was forced to give up military duty.

His latest important opera score was that of "Isabeau," for which Mascagni supplied the music. The opera was received with indifference, which discouraged Illica. There was considerable discussion about alterations made in the libretto by the composer and director, and Illica said the production gave an entirely wrong interpretation of his work.

MRS. ADAM SHORTT.

One of Canada's Best Known Social Workers.

It was a well-advised move on the part of the Drury Government to select Mrs. Adam Shortt of Ottawa to act on the Ontario Mothers' Pensions Allowances Board, now well launched in its praiseworthy work.

Mrs. Shortt's career has been one of unwavering activity on behalf of the cause of women and social service work. It is not generally known that she is a fully qualified woman physician, in fact, one of the first women in Canada to obtain her degree of M.D.

Born in the little town of Winona, Ontario, on January 18, 1859, Mrs. Shortt, whose maiden name is Elizabeth Smith, received a private education first, then attending Hamilton Collegiate Institute and later on Royal Medical College, Kingston, Ont. She received her degree of M.D. at the age of twenty-five. In 1886 she was married to Prof. Adam Shortt, now in charge of the Historical Publications at the Public Archives, Ottawa, and one of the most noted educationists in the Dominion. Mrs. Shortt was instrumental in having a separate course for women instituted at Kingston leading to the establishment of the Women's Medical College there. She was engaged to lecture there on medical jurisprudence and sanitary science from 1887 to 1893. Her boundless energies found an outlet in other activities of the institution and she was for a time president of the Ladies' Musical Club there, while she has also been honored by being elected president of the Alumni Society of the Medical College.

During her residence in Ottawa there have been few public movements participated in by women in which Mrs. Shortt has not been an active worker. She is chiefly associated in the capital with the work of the National and Local Councils of Women and has held many of the most important offices in these bodies. She was elected delegate to the quinquennial congress of the National Council of Women held at Toronto in 1909, where her addresses well illustrated her extraordinary grasp on Canadian public affairs and her intimacy with the peculiar problems of women.

Mrs. Shortt is a most capable woman, an able platform speaker and possesses a wide familiarity with world events.

For years, Mrs. Shortt has persistently advocated the establishment of a system of mothers' pensions patterned along the lines of the one now introduced by the Government of the province.

Mrs. Shortt is a tall woman, of commanding appearance and most charming in all respects. She is a great entertainer and hostess and is a social favorite in Ottawa. She is about sixty years of age and a regular attendant of the Anglican Church. She resides at 5 Marlborough avenue, Ottawa.

Boys Judge Live Stock.

Edward Troedel of Windthorst, Saskatchewan, 15 years old, was recently acclaimed the champion boy judge of live stock in Western Canada. He achieved this distinction at the Regina fair, where in a stock judging contest among boys he won the grand aggregate prize with a score of 352 points out of a possible 400.

His competitors were more than 100 boys whose ages ranged from 11 to 15 years of age, who were selected from 600 who, during the summer, have been studying agriculture at a farm boys' camp near Regina. The school was established by the Saskatchewan Department of Agriculture with the aid of the Canadian National Railways and a number of live stock breeders' associations. Its teachers are professors of the provincial College of Agriculture.

Young Troedel's critical ability may be gauged when it is said that the competition included the judging of all varieties of cattle, sheep, and swine. With the close of the school encampment, the boys will be encouraged to invest their savings in a calf, lamb, or young pig and to raise the animals themselves without the assistance of their elders. Next year prizes are to be offered at the fairs of Regina and Saskatoon for the best animals raised by the boys. Other prizes will be offered for the best grain and soil products grown from seed distributed by the Department of Agriculture.

This educational campaign has as its purpose the development of a live interest in farm work among boys and in fostering a spirit that will hold them on the farm.

"American Indians."

The Indians on the American Continent were so named through a mistake made by Columbus. When the great explorer set out from Spain into the unknown waters of the West, his hope was to reach India without passing round the Cape of Good Hope and thence proceeding direct to the East. On that memorable December day in 1492 when the welcome land hove in sight, Columbus and his crew thought they had reached India, and without hesitation dubbed the natives "Indians." And so Indians they became, and their descendants are Indians until this very day. On his third voyage of discovery, Columbus found land to the south of the West Indies; he was dead before it was made clear that he had discovered the vast continent of South America. Poor, great, famous Columbus died friendless and penniless in a Valladolid lodging. It might have been otherwise had not his patron, Queen Isabella of Spain, died before him.

The Oldest V.C.

Nearly 90 years of age is Private George Richardson, of Lindsay, Ont., who is the oldest soldier in Canada to wear to V.C. He won it at Cawnpore, India, during the mutiny, when despite the breaking of his arm by a bullet and a sabre cut in his leg, Richardson rushed to the aid of an officer who was attacked by six big natives. Crippled as he was Richardson fought so well that five of the natives were killed and the sixth fled.

The University of British Columbia

President Leonard S. Klinck, University of British Columbia.

Miss Izobel Miller, Arts '22, University of British Columbia, president of the Women's Literary Society, who played the part of "Aunt Ida," in "Green Stockings."

Miss Helen Reid, Arts '23, University of British Columbia, who was convenor of costume committee for "Green Stockings" and responsible for the artistic gowns.

Miss Dorothy Adams, Arts '21, University of British Columbia, president of the players' club, who played as "Celia" in "Green Stockings."

The University of British Columbia, established near Vancouver in 1915, and now one of the recognized institutions of learning in the Dominion, is an added attraction to the scenic beauties and great agricultural and industrial possibilities of the province. The University was formed under the act of 1908, establishing and incorporating the University of British Columbia. By the "University Endowment Act" of 1913, 2,000,000 acres of land was set apart as endowment. Leonard S. Klinck, B.S., is president, and there is a Faculty of Arts and Science; which includes a degree in nursing and a Faculty of Agriculture. The University is an integral part of the public and high schools.

It is the policy of the University to render service to its constituency by giving instruction in those technical departments which are most directly related to the life and industries of the province and by encouraging research. When a sufficiently firm foundation has been laid in these departments of University activity, extension work will be organized.

The University library possesses 33,000 volumes and about 10,000 pamphlets, and well equipped reading rooms for over 100 students. There is a herbarium of over 10,000 sheets, illustrating the Provincial flora, including fungi, mosses, ferns, and flowering plants. The botanical garden is situated at Point Grey, near Vancouver, occupying 5 acres on the west side of the campus. Here may seen 1,000 different species of native plants, collected from all parts of British Columbia, including dry belt, alpine and coast species. The economic flora is represented by several beds of medicinal plants, the nucleus of a collection of Indian plants which are being acclimatized in British Columbia. A university course in general botany is offered, including evening classes and summer excursion classes. A course of five months in forestry is offered in connection with the Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment. The Forestry Branch of the Interior has established a laboratory for testing Canadian woods and a scheme of co-operation by which students have access to this research work. The University gives degrees in the several faculties, but not in theology.

A commanding site of 540 acres has been chosen at Point Grey and the design of the additional buildings to be erected is a comprehensive one and provides for the needs of an institution potentially great. The waters of the gulf of Georgia form more than half the boundary of the site while the remaining sides are bounded by some 3,000 acres of government land. Freight and passenger service can be had by water and tram service will be extended to the grounds. The famous Marine drive, one of the most scenic highways on the continent encircles the university grounds. From the grounds a view of exceptional beauty is unfolded in the wide glory of the Gulf of Georgia, the gateway to the silver reaches of the Pacific, the great purple mountains across the inlet, with gleaming snow crests and everywhere a wealth of Douglas firs. Abouts 130 acres is now under cultivation under direction of the Faculty of Agriculture. Some agricultural buildings are in course of erection. Temporary quarters are now used in the city of Vancouver.

Mr. Arthur E. Lord is president of the Alma Mater. Mr. Paul N. Whitley is editor-in-chief of publications and the "Ubyssey," the eight page weekly, under control of the Publication's Board, gives a somewhat detailed account of the student events and serves as a medium for university news.

The Musical Society is earnest in the work of raising the musical standard and the fourth annual concert in the ball-room of the Hotel Vancouver was one of the big musical events of the season. Professor E. H. Russell is honorary president and Mr. James R. Mitchell is president.

International debates, with Oregon, Idaho and British Columbia, are an important feature of the men's literary society. This year the University will appoint the secretary in accordance with the custom of each college, in turn, appointing a secretary. Debates are arranged also with the University of Washington.

One of the outstanding societies of the University is the Players Club which has had it's fifth season under the leadership of Miss Dorothy Adams and the presentation of "Green Stockings," this year was one of the interesting events of the Vancouver social calendar. Three performances were given and the play was presented in various places on Vancouver Island and through the Interior of British Columbia.

That the life of the University of British Columbia is broad in its scope and is developing along the most general lines is evident from the aims of the various clubs, the Letters' Club, the Historical Society, University Service Club, Economic Discussions Club, Agricultural Discussions Club, Chemistry Society, Y.W.C.A. Returned Soldiers' Club, Tennis Club, Women's Swimming Club, Girls' Hockey Club, Boxing Club, Rugby Union, Track Club, Basket Ball Club, the Hockey Club, the Y.M.C.A.

The University sent its quota of delegates to the Famous Des Moines convention where were gathered 8,000 delegates, representing over 1,000 universities. At the "All-Canadian" luncheon, the delegates were welcomed as representing the "Baby University," and took their places with the old-established universities.

Minister Of Public Works Recommends Bridge Purchase

NEW BRIDGE PROPOSITION NOT PRACTICAL, SAID HON. MR. BIGGS—PICTON CONFERENCE UNANIMOUSLY IN FAVOR OF BRIDGE PURCHASE—GOVERNMENT ENGINEER'S REPORT FAVORABLE — MINISTER OF PUBLIC WORKS PROMISES TO DESIGNATE BELLEVILLE-PICTON ROAD A PROVINCIAL HIGHWAY IF BRIDGE IS TAKEN OVER BY MUNICIPALITIES.

A free bay bridge seems measurably in sight now as the result of the conference held in Picton Tuesday evening between representatives of the Prince Edward County Council, Belleville City Council and Chamber of Commerce, and Picton Board of Trade, together with Hon. Mr. Biggs, Provincial Minister of Public Works, who strongly recommended the purchase of the bridge at the price asked, and read the report of the government engineer stating that the bridge was in good condition, structurally sound and good for ten or fifteen years service.

No time was lost by the Belleville City Council in ratifying the purchase plan and a meeting was called for Wednesday afternoon when a resolution was carried endorsing the purchase proposition and instruct- the City Solicitor to prepare a by-law for submission at the next regular meeting of the Council authorizing the issue of debentures for $30,000 to pay Belleville's share of the purchase price of the bridge.

At the Picton conference there were present Hon. F. C. Biggs, Minister of Public Works; Hon. Nelson Parliament, member of the Legislature for Prince Edward County and Speaker of the House; H. K. Denyes, M.P.P. for East Hastings; Mr. John Hazel, Reeve of Picton and Warden of Prince Edward County; Mayor Riggs of Belleville, and members of Belleville City Council, Prince Edward County Council, Picton Board of Trade and Belleville Chamber of Commerce.

It is interesting to note in connection with the negotiations for the purchase of the Bay Bridge that a referendum recently taken of members of Belleville Chamber of Commerce was overwhelmingly in favor of the purchase at the price asked.

Some little difficulty arose at Picton as to the proportion which should be paid by the municipalities interested, but this was satisfactorily settled by Hon. Mr. Biggs increasing the Government's share. The cost was finally apportioned as follows to the satisfaction of all concerned:

Ontario Government . . .	$35,000
Belleville	30,000
Prince Edward	20,000

The Ontario Government will pay sixty per cent. of maintenance cost, Belleville twenty per cent., and Prince Edward twenty per cent.

PROVINCIAL HIGHWAY.

Hon. Mr. Biggs said that when the bridge was acquired by the municipalities he would immediately designate the road from Belleville to Picton a full provincial highway which meant that the Government would see that the road was kept in first class condition, with a resident engineer in charge and sixty per cent. of maintenance would be paid by the Government.

NEW BRIDGE NOT PRACTICAL.

Hon. Mr. Biggs stated that the proposition to build a new bridge was not practical and could not be considered; the existing bridge should be purchased at once.

ENGINEER'S REPORT.

Geo. M. Hogarth, Chief Engineer of the Provincial Department of Highways, made an examination of the Bay Bridge on June 4 and 5, 1919, with a view to ascertaining the strength, present condition and probable life of the bridge. The report was read by the Minister of Public Works at the Picton conference. The report said that the bridge was in good condition and structurally sound, the piers were in good condition and the bridge was capable of carrying such loads as were permitted to cross Class B. steel bridges in Ontario. It would safely carry such trucks and other loads as were likely to be used in this locality. Heavier loads could cross via Carrying Place.

VOTE NOT NECESSARY.

Hon. Mr. Biggs stated that it would not be necessary to take a vote of the ratepayers upon the purchase question. The various Councils interested could pass by-laws and secure endorsation from the Legislature. This course had been followed at Ottawa, Brantford and other places.

It is worthy of note that the feeling of all those at the conference was unanimously in favor of the purchase of the bridge, thus wiping out the last remaining relic of toll bridges and toll roads in Ontario. Any difference of opinion which existed arose over the question of apportionment of cost and that was amicably settled.

FRIENDLY FEELING.

The friendly feeling and broad viewpoint of Picton delegates was a feature of the meeting and goes far to explain why Picton is so progressive and prosperous and full of pep from the conduct of their splendid fall fair to everything else undertaken in the line of civic enterprise.

Twelve Months For Manslaughter

Italian Who Killed Hotel Porter is Sentenced.

NORTH BAY, Oct. 6.—Ammyiota Calvano, an Italian, was at the fall assizes here sentencal to twelve months' imprisonment after he had pleaded guilty to a charge of manslaughter. Mr. Justice Latchford imposed the sentence. Calvano was indicted before the Grand Jury on a charge of murdering William Gurrell in North Bay on April 14 last. The Grand Jury reduced the count to one of manslaughter and after this had been accepted by Crown Prosecutor Fields of Whitney, the accused, through his counsel, Hon. T. W. McGarry and S. A. McGaughey, pleaded guilty to the reduced charge.

Calvano has been in jail here since a few days after Gurrell's death when he was brought from Chalk River, to which place he fled in a freight car. Gurrell was employed as porter at the Pacific Hotel here and formerly was engaged in similar service at the King George Hotel in South Porcupine.

Motor Robbers Caught Redhanded

TORONTO, Oct. 6.—Charged with having robbed a general store at Cannington, Ont., about two o'clock yesterday morning and to have driven away in a motor car with several hundred dollars' worth of stolen goods, Charles Kemp, aged 30, Clyde Avenue, a chauffeur; Stanley Napier, Gerrard Street, east, and Thomas Antisell, Carlton Street, were taken into custody yesterday afternoon, outside the Dominion Bank, Queen and Sherbourne streets, on a charge of shopbreaking. At the homes of the young men, the police say they recovered a portion of the stolen goods which comprised 40 mens' suits, 6 assorted boys' knicker suits, 15 raincoats, 12 coats, 6 overcoats, 5 waists, ties, handkerchiefs and collars.

Canadian Money Goes To Germany

OTTAWA, Oct. 6.—Already the Department of the Secretary of State has despatched two million dollars of Canadian money to the clearing house overseas to be paid to German merchants and individuals in payment of debts owed by Canadians prior to the war and secured from them by the Department.

In the meantime the Department is encountering certain difficulties with the Clearing House, which difficulties an official will be despatched overseas to clear up. One difficulty lies in the fact that Great Britain desires that all communications to the Clearing House be addressed through the Colonial Office. The Department objects to this. A further difficulty arises from the fact that Canadian claims are being computed in pounds and not in dollars.

Hunger Strikes Not So Popular

LONDON, Oct. 6.—As a result of Lord Mayor MacSwiney's long fast, Irish prisoners have ceased to resort to hunger striking, says the Daily Mail. The newspaper adds that there were more than 300 arrests in connection with Sinn Fein propaganda disturbances during September, but that only four of the men arrested attempted hunger striking, and these abandoned it in a day or two.

Bay Bridge Purchase Approved By City Council

BY-LAW WILL BE SUBMITTED AT REGULAR MEETING AUTHORIZING ISSUE OF DEBENTURES FOR $30,000, BELLEVILLE'S SHARE OF PURCHASE PRICE OF BRIDGE—COUNCIL UNANIMOUSLY IN FAVOR OF ABOLISHING TOLLS BY PURCHASING BRIDGE.

A special meeting of the City Council was held yesterday afternoon for the purpose of considering and confirming the agreement reached between the Provincial Government, the city and Prince Edward County, relative to the purchasng of the bay bridge. A resolution was adopted to accept the proposition. Ald. Demarsh was strongly in favor of submitting the proposition to the ratepayers for their approval or rejection.

It was also decided to sell two blocks of debentures to the Amelius Jarvis Company.

Members present were: Mayor Riggs, Aldermen Ostrom, Hanna, Bone, Ponton, Demarsh, Wensley, Doyle and Adams.

Ald. Bone stated that Ald. Woodley was not present at the meeting, but had been notified of it and had authorized the city clerk to sign the call for the special meeting on his behalf.

Purchase Approved

Moved by Ald. Ponton, seconded by Ald. Adams, whereas a joint meeting in the town of Picton on the fifth day of October of the Municipal Councils of the County of Prince Edward and the City of Belleville n the presence of Hon. Mr. Biggs, Mininster of Public Works for the Province of Ontario, it was decided to purchase the Belleville and Prince Edward Bridge crossing the Bay of Quinte connecting the City of Belleville and the Township of Ameliasburg for the price of $85,000.00.

And whereas it was agreed between the Municipal Councils respectively and the Honourable the Minister of Public Works that the Municipalities and Governemnt should pay the following proportions of the said purchase price of $85,000.00.

Province of Ontario—$35,000.00.

City of Belleville—$30,000.00.

County of Prince Edward—$20,000.00.

Therefore be it resolved that the Municipal Council of the City of Belleville confirm and ratify the said agreement, and the City Solicitor be instructed to prepare and submit to this Council a by-law at its next regular meeting authorizing the issue of debentures of the amount of $30,000.00 to pay the corporation of said purchase.

VOICE OF ELECTORS

Ald. Demarsh did not think a By-law should be prepared to issue debentures without submitting it to the electors, and he could not support the motion without the consent of the electors.

Ald. Ostrom would like to see the public seized with all the facts. He would, however, support the resolution.

Ald. Bone said that when the By-law is introduced then the matter of submitting it to the electors could be discussed. The bridge question has been a vexed one and the city has been suffering. The approaches to the bridge Hon. Mr. Biggs said was worth the money paid for the bridge. A new bridge would cost between $700,000 and $800,000. He believed the citizens would abide by the decision of the Council in the matter.

Ald. Ponton—The question of submiting the matetr to the electors can be discussed later. If we accept the proposition now we know the price we will have to pay for the bridge. Any further delay means the loss of the bridge. The concensus of opinion in the city was in favor of the purchase of the bridge. If we adopt the resolution it means that we will virtually have acquired the bridge at the price named, $85,000.

County's Share

Ald. Ostrom—It will mean a good nvestment. He would like to see $10,000 raised from the County of Hastings and private subscriptions, but evidently this could not be done.

Ald. Doyle—Have a public meeting and get the citizens' idea in the matter.

Ald. Ponton—An expendture of $80,000 on one street was not submitted to the people or the work on Murney's Hill. It was strange this idea of submitting the people was now urged. If you turn down this proposition the bridge will always be a toll bridge.

Ald. Demarsh—I stand up for the voice of the people in this matter.

Ald. Adams said he supported the proposition as it was a necessity to acquire the bridge. The passing of this resolution only means the holding of the company to the price suggested for the bridge, namely $85,000.

Mayor Riggs—How long would the debentures be for?

Ald. Bone—They should be for the life of the bridge.

Upon a vote being taken the resolution was adopted, Ald. Demarsh alone voting against it.

Debentures Sold

Moved by Ald. Bone, seconded by Ald. Adams that the tenders of Amelius Jarvis and Company of 92.75 and accrued interest for $38,306.09, thirty year six per cent debentures and 93.52 and accrued interest for $2,524.96 twenty year six per cent debentures, be accepted.—Carried.

Help Wanted

Ald. Bone moved, seconded by Ald. Hanna, that assistance be found for the City Engineer in the matter of local improvement measurements and for the treasurer in the accounting department.—Carried.

Council adjourned.

Dominion Home Rule Acceptable To Sinn Fein

IF IT IS BROAD ENOUGH, SAY LEADING SINN FEINERS—COMPLETE SEPARATION OF IRELAND FROM ENGLAND THEIR GOAL — MODERATES PRESENT THEIR PLAN OF HOME RULE TO PREMIER LLOYD GEORGE.

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer, Canadian Press, Limited.

LONDON, Oct. 7.—Leaders of the Sinn Fein have intimated that, although they desire complete separation of Ireland from England, they would not oppose a broad measure of dominion home rule if it can be provided and the majority of the Irish people demand it, says the Daily Mail. This intimation, the newspaper declares, was given in response to approaches made by the Irish Peace Council, a body of moderates from all parts of Ireland, which has just completed a plan for dominion home rule in the island. Prior to the adjournment of Parliament members of this council interviewed Lloyd George, who told them that before submitting any scheme they must be able to assure him of sufficient support in Ireland to guarantee that the scheme would be workable. This support the council claims to have obtained, and the Mail asserts that the Premier will receive a deputation from the organization next week to take the initial step in the scheme. The first thing that will be done, the newspaper says, will be the creation of a constituent assembly for Ireland, in which Ulster will be given representation.

The Thirteenth Commandment

By RUPERT HUGHES

Copyright by Harper & Brothers

Wisdom whispered her to take Duane at his word and try the great adventure. How could it bring her to worse confusion than she found about her now? And then the morning mail arrived and brought her a large envelope addressed in a strange hand. She opened it and took from it a sheaf of photographs.

Her father's image a dozen times repeated lay before her. The untouched proofs omitted never a line, never a wrinkle. One of the pictures looked straight at her. She recalled that once she had stood back of the photographer and her father had caught her eye and smiled just as the bulb was pressed.

She made him smile like that. What would his expression be when he learned that she had "listened to reason," ceased to be his daughter, and become Tom Duane's—

She shuddered back from the word and the thought. She forgot both in the joy of reunion with her father. All the philosophies and wisdoms and luxuries were answered by the logic of that smile.

She lifted his pictured lips to hers with filial eagerness and her tears pattered ruinously on the proof. She was satisfied to be what the jeweler in Cleveland had called her to Clay Wimburn—"old Wes Kip's girl."

Suddenly she remembered Wetherell and his massages to Leila. She felt so renewedly virtuous herself that it seemed her duty to go down and rebuke Leila for her apparent philandering at Newport. She was also curious to see how guilty Leila would receive the news that Wetherell had asked for her.

But she found Bayard at home for luncheon and she was neither mad nor mean enough to confuse Leila before him. And this was rather for his sake than Leila's.

Leila was just informing Bayard that the butcher had delivered the morning's order no farther than the freight elevator, and instructed his boy to send the meat up only after the money came down.

Bayard had no money and the chagrin of his situation was bitter. He snarled at Leila: "Tell the cub to take the meat back and eat it himself. Then I'll go over and butcher the butcher."

Leila dismissed the boy with a faint-hearted show of indignation. Then she came back and said, "And now we have no meat to eat."

Bayard was reduced to philosophy, the last resort of the desperate: "Well, the vegetarians say we ought never to eat meat, anyway. We're poor, but, my Lord! we're in grand company. Look at this cartoon of Cesare's in the Sun—Father Knickerbocker turning his pockets inside out and not a penny in them. New York city has to borrow money on short-time notes at high interest to pay its own current bills.

"Look at Europe. All the countries over there were stumbling along under such debt that they wondered how they could meet the interest on the next pay day. And now they are mortgaging their great-grandsons' property to pay for shooting their sons.

"It's the old Thirteenth Commandment that we've all been smashing to flinders. And, my God! what a punishment we're all getting! And it's only beginning."

They sat down to a pitiful meal—meatless, maidless, mirthless—hardly more than the raw turnips and cold water of Colonel Sellers. Leila fetched what victual there was.

After the meal Bayard shrugged into his overcoat and left without kissing his wife or his sister goodby.

Daphne and Leila went out to the kitchen, set the dishes in the pan, and the pan under the faucet. Leila turned on the hot water. Daphne was glad to be at work.

"There's one good thing about a small meal," she chirped, "it makes less dishes to wash." Then, with as much trepidation as if she had been the accused instead of the accuser she faltered: "Oh, say, Leila, do you remember a man named Wetherell?"

Leila dropped a plate. She said it was hot. But other plates had been hot.

"Wetherell? Wetherell?" she pondered, aloud, with an unconvincing uncertainty. "I believe I do remember meeting somebody of that name. English, wasn't he?"

"Very."

"Oh, yes. He was at Newport, I think. Why?"

"Oh, nothing. I met him last night and he thought I was you."

"How could he?" Leila gasped. "We don't look the least alike."

"It was in the dark."

"In the dark! Good heavens! Where?"

Already Leila had gained the weather gauge. Daphne had to confess her outing with Duane, the crash of the collision and the return to Yonkers in Wetherell's car. Leila took advantage of the situation to interpolate:

"Good heavens! How could you? You of all people! And with Tom Duane! What would Clay think?"

NIGHT CLASSES RESUMED

Night classes opened on Tuesday night at the High School, and the attendance was greater than the two previous years. All classes were formed with competent teachers, and a number were present who had been in attendance at the classes for the previous two years.

A SOCIAL GATHERING

At the assembly room of the High School last evening a social gathering was held by the pupils to commemorate field day. A number of pupils from High Schools in this vicinity were present. Dancing was indulged in for some time and light refreshments were served. The affair proved to be of a pleasing nature.

RECEPTION AND SHOWER.

At the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. D. W. Simmons, Actinolite, on Friday night, Sept. 17th, a reception and miscellaneous shower was tendered Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Richardson. The gifts were very beautiful, costly and numerous showing the respect and esteem in which the young couple are held by their friends and neighbors. On Monday, Sept. 20th a reception was held at the home of the groom's parents Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Richardson, Yarker, when the happy couple again received a number of beautiful and useful gifts, one being a kitchen cabinet from their friends in Yarker.

BROKE THROUGH BRIDGE.

The large auto-truck of the Standard Paving Co. came to grief this morning while passing over the County bridge. One of the wheels went through the planking of the bridge but the truck was extricated later without much difficulty.

POWER SCARCITY CONTINUES.

The local power situation has not been remedied as yet, but the local manufacturers and Chamber of Commerce, assisted by E. Guss Porter, K.C., M.P., are continuing their efforts to have water released from the government storage system to provide more power for industries. Power is urgently needed now and the plea of government engineers that the release of storage water now would mean scarcity later on does not appeal to the manufacturers. As one local manufacturer put it, "the time to eat your food is when you are hungry."

Higher Wages For Railway Men

Increases to C. N. R. and G. T. P. Station Employees Will Be 15 to 45 Per Cent.

OTTAWA, Oct. 6.—Clerks, freight handlers, station and other employees of the Canadian National Railways and Grand Trunk Pacific Railway will receive wage increases averaging about 25 per cent., and dating back to May 1, 1920, as a result of negotiations between a committee from the Canadian Brotherhood of Railroad Employees and representatives of the lines. A redistribution of wages on an equitable basis was also worked out, so that in some instances the increase will amount to 45 per cent., but in no case will it be lower than 15 per cent. The full amount of the increase since May 1 will be included in the first period of October payrolls. Seven thousand employees of the two lines are affected.

Taking into consideration the increases granted by these lines since 1918, the wage award is considerably better than that granted by the United States Labor Board to railway employees in the United States this summer.

The conference between the employers' committee and the representatives of the lines has been proceeding in Toronto for the past three weeks.

NATIVE OF TORONTO BACK AS IMMIGRANT

Toronto, Oct. 7.—One strange result of the war can be seen today at the Dr. Barnardo Home on Peter street. It is that of a Canadian, born in Toronto, arriving back to his native land and city as an immigrant.

The youngster is little eight-year-old George Cookson, who came back to Toronto on Monday with a party from the Barnardo Home headquarters in England. His father and mother returned to England with the opening of the war; the father was killed fighting in France, and the mother since died. Left an orphan, the Barnardo Home took charge of the fair-haired youngster and sent him to Canada.

With him in the party are boys who claim as their native city or country Hong Kong, Gibraltar, Cape Town, Ceylon, Australia and New Zealand, thus representing the most widely spread portions of the Empire.

Peterboro Council Thanks Mr. Porter

Peterboro' City Council is taking up the question of power scarcity vigorously, and in a meeting this week went into the matter very thoroughly, outlining a course of action.

The Council in a resolution by Ald. Gordon, seconded by Ald. Turner, expressed its appreciation of the valuable services of Mr. E. Guss Porter, K.C., M.P., of Belleville, in presenting the petition of the recent deputation that waited on the Minister of Railways and Canals in connection with the temporary scarcity of power in this district.

"Mr. Porter did first class work and presented the case wonderfully well," said Ald. Gordon.

Copies of the resolution will be sent to Mr. Porter and to the Belleville Chamber of Commerce.

"The suggestion was made that the power scarcity had arisen because the Hydro had oversold their load," Ald. Gordon said; "but Mr. Gaby, the engineer for the Hydro-Electric Commission told us that the demand was less than in 1918. The whole question is the flow of the stream of the river. The government is holding up the water in Stoney and Buckhorn lakes and up to Friday the Rice Lake level had increased two-tenths of a foot. The Hydro engineer says that the stream flow in January and February provides sufficient power for the natural flow to carry the loads imposed upon it without using any surplus water. He reported that one-tenth of a foot a week added now to the flow would relieve the situation and let every manufacturing concern operate at normal capacity."

A resolution by Ald. Gordon requested the Department of Railways and Canals to increase the flow of water by one-tenth of a foot a week above the normal to increase the power supply. In this connection the city undertakes to release the Department from any claims for damages that might result from this reduction of the water in the natural reservoirs.

FIRE DESTROYS MUCH HONEY

BRAMPTON, Oct. 7.—The residence of Albert Switzer, a farmer, near Streetsville, was totally destroyed by fire late last night. The building was of brick and frame, and, with the high wind blowing, the volunteer fire fighters had no chance with the flames. Very little household furniture was saved. Mr. Switzer's loss will exceed $5,000, partly covered by insurance. His son, Norman, an apiarist, lost more than 2,000 pounds of honey.

MUSIC AND DRAMA

(What the Press Agents Say)

"SAN TOY"

F. Stuart-Whyte's most notable production in Canada "San Toy," will be the attraction at Griffin's next Monday night, October 11th.

Encouraged by the success of his annual pantomime offerings, which have been so enthusiastically received throughout Canada for the past five years, Mr. Stuart Whyte has made a revival of the greatest of all the London Gaiety Theatre musical comedies, and staged it in such lavish manner that those who saw the original show years ago claim this to be the greatest production of the piece ever presented, not only from the standpoint of scenery and costumes, but in the casting as well.

The chorus is composed of twenty of the prettiest girls ever gathered together in any musical show. The seat sale opens Friday morning at Griffin's.

"THE JOYOUS TROUBLEMAKERS"

William Farnum in an entirely new sort of role is promised of "The Joyous Troublemakers," a new William Fox photodrama which is being screened at Griffin's tonight to Saturday, with a matinee Saturday. But it has become a byword in the motion picture world that a new sort of role is nothing new to this versatile star.

"The Joyous Torublemakers" is a story of hidden terasure and William Farnum plays first the youth who finds the treasure and then the man who comes back to claim his own. The treasure was hiden by nature, not by a man, and is in the bed of a river. This all sounds very promising. Also, of course, there is a pretty love story and the name of Louise Lovely in the cast is indication enough that this will be well acted. Charles Hutchison in "The Whirlwind," Hank Mann in a new two-reel comedy, and a beautiful and interesting Outing Chester Travelogue will also be presented on the same program.

PRIZE PORKER IS GIVEN CHOICE HOTEL APARTMENT

DES MOINES, Ia., Oct. 7.—In Iowa nothing is too good for the hog. Baby Hawkeye Giant, an eight-months-old junior champion porker, weighing 350 pounds and valued at $10,000, arrived at a prominent hotel in an expensive automobile yesterday, walked into the hotel lobby on carpets spread especially for his visit, was registered for by W. J. Carmichael, Secretary of the National Swine Show, posed for a picture and then snorted his way haughtily into the elevator and rose to a tenth floor, corner front room, where he spent the night.

That is the interesting fact about our Suit showing, with its great variety. There are so many individual styles to choose from now. Of course we can't maintain such variety as the season grows, for later on we shall not have so many women to please and our selections must be more conventional. That's why the woman who wants her suit to be different takes delight in buying early, while the great variety of individual styles is here. Prices $37.50 and upward.

50th Anniversay OF Wedding Day

On Sept. 27th, 1870, at the home of the bride's parents in Cannifton, Sarah E., youngest daughter of John and Mary Vrooman Canniff, and Richard D. Watson, son of William and Elizabeth Watson, were united in holy matrimony by the Rev. Dr. Wild.

William Watson was one of the pioneers of Belleville and vicinity, coming from England in 1834, and soon after married Elizabeth Drinkhall. He was interested in the shipping business with the Hon. Billa Flint, when Belleville was known as Meyers' Village. In 1835 he bought the Home farm just east of the city (East half of Lot 11, 2nd concession of Thurlow). He also did his "bit" at the time of the Rebellion in 1837-8 when he drove the ammunition wagon from Belleville to Kingston and Toronto.

Richard was born in 1840 and brought his bride to the home fifty years ago and here with the exception of a few years they have spent their happy married life.

They were blessed with five children, two sons dying in infancy. The three girls, Nettie, wife of Rev. E. W. Tink, B.A., B.D., of Newtonville; Bertha, wife of Warden J. G. Sills, Foxboro, and Allegra, at home, were each present with their families to spend the day in the old home. Many friends and neighbors called to congratulate the bride and groom. The neighbors from the second concession coming as a surprise party, brought dainties, and after a couple of hours spent in merry chat, speeches and music, enjoyed lunch, and although Mr. Watson has been an invalid almost two years, it was a great pleasure to himself and bride to welcome the friends they had lived among for so many years.

In their church life, only a few of the first friends remain, and some joined in the congratulations, but many have passed to the great beyond.

The groom first attended Sunday School in the old Pinnacle Street Church, then as a young man in Bridge street, which he left to take charge of the choir in the old Bleecker Avenue church, which was his pleasure for nearly thirty years. Their last few years have been spent in West Belleville, where they were kindly remembered, and the day closed with a prayer of thanksgiving to God for His abundant goodness and blessing all through the years.

He has been a subscriber to The Intelligencer for 58 years and school trustee in his section for 50 years.

GROWING DEAF WITH HEAD NOISES?
TRY THIS.

If you are growing hard of hearing and fear Catarrhal Deafness or if you have roaring, rumbling, hissing noises in your ears go to your druggist and get 1 ounce of Parmint (double strength), and add to it ¼ pint of hot water and a little granulated sugar. Take 1 tablespoonful four times a day.

This will often bring quick relief from the distressing head noises. Clogged nostrils should open, breathing become easy and the mucus stop dropping into the throat. tI is easy to prepare, costs little and is pleasant to take. Anyone who is threatened with Catarrhal Deafness or who has head noises should give this prescription a trial.

Socrates, "wisest of mortals," is supposed to have lived on an income of $75 a year, but then, the historian records, his manner of living was inferior to that of the slaves. His coat was old and shabby, and he wore the same garments both in winter and summer; he went barefoot; his chief food was bread and water; and "as he engaged in no kind of business to mend his estate and increase his fortune it is not wonderful his wife, the famous Xantippe, scolded often."

Demosthenes, his sister, and their mother paid $105 a year for their board, and provided the house into the bargain. A young man could be educated and supported in those days for $108 annually.

Prices in those early days were exceedingly moderate, but so were wages. The great number of slaves who came into competition with the free labor reduced the price exceedingly. Mere manual labor could be procured for 10 cents a day. That seems to have been the lowest rate "and is not lower than the present price of labor in many parts of Europe," says Bancroft, writing in 1855.

Messages From Meteors.

Talk about messages from Mars! How about the mysterious writings that the meteors bring up from the realms of outer space?

These "fallen stars" are quite commonly sawn into slices, for distribution among museums and collectors. The slices are polished, that process bringing out with distinctness certain strange markings called "Widmanstatten figures."

The markings are not alike in any two meteorites. Scientists say they are due to crystallization. But pooh! and likewise bah! They are hieroglyphs, waiting to be deciphered by some ingenious person who will find out how to read letters despatched from far-off stellar systems.

Ask the ouija board if it isn't so.

GUARD AGAINST CHILLS

Simple Precaution Against Dangers of Cold and Damp.

Cultivate the habit of taking a cup of hot Oxo—a cube to a cup—before going out in the cold or damp. Such weather is a tax upon the system, and the strengthening and warming powers of the concentrated beef-goodness fortify you against the evils consequent upon exposure.

If the uses of Oxo are new to you, try a tin of four cubes. Oxo greatly improves gravies, stews, or soups, and is a delightful, sustaining and appetizing beverage. It is excellent for children.

Regular users of Oxo prefer the larger tins of 10 and 50 cubes, using them in many different ways in place of meat.

A Paris Chemist Has Discovered How to Grow Hair

In Paris the ladies have entirely abandoned wearing rates, which is due entirely to this new discovery.

The French are now placing on the market a preparation containing the extract from herbs and leaves, which is having a phenomenal sale.

This preparation is called "DELMAY'S FRENCH HAIR TONIC" and is being sold with a gaurantee to remove dandruff and to grow hair in abundance. Being daintily perfumed, DELMAY'S FRENCH HAIR TONIC" makes a most pleasant dressing, and is sold by your druggist. Price $1.00 a bottle. Sold in Belleville at Doyle's Drug Store.

"My Friends Must Hear That Wonderful Voice"

You listen to a great singer. The beauty of the rendition almost overcomes you. Yet, mingled with the pleasure is a new desire. You must hear that voice again—many times. Also your friends must hear it, because you wish to share such joyful emotions with them.

With the New Edison you can do so. The New Edison brings to your own home the world's best music by the world's greatest artists. And as you doubtless know, the New Edison does more than imitate or mechanically reproduce this great music. The New Edison actually RE-CREATES music.

A few weeks ago Miss Lillian Peteler came to this city and sang in direct comparison, with the New Edison. Part of the time you were hearing the artist and part of the time the New Edison. BUT YOU COULD NOT TELL THEM APART. There was no difference. The New Edison gives you in your own home everything but the living presence of the artist.

Let us exhibit to you at your own home the marvelous music powers of the New Edison. We will on request bring a New Edison to you, and after demonstrating it, leave it for you to examine at your leisure. Take advantage of this pleasant method of inspection.

UNCLE JOE CANNON AND THE TORONTO GLOBE.

The Toronto Globe is getting all "het up" as a result of its campaign against Premier Meighen and, self-deceived by its own word-juggling and denunciation, calls the Premier "the most sinister figure in Canadian politics. The Globe's claim of being a great national newspaper is made a mockery of by its petty political sniping when even the heat of an election campaign can not be used as an excuse. The Globe in a period of political peace resembles "Uncle Joe" Cannon, the fiery American politician, who declared:

> "We, the people of the United States, are now in purgatory. Four years more of Democratic administration, and we would be in hell. We can get out of purgatory, but we never can get out of hell. As a plain citizen my judgment is that we will take the chance in November of emerging from purgatory."

The only difference between the Globe and Uncle Joe is the fact that the latter boils over in the heat of an election campaign, while the Globe lacks that excuse.

LIBERALS NOT FLOCKING TO MACKENZIE KING'S STANDARD.

The Kingston Whig (Liberal Unionist), seeking to account for the result in the St. John-Albert and Colchester parliamentary bye-elections, gives forth some ideas, which, in so far as they are well based, suggest that the causes behind the Government successes are widespread. The Whig's article concludes as follows:—

"During the past three years the traditional Conservative and Liberal parties have undergone disintegration, but the Liberal party has suffered most. Its strength in the past laid in the ability of the leaders to attract and hold all progressive forces; but when Union Government was formed it lost its position, with the result that today we find new class organizations determined to pursue their own course and heedless of the voice of the Liberal leader. The policies of the Canadian Council of Agriculture, the U. F. O., and Labor with its socialistic vagaries, are forcing a regeneration of Conservatism represented by the National Liberal and Conservative party, the psychological reaction created by the very intemperate and class aspirations of the opposition. Men everywhere, whether of Liberal or Conservative antecedents, who want rational government, are being forced to support the present Government. The old rank and file of Liberalism will be disposed to throw in its lot with the Government rather than see the farmers dominate the country with their notions of closing up all industries, and in most localities labor will be found to do the same rather than be thrown out of employment by the farmers' tariff tinkering. If Liberals had any assurance that by voting for Liberal candidates they would get Liberal government, the situation would be different; but unfortunately they are disappointed in the attitude of the farmers' party which should in normal times seek its destiny through the Liberal policies that have always in the past been guided by progressive leaders."

SHIRTS AND OVERALLS MADE IN CANADA.

A minor but striking example of the value of a protective tariff to new industries is furnished in the experience of shirt and overall manufacturers in Winnipeg. Established some twenty-five years ago, this local industry has progressed steadily until today it includes eight manufacturing concerns, using $1,500,000 capital, employing 750 persons, and producing goods to the value of $2,500,000 annually. Approximately one-third of this value is distributed in pay to the employees. A substantial proportion of the materials used are purchased in Canada, so that employment is provided indirectly for other workers. Selling prices are based upon actual cost of production and have never been higher than the prices of similar goods when made and sold in the United States, except to the extent that Canadian costs are increased by revenue duties on materials. Competition in the industry is keen.

The Canadian tariff duty on imported shirts and overalls is 35 per cent. under the general and 25 per cent. under the British preferential schedules, but the net protection is not large, inasmuch as imported colored cotton goods used in the manufacture of shirts and overalls are dutiable at 32½ per cent., buttons at 35 per cent., and buckles and slides at 30 per cent. The United States, with much larger and stronger domestic industries manufacturing similar goods, maintains a tariff of 30 per cent. against imports of such articles.

If the Canadian tariff were withdrawn or substantially reduced, the United States manufacturers would cut into the Canadian market, and Canadian manufacturers would be unable to make up the loss by seeking new business in the United States, because of the 30 per cent. duty against Canadian importations into that country. The curtailment of output through such reduction in business available to the Canadian factories would increase unit costs, make it impossible for them to compete with the larger companies operating in a home market of more than one hundred million people in the United States, and force them to close their business. Their staffs would be thrown out of employment. The wages paid would go to foreign labor and be spent in the United States. The city, province and Dominion would lose the taxes which these industries and their employees have been paying, and the country at large would derive no offsetting advantage.

OTHER VIEWS

Rather a Contract.
Kingston Whig.

The want ad. page of a Montreal newspaper recently displayed three advertisements that should start people thinking: "Window cleaners wanted; we pay $35 to $40 a week." "Pressers on men's coats wanted; $40 to $48 a week." "Protestant teacher for Cote St. George school, County Soulanges; salary $40 a month."

Boys and Their Kingdom.
London Times.

However other boys may occupy their minds, your London boy can talk of little but machinery. There are few exceptions to the rule. He knows every type of airplane and motor car. He makes models when he ought to be learning his lessons. His highest ambition is to be a pilot or a chauffeur. Short of this he would like to drive a locomotive. For a generation or two we have known such boys, but there has never yet been a time when all boys—for the exceptions hardly count—were so keen on machinery.

The Meighen Tariff Policy.
Vancouver World.

Where the Meighen Government stands in relation to the tariff issue has been put tersely and squarely by the Premier himself. The tariff will be maintained for revenue but it will fulfil a further function as well.

In the Premier's own language, "the policy of the Government is to give Canadian industries of every kind just enough advantage in the Canadian market to make it pay better to stay here and expand than to diminish their plants or leave."

This is a fairly good definition of what most people understand by a scientific tariff. It is not a tariff designed to make fortunes for the "capitalists" or to give them opportunities of collaring markets wherein the public must buy or go without. It is a tariff intended to produce revenues and at the same time to maintain industry against foreign competition which otherwise would strangle it. It is protection, of course, but it is "scientific" protection designed not for class benefit but for the general advantage. On much the same lines was Mr. Joseph Chamberlain's tariff reform policy for Great Britain conceived—with the addition of the Imperial preference element.

HAS 14-INCH COW'S RIB AS PART OF HIS SPINE

Lynn, Mass., Oct. 7.—With a cow's rib replacing fourteen inches of his spine, William Cosgrave has returned to his home at 22 Church street, after undergoing an operation at the Massachusetts General Hospital, necessitated by a kick from a horse which he received ten years ago.

The ordinary graft is seldom more than two or three inches of bone. The cow's bone was boiled for 48 hours, then chilled and filed into shape. Cosgrave watching the work of preparation before going under the knife.

They end corns
now in this scientific way

People who know—millions of them—now end all corns in this way.

They apply Blue-jay, either in liquid or in plaster form. It means but a touch and takes but a jiffy.

The corn pain stops. Then the Blue-jay gently undermines the corn so it loosens and comes out.

The modern way

It is made by a laboratory of world-wide repute.

Old-time treatments were harsh and inefficient. Blue-jay is gentle, quick and sure.

Now all corns are needless. All these pains can be avoided. To let corns remain while you pare and pad them is folly.

You can stop a corn ache the moment it appears. You can end a corn completely before it can develop.

Blue-jay has proved these facts to millions. It will prove them to you—and tonight—if you let it.

Quit the old methods of dealing with corns and see what this new way means. Your druggist sells Blue-jay.

CATHERINE JOSEPHINE TISDALE

Universal sympathy goes out to Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Tisdale, 75 South Front Street, in the death of their daughter, Catherine Josephine, aged ten years and seven months, which took place Thursday morning at 10.30 after an illness of three weeks from typhoid fever and complications. Catherine was a bright little girl with a lovable disposition and her death is deeply mourned by the relatives and all of her little girl friends at St. Michael's Academy where she was one of the most promising of the pupils. She was born in Belleville and is survived by her parents, one sister and one brother, Miss Stella H. Tisdale, and John A. Tisdale.

Cases Heard Before County Court

The regular sittings of the County Court without a jury was held at the Court House on Tuesday, the 5th day of October, 1920, before his Honor Judge Deroche. There were three actions on the calendar for trial.

The first was an action brought by The Greene Music Company against Geo. Sarley for the payment of money and interest due on a note given by the Defendant. The Defendant raised the question that the article sold, a player piano, was not the article agreed upon. By arrangement the court set the case over until a date fixed upon. Messrs O'Flynn, Diamond and O'Flynn for the plaintiffs; Wm. Carnew for the defendant.

United Tailoring vs. Brock

This action was brought by the plaintiff against the Defendant, H. Brock, who carried on business in Point Ann, for goods sold. The Defendant admitted the sale of goods and the defendant raised the question that the action was premature, the period of credit not having arrived when the writ was issued. The Defendant after sold out his business and left the country. Judgment was given in favor of the plaintiff with costs. Messrs Collins and Cochrane for the plaintiff, Wm. Carnew for the Defendant.

Canadian Oil Company vs. Trudeau

This was an action brought by the Plaintiff against the Defendant, Elesam Trudeau, who is a general store merchant at Stoco, for the balance of gasoline and oil sold to the Defendant. The balance of the account amounted to $180.00. This amount the defendant was contending that he had a set-off or counter claim in damage which he had sustained for inferior oil and damage from smoke and ruined goods amounting to $150. The Court awarded the defendant $75. on his counter claim giving judgment for the balance with costs on the proper scale. Messrs Collins and Cochrane for the plaintiff; Mr. Carnew for the defendant.

Public Service Commission Meets

Public Officials Examined Regarding Their Duties and Offices

The Ontario Public Service Commission, which has been appointed by the Lieutenant-Governor in Council to inquire into the best methods of selecting, appointing and renumerating sheriffs, registrars, Crown Attorneys, Police Magistrates and other similar officials and the advisability of consolidating any such offices, etc., opened its sitting here in the Court room at the court house Thursday morning. The Commission consists of five members, W. D. Gregory, Barrister, of Toronto, Chairman, Dr. Horace L. Brittain, of Toronto, Director of the Citizens' Research Institute of Canada, Norman Sommerville, Toronto, Barrister, Albert Hellyer, farmer, of Arthur, Ont., and Sergt. E. A. Pocock, Managing Editor of "The Breeze," a soldier's paper, of London, Ont.

The various officials of the county and a few from adjoining counties were present at the opening of the sittings.

Judge Deroche was first called upon to answer certain questions propounded by certain members of the Court here.

Mr. Gregory—We find in some counties sheriffs have but little to do and the idea is to consider if some offices could not be consolidated, say the sheriff and the county clerk.

Judge Deroche, in speaking of Hastings County, said it was well organized. It might be possible to combine some offices with Prince Edward County. One sheriff might and no doubt, could fulfill that position.

Mr. Gregory—The offices of sheriff and county clerk might be consolidated and a deputy might be appointed. What Police Magistrates are there in Hastings?

Judge Deroche—There is a Police Magistrate in the city of Belleville, Town of Trenton, Town of Deseronto and village of Bancroft and they have considerable to do.

Mr. Grego[illegible]re any cases tried by Justices [illegible]e Peace in the County.

Judge Deroche—Yes. We have a number of Justices of the Peace in the County and sometimes cases are tried by them.

Mr. Gregory—What would you say of Magistrates having the power to try civil cases, say for debts up to $100. In some outlying districts there is but little business for Division Court and parties have to wait months for a settlement of their cases.

Judge Deroche—In this county we have regular sessions of Division Court and in his opinion, a change would not be altogether advisable.

Mr. Gregory—Could not some Division Courts be amalgamated.

Judge Deroche—We have eleven such courts in this county and perhaps two or three might be combined.

Mr. Gregory—What about doing away with grand juries or reducing its number and notifying them by registered letters instead of being served.

Judge Deroche—The number might be reduced.

Mr. Gregory—Have you a Juvenile

Judge Deroche—The Police Magistrate of Belleville holds a juvenile court when cases arise.

Mr. Carnew—The court is held separate from the police court work.

Mr. Gregory—Where are lunatics brought?

Judge Deroche—Some have been kept in the county jail here for a considerable period.

Mr. Gregory—Why?

Judge Deroche—The explanation was that asylums were filled at the time.

Mr. Gregory—I suppose you have no other place to commit them?

Judge Deroche—No.

Mr. Sommerville—What is the solution in regard to this matter.

Judge Deroche—More accommodation in suitable places.

Mr. Gregory—Have you considered the matter of appointing marriage license issuers. The issuer should be the municipal clerks in the opinion of some.

Judge Deroche—This matter has not been considered.

In speaking of office holders, Mr. Gregory said that they may retire at 65 and should it be compulsory to retire at 70 years of age?

Judge Deroche—Why should a county judge be compelled to retire? I believe in the superannuation scheme.

Dr. Boyce, a coroner, in the city, was questioned in regard to coroners and their duties. Mr. Gregory spoke in reference to the idea of certain witnesses being paid at coroners' inquest. At present no witnesses are paid.

Dr. Boyce—No doubt some witnesses should be paid.

Mr. Pocock—There are in some places objections to doctors being coroners.

Dr. Boyce—A man not a practitioner might be a coroner.

Judge Wills said it might be possible for a larger organization and a grouping of certain counties for judicial purposes. As to a Police Magistrate in the northern part of the county doing work in a portion of adjacent countes this might be feasible.

At this stage of the proceedings an adjournment was made.

Wedding Bells

REID—WILEY

On Thursday afternoon, October 7th at 4 o'clock, a very pretty though quiet wedding took place at the Methodist parsonage, Hillside street, when Miss Gladys Lucille Wiley and Mr. Marshall Reid, son of Roland E. Reid, both of this city, were united in the holy bonds of matrimony, the Rev. A. H. Foster, of Holloway Street Methodist Church officiating. The young couple were unattended. The bride looked very sweet and dainty in her travelling suit of navy blue with large black velvet hat and black fox fur and wearing the gift of the groom, a beautiful pearl necklace. Immediately after the ceremony was performed, Mr. and Mrs. Reid left for Chicago and Detroit, Mich., travelling via G. T. R. On their return they will take up their residence on John Street, this city. Their many friends and acquaintances wish them every success in their married life.

Rupture Relief

Retention Not Influenced By Age Or Length of Time, Reports Visiting Expert.

Rupture is not a tear or a breach in the abdominal wall, as commonly supposed, but it is a stretching or dilation of a natural opening. J. Y. Egan, 1057 College Street, Toronto, the long established Canadian Rupture appliance specialist, will visit Belleville, Hotel Quinte (Monday afternoon and night) (Tuesday all day and night) 1½ days—October 11, 12.

The "Curatrus", the new surgical invention, as now used and prepared to order for men, women and children, will not only restrain rupture perfectly, affording immediate and complete comfort, but is intended to assist nature in her work in the shortest time known and at small cost. These new surgical appliances have received highest approval wherever shown, and are designed in accordance with the principles laid down by the world's text-book authorities on this subject, producing results without harmful ready-made hard pad and old fashioned steel trusses. Brooklyn Won Second Game

BROOKLYN, Oct. 6—If Stanley Coveleski, of Cleveland subdued the Brooklyn Dodgers in the opening game of the World Series yesterday, Grimes of the Dodgers humiliated the Indians today.

Baseball is pitching, and Brooklyn had pitching today that would have beaten any baseball team anywhere, which accounts for the three-to-nothing defeat of the American League champions in the second game of the series.

Grimes' speed blinded the Indians. The Brooklyn pitching ace whipped the ball past the Clevelanders as if it were propelled from a rifle. Only once did he waver. In the eight innings he suffered a momentary loss of control but reganed it in the ninth and prevented the scoring of a run.

The Brooklyn twirler could have split a "nickel" with the ball. He kept it just above the knees or below the shoulders, on the inside and on teh outside, striving constantly for the corners of the plate, and giving the Indians few good balls at which to hit.

He pitched a game as near to perfect as one could wish to witness.

At his late apartments in the Government building a service was conducted by Rev. W. Elliott, of the Tabernacle Church, and a lesson was read by Ven. Archdeacon Beamish. The I.O.O.F. burial service was conducted by Bro. G. F. Reid, N.G. of Mizpah Lodge and Bro. F. M. Clarke, Financial Secretary. The floral tributes were many and exquisite in design. The bearers were Oddfellows, namely, Bros. Wm. Thompson, G. S. Sharpe, Jos. Alexander, Jesse Harris, C. H. Vermilyea and R. H. Ketcheson.

MADOC FAIR A SUCCESS.

Madoc Fair was held on Tuesday and Wednesday of this week and it was the most successful in the history of the society. Large crowds were present on both days and the entries in the various classes reached a total of 2,500 which was 850 above last year. There was a fine exhibit of cheese, which was judged by G. G. Publow, Chief Dairy Inspector. There were 28 horses entered in the trials of speed.

COUNTERFEIT WORTH MORE THAN GENUINE

WASHINGTON, Oct. 7.—A strange counterfeit turned up here yesterday at a bank—queer because it was a bogus five-dollar gold coin and was worth about eight times as much as the genuine, because it was made of platinum.

The spurious coin was made about fifty years ago and bears the date of 1869. Musty archives of the Secret Service contain a record of the species, and the case is marked "closed." The coins were made in Maine, and came to the notice of the Treasury Department when the scion of a wealthy family took a quantity of them from a safety deposit box containing heirlooms and put them in circulation.

All known specimens were confiscated by the Secret Service, and it was unknown until yesterday that others were still in circulation.

How Glasses Help Sight

To see, light must be focused on one small spot at the back of eye. The eyeball is a set of lenses, which the muscles of the eye so manipulate that light is properly focused. If the shape of the eye is even slightly defective, the extra hard work required strains the muscles, causing distress, and sight is not good. Glasses are an extra lens before the eyes, and when fitted at Blackburn's they are so accurately measured and made they end eye strain, and improve, protect and preserve sight.

BELLEVILLE, ONTARIO, FRIDAY, OCTOBER 8, 1920.

PRICE TWO CENTS

Hastings Co. Too Large For Amalgamation Of Offices

CONSENSUS OF OPINION AFTER ENQUIRY OF PUBLIC SERVICE COMMISSION—POLICING OF COUNTY EFFICIENTLY DONE—SALARY VS. FEE SYSTEM—HASTINGS COUNTY TOO LARGE FOR CONSOLIDATION OF PUBLIC OFFICES.

The Ontario Public Service Commission completed their labors here yesterday afternoon and left for Picton. During the two session here many officials of the county were heard and the concensus of opinion was that owing to the extent of Hastings County the amalgamation of offices seemed impossible.

Abolish Fees.

Mr. W. C. Mikel, K. C., in speaking before the commission said that changes in method of appointments or in names and combination of duties is not really the greatest need of the Public Service. Qualification by means of special tarining is the real need of the public service. We train persons for service in the church, law, medicine, dentistry and engineering. Even agriculture is recognising the necessity of agriculture schools, and technical schools are becoming more and more in demand to train persons for service in the mechanical arts. Public service is about the only service in which no training is required. A school teacher would not be allowed to teach a class of a dozen children without having had special training for that service. Yet men can walk into the Legislative Halls and proceed to make laws for the nation without any previous training. Reference is not made to the present Ontario Legislature for if here is any difference between that nd former or other Legislative bodies t is only one of degree. One of the blest Chief Justices we have had n Ontario said that when a man goes n the Bench he finds he has to learn o be a judge. Democracy will never each its proper measure of usefulness until it recognizes that all perons must be trained in some special anner for the various public serices. The absence of this has given oint to some of the criticism levelld at democracy by Bolshevists. The ominion Civil Service has paved a ay for much wider application of his principle.

It will be necessary to soon adopt ome system of Land Titles or abracts will be twenty or thirty feet ong and the cost of searching a tle will cost as much as the lot.

It would be better to combine offi- s in counties where the work made it possible and pay officers reasonable salaries.

Hastings County would not permit much change. It is a big county with varied interests, manufacturing, agriculture, mining, lumber and fisheries. If Hastings County was swung around on Belleville as a pivot to the west it would reach to Toronto and have a width of 30 miles. The fee system should be changed to a salary system.

Mr. John Williams, County Clerk, was of the opinion that the duties of sheriff and county clerk could not well be amalgamated in a county like Hastings.

Mr. Sommerville queried Mr. Carnew, County Crown Attorney, in reference to the best system of policing the County.

Mr. Carnew—We have efficient constables in this county. Some times when a grave crime is committed we have the assistance of Provincial Officers but often not for some days after the offence has been committed. Leave the constables as they are and increase their fees, as there is no inceptive to stimulate the men to more effective work.

Mr. Sommerville—Would you link up the county constables with the sheriff.

Mr. Carnew—I would.

In speaking of the proposed amalgamation of offices, Mr. Carnew thought a reduction of officers would be a mistake. With the present system with the making of law and order it is working well in this county. There might be in some cases many more cases disposed of by the Police Magistrates. In referring to his duties as County Attorney, the speaker, said that he was only compelled to attend a prosecution for an indictable offence. In speaking of the enforcement of the Ontario Temperance Act, Mr. Carnew said his services were given only when requested by the Inspector. The powers of the County Attorney might be increased.

Mr. W. H. Nugent and Sheriff Morrison were briefly examined as to their duties. In reply to an enquiry from Mr. Sommerville Sheriff, Morrison stated that the duties of Division Court bailiff might be added to that of the sheriff.

TORONTO, Oct. 8—The Toronto ar publishes special despatch from indsor, which declares, in part, as lows:

"The loaded stick of 'big business' the latest weapon to be wielded er the heads of Attorney-General ney's special prohibition officers block their campaign against the m-running traffic along the Michi- n-Ontario border. While the local ces of the group of municipalities own as the border cities are ostenly fighting the illicit liquor traffic, their efforts have not been wned by an overwhelming degree success, due to the bootleggers' lity to win over individual mems of these forces from time to e."

he article repeats the report that life of Rev. J. C. L. Spracklin, specially appointed revenue offi- , had been threatened and as its had been determined on.

There remained," says the story, t one weapon and this was a pow l weapon, for it brought the sup t of lawyers, brokers and real es dealers."

his weapon worked through the chase of houses which the bootcers must have for the delivery of r goods, according to the dis h.

r. Spracklin is quoted as stating the bigger the men who are ed up in the traffic the harder he press them. "I was simply azed," said the officer, "at the ness interests which sought to all upon me to stir up less public- on the situation."

Democrats Had Plenty Of Whisky

CHICAGO, Oct. 7—The Tribune (Republican) carries the following under a San Francisco date this morning:

With city and federal officials admitting they connived to supply the Democratic National Convention delegates with 40 barrels of whiskey and gin, in violation of the prohibition law, the Federal prohibition situation in San Francisco has to-day reached sensational proportions.

An unnamed Democratic politician, high in the councils of the Government at Washington, gave orders for the "lifting of the lid" during the Democratic convention here, and caused large quantities of liquor, illegally withdrawn from bonded warehouses, to be distributed to the delegates and their friends, it was revealed by John S. Dunnigan, Clerk of the Board of Supervisors, who supervised the liquor distribution.

HONEST PLAYERS ARE REWARDED

Chicago, Oct. 7—Charles A. Comiskey, owner of the Chicago White Sox, has sent checks for $1,500 each to the ten members of last year's team who were not involved in the baseball scandal. Letters accompanying the checks said the money was sent to reimburse the players for the amount they lost when the White Sox failed to win the 1919 World's Series.

The checks were sent to Ray Schalk, Byrd Lynn, Urban Faber, Dick lins, John Collins, H. McClellan, Harry Kerr, R. H. Wilkinson, Eddie Colry Leibold and E. Murphy.

"As one of the honest ball players of the Chicago White Sox of 1919 I feel you are deprived of the winner's share of the world's series receipts through no fault of your's." Comiskey's letters to the players said.

Oppose Reduction Of Duty On Coal

Alberta Operators State Case to Tariff Board at Calgary

CALGARY, Oct. 7—Basing their pleas upon the welfare of the West as a whole, the Coal Operators' Association of Alberta, with the exception of one of their members, have taken their stand before the Tariff Commission as being opposed to any reduction of tariff on imported coal, their contention being that no steps should be taken by the Government which would stand in the way of the Alberta mines crowding the products of United States mines out of Western Canada. Statistics submitted showed that, while the normal consumption of the western market is some nine or ten million tons of coal yearly, there is sufficient equipment in Alberta mines to permit of an output of twelve million tons.

Power Dearth Ottawa's Fault

Sir Adam Beck Discusses Situation With Deputation

TORONTO, Oct. 7—To discuss the shortage of water at the power development in Central Ontario a deputation from Peterboro yesterday waited on Sir Adam Beck. These districts get their power from the Trent River.

The control of the waters in the Trent River is invested in the Federal authorities, who claim a high rental from the commission for the use of the same, Sir Adam told the deputation. He outlined the attitude of the Federal officials since the commission took over the Electric Power Company's properties in the Trent district some years ago as most unfriendly, and maintained that the officials had shown little consideration of the importance to the power users in the district by neglecting to maintain and properly regulate teh storage waters of the Trent district.

Water is Held Back

It was shown that during the month of September the levels of Buckhorn, Stony and Rice Lakes had been raised quite considerably, as to which one of the members of the deputation claimed he had conclusive proof. If the amount of water so stored had been permitted to flow down the river there would have been no shortage of power in this district.

The deputation stated it was affirmed by an official of the Department of Railways and Canals that if the natural stream flow was permitted now a storage would result in the winter months. In reply to this the engineers of the commission produced reports which showed that at no time in the past six years had the natural flow in the winter months been less than needed for the development of the full amount of power required.

The reports of the commission showed the amount of power used during the present period was less than was used in the district in 1918 by over 3,000 h.p., while the instaled capacity, owing to additions at Healy Falls, has been increased by over 5,000 h.p. but on account of the shortage of water this additional capacity is of no value.

Developing Ranney Falls

The commission is at present developing the Ranney Falls and installing an additional 10,000 h. p. which will be completed on or before August 1921.

Sir Adam assured the deputation that everything had been done that the commission could properly do by urging Hon. Mr. Meighen, the Prime Minister, to have the matter given personal consideration. The commission has urged the department to release the storage at Stony and Rice Lakes to the extent of one-tenth of a foot per week for the next eight or ten weeks until the flow is augmented by the autumn rains.

MONTREAL MEN ENTER FOR LOCAL AIR RACES

Monteral, Oct. 7—This city will have its first air race next Saturday, when four Curtiss byplanes will compete for the Aerial League trophy in a series of races from the aerial field at the old Polo Grounds, St. Laurent in flights to St. Lambert and back, a distance of 16 miles both ways. The four contestants Saturday are all Montreal men. The race will be the feature of the official opening of the "air harbor" and aerodrome at the new flying field, St. Laurent.

Raney Files Claim Against Grocers

Proceedings To Test the Legality of Alleged Combine

TORONTO, Oct. 7—The action brought by the Attorney-General of Ontario against the Canadian Wholesale Grocers' Association, officers of the Wholesale Grocers of Ontario, and certain individuals, is developing at Osgoode Hall. A. W. Roebuck, acting for Deputy Attorney-General Bayly, filed Attorney-General Raney's statement of claim.

This civil suit, which is the first of its kind to be taken in this Province, is to test the legality of alleged 'combine" and price fixing. According to Mr. Roebuck, price-fixing is unlawful in the United States.

Military Lorry Bombed In Cork

(Special Despatch to The Intelligencer Canadian Press Limited

CORK, Oct. 8—Civilians bombed a military lorry which was passing through Barrack street this morning. One soldier was killed and three dangerously wounded. Two soldiers on the lorry who escaped injury opened fire on the attackers. At the time the street was filled with people proceeding to work. Two men and women were shot in the legs.

Two Killed In Hot Gun Duel

Mexican Runs Amuck in Pittsburg—Several Persons Wounded.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Oct. 8.—Two men, including a patrolman, were killed and a number of persons were wounded at Homestead, a suburb, last night in a pistol battle between police, firemen, county detectives and civilians on one side and a Mexican on the other.

The trouble started when two officers tried to arrest the Mexican, Ernest Martines, who was acting in a disorderly manner on the street. Martines drew a pistol and killed patrolman Henry Davis.

The Mexican then entered a boarding house, wounded the proprietor and barricaded himself in the building.

Police reserves were called out and, armed with riot guns, they tried to get into the house but were forced to retreat under the fire from the Mexican's gun. Firemen were summoned and they sought to drive Martines from the house with smoke and water.

Finally a fireman, armed with a riot gun, gained entrance to the house from the rear and killed the Mexican.

CANADIAN INDIANS TO MAKE TRIS CHIEF

Toronto, Oct. 8.—The Mississauga Indians of the reservation north of Peterboro are planning to make Tris Speaker an honorary chief of their tribe when he makes his annual hunting trip to the Kawartha Lakes district upon the conclusion of the world series. The Mississaugas celebrated Cleveland's capture of the American League pennant, and are closely following the championship games.

Winnipeg Has Drop In Flour

Thirty to Sixty Cents a Barrell Less After Wheat Crash

WINNIPEG, Oct. 7—Following a further break in the wheat market on Monday, the price of flour dropped, local millers announced. The drop is thirty cents per barrel in the higher grades and sixty cents in the lower grades.

Bread will not be affected by this drop. Flour of the higher grade, which dropped 30 cents, is the only kind used, and the drop, bakers said, is not enough to make any appreciable reduction possible. It is little more than one-sixth of a cent per pound.

The last increase in the price of flour, $1.65 per barrel, did not cause an increase in the price of bread.

Gov't Insurance for Returned Soldiers

All returned soldiers and their families will be interested in the Returned Soldiers' Insurance Act, under which they are provided with an opportunity of obtaining life insurance at most favorable rates. The Act became effective on September 1st, 1920, and will remain in force for two years.

Under the provisions of the Act any honorably discharged soldier, sailor, or nurse, of the Canadian Forces domiciled and resident in Canada, may insure with the Government to an amount of from $500.00 to $5,000. Under certain conditions the widow of a returned soldier, who died subsequent to discharge, may also obtain insurance.

In addition to former members of the C. E. F. the privileges of the Act are available to anyone, male or female who served during the late war in the Imperial army or with the forces of any of the allied or associated powers, providing they were domiciled and resident in Canada before the war and held an honorable discharge.

Many of those who served overseas while not suffering from a severe disability, find their physical condition is such that they are unable to obtain life insurance at all or only at much higher rates than are normally demanded. They, therefore, find themselves severely handicapped in providing protection for their dependents. Under the Returned Soldiers' Insurance Act all returned men are placed on an equal basis as no medical examination is required.

The premium rates are low. They vary with the age of the insured and the plan of insurance chosen. At the age of twenty-five a straight life policy for $1,000 costs $1.24 per month. At the age of thirty-five the rate is $1.70 per month. Beneficiaries are limited in the case of married man to his wife and children. An unmarried man or a widower without children is required to name his future wife and children as beneficiares. Should the insured die unmarried the insurance money may be paid to one or more of his immediate relatives according to his will.

An exceptional advantage of this insurance is the provision made for a disability benefit. Under this section should the policy holder become totally and permanently disabled he is relieved from paying further premiums and the insurance money is paid to him direct in annual installments equal to one-twentieth of the total amount of the policy.

Booklets explaining the Act, and application forms may be obtained from all branches of the Great War Veterans' Association; The Soldiers' Aid Commission; Imperial Veteran's of Canada; Grand Army of United Veterans; Army and Navy Veterans; Department of Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment; Military District Headquarters and District Offices of the Board of Pension Commissioners; or direct from the Commissioners, Returned Soldiers' Insurance, Transportation Building, Ottawa.

T. S. R. STILL DEFAULTS

Toronto, Oct. 7—The Toronto Railway Company continues in its default in payment to the city of the percentages of revenue. The amount due for September is $5,234.76, on receipts of $609,546.95, as compared with receipts of $641,422 a year ago. This is teh fourth month of the railway's refusal to pay the city its percentage. What action will be taken is not disclosed by civic officials, the Treasury Department showing a marked disinclination to give any information whatever.

Bolsheviki Must Release All British Prisoners

UNLESS ALL BRITISH HELD PRISONER IN RUSSIA ARE RELEASED BY OCTOBER 10 BRITAIN WILL TAKE ACTION — BOLSHEVIKI TRY TO MAKE PRISONERS BASIS OF BARGAIN

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer, Canadian Press, Limited.

LONDON, Oct. 8.—Great Britain has threatened to take certain action against Soviet Russia if steps are not taken by October 10 for the release of British prisoners held by the Bolsheviki, says the Herald, the organ of Labor, which this morning prints what purports to be the texts of notes exchanged by British and Soviet Governments. In reply to this threat Leonid Krassin, head of the Russian trade mission here, has replied on behalf of the Bolshevik regime that it will promise to fulfil the conditions required by Great Britain when the latter carries out her part of the bargain made last July for the mutual release of all prisoners and cessation of all hostile actions.

Sniper Opens Fire on Soldiers From Roof of Dublin Church

MANY RAIDS CARRIED OUT IN SEARCH OF ARMS—MAYOR OF WEXFORD ARRESTED FOR SINN FEIN ACTIVITY—PATROLS FIRED ON—POLICE BARRACKS ATTACKED.

DUBLIN, Oct. 7—Roused by the sharp cracks of rifles and machine guns, residents of Cork, near the Capuchin Church, hustled from the upper rooms of their houses into the cellars as bullets sang overhead. The fire was directed against the church by soldiers who had spotted a sniper. An official statement said the soldiers were fired upon and merely returned the fire. The church itself bears the marks of many bullets.

The soldiers made raid after raid in Dublin. One of the places broken into was the Redmond headquarters. There were no arrests. No arms nor amunition were found. At Wexford, the Mayor, the Registrar and a merchant were arrested in a military raid on a Sinn Fein Arbitration Court.

The Freeman's Journal is authority for the statement that Chief Inspector Smythe, of the Royal Irish Constabulary, has gone to Belfast to organize the Ulster Volunteers.

On the arrival in Dublin this morning of the mails from the provinces and from England, a military party entered the central sorting station and carried away all the letters. Business men, inquiring for their mail, were informed that the military authorities had all of it, but that delivery would take place after the letters have been examined. A similar method of obtaining information already has been employed by the Government in other Irish centres.

Another sensational raid was conducted in the city during business hours, when armed men held up and robbed the Richmond street Branch of the Provincial Bank. They carried off £800 and escaped.

The residents of Cork had another terrifying experience early this morning. The cause of the trouble was a brush between the military on curfew patrols. The patrols replied with heavy fusilade of machine guns, sweeping all areas with searchlights.

Armed bands attacked the police barracks at Skibberin last evening, taking prisoner 15 policemen and seizing arms and amunition. The barracks was burned. There were no casualties.

Lone Policeman Fights Gunmen

TORONTO, Oct. 7—In a lone and desperate gun fight with three bank robbers, Constable William Logie, of Markham street police station, was shot in the right arm on Ellsworth avenue, just west of Christie street, in the rear of the Bank of Toronto branch, at 4.10 yesterday morning.

Although one of the robbers opened up a "machine gun" fire with an automatic pistol, shooting viciously at the constable, Logie stood his ground and managed to get in one shot on one of the robbers, who ran away yelling 'He got me—he got me." But as Logie was hit in the right arm, paralyzing it, the constable could not pull the trigger and the three robbers escaped.

Copenhagen, Oct. 7—The French General, Weygand, has left for South Russia to take supreme command of the anti-Bolsheviki troops of General Wrangel, the National Tidende says today.

Two In A Row For Brooklyn

BROOKLYN, Oct. 7.—Brooklyn forged to the lead in the 1920 baseball classic here this afternoon, when Sherrod Smith, pitching a three-hit game, sent the Indians down to defeat by a score of 2 to 1.

The game count in the series now stands 2 to 1 with Robins on the long end, and the teams go to Cleveland tonight with the Robins in a favorable strategic position for the renewal of hostilities in the Ohio city on Saturday.

Supported by a scintillating infield defence, Smith turned in one of the prettiest pitched games ever seen in a world series. He was never in danger. Cleveland's one run was directly due to a schoolboy error by the veteran Zach Wheat in the fourth round, when he let Tris Speaker's vicious double roll between his legs to the face. While he was retrieving the ball the Indian chief easily completed the circuit. Without Wheat's error, Speaker would have been marooned on the bases, as the next two batsmen were easy infield outs.

Ivy Olson, Pete Kilduff and big Ed. Konetchy furnished the fielding fireworks of the fray. Olsen covered acres of ground at short, and his throwing was perfection itself. Kilduff pulled two spectacular fielding stunts, while Konetchy at first performed like a youngster. Right in the same class with this trio was George Burns, who snagged a foul with one hand out of a rightfield box, and Tommy Griffith, who made a catch in right field of the regular Speaker variety.

What Would You Do?

Ten-to-one, you too would use Zam-Buk. Everyday mishaps by the score, and most forms of skin and scalp disease are "doctored" quickly and efficiently at home by this highly concentrated herbal balm. Zam-Buk's rapid antiseptic healing and wonderful soothing and pain-killing power has been a world revelation.

Here's evidence from Canadian homes.

SCALDED FOOT. Mrs. Smart, 229, Harbison Avenue, Elmwood, Winnipeg, writes:—"A pan of boiling water upset over my foot. The flesh was scalded red raw and badly blistered, when my husband applied Zam-Buk. It soothed the inflamed surfaces splendidly and more Zam-Buk brought perfect healing."

GASHED HAND. Mr. Austin Finlayson, of Fak, Sask. writes:—"I gashed my hand severely [illegible]. The wound was painfully sore and festered until I treated it with Zam-Buk. This grand herbal healer worked a complete cure. I know nothing to compare with Zam-Buk."

CHILDREN'S ECZEMA. Mr. W. D. Love, 23 Mead Street, Central Falls, U.S.A., writes: "My children had dreadful eczema on the face and scalp. We paid out dollars to the doctors before we used Zam-Buk. The first application soothed away the itching irritation. Continued treatment banished every trace of disease."

TORN FINGER. Mrs. J. Randall, of Silver Stream, Sask. writes:—"My daughter tore the top off her finger in the washing machine. As we are eighteen miles from the doctor, I applied a dressing of Zam-Buk. The wound never caused the least trouble afterwards, and healed perfectly."

FESTERED FOOT. Mr. D. J. Shaw, Belfast, P.O., P.E.I., writes:—"I had a nasty festered sore through a boot-nail piercing my foot. I tried different liniments, but the foot remained badly swollen and inflamed until I used Zam-Buk. This wonderful balm effected a speedy and complete cure."

Laughs And Thrills In Farnum Play

"The Joyous Troublemakers" Splendid Feature for Week-end Program

Wm. Farnum gets away from the usual run of romantic roles in "The Joyous Troublemakers" a new Wm. Fox photoplay which was presented before a large audience at Griffin's last night.

In "The Joyous Troublemakers," he appears first as a carefree youth and later as a man who taking life easily, defeats those who scheme against him because of his wealth and because of the girl he loves. It is a role as different from his superb Don Caesar in "The Adventurer" as Don Caesar was from his splendid Sidney Cartoon in "A Tale of Twin Cities." The only resemblance is in the fact that this new role is as romantic as any he ever played. And it is in many ways his most pleasing performance. Laughs and thrills alternate from beginning to end of the feature. The opening situation is one of the most original ever seen on the screen, and it leads to a series of surprises culminating in a staggering climax. Throughout there is magnetic quality. He is supported by a very capable cast, including the charming Louise Lovely, fitted by beauty and talent to play opposite Farnum; Henry J. Herbert, Harry Devere, G. Raymond Nye, Clarence Morgan and George Nichols.

"Moosing," a beautiful and very interesting Outing Chester Travelogue, Hank Mann in a two-reel comedy burlesque on "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde," and Charles Hutchison in a thrilling chapter of "The Whirlwind series."

MUSIC AND DRAMA

(What the Press Agents Say)

"SAN TOY"

A theatrical offering of more than usual interest is the F. Stuart-Whyte importation of the famous London Gaiety success, "San Toy," which comes to Griffin's next Monday, October 11. This is undoubtedly the biggest musical attraction ever brought to this country from England and its presentation here has been made possible only through the linking up of Canada into one great circuit, under the direction of the Trans-Canada Theatres, Limited, whose policy it is to give Canadians a generous supply of the principal successes of the English stage.

Mr. Whyte's revival of "San Toy" has been made upon an elaborate scale and no expense has been spared to make it the outstanding feature of an unusually promising theatrical season.

I could not sleep at night my heart palpitated so, and I was almost afraid to close my eyes. Being persuaded, I wrote and stated my symptoms to the Medical staff at Dr. Pierce's Invalids' Hotel in Buffalo, N. FIRE PREVENTION

THE ROYAL PROCLAMATION should be read in every School Room by a pupil; and at Public Gatherings throughout the Province.

GEORGE THE FIFTH, by the Grace of God, of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland and of the British Dominions beyond the Seas, King, Defender of the Faith, Emperor of India.
TO ALL TO WHOM THESE PRESENTS SHALL COME, or whom the same may in anywise concern, Greeting:

A PROCLAMATION
(Extracts)

WHEREAS it is authoritatively stated that during the past decade in Canada more than 2,000 persons have lost their lives, and property valued at approximately $200,000,000 has been destroyed by fire, and that the annual loss from this cause continues practically unabated.

AND WHEREAS it is shown by reliable statistics that at least 75 per cent of the fires which occur originate directly or indirectly through inexcusable ignorance and neglect and are therefore preventable and that the exercise of reasonable prudence and proper carefulness on the part of responsible individuals would reduce losses by fire in Canada to the comparatively insignificant proportions of losses in other countries.

AND WHEREAS, economic and humanitarian consideration imperatively demanding that human life and material resources in Canada be so far as possible conserved, in order that the national prosperity may be maintained amidst world-wide competitive conditions and that the general welfare of the people may be measurably increased.

NOW KNOW YE, that we, by and with the advice of our Privy Council of Canada, have thought fit to appoint and do appoint Saturday, the NINTH DAY of OCTOBER in this present year, as "Fire Prevention Day" and we do recommend to all Our loving subjects that, on that day or upon the day preceding, as may be found most practicable,—

All dwellings and their surroundings . . . all public buildings, stores, warehouses and factories be carefully inspected and cleared of rubbish in order to reduce fire hazards and maintain health and safety.

All hotels, theatres, asylums, hospitals and other institutional buildings be inspected and provision made for all changes necessary to protect the occupants from danger in the event of fire.

Fire drills be held for the children in all schools, for the inmates of all institutions and for the employees in all large stores and factories, in order that a greater degree of safety may be ensured by acquainting the occupants with the best and most expeditious modes of exit in time of danger.

Special instruction on the subject of Fire Prevention be given by the teachers and by municipal officials in the Schools. . . .

Boy Scout Leaders give instruction to the troops under their control . . . as to the desirability of qualifying for the Fireman's badge.

Of all which Our loving subjects and all others whom these presents may concern are hereby required to take notice, and govern themselves accordingly.

WOMEN WHO ARE SO NERVOUS.

"It Seems as Though they Would Fly"

We all know them, and they are to be pitied, but if they could only realize there is one tried and true non-secret remedy for this condition our druggists would not be able to supply the demand for it.

That remedy is Vinol, the cod liver and iron strength-creator and body-builder.

Mrs. Albert Boutilier, of Halifax, N.S., says,—"The influenza left me all run-down and so weak and nervous I could not work. Nothing seemed to help me until my daughter bought me a bottle of VINOL, and it accomplished wonders for me, as it built me up and restored my strength quickly. I cannot praise it enough."

Vinol enriches the blood, quickens the circulation, strengthens the nerves and every organ in the body.

Your druggist sells it, therefore accept no substitute.

William Groves Had Rounded Out Century; the Oldest Orangeman In Canada

RENFREW, Oct. 8—William Groves Renfrew's centenarian, is dead at his home here after a brief illness due to an attack of bronchitis and la grippe. He was taken ill owing to the sudden change of temperature, and, on account of his advanced age, was unable to rally. Up to the time of this attack he had never been seriously ill and friends hoped he would live for many years yet.

Mr. Groves was born in Newton Barry, Ireland, on July 12, 1820, and had lived under five British sovereigns. Both his parents were natives of England, who had settled in Ireland shortly before his birth. He came to Canada alone when twenty-one years old, and for some time worked on farms in Lanark County.

Oldest Orangeman

Mr. Groves never used tobacco in his life, and was never more than a moderate drinker, but for the past 25 years had been an ardent advocate of temperance. He was an Anglican, and beyond all question was the oldest Orangeman in Canada. On July 12 last the centenial of his birth, he joined his brethren in the Orange celebration held at Goshen, near here. On the same occasion he was presented by Mayor Moss and members of the Council with congratulatory addresses. An enlarged photo of Mr. Groves will be hung in the Council chamber, and will be another token of esteem, with the portraits of Mayors and oCuncillors of Renfrew, although he never held any municipal or other public office.

BUILD UP YOUR RESISTANCE

Perhaps you are one of the many people with whom coughs and colds are common occurrences during the winter months. You often acquire them early in the fall and they hang on all winter, pulling down the general health, lowering the resistance and making your life thoroughly unpleasant. They sometimes go away leaving you in a rundown condition, unfit for the spring days; and they sometimes hang on until serious troubles develop.

KEEP YOUR RESISTANCE UP TO PAR

and you will not have coughs and colds. If your resistance is low and you will develop such troubles easily and they will hang on indefinitely if you lack the resistance necessary to throw them off.

BUILD UP AND KEEP BUILT UP

That is easy. You have within you all the resisting power you need or ever will need. But that power is of no service to you so long as it does not reach every part of your body. As long as there is nerve impingement the flow of vital force, which makes you impervious to disease will be cut off, or checked, and you will be susceptible.

"My Friends Must Hear That Wonderful Voice"

You listen to a great singer. The beauty of the rendition almost overcomes you. Yet, mingled with the pleasure is a new desire. You must hear that voice again—many times. Also your friends must hear it, because you wish to share such joyful emotions with them.
With the New Edison you can do so. The New Edison brings to your own home the world's best music by the world's greatest artists. And as you doubtless know, the New Edison does more than imitate or mechanically reproduce this great music. The New Edison actually RE-CREATES music.
A few weeks ago Miss Lillian Peteler came to this city and sang in direct comparison, with the New Edison. Part of the time you were hearing the artist and part of the time the New Edison. BUT YOU COULD NOT TELL THEM APART. There was no difference. The New Edison gives you in your own home everything but the living presence of the artist.

Let us exhibit to you at your own home the marvelous music powers of the New Edison. We will on request bring a New Edison to you, and after demonstrating it, leave it for you to examine at your leisure. Take advantage of this pleasant method of inspection.

Power Shortage on Trent System

The shortage of power is entirely due to the lack of sufficient water, the control of which is vested in the Federal authorities. If the water which is stored in the Kawartha Lakes is not drawn on, the only relief will be from rainfalls.

The average monthly amounts of power supplied from the Central Ontario System during the summer of 1920 are considerably less than the amounts supplied in the corresponding months of 1918 and since the end of 1918 a new 5000 horse power unit has been placed in operation at Healey Falls. No power is being obtained from this unit at the present time because the natural flow of the Trent River is obstructed. The total capacity of the generating stations on the Central Ontario Systems exceeds by a large margin the total demand which it has ever been called upon to supply and a new 10,000 horse power development is under construction at Ranney Falls.

During the month of September the level of the water in three of the main lakes of the Trent Canal System was raised by holding back part of the natural flow. The amount of the water thus stored would, if it had been permitted to flow, have entirely prevented any power shortage.

The Commission is conserving the supply to the utmost of its ability and is distributing the amount of power available in the most equitable manner.

Consumers Are Asked to aid the Commission as far as they can to make the quantity of power available go as far as possible. Do not use current unnecessarily. Put away the electric heater. Use household appliances only when really needed. Turn out lamps when not required. Use small lamps instead of large where you can. Restrict the use of electric signs and display lighting. In the factory do not permit motors to drive idle shafting and belting. Stop motors when they are not driving producing machines.

Complete Co-operation will go a long way toward reducing the shortage. The Commission wishes to thank all of its customers who have so loyally worked with it in meeting the present emergency and feels confident that every customer will do his part in making the present limited supply available to all.

SATURDAY, OCTOBER 9
FIRE PREVENTION DAY

By Royal Proclamation, Saturday, the 9th day of October, has been set apart by the Dominion Government as Fire Prevention Day for the whole of Canada. The fire waste in this country is said to exceed that of any other country, considering the population. During the last ten years 2,600 persons have been burned to death and property valued at about $200,000,00 has obeen destroyed by fire in Canada. The people need not be told those facts. They are pretty well known all over the Dominion. The first question is how to stop this needless sacrifice of lives and loss of valuable property. With a view to reduce these losses the Government has suggested to the various municipalities the taking of the following among other steps:

"All dwellings and their surroundings be carefully inspected by their occupants and all conditions likely to cause or promote the spread of fires removed.

"All public buildings, stores, warehouses and factories be inspected and cleared of rubbish in order to reduce fire hazards and maintain health and safety.

"All hotels, theatres, asylums, hospitals and other institutional buildings be inspected and provision made for all changes necessary to protect the occupants from danger in the event of fire.

"Fire drills be held for the children in all schools, for the inmates of all institutions and for the employees in all large stores and factories in order that a greater degree of safety may be ensured by acquainting the occupants with the best and most expeditious mode of exit in time of danger.

"Special instruction on the subject of fire prevention be given by the teachers and by municipal officials in the schools and that such appropriate literature as may be made available be distributed to the pupils.

"Boy Scout leaders give instructions to the troops under their control as to the best means of co-operating with municipal fire departments in the prevention and extinguishment of fires and especially as to the desirability of qualifying for the fireman's badge.

"All legislation and regulations enacted or issued by Dominion, provincial or municipal authorities dealing with fire prevention be given publicity by the municipal officials and that by public meetings or otherwise as may to them seem most fit, they endeavor to impress upon the citizens the national importance of safeguarding life and property from loss by fire."

POWER SITUATION SERIOUS.
PROMPT ACTION IMPERATIVE

In connection with the power scarcity in Central Ontario statements have been made by Dominion Government officials that the Hydro Electric Commission has oversold its power capacity. This has been officially denied by Sir Adam Beck, chairman of the Hydro Commission, and the records for this district in the possession of Mr. O. H. Scott, Hydro manager at Belleville, show conclusively that more power was available and used in September 1918 and 1919 than in September 1920.

This should effectually refute the charge that the existing serious scarcity of electrical power is attributable to any over-selling of power capacity by the Hydro Electric Power Commission.

That the needs of navigation have anything to do with the hesitancy on the part of officials of the Dominion Railways and Canals department to release water held in storage is denied by these officials, who state that if the storage water is released now there may be a power scarcity later in the year and possible suits for damages in consequence from power users not now affected by the present power scarcity.

The situation grows worse every day and power is urgently needed by manufacturers to enable them to fill orders on hand pressing for delivery. Storage water released now will prevent serious financial loss to employers and employees alike, and it is quite possible that continuous and heavy rainfall may occur and provide for all future requirements. In any event, it will give the manufacturers power for present requirements when the peak load of pressure is on and give time to provide against future famine of electrical power by providing auxiliary power of gasoline or steam.

If the Government at Ottawa is not strong enough to force the Department of Railways and Canals to give up some of their storage water to prevent unemployment and heavy financial loss in Central Ontario it will be an example horrible of a tail which wags the dog and will shake the confidence of Central Ontario citizens in the efficiency of the Meighen Government, which would be a considerable calamity to the powers that be.

CRISP COMMENT

Do Canadians dislike Americans? The whole case is summed up in a few words by the Hamilton Herald when it says Canadians dislike the kind of Americans that Americans dislike.

Saturday is Fire Prevention Day when everybody should do something to lessen the fire risk. Canada's annual fire loss is huge and can be reduced materially by eliminating carelessness.

The Ottawa Journal wisely remarks that loyal as he may be to his class no farmer who thinks will vote to smash his home market, thus largely destroying the value and market ability of his farm.

The person who throws away a lighted cigar stub or cigarette or match without making sure that it can do no harm is a public enemy. Cut out carelessness and add to the nation's wealth.

Nature abhors a vacuum, especially in the coal-bin at this season of the year, sorrowfully remarks the Toronto Telegram "Ups and Downs" man. Yea, verily, brother, every little vacuum added to the many other vacuums makes more vacuums.

Politics are warming up in the United States. Presidential candidate Harding has been accused of stating that one dollar a day was a good wage for a workingman and that one dollar a bushel was plenty for wheat. Of course he denies that he ever made any such statements, but the truth can never hope to travel as fast as a lie.

OTHER VIEWS

TALK AND WORK
Victoria Colonist

Emma Goldman, the Russian Red, who was deported from the United States because of her enthusiasm for Bolshevism and all its works, does not seem to be quite happy in the home she depicted as flowing with milk and honey. She wants to come back to this country and the people in charge of her own country will not let her. They are keeping her there and making her work, when she anticipated having nothing to do but talk in the licensed manner she delighted in. But there were those ahead of Emma who are designated officially to do all the talking in Russia, and she is laboring with her hands, as all are forced to do who are not set apart for fighting and speechmaking. Everybody under Bolshevist rule, it seems, is conscripted for something. None are permitted to remain idle. The state, which is personified by Lenine and Trotsky, allots every person to certain tasks in accordance with training and capacity. Emma was singled out for domestic duties, and each of her companions in deportation was similarly treated. They are all laboring with their hands, whereas they subsided on the fruits of agitation when they were in the United States. Their dream of affluence and idleness has proved but 'the baseless fabric of a vision." It is a pleasant thing to dream dreams, but fatal to apply the test of reality to them.

A JOB AHEAD
Winnipeg Tribune

It is just as well to be frank, and admit that much of the railway taken over by the Dominion Government was "down at the heel," so to speak.

The energy of the new and better management, with the means at hand, is to place the Canadian National Railways on a par with the finest railway system on earth.

This high standardization is now in progress and it will meet with the enthusiastic general support on the public.

The first consideration in railway operation is public safety. Canada, with its enormous mileage, has an enviable record in this respect. The desire is to improve the record.

Accidents cannot be wholly avoided The best operated lines are not immune. But experience has shown that with concentrated attention, danger is reduced to a point where railway travellers are as safe, or safer, than pedestrians on our streets.

Canada, in the midst of its railway difficulties of a financial character, is not confounded with a plethora of systems. Today we have just two, under responsible heads. That should make for efficiency. As the public has in late years learned by experience, there has been little substantial in the talk of competition. In great public utilities, competition is not the regulator. Co-operation is the word.

The Thirteenth Commandment

By

RUPERT HUGHES

Copyright by Harper & Brothers

Daphne knew that she had no right to reproach Leila for having known Wetherell in Newport. She had no right even to suspect that Leila had overstepped any of the bounds of propriety. And still she was not convinced of Leila's innocence. She was merely silenced.

CHAPTER XXI.

The next day her fears of Wetherell and of Leila were rekindled. She went down to ask Bayard to help her trace Clay. Bayard was out and Leila was on the point of leaving. She was dressed in her killingest frock and hat and generally accoutered for conquest.

"Aren't we grand!" Daphne cried. "You look like a million dollars. Where are you off to?"

"Going for a little spin."

"Who with?"

Leila hesitated a moment, then answered, with a challenging defiance: "With Mr. Wetherell. Any objection?"

Daphne disapproved and felt afraid; but when Bayard came in unexpectedly early and asked for Leila Daphne lied inevitably and said she did not know where she was.

She tried to be casual about it, but Bayard caught fire at once. He was already in a state of tindery irritability, and Daphne's efforts to reassure him as to Leila's innocence of any guile only angered him the more.

He kept leaning out of the window and staring down into the street. Finally, espying Leila in Wetherell's car when it approached the apartment house, he dashed to the elevator and met the two at the curb.

When Leila got out she was startled to see him standing at her elbow. There was nothing for her to do but make the introductions.

"Oh, it's you, dear!" she fluttered. "I want you to meet Mr. Wetherell. Mr. Wetherell, my husband."

"Ah, really!" Wetherell exclaimed, trying to conceal his uneasiness. "This is a bit of luck! I've heard so much about you! Your wife does nothing but sing your praises."

"Won't you come up?" said Bayard ominously.

"Er—thanks—no, not today. I'm a trifle late to an—er—appointment."

"Then I'll have a word with you here," said Bayard. "Run along, Leila; I'll join you in a minute."

He said it pleasantly, but Leila was terrified. The spectacle of rival bucks locking horns in her dispute is not altogether enjoyable to a civilized doe. Leila went into the vestibule and watched through the glass door, expecting a combat. She could not hear Bayard saying:

"Mr. Wetherell, I'd thank you to pay your attentions elsewhere."

"What's that?" Wetherell gasped at the abrupt attack.

"Your attentions to Mrs. Kip are very distasteful to me."

"My dear fellow, I hope you don't imagine for one moment that— Why, your wife is the finest little girl in the world!"

"That's for me to say, not you!"

"My word! this is amazing!"

"It is, indeed. It will be more than that if you come around again. Had you heard that your country was at war?"

"I had."

"Well, a big, strapping fellow like you ought to be over there fighting for his country instead of looking for trouble here."

Wetherell's panic at the domestic situation was forgotten in the attack on his patriotism. He drew himself up with an unconsciously military automatism and said, "I fancy I'm doing as much service here as I could do over there."

"More, perhaps," Bayard sneered, with contemptuous irony. "But that's your business, not mine. Mrs. Kip is my business and I don't intend to have her subjected to your—your attentions. I'm trying to be neutral, but by— Well, I've warned you. Good day!"

Bayard joined Leila in the vestibule and they went up in the elevator together. She waited till they were in their own apartment before she demanded an account of the conversation.

He told her in a rage and she flew into another. She divided her wrath between Bayard and Daphne. There was enough for both. Daphne tried to escape, but, being cornered, proceeded to fight back, whereupon Leila denounced her to Bayard and told of her ride with Duane.

It was a right good fight and getting well beyond the bounds of discretion when the telephone announced that Clay Wimburn was calling.

Nobody imaginable would have been welcome in that battlefield, but Clay seemed peculiarly ill timed. Bayard went to the telephone and called down:

"Tell him we're out."

"Yes, sir."

Evidently the telephone was taken from the hallman's hand, for Clay's voice roared in Bayard's ear:

"I hear you, you old villain. I know you're in, and I'm coming up. It's a matter of life and death. I'm on my way up now."

It seemed decenter that Leila and Daphne should disappear, since Bayard had said that they were all out. The women retreated to Leila's room as a good coign of audition.

When Bayard opened the door Clay swept in like a March gale. He flung himself at Bayard and clenched his elbows in his hands and roared:

"Bayard! Bayard! It's come! We're rich! We're made! Eureka! Uneeda! Munitions! Wow! Listen! The other night while I was trailing a job in darkest New Jersey I ran across a little clue, and a little man who told me a little secret. The Germans have been getting ready for this war for years, piling up guns and ammunition for Der Tag. The other countries were caught only half ready. They have stopped the Germans on the Marne, but they've been using their shells at such a rate that the famine is near. Their only hope is to buy supplies of us. They're going to dump enough contracts on this country to furnish about a million dollars to every citizen. Their agents are pussy-footing round to distribute contracts quietly.

"The Bethlehem Steel company has gathered in a big lot of them, and I had a tip that the stock was going to boom; so are a lot of other stocks. I'd sell my right arm for a little cash. But there's no market for detached right arms, so I used mine to sign up a few little contracts for placing contracts, and I've plucked them and brought them to you." He broke into dance and whirled Bayard off his feet.

Bayard tried to be patient. "That's all very interesting, Clay, but take your delusions down to Bellevue, where they'll put you in the right cell. What can you or I do with ammunition contracts?"

"Accept 'em, you blamed idiot! Open up your old shut-up factory and get busy."

"We have no machinery for making ammunition."

"Get it, then, or adapt your machinery! They need millions of each article, for there are millions of men in the field using up what they've got so fast that it's only a matter of weeks before they'll be desperate."

Bayard began to see the scheme—also the obstacles. "But it takes money to make those things. Where will we get the cash for the pay rolls and the raw materials?"

"From the banks! The banks are bursting open with idle money; it's rotting on their hands!"

Bayard went aglow with the realization of the opportunity. He began to tremble at the vision of the sudden avalanches of wealth pouring down the bleak mountains of despair. He could hear the roar of the Niagaras of gold.

"PUSSYFOOT" JOHNSON HAS NARROW ESCAPE

London, Oct. 7—William E. "Pussyfoot" Johnson, the American temperance advocate, narrowly escaped from an angry crowd which interrupted one of his temperance meetings last night at Reading, Berkshire, and tried to break through the locked doors of the hall to erach him, according to a despatch to the Evening News yesterday. The crowd also threw foul-smelling chemicals.

The police had to be called out to prevent serious disorders. Johnson escaped with detectives by the rear exit of the hall through a graveyard to a taxicab. Strong, though less violent, opposition to Johnson, was reported from Wales recently.

PURITY - QUALITY - ECONOMY

With the increased cost of labor and materials due to war conditions, it is not reasonable to suppose that a really first class baking powder can be made and sold at the old prices. Rather than sacrifice the quality of we found it necessary to make slight increases in price during the war period. Even though Magic Baking Powder may cost a few cents more than the ordinary kinds it is still by far the most economical baking powder on the market to-day when purity, strength and leavening qualities are taken into consideration.

PHILADELPHIA POLICE NAB NEW YORK GUNMEN

Philadelphia, Oct. 4—Five gunmen were brought to this city from New York more than a week ago in a carefully-laid plot to rob gambling houses and large individual winners, according to a confession the police say was made by Christopher Murano, who is in a hospital with two bullet wounds in his stomach. Murano was wounded early yesterday when a squad of police raided an alleged gambling house and found the inmates backed up against the wall threatened by five masked men, who were going through the gamblers' pockets and stacking money and jewelry on the table.

Joseph McGinn, a detective, was fatally wounded in the fight which ensued. Murano, according to the police, admitted that he shot McGinn. Three of the alleged bandits are in prison, while the police are searching for the fifth man who is said to have escaped in a taxi-cab during the fight.

ANOTHER DEATH FOLLOWS SILO FIRE

Peterboro, Oct. 5—Another death occurred this afternoon in connection with the silo fire in Ennismore township. John Brick, aged 66 years, succumbed to the burns he received while trying to make his way out of the burning barn. The body of Edward Corkery, fourteen years old, was taken from the ruins late last evening. Timothy Crough, on whose farm the disastrous fire took place, is still in the hospital as a result of burns, but it is expected he will recover.

Mr. Crough was making his way through the burning stable with Corkery in his arms. The frantic kicking of the nine horses that perished in the fire caused Crough to drop the boy, and subsequent efforts to recover him failed.

The actual cause of the fire is unknown. It appeared to originate in the stable.

CATCHES A MAN-EATER WITH ROD AND REEL

CAPE MAY, N. J., Oct. 7.—A big man-eating shark caught by Dr. Paul S Howe, rector of the Episcopal Church, attracted large crowds yesterday to the pier on which it was exhibited.

Dr. Howe was fishing with rod and reel for channel bass when he had a monster strike. He battled for an hour and a half before the shark was brought to gaff. Three small sharks and half a dozen croakers were found inside the shark when it was cut open.

Lifeguards at both stations say the shark had been seen in shallow water here, and, as sharks usually travel in pairs, it is believed another is probably in the vicinity.

You can wear Woollen Underwear if the "Itch" is taken out

Overheard at a Club---

One day at the Club I overheard two fellow members talking of the coming cold weather---one chap said,

"I do hate cold weather; I wish I could wear woollen underwear, but my skin is too sensitive."

And the other said, "Well, there's one make of woollen underwear you or anyone can wear, no matter how sensitive their skins may be---and that is "CEETEE."

It is the softest stuff I have ever seen or worn---you just try it. I know you will like it."

He spoke the truth---"CEETEE" pure wool underclothing is so clean and soft a baby can wear it.

There is none other like it made in Canada.

Only the finest Australian Merino wool is used.

Try Magesia For Stomach Trouble

It Neutralizes Stomach Acidity, Prevents Food Fermentation, Sour Gassy Stomach and Acid Indigestion

Doubtless if you are a sufferer from indigestion, you have already tried pepsin, bismuth, soda, charcoal, drugs and various digestive aids and you know these things will not cure your trouble—in some cases do not even give relief.

But before giving up hope and deciding you are a chronic dyspeptic just try the effect of a little bisurated magnesia—not the ordinary commercial carbonate, citrate, oxide or milk, but the pure bisurated magnesia which you can obtain from practically any druggist in either powder or tablet form.

Take a teaspoonful of the powder or two compressed tablets with a little water after your next meal and see what a difference this makes. It will instantly neutralize the dangerous, harmful acid in the stomach which now causes your food to ferment and sour, making gas, wind, flatulence, heartburn and the bloated or heavy, lumpy feeling that seems to follow most everything you eat.

You will find that provided you take a little bisurated magnesia immediately after a meal, you can eat almost anything and enjoy it without any danger of pain or discomfort to follow and moreover, the continued use of the bisurated magnesia cannot injure the stomach in any way so long as there are any symptoms of acid indigestion.

Navy League Will Pension Widows

Seek to Raise $760,000 to Pension Widows and Orphans of Merchant Sailors

Eastern Ontario cities and towns now lead the Province of Ontario in connection with the campaign of the Navy League of Canada to raise $760,000 to pension the widows and orphans of the merchant sailors' who lost their lives on active service during the war, to train continuously 2,000 boys, to help sailors' institutes, etc. Northern Ontario towns which were leading have been passed by the eastern centres.

Twenty-six cities and towns have elected committees for local campaign purposes and with eleven centres yet to hear from have exceeded all expectations. Reports from the various committees show that no less than ten cities and towns spurned the amount set by the Navy League headquarters for this very worthy cause, and sent back voluntary objectives.

Napanee leads the list reporting back to headquarters that they would not only double the amount to be raised, but would increase it four times. They are out to raise $2,000.

Marmora's committee was asked for $200, but a voluntary objective of $600 has been sent.

Renfrew also jumper their objective up three times the original amount, Belleville two and a half, Trenton and Deseronto twice the amount suggested, and Kingston one and a half.

Kingston, however, has the largest amount to raise. The local committee voluntarily boosting the objective from $8,000 to $12,000. Belleville will raise $5,000, Napanee and Trenton each $2,000.

Called by Death

DR. WM. J. GIBSON

Many hearts are sad to-day not only in Belleville but the entire surrounding district in the knowledge that a valued friend had passed to the Great Beyond in the death at Rochester, Minnesota, of Dr. Wm. J. Gibson, for years a leading medical practitioner and clever surgeon at Belleville. While it has been generally known for some time that Dr. Gibson was in poor health and that recently he had gone to consult eminent specialists in regard to his physical condition his many friends entertained no thoughts of the prospects of a fatal outcome. The news of his death following an operation, therefore, came as a great shock and he will be mourned not only by the many patients included in his large practice who always had the most implicit confidence in his skill and methods, but by a wider circle of friends who had l neraedtoedanlhF at friends who had learned to respect and admire his many admirable qualities.

Dr. Gibson was a true physician, wrapped up in his profession which was always his first and absorbing thought, his life work to which he devoted his best efforts and his outstanding talents, but beneath professional reserve often mistaken for bruskness, the most kindly of hearts always beat in sympathy for those he ministered to and the poor and afflicted in every walk of life.

Dr. Gibson was a good citizen of Belleville, a true friend, and one who will be greatly missed in this community. His passing will be sincerely mourned by a great host of friends and admirers who had learned to appreciate to the full his many kindly qualities.

The late Dr. Gibson had been a resident of Belleville for about 42 years, previous to which he was in Kingston for some time. Before entering the medical profession deceased was for some time engaged in the teaching profession and like his medical career was eminently successful. He was a graduate of Queen's University and from that institution of learning received the degree of Master of Arts. He also received the degree of M. D. Dr. Gibson was a member of St. Andrews church and since his advent in the city had been a member of The Belleville Lodge A.F. & A.M. Deceased was about 72 years of age. A widow, but no family survives. The body will be brought here for interment.

Anglican Church Leaders Confer

The quarterly meeting of the executive committee of the Diocese of Ontario was held in St. George's Hall Kingston. Bishop Bidwell presided and the secretary, Canon J. W. Jones, presented his report. There were present the chancellor, Judge McDonald, Archdeacons, O. G. Dobbs and Beamish; Canon J. W. Jones, Rev. J. W. Coleman, Canon W. F. Fitzgerald, Rev. J. Lyons, Dean Starr, Canon Rev. R. W. Spencer, Rural Deans, Swayne, Crisp, French, Smith, Rev. A. L. Mc Tear, R. J. Carson, (treasurer., Francis King (lay secretary), J. B. Walkem, W. B. Dalton, J. H. Dawson, Judge Reynolds, F. F. Miller, A. W. Gray, M. P. P., A. N. Lyster, Dr. Jackson.

After prayers, the correspondence was dealt with. There were letters of appreciation from widows, expressing thanks for their increased annuities. Applications were received for permission to borrow on church property recently erected, from St. Peters, Brockville, for a sum not to exceed $8,000, and St. James, Kingston, not to exceed $15,000. These applications were granted under the usual conditions. Permission was granted to sell the rectory at Gananoque and a piece of the unused cemetery at Westport.

Archdeacon Beamish, in very felicitious terms, welcomed Bishop Bidwell back from the Lambeth conference. A resolution was presented expressing appreciation of the bishop's work, and his safe return, and was carried with much enthusiasm.

The secretary reported that he had received notices of the following legacies: $25 for the Women's and Orphans' Fund from the estate of the late Mrs. V. H. Murney, Belleville, $400 to be paid on behalf of the Herald Angels church from the estate of the late James G. Bermingham, a former member of the congregation; also $6,500 from the estate of the late B. S. O'Loughlin, Yarker, for many years a member of the executive. A formal vote of thanks was passed.

Temporary superannuation grants of $500 were made to Rev. C. B. S. Ryan, Coe Hill, and Rev. George Cole, Athens, on account of serious illness.

Certain correspondence was dealt with regarding Belleville rectory and the solicitor presented his report setting forth the judge's decision in recent litigation. The technical differences will soon be amicably adjusted.

A committee was appointed to assist the bishop in securing candidates for holy orders in the diocese.

Rev. T. Savary presented a report on Sunday schools, and some suggestions offered were adopted.

A resolution of sympathy with Rev. C. Watson in his recent bereavement, by the death of his wife, was passed.

The report of the Anglican Forward Movement in the diocese showed that 6,732 subscribers subscribed $147,957, of which $63,000 had been paid through the diocese to headquarters, Toronto. The sum of $15,000 had been allocated by the Dominion Forward Movement to the beneficiary funds of the Ontario diocese.

A strong committee was appointed by the bishop to recommend to the executive an equitable division among the various benefit funds of all money received from the headquarters of the Forward Movement.

The stipends of missionary clergy was dealt with, and several grants were made to needy missions. It is expected the salaries this year will be better than in former years.

A resolution of regret was unanimously passed upon the resignation of Rural Dean Crisp, of St. John's, Portsmouth, and also wishing him bon voyage on his twelve months' leave of absence to England.

The financial condition of the diocese shows great improvement, and there was a spirit of great optimism throughout all the proceedings of the meeting.

Cannot Describe Terror In London

Air Raids Almost Completely Shattered Mrs. Hunt's Nerves But Tanlac Restores Health

"Tanlac has built me up from a nervous wreck to where I am a well woman feeling finer than I have in years," recently said Mrs. Kathleen Hunt, of 32 Dartnell Ave., Toronto, Ont.

"I was in London during the war, and as the result of the air raids my nerves were almost completely shattered. Night after night I used to lie awake in fear of the Zeppelins and Gothas, and when they did come we all had to get down into the basement of the house, and the noise of the bombs dropping all around, and our guns trying to bring the enemy down was most terrifying. I simply can't describe what we went through and it is no wonder that the health of thousands of people gave way under the strain.

"I lost all desire for food and my digestion became so upset that I couldn't eat a thing without suffering distress afterwards. My blood became thin and I fell off in weight until I was a mere shadow of what I used to be. I constantly had headaches that almost drove me distracted and altogether I was in a sad plight.

"Well, that was the condition I was in when I came to Toronto, and soon after I got here I was advized by a druggist to try Tanlac as the best possible medicine for troubles like mine. It was really surprising how it helped me. It wasn't long before I had a good appetite and could sleep better at night.

"I soon found that I could eat anything I wanted without suffering in the least from indigestion, and I improved right along. I haven't had a trouble of any kind now and in fact never felt better in my life. I shall always have a good word to say for Tanlac, for I think it is a perfectly

Little Miss Betty Wily, niece of the bride, was flower girl, frocked in frilled net over pink taffeta, with pink taffeta hat with black streamers, and carrying a gold basket of Sweetheart roses. Dr. Ambrose Moffat was best man. The ushers were Mr. Charles Bath, Mr. Douglas Ross, cousin of the bride, Dr. Harold McClelland and Dr. Carl Martin. After the ceremony the bride's sister, Mrs. Walter Wily, held a reception at her home in Elgin avenue, and later Dr. and Mrs. Helliwell left for a short trip, after which they will reside at 130 Glenholme avenue. The bride travelled in brown tricotine with opossum collar and cuffs, and brown hat with henna-colored flowers.—Toronto Telegram.

SCOTT—HEASLIP

An interesting wedding took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Heaslip, Riverview Farm, Wellandport, Ont., when their daughter, Myrtle, became the bride of Mr. William Wesley Scott, son of Mr. George V. Scott. Both bride and groom were graduates of the Ontario School for the Deaf, Belleville, and the ceremony was performed by Rev. E. C. Searle, assisted by Mrs. J. R. Byrne, of Toronto, as interpreter. Mr. Gordon Heaslip played the wedding march. The bride wore cream Georgette over gold satin with embroidered veil and orange blossoms and carried Ophelia roses. Miss Alice Hill as flower girl wore a white French dress and carried a pink basket of sweet peas, and Miss Mabel Hill was ring-bearer and Mrs. Frank Puckner sang "God Gave You to Me." When later Mr. and Mrs Scott left for Hamilton the latter wore brown wool tricotine with hat to match. They will reside at 194 Silver Birch ave., Balmy Beach, Toronto.

Cork City Hall Bombed And Partly Destroyed

SIX EXPLOSIONS EARLY SATURDAY MORNING FOLLOWED BY RIFLE FIRING — WATER DEPARTMENT WITH RECORDS OF FIFTY YEARS DESTROYED— BOMBS THROWN THROUGH WIDOWS

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer, Canadian Press, Limited.

CORK, Oct. 9.—Part of the City Hall here was destroyed by bombs about four o'clock this morning. Six explosions were heard and were followed by considerable rifle firing. So far as is known there were no casualties.

The damage was chiefly confined to rooms in the west end of the building, one of which was used by the Water Department. It was burned out by the fire following the explosion and the department books and records for fifty years were destroyed. The blaze was prevented from spreading by stone partition walls. Adjoining rooms occupied by the Public Health department were damaged by the explosion, the theory being that bombs were thrown in through the windows.

Bullet Wound In His Head

Dead Body of G.T.R. Employee Found at London—Formerly C.P.R. Engineer

LONDON, Ont., Oct. 8—The body of Cyril Elliott, aged thirty-four, of 669 Dundas street, was found by school children at Springbank waterworks, Reservoir Hill, at 4.30 this afternoon. He had been missing from his home since Wednesday afternoon. There was a bullet wound in his left temple and a revolver was beside him.

Coroner C. C. Ross of Hyde Park, will conduct an inquest. Elliott was formerly a C. P. R. engineer, operating between Toronto and Windsor, but a few years ago he suffered a stroke of paralysis, and he had since been partly disabled. He was employed at the east-end yard offices of the Grand Trunk, and obtained permission to leave Wednesday, explaining that he was unwell.

Later he deposited money in a bank and left his watch to be cleaned by a jeweller. He afterwards telephoned his wife and said nothing to arouse attention. When a search was instituted today it was reported that he had been seen at Springbank with a stranger, but the story was not given credence until his body was discovered.

World Series At Clevland

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer, Canadian Press, Limited.

CLEVELAND, Oct. 9.—The baseball pride smoldering in the hearts of Cleveland fans through forty years of championship aspirations blazed into a fury of excitement today for the fourth game of the World Series between Brooklyn and Cleveland. Every incoming train and suburban car dumped its load of fans into the city, filling up every hotel and rooming house to capacity. Early indications were that a capacity crowd of twenty-seven thousand persons would witness today's game. Every reserved seat was taken a month ago.

Stanley Cloveleskie, who pitched Cleveland to victory in the first game, is expected to be Manager Speaker's selection, while Big Jeff Pfeffer is regarded as Robinson's choice. Both pitchers are right handers.

PIG WORTH $10,000 SLEEPS IN HOTEL

Des Moines, Iowa, Oct. 9—In Iowa nothing is too good for the hog. Baby Hawk-Eye Giant, an eight months' old junior champion porker, weighing 350 pounds, and valued at $10,000 arrived at a prominent down-town hotel in an expensive automobile yesterday, walked into the hotel lobby on carpets spread especially for his visit, was registered by W. J. Carmichael, secretary of the National Swine Show posed for a picture and then snorted his way haughtily into the elevator and rose to a tenth floor, corner front room, where he spent the night.

Would Import 50,000 Farmers

TORONTO, Oct. 9—Through agents in Great Britain the Ontario Government is attempting to secure 50,000 farmers and farm hands for the Province within the next year or so. "We could place 25,000 farm hands right at the present time," said Mr. H. A. Macdonnell, Director of Colonization for the Government.

As it is next to impossible to secure this number of farmer immigrants from the British Isles it is learned that the Ontario Government plans to establish offices in Norway, Sweden, Denmark and Holland to attempt to secure immigration from these countries. Great Birtain, with a plan under way to put as much land under cultivation as possible, a lesson learned during the war, is anxious to keep all farm laborers at home, and British immigrants will not be available in any numbers. For this reason it was decided to attempt to secure farm help from the countries named.

Danes Are Experts

It is hoped to secure a large number of Danes, the Danish farmers being particularly expert in stock-raising, which industry is receiving all the encouragement possible from the Government. The immigrants from these countries where agencies are to be established bear the reputation of being hard workers and of making good citizens.

The first batch of farm hands to come to Ontario will sail from Liverpool on March 1, and there will be about 500 in the party. These are all single men. A second batch will follow at the end of March with the married men and families, and this party is also to number about 500 all told. Arrangements for their settling on Ontario farms have already been made.

President of American Association Says There Should be Enough For All.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 9—Reductions in coal prices may be expected soon, Charles L. Couch, President of the American Wholesale Coal Asociation, announced.

Mr. Couch, following a meeting of the Executive Committee of the organization at which the entire coal situation was canvassed, declared that it is the opinion of the committee that a great change in the whole coal market situation is imminent. He suggested to buyers of bituminous coal who have a month's supply in storage to confine their purchases to immediate needs.

Prices which have prevailed for bituminous coal, Mr. Couch declared, are not justified by the present satisfactory production.

Mr. Couch's organization is made up of wholesalers and not producers. The National Coal Association, which includes producers, recently advised the public that if present purchases be limited to the amount of coal needed there will be plenty for all after December 1, when the lake navigation season closes. The National Coal Association offered no promise of reduction in price, however.

SUES HIS FATHER FOR AUTO INJURIES; WINS

Montreal, Oct. 8—A case declared without precedent in the legal annals of this province was decided in the Superior Court here when Sarto Marchand, minor, son of Victor Marchand, sued through his tutor and uncle, Alphonse Marchand, and obtained judgment against his father for $5,000 damages for injuries sustained through being crushed under his father's automobile at Ste. Genevieve in June, 1919.

Counsel for the defense at one tsage of the proceedings informed the court he would withdraw from the case, as it was obvious that his client wished to lose the case and had apparently sanctioned the action with that end in view solely. Later he agreed to hold a watching brief for his client.

As the case went on it became apparent that the acute interests involved in the defense were those of the insurance company, which, under a special clause in the policy as held by the defendant, can only become liable for injuries for which the owner of the insured automobile has been judicially condemned.

Uncle John captured the Guineas Handicap at Kenilworth Park.

It is estimated that at least fifteen thousand fans will be unable to secure tickets for today's World Series game at Cleveland.

Eskimo Murderer Becomes Constable

Tribesmen Send Message of Gratitude to "White Chief" for Leniency

OTTAWA, Oct. 8—Gratitude to the Great White Chief for his leniency to their brethren who were brought out to face the white man's law was expressed by the Eskimo bands who inhabit the region on the shores of Coronation Gulf, when four natives, two of them found guilty of murder, by the Royal Canadian Mounted Police.

Staff-Sergt. Clay, R.C.M.P., who, with Constables Cornelius and Brockie returned four Eskimo prisoners to their friends in the North, states in a report to headquarters here that the natives of Ioktoon, one of the native villages, were anxious to show their appreciation of the white man's leniency, and asked the police to assure the authorities that they were good people and were grateful for the white man's goodness to the Eskimo.

Sergeant Clay tells of taking back Alukask and Sinnisiak, the Eskimos who were tried at Edmonton for the murder of a Catholic priest, and later returned to their own people, and also natives Komik and Cayugana, who were acquitted of murder charges after a preliminary hearing at Fort McPherson, in January, 1919. Sinnisiak, during his brief journey to civilization, managed to pick up enough English language to make himself useful as an interpreter, and in reports Sergeant Clay mentions the Eskimo murderer as having proven himself so useful to the police in their patrols among strange bands of natives that he was taken on the force as a special constable.

THEFT OF GOODS FROM RAILWAY CARS

MONTREAL, Oct. 8—A new arrest, making a total of ten, has been made in connection with the $45,000 thefts from the C. P. R. yards. The man arrested, Jas. Leroux, a trainman, was brought in from Lachine yesterday by Sub-Chief Cherrier and appeared before Judge Lanctot yesterday in the Court of Arraignment. Enquette was set for October 15, and accused was released on $2,000 bail.

Further evidence in the case, which involves a series of thefts covering a period of twelve months, and involving ten men of the railroad, was given by Albert Gagne, a waiter at the hotel of Joe Cauchon at Lachine. He stated that on three occasions he had received boxes of cigarettes, twice from Labelle and Dubois and once from A. Pilon, all accused of theft in the case, for which F. Perault, accused as being a receiver of stolen goods, paid him sums of $450, $360 and $270., which money was split up among them. Gagne stated that these cigarettes were left in a field near his house during the night and that he was told to fetch them. Labelle, he said, cautioned him to be guarded in spending his money and also to destroy any parts of the boxes which might remain after the cigarettes had been disposed of. He accordingly burned the cartoon and did not notice to whom they were addressed. When asked whether he was aware that he had committed a theft he said that he was not. The answers given to teh attorney for the crown caused considerable amusement in the courtroom, as, when, asked if he had spent the money on drink, Gagne replied "I work in a hotel and there is no prohibition in Lachine."

John Doyle, the only one of the ten accused to plead guilty, and who has confessed his part in the thefts and implicated a number of his companions, continued his testimony today. Doyle admitted receiving as his share of certain transactions $100, ten pounds of butter and two bottles of whisky, for which he accused the yard foreman, S. Fournelle.

After the testimony of Inspector Cadieux, of the C. P. R., as to finding a quantity of tweed cloth and a boy's suit, which are identified as missing from the yards, in the home of Jos. S. Beauregard of Lachine, one of the ten accused, the case was adjourned for the day.

Montreal Objects To Deep Waterway

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer Canadian Press Limited.

MONTREAL, Oct. 8—Objection to the project of developing navigable channels of the Great Lakes on the ground that it would increase the volume of business between the Canadian west and the United States ports was made on behalf of the Montreal Chambers of Commerce before the international boundary waterways commission which met here today. A resolution of the chamber embodying this objection was duly filed with the commission.

New York Also Objects

New York, Oct 8—Projected St. Lawrence river, Great Lakes Canal was opposed in a resolution adopted yesterday by the New York State Chamber of Commerce at its first monthly meeting of the fall season. The resolution said that body was opposed to any participation by the United States in the expense of the scheme and authorized the committee on internal trade and improvements to so represent the views of the body when it meets in New York, and if it is necessary, before Congress.

"Round-The-World" Motorists In B.C.

VANCOUVER, Oct. 8—In the world motor tour which has already included Eastern Canada, 46 American States, Mexico, and now British Columbia, Walter Wanderwell, who admits that is just a "home-made" name for the occasion, arrived in Vancouver yesterday with his party. The car is a "home-made" one, too, but with its substantial steel body and demountable steel rims for travelling on railway tracks is a much more durable article than the average pleasure car.

The party consists of Mr. Wanderwell, who has been engaged in globe-trotting since he was 16 years of age on foot, as a sailor before the mast, and now as motorist, his wife, whom he met and married in 1919, Al. Nelson, mechanic, and Bob Palmer, photographer. They contemplate sailing for Australia on the Niagara in continuation of their tour. The party earns its way by taking and exhibiting motion pictures of its experiences by writing magazine articles, and by taking jobs when necessary.

Their long grey car with its British and American flags and its 'round-the-world' banners attracted much attention.

Coal Situation Has Better Look

OTTAWA, Oct. 8—According to a report received by the Board of Railway Commissioners from Washington, the United States authorities have just completed arrangements to increase the coal tonnage destined for Canada by way of lake ports before navigation closes. They will exert every effort from now on to keep teh coal cars moving between the lake ports and the mines.

Satisfactory reports as to production in the American bituminous and anthracite fields have been received. In the anthracite fields the total production for the week ending September 25 was 1,650,000 tons, which was within 168,000 tons of output during the last week before the strike. As there is now a general resumption of work in the anthracite region the output should steadily increase. For the week ending September 25, the total output of soft coal totalled 1,817,000 tons, this being the biggest weekly production since January. It is believed that production for the last week of September, figures for which are not yet available, will be quite equal to those for the previous week.

Crop Estimates Very Encouraging

Canadian Press Limited

WINNIPEG, Oct. 9—Total field crops of Canada will this year reach nearly one and a quarter billion bushels while products of hay and corn will exceed twenty-five million tons as compared with over one billion bushels of grain and twenty million tons of hay and corn last year, according to official figures compiled by J. Bruce Walker of the Department of Immigration and Colozintaion, It is estimated that the price of 1920 wheat will average two dollars bushel.

Not War But Murder In Ireland Said Lloyd George

IRISH POLICE DO NOT BURN HOUSES AND SHOOT MEN WITHOUT PROVOCATION, SAID PREMIER — 238 POLICEMEN SHOT, WITH 109 DEATHS— POLICE SHOT IN BACK.

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer, Canadian Press, Limited.

CARNARVON, Wales, Oct. 9.—Lloyd George, in a speech here today concerning the situation in Ireland, referred to the reprisals. He argued that the police in Ireland do not burn houses and shoot men without provocation. The Premier said that 238 policemen had been shot, 109 of whom had been shot dead, and the patience of the police had given way with the result that they hit back.

The Premier declared that if, as contended, there was war in Ireland, then war must be waged on both sides. When the police were shot in the back, however, it was not war, but murder. Lloyd George asked whether, under a system of terrorism which made it impossible to obtain evidence, was it any wonder the police shot murderers. We must, however, restore order in Ireland even by stern methods, the Premier asserted, because we can not permit that country to fall into complete anarchy.

Cabinet Council Considers Power

Relief Measures in Power Scarcity Being Considered by the Government.

A decision by the Government at Ottawa in regard to the power situation in central Ontario is expected today. E. Guss Porter, K.C., M.P., called up Premier Meighen on the long distance telephone this morning and again urged the importance of a speedy decision being reached and relief given the manufacturers of this district by the release of water held in storage by the government. Premier Meighen informed Mr. Porter that the matter was being considered in Cabinet Council today. Mr. Porter also called up Hon. Mr. Sifton, acting Minister, and discussed the situation with that gentleman in detail, pointing out that all of the manufacturers concerned had signed the required agreement except two at Peterboro, and those two could not possibly be affected as they had a surplus of power which they were selling to the Hydro Electric Commission.

JUROR CAN'T UNDERSTAND EVIDENCE IN FRENCH

Monteral, Oct. 8—The case, Ambroise Bourdage, accused of manslaughter, which was taken up by the Court of King's Bench today may have to be started all over again after evidence covering several hours had been heard. After the court had adjourned, it was discovered that one of the jurymen could not understand a word of French, and all the evidence had been heard in that language. The man's name, curiously enough, is thoroughly French, being Leduc. The point will be taken up in court tomorrow.

Stepping Upward In Oddfellowship

Moira Encampment No. 59, I.O.O.F. held one of the largest attended meetings that has been held in this city.

Grand Patriarch W. M. Wilson, of Napanee, accompanied by P. G. P. L. B. Cooper, R. H. Ketcheson, E. C. Garbutt and M. Sinclair were present on an official visit from the Grand Encampment. A number of members were also present from Stirling, Picton, Trenton and Napanee, and a large class of candidates were advanced in the order.

Moira team exemplified the Patriarchal degree on 29 candidates. Stirling No. 80 then advanced them to the Golden Rule Degree and Imperial No. 97, Toronto, exalted them to the Royal Purple Degree in a manner which has seldom been seen in Belleville, calling forth enthusiastic comment.

After business the Belleville members assisted by the sisters of the Rebekah Lodge served a splendid banquet in the lodge room, when everything that was good was on the table.

The Chief Patriarch of Moira, Isaac Sills, took charge of the toast list, the first one being to the Grand Encampment coupled with the name of the Grand Patriarch who made a splendid speech in reply thanking the members for the manner in which they had extended such a welcome in his honor. He congratulated the degree teams on the splendid manner in which they conferred the degrees.

Imperial Encampment No. 97 Toronto, was the next toast and was responded to by P. G. P. M. Sinclair and P. C. P. E. G. Johnson.

Stirling Encampment was the next toast and was replied to by D. G. P J. M. Clarke and P.D.D.G.P. W. T. Sine.

The newly admitted candidates was the next toast which was replied to by Patriarch Garrison of Stirling.

The toast of Subordinate Lodges was replied to by D.D.G.M. C. Vanalstine of Trenton and P. G. S. Murphy of Stirling.

The last and most popular toast of the evening was to the ladies which received musical honors, cheers and a 'Tiger.' Sister Maud Naylor, N. G., of Quintena Lodge, thanked the members for the manner in which they had received the toast and appealed to any brothers not yet Rebekahs to get busy and join.

Miraculous Cure By Faith healer

OTTAWA, Oct. 9—Five and a half years bedridden her body and limbs below the waist being paralyzed, Miss Edith Lafontaine, for almost six years an inmate of St. Luke's Hospital, has recovered and now walks with the ease and grace of any other girl of her age.

The restoration of the power of her limbs, according to Miss Lafontaine is the direct result of the ministration of James Moore Hickson, the Church of England lay healer, who conducted a mission in St. Alban's Church at the end of June last. She is emphatic in her declaration that the physicians attending her were powerless to effect a recovery, and that her healing is due to the laying on of hands and prayer of Mr. Hickson.

Childhood Indigestion

Nothing is more common in childhood than indigestion. Nothing is more dangerous to proper growth, more weakening to the constitution or more likely to pave the way to dangerous disease. Fully nine-tenths of all the minor ills of childhood have their root in indigestion. There is no medicine for the little ones to equal Baby's Own Tablets in relieving this trouble. They have proved of benefit in thousands of homes. Concerning them Mrs. Jos Lunette, Immaculee, Conception, Que., writes: "My baby was a great sufferer from indigestion, but the Tablets soon set her right and now I would not be without them." Baby's Own Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

MUSIC AND DRAMA

FARNUM AT HIS BEST IN "JOYOUS TROUBLEMAKERS"

With tonight's performance the successful engagement of William Farnum in the Fox photodrama "The Joyous Troublemakers" at Griffin's comes to an end. A great majority of Belleville film lovers are William Farnum fans, and make it a point of seeing every picture in which this star appears. "The Joyous Troublemakers" adds one more great success to Farnum's long list of motion picture triumphs. In many ways his characterization of William Steele is one of the best things he ever has done, in spite of the fact that it is a very different sort of role from any in which he has been seen recently. The story is fresh and bright. It lives up to its merry title. But it is not all laughter; the tears that sometimes lie behind a smile have taken their place, for it is a story of love and gold—both dangerous things. A beautiful and interesting Travelogue "Moosing." Charles Hutchison in the latest chapter of "The Whirlwind," and Hank Mann in a burlesque of "Dr. Jehykl and Mr. Hyde," are also being shown in addition to the feature offering.

TOM MOORE IN "THE GAY LORD QUEX"

A rash and genial lover is always a popular idol. His very fickleness is enchanting for the man who gives his sweetheart something to worry about is always in her thoughts. Sir Arthur Wing Pinero, the eminent dramatist, created this type of hero in the new Tom Moore picture, "The Gay Lord Quex," which was played on the stage in both England and America. The film production will be presented by Goldwyn at Griffin's next Tuesday and Wednesday, along with a Burton Holmes Travelogue, "Smiling" Billy Parsons in a two-reel capital comedy, "Sea Wolf," and Jack Dempsey in "Daredevil Jack."

Frequent Headaches A Danger Signal

The Victim Nearly Always Suffers From Weak Watery Blood

There are few ailments that cause more genuine misery than nervous or sick headaches. Only those who have endured the suffering, sometimes for days at a stretch, can realize the agony of the victims. Noises increase the pain, food is unthought of, for it only adds to the distress. When the attack is on there is little to be done until it passes away. These headaches are nearly always a danger signal that too frequently pass unheeded. They are the symptoms of many maladies, such as anaemia, constipation, indigestion, etc., and when these are cured the headaches permanently disappear. Headaches are more often a sign of weak, watery blood than anything else, and the most successful treatment, therefore, is a remedy that will rebuild the blood and make it rich and red. This can best be done through a fair course of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, which has a special action on the blood, and through the blood on the nerves. In this way Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have been found invaluable in a wide range of diseases due to poor, watery blood, such as anaemia, rheumatism, indigestion, after effects of influenza, neuralgia, etc. The effectiveness of this tonic treatment is illustrated in the following case: Mrs. Geo. Arn, R. R., No. 6, Simcoe, Ont., says:—"Some years ago my daughter, then a young girl of eleven, became very much run down and nervous. She was troubled greatly with sick headaches and frequently with vomiting spells, and although we lived just across the road from the school, she was not able to attend. She was taking medicine all this time, but it did not seem to do her any good. I had often read of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and finally decided to give them to her. By the time she had taken two boxes she seemed much better, and before the fifth box was finished, she was again in the best of health and has always since enjoyed the best of health. I am satisfied it was Dr. Williams' Pink Pills that restored her, and I have since seen equally good results in other cases."

You can get Dr. Williams' Pink Pills through any dealer in medicine or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

The Thirteenth Commandment

By
RUPERT HUGHES

Copyright by Harper & Brothers

Daphne and Leila came rushing from concealment. Clay's beatitude was so complete that he forgot his resentments and kissed them both.

Bayard was frantic to be at work. He resolved to telephone the president of his company at once and lay the matter before him. Leila cannily advised Bayard to grasp the whip hand of the situation and keep it. She began to dance about the room like a Miriam celebrating the passage of the Red sea.

"The first thing we'll do," she said, "will be to get my jewelry out of the pawnshop and the second will be to buy some more. And, oh, the dresses and the hats!"

This asserted a sobering effect on Bayard. "No," he announced. "We've gone through hades once because I gambled away my reserves. This time I'm going to get a big reserve before I spend a cent. I'll never risk another ordeal like the one we've been through. No more fractures of the Thirteenth for me!"

Leila laughed.

Bayard went to the telephone to start the wheels of the factory in motion by summoning the president to council. He paused to ask: "He'll want to know who the foreign agent is you are dealing with? Or are there several? Who shall I say?"

"Wetherell," said Clay.

The great Skoda gun that suddenly one day dropped a monster shell in Dunkirk twenty miles off could hardly have caused more stupefaction than the name of Wetherell detonating in that room.

Daphne snatched her hand from Clay's. Bayard sprang up so sharply that he almost threw Leila forward on her face. Instinctively he caught her by the arm and saved her from falling. But instantly he flung her arm from him in a gush of disgust.

Clay gaped at the tableau in bewilderment. He had not dreamed that any of the three had ever heard of Wetherell. He could not imagine the bitterness the name involved.

"Will some kind friend please tell me what all the excitement is about?"

This was not easy. Who wanted to tell Clay that Leila had just been accused of neglecting her husband and her own duties for the society of this very Wetherell? Leila herself was the one that told him.

"Look here, Bydie," Leila cooed and billed, "don't you think you've done enough? You've shown me that you don't trust me and you've ordered Mr. Wetherell never to come near me again. Isn't that enough without beggaring us all for spite? What else is it but cheap, nasty spite?"

"It's a great deal more than spite," Bayard groaned. "Do you think I'll accept favors from a man who has been courting you and got caught at it? I'd rather starve!"

"Well, I wouldn't!" Leila averred. "And I'm not going to starve. And I'm not going to let you commit hari-kari on Wetherell's doorstep just to spite him. I tell you again, once for all, there was nothing wrong in Wetherell's behavior, absolutely nothing. It's outrageous that you should accuse me of such horrible things."

So Bayard was coerced into having his life saved by his enemy. It was one thing, however, to consent to deal with Wetherell, and another to devise a tolerable reconciliation.

"Well," Bayard sighed, "beggars can't be choosers. If I'd saved my money I shouldn't have to take Wetherell's money."

Bayard called up the president of his company at the office. His oration made a huge success. Bayard began to smile to himself, to wink at the spectators, and finally to share in the apparent rapture of his distant ear-to-ear.

The end of the matter was that when Bayard left the telephone he was a new man. He had cunningly raised his chief's hopes to the highest degree, yet withheld the name of "

Safety First

Life Insurance means safety for The Home. Too often the home circle is broken up when the head of the house dies, but if there is adequate insurance the means will be available to "carry on" until the members of the household are self-supporting.

Life Insurance means safety for the children. Many ambitious boys and girls are deprived of their rightful chance in life owing to the premature death of the father or mother or both parents. They are at work when they should be at school. Life Insurance would have given them their golden opportunity.

Life Insurance means safety for the widow. Where the husband dies uninsured, in a multitude of cases, the widow is compelled to support herself and children by hard and unaccustomed toil. Life insurance would render this unnecessary.

Adopt the policy of "Safety First" for the sake of the children, the wife and the old home.

KEEP ON CHEWING, SAYS WRIGLEY ANOTHER HALF MILLION FOR ADVERTISING

(G. A. Nichols in Printers Ink)

Mr. Wrigley will add $500,000 to his 1920 appropriation, remarking, "Well, I spend more and more for advertising every year."

Spending "more and more for advertising every year" has made Wrigley not only one of the greatest advertisers in America, but one who has attained an amazing record of success.

The outstanding feature of the Wrigley advertising method—as it has been from the beginning—seems to be to have a certain definite aim in view, namely, putting over the product in a sufficient way and to make the size of the appropriation a secondary consideration.

Why is it that you never hear the really big advertisers, of which Wrigley is a type, complain that advertising is not delivering? They advertise on a broad scale to accomplish their purpose and then they know it is done.

There is nothing superhuman, nothing mystical, about advertising. It is a plain proposition of having something that the people need and then telling them about it in a big enough way to make them want it. When this is done the rest is easy.

It is wise to have no arbitrary limit placed on advertising appropriations. The policy in this respect should be determined not by how little can be spent, but on a basis of spending as much as may be necessary to accomplish the desired end.

SAILORS WILL BE REMEMBERED DURING TRAFALGAR WEEK.

Widows and orphans of merchant sailors, who were killed on active service during the war, are to be pensioned by the Navy League of Canada. This announcement is made by the League in their preparation for the fourth annual "Trafalgar" sailors' week, Oct. 18th to 23rd, when it is proposed to raise $760,000 in a national campaign for the relief of widows, orphans, training of Canadian boys, for sailors' institutes, development of the movement and administration.

The grants of the Navy League for relief in Canada up to date amount to $30,250. After this year the League expects to cease asking for funds for the relief of the Canadian dependents of merchant sailors who were killed on active service. With the trust funds now in hand and $144,000 which is included in the campaign total, it should be possible to establish an endowment, the income from which will be sufficient to provide these dependents with a pension equal to that granted to the dependents of naval men who were also killed on active service. As many of these dependents are young children, the endowment must continue for a number of years, until the children become self supporting.

Ontario proposes to raise $450,000; Quebec $110,000; New Brunswick $20,000; Prince Edward Island $15,000; Alberta $30,000; Nova Scotia, $50,000; Manitoba $30,000; Saskatchewan, $30,000 and British Columbia $25,000.

One hundred and twenty-five thousand will be used for the promotion of a national sea conscious spirit; $271,000 for the training of Canadian boys; $144,000 for the relief of widows and orphans as well as pensions; $179,500 for institutes, and $40,000 for national administration.

BLOWING A ROAD CLEAN WITH COMPRESSED AIR.

An interesting experiment tried in putting a new wearing coat on the main park drive in the Palisades Interstate Park is described in Engineering and Contracting (New York). This drive, extending from Bear Mountain on the Hudson River to Tuxedo, was built and opened for traffic five years ago. It has been subjected to heavy traffic—pleasure cars, automobile trucks and steel-tired wagons and trailers—and nothing has been done to the surface until this spring. Says the writer:

"There were no pockets and no signs of raveling in the road, but its surface had worn down until it showed throughout its entire length all of the three-quarter-inch stone. This stone had worn slightly and the entire surface was much like that of a grindstone. It was decided to put a wearing coat on this road, and in order to insure a proper bond for this coat, the road was swept with wire brooms. A small portable air-compressor was equipped with two hose fitted with very small aperture nozzles and this compressor was hauled over the road behind the sweepers and all of the dust blown from the surface. This equipment, which required the services of three men, covered about one-half mile of the road per day and removed all of the dust from the road surface. When the seal coat was applied with a truck and under pressure it bound itself absolutely to the road surface.

"A careful examination shows that there is practically a perfect bond between this seal coat and the original coat and it has made a splendid wearing surface."

The meanest fraud yet reported is that uncovered at Washington in the arrest of a man charged with taking money from mothers and widows whose soldier sons and husbands were missing. The modus operandi was to inform mothers that their sons had been gassed and wounded in France, that he had located them and would send them home on receipt of funds. The miscreant made a fat living out of the fraud while it lasted and it is to be hoped will get what is coming to him in punishment.

Letters to the Editor

POWER AND PROTECTION

To the Editor of The Intelligencer:

Dear sir,—In 1918 I urged our authorities to take up the question of harnessing the Moira River for two purposes, namely:

1. Preventing floods.
2. Developing whatever power was available.

Opposition developed to the scheme and someone got a representative from the Hydro to come down here and tell us there would be no use developing power on the Moira because, even though the sources of supply of the Moira were 800 feet higher than Belleville and a continuous supply of water the year round could be produced in the Moira, still it was not needed because the Hydro had more power available than it could possibly get rid of. In two short years the Hydro has been compeled to shut up industries in this district and put thousands of men out of work for lack of power.

Again I urge the authorities to take Moira with the object of preventing floods and obtaining all the power available as a by-product, which would also flush out of the river the sickening pollution that someone is putting into it contrary to law. I have lived all my life in Belleville, and as long as I can remember we have had serious floods in the Moira resulting in more or less damage. We have usually had one or two each four year period. These floods have done easily a million dollars of damage to property. Are we going on forever incurring this loss? Many times blasting the ice out of the Bay has been tried but abandoned because it produced no results. Other plans have been tried with no success. Let us try the plan of harnessing the old river and turn its force into usefulness instead of destruction.

I would also urge our city to join in with the live municipalities that are urging the development of power on the St. Lawrence River. This country will need all the power it can get. We should not continue sending our money to the U. S. for coal to run our railways when we have water going to waste that would turn the wheels on these railways.

W. C. MIKEL.

Why Import Revolvers?

Toronto Globe

The Globe a few days ago quoted official figures showing that revolvers are being imported into Canada at a rate that will aggregate 6,400 in one year. Why? What are the authorities doing to see that these weapons do not come into the possession of persons who have no right to carry them?

Pointe St. Pierre, P. Q.

"I think it my duty to tell you how much your medicine has done for me. I suffered for three years with terrible Eczema. I consulted several doctors and they did not do me any good.

Then, I used one box of 'Sootha-Salva' and two boxes of 'Fruit-a-tives' and my hands are now clear. The pain is gone and there has been no return. I think it is a marvellous cure because no other medicine did me any good and I tried all the remedies I ever heard of, without benefit until I used 'Sootha-Salva' and 'Fruit-a-tives.'

'Fruit-a-tives' cooled the blood and removed the cause of the disease, and 'Sootha-Salva' completed the cure."

Codfish Croquettes

The EASIFIRST way

A DAINTY, satisfying and economical dish—when properly cooked! Use the recipe given here—just a wee bit of skill—and EASIFIRST. Your Codfish Croquettes will be light and delicious indeed.

Why? Because in deep frying EASIFIRST may be brought to an intense heat without burning. This means that foods fried in it have a quickly-formed, protecting crust which prevents the fat from soaking in. The interior cooking is done by heat alone, as it should be.

Here is a Good Recipe —Try It!

1 cup boiled codfish
2 cups mashed potatoes
1 cup thick white sauce
½ teaspoon pepper
Salt to taste
1 tablespoon chopped parsley

Shred the codfish, add potatoes, pepper and parsley, then add the cream sauce. Shape, roll in crumbs and egg, then again in crumbs, and fry in a deep kettle of EASIFIRST.

For Cream Sauce, 1 level tablespoon EASIFIRST, 2 level tablespoons flour, 1 cup hot milk, ½ teaspoon salt.

Every package of EASIFIRST bears the Government's stamp of approval. Your grocer will supply you. Sold in cartons and tins.

Nothing Like Internal Bathing for Constipation

If people only knew what Internal Bathing is doing for thousands of others there would be fewer Pills and Laxatives swallowed, and very much less suffering from Constipation and the accompanying Stomach and Nervous Troubles resulting from it.

J. A. Darrach, Copper Sliff, Ont., writes: "I have been using your J. B. L. Cascade for the past three months, and am convinced that it is the most modern and scientific method of dealing with Constipation that has ever been devised, and I will lose no opportunity to promote its use among my friends, as I can speak truthfully and enthusiastically as to its merits."

By the proper application of Nature's cure, warm water, by means of the J. B. L. Cascade, the lower intestines are kept free from all poisonous waste. Drugs force Nature. Internal Bathing assists her.

Dr. Chas. A. Tyrrell, of New York, a specialist on Internal Bathing, invented and perfected the J.B.L. Cascade, which has done more during the past twenty years in restoring health and lessening disease than all other means combined.

Ask J. S. McKeown, druggist, Belleville, Ont., for booklet, "Why Man of To-day is Only 50 per cent. Efficient." They will also be pleased to show and explain the J. B. L. Cascade to you, or write to Tyrrell's Hygienic Institute, 163 College Street, Toronto.

Tanlac Display Makes Great Hit

Unique and Attractive Display of Celebrated Medicine Attracts Much Attention

An advertising display which has attracted unusual interest, has been placed in the show-window of The Ostroms' Drug Store on Front Street, in this city, the local agency for the well known and highly successful proprietary medicine, Tanlac.

The display is not only interesting from an advertising standpoint, but is education, combining in an attractive and artistic manner beautiful scenes from many foreign countries where the ingredients of this preparation are obtained.

It has occasioned such favorable comment in the city that the proprietors of the store state that it will remain in their window several days longer.

Work of Great Artist.

The display is the work of one of America's greatest lithographic artists and the manufacturers of Tanlac state that the total cost will exceed sixty thousand dollars, which is said to be a record price for window displays. It is in ten distinct and natural colors, and presents scenes from the Rocky Mountains, as well as from Europe, Asia, Peru, Egypt and other foreign countries.

The natives are seen in their natural habitat and enrivonment, gathering the roots, herbs and barks that form the medicinal ingredients of Tanlac, packing them upon the backs of camels, elephants, llamas and other beasts of burden for transportation by land and sea to the immense laboratories at Dayton, Ohio, and Walkerville, Canada.

One of the most striking features of the display is the reproduction ofthe magnificent laboratory at Dayton. Here the artists have very effectively and impressively portrayed the popularity of Tanlac by introducing a group of people in all walks of life, who are looking at the Tanlac laboratory with expressions of confidence plainly indicating their belief and faith in the medicine.

Another distinctive feature is the bulletins accompanying the display. They tell briefly and concisely of the marvelous growth and development of Tanlac, until today it has the largest sale of any medicine of its kind in the world. These bulletins also quote various standard medical authorities as to the therapeutic value and physiological effect of the medicine.

60,000 Bottles a Day

From these bulletins one also learns that the new Tanlac laboratories at Dayton and Walkerville have a combined daily capacity of 60,000 bottles and that the medicine is now selling at the rate of approximately 10,000,000 per year.

That Tanlac is a preparation of exceptional merit has never been disputed, which accounts for its tremendous popularity and large sales throughout the country. It is a powerful reconstructive tonic and body builder and has a far-reaching and most beneficial effect upon the entire system. Many strong local endorsements, from those who testify as to the benefit they received, have appeared in the columns of this paper.

The manufacturers of Tanlac are firm believers in newspaper advertising and have forcibly presented to the public the merits of their products in this way. Their total annual appropriation for newspaper space exceeds one millilon dollars. Their copy appears in practically all of the leading daily and weekly newspapers throughout the United States and Canada.

Russian Submarines Will Be Attacked By British Fleet

NOTIFICATION TO RUSSIA BY EARL CURZON THAT REDS MUST KEEP FAITH—ARRAIGNED FOR DECEIT—PRISONERS MUST BE GIVEN UP AND ATTACK ON BRITISH INTERESTS STOPPED.

LONDON, Oct. 10.—Any Russian submarines encountered on the high seas will be attacked on sight by British naval forces, according to a note sent by Earl Curzon, British Foreign Secretary, to M. Tchitcherin the Russian Bolshevist Foreign Minister, on October 2, which is published along with other correspondence recently exchanged between Great Britain and Soviet Russia.

Earl Curzon points out that he previously sent a communication regarding a submarine launched in the Black Sea, in which he said that in view of repeated declarations of leading members of the Soviet Goernment that that Government considered itself in a state of war with Great Britain, and in view of the impossibility, in these circumstances, of waiting to ascertain whether the intentions of the submarine controlled by the Soviet Government were hostile or not, there was not alternative but to issue orders to British ships to attack the submarine should it be encountered on the high seas.

Dodgers Lost First Two At Cleveland

CLEVELAND, Oct. 10.—Ontarians generally who are followers of baseball will find peculiar interest attaching to Sunday's game of baseball between Cleveland and Brooklyn, the fifth of the World Series, which was won by the American Leaguers from the senior leaguers' representatives by 8 to 1. Cleveland, having won Saturday's battle to 1, now lead on the series by three games to two, after losing two of the three games played in Brooklyn. Two more games will be played here, after which the teams will move to Brooklyn in the event that the Indians do not emerge triumphant today and Tuesday. The American Leaguers now appears to be off to a start that will carry them through to the world's championship.

Most Remarkable.

Today's game was quite the most remarkable ever played in the great autumnal classic. Briefly, this is what happened:

Elmer Smith of Cleveland hit a home run with the bases full—a World Series record.

Brooklyn outhit Cleveland 13 to 12—twenty-five hits constituting yet another record for the big set.

Brooklyn got only one run for 13 hits, that run being scored in the final inning, when Bagby let down in his efforts.

Three double plays and a triple play were made by the winners, who could have had four double plays but for Firstbaseman Johnston dropping a thrown ball.

Freight Rate Finding Referred Back

OTTAWA, Oct. 9—Continuing, the Privy Council's freight rate judgment, in which they say that the needs of the Canadian National system should not have been taken into consideration, in fixing the freight rates, says:

"The re-organization of this system looking to the better utilizing of these lines is now moreover only under way. Railways so constructed cannot under the best of operation on any practicable scale of rates be made for some time at least a financial success. A system largely composed of such roads and in such state of reorganization would not, therefore, appear to your excellency's advisers to be properly at the present time a factor for consideration in the solution of a rate-making problem. What constitutes a fair and reasonable rate should now be arrived at without reference to the requirements of the Canadian National system and your committee recommends that the order in this case be referred back to the board to be corrected in its findings in such manner as to determine what are fair and reasonable rates without taking into account at all for the time the order shall be in effect, the requirements of the Canadian National system.

Heavy Fine For Aged Liquor Runner

WELLAND, Oct. 9.—Frank Merritt, 71 years old, the oldest man to be fined under the O. T. A. since it was inaugurated in this city, was fined $1,000 in police court under sections 40 and 41. License Inspector Putman, in his evidence, stated that the old man and his sons had been running liquor ever since the province went dry and had paid a total of $3,225 in liquor fines, besides a prison term of six months, served by one of the sons in default of payment of a fine of $1,000. The old man, looking old and feeble, made a strong plea for mercy! saying that he had shouldered the blame for his son's sake, but in view of the record held by the family the magistrate said that the maximum fine must be imposed.

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer, Canadian Press, Limited.

HARBIN, Manchuria, Oct. 11.—General Ungern Sternburg, chief lieutenant of General Semenoff, anti-Bolshevik Cossack leader, is reported to be gathering insurgents against the Bolshevik regime in Siberia in his march to cut the Kyakama highroad, seventy miles south of Verkhyne-Udinsk, the capital of the far eastern republic. A general revolt against the Bolsheviki is said to be in progress in the southern Baikal district and the Verkhyne-Udinsk government is moving its treasury to Misovia, on the western shore of Lake Baikal.

Division Of Work For R'y Chiefs

Official Changes on Staff of Canadian National Railways

A circular issued by Mr. D. B. Hanna, President of Canadian National Railways, announces today a division of the work in the department of operation, Maintenance and Construction, of the publicly-controlled road, a division made necessary by the increasing volume of work due to the taking over for operation, by the C. N.R. of the mileage of the Grand Trunk in western Canada.

Mr. M. H. McLeod, who has until now been the Vice-President-in-Charge will be Vice-President of the Construction Department, and Mr. S. J. Hungerford, hitherto Assistant Vice-President of the Department, will be Vice-President in charge of Operation and Maintenance. Both appointments are date to be effective October 1st, and the offices of both Vice-Presidents will be in Toronto.

Under this new arrangement Mr. McLeod will have entire control of the Locating and Construction of lines, while to Mr. Hungerford will fall the task of general operation and maintenace of all physical properties on all lines.

Prior to Mr. MacLeod's appointment as Vice-President of Operation, Maintenance and Construction of Canadian National Railways' in 1918, he was General Manager and Chief Engineer of the C.N.R. at Winnipeg. It was during his occupancy of these positions that the great expansion of Canadian Northern lines, which are now included in the Canadian National, occurred. As Chief in the Construction Department of the Canadian National, therefore, he will have the advantage of a knowledge of territories and of conditions equalled by few men, if by any, in Canada.

Mr. Hungerford has been in railway work since his youth, and has risen to his present office from the lathe of a machinist's apprentice. He had an extensive experience with the Mechanical Department of the Canadian Pacific Railway, and joined the Canadian Norther nin 1910. With the Canadian Northern he was successively Superintendent of Rolling Stock, Western Lines at Winnipeg, of all lines, Toronto, May 1st, 1915), and General Manager of Eastern Lines at Toronto, (Nov. 1st, 1917.) When the Canadian National Railways management was organized, he was made, on November 2', 1918, Assistant Vice-President of Operation, Maintenance and Construction, Mr. MacLeod being the head of that Department. Mr. Hungerford was born near Bedford in Quebec, July 16th, 1872.

JUST LOSING TIME OVER HIS FINE

Montreal, Oct. 9—Ernest Gibo, Armand Chabot and Leon Dragon, who gave their nationality as United States citizens, have been arrested by the Provincial Government prohibition officers charged with trafficking in liquor on the international boundary near Rouses' Point.

They had built small wooden shacks near the border, and small quantities of liquor have been seized in them, but it is believed the men have large stocks cached in the woods nearby.

The most serious part of the trouble is the bad effect upon the train crews of the railways, and complaints are made in connection with this.

When Dragon was brought to Montreal and pleaded guilty he became annoyed at the delay, in having his papers made out and the fine of $100 and costs taken from him. "Hurry up," he is reported as saying, "there are customers waiting for me."

Should Report All Sore Throats

KINGSTON, Oct. 9—That every case of sore throat should be shown at once t oa physician, and that by doing this much, if not all, of the danger from diphtheria will be perventd, was the statement made by Dr. A. R. B. Williamson, M.O.H.

Dr. Williamson said that while there were many cases of sore throat, there was no need to alarm citizens, as there was no danger of an outbreak of the dread diphtheria, but that all possible precautions should be taken. In this the parents could assist wonderfully by immediately reporting any case of sore throat. Swabs were within convenient reach of all physicians, and these swabs when used would be examined at the University at once. In this way dangerous germs would be immediately detected, and means to prevent danger could be taken. Dr. Williamson urged that the strictest attention should be given this by parents, and in conclusion he reiterated that there was no cause for alarm among citizens.—Kingston Standard.

Night Riders Warn Georgia Farmers

Campaign to Force Closing of Gins Until Price of Cotton Advances

ATLANTA, Ga., October 9—The campaign of the night-riders in Georgia and in other southern states to force the closing of gins until cotton advances to forty cents a pound is causing much alarm in several Georgia counties. The night-riders have tacked notices to close on ginneries, and in every case boxes of matches have accompanied the notices. The posting of the warning notices on ginneries has been general in some section of Alabama and even merchants have been ordered to close their stores until cotton advances. In one county in Alabama, where two merchants disregarded the order to close, their stores were burned.

These threats to burn ginneries, coupled with the holding movement urged by the farm organization, are likely to reduce the volume of cotton placed on the market. This will create a serious situation for many merchants and county banks that aided the planters in producing the present crop, as the farmers will undoubtedly delay meeting their obligations for fertilizers and other supplies that are now coming in due. The gerat fall i nthe price of cotton is a serious menace to business in the south and the crop was produced on supplies purchased on a 40-cent basis, cotton being the basis of Southern business. The cutting of the price in half will necessarily be felt in all lines of commerce. So far no action has been taken against the night-riders.

PARIS Oct. 10.—Forty two persons were killed and one hundred injured yesterday, when a Paris-Nantes train ran into a freigth train. The accident occurred about four miles from Maisons-Lafitte, at the Paris suburban station of Houlles.

The bodies were removed to a local playhouse, while the injured have been transporaed to a hospital in Paris.

Six third class cars were completely destroyed. Most of the victims were workmen returning from their labor, and the identity of many of them will never be known, as they are badly mangled.

Some thirty-six persons were injured when a passenger train travelling from Paris to Argenteuil. The accident occured at the entrance of a bridge at Asnieres, two miles north of Paris.

An investigation showed today that the wreck resulted from purely accidental causes. Premier Millerand and Premier Leygues visited the scene of the wreck this morning.

GERMANY REFUSES TO DELIVER NEW ZEPPELIN

"Vengeance Gang" Is Eound Guilty

CAIRO, Oct. 8—Twenty-five members of the so-called 'Vengeance gang alleged to be an anti-British Society organized to conduct assassinations of political personages, have been convicted of conspiracy bya court before which they had been on trial for several weeks. The sentences will be promulgated later. Four of the accused persons were acquitted.

Among those convicted was Abdul Rhamen Bey Fahny, former Provisional Governor, and at one time a servant of the executive. He was charged with being a member of the vengeance gang and also with incitement to murder.

Numerous assassinations and attempted murders are credited to this society, which had an elaborate organization and worked with great secrecy. The objects of the society are alleged to have been the deposition of the Sultan and his assassination, together with the Ministers and other persons who did not receive the approval of the society. It was charged that the organization also preached sedition and distributed arms.

Struck By Exrpess At Gibson Crossing

Ottawa Traveller's Auto Struck and damaged—Driver Shook Up.

An accident occurred at the Gibson crossing of the C. P. R. where the line crosses the Kingston road a short distance east of Belleville, Saturday afternoon, resulting in an automobile owned and driven by Mr. G. P. Dunlevi, of Ottawa, being struck and damaged by the C. P. R. afternoon express from Ottawa. Mr. Dunlevi, who travels for the Ottawa Journal subscription department, was travelling eastwar dand had crossed the track at Gibson's crossing when his way was blocked by a large auto truck unloading material for the Sterling Contract Co., engaged on the provincial highway. Mr. Dunlevi could not go forward and was hemmed in by the truck ahead of him, which backed up close to the track while an automobile following, also east bound, prevented recrossing the track. The C. P. R. express came along while the automobiles were in this position and Mr. Dunlevi tried to swing his car out of danger, but the automobile was struck a glancing blow by the express and the front of the car considerably damaged and Mr. Dunlevi, who remained at the steering wheel considerably shook up. The contractor's truck was also struck, but not damaged to any considerable extent. Mr. Dunlevi's car was a Ford roadster, which was brought back to Belleville and placed in the Greenleaf garage for repairs.

The contractors working on the road claim that signs had been posted warning drivers of vehicles that the road could only be used at their own risk, but Mr. Dunlevi states that he did not see any such notices.

Splendid Baseball Weather For Worlds Series Game

SHERROD SMITH, BROOKLYN'S STAR PITCHER OPENED HOSTILITIES FOR THE DODGERS—DUSTER MAILS, SOUTHPAW, IN THE BOX FOR CLEVELAND—INTEREST INCREASES IN WORLD'S CHAMPIONSHIP SERIES.

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer, Canadian Press, Limited.

CLEVELAND, Oct. 11.—Brooklyn Dodgers primed today their big gun, Sherrod Smith, to check the rushing offensive of the Cleveland Indians, who have started a batting streak. Brooklyn must win today or their chances for the championship will be reduced almost to the vanishing point.

"I have Smith read," said the Brooklyn manager, "and if necessary can pitch Pfeffer. Remember, if we win today we will be even again."

Duster Mails, the Indians' southpaw, was all set to pitch for the American League champions.

The weather was hot and the sun burned fiercely in an unclouded sky. It was a real August baseball day.

LONDON, Oct. 11—The Prince of Wales, who reached Spithead yesterday on the battle cruiser Renown made a triumphant entry into London today on his return from his six months' tour of the empire. Hundred of thousands of persons turned out to give him one of the greatest welcomes of the kind in the history of the country. Very Little Stock Taken In Confession

VERY LITTLE STOCK....

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 9—Joseph Rodriguez, under arrest here for the abduction of an 18-year-old girl, today "confessed" to the murder of J. C. Denton, wealthy Los Angeles mining promoter according, to a statment by Captain of Police John O'Meara, but when the alleged "confession" was made public doubt began to be cast upon it.

Rodriguez was quoted by Captain O'Meara, as saying that he and another man strangled Denton to death with a rope in his own home while a woman looked on, that they then robbed the old man's home of moneey and stocks of large value and that other persons in the house buried the body in the cellar, where it was found a few days ago, sealed up in a small room and covered with earth.

Rodriguez, according to the police, came here several days ago from Los Angeles, professedly to assist a Los Angeles detective, who accompanied him, investigate the Denton case locally. He proffesed knowledge of the perpetrators, it was said.

Confession Doubted.

Los Angeles, October 9—W. C. Doran, chief deputy District Attorney, said he took "very little stock" in the confession alleged to have been made at San Francisco by Joseph Rodriguez, that Rodriguez and another man killed Jacob C. Denton, mining promoter, last June. He said no warrants would be issued on the strength of Rodrigieuz's statement until it had been investigated further.

Mr. Doran said he had interviewed one of the persons named in Rodriguez's confession, with the result that a flat denial was made. Others, he declared, would probably be questioned tonight. He emphasized that no arrests were expected as the result of the developments in San Francisco.

Premier Foster Sustained, But Majority Less

ST. JOHN, N.B., Oct. 10.—Premier Foster's Liberal Government in New Brunswick was sustained at the polls Saturday. The best available figures tonight give the following results:

Liberals	24
Conservatives	13
United Farmers	9
Labor	2

The Government claims one additional seat from the Opposition, in King's County. Even with this extra seat the Government will find it necessary to depend on the support of some Farmer and Labor members in order to carry on, but in a speech last night after the results had been made known Premier Foster announced that assurances of support he had received made him perfectly confident that he would be able to carry on.

Two of his Ministers, Hon. Robert Murray, Northumberland, Provincial Secretary, and Hon. J. F. Tweeddale, Victoria, Minister of Agriculture, were defeated.

The success of Premier Foster and his three colleagues in St. John City, where formerly he had held only one seat, was one of the interesting features of the contest.

Liberals Claim Another.

St. John, N.B., Oct. 11.—The announcement that the Government had elected twenty-five members in the New Brunswick elections as against twenety-three by Conservatives, Farmers and Labor opposition, was made here this afternoon by E. S. Carter, Premier Foster's secretary. Mr. Carter said that the vote in King's county had been re-checked with the result that Keith, Liberal, was shown to be ahead of the Conservative candidate by one vote.

MUSIC AND DRAMA

"THE GAY LORD QUEX"

"The Gay Lord Quex," from the noted stage success by Sir Arthur Wing Pierno, presents Tom Moore in the stellar role in this new Goldwyn picture which will be shown at Griffin's tomorrow and Wednesday evenings. In this production Tom Moore is seen as the type of wooer that popular opinion has named its favorite. His adventures in cupid's realm are frequent and merry, and just spicy enough to bring out the humorous side of his entanglements when his several sweethearts are brought together. The action of the picture is quick and spirited, and so well does the star enact his part that sympathy swings wholly on Lord Quex when he gets into difficulties. He has an agonizing time trying to prove his sincerity and reformation to his promised bride in the face of most accusing circumstances, but his efforts are rewarded and all ends happily. Supporting Mr. Moore in "The Gay Lord Quex" are such favorites as Gloria Hope, Naomia Childers, Hazel Daly and Sidney Ainsworth. An interesting Burton Holmes Travelogue, "Smiling" Billy Parson's in a two-reel capitol comedy, "The Sea Wolf," and Jack Dempsey in "Daredevil Jack," will also be presented on the same program.

Join The Boosters That's The Stuff!

Take an Interest in Your Work—Give it Pep.

The August number of The Canadian National Railways Magazine, a bright and newsy publication, well edited and well printed, contains the following verses written by Mr. G.H. Griffin, C.N.R. ticket and express agent, Belleville:

AS BUSY EYES SEE IT

If you think your road's the best,
Tell 'em so.
If you'd have her lead the rest,
Help her grow,
When there's anything to do,
Let the Super count on you;
You'll feel bully when you're through,
Don't you know?

If you want to make a hit,
Get a name,
If the other fellow's it,
Who's to blame?
Put your heart into your work,
See that others do not shirk,
Even to the Junior Clerk,
That's the game!

If you're used to giving knocks,
Change your style;
Throw bouquets instead of rocks,
For a while;
Let the other fellows roast,
Shun him as you would a ghost,
Meet the hammer with a boast,
And a smile.

When a stranger from afar,
Comes along,
Tell him who and what we are,
Make it strong;
Needn't flatter, never bluff,
Tell the truth for that's enough;
Join the boosters, that's the stuff,
We belong.

G.T.R. ENGINEER DEAD.

Mr. Frederick Bramley, aged 53 years, a former Grand Trunk Railway engineer, died in Brockville Friday night after a long illness. Mr. Bramley entered the service of the G. T. R. when sixteen years of age and retired five years ago on account of ill health. He leaves a wife and two children.

GOOD WEATHER FOR FARMERS

This is ideal weather for everybody and especially the farmers who are now able to do their fall ploughing with ease. A large acreage remains to be done, but a few weeks of this kind of weather will be a big boon for the agriculturists.

VISITED SON'S GRAVE

A. T. Wilgress, Toronto, the King's Printer for Ontario, has returned from a visit to the battle-front, where he visited the grave of his son, Lieut. George Wilgress, the first officer of the 21st Battalion to be killed. Mr. Wilgress' son is buried at the Ridgewood Cemetery, near St. Eloi. He killed upon the same day that he had heroically gone out into the open under fire from German snipers and brought two wounded men into the trench.

HAVE NO TAXES.

These Fortunate People Live In Orsa, Sweden.

A well-to-do parish indeed is that of Orsa, in the province of Delarna, Sweden, so well to do that the people pay no individual taxes either to the local Government or the state. It is a parish, says Mrs. Frank E. Law, describing her visit to it in the columns of "Travel," where there are fine school houses, the best teachers procurable for good pay, excellent roads, bridges and railways. And all without taxes, and this parish of Orsa is so well to do that after it has paid all its expenses and settled up its liabilities to the state Government it still has a substantial part of its yearly income to divide with the farmers who live in it.

That condition dates back to 1,500 years or more ago, when this spot in the northwestern wilderness of Sweden was settled, and the settlers came into possession of vast forests, which they decided to hold as common property. This was long before the age of lumbering in Sweden, and when that time came and the forests were commercially valuable, efforts were made to persuade the peasants of Orsa to sell their common forest property.

But these descendants of the first settlers were shrewd; they argued that their woodlands were probably worth more than was offered and refused to sell until finally the prospective buyers have raised their offer until the sum reached the total of millions. Then the forests were sold, but the money belonged to the community, and a parochial board was elected to administer the "forest fund," as it is called, for the benefit of the parish. Taxes were immediately abolished, a systematic improvement of the parish begun and the custom instituted of yearly dividing a goodly sum among the farmers for the purchase of seed.

And so the parish of Orsa, in which the people are not individually wealthy and have for years worn the same peasant costume, became and still is the "richest parish in the world."

Inspired Joan of Arc.

The real heroine of France was not the Maid of Orleans, but Yolande of Sicily, daughter of the King of Aragon, mother-in-law of Charles VII. of France, according to Ernest Lesigne, author of "The History of the Real Joan of Arc." He writes:

"Yolande of Sicily was a clear-sighted, intelligent woman, who had great influence on the weak king of France, Charles VII. In spite of court intrigues she strengthened the alliance of France with Castile and the Duchy of Milan, with Brittany and Lorraine. It was she who surrounded the king with clever and valiant captains — Dunois, La Hire, Xaintrailles, Duke of Alencon, Richemant — who re-organized the army and became, by their exploits, the terror of the English. It was she who stirred up the towns to a realization of the peril to their country and created a militia.

"It was Yolande of Sicily who, connected with the houses of Bar and Lorraine, conceived the idea of stimulating the king's morale by invoking the miraculous, and called Joan from Domremy, the maid, already known to the Duke of Lorraine.

"While the presence of Joan of Arc crystalized the resistance of the French, the truth should be told about Yolande of Sicily. The legend of the Maid of Orleans is a beautiful one and cherished in France, but the wise policy of Yolande should be taught as an example of the power of wisdom and judgment in saving a nation."

When Whip Strikes Horse.

To test the force with which a whip lash strikes the flanks of a horse, M. R. Gaudin, of the French veterinary journal, Le Marechal Moderne, has been making some interesting experiments. He got a carter to lash a large lump of moist clay. Under the action of the whip the lash penetrated a certain distance into the clay, and the holes thus made remained.

M. Gaudin then made other experiments on similar lumps of clay to ascertain what force was required to produce similar holes. He found that with a coachman's whip a blow equivalent to 75 pounds could be given; with a carter's whip, one of 119 pounds, if the lash be square, and of 145 pounds if it be round, and with that of a rat-tail whip one of 313 pounds.

Although a horse's skin is less sensitive than our own, we can imagine what pain a lash in the hands of a strong man may be given when we consider how a blow of only three or four pounds on the palm or the back of a boy's hand brings tears to his eyes.

M. Gaudin's experiments prove that it is not the snapper on the end of the whip that cuts most deeply, but the lash itself.

Hair Thefts In France.

Owing to the "bobbed hair" craze human hair has been in enormous demand recently and fabulous prices are being paid by beauties who find their own locks will not grow fast enough to put them in the swim of fashion.

At Mirmande, near Toulouse, a party of seven men, each carrying a large pair of shears and a bag filled with human hair attacked pretty young Odette Pujos, who was guarding a herd of goats.

While one of the assailants placed a handkerchief over her eyes and another gagged her, a third shore her of her magnificent blond tresses which were famous for miles around.

SOFT WOOD MADE BEAUTIFUL

Proper Application of Finishing Methods Gives All the Effects of More Costly Material.

Beautiful wood floors, approximating in effect and finish the oak and maple floors found in the best type of homes, can be developed, with the aid of proper finishing methods and materials, in such woods as pine, fir, and cypress, says a bulletin of a large American company. These so-called "soft" woods are very durable and possess not a little natural beauty of grain.

Hardwood effects are secured on soft woods by staining with an oil wood stain, consisting of a permanent color pigment in an oil vehicle. These stains are particularly adapted to use on the soft woods. The effect is completed by applying a thin coat of shellac and finishing with two coats of prepared wax or floor varnish.

The first step toward obtaining the desired finish is to sandpaper the wood smoothly. The stain should then be applied freely with a brush, and, after being allowed to stand for about five or ten minutes, buffed off with a cloth. When the stain has dried for 24 hours the shellac and wax or varnish may be applied as described.

A deeper effect than that procured by the method outlined may be obtained by the use of a varnish stain over the oil wood stain. Both should, of course, correspond in color. Often it is difficult to determine upon the best finish for a floor in the absence of expert advice.

Aviators' Dangers.

Air service doctors have discovered that airmen who have been experts will, on occasion and for a period, make all manner of mistakes in landing.

With a smooth lawn below them they will do a "poached egg" and crash the machine on its tail or will take the ground before they mean to.

These accidents are attributed to a particular sort of weariness of eye muscles as well as eye nerves. The eye fails to convey to the brain a proper eye picture of the ground or other object.

The eye fails very much as the muscles of an untrained athlete fail. Many exercises for the eye have been designed which will remedy this defect.

Character of Future Naval Attack.

Rear Admiral W. F. Fullam summarizes the method of naval attack of the future as: Plunging fire from long-range guns; attack by bombing from aircraft; attack by submarine mines; attack by torpedoes fired either from submarines or destroyers or by torpedo planes. He believes that aircraft will become increasingly a determining factor in ranging and he believes that sea power or fighting power will be largely dependent upon control of the air and that the fleet which secures this control must win, other things being approximately equal.—Scientific American.

Germany's Air-Post Plans.

Negotiations are being carried on between German and foreign firms with the object of securing Germany's participation in an international air-post service. Regular air-mails between Berlin and Copenhagen are expected to begin shortly, and arrangements are being made with the other Scandinavian countries. An important part of the service will be the conveyance of "airgrams" to relieve the telegraphic service. The shortage of gasoline in Germany at present is restricting the use of aircraft for mail purposes.—Scientific American.

Trial by Ordeal.

Trial by ordeal still exists in some parts of Japan. If a theft takes place in a household, all the servants are required to write a certain word with the same brush. The conscience is supposed to betray its workings in the waves of the ideographs written. Tracing an ideograph involves such an effort of muscular directness and undivided attention that this device often leads to the discovery of the guilty party.

PROPER ELMINATION.

is one of the most important items on your health budget. Through constipation and costiveness poisons are stored up in your system and produce innumerable bad results. Have you a sallow complexion? Is your face marked with pimples and blackheads? Do dull headaches torture you? Is your stomach out of order and your breath foul? These things would not be if your elimination were perfect.

Get Rid of Your Poisons.

Proper elimination means getting rid of the poisons in the system naturally. It means a good complexion, bright eyes, a clear brain and a stomach in good order.

Improper Elimination Has a Cause.

Constipation is due to loss of muscular tone in the intestinal walls. Costiveness is due to improper secretions. In both cases the proper amount of vital force, or mental impulses, is not reaching the organs of elimination. There is impingement or pressure upon the nerves supplying this power. The only place such an impingement can occur is in the spine.

Chiropractic Removes the Cause.

Chiropractic is the science of exactly locating the subluxated vertebrae, which produce impingement of the delicate spinal nerves, and the art of adjusting them so that the impinged nerves are released and can carry to the organs and parts of the body the normal amount of vital force necessary to proper function. Get rid of the cause. Don't put it off. Insist on being well. Consultation and spinal analysis without charge. Drs. Redick & Redick, 283½ Front St., Belleville, Ont. Phone 700.

From Cherry Blossom Land

The Japanese Give Good Example

It is a proverb of Cherry Blossom Land that beauty of face and figure depend on womanly health.

What is it that makes our Canadian women often pale, sallow-faced, with dark circles under the eyes, and very often old at forty-five when they should be in their prime? Women suffer in girlhood from backache, spine-ache and headaches, followed by irregularities and as a result diseases of the womanly organs are more common than any one but a physician in active practice could suppose.

Chatham, Ont.:—"Dr. Pierce's medicines have been used in my family at home (especially by my father and mother) ever since I can remember. They always proved very satisfactory. I took Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and it soon built me up in good health and cured me of the nervous condition. I consider it an excellent medicine for the ailments of women."—MRS. CHAS. HAZEL HARRIS.

Saturday afternoon the body of Hazel Harris, who died as the result of burns, was interred in Belleville cemetery. Rev. Rural Dean Swayne, rector of Christ Church, conducted the service at the home on College street and at the grave. Upon the casket were placed a number of floral tributes.

DR. WM. J. GIBSON.

Citizens of all classes desirous of paying a last tribute of respect were in attendance this morning at the obsequies of the late Dr. William J. Gibson, of this city. Many physicians of the city and vicinity were also present. Previous to the service at the family residence on Campbell street many took a farewell look at Belleville's popular and eminent physician called from the activities of life. The drawing room where an impressive service was held was virtually banked with floral tributes, exquisite in design.

Rev. A. S. Kerr, Pastor of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, conducted the service, assisted by Rev. Dr. Baker, Principal of Albert College.

After the service the funeral cortege proceeded to the C. N. R. station, where the casket was placed on the G.T.R. train and taken to Kingston to be interred in its final resting place. Many citizens accompanied the body to the station. The bearers were six physicians, namely, Drs. Clinton, Boyce, Tennant, Blakesley, Hill and Chant.

The late Dr. Gibson is survived by his widow, one brother, Dr. J. F. Gibson, of Kingston; and four sisters, Mrs. Hugh Crozier, of Guelph; Mrs. Matthew Gage, Riverside, California, and the Misses Gibson, of Kingston.

the English agent. He explained that he intended to take Leila's advice and use his knowledge as a lever for his own advancement and Clay's.

So Bayard Was Coerced Into Having His Life Saved by His Enemy.

Clay and Bayard sat down to make figures, and the talk grew too technical for the women to endure. After hearing the first music of Bayard and Clay chanting in hundreds of thousands of dollars Daphne stole out unheeded and went up to her own room.

Mr. Chivvis was sitting by a window in mournful idleness. Mrs. Chivvis was stitching away at her embroidery. She was cheerful—for her. She told Daphne that she had found a market for her needlework; the prices were poor but they were real. She advised Daphne to get to work with her.

Daphne had not the courage to say that her brother and her betrothed were about to become plutocrats. She said only that she was very tired. And there is no more exhausting drain on the nerves than their response to unexpected good news. It is more fatiguing than bad. She was surprised and shocked, too, to find how snobbish she was all of a sudden about the petty earnings of a Chivvis.

CHAPTER XXII.

In those days the United States of America suddenly woke to the fact that they could pull themselves out of bankruptcy by helping the benighted states of Europe into it.

There were sudden geysers of fortune and sudden collapses of failure. As in bonanza times, many were ruined, while the few prospered. But Clay and Bayard seemed to touch nothing that did not turn to gold. Bayard had gained immense prestige with his firm because of the huge orders he brought in. He took all the power that was accorded and grasped for more. His most reckless audacities were rewarded with success. He rode a tidal wave and swam with it so well that all his progress seemed to be due to his own power.

Bayard astounded Dutilh with the solution of that old account, and with a cash payment for new gowns in celebration of his new glory. He did not forget his own people. He telegraphed his mother a thousand dollars and almost slew her with amazement. He telegraphed his father simply the price of a railroad ticket to New York and a peremptory summons to take the first train east.

When Daphne heard this she had to sit down to keep from falling down. Bayard resuscitated her with a check for a thousand dollars. It meant nothing more to her than abracadabra. The whole incredible alteration was a fairy story to her. She made a faint attempt to refuse the gift, but Bayard forced it back into her palm and closed her fingers on it.

She repaid Bayard with kisses till she lost count and embraces till they both lost breath. Then she borrowed from him enough cash to pay her moss-grown bill with the Chivvises.

Daphne could not wait for the elevator. She ran up several flights of stairs, scratched the door with her palsied latchkey and flung herself into Mrs. Chivvis' arms and kissed her—even Mrs. Chivvis. Her apology was the money for the bill. She flaunted before her the check bearing the heavenly legend commanding the Fifth Avenue bank to "pay to Daphne Kip or order one thousand and no hundredths dollars" on penalty of incurring the displeasure of "Bayard Kip."

Mrs. Chivvis handled the parchment with reverence, and permitted her husband to touch it. "It might have been one of the golden leaves of the sacred Book of Mormon, and she a sealed wife of Brigham himself.

"What are you planning to do with all this?" she said at length.

"I don't know," said Daphne. "What would you suggest?"

"You were planning to go into business. Why not use this as capital?"

"Fine! What business ought I to start—banking? or battleship building, or what?"

"There's embroidery," said Mrs. Chivvis.

Daphne had to guffaw at that. Mrs. Chivvis did not laugh. "I mean it," she urged; "think it over."

"All right, I'll think it over."

The novelty of being rich lost its savor with Leila, and the monotony of being neglected began to prey upon her damask soul. She and Daphne forgot their mutual grievances for their common grievance.

"That's the trouble with these husbands," Leila grumbled. "When they're in bad luck you can't lose 'em, and when they're in good you can't find 'em."

"It's the same with fiances," said Daphne.

Daphne had the worst of it, for Leila began to wander again, leaving Daphne to the society of Mrs. Chivvis, who kept urging her to invest her dwindling thousand before it was gone. But in the environs of noisy riches the schemes of Mrs. Chivvis demanded such prolonged labor for such minute profit that Daphne remained cold.

She began to resent Clay's neglect morosely. The few attentions he paid her only insulted her; his mind was so far away and his heart was all for his business. He was dazzled by the fierce white light of success, and he spoke to Daphne in a kind of drowsy hypnosis. And he spoke incessantly of the details of his business, or his gamblings. He could not see how deaf she was to the very vulgar fractions of his speculations, or the mad arithmetic of his commissions. She yawned in his face when he grew eloquent on the dynamics of wealth, the higher philosophies of finance. And he never knew. He kissed her good-by as if he were kissing a government bond, safe and quiet and all his own.

After one of Clay's visits Mrs. Chivvis found Daphne in a brown study. Mrs. Chivvis explained her own affairs; and Daphne was so exhausted with the sultry problems of love that Mrs. Chivvis' business gossip was completely refreshing.

"I've been down to the Woman's exchange," she said, "trying to sell some of my needlework. They were very nice about it, but it means a terrible amount of labor for a pittance of money. You have to pay them so much a year for the privilege of putting your things on sale there. Then they don't guarantee to return it in good condition, and they don't guarantee to sell it; or if they do they charge you 20 per cent for their end of it.

"I couldn't see any profit in that, so I went to one of the jobbers. He said my style of work brought good prices in the big stores. But they won't pay him much and he'll pay me less.

"I was thinking— There's money in these things and in all sorts of needle things if you have a little capital."

"That's different," said Daphne. "And I've got some capital now. Do you remember suggesting to me once that we might go into business together—you to furnish the brains and I the money?"

"Oh, I didn't put it that way!"

"Anyway, it's true. Well, would you?"

"Land's sake! if you're a mind to furnish the money and the ideas and let me count the pennies, I'd like nothing better."

"Great! What could we go into?"

"What would you prefer?"

"Oh, any old business that will keep me busy and make a lot of money."

"My husband says that you can't make a lot of money without putting in a lot. That's one reason he has been kept down so. He never could get ahead. That was what we were saving up for—to get a little capital. And then the war came along—and we had to spend our savings. That same war has made your brother so rich that he could give you a small fortune. I don't believe you could do better than to put that into a business."

"My Husband Says That You Can't Make a Lot of Money Without Putting in a Lot."

"Neither do I!" Daphne cried. "Let's!"

TUXIS BOYS AND TRAIL RANGERS

BY Firelighter

THE NATIONAL TUXIS CAMP

The first National Tuxis Camp has passed into history. For ten days in August one hundred and fifty men and older fellows gathered in a great camp at one end of Canoe Lake, Algonquin Park, in the North woods of Ontario. They came from all the space between Prince Edward Island and Alberta, and visitors were there from Pittsburg, New York, India, New Zealand, China and Japan. They came because the call had gone out for leaders to gether in the out-of-doors to elarn the ways of nature and how to interpret the meaning of life of Canada's growing boys.

When the crowd was on its way into camp it rained, not a gentle shower to lay the dust, but a heavy downpour that soaked every stitch of clothing. However, every one was in good spirits, bundled into one great tent to spend the night and was ready for the bright sunshine the next morning to dry out clothing and get set up for camp. Tents went up as if by magic and before long over fifty patches of white were arrayed along the shore. Fifty canoes lay on the beach and around fifteen tribal camp fires, the newly formed tribes got acquainted with their Indian names, with each other and with some of the intricacies of camp cooking.

An interesting program of fourfold activities was carried out as follows:

Intellectual:—Nature Study, Outdoor photography, collection specimens, Educational Lectures.

Devotional:—Service of Worship, Morning Watch, Nature, Music.

Social—Tribal relationships, Camp Responsibility.

Social training in leadership, life saving.

The outstanding naturalists of Canada were there to lead in the study and enjoyment of the outdoor world; Boycraft, that newest of the sciences, was ably cared for by Taylor Statten, C. A. Myers, Manson Doyle and "Freddie" Smith, who are among its national leaders; the evening by the campfire with illustrated lectures and inspirational addresses will live long in the memory of all and the great canoe trip was an initiation on the part of many into the mysteries at least of maintaining the proper balance in life.

Then men of all ages who attended this camp have gone back to their many groups of boys to put into actual operation the ideals and methods that were set forth at camp.

The bowling green, William street, was a most attractive spot on Thursday afternoon, when the trophy donated by Mrs. S. S. Lazier and competed for yearly was presented. Rev. Mr. Kerr, on behalf of Mrs. Lazier, presented to Mrs. Stewart Robertson, the successful skip, the handsome cup and also on behalf of the club, to the members of the rink the individual prizes.

The contest among the rinks was keen, a splendid final match being played, the runners up being skipped by Mrs. Dolan. The tea hostesses for the afternoon were Mrs. D. M. Waters and Mrs. Bonisteel.

PETERBORO' TIES WITH PLOWITES

Peterboro', Oct. 10.—The Peterboro' team, champions of the Central League, tied the series for the Ontario amateur baseball championship this afternoon by beating the Hamilton Plowites 2 to 1 in a sensational 11-inning game before a record crowd. Hamilton won the first game in Hamilton by 5 to 4, and a third game is now necessary. It will be played at Guelph on Wednesday.

Today's game was featured by the great pitching of Rose for Peterboro' and Miller for the Plowites. Rose was a puzzle to the visitors with men on bases, and 13 were stranded, while Miller held the "Petes" to four hits and fanned nine. A fumble by Smith and a slashing triple by Ross scored one for Peterboro' in the sixth Hamilton tied it in the ninth, with two out, on singles by Mellanby and Cumpson and Murray's bad throw.

Fast base running by Cherrett, the Peterboro' shortstop, scored the winning run in the eleventh. Cherrett, who had stolen second, scored from that station on Murray's grounder to Reaume, Cherrett beating the throw to the plate.

MAKE MOIRA BEHAVE AND GO TO WORK.

The power possibilities of the Moira river are again pointed out by Mr. W. C. Mikel in a letter to The Intelligencer, and the subject is well worth the serious consideration of those entrusted with the administration of public affairs.

Spring floods on the Moira annually destroy thousands of dollars worth of property, besides causing much inconvenience, followed later in the season by low water conditions when the river is little better than an open sewer, a menace to health.

When the floods are on public attention is focussed upon the necessity of something being done to prevent a recurrence of the disastrous conditions, but when the situation becomes normal again the question is pigeonholed and forgotten.

The low water conditions with their menace to the public health do not seem to have received the attention merited from the Board of Health and Medical Health Officers, district and local. As far as publicly known the Board of Health only held one meeting this year to consider the question of pollution of the Moira River and that meeting was not a representative one. Since the nuisance has abated for the time being the subject seems to have been dropped without any official suggestions as to remedy or course of action planned to solve the question permanently. If public office is a public trust this question is worthy of serious attention in an effort to arrive at a solution.

Power Will Pay For Improvements.

Mr. Mikel's suggestion is that the power possibilities of the Moira River be developed with a view to providing auxiliary power, preventing floods, and doing away with low water unhealthful conditions by providing a flow of water for all seasons of the year.

The present scarcity of power would seem to indicate that an auxiliary power source would be a valuable asset, and considered in conjunction with the possibility of preventing disastrous spring floods and disease-breeding conditions in the summer the question is big enough and broad enough for a thorough investigation by expert engineers.

Beautiful Boulevards.

In any event, the water should be controlled and a steady flow of water ensured the year round. A visiting artist-engineer has pointed out that the banks of the Moira within the city confines could be utilized as business thoroughfares and made beautiful as boulevards, adding immensely to the value of the river front property now given over to backyard and garbage purposes; but this would not be practicable unless the vagaries of the Moira were controlled.

Let's Finish Something.

So many worthy movements are initiated but so few finished that it would be decidedly refreshing to see the question of controlling the Moira taken up vigorously and followed up to a conclusion one way or the other. If the power proposition is practicable then there is an added incentive in the development of a revenue-producing asset out of a decided liability.

WORKMEN BUY HOMES UNDER NATIONAL POLICY.

Whatever criticisms may be directed against the tariff it cannot be contended that under the "National Policy" Canadian agriculturists and Canadian industries have not flourished and that Canadian workers have not enjoyed living conditions far in advance of European labor. Today as a whole despite high living costs labor is as well if not better off than at any time in its history, and certainly with recent housing and other social legislation its standards of living have been improved appreciably. Ontario's share of the Federal Government's housing appropriation was $8,750,000. The Province voted an additional $2,000,000 for the same purpose. Ninety-nine municipalities in Ontario have taken advantage of the Provincial Housing Act and sixty-eight have actually carried out building operations. Up to the 31st of December, 1919, 1,184 houses had been constructed and about 1,000 have been erected or are being erected this year. These 2,200 houses will cost approximately for houses and land $8,800,000, of which those who have taken advantage of the housing legislation have contributed about $1,000,000. The Provincial Bureau of Municipal Affairs is the authority for the statement that practically all these houses are for working men and women. In other words, Canadian workers have invested approximately $1,000,000 in dwellings built under the provisions of the Provincial Act, the terms of sale of which provide for payment of an amount in each month estimated by the Director as sufficient to pay the purchase money with interest thereon at the rate of 5 per cent. per annum at the end of twenty years from the date of the mortgage.

Outside of these investments many workingmen have bought their own homes direct from private builders and the total investment by Canadian labor all over the Dominion must be very large. Can the prosperous conditions which have permitted these investments be continued under radical tariff legislation which must certainly disturb industrial stability and encourage unemployment and depression? Working men and women before subscribing to policies directly affecting their means of livelihood should carefully consider the probable effects of their operation.

Sinn Feiners, who are trying to establish an Irish Republic are fighting the battle of freedom for Canada as well as for Ireland, according to Lindsay Crawford. Germany put up a somewhat similar argument at the beginning of the war, but Canadians failed to appreciate the Kaiser's benevolent intentions. If Sinn Feiners are pinching their stomachs to please Canada they may order breakfast without further delay. True-hearted Canadians have no desire that Ireland should be sacrificed in order to save this fair Dominion from the cruel tyranny of Sir Hamar Greenwood.

One Single Tax City
Montreal Gazette

The city of Edmonton is to have a sale of lands on which the taxes have not been paid. There are between 17,000 and 18,000 lots on the list, the unpaid taxes running from fifty cents to $500 according to size, location and valuation. Those who think the country can be run by taking the unearned increment of land values will find the case a difficult one. There has evidently been no increment, earned, or unearned, in connection with these Edmonton lots, which would afford homes for 80,000, or 90,000 people. It is to be said for Edmonton, also that the dullness following the bursting of its land boom has evidently passed, and the population is not getting rich, though, on its land holdings.

We're travellin' down de same ole pike,
In sunshine or regret,

De same ole songs we sings,
We has de same ole joys complete,
An' same old sorrowings.

De proud man sits 'way up on high
De humble man sits low;
But over each dar shines desky;
For each de flowers grow.

ONE THING

Help me to choose, O Lord, from out the maze
And multitude of things that by me roll,
One thing to work and pray for here on earth—
Something to keep before me as a goal;
That when I die my days may form for Thee,
Not many fragments but one perfect whole.

I seek, O Lord, some purpose in my life,
Some end which will my daily acts control.
So many days seem wasted now to me—
All disconnected hours that by me roll.
Help me to choose, O Lord, while I am young,
Something to keep before me as a goal.

Britain's Census Next Year.

The matter of next year's census already has appeared in Parliament, and in a few months we shall all be finding an interest in our decennial numbering of the people. Had we not been plunged into war we might have had a census in 1916, for there was a strong conviction in many quarters that, as the factors which cause fluctuations in population have greatly increased, a census every five years has become necessary. The chief objection that was urged was the cost, but that does not look very heavy in face of present standards.

The expense of a census in these islands usually works out at about 1d. a head. To be exact, the 1911 census cost £196,000, or £5 8s 8d a thousand of the population. We appear to do this more cheaply than some of our continental neighbors. In the Netherlands the census cost £7 2s 4d a thousand, in Norway £8 4s 10d, and in Austria £5 14s 10d. In America the census is much more costly—about 20 cents a head.

Our first census was taken in 1801, and it may be noted that at that time the total population of Great Britain was found to be 10,942,646.—Manchester Guardian.

CANADIAN SHOES FOR CANADIAN PEOPLE

A thousand rumors do not make one single fact

ALL of us want to believe the rumors regarding further reduction in footwear prices. If they were founded on fact—or even probability—we would have been ahead of Rumor in announcing the good news.

BUT rumor, as usual, ignores the one fact that controls the situation—that prices to the retailer are governed by the cost of raw materials and labor.

High prices are not of our making or seeking. They have been imposed upon us and you by the tremendously increased cost of every single thing that enters into the making of shoes.

And these high material costs, together with to-day's wage scale, which govern and dictate our shoe prices, show no immediate tendency to permanently seek lower levels.

THAT is why we cannot make any definite promise to you that our prices to the retailer will be any lower this season than those in effect for Spring, 1921, styles.

Irresponsible Rumor ignores these facts—delights in "sensational news"—and, as is so often the case, hurts everybody indiscriminately until its falseness and viciousness become apparent.

We appreciate our responsibility to you; we want to help towards cheaper living and we are earnestly striving to improve matters. We ask your confidence and belief to encourage us towards that end.

OUR advice to you—and we give it in all sincerity—is to BUY NOW any shoes you need for yourself or your family for Fall and Winter. Don't buy extravagantly or recklessly, but do so carefully and judiciously.

OVERWORKED MEN NEED MORE STRENGTH.

Here is A Suggestion That Has Helped Others.

Men who are in good physical condition do not feel the strain of daily work. It is those who are undernourished, and allow their blood to get into a thin, devitalized condition who are always tired and consider themselves overworked. It is not the work, but the condition of body that makes them feel so.

There are many men here who can prove from personal experience that Vinol is just the remedy such men need. We know of many cases where it has quickly and permanently restored normal health with a quickening of energy, mainly because it enriches the blood and makes the food they eat nourish and build up bodily health.

City And Country

Tisdale, whose body was interred in St. James' cemetery on Saturday morning: Star—Sister and brother; wreaths—The Intelligencer and staff, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Draycott and son; crosses—Employees of Black & Son, Eileen Pointer; sheafs—Mr. and Mrs. Bert Aselstine, Mr. and Mrs. W. POWER SITUATION.

Mr. E. G. Porter, K.C., M.P., is still interesting himself in regard to the power situation. He was in communication with the Goernment on Saturday with the result that an independent hydraulic engineer left Ottawa last night for Peterboro, where he will look over the situation and report to the Government.

CAR AN VEHICLE COLLIDE.

At 7.15 on Saturday evening a collision occurred on Front street between an auto driven by Arthur Wallace of Corbyville and a delivery waggon driven by Mr. W. Ralls of this city and owned by Mr. Wm. Vallance. The result of the impact was damage to the fender of the car and to one hind wheel of the vehicle.

CANADIAN CHEESE.

At the Belleville Cheese Board on Saturday John Elliott suggested that some means be devised whereby Canadian cheese might be served on the tables in Canadian hotels. He said there were thousands of British tourists who visited Canada and complained of the cheese furnished at the hotels as very inferior to the Canadian cheese to which the people of the British Isles are accustomed. Cheesemen said that the Canadian consumer preferred green cheese, while the Britisher liked old cheese. Mr. Elliott declared that the question should be brought before the Associated Boards of Trade of Ontario meeting in Belleville in November.

DEATH OF INFANT.

APPLEBY—DAWKINS.

A very quiet wedding took place on Oct. 5th in St. George's Church, Montreal, Que., when the Rev. J. Paterson Smyth united in marriage Cargie Etta Dawkins, youngest daughter of Mrs. and the late Mr. John Dawkins of Belleville, Ont., to William H. Appleby, of Windsor, Ont. The bride, who was given away by her mother, wore her travelling suit of navy blue embroidered tricotine and hat to match. Mr. and Mrs. Appleby are spending their honeymoon in Montreal and Quebec and sail on the 16th by Megantic for a trip abroad.

THE MICHELHAM MILLIONS.

All England Interested In Famous Case.

The great fight for the Michelham millions is providing England with an amazing story of money, romance and intrigue.

The Chancery Court has just decided one of a long series of suits. By the judgment handed down, the present Lady Michelham, formerly Miss Capel, who married the Hon. Hermann de Stern the day before his father, the late peer, died, loses a death-bed marriage settlement of $5,000,000 bringing in an annual income of $100,000.

The judge ruled that when he made the settlement Lord2 Michelmade the settlement Lord Michelany business or understanding any transaction. Suits to upset the will were brought by the Dowager Lady Michelham and Capt. Jefferson David Cohn, well-known racehorse owner and one of the trustees and beneficiaries under an earlier will.

Evidence revealed that on January 3, 1919, Miss Capel and the Hon. Hermann de Stern attended the dying peer at his bedside and sought his approval of their marriage. He agreed and signed the settlement, his hand being guided by Lady Michelham. The marriage took place in London on the following day, Lord Beresford giving the bride away. Two nights later Lord Michelham died.

The late Lord Michelham was the son of the Baron Hermann de Stern, who inherited a fortune of about $10,000,000. The Stern family were bankers in London, Paris and Brussels and the late peer was bequeathed fortunes by both his father and his brother, who for some years before his death was insane.

"Jeff" Cohn, who married a daughter of Horatio Bottomley, met the Michelhams in 1902 and spent much time with them in Paris, where Lord Michelham opened up a magnificent apartment in the Rue Nitot, which was rented by the British Government for its peace delegation last year. Through his success on the turf and his entertainment on his yacht Alberta of the King and Queen of the Hellenes, "Jeff" became a leading figure in continental society. He was regarded as Lord Michelham's most intimate friend.

In 1911 the peer made a will, appointing as executors his wife and "Jeff" Cohn. Under this will "Jeff" would receive $25,000 for acting as trustee, plus $3,000 a year as long as he so acted.

In 1918, however, Lord Michelham executed a new will from which Cohn"s name was omitted. Immediately prior to the peer's death his son, then eighteen years of age, was about to marry Bertha Isabella Capel, who was then thirty-nine years old. She was the daughter of a remarkable woman, who ran a famous salon in Paris in the eighties, and who obtained a coal contract for the French Navy when she fell into financial embarrassment.

Where Women Are Wanted.

Walking down the Strand recently a newspaper reporter counted 230 women to fifty-eight men in the space of a quarter of an hour, while the proportion in a tube carriage was twenty-two women to six men, says Pearson's Weekly.

As we are all aware, we have now an enormously greater number of women than of men in Britain. Even before the war English women outnumbered English men by nearly a million. To-day the difference is about two millions.

Some people declare that there is nothing to be done to remedy this state of affairs. Why not? There are heaps of countries which want women. Take Western Australia. In that great country there are three men to two women. There is not a single Australian state where men do not outnumber women. For the whole of the island continent 200,000 women are required to make the sexes equal.

Matters are not quite so bad in Canada, but even there 130,000 women are required to even up matters. Smaller dependencies are in a worse way. The Falkland Islands, for instance, have 1,200 men to only 800 women. Trinidad has 136,000 men to 119,000 women.

The fact is that in almost every part of the British Empire, except in Britain itself, there are more men than women. There is no other country in the world which has so great a preponderance of women as has England to-day. Surely emigration is the best, indeed the only cure for the present state of affairs.

Guarding Crown Jewels.

The crown jewels are no longer in the Tower of London. They have been removed to one of the vaults beneath the Bank of England to be cleaned, says Pearson's Weekly.

Even there, however, they could hardly be safer than when reposing at their ordinary home in the Wakefield Tower, where, as most people are aware, they are kept inside an octagonal glass case, enclosed by a sort of steel cage.

Case and cage look commonplace enough. The bars of the latter are quite slender, and the glass is the ordinary shop window kind. Nevertheless it would go hard with anybody who tried to tamper with them.

For each of these innocent looking steel bars is connected with a series of electric burglar alarms, and the slightest attempt to tamper with them would set alarm bells clanging all over the tower.

At the same instant a hidden screen of tempered steel concealed in the upper part of the structure would descend at a run, so that in a few seconds the jewels would be automatically enclosed in what is, to all intents and purposes, a gigantic eight-sided steel safe.

At the same instant of time all the occupants of the jewel room would find themselves imprisoned therein by the mechanical closing of the doors, and the outer gates of the tower would also clang to automatically.

QUEER PERQUISITES

King George Is Entitled to "A Nightcap, Value One Half Penny.

There is something essentially human in the live of perquisites, which seems to be as irresistible to the most highly-placed official in the land as to the brewer's drayman, who enjoys his daily allowance of beer, or the woman who sweeps a music hall floor, and cheerfully appropriates the cigar stumps or half-smoked cigarettes, which she converts into money, says Answers.

Even the dignified Speaker of the House of Commons is not displeased when every August brings him a fat buck killed in the royal forests—at Christmas, when he receives a doe from the same source, and a liberal supply of the very best broadcloth from the Clothworkers' Company; while his table is supplied with two hogsheads of excellent wine; and an allowance of £100 a year keeps him supplied with pens, ink and paper. Such perquisites are by no means to be despised, even by a man who enjoys £5,000 a year and a certain prospect of a peerage.

The King himself has some very strange perquisites, many of which have most interesting histories attached to them. Few know that he can claim the head of a whale, so that "there may be no lack of whalebone wherewith to stiffen the royal garments," although it is more commonly known that every sturgeon caught in British waters belongs to him by right.

What a remarkable collection the King's perquisites would make if they were all duly claimed! And what possible use could his majesty make of some of them? A tablecloth of the value of three shillings; a coat of grey fur; a horse and halter, and even a silver needle, contributed by the court tailor, might conceivably be welcome; but he might willingly dispense with "a nightcap of the value of one halfpenny," a pound of cumin seed, a catapult—which might be a temptation to some young royal prince—a currycomb, a pair of scarlet hose, a cross-bow, a pair of tongs, and a falcon.

And yet the King is by law and ancient custom entitled to this strange assortment of perquisites, and to others of greater value and usefulness, such as the costly and beautiful cashmere shawls which are so much treasured as wedding presents.

The principal officers of the Corporation of the City of London, are far from despising the "pickings" that fall to their lot every year. To the Lord Mayor, Bushey Park yields tribute of four fat bucks, a perquisite which is eight centuries old; three bucks are assigned to each of the sheriffs; while the recorder, town clerk, chamberlain, the common sergeant, and remembrancer receive one buck each.

Among the perquisites of the Lord Chancellor, which include the patronage of livings and appointments worth hundreds of thousands of pounds a year, is the purse in which the Great Seal is kept—a gorgeous creation in rich velvet and gold, which is treasured as an heirloom in his family. In the case of one Lord Chancellor, who held office for some time and so acquired several of these purses, they were actually used by his wife in upholstering a suite of furniture.

The guests of some of the city companies, strange to say, have their perquisites, which serve as mementoes of an excellent meal. Each guest of the Salters' Company receive a horn saltspoon; or, on special occasions, half a dozen spoons of silver.

At the coronation of a sovereign perquisites come in showers, and some of them are very quaint. From the Lord of the Manor of Addington the sovereign can claim a dish of pottage concocted of "chopped chickens, capon-brawn, spices, sugar and almond-milk"; while the Lord of the Manor of Haydon must make a solemn presentation of a towel for his sovereign's use.

In olden times the Chamberlain claimed the furniture of the room in which the sovereign had slept on the eve of the coronation, in addition to forty yards of crimson velvet and a silver ewer and basin.

Fabrics Named for Cities.

The origin of the names of popular fabrics is even more interesting than the tracing to third lingual roots of ordinary words.

About the year 1329 the woollen trade of England become located at Worsted, about 15 miles from Norwich, and it was at this place that the manufacture of the twisted double thread woollen, afterward called worsted, was first made, if not invented.

Linsey-wolsey was first made at Linsey, and was for a long time a very popular fabric.

Kerseymere takes its name from the village of Kersey, and the mere close by it, in the county of Suffolk.

We have to thank Gaza, in Palestine, the gates of which Samson carried away, for gaza or gauze. Gaza means "treasure." Voltaire, wishing to describe some intellectual but dressy woman, said "She is an eagle in a cage of gauze."

Muslin owes its name to Mossoul, a fortified town in Turkey in Asia.

Tulle obtains its name from that of a city in the south of France. Travelers by rail in Brittany often glide past Guingamp without remembering that it was here that was first produced that useful fabric, gingham.

Damask derives its name from the city of Damascus; calico from Calicut, a town in India formerly celebrated for its cotton cloth, where also calico was printed; cambric from Cambray, a town in Flanders, where is was first made, and tweed from a fabric worn by fishermen upon the river Tweed.

CUT OFF LEG TO RESCUE MOTORMAN

New York, Oct. 11— Physicians working with the aid of one flickering lantern, early Friday amputated the right leg of Henry Helms, a motorman, in order to rescue him from the tangled wreckage of two street cars telescoped in a collision that caused injuries to twenty other persons.

Helms, who was pinioned under the car when physicians arrived, persuaded them to perform the operation without an anaesthetic in order to save time. Later, his other leg, badly mangled, was also removed at a hospital. Helms and the conductor, Wm. Wherax, who received a fractured skull, are said to have slight chances of recovery.

The accident happened when the brakes failed to function on the descent of a steep hill on Amsterdam ave. Many of the passengers, who became hysterical when the car sped uncontrolled down the hill, escaped injury by huddling together n the rear platfrm.

Brooklyn Dodgers Face Waterloo In Cleveland

WORLD'S BASEBALL SERIES GAME ON MONDAY WON BY CLEVELAND TEAM — WIN FOR CLEVELAND TODAY MEANS FINISH OF SERIES—CLOSE GAME MONDAY WON BY SMASH TO BLEACHERS.

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer, Canadian Press, Limited.

CLEVELAND, Oct. 12.—With the possibility of the World's Series being terminated today, managers of the contending teams will not make final pitching selections until this afternoon.

The probable line-ups are as follows:

Monday's Game.

Cleveland, Oct. 11.—The Cleveland Indians came within reaching distance of the baseball championship when they shut out the Brooklyn Nationals by 1 to 0 here this afternoon in the sixth game of the World Series. Another victory in the inter-league contest tomorrow will complete the affray and permit the local club to fly two banners in the breeze next spring as an epoch-making event in the history of the Cleveland team. With the score four games to two it is conceded by even the most loyal of the Brooklyn fans that nothing but the most remarkable reversal of form on the part of the Robins can prolong the series more than a game or two.

While play today lacked much of the sensational features of Sunday's thrilling battle, it was a well-played contest from a technical baseball standpoint, resolving itself early into a pitching duel between Walter Mails and Sherry Smith, two of the leading southpaws of the Major Leagues.

Mails had decidedly the better of the contest, the batters from the East being held to three scattered hits, while Cleveland found Smith's range for seven safeties.

Dodgers on Toboggan.

The Indians' team batting average in the sixth game was the same as that of Sunday, being .247, but the total result was one run instead of the eight accomplished yesterday. Brooklyn, on the other hand, slumped before the baffling delivery of Mails from .240 to .214.

The credit for the victory cannot, however, be accorded entirely to Mails' superiority over Sherry Smith, for the Cleveland hurler was backed by a better brand of defence than that accorded the National League boxman. Seven Dodgers were left stranded with potential runs in the making, while but four Indians remained on the sacks after the third out.

Although Cleveland had two men on bases at one time during the second innings it was not until the sixth session that the run which gave the home team the victory was pushed across.

After Evans had flied out to Konetchy, his only hitless appearance at the plate during the game, Wamby was sent to the bench, Olson to Konetchy. Speaker shot a single to left. With two down, Burns caught one of Smith's sweeps on the very tip of the bat and lifted the sphere clear to the centrefield bleachers. The ball hit the low rails and evaded both the hands of Wheat and those of several men and boys who tried to clutch it, being finally retrieved by Myers far too late to prevent Speaker from scoring.

Protests in Vain.

Olson protested claiming it interfered with the ball, but the umpires refused to consider the claim. The peculiar circumstances which have attended the playing of the Cleveland club to date was again shown in this play, for Burns is a native son of Ohio, having been born in Niles.

Wrought up to a fever pitch of enthusiasm by the sensational play of Sunday, this city and surrounding sections turned out another tremendous gathering for today's game. After the last turnstile check had been made it was announced by the National Commission that the paid admissions totalled 27,194, the largest in the series to date. The game receipts amounted to $82,269, which will be divided ten per cent to the National Commission and the balance equally between the owners of the two contending clubs and the treasuries of the Major Leagues.

Weather conditions were unlike those prevailing on any of the preceding games. The sky was overcast and a stiff breeze blew across the outfield, causing the fielders considerable trouble in judging the course of high hit balls. The atmosphere, like Saturday, was a damp heat. A few rain drops fell in the sixth inning.

Cannot Recall Where He Left Child

Shell-Shocked Veteran Cannot Remember Where He Left Baby.

NIAGARA FALLS, N.Y., Oct. 12.—Mrs. Helena Murchison of Cobourg, Ont., appealed to the Falls police to aid in a search for George Hines, the two-year-old son of her sister, Mrs. Jennie Hines, also of Cobourg, Ont. The story of the baby's disappearance is the strangest ever reported to the Falls police.

Albert Hines, the child's father, according to the story told by Miss Murchison, is an overseas veteran and suffers from the effects of shell shock. On September 23 he left Cobourg, taking the child with him, unknown to the mother. Hines, the woman says, has lapses of memory and as soon as it was discovered that he took the boy a search for him was instituted. The father was located several days later at Niagara Falls, Ont. The baby was not with him.

MEMORY FAILS HIM

Mrs. Murchison says Hines refused to tell the Niagara Falls, Ont. police what he had done with the baby. His wife was notified and Hines returned to Cobourg. Continuous questioning by the wife and her relatives failed to make Hines remember, according to Mrs. Murchison's story where he left the child. He said the boy was in Niagara Falls, N.Y., and was safe but further than that, Mrs. Murchison says, Hines could not remember.

The wife and her relatives are fearful that some harm has befallen the child. Diligent search on their part and by the Niagara Falls, Ont., police has failed to bring to light any clue to the whereabouts of the baby. Hines, Mrs. Murchison says, is quite unperturbed, regarding the fate of his young son, saying merely that he is in the city.

HOPE TO SEE CHILD

When the child left home with its father he wore a His Majesty's Service suit, a royal blue colored sweater. He is fair-haired and has blue eyes. Since the disappearance of the baby Mrs Murchison and her sister have made several visits to this city and have stood for hours on Falls streets in the hope of seeing the baby pass in charge of some person, but have been unsuccessful. According to Mrs. Murchison's story, the mother is prostrated over the disappearance of her son.

Lloyd George Speaks Plainly On Situation In Ireland

SINN FEINERS ARE NOT WAGING WAR — THEY ARE ENGAGED IN COMMITTING MURDER, THE PREMIER CHARGES—POLICE MERELY HIT BACK, PREMIER SAYS, IN REFERRING TO REPRISALS.

CARNARVON, Wales, Oct. 12.—Premier Lloyd George, in a speech here concerning the situation in Ireland, referred to reprisals. He argued that the police in Ireland do not bomb houses and shoot men without provocation. The Premier said that 238 policemen had been shot, of whom 109 had been shot dead, and the patience of the police had given way with the result that they hit back.

Mr. Lloyd George declared that if, as was contended, there was war in Ireland, then the war must be waged on both sides. But when policemen were shot in the back by Sinn Feiners, the Premier said, it was not war, but murder.

Mr. Lloyd George asked whether, under the system of terrorism which made it impossible to obtain evidence, it was any wonder the police shot the murderers.

Must Restore Order.

"We must however, restore order in Ireland, even by stern methods," the Premier asserted, "because we cannot permit the country to fall into complete anarchy." The Prime Minister said the murderous gang which now tyrannizes Ireland must be broken up and the Government must proceed with a measure for complete self-government of the country.

Police Murders.

Referring to the killing of policemen, Mr. Lloyd George said:

"While these murders were going on I never read a word of protest from the Sinn Fein in Ireland. Mr. A. Griffith (founder of the Sinn Fein) a very able and distinguished Irishman, communicated to the press of the United States and, I believe, to the English press, an interview the other day in which he showed great concern at the prospect of what he thought was going to be an attack on his own life. I do not believe there is any attack being concerted against his life, but I never saw a word from Arthur Griffith displaying any indignation at the killing of 109 policemen."

The Premier said that if there was a state of war in Ireland it would give the soldiers and policemen a fair chance and they would give a good account of themselves. He demanded whether the police were to stand to be shot down like dogs without any attempt to defend themselves, and declared it was more than human nature could tolerate.

Mr. Lloyd George said he could understand and sympathize with the idea that self-government should be given because it would bring good will, but not because a "gang of assassins had bullied the Government into it." It was all very well, the Premier continued, to talk about a Dominion form of Government, but Ireland demanded an absolutely independent republic and even that would not satisfy the Irish. He declared Ulster would not have an Irish Republic and "we do not want to negotiate peace with civil war at the very door."

Dominion Home Rule.

Mr. Lloyd George said that if Ireland were given complete Dominion Home Rule it would mean she could have conscription and then England with her army of 100,000 men might be confronted with an Irish army of half a million. He contended that Dominion Home Rule for Ireland meant conscription for England.

The Premier charged that Ireland had assisted the German submarine campaign and declared that although little had been said about it, Ireland was Great Britain's worry during the war. Had anyone ever proposed such "lunacy," he demanded as to allow Ireland to obtain her independence with her own army and navy, and her capacity for assisting Great Britain's enemies?"

Army and Navy.

No one wanted to manage Ireland's domestic affairs, Mr. Lloyd George said, but dangerous weapons like armies and navies were better under the control of the Imperial Parliament and the Government would resist any attempt to give Ireland a separate army and navy. The present Home Rule Bill, he said, would have given Ireland every facility to manage her own domestic affairs.

Assisted Germany.

In connection with the charge that Ireland assisted Germany during the war, Mr. Lloyd George asserted that in 1917 and 1918 the Irish were conspiring in connection with German submarine operations, and that there were documents discovered in the pockets of men arrested in 1918 showing that they were prepared within two months of the German offensive, of which they knew, to raise a huge force in Ireland "to stab Great Britain in the back when she was engaged in a life and death struggle for the freedom of the world."

Pleasant Fraternal Visit Of Oshawa Rotarians

BELLEVILLE ROTARY ENTERTAINS LARGE DELEGATION OF ROTARIANS FROM AUTOMOBILE TOWN—A BIG NIGHT IN THE MAGIC CIRCLE — OSHAWA ROTARIANS DOING A SPLENDID WORK IN ASSISTING CHILDREN'S AID SOCIETY—PROPOSE TO RAISE $25,000 FOR EXTENSION OF CHILDREN'S SHELTER BUILDING—SPEECH, SONG AND STORY AROUND BANQUET BOARD.

Service above Self is the keynote of Rotary always emphasized in the activities of this aggressive and useful organization and the visit of Oshawa Rotarians to the Belleville Circle Monday evening again brought out the strong points of Rotary in the fraternizing of good fellows all embued with the same worthy idea of devoting their time and talents to useful community service. These fraternal visits are very helpful in the exchange of views and useful suggestions and the knowledge that Oshawa Rotarians have vigorously taken up Boys' Work as their chief endeavor while special attention is paid to helping the Children's Shelter in that town will be helpful to the Belleville organization in planning their own work. Oshawa Rotarians provide automobile rides for the wee tots in the Children's Shelter and assist the work in various other ways. Next season they plan to conduct a campaign for $25,000 to provide an extension to the Children's Shelter building in that place.

Another useful result of the visit of Oshawa Rotarians was the arrangement of a joint campaign with Belleville and Oshawa to organize and establish Rotary in Peterboro where the seed has already been planted by Rotarian Billy Doyle of Belleville and a vigorous organization may be expected with the assistance of Belleville and Oshawa Rotarians.

PRESIDENT GUS

President Gus Porter occupied the chair for the first part of the evening and was succeeded later by Rotarian Frank Wills, and under the able supervision of these gentlemen there was not a dull moment in the entire proceedings. After the excellent menu provided by Mine Host Rotarian Jim Jenkins in Hotel Quinte best style the evening was given over to speech song and story and good fellowship ruled the roost.

MUSIC AND MERRIMENT.

The musical program was of an exceptionally entertaining character, with Prof. Wheatley presiding in his customary capable manner at the piano. George Henley, the sweet singer of Oshawa, was very effective in topical songs and parodies and his Pain in the Chest parody of John Brown's Body certainly shook things up some, and then some more, besides shaking some shekels into the rapacious paws of the Sergeant-at Arms. As a matter of fact Oswal Scott, that fine man, was right up on his toes, so to speak, all evening, and gave no quarter to delinquents, rather did he take several quarters from them, even Parson Doug falling a victim—once, for a Scot is never caught twice with the same bait.

GEORGE MILLER'S HEN

Rotarian George Miller, of Oshawa, contributed a Little Old Hen, with vocal trimmings, to the festivities, and laid the foundation for a reputation as a comedian.

Sandy Burrows and Burrows of Belleville, Billy Doyle, Jim Booth and Harold Barrett contributed vocal numbers which were very much appreciated.

President Gus Porter welcomed the visitors in kindly terms of good fellowship referring to the great and golden hospitality extended to him and his associates in a recent visit to Oshawa Rotary. Mr. Porter in a brief but pointed and eloquent address defined Rotary as a forward movement carrying sympathy, friendship and assistance to those in need. Oshawa, he described as a progressive burg and the Oshawa Rotarians as a bunch of good fellows.

PRESIDENT BERT

Bert Smith, President of Oshawa Rotary, was then called upon and gave some salient facts as to the progress and prosperity of the automobile center. Transportation facilities are so highly developed in Oshawa that there is a freight and passenger service to the front doors of the business places. Oshawa was energetic and progressive and its manufacturing interests were expanding. President Smith gave a very interesting account of Rotary activities in Oshawa with a particular reference to the Boys Work Department and assistance to the Children's Shelter, the Rotarians each week taking the children for automobile rides which were very much appreciated. Next season Oshawa Rotarians are going to raise $25,000 for the Children's Shelter work. He closed by inviting Belleville Rotary to attend a Dinner Dance to be given by Oshawa Rotary, Tuesday, October 19.

Brief messages were also delivered by Alf Hicks, a former resident of Belleville, Charlie Davis, Fred Bailes, Bert Hutcheson, Police Magistrate Hinds and others. Rotarian Hinds took occasion to speak in a very high terms of Major Arthur Pratt, D.S.O., a former citizen of Oshawa, now domiciled and in business in Belleville, commending him to the good fellowship of all Rotarians.

MAJOR ARTHUR PRATT, D.S.O.

Major Pratt, who is manager of the McLaughlin Automobile Headquarters in this city was called upon and expressed his gratification at the warmth of his introduction and welcome. He hoped to get better acquainted and live up to the reputation wished upon him by the Police Magistrate of that good town of Oshawa.

The visitors motred down in the afternoon and the evening was well advanced when they turned their cars homeward all highly pleased with their welcome and entertainment by Belleville Rotarians.

Prescription Trade Shows Decline

TORONTO, Oct. 12.—A gradual drop is noticed in the number of liquor prescriptions issued by doctors or dispensaries. In the month of April, 2,367 doctors were issuing and the average prescriptions figured 26.76 per month. In August, the numbers were 2,271 and 21.98 respectively.

When the Ontario Temperance Act came into operation the Ontario License Board felt that action should not be taken against doctors who did not issue over 200 liquor prescriptions on dispensaries in a month. As time went on, however, it was considered that this was an over-estimate and that the figure could well drop to 100. With further experience it has been ascertained, even this, in the great majority of cases might be reduced, a view which may be considered as strengthened by a resolution of the Alberta Medical Association which favored limiting liquor prescriptions of 8 oz. or less to 5 per month. The Ontario License Board, however, has not yet fixed any particular figure in the way of reduction.

The figures given in the first paragraph do not include liquor prescriptions upon druggists who are limited to 6 ozs. under the Act. It is understood that the question of carrying out a plan for counting druggists' prescriptions at short intervals is under consideration by the Board.

U. S. SUPREME COURT UPHOLDS PROHIBITION

Washington, Oct. 11.—The United States Supreme Court refused today to reconsider its decision of last June 7, sustaining validity of the prohibition amendment and portions of the Enforcement Act.

Montreal Medical Men Doubt Fast

What Prominent Physicians Say of MacSwiney's Hunger Strike.

MONTREAL, Oct. 12.—It is stated that this is the fifty-fifth day of the hunger strike of Lord Mayor MacSwiney, of Cork, but medical and dietical opinion in Montreal holds strongly to the opinion that abstention for such a period is absolutely impossible.

Miss Maude E. Perry, dietition to the Montreal General Hospital, said she had been watching the case with interest, it being quite without precedent. She claimed that not being a physician she could not say with authority whether such a length of time without food was possible. "The longest period of fasting I know of," said Miss Perry, "was the case of a physician. He went through a fast, and as it had not been under observation, he repeated it, the second time under surveillance, in neither instance, suffering any ill effects, but on the forty-first day he took a little fruit. We teach that it is not possible for a person to live more than forty days without nourishment in addition to water, and we have no authentic cases on record. I do not think that Mr. MacSwiney can be undertaking a strict fast."

Major A. K. Haywood, superintendent of the hospital, was even more emphatic in saying that it could not be possibly done. He declared that he had no personal experience of a strictly fasting case, such as this was claimed to be, such cases as he had handled having been only those in sickness or ill-health, but "it is utterly impossible," he said, "and it appears to me to hold up Mayor MacSwiney and his Irish friends to some ridicule that they should persist, after fifty-five days in claiming that he is subjecting himself to a fast. There are a number of ways in which a man may be fed, and suger derivatives such as loctose dextrose or sucrose could be administered, either by the mouth, or in any of these cases he would be aware of the fact that an injection was being made."

"We do not know whether he is being fed surreptitiously," stated Dr H. A. Lafleur, in answer to an enquiry adding that therefore he did not feel able to express any opinion on the case.

It was pointed out by Dr. F. G. Finley, another specialist in matters of the stomach that there was nothing to go upon, no precedent for such a fast. "There was the case of Dr. Tanner, who underwent a fast for forty days under observation and recovered perfectly from it, living for many years until at length he died an old man. In a case of sickness I have known a patient to recover after three weeks without food, but it is impossible to say what might be done by a healthy man under such conditions of care and attention as Mayor MacSwiney is said to be receiving."

DRIVE TO RELIEVE COAL SITUATION

Toronto, Oct. 12.—A great drive was begun at midnight Monday by the masters of the coal situation in Canada and the United States to relieve the anthracite fuel situation. While Canada will not see immediate results it is expected that in two weeks Canada will be working nicely to catch up with the shortage, which today in Ontario alone amounts to 115,000 tons in anthracite coal. The normal supply for Ontario is 150 cars a day, but this has been cut to 55 cars, and got down to four cars a day during the worst period of the recent strike of miners.

The situation is to be improved by action taken Saturday by the Interstate Commerce Commission of Washington, but Canada is co-operating as well in her own interests.

A new Canadian regulation notice of which has been received in Toronto gives power to the provincial fuel administrators to take possession of any cars of coal which are on sidings more than six days. Two days' notice, however, must be given the consigners before the coal is confiscated.

Rube Marquard Before The Court

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer, Canadian Press, Limited.

CLEVELAND, Oct. 12.—Richard Marquard, of the Brooklyn Nationals was fined one dollar and costs in the local municipal court here this morning on a charge of violating the Exhibition Ticket ordinance. President Heydler of the National League, who was in court with Marquard, stated that as the violation was merely technical he would take no further action in the matter. Marquard was charged with ticket speculation in connection with the World's Series games.

ARREST MADE IN MURDER CASE.

Ottawa, Oct. 7.—After weeks of investigation, agents of the Quebec Provincial Detective Department who have been working on the case, believe they have located one of the authors of the double murder committed on the outskirts of Temiskaming village, Que., on the afternoon of Friday, July 23, when two Russian Poles, A. Kusman, 24 years, and T. Kolodricky, 30 years, were murdered and their bodies hidden in the bush after the perpetration of the crime.

The suspected murderer is a Pole, Nick Sigleski, a man of about 40 years of age, who has been detained for some time in the Bryson jail as a material witness. On Tuesday the Crown released Sigleski as a witness, but he was immediately re-arrested by Provincial Detective Regis Clement on a charge of murder. Preliminary examination was set for October 22.

FARMER'S BARNS ARE DESTROYED BY FIRE.

St. Thomas, Oct. 11.—St. Thomas and district was visited by a severe electrical storm Monday. Daniel Caughlin, a farmer residing two and a half miles north of here, suffered a loss of some $6,000 when two large barns on his farm were burned to the ground, together with 1,200 bushels of oats and the crop from 12 acres of wheat. One barn was struck about 2 o'clock, the other one catching fire about ten minutes later. With the assistance of the neighbors the stock and farm implements were rescued.

Prices Continue Downward Tread

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer Canadian Press, Limited.

OTTAWA, Oct. 12.—A continued downward movement in prices is shown by the report of the Cost of Living Branch of the Labor Department prepared for publication in the September issue of the Labor Gazette. The report states that the departmental index number of wholesale prices was down to 326.6 in September as compared with 356.6 for May. The high point for September, 1919, index number was 301.5. Prices are still far more than double those prevailing in pre-war days. The average cost of a list of twenty-nine staple foods in terms of retail prices at middle of September was $15.95, or one dollar less than July and eight dollars more than September, 1914.

Clerk's Slip Sent Wheat Tumbling

CHICAGO, Oct. 12.—A slip of the pen in the hands of a clerk in the Board of Trade here sent wheat prices tumbling, caused the Canadian Government to consider taking over the wheat market there, and caused a proclamation to be issued by the United States Wheat Growers' Association urging suspension of all sales of wheat by farmers until the price raised to $3.

The clerk, it was stated, mistook an order from Rosenbaum Brothers, brokers, to sell 1,000 bushels, for 1,000,000 bushels, and when dealers heard that such a large amount was being thrown away on the market, prices immediately began to slump. The market opened at $1.99¼, advanced a quarter of a cent, and then began to slump, point by point. Word soon reached the floor that the brokerage house had dumped a million bushels on the market, and smaller dealers began to sell.

E. E. Glazer, president of Rosenbaum Brothers, said the order was only oversold about 75,000 bushels when the error was discovered. He said his house covered at a loss of about two cents a bushel.

2000 YEARS AGO

the fighting Gladiators of ancient Rome healed their wounds and sores with rare herbal oils and balms. These are said to have knitted the damaged tissues together in miraculous fashion.

Though the highly-prized secrets of those precious healers were lost with the fall of Rome itself, the introduction of the great herbal balm Zam-Buk, has furnished their true successor. It is so marvellously like them in action.

The soothing and healing touch of Zam-Buk is to-day known the world over. Wherever there is a Cut, Burn or Scald, a Festering or Poisoned Sore, a patch of Eczema, Salt Rheum, Pimples or Rash, Zam-Buk ends the trouble once and for all. The same with Ulcers, Ringworm, and Piles.

Nothing else known to Science performs such marvellous healing, or dispels disease from the tissues so thoroughly as Zam-Buk does. This is due to its pure herbal character and origin. Its absolute freedom from the animal fats and minerals found in present-day ointments is another valuable feature.

With production costs at high-water mark, the price of Zam-Buk remains at 50 cents. At the old price you still have the same high standard of curative and healing value. Increased world-wide demand allows this.

All dealers or Zam-Buk Co., Toronto. 50c. or 3 boxes for $1.25. Trial Sample FREE if 1c. stamp (for return postage) accompanies application.

COLORS IN VOGUE

Chinese Shades Are Much in Evidence This Season.

White Floss Embroidery Is Conspicuous in Some of the Newest Evening Gowns.

The question of colors in clothes is always a most important one, but one that is hard to write about, observes a correspondent in the Buffalo Express, for it is practically impossible to describe a color so that every one who reads about it will see it as it is. But pretty nearly every one knows the characteristic colors of Chinese embroidery—there is a dark shade of blue and a light opaque shade, a green that is almost a jade, much old rose, light lemon yellow and a darker citron color. Often in embroidery representing flowers, however, a great range of shades is used, producing an effect that is almost realistic. But it is the shades used in the more conventional designs that are spoken of as Chinese. And in the parlance of clothes nowadays one hears much of Chinese blue, Chinese green, Chinese rose, etc. It is these shades that are used in some of the embroidery produced in France. Quite different are the Egyptian colors—rather stoney, cold-looking shades with considerable brick red always predominating.

In some of the newest evening gowns you see white floss embroidery on white silk background and this, though it may not have been borrowed from China, is not infrequently seen among the finest of Chinese embroideries. White is interestingly combined with colors in the embroidery of some of the new frocks. In three charming frocks recently exhibited I saw white embroidery on brown, a bright green on a light yellow and delft blue on white. It is not unusual to see in the new blouses the use of opaque white beads embroidered on blouses of the light pastel shades.

Gray seems to be coming in for much popularity. Navy blue with a light tracery of gray embroidery always looks distinctive. There is a new shade called in France tourterelle meaning turtle dove, that is much admired.

TIGHT GARMENTS NOT LIKED

Women Are Only Too Glad to Grasp More Sensible and Comfortable Styles.

Women have balked for years at tight waists, tight high collars and very tight sleeves, and it is doubtful whether the severely fitted basque effects will ever again meet with general approval. The only really uncomfortable garment that has been accepted of late years is the very narrow skirt, and this is gradually being moved back to normal. As a matter of fact, it is almost safe to say that the very best dressed women never did wear them.

In this season's showing of garments, both frocks and suits, there are many skirts only a yard and a half wide, but few indeed are narrower, and the many plaited skirts worn prove conclusively that when Dame Fashion admits sensible and comfortable styles, women are only too glad to grasp them.

Another new style note, not bizarre but charming, is when making a three-piece suit to have lower skirt and coat of wool fabric, and blouse, or upper part, and lining of coat of matching silk.

Round Garters Again.

One sees round garters in the lingerie departments again. They've always been there more or less, to be sure, but pushed into the obscurity of the background, like a poor relation. Now they are being brought out and rather featured. Why? Probably in anticipation that the corsetless craze reported from Paris will reach here, though it has hardly done so yet. However, most women rarely wear a corset with negligee things, when lounging round "chez moi." So they always like to keep a smart pair or two of round garters on hand. They're such coquettish, decorative, feminine trifles, too, to have about.

San Toy Dainty Oriental Offering

A capacity audience greeted F. Stuart Whyte's production of San Toy at Griffin's Theatre Monday evening, every seat being filled. In the afternoon the matinee was well patronized.

As a producer F. Stuart Whyte has a field all to himself and has given Canada some delightful entertainments in "Babes in the Woods," "Little Red Riding Hood," "Robinson Crusoe," and other light but tuneful, clean and amusing entertainments.

"San Toy" is one of the really delightful features of the theatrical season. It has come to Canada under the personal supervision of Mr. Stuart Whyte, which is alone sufficient guarantee for a successful season in this country. "San Toy" is strictly an English production, produced and played by a brilliant cast of English players. It is a musical comedy which though produced along conservative lines, possesses distinction and general attractiveness. The comedy of the piece is excellent, clean, wholesome fun. Fred Walten in the role of "Li" is the comedian, and those who would find difficulty laughing at Li's genuinely funny antics and anecdotes cannot laugh. The scenery is next thing to perfect in its completeness and appropriateness, and a very slight sketch of imagination is required to take one to the very heart of China.

Miss Zara Clinton in the role of "San Toy" wins favor in a moment and retains it to the end. Rex. Carter, as "Captain Bobbie Preston," the English lover, is excellent.

Pynka Pong, China, is the setting of the play, which opens with a sparkling chorus and song, followed by more sparkling choruses, songs and dances, which continue one upon another until one is almost bewildered by the beauty of the array. All the laugh-producing ability cannot be claimed by one man. "Sir Bingo Preston," British consul in Pynka Pong is with the accent and monocle, typically the English gentleman and responsible for more than one hilarious outburst. "Sird Bingo," and an English party of five or six are guests of the emperor, and it is the duty of "Sir Bingo" to interest the emperor in a scheme for a railway concession. This he succeeds in doing and the remainder of the production is a merry feast and a celebration produced with all the grandeur and elaboration that is characteristic of the Orient. "Capt. Bob" falls instant prey to the winning charms of "San Toy" but difficulties lie in the way of the lovers. The main interest centres about their efforts to win "Sir Bingo's" favor and that of the Chinese emperor.

Two long complete acts are required to tell the story of "San Toy," the most amazing part of which is the discovery that she is not a boy, but a girl. This explains the Englishman's love, and the production ends in a riot of song and dance. Special mention is due the dancing throughout, which is well executed and possesses a finish that is pleasing.

MUSIC AND DRAMA

"THE GAY LORD QUEX."

When Lord Quex (Tom Moore) rests his glance upon Muriel (Gloria Hope) in the Goldwyn picture "The Gay Lord Quex", cupid chalks up a direct hit and leaves his arrow quivering in that young man's heart. Quex is pierced beyond all chance of recovery by the shaft and loses no time in gaining an introduction to the charming girl to whom he immediately declares his love. Much that would be discouraging to the ordinary wooer occurs between this point and Quex's final triumph, but Tom Moore is not an ordinary Romeo, so he bravely faces his obstacles and wins the girl.

In Tom Moore's Goldwyn picture, "The Gay Lord Quex," which is being screened at Griffin's Tonight and Wednesday night the important part of Sophie Fullgarney is played by Hazel Daly, who in private life is Mrs. Harry Beaumont, the wife of the director in this production. Hazel Daly has appeared in other Tom Moore pictures, but never before did she show such an aptitude for intrigue or such a passion for tangling up romances as in "The Gay Lord Quex". For a while it looks as though she were going to ruin everything, but guided by her husband's direction, she succeeds in saving Muriel for Lord Quex and in doing so wins an admirer for herself. As a detective in real life Tom Moore might not be able to ferret out the cause of the well-known high cost of living; but in this picture he does a bit of effective sleuthing that saves the day for him and protects the name of the woman in the case.

Jack Dempsey in "Daredevil Jack" Canadian News Pictorial, "Smiling" Billy Parsons in a 2-reel Capitol comedy "The Sea Wolf", and a beautiful Burton Holmes Travelogue are also being shown in addition to the feature offering.

WOMAN'S DEAD BODY FOUND IN WELL.

Mrs. Burton Genge, a young married woman residing at Oak Flats, north of Verona, committed suicide by throwing herself into a well on her father-in-law's property. Her body was recovered a short time after a search had been started, and an inquest was held by Coroner Dr. Geddes, of Verona, which brought in a verdict of death while temporarily insane.
has been in delicate health for some time, made an attempt to end her life in Rock Lake, near Verona, being rescued in time on that occasion. She was then removed to her father-in-law's home, where, despite a strict watch kept on her, she was able to elude her guards for a time on Thursday morning and commit the act.

SEELY VISITS CANADA.

He Led Canada's Cavalry During the War.

Maj.-Gen. Rt. Hon. John B. Seely, for nearly four years commander of the Canadian Cavalry Brigade in France during the war and in command of mounted troops in the South African war, paid a visit to Canada recently.

Born in May, 1868, and educated at Trinity College, Cambridge, Maj.-Gen. Seely has had a brilliant career. His usefulness to his country has countless times been demonstrated. In 1897 he was called to the Bar. He was first elected to the House of Commons for an Isle of Wight constituency in 1900, and in 1910 for the Ilkeston Division of Derby, which seat he still holds. In the South African war he served with the Imperial Yeomanry and won several marks. From 1908 to 1910 he held the office of Under-Secretary for the Colonies, and in 1911 Under-Secretary of War. Then from 1912 to the outbreak of the European war he was Secretary of War.

Early in 1915, on the recommendation of Lord Kitchener, Col. Seely was appointed to command the Canadian Cavalry Brigade. The appointment was popular both in Canada and Great Britain and his three and a half years of leadership was marked by great distinction. The following excerpt is taken from a London cable despatch to Canadian newspapers at the time of his appointment, and giving an account of a discussion of the move in the House of Commons:

"His appointment was recommended by the field marshal commanding and was confirmed by the Secretary of War.

"Lord Beresford asked was it possible for the Secretary of War to know anything about Canadian opinion on this matter. Had the censor stopped publication of Canadian opinion upon the subject, and was the House to understand that this country did not want to know Canadian opinion on the subject, which had created great interest in the Dominion?

"Mr. Tennant said he was unable to say what the censor had done, but the only Canadian officer with whom he had discussed the matter not only accepted this appointment, but informed him it was highly popular."

One writer, discussing Seely's relation to Kitchener in the earlier days of the war, said:

"The fact that Col. Seely, although a former Minister of War, has during the present conflict accepted comparatively subordinate positions, being attached to Gen. French's staff, reveals his strength of character and inherent patriotism. Many men, under similar circumstances, would have been disposed to sulk. It will be remembered that Col. Seely's resignation from the War Office was occasioned by the misunderstanding as to the conduct of certain army officers in the Ulster crisis. Gen. French and another member of the Army Council, feeling that some reflection was cast upon themselves and their action, resigned, and Col. Seely felt that he was left with no alternative but to resign also. Premier Asquith endeavored to dissuade him, but Col. Seely insisted on taking his place with brother officers.

"Incidentally, however, this paved the way for Lord Kitchener's installation as Minister of War in this supreme crisis. Mr. Asquith for a time, before war loomed on the horizon, maintained the dual office of Prime Minister and Secretary of State for War, and when the crisis came and it was universally recognized that Lord Kitchener was the man to handle the situation, Mr. Asquith had no difficulty in asking Lord Kitchener, as a non-party man, to accept the portfolio of War Minister, and thus emphasize the nation's solidarity.

"Col. Seely would be the last man to complain of his successor, and his patriotism will commend him to our boys as one by whom they may well be proud to be led."

End of Strange Case.

Word comes from St. Victoire, Quebec, that Napoleon Tremblay and Malvina Despatie, the two principals to the marriage annulment case, which has been before the Quebec courts and the Privy Council for years, had been remarried there. Napoleon Tremblay and Malvina Despatie were cousins, though their common ancestors lived over a century ago. They were married by a priest without a dispensation as required by the Roman Catholic Church. Upon the petition of the husband in 1912 first the church authorities and then the civil courts annulled the marriage on the ground that as the church law had been ignored it was void. The wife, on the strength of a fund subscribed by sympathizers in Montreal and Toronto, appealed against the annulment from the Superior Court to the Privy Council. The decision of the latter body is expected at any time. Recently Tremblay intimated to the parish priest at St. Ours, where his wife was born, that he was anxious to get a dispensation so that he could be regularly married to her.

HUNGER STRIKERS.

Cork, October 12.—"Slowly eating themselves up," is how a prison official who frequently sees the eleven hunger-strikers in the prison here described the condition of the prisoners who today entered the sixty-first day of their fast.

About every five days, the official said, he observed a change in them. "They go along for several days without visible alteration, then suddenly they seem to strike a new stage and drop down like that," he continued, making an expressive gesture with both hands. "The skin is now drawn over their faces tight as a drum and all of them are hollow-eyed. Every day their cells are freshly sprayed."

The official expressed admiration for the care being given the men by the nuns. "I never saw anything like the nursing the hunger strikers are getting," he declared. "There is not a bed mark on any of them. They have new mattresses made of eiderdown. These mattresses are more than two feet thick and the sheets are stretched so tightly there is no crease whatever. The patients lie on air cushions reaching to their shoulders; they are covered with blankets as light as down. The temperature of the cells is never allowed below 63 degrees fahrenheit, and the water-bottles with which each prisoner is surrounded, are renewed with hot water day and night. Most of the time the prisoners lie absolutely inert and only their breathing and the beating of their heart show they are alive."

TWENTY FAMILIES IN JUST TWENTY ROOMS.

Toronto's Health Department admits that the bad housing conditions attributed to Toronto by the Social Service Council really exist. Fortunately we have no tenements," said Dr. Hastings, M.O.H., "but we undoubtedly have overcrowding and are forced to leave buildings standing which would be torn down if the tenants had anywhere else to go."

"Seventy-five per cent. of the ordinary six and eight-roomed houses of Toronto have more than one family in them, or else have lodgers," declared J. T. Schoales, chief of the housing division of the Health Department. When his attention was called to a Social Service worker's statement that as many as twenty families might be found in a house, he said: "Yes, we did find one twenty-room house on Carlton street with twenty families in it—not large families, of course. And there was only one toilet for all of them."

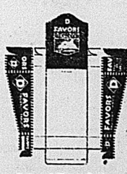
The Box that Suggests a Purchase



Delivered Flat to Packers

It's a simple matter to "set-up" the Rudd Display Container and as it is delivered to the packer flat, the "empties" occupy little storage space in a manufacturer's warehouse.

Reaches Dealer Undamaged

A substantial cover keeps the Rudd Display Container—and its contents—fresh and clean till they go on the counter.

Prominently displayed on the counter of the drug store, the cigar store or the grocer's shop, this display container invites all who see it to purchase its contents.

Everybody who enters the store does see it, for the store-keeper welcomes this silent salesman, and is glad to give it space on his counter where it will work to best advantage.

For the manufacturer of such goods as confectionery, toilet articles, notions, novelties, etc., it solves the problem of "getting the goods displayed." It's a practical form of "in the store" advertising that the dealer is glad to make use of. It's more—it's a salesman for the goods in contains. And it costs little more than the old form of plain box container, which the retailer destroys or hides out of sight on the shelves of his store.

We'll be glad to tell you its many advantages.

CARELESSNESS A CRIME—
PREVENTION BETTER THAN CURE.

Very little attention was paid to Fire Prevention Day in Belleville, outside of the newspapers, but as the press always carries a generous portion of the white man's burden in all things this is not to be wondered at.

Carelessness costs a lot of money, and even human life in preventable fires, and while the press performs useful service in periodically pointing this out, the observance of Fire Prevention Day should be more general and the subject of fire prevention is certainly worthy of being taken up in the schools, where the future citizens of Canada should be taught the advantages of carefulness as a valuable asset in the building up of a greater and better Canada.

SERVE BEST CANADIAN CHEESE
IN BEST CANADIAN HOTELS

Canadian cheese is the best in the world, and cheese made in Belleville district is especially noted for its fine flavor and general excellence. No one knows this better than Mr. John Elliott, manager of the Belleville branch of the Standard Bank of Canada, a gentleman whose faith in the cheese industry has helped materially to put Belleville cheese in large letters on the map of the world. Consequently when Mr. Elliott addressed the Belleville Cheese Board on Saturday and pointed out the wisdom of having the best Canadian cheese served in the best Canadian hotels he was listened to with close interest.

Mr. Elliott's suggestion is worthy of being closely followed up and the hotel trade made a feature by Belleville district cheese industry Belleville cheese served in Canadian hotels and noted on th menu as Belleville cheese will be an advertisement for Canadian cheese which will have far-reaching results. It is worthy of note that Mr. Elliott saw that the overseas delegates to the convention of the Chambers of Commerce of the Empire were served with Belleville cheese to the great delight of the visitors.

MANUFACTURING PAPER. FROM BAMBOO.

The shortage of paper has become so acute that engineers are turning to all sorts of natural growths as possible material for cellulose fibre and paper pulp. One of the most interesting movements in this direction is the plan to utilize bamboo for manufacturing pulp. Numerous plans were broached to the Indian Government shortly before the war and concessions were given to certain interests. Very little was accomplished between 1914 and 1918, and for some time after the armistice business men were hesitant about developing the concessions obtained. It was well known that excellent paper had been manufactured from bamboo pulp, but there was a good deal of uncertainty as to the cost of production, and of transporting the raw materials, chemicals and machinery required. It was also feared that immediately after the war, Scandinavia and North America would dump huge supplies of paper pulp on the market and crush the infant industry.

The extraordinary drop in the visible supply of pulp, and other changed world conditions have, however, stimulated interest in this project again. A large bamboo pulp factory is now being erected in India by a Calcutta firm, and another in Burma which will turn out 10,000 tons of bamboo pulp per annum. Another company to operate in Burma is being organized, and it is estimated that the annual output of these three companies alone will aggregate 70,000 tons.

The facts of the situation are distinctly encouraging. The raw material is so plentiful that in time the whole world could be supplied with bamboo paper. Furthermore, the crop of bamboo shoots renews itself to its full height every year, which is certainly an easier condition to face than the constant exhaustion of timber lands. A bamboo yields half its bulk in the process of treatment and reduction to pulp, and each acre of land yields 40 tons of bamboo in suitable districts.

William Raitt, cellulose expert to the Government of India, who has been extensively engaged in the manufacture of paper is now in England in connection with the organization of plants for the production of pulp and paper from bamboo and other tropical forest growths. As a result of investigation for 35 years Mr. Raitt is convinced that no permanent solution of the paper problem will be arrived at until the world's annual growth of tropical and sub-tropical forests is utilized adequately.

The total production for Indian paper mills for the year ended April 1, 1920, was 32,000 tons. It is very probable that this figure will be tripled and quadrupled in the near future through the addition of bamboo pulp.—From The World's Markets, published by R. G. Dun & Co.

Farmers' Sun.

If the Toronto Globe editorial staff would journey a few miles away from the corner of King and Yonge streets, they would be able to learn at first hand that every farmer supplying milk to the citizens of Toronto, has been feeding his cows green corn and other food for some time. The cattle are eating into the very roots of the grass. In some cases farmers are forced to feed their young cattle. The Globe will do anything it can to slam the farmer. It prefers to gather its farm news from street railwaymen, plumbers and traffic cops rather than at first hand.

THE HAND AND THE BRAIN.
Chicago Tribune.

The hand never will rule the brain for any time. In moments of madness when it does it destroys itself. Labor of the hand, which topsy-turvy theorists would set up to rule, must always be directed by the conceiving and planning mind. By this alone can the hand exist. The hand can conceive only the simplest necessities. Labor without capital and direction must dwell in the cave of the primitive man. When it seeks to rule it wipes out what makes labor endurable, and in the progress of the human has brought labor out of darkness to a great and growing share in the rewards of civilization.

THE FURROW END.

The plow stands idle at the furrow end,
Where Mullard left it but six days ago.
And half a stubble field lies waiting him,
Who nevermore will either plow or sow.
The meadowsweet along the bank,
The honeysuckle in the lane,
May bloom and scent a thousand times
And he shall never come again.
The sun which glinted on the harness brass,
As with his plow the autumn land he broke,
Today comes stealing through his damson trees
And catches brass on well-planed joiner's oak,
Where lavender and thyme perfume,
And bees go heedless through the phlox,
There—on the cleanly red-brick path—
Lies Mullard in his apexed box.
And green-back coats and collars strangely white,
Drawn from the ancient dresser and the chest,
Move in that apple-scented garden place
Which of all earth old Mullard loved the best,
And now they bear him shoulder high
To where in quiet lies his wife.
Dead kings with equal words are met. . .

A New Task For Sir Arthur Currie

Sir Arthur Currie, who stepped out of the chief command of the Canadian Army to take over the Principalship of McGill University, should find good scope for his organizing ability and driving force in McGill's Whirlwind Campaign for $5,000,000, which has been arranged for the week commencing November 15th. This sum, large for a Canadian University, but small in comparison with the recent campaigns for Harvard, Yale, Cornell and Princeton, is necessary to put the great Canadian University financially on its feet, and to help to recoup the losses caused by its active participation in the war and by the absence of many students on war service overseas; also to renew and extend equipment, to increase professors' salaries; to extend the buildings to meet the requirements of the larger number of students in attendance since the close of the war; to meet the special requirements of the various faculties; to erect dormitories for students, a common dining hall, professors' residences, and a convocation hall. Many leading Montreal citizens have accepted the responsibility of heading and arranging the work of the campaign, which will be along lines made familiar in Canada in years past.

McGill, from its very inception, nearly a hundred years ago, was identified with scientific research and application. The Faculty of Medicine is the oldest Faculty of the University, and the first degree conferred was the medical degree given to Dr. Logie. The practical trend of McGill's teaching appealed to business men, such as the late Sir William Macdonald and Lord Strathcona, and no doubt influenced them in helping the University with substantial endowments. The pre-eminence of McGill in Applied Science is largely due to the policy of Sir William Dawson, during whose regime the course of Engineering was enlarged into the Department of Practical Science, and later into the Faculty of Applied Science.

Scientific Agriculture is taught under the auspices of McGill at the affiliated Macdonald College in Ste. Anne de Bellevue which has done a great work in teaching improved methods of farming, not only in the Province of Quebec, but also throughout the whole of both Eastern and Western Canada. At MacDonald College also is a school for Teachers which has greatly elevated our educational standards.

McGill has produced some of the foremost physicians, surgeons, engineers and men of science of our time. John Hopkins University owes its high standing to the administration inaugurated by a McGill man, the late Sir William Osler, who afterwards did similar work for the School of Medicine at Oxford University.

Lord Shaughnessy is the honorary chairman of the Campaign Committee, while Mr. E. W. Beatty, President of the Canadian Pacific, is the active chairman of the executive. Others actively interested in the campaign work are Sir Vincent Meredith, President of the Bank of Montreal, Lord Atholstan, proprietor of the Montreal "Star", Sir Charles Gordon, Sir Montagu Allan, and a committee of 150 men prominent in Montreal's banking, transportation, shipping, and general business circles. In addition to those there is a strong committee of the Graduates' Society, with branches throughout Canada and a membership in many parts of the world.

CHAPTER XXIII.

Daphne was going to be independent, but she was still all woman when it came to the selection of her special trade. She would be a business woman, but she would do a woman's business.

There were ever so many dainties and exquisites that she wanted to hang in her shop. She was going to have a window! With her name on it! That would be more fun than a limousine with crest on door.

Gradually her scheme enlarged. She would devote her shop to the whole mechanism of the boudoir. "Boudoirwear" was the word that pleased her.

It was in human nature that the partners should quarrel over a name for the baby before the baby was born. They spoke of themselves as "The Firm."

Finally Daphne, claiming the majority of the power, voted en bloc for "Boudoirwear," and claimed the victory. Mrs. Chivvis surrendered with the amendment that "Miss Kip" should be at one side, "Mrs. Chivvis" at the other. She bribed the assembly by promising that a cousin of hers, a young artist living in the Washington Mews, should paint a pretty signboard on a swinging shingle. After many designs had been composed and destroyed they agreed on this legend:

BOUDOIRWEAR
Everything for the Boudoir.
Exquisite Things for Brides.
MISS KIP. MRS. CHIVVIS.

The cousin painted it well and illuminated it with elaborate initials and an allegorical figure of a young lady in Cubist negligee. It had the traditional charm of a tavern board. In fact, their shop was to be a tavern for women in search of sartorial refreshment.

Troubles mustered about them as weeds shove up in a garden faster than they can be plucked out. Expenses undreamed of materialized in swarms. Everything was delayed except the demands for their money. The petty-cash box, like a sort of perverted fairy purse, emptied itself as fast as it was filled.

The petty cash was the least of their dismay. The grand cash was the main problem. They had stitched their fingers full of holes and piled up reams of fabrics, but the total was pathetically tiny.

One thing was instantly demonstrated. They must give up their plan or go into debt. Indeed, they already were in debt.

"We've got to take the plunge," said Daphne. "I'd rather die than go on paying a year's rent for an empty shop."

"I know," Mrs. Chivvis fretted, gnawing her thin lips, "but it's a risk. You'd better ask your brother."

"No!" Daphne stormed. "I'm going to win out on my own. Poor Bayard is too busy to be bothered with my troubles. He doesn't know I have any. And Leila is so busy with her social business that she never asks me what I'm up to.

"But what are we to do?" Mrs. Chivvis wailed. "We can't go on with our stock, and you have no money left, and I hadn't any to start with."

"There's only one thing to do," Daphne answered, with a sphinxic solemnity. "Buy on credit. It's a case of nothing venture, nothing gain; nothing purchase, nothing sell! nothing borrow, nothing pay. The only way to get out of debt is to go in deeper—like getting a fish hook out of your thumb."

Mrs. Chivvis suffered herself to be persuaded. They visited the wholesalers and the jobbers and were well received, having paid cash before—and, thanks to Mr. Chivvis' suggestion, having been astute enough to demand discount for cash.

And now the motortrucks and the delivery wagons and the cyclecars and the messenger boys began to pour stock into the little shop. It was pleasant not to have to pay for things, though the tips were reaching alarming proportions, and the bundle of bills for future settlement grew and grew.

Mrs. Chivvis made a list of their debts and tried to show it to Daphne, but she stopped her eyes and ears and forbade any discussion that would quench her spirit.

In the swirl of her tasks Daphne almost forgot Clay Wimburn. She was too busy to care much. She had no time to mourn. Clay was only one among a myriad regrets, and his affairs could wait. Her business needs could not.

Clay did not come near her. He spent a lot of money trying to get her off his mind. He got a good deal on his conscience, but not Daphne off his mind. He longed for her especially, too, because there came a sudden disaster to his schemes. He was not so rich as he had been. Indeed, he could not be sure that he was rich at all. Any day might smother him with bankruptcy. This fear kept him from Daphne, too.

The bouncing munition stocks that were known as "war babies" had abruptly fallen into a decline. The submarine that torpedoed the Lusitania shattered Wall street's joy, threw the dread of war into the United States, and set every one to questioning the problem of revenge and its cost.

The slump in the market came at the most unfortunate moment for Bayard and Clay. Any moment of slump, indeed, would have come most untimely for their ventures.

"Kip and Chivvis" were making a picnic ground of the shop. Behind the soap-veiled windows they laughed and debated on arrangements and price tags and show-cards.

Mr. Chivvis, still out of a job, acted as maid of all work and stevedore, and grew so useful that they had to put him out. And at last the moment arrived when they declared the shop open, "raised the curtain," as Daphne said.

She waited with a stage-fright she had not felt in Reben's theater. There was no lack of temperament in her manner now. But there was no audience, either.

At night Kip and Chivvis locked their doors and went home, discouraged beyond words and dismally weary in the legs, also in the smile-muscles which had been kept at an expectant tension all day long.

Occasional purchases were made, but unimportant. Kip and Chivvis tried to learn what interested people and what did not. They realized that they had far too much of certain things and far too little of others. They attempted to sell the deadwood by marking it down; but it would not move.

"What do the women care for prices?" Daphne railed. "They are spending some man's money, anyway. They pretend that it's to please him, but they know and we know that it's because they hate each other."

One day a great lady who could hardly squeeze through the door creaked into the shop and spilled herself into a startled little chair like a load of coal. Daphne felt that she was about to die on their hands or ask for an ambulance, but she asked instead for an embroidered breakfast gown from the window.

Mrs. Chivvis fetched it and the old ogress clutched it from her, holding it up to her nose as if to sniff it, but really to see it.

"That's it! That's what I've been looking for!" she wheezed. "Have you got much of this sort of thing?"

"Oh yes."

"Agh, that's good! My daughter is marrying in some haste—a young imbecile who's going over to France to run an ambulance. I'm Mrs. Romily."

Mrs. Chivvis waited unperturbed for further identification. Daphne had never heard of Mrs. Romilly, either, but she gasped as if she had been say-

REACHING FOR WORLD TRADE

Every Nation Wide Awake to the Possibilities That Have Opened, Following the Great War.

A more cosmopolitan document could hardly be imagined than the weekly list of trade chances which is nowadays gathered from all sources by the United States department of commerce, and published for the information of American business interests. An agency in Spain wishes to sell agricultural machinery and mechanical tops; a company in Egypt wishes to handle American cardboards and all kinds of paper; a firm in India is eager to come in contact with exporters of general merchandise; agriculturists in South Africa are interested in caterpillar tractors; a man in Switzerland would fain become an agent for yarns and fabrics; another in Belgium wishes to deal in food products; an engineer in Lettland would like to represent exporters of agricultural tools and automobiles, but perceives the wisdom of having more than one string to his bow, for he wants also an agency for the sale of lard. An interesting medley of commercial ambitions, with items that have already counted up to more than 1,500, the lists reveal how, all over the world, individuals and companies are hoping for opportunity to share in international trade.

Crossed Country In Car.

Spattered with the mud and dust of six provinces, the Path-Finding car driven by Percy Gomery arrived in Vancouver on July 28. It was necessary to ship the car a hundred miles along Lake Superior, and to enter the United States twice, once near Lake of the Woods and again between King's Gate and Blane, Washington. The object of the tour was to stimulate interest in a trans-Canada highway, and in this Mr. Gomery stated that he was highly successful.

HOME-MADE WINE.

Do the housewives know that it is necessary to get the written permission of the Inland Revenue Department to make wine, whether grape, dandelion or other vintage, and that if they do not do this they are leaving themselves open to a penalty of $200? Apparently not, yet the citizens are buying grapes freely. Whether one makes one bottle or fifty, whether it is intoxicating or not, makes no difference in the eyes of the law. It is a breach of the Inland Revenue Act, and as such can be enforced by the preventive officers with deplorable results to the wrongdoers.

SUCCESSFUL TOWNSHIP FAIR.

The largest crowd and the finest weather marked the last of the townships Fairs at Demorestville. The women of Gilbert-Mills Church served a chicken pie dinner in aid of Prince Edward County Hospital. The net results of the tag day and dinner was more than $300.

SUDDEN DEATH.

The sudden death occurred in Canastota, N.Y., on Friday last of Thomas O'Hara, son of George O'Hara, Napanee.

Deceased visited his relatives at Napanee about two weeks ago, after an absence of nineteen years, and was apparently in the best of health. Heart trouble was given as the cause of his sudden taking off. The body was taken to Napanee for burial.

CORNER STONE LAID.

Cobourg, Oct. 11.—The cornerstone of the new Methodist Church at Gore's Landing was laid. The pastor, Capt. E. Harston, presided. The ceremony was performed by Mr. H. W. Ackerman, of Belleville assisted by Rev. C. C. Washington, Baltimore, and Rev. Mr. Smith, Anglican minister at the Landing.

Brief addresses were delivered by Rev. J. S. I. Wilson, of Cobourg, chairman of the district, and Rev. C. S. Applegarth, of Port Hope. Supper served in the church sheds, was followed by a delightful entertainment of music and addresses. The Cobourg Methodist orchestra and the Male Quartette of Port Hope were in attendance and several solos were rendered.

MOUSE MADE MISTAKE.

Many have heard that story about the lion and the mouse but here is a new one about a woman and a mouse. The other morning when a Napanee woman went to remove some articles from her coat pocket, which she had worn the evening before, to her surprise she found that a mouse had, during the night, made a nest in her pocket of some yarn which it had carried there. Needless to say the woman was startled but she didn't scream or run away. Instead she stood her ground, and there is now one less member of the mouse family.

MAKING A NEW TARIFF

COMMISSIONERS WHO HAVE IMPORTANT TASK.

Not Committed to Any Theory, for Though They Were Appointed by a Protectionist Premier, Their Political Careers Suggest That They Are Inclined to Lean Towards Lower "Wall."

As the Ministerial commission enters upon its task of ascertaining economic facts necessary to enable it to advise what must be done to produce a scientific tariff, it is interesting to glance at the politics and personalities of the men upon whose findings much of the future fiscal policy of the Government will depend.

Sir Henry Drayton, to begin with, the commission chairman, is a politician who may be termed a realist in politics. The product of an environment where efficiency reigned far higher than political tradition. Sir Henry is of that type of practical, positive mind which cares little for shibboleths and formulae, but believes that problems and issues must be met and solved by application of remedies suitable to their needs. The extreme partizan, whether Liberal or Conservative, is frequently liable to have his freedom of action manacled by a firm devotion to principles and traditions, and to changing problems will often apply theories and policies which, however efficacious in their time, may be entirely unsuited to the hard realities of to-day. Sir Henry Drayton is the very antithesis of this type. Watching him in the House of Commons, and noting his career since coming to Ottawa, one doubts whether he cares in the slightest degree for either Protection or Free Trade, as such. On the contrary, his speeches give the impression of a man who regards such things not as political principles, nor as creeds, but as mere means to an end, to be adopted or rejected as, in his judgment, the needs of the country demand.

And so, insofar as the clearly defined limitations of the tariff policy of the Government will permit—for it must be remembered that the Ministry is not depending upon this inquiry to give it a fiscal policy, that policy having already been incorporated into the National Liberal and Conservative Party platform — the country can pretty safely depend that Sir Henry Drayton's conclusions from the testimony to be presented will not be warped by any bigoted devotion to either Protection or Free Trade. One may doubt whether the Minister of Finance will make recommendations calculated to do violence to the Ministry's fiscal principles, but, on the other hand, and judging solely from Sir Henry's political record in Parliament and in the Cabinet there seems little reason for fearing that he will err on the side of any particular policy or class without regard for the country as a whole.

About Mr. Calder it is less easy to be sure. The silent man from the Plains remains one of the enigmas of Canadian politics. There are some who hold that Mr. Calder is the Chamberlain of Canadian Liberalism, that he has definitely crossed the Rubicon into the enemy's camp, and that from being a militant champion of freer trade he has become the friend of plutocracy and protection. But there are many who take issue with such a view; Liberals who hold that Mr. Calder has not burned all his bridges behind him, that such a captain must not be lightly surrendered to the foe; and from time to time Ottawa hears whispers and rumors which go to support such a view.

And if Mr. Calder should happen to declare that his investigations had convinced him of the need of a larger measure of free trade, in this disagreeing with the findings and policy of his colleagues, there is hardly a doubt but that the followers of Mr. King would receive him with open arms.

Senator Gideon Robertson, who, it may be taken for granted, represents Labor on the commission, has, so far as is known, given no indication of and decided leaning towards either Protection or Free Trade. It is commonly assumed, however, that he believes in a moderate tariff, and will use whatever influence he may have toward that end. Robertson, however, is more of a politician than is commonly supposed, and, as one who professes to be a leader of Labor, his attitude may largely depend upon the representations which the workers may make before the commission.

Far less complex is the mind and character of Mr. Tolmie, Minister of Agriculture, and the fourth and last member of the commission. Mr. Tolmie is a plain man whose processes of thought are direct and simple, a politician utterly without guile or pretension to political infallibility. By no manner or means a Free Trader, and probably proud of the fact that he has never read a line of Adam Smith, Mr. Tolmie is first and foremost an agriculturist, intensely interested in the work of his department, and by no means to be reckoned in the ranks of those who bow down before the tall chimney. In other words, Mr. Tolmie may be correctly described as one who, although not a high protectionist, and believing that protection has frequently been used for the benefit of a few, yet holds that a tariff is necessary for revenue needs and development of the country.

Taken all in all, it cannot be charged that Premier Meighen has selected a Protectionist commission. Indeed, if it errs on one side at all, it is on the side of lower tariff.

WM. WEIGEL, of Seattle who says he had no idea anything on earth could do for him what Tanlac has done. Declares he has gained 30 pounds and that his health has been completely restored.

"I had no idea that anything on earth could do for me what Tanlac has done, and I just feel like telling everybody I see about this wonderful medicine," said Wm. Weigel, 2602 Third Ave., Seattle, Wash., with the widely-known New Washington Hotel.

"When I began taking Tanlac," continued Mr. Weigel, "my condition was so rundown that I could not work. I was never hungry, and my stomach was so disordered that the little I forced myself to eat disagreed with me. My kidneys bothered me, and the pains across my back were so severe that when I tried to bend over and straighten up again it would nearly kill me. I had splitting headaches and such dizzy spells at times make matters worse, I began to sufmake matters worst, I began to suffer with rheumatism in my legs. I was nervous, weak and listless, was rapidly losing weight and strength and seemed to be going down hill every day.

"I began to improve after the first few doses of Tanlac. I seemed to feel better each day as I continued the treatment. In a few weeks I was like a brand-new man. Now, I have a big appetite, eat anything I want, enjoy every mouthful and I don't suffer in the least afterwards. I sleep like a child every night and feel just fine on arising in the morning. I haven't a pain about me, my strength has been wonderfully increased and I have actually gained thirty pounds.

"If anybody doubts this statement, just tell them to see me and I will give them the names of some of my friends who will verify every word of it."

"Ring Meteorite."

The so-called "ring meteorite" is unique; none other at all like it has ever been known.

It is four feet in diameter, weighs 1,400 pounds and has the shape of a complete ring. The ring is of iron, with a percentage of nickel.

Nobody knows how long ago it fell from the sky; but it was found in the Santa Catarina mountains by a Mexican. For a long time it was in use as an anvil at Tucson.

There an army surgeon happened to see it, owing to the accident of needing a shoe for his horse. A Mexican blacksmith put the shoe on for him, and hammered the shoe upon this convenient anvil.

The blacksmith did not know that his anvil was a meteorite, and so was willing to sell it for a few dollars. The surgeon took it to Washington and gave it to the Smithsonian Institution. It is now on exhibition in the National Museum.

Originally this meteorite must have been composed mainly of stony stuff, but the latter was doubtless shattered to bits when the big projectile from the sky struck the earth; or, if not, it soon disintegrated. The ring is left.

EX-KAISER SEEKS TO JUSTIFY COURSE

Berlin, Oct. 11.—The former Kaiser in his Holland retreat is writing a "political testament" the central idea of which is a justification of his course as a ruler of Germany in the eyes of the world. The "testament" is not to be published until after his death.

Professor Theodore Schiedemann, the aged historian and personal friend of the former Kaiser, is assisting him in the assembling of data and is also siding in the editing. The testament seeks to justify all of Wilhelm's personal and political acts.

IOWA FARMERS BURN CORN IN LIEU OF COAL

Chicago, Oct. 11.—With soft coal at $22.50 a ton delivered at the farm, Iowa farmers will use a large percentage of this year's corn crop for fuel, declared President Howard, of the American Farm Bureau Federation, today. The farmer receives net 55 cents a bushel for his corn.

"A bushel of corn averages about seventy pounds. The farmer receives about 55 cents a bushel of his corn at the elevators when freight charges and other incidentals are deducted. This brings the price of corn on the car to about $15.75 a ton. Corn possesses the same amount of heat units as coal. The Iowa farmers have come to the conclusion that it is much cheaper to burn their corn instead of soft coal this winter."

MISSING MAIL BAG STILL A MYSTERY

Quebec, Oct. 12.—Deep mystery still surrounds the disappearance of a mailbag, which is alleged to have been stolen from a mail cart in transit from the post office to the C. P. R. station on the night of October 5.

The police and the post office authorities refuse to speak about the case, but Chief Detective Walsh left the city last night and it is thought his mission had some connection with the missing bag.

Although it was stated last week that the missing money far exceeded that sum and was fifty thousand dollars, or more.

The police here comment severely on the method of transportation of mail from the post office to the trains and state that mailbags which fall from the cars are frequently picked up by them.

Sugar Refiners Asking Help To Steady Prices

Any Move to Keep Up Prices Likely To Rouse Housewives' Wrath.

Ottawa, Oct 12.—The sugar question is getting acute, and the Montreal refinery interests who were here Saturday came back to see the Prime Minister and Sir George Foster. They represent themselves as being in a bad way. They laid in heavy supplies of raws and they say an embargo on export was put on and before they could get rid of their supplies in Canada the market had gone to smash in the United States, and to some extent at least this is reflected in Canada. A lot of shipments have been kept out, however, on the ground that the purchases were made below the "prevailing" price in the country of export.

The anti-dumping clause therefore operates and exacts such an additional duty that, where it is applied, nothing is saved by importing from the States. Nevertheless, sugar bought in the regular way and at prevailing prices in some wholesale centres is getting in.

Fear Unpopular Move.

What the Government will do has merits of the claims of the alleged sugar combine, it is recognized to be a very unpopular thing to take any action calculated to maintain the price of sugar in Canada at levels which are nearly double those in the States. The conditions are felt more than ever in preserving time,

Murder Still Continued In Troubled Ireland

SEVEN KILLED IN CLASHES AS RAIDS CONTINUE—FATHER O'FLANNIGAN, VICE-PRESIDENT IRISH REPUBLIC, ARRESTED — LLOYD GEORGE'S SPEECH DISPLEASES SINN FEINERS.

DUBLIN, Oct. 13.—While arrests were being made during the military raids in Drumcondra, County Meath, two officers were shot dead, one non-commissioned officer was wounded and one civilian was killed and another wounded according to an official report of the affair made public today.

Unofficial reports received later stated that shooting occurred while the military was raiding the home of Prof. Carrolan of All-Hallowes College in search of two young men who had been staying at the house. Just what occurred is not explained, but there appears to have been a miniature rifle battle lasting half an hour, shots being fired from both inside and outside the house. Prof. Carrolan is reported to have been seriously wounded. His wife was in the house during the fight.

One of the officers killed, it is stated, was Major Smyth, believed to be a brother of Commissioner Smyth of the Royal Irish Constabulary, whose murder in Cork last July caused a sensation and resulted in much bloodshed in Ulster his home.

TWO CONSTABLES KILLED

Ballinderry, Ireland, Oct. 13.—Constables Kenny and Crawford were shot dead and a sergeant and two other constables were badly wounded when a police motor car running between Roscommon to Ballaghadereen, County of Mayo, was fired upon yesterday morning.

STILL ANOTHER DEATH

Cork, Ireland, Oct. 13.—An attempt on a military lorry in the Mallow district of Cork resulted in the death of the driver and the wounding of three soldiers. It developed into another fight between soldiers hurried to the scene and the attacking party, which, according to a military headquarters report, numbered 150 men. It is said they were armed with machine guns, rifles and bombs.

ALMOST DECLARATION OF WAR

London, Oct. 13.—Leaders of the Sinn Fein movement in Ireland say they regard the speech made at Carnarvon, Wales, on Saturday, by Premier Lloyd George as almost a "declaration of war in Ireland," says the Dublin correspondent of the London Times.

There are many signs, says the Dublin correspondent of the London Times that the executive department in that city intends to bring matters to a head as quickly as possible by a concentrated campaign against disorder which by inflicting general hardships on the country may make crime and lawlessness "truly unpopular." Projected measures are said to include complete stoppage of the Irish railways, drastic reduction of the postal service until all railway workers agree to return to duty and until there is a cessation of raids on the mails.

London, Oct. 13.—Sinn Fein attacks on police and British officials continue following the shooting of one soldier and the kidnapping of Warder Griffin of the Cork jail yesterday.

The soldier was killed near Kanturk, County Cork, and six others were wounded in an ambuscade at a cross roads. Kanturk citizens began fleeing quick reprisals. The fighting lasted almost an hour with the attackers finally withdrawing.

The only move made by the government during the day was the arrest of Father O'Flannigan, "vice-president of the Irish Republic." His arrest immediately followed Lloyd George's announcement that stern measures will be adopted if necessary and was taken to mean the Government is ready to proceed with such a program.

Three outbreaks occurred in Belfast after much sniping at police. Officers broke up the mobs, charging and emptying their revolvers in the crowds.

Prisoners in the Londonderry jail renewed their rioting last night, wrecking the interior of the prison.

The kidnapping of Warder Griffin occurred near Cork jail. He was stopped by a band of armed men who sent his companion home. Griffin was carried away in an automobile.

The five scheduled to hang Thursday, are:

The two to be hanged Friday are: Frank Haensel, convicted of killing his wife, and Frank Zagar, convicted of killing two men in a hold-up.

Originally twelve men were sentenced to hang on Thursday and Friday of this week, but reprieves and commutations have cut this down to seven.

One Killed In Wreck At Truro

Freight Ploughs Into Another During Dense Fog—Three Injured.

TRURO, N.S., Oct. 12.—One man lies in hospital as the result of a serious wreck early this morning on the Dominion Atlantic Railway about two miles from the Truro depot. The dead man is Fred Youlds, fireman, of Kentville. The injured are: Thomas Walsh, Kentville, engineer, very badly scalded; Clarence McCann, also badly scalded, and William C. Rawing of Waterville, King's county, face badly smashed and body bruised, but no bones broken.

The wreck occurred at 5.30 o'clock this morning in a dense fog. A freight train bound for Kentville and hauled by two engines struck two cows that were lying asleep on the track. In the front engine were Youlds and Walsh. Youlds was killed when the second engine ran into the first, but Walsh escaped uninjured.

In the second engine were Clarence McCann, fireman and Thomas Walsh engineer. They were both very badly scalded, McCann worse than Walsh, hardly any of his body escaping. Rawding, the brakeman was considerably injured but not seriously. The first engine left the rails on the left side of the track and almost completely buried itself in the marsh. The second engine also fell over on the right side. Four cars also left the rails, and were more or less smashed up.

Carpentier Hands Levinsky Knock Out

NEW YORK, Oct. 12.—Georges Carpentier, European heavyweight champion, knocked out Battling Levinsky, American light-heavyweight champion tonight in the fourth round of their scheduled twelve-round battle before a crowd of more than 15,000 in the Jersey City Baseball Park.

The finish came one minute seven seconds after the fourth round opened, a bone-crushing right to the jaw, one of a series of frantic rights and lefts which Carpentier showered on his rival, sent the veteran Hebrew boxer crashing through the ropes in a neutral corner. Referee Harry Ertie stepped quickly between the two combatants, and with extended left arm held Carpentier at a safe distance as he bent down and started the count which meant pugilistic oblivion for Levinsky and enhanced prospects of a match for the world's heavy weight title for Carpentier.

Through the Ropes.

When he fell Levinsky's body slipped slowly through the ropes. His right leg dangled inside the ring over the lower hempen string. As Referee Ertle reached five in his count, Levinsky, struggling to regain his feet, dragged his right leg over the lower rope and was completely outside the ring proper, perilously near toppling over into the press stand.

Levinsky was oblivious to his surroundings but he sought instinctively to grasp an upper rope, and so drag himself to his feet. His muscles refused to respond to the dictates of his troubled mind, and the final, fatal tenth stroke of the referee's arm found the vanquished Battler sitting and rocking outside the ring.

When the count was completed and an excited throng gained a semblance of composure, Dan Morgan, manager, and Jack Britton, who coached Levinsky, jumped to the side of their stricken chrge and assisted him to his feet. Levinsky was half carried to his corner, where he responded to about five minutes' hard work by industrious handlers.

Carpentier Aggressive.

The finish was spectacular, and bordered on the dramatic. Levinsky, fighting a losing fight almost from the start, was cornered by the rushing, wild-eyed eager Carpentier. The Frenchman had sent his rival to the canvas twice previously for counts of eight in each instance. He was lashing out savagely with both arms in wild attempts to land a decisive blow. The Frenchman's rushing attack forced Levinsky into the corner. Carpentier, in a leap, was upon his foe, striving to battle down Levinsky's upraised protecting arms. A flurry of rights and lefts failed to effect, but Carpentier persisted and finally produced the desired opening. Like a flash he darted forward, his right poised for instant action. Suddenly he crashed the blow homt with the accuracy of an expert fencer lunging on the attack. The punch landed solidly on Levinsky's jaw, and the boxer crumpled in a heap, slipping through the ring ropes on his journey.

Reds Claim Success.

LONDON, Oct. 13.—Successes for Russian Soviet forces along the line from south of Minsk to the Crimea are reported in Russian Soviet despatches of Tuesday, received here today by wireless. The annihilation of two companies of a Polish division in Alexanderovesk district of the Crimean front is claimed in the statement.

Set-Back for Wrangel.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Oct. 13.—The re-occupation of Mariupol and Berdiansk, on the Sea of Azov, by the Bolsheviki is announced. This represents a setback for the forces of General Wrangel, the South Russian anti-Bolshevik leader, who recently reported possession of Mariupoland and virtual control of the entire Sea of Azov.

Man-O'-War Winner Of Big Turf Classic

Riddle's Horse Beats Sir Barton by Ten Lengths and Creates a New Record.

WINDSOR, Oct. 12.—Man O'War proved his claim as the "horse of the century" here today when he defeated Sir Barton over a mile and a quarter at Kenilworth Park.

Clarence Kummer piloted the great colt, owned by Samuel Riddle to victory while a crowd of 50,000 cheered wildly. The race was for a purse of $75,000 and a $5,000 gold cup, all going to the winner.

The time was 2.03—6 2-5 seconds below the Kenilworth track record.

More than 8,000 people were in the betting ring.

Just before the horses paraded for the race two airplanes appeared over the track and took an aerial photograph of the scene. They hovered around the course and one of them got in a position to take pictures from the air as the race progressed. The other machine landed in the centre of the infield. The aviator witnessed the race from the top of the plane.

Man O'War Larger.

Man O'War was led to the post, while Sir Barton followed docilely and quietly. Man O'War appeared to the crowd to be a much bigger horse than Sir Barton. Actually he is about three inches taller and much heavier. By this time near 6,000 or 7,000 spectators were in the infield surrounding the course.

They reached the starting post at 3.37 and were at the barrier for about a minute and a half. The start was on the bend of the turn, with Sir Barton on the rail position. They dashed away from the barrier like a team. Man O'War with great strides started to get his nose in front and as they reached the turn was fully in his stride and pulling away to the front.

Put Whip to Ross Horse.

As they swung around into the stretch, Man O'War had a clear lead, but Jockey Kummer held this position on the outside and clear of Sir Barton. Just as soon as he realized he was losing ground Keough went to the mat on Sir Barton and whipped him hard and often. It was a futile effort to keep up to the tremendous pace set by Man O'War, but Keough kept resolutely to his task and rode with might and main to keep within range of the flying leader. When Kummer got daylight between his mount and Sir Barton he swung over to the inner rail, and after that it was merely a procession.

So far as a race was concerned, it was over. Keough plied his whip vigorously all through the stretch, but although the gallant Sir Barton gave everything he had, he couldn't get within striking distance of Man O'War. The champion three-year-old was sailing along in front, a wonderful machine with a long leaping stride that made Sir Barton's choppy, shorter striding action seem labored in comparison. On the back stretch the gap of daylight had been increased to two lengths.

Man O'War Draws Away.

Sir Barton held his own the length of the stretch but when the turn was reached Man O'War began to increase his lead and it was a certainty that Sir Barton had met his master.

Turning into the final quarter of mile in the race to the wire, Man O'War drew gradually away, and in the run home increased his lead so that when he passed the winning post his advantage was fully six lengths of open space—a clear decisive victory for the young champion.

As the horses flashed past the post Commander Ross rose from his seat beside the press stand and was the first to extend congratulations to Mr. Riddle, the winning owner.

Bomb Thrown Under Train at Sarajevo, Brussels Hears.

BRUSSELS, Oct. 12.—An attempt to assassinate Prince Alexander, the Prince-regent of Serbia, was made at Sarajevo, when a bomb was thrown under his train, the Montenegrin press bureau today announced.

The explosion wrecked two of the coaches of the train, but the Prince was not injured.

After the attempted assassination the municipal council and the mayor of Sarajevo resigned.

Sarajevo was the scene of the assassination of Francis Ferdinand, Crown Prince of Austria-Hungary, and his wife in June, 1914, by Gavio Prinzip, a student. The assassination precipitated the world war.

Toronto Lions Receive Charter

Proposal to Bring Whole Menagerie to Toronto in 1922.

TORONTO, Oct. 13.—At the presentation of their charter to the Toronto Den of the International Association of Lions' Clubs which took the form of a banquet at the King Edward Hotel, Judge John F. Garner, of Quincy, Illinois, told the members of the newly organized local branch that the international convention for 1922 would be held in this city, providing the Toronto delegates asked for it at the 1921 convention in Oakland, California.

Honor "Mother Britain"

The charter was presented to President Charles Leslie of the Toronto Den, by E. W. Cameron, First Vice-President of the International Association, who came from the home of the Lions at Minneapolis to present the charter. In his speech, Mr. Cameron, who is a Republican candidate for Congress, told the members that the people on the other side of the line did not under-estimate the debt owing to Mother Britain for what she did in the past.

In welcoming the club officers from the United States Mr. Justice Sutherland made a strong plea for unity of purpose of the two great nations of Anglo-Saxon blood, and told the Lions that he believed no better organization could be better fitted to preserve and perpetuate the harmony which does and ought to exist between the Mother Land and the Anglo-Saxon race in America. The war, it was hoped had put away forever bitter memories, however, there had been those who wished to dissipate the good feelings caused by a common cause against a common enemy. He concluded with a plea for a better understanding because fundamentally the two nations were alike.

Bolshevism in Colorado.

In replying, Dr. Charles E. Reid, International President, of Denver, Colorado, declared that the friendly feeling for Great Britain existed as strongly as ever in the United States. Only on the surface was there any cause of friction. "The United States is blest with a vast population, but a lot of it we would be glad to get rid of," he said. "In the State of Colorado there are 800 paid agents of Bolshevism, who are trying to upset the Government of that state. There is an exodus from the state. They have practically established a Soviet government." He declared that the United States would solve her reconstruction problems, put down the trouble-makers and emerge stronger than ever. All speakers referred to the laws, speech and institutions common to both nations.

Entertainers enlivened the evening with songs, in which the members joined. The three out-of-town clubs—sent delegates to the gathering, which was preceded by an Executive meeting. The American delegates left last night for their homes after promising to boost for Toronto as the 1922 convention city.

Farmers Would Be First To Suffer By Free Trade

PREMIER MEIGHEN EMPHASIZES THE PERIL OF ABOLISHING MODERATE PROTECTION — OPENS BY-ELECTION CAMPAIGN IN EAST ELGIN—ACCORDED SPLENDID RECEPTION.

STAFFORDVILLE, Ont., Oct. 12.—Outlining clearly and frankly his policy on the tariff question as one of moderate protection, sufficient to enable Canadian industries to develop instead of allowing this country's resources to go for the development and enrichment of another land, the Right Hon. Arthur Meighen, Premier of Canada, speaking here today on behalf of the candidature of John H. Stansell, Government standard-bearer in the East Elgin by-election, challenged Hon. Mackenzie King and the members of the Farmers' party to state their stand with equal definiteness. The leader of the Liberal Opposition he charged with "humbugging" in failing to make any more definite pronouncement on the tariff question other than that he was "in favor of tariff reform." As to the farmers, Mr. Meighen said he had thought they were out and out free traders until the assertions of members of the party before the recent sitting of the Tariff Commission in Winnipeg. That they were not opposed to protection for industries had aroused doubts.

In support of his moderate protection policy Mr. Meighen pointed out the need of a certain amount of tariff if the throttling of Canadian industries by unfair foreign competition was to be prevented. If the industries were driven out he declared the farmers, next to the industrial workers, would be the first to suffer.

Cleveland Won World's Series

Cleveland, Oct. 12.—The Cleveland American League Club won the supreme baseball title here this afternoon, when the Indians defeated the Brooklyn Nationals in the seventh and deciding game of the 1920 World Series by 3 to 0. Tonight Cleveland is celebrating in a manner in keeping with the honor.

The shutout victory was chiefly engineered by Stanley Cloveleskie, the spitball pitcher, who has proved his remarkable skill and endurance during the series. Backed by an airtight defence at the critical moments of the game, the Shamokin, Pa., coal miner let the Robins down for five hits. But two Brooklyn players reached second base, and but five of the invaders were left on the bases all told.

Cloveleskie's feat in winning three of the five games will go down as one of the outstanding features of World Series history. The Brooklyn batters accumulated but two runs off the moistened slants of "Covey" in twenty-seven innings. He let the Robins down with one run in the first game at Brooklyn on October 5, allowed them a second tally on Saturday and shut them out today.

Increased Wages For G.T.R. Employees

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer
Canadian Press Limited

TORONTO, Oct. 13.—An agreement covering increased wages for Grand Trunk Railway clerks, freight handlers, station, store and certain shop employes was signed yesterday by the general committee representing these employes and Mr. Bowker representing the Grand Trunk Railway, according to a statement issued this morning. The increase in wages to clerical employes will in some cases amount to as much as fifty dollars per month over rates in effect January 1st. Higher rates are brought about by pooling of total increases to all clerks, re-distribution of amount so pooled by committees representing employes and management of railway to provide proper differentials. Freight handlers, station, store and shop employes, other than clerks will receive increases similar to those provided by United States Labor Board, decision number 2, which is from 5 to 13 cents per hour.

Local Lions Roar At Noonday

First Jungle Feed of Belleville Lions' Club.

When the Lions roar look out there is something doing or about to be done and the initial roar of Belleville Lions was heard at the Hotel Quinte Wednesday when the first Jungle Feed of the local cubs was pulled off with all the royal trimmings. The Lions is an international organization working along lines similar to Rotary, Kiwanis, etc. Service and Good Fellowship is the motto of the Lions who are now invading Canada after a successful five years service in the United States.

President Bob Gorman was in the chair and there was a lusty bunch of cubs present. As befitted the occasion the menu called for roast beef rare and this helped the cubs to roar when the time was opportune which was quite frequent.

Jungle choruses filled in the waits between courses and there was something doing every little moment. Bob Gorman, the greatest Lion of them all gave a little talk along the lines of a visit to the Lions Den in Toronto Tuesday evening where with cub Ernie Finkle and he met distinguished Lions from all parts of Canada and the United States. President Gorman briefly sketched the aims and objects of the Lions and stated that the local society was not formed in any spirit of opposition to any existing society but to help in all forms of useful community service and to promote good fellowship Secretary Finkle added a few words about the Toronto visit and brought up several matters of business which were disposed of.

Cub Stewart collected several fines for saying "Mister" instead of Jim or Bill or whatever the handle might be.

Belleville Lions are off to a good start, full of pep and peptomism, and will be a big noise in everything that tends to help Belleville.

POISON LIKE UNTO VENOM OF SNAKES

Professor H. Strauss, M. D., of the Royal Charity Hospital, says, "The cause for an attack of gout, rheumatism, lumbago, is supplied by the increase of uric acid in the blood serum, the result of various causes, the most frequent of which is renal. Before an attack, one suffers sometimes from headache, neuralgia, twinges of pain here and there."

When your kidneys feel like lumps of lead, when the back hurts or the urine is cloudy, full of sediment, or you have rheumatic pains or lumbago, gout, sciatica, obtain at your nearest drug store "Anuric" (anti-uric-acid).

This is the discovery of Dr. Pierce of the Invalids' Hotel, Buffalo, N. Y. "Anuric" is an antidote for this uric acid poisoning and dissolves uric acid in the body much as hot coffee dissolves sugar.

"Anuric" will penetrate into the joints and muscles, and dissolve the poisonous accumulations. It will stamp out toxins.

Montreal, Que.:—"I cannot praise Dr. Pierce's Anuric (anti-uric-acid) enough for what it has done for me. For three months I was under the doctor's care and got no better. I was always complaining of my kidneys. I did not know what to do. I read about Anuric and made up my mind to try it. I have taken two boxes and don't complain any more. I have gained in weight and am still gaining. My appetite is great and sleep has come to me. That is what the Anuric Tablets have done for me. I do truly recommend them to those who are suffering the way I did. The tablets are mighty good, though not expensive. Easy to buy, but hard to beat."—T. A. BROWN, 388 Dorchester St. W.

MAN'S BODY FOUND

After he had been ten days missing from his home near Charleston, Leeds County, the dead body of John Spence aged eighty-two, a retired farmer was found yesterday by searchers in a wood near Sheatown, two and one-half miles east of Charleston. Dr. J. F. Hart, Athena, Coroner, decided that an inquest was unnecessary. Mr. Spence was well known in Charleston and vicinity. On September 29 he left home, and when he did not return a searching party was organized. The efforts proved unavailing until yesterday, when James Keys and David Spence of Charleston found his body in a wood belonging to Joseph Morri[illegible] He had evidently wandered and in his enfeebled condition was unable to withstand the nights in the open. Four sons and two daughters survive.

Confined To Bed For Two Months

Was So Run Down After the 'Flu' She Couldn't Do Her Housework—Grateful to Tanlac.

So many people throughout Canada have testified to having used Tanlac with such splendid results following influenza, grippe, operations, typhoid and pneumonia, and other troubles that result in a run-down condition, that it has become universally recognized as the most powerful reconstructive tonic of the present day.

Another very striking statement in connection with this fact was given recently by Lyman Williams, well-known farmer, living on R. F. D. No. 1, Vinemount, Ontario.

"Last February," said Mr. Williams, 'my wife was taken down with the flu' and was confined to her bed for two months. It left her in such a badly run-down condition that she wasn't able to do any of her housework whatever and nothing seemed to restore her strength. Her appetite was very poor, and her stomach was in such a bad fix that she could only eat the lightest kind of food, She had awful headaches lasting for a day or two at a time, and was simply in perfect misery.

"She saw Tanlac so highly recommended by others that my wife decided it would be a good idea to try it, so we got her a bottle and she began to improve from the very start. Her appetite picked right up, and after taking four bottles she says she never has an ache or pain of any kind. She has regained all her lost weight and can do her housework with perfect ease. My wife is so grateful for what Tanlac has done for her that she is always telling the neighbors about it, and I'm no less thankful than she is for her recovery."

Tom Moore Great In Gay Lord Quex

Feature at Griffins' Full of Thrills, Serious and Amusing Situations

What would you do if you were to be discovered in a woman's apartments at a week-end party at midnight? Tom Moore finds himself in this predicament in his Goldwyn picture, "The Gay Lord Quex," which is being shown for the last time to-night and for a moment is entirely at sea as to what to do but only for a moment. He conceives a brilliant plan by which he draws the discoverer into the embarrassment of the situation and thus saves the woman in the case from the tongues of scandal. His self-sacrifice in the matter meets with instant appreciation from his late enemy and results in paving the way to his happiness. An interesting Burton Holmes Travelogue, "Smiling" Billy Parson in a 2-reel Capitol comedy, "The Sea Woof," and Jack Dempsey in "Daredevil Jack" are also being shown on the same program.

FRIENDS HONOR MR. AND MRS. JOHN DIXON AT FRANKFORD.

The home of Mr.and Mrs John Dixon near Frankford, was the scene of a happy event when their nearest relations assembled to celebrate with them the fiftieth anniversary of their married life.

Mr. John R. Dixon and Mary Ann Rose, daughter of the late Harmon and Mary Rose of Sidney were married the 3rd of Oct. 1870, at the parsonage on the 3rd concession of Sidney by the Rev. Mr. Leaver.

Mr. and Mrs. Dixon were both born in Sidney and have lived here all their lives, and are now living at Mrs. Dixon's father's old home having lived there for the last thirty years.

The Rev. I Snell, of Frankford, called the guests to order by a few well chosen and fitting remarks to the aged couple, wishing them bon voyage through the remainder of life. He then presented Mr. W. H. Nobis, who read the address, and Mr. T. Ketcheson presented the purse of gold.

Address—

To Mr. and Mrs. John Dixon:

Dear Friends,

We of the inner circle of your immediate relatives, have met in your home tonight to celebrate with you the fiftieth anniversary of your wedding day, and to extend to you our greetings, and our best wishes for your future happiness.

Comparatively few couples are spared to enjoy each other's companionship for so long a period.

To the many the "Voyage of Life" is fraught with affliction, sorrow, and bereavement, to the few it is serene and peaceful throughout.

We congratulate you on being among the few into whose Lives no great overwhelming sorrow has come. You were born, and during your whole lifetime have lived in this immediate vicinity, and by your uprightness and stragiht forward manner of life have won the esteem and respect of all men, and a good name which is far better than riches.

The true success of a life is not measured by wealth accumulated but by character formed, and service rendered.

"Who doeth all he can of good,
In nation, state or neighborhood;
And evil doeth none,
No matter what his wealth or fame;
No matter what his rank or name,
Success hath truly won."

Both of you have not only lived your three score and ten, but have nearly completed your four score years, and as the shadows of "Life's little day" are lengthening, we your nearest friends desire to bring something of cheer into your lives and to make you feel you are not forgotten by us.

We ask you to accept this small purse of gold, not as a gift, but as a token of our regard for you, and we earnestly pray that He who has sustained you through life will continue to be your guide and support even unto death.

Signed on behalf of your kinsfolk,

W. H. Nobis.

Mr. Dixon made a suitable reply and after a few speeches and singing "Blest be the tie", refreshments were served.

The guests present were Mr. and Mrs. Tom Kitcheson and daughter Edna, Mr. and Mrs. John Rose, Mr. M. Sine, Eva and Gerald, Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Faul, Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Lott of Sidney, Mr. and Mrs. J. Murney, Mr. and Mrs. Perry Sine, Mr. and Mrs. J. Kiernan, Mr. and Mrs. R. Potter, Mrs. Geo. Rose of Frankford, Mr. and Mrs. W. N. The party broke up about eleven o'clock all wishing Mr. and Mrs. Dixon a peaceful voyage through the remainder of life.

MUSIC AND DRAMA

"ENLIGHTEN THY DAUGHTER"
(By Thos. B. Gregory of New York)

After seeing the great photoplay at the Park Theatre, "Enlighten Thy Daughter," I came to the conclusion that it well deserves to be called the "most tremendous moral force the screen has ever shown."

As an eyeopener along moral lines as a protest against the stupidity and indifference of these who should know better and do better and as a clarion call to careless fathers and mothers to shake themselves and got busy in the right direction, this picture easily takes the lead of all I have so far seen.

Of course it is mighty plain, mighty realistic. It comes right out with it refuses to mince matters, and goes into things precisely as nature does or God, or whatever you wish to call it. It shows up the dangers and tell how to avoid them; it shows through the tangled labyrinth of life, the one straight path leads safely through the jungle, with its snares and pitfalls to the sunny uplands of peace and honor.

To come to the point the picture sets out to make it as clear as day to parents—especially mothers—what a fearful responsibility rests upon them as such the claims that their daughters have upon them and what a hell on earth overtakes them if they do not do their duty.

And what is that duty? Why bless your soul, it is simply this, "Tell your innocent and unsuspecting daughter all about the world into which they sooner or later enter—it's good and bad, its honesty and its hypocrisy, its allurements, its temptations, its traps its flowery ways leading to the abysses of sin, sorrow and shame.

In this photoplay the sweet young girl who loved not wisely, but too well, said to her mother as she was about to die in her wretcheiness, "it's all your fault, why didn't you tell me" and she to'd her God Almighty's truth. If her mother had told her she would not have perished in her youth, choked with shame, loving life, yet welcoming death that was to end her misery. 'Enlighten Thy Daughter' is being shown at Griffin's to-morrow to Saturday with a matinee Saturday.

BOXING AT THE ARMOURIES.

All things point to a lively and interesting evening at the Armouries, Friday evening next. The committee in charge are sparing no expense to give a return for the admission charged. The quality of the main bouts is readily seen by the names of the boxers. Joyce, who fights Chris Newton, (Finalist in the featherweight class at the 1920 Olympic Games) is, during the coming month to meet Wallace of New York, who fought with Jimmy Wilde.

Bringing H. E. Turley down to referee, should be assurance for all that the rounds will be snappy and full of pep, for Mr. Turley is known throughout Canada as an anti-stalling enthusiast.

The G.W.V.A. Band is to be in attendance to further enliven the evening.

There has been a wish about town to see boxing resumed in the city, no finer place than the Armouries could be found for staging such an event, and the intention is, that should Friday evening's venture prove a success another tournament will be held the first of the year.

Y.M.C.A. BOWLING.

On Tuesday night the Curlers met the G.T.R. Office and the final round was won from them by 24. The game was quite close but in the second the Office put up 648 which gave them a very big margin but in the final game they stepped back to 540, while the Curlers were rolling 639, but this still left the Office a margin which gave them the game.

On Wednesday night Ritchie's will meet the Merchants.

Wedding Bells

MacLAREN—BADGLEY

A very pretty wedding was solemnized on Wednesday, October 6th, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ryerson Badgley, of Melrose, when their youngest daughter, Olive Viola, was united in marriage to Leslie James MacLaren, of Blessington, son of Mr. Peter MacLaren, ex-warden of Hastings. Rev. Mr. Jones officiating.

Promptly at 12 o'clock to the strains of Mendelssohn's Wedding March, played by Miss Helen Hill, cousin of the groom, the bride entered the parlor which was tastefully decorated with evergreens and white asters.

The bride was charmingly attired in white georgette over white satin with silver bead trimmings and wore the customary bridal veil. She carried a shower bouquet of pink sweetheart roses and white carnations.

Little Miss Doris Badgley, niece of the bride acted as flower girl and wore a dress of pale blue silk. She carried a very beautifully decorated basket of white asters.

After the ceremony about forty guests proceeded to the dining room where the wedding dinner was served.

The groom's gift to the bride was a handsome muff, to the flower girl a gold locket and chain and to the pianist a gold brooch set with pearls.

Mr. and Mrs. MacLaren left amid showers of rice and confetti, motoring to Belleville where they took the train for Boston to spend their honeymoon. The bride travelled in a dark brown velour suit and a dark brown velour hat with ostrich trimmings and a Bolivian beaver fur.

On Friday evening previous to the wedding the bride's many friends gave her a shower. The many useful and costly gifts testified to the high esteem in which the young people were held.

POOR SUGAR REFINERS MAY LOSE PROFITS

Word comes from Ottawa that the Canadian sugar refiners, alarmed at the prospect of cheap American sugar being dumped upon the Canadian market, are asking for preventative measures under the anti-dumping regulations designed to prevent Canada from becoming a bargain counter for United States products when Uncle Sam has more goods than money and while protecting the standard prices in the land of the free, is willing to play hob with prices in Canada.

Canadian sugar refiners are all right, but their nerve is colossal—they forget that Canadian consumers have been paying exorbitant prices for sugar and should be entitled to any advantage accruing from a break in the sugar market at the source of supply.

Sugar consumers do not view with anything but joy the prospect of lower prices, and will vigorously resent any interference in the interest of the sugar refiners, who should be financially able to weather any storm affecting prices.

SITTING ON THE FRONT STOOP WATCHING THE WORLD GO BY

Getting into a rut is an easy matter; staying there is a crime. The Oshawa Telegram digs into the rut question in an illuminative manner as follows:

> Did you ever go a new street to your work?
> I remember a man who always went the same route to his work for years. He was going that way the first day I remember seeing him, and the last day I saw him he was still travelling the same old beaten path across the corner lot and down a long lane decorated by tin cans, old hoops, sow thistles and big burdocks to his job, the same old job. The same shuffling pace, the same old duds, the same carelessness and indifference were there. He lived his life in the one old rut.
> Someone has said that "Beaten paths are best"; there may be instances when this is true, but it is oftener wrong.
> Don't allow yourself to get in a rut and remain there. Take a different route to your work occasionally even if you have to go a few steps farther—it will do you a world of good. You will see some new thing and you will see the same thing from a new angle.
> Did you ever try out a new little wrinkle in the doing of your work? Many famous inventions have been discovered that way. By thinking out new ways of doing things, by making little changes here and there, by seeing new things, is the way that most men at the head of the big concerns today have won their positions.
> Some of the world's biggest men began their careers in a ditch, in a mine shaft, behind a wheelbarrow, on a tow-path, in a ship's hold, or in a score or more of the lowest places of the world's industries. Had they kept on going in the same old way, they would have lived and died on the same old job.
> It is necessary for men to get into ditches, but God never intended them to remain there. Everyone is the better for taking his turn on the step lowest down, but at the same time his ambition should prompt him to equip himself for the steps higher up.
> It's not fatal to get in a rut, but it is fatal if you stay there.

JAY WALKER AND THE RECKLESS MOTORIST.

Most of the accidents on our streets are preventable. They occur because people show too much haste or are indifferent or thoughtless of the rights of others.

The motorist who violates traffic ordinances designated for the safety of all, places himself and others in jeopardy.

Personal safety is only attained by constant watchfulness. Each member of the community, motorist, street-car men, teamster, bicyclist and pedestrian should take care of himself and give thought for the other. We all must live and let live.

Haste is becoming a modern habit but we are told "haste makes waste," and so it is when the desire for haste causes an accident. Quite often "the longest way round is the shortest way home." This slogan should be adopted by the pedestrian who dashes diagonally across the roadway. Both the "jaywalker" and the reckless motorist should be jerked up short.

OTHER VIEWS

TOWN AND COUNTRY LIFE.

Brooklyn Daily Eagle.

There is no question that country living, where each family has its own doorstone and at least a little patch of lawn or garden, affords better conditions for raising children than do city apartments, even of the roomy and luxurious sort. Raising children should be the first object of family life, and, therefore, the increase of commutation which all the railroads report give promise of better health and of stronger nerves and better balanced minds in the coming generation. This surburban living, so far as it goes, is an offset to the increase of the densely crowded poorer parts of the city, in which children must depend upon the streets for fresh air and a chance to play, and come up as they can or must. It helps to keep the balance wheel more nearly even, and its growth is to be commended, at least until such time as the cities learn to provide ample playgrounds and baths for the children who are their most valuable products.

LACK OF APPRENTICES.

Winchester Press.

What's the matter with the boys of today? says the Carlton Place C.C. Are the boys not to learn trades as in the old days? We can remember a time, and not so very long ago either, when there was a dozen applications for every vacancy where there was an opportunity to learn a trade. But for some considerable time now the reverse has been the case and it is only occasionally we hear of an apprentice applying for an opportunity to learn a trade. If this state of affairs should continue for a while longer where will the tradesmen be found to take the places of the "old fellows" when they drop out? Look round about you today, even in our own town, and who do we find among the most independent of our citizens. Are they not the men with a trade and all of them drawing good wages? And yet with it all there are fewer apprentices in practically every line of business than ever before. This is a matter which should be seriously considered by every parent who has a boy.

A LAUGH OR TWO

Domestic Strategy.

He—why do you say such hard things about Bridget to our callers? She's a treasure; the best cook we ever had.

She—How little you men understand your wives' problems. If I told the truth about her those women would be falling over themselves in their efforts to get her away from us.—Boston Transcript.

How Romantic.

A Visitor to Stratford-on-Avon whose heart was in better condition than her head, walked about the town quite thrilled with rapture and awe.

When she reached the railway station, where her train had not yet arrived, her enthusiasm was not abated, and she looked about her with brimming eyes.

"Ah," she said, "I think this place affects me more than all. Here Shakespeare must have come to take the train to London."

One Explanation.

Mollie (aged six)—Oh, I say, do you know what my governess told me today? She told me that the world is round. Isn't that funny?

Dolly (aged six and a half)—You silly! Of course the world is round. I could have told you that. That's why we say in our prayers, "World without end."

Don't take a chance on your eyesight

The most valuable faculty that you possess is eyesight.

Most people think that their sight is all it ought to be, because it has given them little or no trouble.

The people who have taken the trouble to ascertain the true condition of their eyes have found it to be to their advantage, because if glasses were not needed, they were told so. But, if their sight proved not all that could be desired, they have received very valuable information and secured eye-aids which gave clear and comfortable vision and preserved it.

CHILDREN TO LEARN NAVY LEAGUE OBJECTS.

The suggestion to have a copy of the Navy League's "Trafalgar" Day program placed in the hands of every pupil in the schools of the Province has been approved by Dr. R. H. Grant, Minister of Education. The objects of the League are to be explained by the teachers.

While Trafalgar forms the basis of the program, the battle of Jutland, the surrender of the German fleet and the priceless sacrifice of the lives of British seamen all find a place and are not forgotten. A bit of Canadian history is included under the titles of "Canadian National Existence," "The Thin Gassed Line" and other features.

After dealing with foreign trade in this time of peace, the freedom of the seas and Canada as a maritime power, Canadians are appealed to by: "Canada can do what Britain has done."

WILL EXPLORE BAFFIN LAND

Expedition Leaves Boston in July to Investigate Northern Region Never Hitherto Penetrated.

Secrets of Baffin Land, one of the portions of the Arctic still unexplored, will be the objective of the MacMillan expedition which is in preparation now for departure in the summer of 1921.

Although the region was visited several times before the Pilgrims crossed the Atlantic to Cape Cod, Baffin Land, from the point of view of explorers and scientists, is still one of the richest and most alluring fields of research in the North.

Its whole western shore, more than 1,000 miles in length, is but vaguely defined on the charts. Eskimos have told wonderful tales of vast lakes and towering mountains in the interior, but white men have never visited that section. Its flora and fauna have never been studied; little is known of the movements of the tidal currents along its shores, and facts of geology, mineralogy and meteorology await the coming of scientific observers.

The party, headed by Donald MacMillan, the late Admiral Peary's lieutenant on the expedition that reached the north pole, plans to leave Boston about July 1, 1921, and to reach Baffin Land in less than a month, with good luck. The following winter will be spent on the western shore in latitude 69. The camp probably will be just south of the entrance of the dangerous Fury and Hecla strait, where the ships of Captains Parry and Lyon, seekers of a northwestern passage, were blocked a century ago. That is 160 miles north of the Arctic circle and 700 miles south of Etah, on the shore of northwestern Greenland, where MacMillan's Crockerland expedition passed four winters.

In the winter attempts will be made by dog teams to explore the coast northward and in the following summer the interior of the island will be penetrated. The plans for the expedition call for an absence of two years from this country. In case a longer stay is necessary, no relief expedition will be sent, according to present arrangements. If the ship is crushed in the ice, the party plans to retreat by dog teams to Fort Churchill, the trading post at the foot of Hudson bay and to return to civilization by way of northwestern Canada.

The MacMillan Arctic association will back the expedition. It is composed of Bowdoin college alumni and other friends of the explorer.

Breaking Down Caste.

When a Brahmin will violate the laws of caste to the extent of going into the fields and putting his hands to a plough it means that a great light must have dawned in his consciousness. And that is what has happened in India. Returned Brahmin soldiers who, at the front, became inoculated with western ideas, are beginning to release liberalizing influences. At Midnapore, India, one hundred and fifteen Brahmins held a mass meeting where several fervid addresses were made on the agricultural needs of the country. The dignity of farming as a calling was emphasized. After the addresses the meeting by unanimous decision adjourned to the field, and there the high and mighty Brahmins, for whom ploughing had become taboo, took hold of plough handles and had their first practical lessons in agriculture.—World Outlook.

Society Brand Clothes

FOR YOUNG MEN AND MEN WHO STAY YOUNG

MADE IN CANADA

© A. D. & C., 1920

To the man who is worried about the cost of clothing

The cost of clothing is in the materials and in the labor.

The labor costs practically the same to all clothing manufacturers.

The cloth in a suit of clothes will average 3⅓ yards.

To make cheaper clothes one must either use less labor—do fewer things that ought to be done—or use cheaper materials.

To reduce the labor cost by reducing hand-tailoring damages fit, finish and durability. To reduce the cost of materials (only 3⅓ yards to a suit) must mean a big loss of quality if any noticeable reduction is made.

Society Brand Clothes are designed and tailored for men who have the good clothes habit; for men who want up-to-the-minute styles always in good taste and so well made up they will stay that way.

They have never been cheap clothes.

They are not cheap clothes now.

They are not to be compared with cheap clothes.

The man who buys Society Brand Clothes need not worry about style, tailoring or quality of the all-wool fabric.

The Human Clock usually Breaks Down Instead of Runs Down

"IT has long been a favorite idea of mine to compare the human body with my old clock here."

"Without proper attention the old clock gets run down and stops until I wind it up again and then it ticks away just as heartily and regularly as ever."

"And so it is with the human body, but the great difference I find is that the human clock usually breaks down instead of runs down, because people neglect to take proper care of their health."

"Through all these years I have managed to keep well and to keep young by using restorative treatment whenever there are indications of the system becoming run down."

"Fortunately I learned the value some years ago of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food and to its use I largely attribute my healthful condition at this age."

"When I hear people talking about being unable to sleep, or of suffering from nervous headaches, indigestion or worn-out feelings, I ask them, 'Why do you not use Dr. Chase's Nerve Food to increase your nervous energy?'."

"So many people, as age advances, suffer from a lowering of the vitality, from high blood pressure or hardening of the arteries, but I have found that the use of this restorative treatment, when required, keeps my health at the high water mark."

Illustrated Conversational Style.

Before beginning the next series of advertisements to tell people about Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, we want you to help us to decide on the style of our advertising.

The use of testimonials has always been favored in medical advertising, but with an effort to make our advertisements more interesting we have during the last few years used attractive illustrations and the conversational style of reading matter.

You will find samples of both styles of advertising on this page. What we want to know is which style appeals most strongly to women, because it is on the wife and mother mostly that rests the responsibility of looking after the health of the family.

If in addition to reporting that such a style of advertising is most interesting to you, you can say, "I have made inquiry among 25 of my friends and find that 16 have used Dr. Chase's Nerve Food as the result of reading your illustrated advertisements, 7 on account of reading testimonials, and the other two have never used it," your answer would be much strengthened.

By adding further particulars as to various cases which have come to your attention your letter would be made more interesting and more likely to win a good prize. Your name will not be used publicly without your permission.

The Questions to be Answered

1.—Which style of advertising interests the most people in Dr. Chase's Nerve Food?

A. The use of testimonials?

B. Human interest advertisements with illustrations and conversational style of copy?

2.—For what ailment do you find that Dr. Chase's Nerve Food is most frequently used?

Both these questions can best be answered by making inquiry among your friends. Then write a good letter telling what you found out by your investigation.

$300.00 in Cash Prizes

$100 for the best letter.

$50 for second best letter.

$25 for third best letter.

$5 each for succeeding twenty-five best letters.

For your guidance we would suggest that you clip out this advertisement and start in at once to make an investigation among your friends and neighbors.

The competition closes Nov. 15th, 1920, but in case of two letters being equally good, the first one received will have the preference.

Was given Few Months to Live Is Now Strong and Well

Miss E. W. Ehman, School Teacher, Libau, Man., writes:—"Four years ago, while living in Regina, I was afflicted with fainting spells, nervous headache, and became very thin and pale. I sought medical advice and was treated for consumption, and given only a few months to live. I had to sleep on the verandah and was told not to go to public places for fear of spreading germs.

"A newspaper advertising Dr. Chase's Nerve Food fell into my hands. I bought six boxes and after a few weeks began to increase in weight and feel better. Under this treatment I gradually regained my health, and now weigh 165 pounds. I enclose a picture I had taken while ill and my photo of to-day, so that you can see what a difference there is.

"The reason for my writing this is the hope that this statement of mine will fall into the hands of some poor sufferer who can be benefitted, may be saved, by the steady, regular use of Dr. Chase's preparations.

"I often use Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills to keep my kidneys and liver in shape. I have recommended Dr. Chase's medicines to a great number of people for kidney trouble, lame back, appendicitis, shortness of breath, indigestion, nervousness, and in fact for every sickness I am asked advice about."

TELLS OF KIDNAPPING OF COUGHLIN INFANT

Harrisburg, Pa., Oct. 12.—Blakely Coughlin, the missing Norristown baby was smothered and later buried near Egg Harbor, N.J., by August Pasquale, who confessed to the kidnapping in the jail at Norristown yesterday, Major Lynn G. Adams of the state police announced today.

"The Crank" is said to have stated that he stole Blakely Coughlin from his home in Norristown, Pa., and smothered the child under his coat. He declares he buttoned the coat around the baby when he heard a noise as he was descending the ladder and that when he had gone some distance from the house he found the baby was dead.

Crime Wave in England Has Caused Authorities To Introduce Flogging

FROM now on British criminals sentenced for crimes which do not call for capital punishment will have to face the possibility of being flogged as well as imprisoned. In technical language, they may get the "cat."

In the last six months or so there have been a number of hysterical newspaper outbursts regarding an alleged "crime wave" in England. These have led to a revival of sentiment—it is impossible to say how numerous are the supporters — in favor of sentencing convicted criminals to a certain amount of flogging, in addition to the usual penalties of fine and imprisonment.

The first case in point arose some week ago, when two men were sentenced for trying to rob a post office, in the course of which attempt they thoroughly terrified the two women clerks on duty at the time. The judge, at the trial, gave them five years' penal servitude, and, in addition, ordered that they receive twenty strokes of the "cat."

The two men appealed from the decision to the Court of Criminal Appeal, which, however, upheld the original sentence, when the Lord Chief Justice, Lord Reading, gave the opinion that:

"The judge who passed the sentence intended to impose an exemplary sentence as a deterrent to others, and more especially imposed the sentence of the 'cat' with the object of deterring persons from committing these very serious offenses."

Lord Beverbrook's paper, the London Express, heartily supports the principle of flogging. Referring to the decision in the case the paper says:

"It is a very proper view for the bench to take. Very possibly, as the result of five years of war, during which the value of human life was depreciated and moral standards upset, there are now preying upon society a number of desperate criminals who do not hesitate to take life in order to accomplish their ends.

"Only the judges who administer the law can end this state of things. They must make their punishments fit the crime; violence must be met with violence, the bully must be cowed. Mere imprisonment will not serve; the 'cat' must play its part. The marked effect of the too rare application of the 'cat' has proved the proper course of justice."

That War Spirit.

Mrs. Gotham—I'd like to go to the theater or opera tonight, dear.

Mr. Gotham—All right. What would you like to see?

"Oh, something with some fighting in it, Henry."

"But you know they've stopped the production of those German operas, dear."

The EASIFIRST way

Be a Successful Cook!

EVERY woman realizes that one of the big secrets of successful cooking is in the shortening used.

Discriminating cooks use EASIFIRST. It is a pure, wholesome shortening, always of the same high quality. Everything cooked or baked with it is light, dainty, appetizing and easily digested. It is very economical—to buy and to use, for three-quarters of a pound of EASIFIRST goes as far as a pound of many other cooking fats.

Here is a Splendid Gingerbread Recipe

½ cup EASIFIRST
½ cup brown sugar
½ cup molasses
½ cup sour milk
½ teaspoon baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
2 eggs
2 cups flour
1 tablespoon ginger
½ teaspoon soda

Cream EASIFIRST and brown sugar, add molasses and well beaten eggs. Add sour milk, then the sifted flour, salt, baking powder and ginger. Beat thoroughly and add the baking soda, dissolved in a little sweet milk. Pour into a greased shallow pan and bake 45 minutes in a slow oven.

Your grocer will supply you—but get EASIFIRST—then you're sure of results. Sold in cartons and tins.

The foundation of wealth is the wise investment of earnings saved.

This policy makes protection of principal imperative.

Long-term securities which give this protection seldom offer big interest rates.

Just now, however, interest rates on long-term securities are high.

The reason is "tight money," which naturally implies a shortage of money available for investment.

Good bonds are just now selling at low prices.

Investors should take advantage of present condition and buy bonds now.

After her long run of 37 eggs in thirty-seven days, Mr. F. J. Coldhom's hen, which is undergoing test in the egg-laying contest at Ottawa Experimental Farm, took a Saturday 'off' the week before last. CHICKEN BONE IN THROAT

Mrs. J. Acheson, Fairfield, met with a painful misfortune while partaking of dinner with relatives near Athens. She was in the act of eating a piece of chicken when a bone became lodged in her throat, which, despite first aid methods, could not be removed. She visited a doctor near Athens, who sent her to Dr. J. A. McBroom at Brockville. An X-ray examination was made and the bone located. Mrs. Acheson was removed to St. Vincent de Paul Hospital, where an operation will be performed to remove the obstruction.

REMEMBER THE CHILDREN

The generous response given the Easter appeal contributed largely in providing many needs and comforts for the little children within the care of the Shelter and the active interest shown was most encouraging to those in charge of the work that they should not be weary in well-doing. The approach of winter which always brings a greater number of children to the care and protection of the Society and increases proportionately their liabilities. Canada has been blest with an abundant harvest and once again the appeal is made to remember these little ones at Thanksgiving season. Saturday, October 16th has been set apart for Thanksgiving donations on which day gifts of groceries, clothing and money will be thankfully received and the presence of those interested in the work "especially" desired. To those who have so generously given of their bounty and effort in the past the Society is sincerely grateful and ever pray a continuance of your interest and support. The secretary of the Children's Aid Management Committee can be communicated with at Phone 447.

Unanimous Plea For River Route

Over 150 Delegate Attend Kingston Waterways Commission.

Kingston, Oct. 12.—Over a hundred and fifty delegates to the convention of the International Joint Waterways Commission met yesterday afternoon in the city hall, in the first session of the most important meeting to be held in Eastern Ontario. Delegates from Cornwall on the east, to Picton on the west, were in attendance.

The most important feature of the meeting yesterday was the presentation of a report by Sir Adam Beck of the preliminary report of the survey made by the Hidro-Electric Commission of the St Lawrence River from Montreal to Kingston, in connection with the proposed improvements. The report set out the position of the Province in this regard. It points out that there will be developed, at conservative estimate power equivalent to twenty million tons of coal per year more than the total importation to Canada today. It advocated the conments to the St. Lawrence, which is the most important economical question, it state, before the people today.

C. A. McGrath was chairman of the meeting, and with him on the Commission were Senator O. Gardner, Rockland, M.; Sir William Hearst, Toronto; Senator D. C. Clark, Evonston, Wyo.; H. A. Powell, K.C., St John, N.B.; W. L. Smith and L. J. Burper, American and Canadian secretaries.

Francis King, of Kingston, general counsel for the Dominion Marine Association, representing that body, warmly approved of the plan for improving the river. J. M. Campbell, chairman of the local Board of Trade, advocated the proposal ofr the reason that transportation was so urgently needed to develop the country.

James Richardson, of Jas. Richardson and Sons, said that if the improvements were made, there would be possible a haul of grain from the head of the Lakes for about ten cents a bushel, instead of eighteen now.

Irwin Hillyard, K.C., of Morrisburg, presented a strong case for a dam somewhere near that town, pointing out that such a dam would raise the level of Lake Ontario by two feet.

Major R. D. Ponton, of Belleville; W. A. Lewis, Mayor of Brockville; Hon. G. P. Graham, Brockville; Clinton E. Williams, Ogdensburg, N.Y.; Jas. Millon, of Cornwall; Col. R. Smith, Cornwall, Fred Newman, mayor of Picton; Capt. John Donnelly, of Kingston; Mayor Wilson, of Gananoque; R. F. Elliott, chairman of the Kingston Utilities Commission, also spoke, all advocating the proposed improvements. The session is being continued today.

The Delegates

The following delegates in attendance were registered: Senator John Webster, Brockville; G. F. Johnston, president of the Brockville Dairymen's Cheese Board, Lansdowne; J. L. Storey, Brockville Board of Trade; J. H. Meikle, reeve of Morrisburg; Mayor W. B. Riggs, Ald. R. D. Ponton, Belleville; Ald. Jamieson Bone, treasurer Board of Commerce, Brockville; Mayor Fred Newman, Picton; W. B. Reynolds, M. Atkinson, W. G. Somerville, S. W. Logan, J. A. Johnston, H. R. Morgan, A. B. Lambe and Fetterley, R. A. Smith and J. A. Chisholm, Cornwall; I. Hilliar, K.C., and B. B. Tucker, C. E., Morrisburg; W. McL. Gardner and Ernest J. Smith, Brockville; H. F. Shearer, Smith's Falls; C. E. Williams, Ogdensburg; Hon. G. P. Graham and Mayor W. A. Lewis, Brockville; M. Connolly, Hamilton; C. Sine, J. H. Simpson, B. O. Britton and Mayor W. J. Wilson, Gananoque, and A. S. Macswiney Thrives On Grape Juice

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer, Canadian Press, Limited.

NEW YORK, Oct. 13.—That the hunger-striking Mayor of Cork, who today begins the sixty-second day of his hunger-strike, is being fed in Brixton Prison is the view of a large number of representative New York medical men, according to The Herald today. The unanimous opinion of these men of science was that MacSwiney must have been taking nourishment of some kind in addition to water. The statement in yesterday's news cables that the prisoner had been given grape juice explained many things to the New York doctors, who say that the prohibition cocktail has considerable food value.

No Fear Now Of Indigestion

A Host of People Seem to Thrive on What Used to Provoke Indigestion Before They Learned of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets

When the stomach becomes sour with gassiness and heartburn due to indigestion or dyspepsia relief may be had by one or two Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets. Simply chew them, no hot water nor any other fillers for a stomach perhaps already too much overcrowded.

These tablets supply to the stomach the alkaline effect which is what relieves the sour acid condition. They also contain pancreatin to help digest the starchy foods such as potatoes, rice, oatmeal, white flour, etc.

Get a 60 cent box of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets, have them on hand at all times and thus have no fear of indigestion or dyspepsia.

The fact that these tablets are on sale everywhere in the U. S. and Canada shows how generally recognized they are as an efficient aid when the dyspeptic stomach needs a little help.

Largest Political Group In Dominion

Hon. Mr. Ballantyne Speaks at a Banquet in Montreal.

MONTREAL, Oct. 14.—Speaking at the banquet tendered him at the Windsor Hotel by the Progressive Club, Hon. C. C. Ballantyne said that he was now a member of the National Liberal-Conservative Government and that the people of Canada were no longer interested in the old party divisions. This party, he said, would, even though the present Government were defeated at the polls in the next general election, still form the largest group in the Dominion. While the Farmers' party was showing strength both in the East and the West, it should be borne in mind that many farmers were in sympathy with the Government.

The Liberal charge that the Government had no mandate from the people was specially referred to by Mr. Ballantyne. The Minister of Marine and Fisheries pointed out that this charge had been contradicted by the results of the recent bye-elections in St. John and Colchester County, where Messrs. Wigmore and McCurdy had been returned with large majorities.

Mr. Ballantyne after pointing out that last year's revenue toalled $388,000,000 and that the current year's estimates were over half a billion dollars, asked why Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King, the Liberal leader, did not express his views on the big problems of public ownership of railways and ships, our Imperial relations and if he reduced the tariff he was asked to state by what ways and means he proposes to make up the consequent deficit.

Anglo-French Loan Will Be Paid

NEW YORK, Oct. 14.—It is understood the plans for payment of the Anglo-French $500,000,000 five per cent., five-year external loan, due next Friday, have been completed. J. P. Morgan and Company announced the bonds will be accepted prior to maturity and holders were asked to present them promptly to facilitate payment.

Britain's half of the loan is already in hand, and it is believed that France will pay a goodly part of her share out of the large gold imports which have recently come to this market from Paris.

Court Dismissed Election Appeals

Protest Against Return of Hon. Mr. Ferguson in Grenville Fails.

TORONTO, Oct. 14.—Judgments were handed down at Osgoode Hall in appeals in connection with the Provincial elections in Dufferin and Grenville Counties and in both cases the appeals were dismissed.

Chief Justice Mulock and Justice Rose who heard the petition of Mr. Johnston, the defeated candidate against Mr. Slack, the successful U. F. O., candidate in Dufferin, stated that there was no evidence of any corrupt practice. The petition was based on the suggestion that Mr. Slack's supporters should assist in the expenses of the election and his reply that he would pay all expenses himself if he was elected. The election was asked to be declared void also because of the payment referred to the long-standing custom of paying scrutineers and the fact that no one knew it was against the law. The petition was dismissed with costs.

Justices Sutherland and Magee dismissed both the petition and cross petition in connection with the election of Hon. Howard Ferguson over G. A. Payne. The judgment suggested that Hon. Dr. Reid would have been wiser to have shown his appreciation of the band at a later date when no misconstruction could have been placed upon the act.

Fought Negro On Roof Of Building

NEW YORK, Oct. 14.—Patrolman Martin Gill yesterday struggled for 20 minutes on the roof of a five storey building with a San Domingo negro he was trying to arrest and then shot his antagonist to save himself from being hurled into the street.

The negro, with a bullet in his stomach, slid off the roof falling into a basket of wash which a woman had left on the sidewalk. Then he died a few minutes later.

Scores of pedestrians stood on Sixth Avenue, transfixed watching the struggle, while guests in several hotels nearby pressed their faces to window panes. Finally a former sailor dashed upstairs to the roof and caught Gill by one leg just as the negro was about to roll him into the street.

The negro, identified as Rafael Cotin had by this time obtained Gill's pistol. He fired at the patrolman, wounding him in the shoulder. The sailor cracked Cotin on the head with a piece of wood and Gill regaining his weapon, fired twice as the negro made his last furious rush. Medical Examiner Norris later expressed the opinion Cotin was insane, which he said would account for his almost superhuman strength.

Gill—a veteran of the war, who recently rescued two women from drowning in Central Park lake—said he had attempted to arrest Cotin on complaint of a woman, who later disappeared, that he had insulted her.

Empire Is One Must Remain So

LONDON, Oct. 14.—Col. Amery, Under-Secretary of State for the Colonies, speaking at a meeting of emigration agents, said he doubted if any responsible dominion man would endorse what had been said in the Irish controversy that the essence of the dominion status consisted in the moral right of peaceful secession.

If the people of the dominions were willing to sacrifice their privileges and abuse the duties and responsibilities of world-wide British citizenship there was no power here to prevent them, and, in the same way the Home Country might secede from the Empire, but this power did not constitute a right to do so, however bloodlessly it might be accomplished.

The secession of anyone of us, he said, would still be a revolution, an unconstitutional act, and a profound moral wrong to the rest of the commonwealth and to all humanity.

Col. Amery concluded: "Let no more be heard of a moral right to destroy the unity of the British Empire and impair the heritage of our own citizenship. The Empire is one and will and must remain so.

Rev. Dr. M'Tavish New Moderator

Elected at Session of Presbyterian Synod of Toronto and Kingston.

TORONTO, Oct. 14—Rev. W. S. McTavish, D.D., of Madoc, was unanimously elected moderator of the Presbyterian Synod of Toronto and Kingston at last night's session in St. James' Square Presbyterian Church. Two other names were put forward, Rev. A. K. McCleod of Brighton by the Kingston Presbytery and Rev. J. D. Byrnes, superintendent of missions. When Dr. McTavish who was nominated by the Barrie Presbytery, secured a majority of the votes, the motion to make his election unanimous was passed without a dissenting vote.

The retiring moderator, Rev. William Cooper, of Mount Forest, took as the text of his address, the psalmist's admonition, "Be still and know that I am God." He instanced the famous Old Testament characters who knew of the value of solitude and emphasized the need for quiet communion with God in these times of unrest and dissatisfaction.

"There is nothing that the church needs more today than to be still in God's presence," he stated. "This is a time of great unrest in all classes of society and even in the ministry."

He thought that this dissatisfaction was a healthy sign, and urged his audience to apply themselves to the task of solving the problems with which society is confronted.

In dwelling on the work of the past year Mr. Cooper referred to the success of the Forward Movement as having exceeded the most sanguine expectations.

Tribute was paid to the memory of the members in the Synod who have died during the year. Their names are: Rev. Dr. James Murray, Rev. R. R. McKay, Rev. J. M. Scott, D.D., Rev. Sydney Whaley and Rev. Robert Knowles.

Culture Has Saved Scores Of Lives

Was Used During The War With Marvelous Results.

PARIS, Oct. 14.—The appendicitis operation, hitherto often fatal, is now among the most simple of all surgical operations as the result of the employment of a serum discovered by Dr. Weinberg, of the Pasteur Institute, which, by nullifying the danger of infection, insures the recovery of the patient.

Acting on the principle that a successful operation depends as much on the destruction of bacteria as on clever surgery. I began using the serum some months ago, said Prof. Pierre Delbet today. Since then I have been amazed at the successful results. In fact, I have no hesitation in saying that many cases which otherwise would have proved fatal resulted in a quick, easy recovery, due to the use of the serum.

Dr. Weinberg discovered the serum which is a culture from the blood of the horse, during the war. It was used with marvelous success in the treatment of gangrenous wounds. It saved thousands of lives. I use the serum, not only for appendicitis, but for all intestinal operations. From 50 to 100 cubic centimetres is injected immediately following the surgery. The improvement in the patient's condition is manifest almost immediately, and the period of convalescence is invariably greatly shortened.

While it is too early to assert that Doctor Weinberg's serum is a possible cure for appendicitis without an operation, I can forsee the time when its use as a preventative will make appendicitis surgery unnecessary.

Fatally Injured At G. T. R. Crossing

Hamilton Man Struck by Yard Engine Dies in Hospital.

HAMILTON, Oct. 14.—Struck by a Grand Trunk yard engine at the Earl street crossing, William Rowe, 166 Wood street east, 66 years of age was so badly injured that he died shortly after being admitted to the General Hospital. The unfortunate man was returning from his work and stepping behind a freight car did not notice the approaching engine. His left arm was severed from the body, and the left side of his head terribly crushed. Dr. Connell rendered first aid, but Rowe did not regain consciousness. The deceased is survived by a grown-up family.

Toronto Strong For Deep Waterway

TORONTO, Oct. 14.—Further arguments for deepening the St. Lawrence River to provide a waterway from the Great Lakes to the Ocean were presented by a strong delegation before the International Joint Waterways Commission at th City Hall yesterday.

Mayor Church after reviewing arguments for and against the scheme declared that it was an International duty to develop the water power where ever possible and to complete the natural highway to the sea. Speaking of the proposed St. Lawrence route in comparison with other schemes advanced, he said, "It is the shortest by some hundreds of miles from any of the lake ports to Liverpool or Northern Europe." The Mayor said that the port of Toronto had been rebuilt at a cost of twenty-six million and a lot of it would be wasted without deepening the Welland and St. Lawrence Canals. "We had a vision of both of these or we would never have started our great harbor developments," he said.

Engineer To Probe Trent Power

PETERBORO, Oct. 13—The Department of Railways and Canals is quite satisfied that its engineering staff, Chief Engineer W. A. Bowden and L. Killaly, Superintendent of the Trent waterways, have used their best endeavors to look after the interests of power users in this district, that everything possible has been done, and it has implicit confidence in them For the moment the department is not concerned with navigation, but with seeing to it that the utmost use is made of the available water for generating power.

Such were the assurances of Major Graham A. Bell, Deputy Minister of Railways and Canals to a gathering in the Board of Trade chambers today of local and district industrial magnates.

The meeting was called hurriedly and any district interests not represented there have been invited to meet Henry Holgate of Montreal here Thursday morning to talk over the water and power situation. Girl Murdered Two Men Suspeoted

Was Attacked on Her Way Home After Walk With Friend.

EDMUNSTON, N.B., Oct. 13.—The first session of Coroner Cyr's court, investigating the death of Miss Minnie Stevens, the young telegraph operator, who came here some weeks ago from Middleton, N.S., to act as assistant operator at the W. U. Telegraph Company's office, and whose body was found in the Madawaska River by Chief of Police Savage, who followed a trail of blood to the river bank from where a set of false teeth and some bits of hair had been found, has revealed that after she left her office soon after eight o'clock on Monday evening, she went for a walk for a short time with Miss Johnston, an employee at the Fraser Pulp Mill, and left her about nine o'clock to go to her lodging place.

It is now believed she was attacked while en route home, and that she was brutally murdered by some man who made criminal assault upon her.

Two rough-looking strangers, who registered at a local hotel and left blood stains on the towels, and who disappeared when the body was found, are sought.

Tillsonburg Cereal Mills Were Destroyed By Fire

HALF A MILLION DOLLARS LOSS IN FIRE WHICH DESTROYED PLANT OF CANADIAN CEREAL COMPANY—ORIGIN UNKNOWN.

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer, Canadian Press, Limited.

TILLSONBURG, Oct. 14.—Fire or unknown origin which was discovered at 1.30 this morning sweeping through the big dry kilns of the Canadian Cereal Company's mills, spread through the fire wall to the main mill and from there to the big elevator, 175 feet high, destroying all and causing a loss of half a million dollars. When the fire was discovered by the night watchman it was already licking up the five-storey drying kiln and nothing could be done to save it. The head office of the company is located at Stratford.

Threat Of Death Against Informer

"Whiskey Ring" in Chicago Endeavors to Halt Further Exposure.

CHICAGO, Oct. 13.—The "whiskey ring" concentrated its efforts today to halt further exposure of its criminal secrets, in order that the "higher ups" who are responsible for the lawless liquor traffic may be saved. Death threats to two of the Government's principal witnesses and disappearance of two other important witnesses marked the activities of the band.

H. A. Sadler, former New York broker, whose confession is the basis of the Government's case, was spirited to a North Side sanitarium, where an armed guard will watch over him night and day. Sadler received his death threat a few hours after his confession was published. Detectives who visited him today found him in a pitiful plight. He was trembling with terror and obviously was on the verge of a complete nervous and mental breakdown.

"They'll get me," he shrieked at the detectives. "You don't know those guys. They'd as soon shoot you as look at you. It doesn't make any difference what you do. I'm as good as dead."

The other death threat was sent to a man who has been connected with the investigation since its inception.

Serious Charge In Timber Probe

FORT FRANCES, Oct. 13.—Charging prejudgment and prejudice on the part of Justices Riddell and Latchford, commissioners on the Ontario timber investigation, Glyn Osler, K.C., counsel for the Shevlin-Clarke Lumber Company, declined today to put witnesses into the box on behalf of his clients, and the Fort Frances sitting of the probe was brought to an abrupt close.

Although Mr. Osler's comments at today's hearing comprised allegations against the commission of a very serious nature, the result was to leave the Shevlin-Clarke Company in the position of not having disclosed to Crown counsel the strength or weakness of their position.

Hints were given also of criminal action to follow regarding alleged forgery in a diary.

Thousand Miles By Boat And Sled

TIMMINS, Oct. 14.—Ex-Constable Carl Eyre, formerly of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, who acted as marine engineer of the forty-foot gasoline boat "Lady Borden," and who has spent the past sixteen months in the Arctic, has arrived here. He travelled over one thousand miles from Cape Fullerton on the west shore of Hudson Bay and the journey occupied three and one half months.

The party of which Ex-Constable Eyre was a member, left Cape Fullerton on June 11, travelling in a whale boat on a sled and drawn by dogs. Fort Churchill was not reached until August 12. At the latter place they were joined by Sergeant and Mrs. E. H. L. Thompson, who had been wrecked 94 miles south of that point, and who had been compelled to walk over 100 miles, living on berries and a meagre ration. The trip then continued to the Pas by boat and gasoline speeder. Much loose ice in Hudson Bay delayed the party on the trip, which is usually made in a little over one month.

British Miners May Go On Strike

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer, Canadian Press, Limited.

LONDON, Oct. 14.—The United Kingdom today was faced with perhaps the most ominous industrial crisis in its history due to the decision of the coal miners to allow strike notices to become effective Saturday night, following their rejection of the compromise offered to their demand for a two shillings per shift increase in wages. It seems certain that unless the Government or mine owners concede the demands of the men or make fresh and attractive offers, more than eight hundred thousand miners will not return to the pit Monday, thereby throwing hundreds of thousands of workers in other industries out of work and paralyzing the industrial life of the country.

Gov't May Revoke Sugar Order

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer, Canadian Press, Limited.

OTTAWA, Oct. 14.—There is a belief in well informed circles that the Government is likely to exercise its authority under the Board of Commerce Act and intervene to vary the sugar order issued by the Board last night. "There is no doubt," remarked one member of the Cabinet today, "that the order is unpopular."

YOUTHS' NARROW ESCAPE

On Monday night four young Napanee boys narrowly escaped death in an automobile accident on the Deseronto road, about a mile out of Napanee. Harold Miller was driving at a fast rate along the road toward Deseronto and another car passed him going to Napanee. He was crowded to the road and could not right himself before he came to a turn in the road. The car swerved and crashed into a telephone pole, upsetting the car and badly demolishing it. Fortunately the occupants escaped injury.

COTTAGE BURNED

About ten o'clock last evening a fire occurred on the Cannifton Road, just beyond the city limits. A frame cottage, owned by Miss Thompson and occupied by a family named Morris, was completely destroyed and the fire threatened to destroy two or three of the neighboring houses, which are closely built together. Part of the fire brigade was soon upon the scene and united with the efforts of those already there were successful in saving the other houses, although the house occupied by Mr. Griffith and also Miss Thompson's residence were damaged to some extent by smoke and water.

DOUGLAS FAIRBANKS SAYS

"It is the boy graduate that is being sought after now," said Douglas Fairbanks, speaking about night schools. "Big business is bidding for the annual graduating classes long in advance. It wants "trained minds" to fill "brain positions"—and that's why the college man and the graduates of technical schools forge ahead so quickly. They literally run over the half-educated, untrained workers who sit and wonder at their own lack of advancement. It's not a matter to pout about. There's only one thing to do—work out of it. A special course in the thing the mind and talent is best fitted for is the way out. Why wait for "lightning" to strike us? Night schools abound in all branches of learning. Many a man has turned himself into a brilliant lawyer, expert accountant, or famous editor through night school work. Diligence and perseverence is the price of success, and only through success do we find life entirely worth while.

PLOWITES WIN ONTARIO TITLE

Guelph, Oct. 13.—By beating the Peterboro' team, Eastern Ontario champions, 9 to 4 in the third game of the O. B. A. A. finals here, the Hamilton Plowites captured the Ontario championship baseball honors for 1920. The Hamiltonians had the best of the argument throughout the contest, and there was no doubt that the better team won.

The Petes were away off color. L. Rose, their star hurler, opposed Ivan Miller, the Plowites' pitching ace, but Rose weakened in the seventh and was derricked in favor of Kirn, who was also pounded hard, and Manager Solomon brought Harrison off first base to the box in a final effort to stop the Plowites' bombardment. This is the first time Rose has been taken out this year. Harrison showed up best of the three hurlers, and held the Plowman scoreless in the 8th and 9th.

Miller pitched a good, steady game for Hamilton, but had one bad inning, the seventh, when he was touched up for four hits and three runs. Miller's hitting also featured, he having three clean hits and a walk out of four trips to the plate.

Cherrett, the Peterboro' shortstop, played a brilliant game, both at bat and in the field. His home run in the seventh landed in the midst of a crowd in the right garden. The match was witnessed by about 2,500 fans, many of whom followed the teams from Hamilton and Peterboro'.

Hydro To Check Use Of Heaters

Shortage of Power Compels a Seven-Fold Increase in Rates for Heating.

TORONTO, Oct. 14.—Strong measures are being contemplated by the Provincial Hydro Commission with a view to providing sufficient power for lighting and for industrial purposes during the winter months. In Toronto and in all the municipalities served by the Hydro's Niagara system a surcharge will be made on all power used in residences in excess of the maximum consumed in the warmer months, by which it is understood the period from June to September is meant. On the excess of consumption the rate will be virtually prohibitive, namely, fifteen cents per kilowatt or about seven times the charge for lighting.

There has been a great rush to get heaters during the last twelve months, some time ago Toronto Hydro stores were asked to discontinue selling heaters. As many as 100,000 electric heaters are being used by the power consumers taking power from Niagara Falls. That means the use of from fifty to one hundred thousand horse power.

Private Company Acts.

"We do not want to take drastic steps. The Dominion Power and Transmission Company has notified its customers in Hamilton and elsewhere that it will cut them off instantly if they use heaters. We don't go that far. But we will have to impose a heavy penalty on those who use power for that purpose during the period of shortage."

The legal right of the Commission to enforce the surcharge seems to be clear.

From the standpoint of electrical engineers the use of Hydro for heating purposes is the most uneconomical that could be made. Even the smallest heater takes as much energy as sixteen ordinary lamps and almost as much as a one-horse power motor. Owing to the scarcity and high price of coal and the scarcity of natural gas, an unprecedented demand for electric heaters is being recorded, thereby complicating an already serious situation.

Widows And Orphans Will Be Cared For

Navy League Purposes To Pay Sailors' Widows One Hundred Dollars Per Month.

One hundred dollars per month for a widow with four children or $20 per month for each member of the family, is the aim of the Navy League of Canada in pensioning the widows and orphans of Canadian mercantile sailors who lost their lives on active service during the war. The League during "Trafalgar" Sailors' Week, October 18 to 23, propose to raise $760,000 for the work in general of which $144,000 will be used as an endowment for pensions. The income from this endowment along with funds already in hand will be sufficient to meet the national situation.

The Navy League of Canada in appealing to the public for funds feels that no widow should go hungry or any child go through life without a proper education because the father paid the supreme sacrifice on active service. Many of the men on the merchant ships carried food, munitions, troops, and general supplies were torpedoed at sea and went down as British seamen always have done standing aside, "Women and Children First."

The plan as decided upon by the executive is to grant a pension to each widow and family according to requirements and carry on the relief work already commenced upon a larger and permament scale. Each child who lost his or her daddy during the war will be granted a pension adequate to cover necessary expenses for a good education and therefore the country at large, through the medium of the Navy League of Canada will be fathering all these children, giving them home, education, until they are able to support themselves and a proper start in life.

Through his endowment the mother will be able to remain at home, take care of her children, and make a home what it ought to be. The League considers that every woman with children should be in the home, sufficiently supported with finances, so that she can bring her children up properly, and not be forced to leave them alone all day to play on the streets while she works taking the place of both father and mother.

Homemade Wine Makers Aroused

Legal or Illegal is the Question Agitating Householders.

Take a little wine for the stomach's sake, but be careful lest it worketh itself aright in the glass to a strength of over two and a half per cent. and thereby conflict with the O. T. A. Home-made wine makers are much disturbed over a statement in the press that it is unlawful to make home made wine without a permit, infractions carrying a penalty of $200 fine.

Inquiry at the Inland Revenue offices at Belleville elicited the information that the officials there have no authority to issue permits for the making of home-made wine and are not concerned in the wine industry, either kitchen or otherwise. A press despatch from Peterboro, however, states that the Inland Revenue preventative officer at that place is issuing permits, to householders to manufacture home-made wine.

Inspector Arnott, interviewed by The Intelligencer stated that he has no specific instructions in regard to home-made wine and is not concerned in any beverage containing less than a two-and-a-half per cent. content Mr. Arnott states his duties are mainly concerned with the illegal sale of beverages containing over two and a half per cent. and the home-made wine question has never come up in his experience.

Many householders are indignant at the supposition that they may be prohibited from putting up their home-made wine as usual, one lady emphatically voicing her opinion to The Intelligencer that "it is a queer law which reaches into the kitchen and interferes with a time-honored and harmless custom."

While it is altogether unlikely that the authorities would seek to interfere with the making of home-made wine for use in the home still a ruling on the question by the Ontario License Board would be appreciated by many.

MR. SOSKIN,
Enlightenment Photoplay Co.

I have seen the picture, "ENLIGHTEN THY DAUGHTER," twice ,and just wish to express by letter what I have said in private—that it is one of the best educational pictures of it's kind I have seen, and should help largely in helping the youth of this country along right paths. They will not suffer from knowledge of the pitfalls ahead, but there is serious danger from ignorance, which is the bane of human society. I sincerely hope you will have great success in your missionary propaganda for spreading knowledge modestly and decently. There may be some who will be critical, but go ahead.

To those who are pure, life's problems are the greatest and most beautiful when understood.

So again wishing you success, I remain,

Temperance Act is Un-British.

Toronto, Oct. 14.—That the Ontario Temperance Act is a most un-British piece of legislation was the comment of Mr. Justice Masten in Chambers at Osgoode Hall, as he listened to the motion to quash the conviction of John Newton, of Cobourg, who was fined $500 by Magistrate W. H. Floyd for having liquor in a place other than his private dwelling. His Lordship's decision was reserved.

Try To Fight Way To Liberty

Two Prisoners in Elgin County Jail Are Overpowered.

St. Thomas, Oct. 11.—One of the most daring attempts at escape ever made by prisoners in the Elgin County Jail was frustrated Sunday evening by Governor William, Luton and Turnkey Grant.

Stanley Chapelle and Roy Roberts, two Aylmer youths awaiting trial at the Assizes this month on charges of stealing an auto from a local man and breaking jail at Aylmer about three weeks ago, were the prisoners who endeavored to escape. They armed themselves with a heavy iron bar torn from one of the jail windows and a large earthen pie plate. As Governor Luton and Turnkey Grant entered the corridor on the second floor of the jail Sunday evening to lock the prisoners in their cells the two men attacked them, Chapelle striking Governor Luton on the face with the plate and kicking him in the stomach, while Roberts dealt the turnkey a heavy blow in the head with the bar, laying open the scalp for several inches. Turnkey Grant, fortunately, was carrying the heavy prison key and although stunned by the blow, struck Roberts sharply on the wrist, causing him to drop the bar. The four men grappled, and after a fierce fifteen-minute battle the prisoners surrendered and were locked up. Turnkey Grant lost three teeth in the fight and several stitches were required to close the wound in his head. The prisoners were also badly pummelled. Governor Luton escaped with minor injuries

The prisoners will come up for a hearing in connection with the assault Saturday. They made their escape from Aylmer Jail during the night and were captured a few days later after a race and a fight on one of the main streets in Woodstock. Chapelle escaped from the Aylmer Jail last winter and was let off with a light fine by a jury last spring. The pie plate that figured in the mix-up Sunday night was brought to Chapelle by his foster-parent, J. Relson, proprietor of the Brown House in Aylmer, Governor Luton states, along with a quantity of

SPIRITS AND SPEAK EASIES—A BONE-DRY DISSERTATION.

Wasn't it a rich man who died and landed in a bone-dry plane, where even a drink of cold water was denied him?

Some plane, that!

Rich men on this plane have vaults where thieves can not break through and steal and where moth and rust cut no figure whatever.

The combination on the vault might be J-O-H-N-C-O-L-L-I-N-S or something "just as good," and the spirits of just men are made perfect in spirituous perfection tempered with ice in cut glass receptacles.

Some plane this, BUT—

Oh, Boy! Oh, Joy! Where do we go from here?

INFORMATION WANTED
AS TO HOME-MADE WINE

How closely The Intelligencer is read is evidenced in many ways. The latest demonstration as to the multiplicity of readers of this great family journal occurred as the result of the publication of a paragraph on home-made wine which stated that it was necessary to get permission from the Internal Revenue Department to make wine, whether grape, dandelion or other vintage, and that the absence of such permission laid the householder making wine open to a fine of two hundred dollars.

A Kingston paper first gave publication to the home-made wine statement in question, and considering that the facts were on straight, The Intelligencer thought it wise to pass the information along to our readers.

It appears, however, that the information is more mis-informing than informing, for the Internal Revenue officials at Belleville declare that department has nothing whatever to do with home-made wine.

Since the publication of the article in question there have been many enqquiries at the offices of the Internal Revenue officials and at The Intelligencer office, showing that the home-made wine question is one of considerable importance to many.

According to the Ontario Temperance Act, the making of beverages containing more than two and one-half per cent. is illegal. Now, home-made wine in its initial stages does not develop more than a two and a half per cent. kick, but it has possibilities of lusty development under favorable conditions.

Inasmuch as a great many people purpose putting up a little home-made wine this season an official ruling from the Ontario License Department would be in order.

WOMEN FROM BRITAIN
FIND REAL WELCOME

The London, Eng., Daily News has a letter from Ethel M. Richardson Rice, who is travelling in Canada and writes from Medicine Hat, Al.a., of the work of the Soldier Settlement Board.

She has come in contact with many of the wives of soldier settlers in the prairie provinces, and comments on the efforts of the Board to comfort and assist the wives who have come overseas to make their homes on the western farms. Miss Rice says in part:

"Canadian women are wide-awake to the fact that this is a woman's century, and they have formed local councils, which represent all the different women's organizations of the district. The importance of home-making was impressed upon the Soldier Settlement Board, a Home Department was formed, under the presidency of Mrs. Muldrew, of [illegible]awa, and Saskatchewan led the way by instituting a series of short courses in domestic science and home nursing. These have been a great success. The local council of women co-operated with the home branch, the University and the Red Cross, and arrangements were made for conferences to be held at convenient centres. Seventy-five per cent. of the soldiers' wives who attended were British born, and of an excellent type, and these girls especially appreciated the lessons on bread and "pie" making (a Canadian pie is a national dish, and differs from the English variety; men have told me that they were reared on "pie" three times a day in lieu of bread). The University of Saskatoon provided the course of instruction, free of charge, and supplied the very best lecturers; the Red Cross paid for transportation, including taxis; dinners and suppers were provided free by various organizations; free billets with bed and breakfast were arranged, with free car rides and theatre passes, and even free perambulators for the babies who could not be left at home.

"British women are pouring into Canada today. They will find every encouragement and a real welcome, for a great wave of sympathy is passing through the land. Canada's great need is a healthy and industrious population. She has room for many whose lives were blighted by the war."

Canadian Women's Press Club presented Colonel George Ham of the C. P. R. with t travelling bag. This popular official should now have enough leather bags to start a trunk and valise store. One can imagine one of the bright young press women asking: "What shall we give Colonel Ham?" And we can almost at this distance hear the appropriate reply: "Why, the Colonel travels a lot; we'll give him a bag." So the Colonel's life goes serenely on, made up in part of one darn bag after another.—Ottawa Journal.

Alderman Ostrom detects a note of pessimism disturbing the glad optimism which has warmed the atmosphere of the Council Chamber this year and thinks the discord should be eliminated. He is absolutely right—the Council must hang together or hang separately, and whether entitled to praise or blame or mixed pickles, all are equally responsible and each one is entitled to a full measure of praise or blame when the returns are all in and the prizes for meritorious conduct awarded—or otherwise.

Hey, Walter!

The Detroit News

In demanding all-American language on the menu, the hotel stewards at the International Association convention in Philadelphia are voicing the silent hope of a too long servile public. In some hotels and fashionable dining rooms it had got to the point where you could only tell what was on the bill of fare by sniffing at the waiter's thumb-print. Who has not seen the baffled patron scan his menu with an air of discouragement and then casting an eye around until he lights on someone already served, exclaim: "Bring me some of that"—knowing only that it is something edible.

Women and the Ballot.

The London Times.

The women of many modern States are enfranchised, but we are not aware that this has anywhere given politics a new orientation. In this country they first voted in the last election, and there are obvious reasons why the result of that appeal to the country has no abiding significance when studied in relation to their participation—or, indeed, from any other angle. In the Dominions, where woman suffrage is of older rate, we know of nothing to show that it has developed a new tendency. Woman has not yet gone to the polling booths as the prophet of a new policy, whtever the future may have in store. Her entrance into politics has increased the electorate, but has not changed the direction of its movements.

EPIDEMIC PLAGUES.

Imported Diseases Against Which Canada Fights.

Before the armistice was signed the various departments of public health were making preliminary plans for an after-the-war campaign against epidemic diseases which were only too certain to threaten an invasion of this country from abroad.

War spreads these diseases in a frightful way. Cholera, bubonic plague, typhus and smallpox are at the present time making havoc in the Old World, and they can be kept out of Canada only by the exercise of utmost precautions. Plague, the "black death" of the middle ages, threatens every Canadian seaport.

All of the great epidemic diseases seem to have originated in the Orient, where populations are thickest, most ancient and dirtiest. Thus bubonic plague has apparently its proper breeding place in the Yunnan province of China, which is a permanent storehouse of the infection; and from that source have come all the waves of that dreaded malady that have swept the world since the beginning of historic time. One of these epidemics, starting in 1894, took 180,000 lives in Canton, and for many years thereafter killed half a million people annually in India. The worst on record struck Europe in 1334, and wiped out 25,000,000—one-fourth of the total population of that continent.

The bacillus pestis, which is the cause of plague, owes its distribution to the rat flea. A plague-stricken rat when it dies is deserted by the fleas, where thereupon are likely to seek human beings and bite them. The plague germ thus communicated enters the glands, and sets up a rapid and destructive inflammation, which is usually fatal.

Acquaintance with the germs that cause these deadly disease is a great help in dealing with them. The bacillus of cholera is familiarly known. Its infection is spread most commonly by drinking water, but sometimes by flies and in other ways. In former days we had dreadful epidemics of cholera in this country—for instance, in 1848, in 1866 and in 1872—but now our health authorities know how to deal with it.

Cholera seems to have its original home in the delta of the Ganges. Conditions favor its spread in India, where the dirtiest ponds are the holiest, and therefore frequented by crowds of true believers, who come to bathe and wash away their sins. The disease owes its distribution, however, mainly to pilgrims who journey from southern Asia to Mecca. Those who die en route—as they do, by thousands—are assured of eternal salvation. Which is perfectly all right so far as they are concerned; but unfortunately, scattering on their return from the holy city, they spread cholera far and wide.

Smallpox is undoubtedly of Asiatic origin, having been known in China and India since remotest antiquity. The only thing of real importance that the crusaders in the middle ages brought back with them from the Near East was this horrible disease, which killed 500,000 people annually in Europe. A century ago it was reckoned that one-fourth of the human race bore in blindness or disfigurement traces of smallpox. The germ is doubtless a bacterium, but is too small to be seen even with a high-power microscope, and so has never been discovered.

Typhus is a disease of uncleanness, and raged everywhere during the age of the louse—the period when knighthood was in flower and there were no bathtubs. The late war has made us familiar with the insect that carries the germ. The bug has probably killed more men than ever fell in battle. But where the malady had its origin, nobody knows.

Slew Sixteen Huns.

Corpl. Philip Konowal, of the 47th Battalion, Ottawa, is a Canadian of Russian birth, and he proved himself a bonnie fighter when he won the V. C.

His section had the difficult task of mopping up cellars, craters, and machine gun emplacements. In one cellar he himself bayonetted three of the enemy and attacked single-handed seven others, in a crater, killing them all. On reaching the objective, a machine gun was holding up the right flank, causing many casualties. Corpl. Konowal rushed forward and entered the emplacement, killed the crew, and brought the gun back to our lines. The next day he again attacked single-handed another machine gun emplacement, killed three of the crew and destroyed the gun and emplacement with explosives. This non-commissioned officer alone killed at least sixteen of the enemy, and during the two days' actual fighting carried on continuously his good work until severely wounded.

Icy Blankets.

To conserve the ice supply in the domestic refrigerator, many people resort to the expedient of covering the ice with a piece of paper. Sheets of parafined paper, called "ice blankets," are sold in shops for the purpose.

The idea is all right, so far as saving the ice is concerned. When covered in this way (paper being a good nonconductor of heat), it melts much less rapidly.

But it is the melting of the ice that makes the cold. When the melting is retarded, the temperature of the refrigerator is correspondingly lower. Ice is saved, but the food in the ice-box is imperiled.

CALEB G. GARRISON.

(An Appreciation)

Caleb G. Garrison, son of Frank Garrison and his wife, whose maiden name was Sara Ketcheson, was born March the 14th, 1895 on the 4th Concession of Thurlow and departed this life from the General Hospital, Toronto, August the 30th, 1920. "Cal" as he was called by many was possessed of splendid social qualities, an attractive personality and winsomeness of character that made him a general favorite and won for him a large place in the affection and esteem of his numerous relatives and friends.

It might be said that he was a patriot by birth having loyalty and heroism poured into his veins from a long line of ancestors on both sides whose hearts thrilled with patriotism for their country and were ever ready to respond to the call of their king and to rally around the flag that braved a thousand years the battle and the breeze.

Roy, Cal and George, the three eldest Garrison boys volunteered for service at the front, not waiting for the Military Service Act. Roy, being in the West crossed over to France with one of the first regiments and fought through the whole war. Cal volunteered sometime later and being an expert rifleman was almost immediately sent to France and figured in a number of the fiercest battles of the closing days of the war, and was present at the second Battle of Mons when the Armistice was signed. George volunteered and went to Barriefield for drill but was considered too young and though much disappointed, was obliged to return home.

Cal returned from France suffering from gas poisoning and other bad effects of the war, being obliged immediately to undergo an operation for appendicitis which should have taken place much earlier thus necessitating vitality. After several weeks in the Hospitals at Belleville and Kingston he apparently recovered sufficiently to begin to work, after which he was employed at Corbyville and later by the Sparling Contractors and Massey Harris of Toronto.

All the world loves a true lover and in respect also Cal commanded our sincere regard for through all the experiences of war and attractions of other lands he remained loyal to the pure, true, winsome girl of his early association and choice, Miss Lena Sullivan of Carmel, Thurlow, with whom he united in marriage on the 31st of May, just three months before his death, when he took her to his cosy, comfortable well-furnished quarters at No. 70 McDonald Avenue, Toronto, where these dear young people so fondly united after years of separation, anxiety and conflict settled down to home making, hopeful of many happy years of wedded life.

Their fond hopes were however soon wrecked when the young husband suffered a severe physical strain while employed at the Massey Harris Works which together with the effect of gas poisoning, the hardships of war, and the critical operations afterwards combined to greatly weaken his splendid physical constitution which gave evidence of collapse by oft repeated spells of weakness until our hero of earth's battles, who so often and fondly sang "When the Roll is Called Up Yonder I'll Be There"—at last heard the roll call of God and answered to his name.

The large funeral procession proceeded from his old home to the Gilead Methodist Church where, in the presence of a large concourse of relatives and friends the Rev. J. S. McMullen, Methodist minister of Cannifton, conducted a most impressive funeral service speaking from the text Matt. 5. "Blessed are they that mourn, for they shall be comforted", and assured the dear young bride of three short months and the sorrowing relatives that Jesus cares when their hearts are sad and they would surely live in the hearts and prayers of the whole community. The remains were interred in Victoria Cemetery.—Com.

HOUSEWORK FOR MEN.

They May Now Invade the Women's Natural Sphere.

At the recent convention of the Association for the Advancement of Progressive Education, held in Washington, Angelo Patri strongly urged that boys should be taught to sew and cook.

In view of the difficulties of the servant problem and the growing inclination of women to occupy themselves with interests outside of the household, it is of obvious importance that the men-folks should be trained to proficiency in the domestic arts.

Hitherto the question, What is a woman's job? might have been answered by saying that it was anything too bothersome or too unpleasant for a man to undertake willingly. The man, being stronger and therefore able to compel obedience, has since prehistoric times required her to do all the housework and other drudgery.

But a sex revolution is in progress, and the prospect is that family arrangements will be different. The men may find themselves obliged to sew on the buttons, do the cooking and perhaps mind the children. With this likelihood in view it is of obvious importance that they should learn how to perform such tasks efficiently.

The notion that women are naturally cleverer than men where the domestic arts are concerned is without basis in fact. Men are more expert cooks. Who ever heard of a woman chef? Their needlework is better. In Oriental countries the skilled makers of embroideries and drawnwork are men. The housekeeping on board a warship far surpasses that of any woman-kept house on land.

Experience has shown that men make admirable chambermaids; and nowadays male nurses do much of the work in hospitals. To suppose that men could not be taught how to take care of their own children is absurd; and, considering the rapid and overwhelmingly successful advance of the feminist movement, it is high time they learned.

Dogs and Blind Men.

Those who remain faithful to the dog as the friend of man, may or may not agree with the following, says the London Mail:

"'A dog never becomes really attached to a blind man.'

"That was the really astounding statement a dog expert made to me the other day. We were passing a blind man, standing at his usual corner, with his dog, with his usual cup round its neck.

"'Faithful little beggar!' I said, or something of that sort, to which my friend made the above reply.

"I asked him how he could prove that to be true, and, if so, why was it true. He asserted that a dog loves and understands more than anything else the eye of his master. And he said, quite truly, that the dog, worshipping his master, always looks up into his face.

"Then I put the argument that if a dog goes blind he surely is as much attached to his master as ever; that he will still maintain the affection and respect every nice dog has for its owner. I myself can remember a blind bulldog, whose affection for his master was wonderful and touching.

"The expert agreed that it was quite possible that a dog should, when he had gone blind, still show affection, but that it was impossible for a seeing dog, who had never seen the eye of his owner to become really attached to him. He would be a faithful, willing slave, but there would not be the real deep affection.

"I searched such dog literature as it was possible to come by, and I have not seen this theory advanced anywhere.

"I thought that perhaps Shakespeare, that wonderful fount of knowledge, might have something to say on this subject, so I turned to the Concordance.

"But, alas, Shakespeare must, I fancy, not have been a great dog lover.

"It is rather surprising that the great poet should not have given us an unforgettable dog — though Launce's cur may stay in the memory, perhaps; but other English writers have helped to make up for his neglect.

"There was the noble dog of Llewellyn, Beth Gelert, though Prof. Max Muller declared that the tale was an early Sanskrit myth.

"Tennyson, Cowper, Walter Scott, Matthew Arnold and many other poets have written beautiful things about dogs, and Edwin Landseer has surely given us dogs immortal."

"Swank" Has Many Meanings.

Although "swank"—as a writer in one of our contemporaries remarks, when apologizing for the use of the word—is of German origin, it has been employed by the English-speaking folk long enough to acquire a number of widely varying meanings.

In the North of Ireland a skinny, hungry-looking person is described as a swank, whereas in Yorkshire the word is applied to a man who drinks to excess.

In Yorkshire, too, "swanker" is used in a flattering sense to describe a strapping youth, or anything large of its kind, such as a house, a tree, or an apple.

Weak, inferior beer is called swank in many parts of England, and in Sussex it is a pet name for a child—the equivalent of the cockney "nipper."

Swanking, in the sense of "putting on side," was commonly used in the west of England long before it was adopted by Londoners. — London Chronicle.

Making Up.

"About the only difference I can see between a Pullman porter and a married man," remarked Amos Knut, "is that one makes up berths and the other makes up excuses." "How about the girl who makes up her—er, appearance?" queried a by-stander.

MONTENEGRO'S PLIGHT

PEOPLE IN LITTLE COUNTRY ARE SUFFERING.

Citizens Were Systematically Plundered of Their Wealth During the Austrian Invasion and They Have Had No Assistance In the Desperate Work of Reconstruction—Many Face Starvation.

MONTENEGRO was always a poor country, but before the war it had at least enough to rear a race that for 500 years—till January, 1916—defended its liberty against all attackers. The Austrian occupation was a blow from which the country will take ages to recover; all its little wealth was systematically plundered; valuables, furniture, linen, food, live stock—everything, down to the hens on the doorsteps—was swept away, and now the land is struggling for bare existence. There are people in it to-day who for weeks have not had a grain of corn in their cottages, people who have not a stitch of clothing to bless themselves with, and who dare not, for very shame, cross their threshold in the daylight. They steal out when darkness falls, grub up the leaves of the asphodel — a plant the omnivorous goat rejects — boil the bitterness out of them, and feed on the nasty remainder. In one village, consisting perhaps of twenty houses, ten families were recently counted, who by such means kept body and soul precariously together.

But, bad as things are at present, they are bound to get worse. At one time the country could reckon on some share in what was over—after the Allies had done with them—of the military stores left by the Austrians at Cattaro and other places on the Dalmatian coast. These were long ago exhausted. Serbia does her utmost to help, but that, as you will see in a moment, is not much.

Last winter and spring conditions were greatly eased by the intervention of America, which imported and distributed large quantities of food, clothes and medicines. This help, it seems, is now to cease. America is on the point of withdrawing, and it is estimated that by November, unless the situation mends, well on to 80,000 people (the total population of Montenegro is in the region of 200,000) will be starving.

The people themselves are doing what they can to stave off the coming disaster. Every little patch that there is labor to cultivate is under crops. But the country has been drained not merely of its resources, but of its manhood. There are not men enough left to do the necessary work. "In the little town of Spuzh, for example," said Mr. Ettinger, of the New York Post, "I learned that of the 673 men who went out to fight at the beginning of the Balkan wars, only seventy-two had come back, and many of these were cripples. The population is largely made up of widows and orphans. But, indeed, thanks to the splendid work of the Americans and to the generous collaboration of the Serbian Government, it is nowadays rather an advantage in Montenegro to be an orphan. Whenever you see a chubby red-cheeked child, you may be pretty sure he is an inmate of one of the many orphanages they have set up. The little ragged, white-faced specimens are those who are so unfortunate as to have a living father."

The land is being cultivated, but this year there will be no crop in Montenegro, but the land is covered with crawling, heaving, loathsome effervescence of small black insects—the deadly "Skakalatz," or Jumper, a kind of locust, that made its appearance in Montenegro during the war, when nothing could be done to stop its ravages. All over the country were men occupied in trying to offset this plague, but the hillsides are big, the men are few, and I felt that their task was pretty hopeless.

Such is the position in Montenegro. There is no food in the country, and there is little chance of its growing any. But the worst of it is, that importation is practically at a standstill. Montenegro is to-day suffering from a combination of circumstances which may not unjustly be described as amounting to a species of blockade.

At present the little narrow gauge railway that climbs laboriously over the Bosnian mountains from Brod on the Save to Zelenika on the Bocche is the only means whereby not only Montenegro, but the whole of Dalmatia so far as it is in Jugo-Slav hands, can be fed. Along that single line have to come all the corn and sugar and clothes and coals that the district needs, plus all the people whose business leads them to these parts. And such is the congestion on the line that it takes, I am told, something like four months for a wagon of goods to pass from Brod to Zelenika—as for the other five days consumed in dragging the stuff (in Biblical bullock-carts) up among the clouds over to Cettinje, I needn't mention them. Before the war things were different. Dalmatia and Montenegro were fed for the most part by sea. The people of the coastlands possessed an efficient little mercantile marine, by the aid of which Dalmatia lived in luxury, and Montenegro had enough. But at the armistice it was all commandeered — by France and Italy, as I am informed. It does not seem too much to ask that this fleet, or at least a reasonable portion of it, should now be restored.

If Britain can persuade her allies to release these ships she will already have done much to save the situation; and will, in addition, earn the gratitude of all the peoples of Southern Slavdom, for whom their retention is a constant rankling sore.

"Everything's going to the dogs!"
We cried, provoked to spleen.
And Gump, who hates the profiteers,
Said: "To the hogs you mean."

ing her prayers at the shrine of Romilly from childhood and now had been visited by the patron saint, whom she had recognized at once, of course.

"Oh yes, of course."

Mrs. Romilly was coughing on: "I've been to several shops, and I was almost in despair until I saw your sign. If you could do a few things in rather a hurry I fancy I could give you a large-ish order. And if the things were at all successful, I could throw quite a little trade your way. You're rather new, aren't you?"

Daphne assented that the firm was quite new. She brought forward an order pad and stood at attention.

Mrs. Romilly had trousseaued a large family of children and several poor relations. She knew what she wanted and what she ought to pay for it and when it should be done. Daphne took down her orders as if the little room were the mere vestibule to an enormous sweatshop where hundreds of sempsters would seize the job and complete it in a jiffy.

Mrs. Romilly Finished Her Wholesale Order and Came Wheezing Out Like a Grand Old Automobile of an Early Model.

Mrs. Romilly finished her wholesale order and wheezed out like a grand old automobile of an early model.

When they were alone the partners gazed at Daphne's list and then at each other.

"What on earth made you take it?" Mrs. Chivvis exclaimed. "You know we can't fill it."

"We're going to fill it."

"But how?"

"Darned if I know, but— Well, we'll have to get a lot of sewing-women in and sit up nights."

"But the material. We can't buy those things on credit."

"Then I'll borrow cash and pay for it."

"Borrow where? You said you wouldn't trouble your brother."

"I'm not responsible for what I have said or may say. Besides, I don't mind going to Bayard, now that I can go with success. I'll call on him in a business way and offer him interest and all that. I guess Mrs. Romilly's name is good enough collateral."

All unconscious of Daphne's affairs, Bayard was approaching his office with the brisk manner of a triumphant capitalist. But that was bluff for outward effect. He was actually dizzy with loss of bearings and control.

Bayard had carried heavier burdens than Clay, and under the sting of Leila's whip had taken greater risks for higher prizes. The crash in the street had found him so extended that he could not recover without additional help. That very morning one of his brokers had called on him for a renewal of margins. He had to have five thousand dollars or he would lose fifty.

Rebuffed from every door, Bayard had gone to Wetherell's office—a mysterious sort of place surrounded by guards and secret service men to ward off the menace of spies, real and imaginary.

Bayard had unusual difficulty in passing the lines. The reason he soon heard. A new man was in charge in Wetherell's place, a retired British officer whose natural and affected gruffness was aggravated by the unpleasant nature of his tasks. He had only one eye.

He made Bayard describe who and what he was and what he wanted. Only Bayard's desperation gave him strength to ask this old Cyclops for an advance on new contracts.

Bayard went away in a stupor. He had intelligence enough to feel that he could less safely attack Wetherell now than before. He would seem to be implicated in the fellow's malfeasance. He would only advertise to his creditors that his vaunted contracts were worthless. Business men will endure much to escape such publication of their wrongs.

Bayard kept his head high till he reached his own office. Then he fell into his chair and propped his elbows on his desk and gripped his hot brows in his hands as if he were holding his skull together. It is the business man's attitude of prayer.

It was thus that Daphne found him when she opened the door narrowly and closed it behind her as softly as La Tosca. She was beaming with affection and importance, and when at her mischievous "Ahem!" Bayard looked up she was so pretty that he forgot himself long enough to smile and rush forward to embrace her.

No Check Yet On Importing Of U. S. Sugar

OTTAWA, Oct. 13.—The Dominion Government and the Board of Commerce are jointly endeavoring to settle the sugar problem. Representatives of the sugar refineries who have been hovering around the Capital for some days interviewing the Government, had an interview with the member of the Board of Commerce. It was subsequently intimated that the board might have something to say on the situation on Wednesday. The sugar puzzle, it is understood, was also before the Cabinet Council, but it was intimated when the Ministers adjourned that no action was likely to be taken until after the return to the Capital of the Prime Minister.

A KNOTTY PROBLEM

Presumably the Government will seek the advice of the Board of Commerce before coming to a definite decision in regard to the request of the refiners that the anti-dumping feature of the Customs Act be invoked to prevent sugar being sent into this country at a price less than the export price across the border. The board has been watching the sugar situation for months, has issued a couple of orders fixing the price of the commodity and is in possession of complete statistics as to imports and production. The Government realizes that the problem with which it is confronted is a knotty one, but a Minister in referring to the matter said the question would have to be settled on its merits.

STRONG YOUNG MEN WANTED FOR MINISTRY.

Winnipeg, Oct. 12.—In the shortage of clergymen, the scarcity of students for holy orders and the meagre remuneration which is now being paid on the Anglican fields, the Church of England faces a real danger of lapsing into inefficiency, according to the views expressed at the session of the Ecclesiastical Province of Rupert's Land here this afternoon.

The question was introduced by Canon Heeney, of St. Luke's Church, who asserted that the Church had reached the point where it could look for further successes only by filling up its college halls with strong, fresh, young men. The time had come, he declared when there should be an organized and effective effort made to put the question of the ministry in the hands of the young.

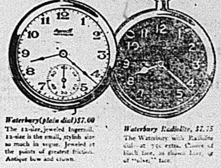
Among the controversial matters which will come up for consideration to-morrow is a notice of motion, moved by C. Carruthers, of Edmonton, and seconded by W. J. Melrose, on the industrial situation. The motion declares: "That the Synod recognize that if there is to be industrial peace, both the employers and the employees must have the outlook and motive which our Christian faith supplies, and which is summed up in Christ's statement, 'I come not to be ministered unto, but to minister.'

"That private gain must be subordinated to the public good.

"That workers must have an adequate share in the control of the conditions under which they work."

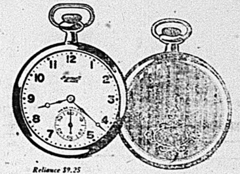
Maple Leaf (plain dial) $3.25
The lowest-priced Ingersoll. Sturdy, accurate, reliable, good-looking—the watch for men and boys who want to buy time-keeping service at lowest cost.

Maple Leaf Radiolite, $4[illegible]
The lowest-priced Radiolite. All the value of the Maple Leaf plus the ability to tell you the time in the dark—at 75 cents extra. The 24-hour-a-day watch.



Waterbury (plain dial) $7.00
The 12-size, jeweled Ingersoll. 12-size is the small, stylish size so much in vogue. Jeweled at the points of greatest friction. Antique bow and crown.

Waterbury Radiolite, $7.75
The Waterbury with Radiolite dial—at 75c extra. Choice of black face, as shown here, or of "silver" face.



Reliance $9.25 (Nickel case)
The 7-jewel Ingersoll, Bridge model. The thinnest 16-size, 7-jewel watch made in America. Factory tested in 6 positions. Solid nickel case.

Reliance $14.50 (Gold-filled case)
Back view of the Reliance in a gold-filled case. Just one of the several designs. Plain gold if desired. Front view practically same as at left.

Low-priced, yes; but of smart appearance

INGERSOLLS, famous for the low prices at which they are sold, are not only the strongest and hardiest watches made—but they're as seemly and smart in appearance as you could wish.

Why even the Maple Leaf—$3.25—the lowest-priced Ingersoll, is really handsome. No thicker than watches that cost a whole lot more, with good lines and a dial that is simple and artistic.

Then when you move up to the Waterbury at $7.00 you find a small—twelve-size—jeweled watch of distinction and charm, still thinner than the Maple Leaf and with refinement of finish and design that pleases the most critical eye.

As for Reliance—"the Ingersoll with a college education"—he's an aristocrat. Slim, seven-jeweled, with bridge movement, Reliance is the kind you pull out of your pocket not only to tell time by, but to exhibit to your friends. Yet this slender, patrician timepiece costs but $9.25 in nickel case, $14.50 in gold filled.

There are many other Ingersolls—the Eclipse, a thin watch at $4.75; and its twin, the Eclipse Radiolite that tells time in the dark, price, $5.50; the Midget Radiolite, $6.25, for women, a "cutie" watch that appeals especially to the feminine taste; the Wrist Radiolite at $6.75; and the Radiolite Two-in-One, $4.25, a Maple Leaf in a case that makes it into a desk or bureau clock which, like all Radiolites, "tells time in the dark."

All these Ingersolls possess the faithful, sturdy time-keeping qualities that have made Ingersoll a synonym for accurate performance under all sorts of conditions, and all these Ingersolls also have the good looks, the pleasing appearance and the refinement which upset the logic that "you can't have everything."

You get everything in an Ingersoll—and you get it for less than seems possible. It is possible because of the huge number of Ingersoll sales—5,000,000 watches a year. Get your Ingersoll today.

ANOTHER PEN SCANDAL

That Kingston penitentiary officials have been involved in a scheme of carrying out Government property from the "pen" and disposing of it as second-hand goods, is the story circulated at Kingston. At the penitentiary it was admitted that an investigation was being carried on but that there was no information to be given out. It is alleged that a second-hand dealer was located by detectives who divulged all the particulars but that the dealer has disappeared.

Irish Authorities in Complete Accord.

Belfast, Oct. 14.—Sir Hamer Greenwood, Chief Secretary for Ireland in a speech here today announced that he, Viscount French, Lord Lieutenant for Ireland, and Sir Frederick Neville MacCready, commander of the Military forces in Ireland, were in complete accord and did not contemplate resigning.

He declared that the Government intended to continue with the Home Rule Bill which it had prepared and would enlarge it in most generous manner, especially in the direction of finances, therby making a complete and final settlement of the Irish problem.

G. W. V. A. Notes

The regular meeting of the Belleville Branch Great War Veterans' Association was held last evening in the rooms at 224 Front street: Owing to the absence of the President, Comrade C. F. Wallbridge, he being in he U. S. A., Comrade L. Blaker, 2nd Vice-President, occupied the chair. A good number were present and spent an enjoyable evening. The sick committee reported a number of comrades ill at the present time.

The final arrangements are being completed for the boxing tournament on Friday evening in the Armouries under the auspices of the Argyle Light Infantry in aid of the G.W.V.A. Memorial Hall. Special admission tickets are available at the Secretary's office to members of the G.W.V.A. for 50c.

A discussion arose in regard to the commencement of the G.W.V.A. Memorial Hall. The plans are all completed and tenders have been received from three contractors of Belleville but as yet the contract has not been let. The members present were all in favour of the commencement of the building at once. Finally it was decided to call a special meeting of the association for Tuesday evening, October 19th at 8 p.m., all members to be notified by card or letter the object of this meeting is to decide whether or not the contract will be let immediately or laid over till spring. Members are requested to keep this date open and be present at the special meeting.

A motion was passed to have the secretary write a letter of condolence to Comrade Bert Sykes, Coleman street, expressing the deepest sympathy of the members of the G.W.V.A. in his recent sad bereavement. At the close of the meeting a number of ladies arrived and furnished the gathering with a program. Two of the comrades gave comic songs and after the entertainment closed refreshments were served, consisting of sandwiches and coffee, which were enjoyed by all present. It is the intention to have a program every meeting night.

Letters to the Editor

Belleville, October 13, 1920.
To the Editor of The Intelligencer:

Dear Sir,—Our good citizens have from time to time undertaken and accomplished the erection and maintenance of several worthy institutions.

There is one now under consideration, namely the G.W.V.A. Memorial Hall. In my opinion this one should surpass to a large degree all former undertakings. Its solid, substantial foundation: its grace and dignity of Architecture, its magnificence of adornment exteriorly and interiorly, and its limitless endowment should everlastingly express the gratitude our good citizens entertain towards the returned soldier and should be of such a character that it will command attention and make the tribute of our love and tears for our gallant son who so nobly fighting, fell in defence of the honour and freedom of our British Empire, of which we are justifiably proud.

I would suggest that our Napoleons of Finance, those fearless trusted, tried and true compatriots and so campaigners, in co-operation with the lady war-workers who so magnificently succeeded in Victory Loan work, undertake the accomplishment of this G.W.V.A. Memorial Hall.

Every good citizen will do his bit, to commemorate our patriotic and gallant sons who at the call of King and Country left all that was dear to them, endured hardships, faced danger, and finally fell by the path of duty and self sacrifice, giving up their own lives that others might live in honour and freedom.

We must see to it, that they be not forgotten.

ROBERT BOGLE.

Wedding Bells

WANNACOTT—BOWEN

On Tuesday, October 12th, at noon, a quiet wedding was solemnized at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Bowen, 26 Line street when their only daughter, Edna A. was united in marriage to George William Wannacott, son of Mrs. John Wannacott, Rev. Mr. Elliott of Tabernacle Church, officiating. Only the immediate relatives of the contracting parties being present. The bride was given away by her father, and Miss Verna Coleman friend of the bride, played the wedding march.

After a dainty buffet luncheon Mr. and Mrs. Wannacott left on the International Limited for Toronto and Bay City, Mich., amid showers of confetti and the good wishes of a host of friends.

IN MEMORIAM.

Reddick—In loving memory of our dear son, George Franklin Reddick, beloved son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Reddick, who died October 14, 1919.

Far and oft our thought do wander
To a grace not far away,
Where they laid our dear boy Frankie
Just one year ago today.

Do not ask us if we miss him
There is such a vacant place,
Can we ever forget his footsteps
Or that dear familiar face.

Not dead, to us we love him still
Not lost, but gone before,
He lives with us in memory still
And will for evermore.

A father's pride, a mother's care
Came in this world our joys to share.
He was not long here to remain
Till God called him home again.

—Sadly missed by Father, Mother, Sisters and Brother.

FARMER AND MARE KILLED BY LIGHTNING

Kitchener, Oct. 13.—Valentine Foerster, farmer, living near Linwood, was instantly killed by lightning during a thunderstorm. He had gone to the barn to feed the cattle while the storm was at its height, and had entered the first stall when a terrific bolt came through an open window, killing Foerster and a brood mare instantly. The bolt jumped the next two stalls and killed a colt in the fourth stall. The barn was not damaged beyond the breaking of a few panes of glass. Mr. Foerster was a native of St. Clemens, and was 45 years of age. He is survived by his wife, a brother and a sister.

CANADIAN FILES SUIT AGAINST KANSAS TOWN.

Topeka, Kansas, Oct. 14.—H. A. Dykstra, of Topeka, a Canadian citizen, today filed suit in Federal court to collect $15,000 damages from Hudson, Stafford County, alleging he was seized by a mob, beaten, and ushered out of town. Similar suits are to be filed against other Kansas towns, his attorney said. He said he told a crowd at Hudson, that he was for "the right of assembly, free speech and a free press" whereupon the mob beat, bruised and kicked him and sent him out of town.

OXO GENERATES HEAT

Concentrated Beef Cubes Fortify Body Against Chills.

An Oxo cube dissolved in a cup of hot water is a splendid thing to take before going out in the cold or damp, or on coming in, if one feels the slightest ill effects. Besides its nourishing and invigorating properties, Oxo acts as a fuel in the body, generating heat that the system requires.

Oxo cubes—in tins of four and ten cubes—have endless possibilities. For soups, sauces, gravies, savory dishes and meat jellies, they do all that meat could do, and do it quicker and with less trouble. Use Oxo cubes with "left-overs" and oddments for new, delicious dishes.

There is nothing better than Oxo for building sturdy boys and girls.

Annual Convention Of School Teachers

The Annual Convention of the South Hastings, Belleville and Trenton Teachers' Institute opened this morning at Queen Mary school. An extensive program has been prepared. At this evening's meeting Mr. A. McGie, chairman of the Board of Education will preside, and Rev. Rr. Cleaver will give a lecture on "Jean-valJean." At the opening of the Institute this morning Mayor Riggs delivered the following address of welcome:

Mr. Chairman, Ladies and Gentlemen:

I have much pleasure in extending to you a hearty welcome to our city on the occasion of your Annual Teachers' Convention here, and I trust your stay among us will be as pleasant as possible, and that your session will be highly profitable.

I notice that you have a very comprehensive program for today and tomorrow, including "Jean Val Jean," instrumental and vocal solos, new geography, "Remarks" by Inspector Harry Clarke, "History," "Normal Methods," and a "Trip to Northern Ontario," personally conducted, I suppose, by Miss Ethel Adams.

Your program reminds me of my mother's good old Irish stew because it had everything in it; it was all made in the one pot; it was all good; there was plenty of it and we always got through with it.

All joking aside, ladies and gentlemen, I tell you frankly, I would sooner welcome a body of school teachers to our city than any other class of visitors today. Yours is the most difficult and at the same time the most necessary task in Canada at this time, I mean the training of boys and girls of today who will be Canada's responsible citizens of the future. You not only have to teach them the three R's but you have to train them socially and morally and spiritually. It has been said that it was the school teachers who caused the downfall of Germany because of their materialistic teaching and immoral ideas of life, duty and brotherhood. Thank God we can reverently say it was the school teachers who were the making of Canada because of their true and faithful character building, teaching and their christian conceptions of life, duty and brotherhood. Canada's noble part in helping to make the world safe for democracy in the great war is traceable to the schools and teachers of our land, both on week days and the sabbath, aided, as they should ever be, by the homes and the parents, and all good citizens.

Your work is of such a difficult and taxing nature that you should be relieved as far as possible from all monetary worry, and I am sure that every wide-awake community will fully realize this fact, and will do its duty accordingly.

Again I welcome you and bid you God speed.

CRAWLED THROUGH SEWER AND RESCUED CHILD.

New York, Oct. 14.—Crawling more than 85 feet on his hands and knees in two feet of dirty sewer water, Fireman Frank Ely of Hook and Ladder Company No. 11 rescued Katie Henig, two and a half years old.

The girl was with her mother and grandmother in the park, and crawled under a wire fence to a manhole, which had been uncovered by boys of the neighborhood. She fell into the hole and landed in two feet of water. Becoming confused she started to walk, and had gone about 85 feet before panic overtook her. Her small brother first noticed her disappearance, and notified his mother that Katie had fallen into the sewer.

The fireman was lionized when he brought the girl to the surface.

SOUND WARNING NOTE AGAINST GAMBLING

Toronto, Oct. 13.—Today's session of the Toronto and Kingston Synod in St. James' Square, was chiefly devoted to the Home Mission and Social Service report, which was presented by the convener, Rev. J. A. Pritchard, of Toronto, and supported by Rev. J. A. Donnell, of Haileybury.

"All the students who were preaching in my territory and who enlisted," said Rev. J. D. Byrnes, district superintendent of New Ontario, "I am glad to say, have returned to church work since the war." Mr. Byrnes made an appeal for intelligent business in church work and compared the needy and unsupplied mission stretches with a district not far from this city in which there were 27 Protestant churches in a radius of nine miles.

Resolutions were adopted strongly urging the Provincial Government to apply more stringent methods to the enforcement of the Temperance Act, and sounding a note of warning with regard to gambling. The resolution strongly urges that the business of race-track gambling be made a criminal offence and deploring that any form of gambling be legalized.

FARMER TELLS OF KILLING INFANT DAUGHTERS

Lansing, Mich., Oct. 12.—Earl Roop, a farmer living near here, today confessed, according to Sheriff Silsbee, that late yesterday he chloroformed his two daughters, aged two and three years, and buried their bodies in the bed of the Red Cedar river, a short distance from his home.

The two girls, the sheriff said, had been in the field with Roop. In the evening the farmer returned to his home and assured his wife, who was ill and in bed with her six day old son, that the girls were safe and would be home shortly. A few hours later he started for the sheriff's office at Mason, where he surrendered and made the alleged confession.

Plot To Release Prisoners At Kingston Penitentiary

STARTLING STORY PUBLISHED BY KINGSTON STANDARD, WHICH ALLEGES SENSATIONAL DISCOVERIES OF ENOUGH NITRO-GLYCERINE TO DESTROY INSTITUTION—A NUMBER OF RIFLES AND GUNS ALSO FOUND—MASTER PLOT TO BREAK FROM PRISON EVIDENTLY ENGINEERED FROM OUTSIDE — FOUR NOTORIOUS CRIMINALS KEPT IN CONFINEMENT — INVESTIGATION HAS BEEN GOING ON FOR SEVERAL WEEKS.

(Kingston Standard)

Sensational and astounding discoveries of a master plot to make a general jail delivery from the Portsmouth Penitentiary and to blow the entire institution to atoms, has just been made at the Penitentiary in one of the most startling discoveries ever made. The finding of enough nitroglycerine to blow the entire institution to nothing, together with some fuse and a quantity of weapons, proved the unearthing of the most daring and fiendish plot ever recorded in this section of Canada.

While the officials of the Penitentiary refused to discuss the matter today it was learned that suspicion has been entertained of a plot for some time, and as the result of rigid investigation the discoveries were made. A gneral search was instituted and after certain portions of some structure were torn away several cans of nitroglycerine, together with fuses were found, while elsewhere a number of rifles and guns were unearthed. It is an open secret that there has been suspicion directed towards several convicts for some time, and the discovery is another link in the chain of evidence going to make up one of the most daring feats ever attempted in Canada.

NITRO-GLYCERINE FOUND

The plot was discovered after the most rigid investigation. For some time officials have been in possession of information regarding a proposed general breakaway and most rapid and quiet investigating was made. Several links of evidence were brought together and the discoveries made, as a consequence of the resulting investigations, laid bare the entire plot, as far as its tangible details are concerned. The nitro-glycerine was concealed most ingeniously with the fuses ready for immediate use, while the weapons were also ready to be used at any time. From appearance indications are that no time was to be lost by the convicts in their getaway and the fact that the fiendish plot was discovered when it was only goes to show that the officials of the Penitentiary as well as citizens, have been living, unawares on the very edge of a volcano which at any moment might have been put in erruption and destroyed lives and property.

It is a certainty that the entire plot was engineered by a master mind and the elaborate and thorough plans made for the getaway and the blowing up of the institution was a clear demonstration that the convicts meant to leave nothing undone in their break for freedom. Regardless of the toll in lives and property, it is evident that a break from the Penitentiary was the only thing considered and that consequences were thrown to the winds.

What makes the plot all the more serious is the fact that the nitro-glycerine and weapons could not possibly have been taken into the Penitentiary by convicts and therefore it is evident on the face of the entire scheme that some other agency engineered the plot. What this agency is, or who the men behind it are remains to be cleared up.

FOUR DESPERATE CROOKS

As has been stated, it was known to the officials that everything was not right in the institution and suspicions of a plot were entertained. To such an extent were the suspicions given credence, that for several weeks four of the most notorious convicts in the penitentiary have been kept in close confinement, segregated from each other. Symondski, who in August, 1914, escaped from the penitentiary and almost killed Guards Dowsley and Tatten, and who was apprehended again in North Bay, "Cigarette" Brown, a notorious criminal; Wash Kallis, who was so dangerous that he was sent from Edmonton to the Portsmouth Penitentiary for safe keeping, and a prisoner named Johnson are the four prisoners who have been kept in confinement and the most rigid investigation such as has never before been executed, is being thoroughly held.

In the fate of the astounding discovery, the work of the officials at the penitentiary is deserving of the utmost praise and commendation. Quietly and thoroughly Warden Ponsford and his officials carried on their investigations of rumors and suspicions and the startling discovery reflects the greatest of credit on their work. Faced with the problem of following up in some cases, vague suspicions and at the same time competing with hitherto unthought of outside agencies the officials did spendid work and are to be complimented on their work in discovering the plot, and saving the institution from ruin, many people from death, and the prison from the most astounding jail delivery ever attempted.

DOUBLE HANGING AT CHICAGO JAIL

Chicago, Oct. 15.—Frank Camplone, Italian, and James Reese, negro, were hanged simultaneously in the Cook County jail here today.

Reese protested his innocence to the last. Camplone broke down as the noose was slipped around his neck. Reese was accused of murdering his wife, and Camplone of killing a man in a hold-up.

The two men sought by tricks and device to avoid the trip to the gallows.

Embittered because they and one other were the only ones out of twelve condemned men who did not receive a stay, reprieve or commutation, the two men today feigned insanity, blindness and denounced fate.

Camplone, convicted of murdering an alleged hold-up victim, shut his eyes and said he had lost his sight. He then raved and paced the death cell like a maniac. Physicians said he was feigning insanity. Reese, convicted of slaying his wife by chopping her head off with a hatchet, alternately prayed, cried and shouted. Reese appeared to be terror-stricken.

Arthur E. Haensel, war veteran, who was to have died today for the alleged murder of his wife, won a last minute reprieve. His case will be reviewed.

HORSE HOPS ON PILOT OF ENGINE —TAKES A RIDE

That truth is stranger than fiction is demonstrated daily in events chronicled in the daily press, but the latest bona fide event to tax the credulity of the reader is stranger than even movie fiction with trick cameras.

This, then, is the story—and it is true!

At 10.30 Thursday night the signalman who occupies the shanty at the Bay Bridge road crossing of the C. N. R. and C. P. R. tracks heard a train coming and came out on the crossing with his flag in accordance with his duty. An eastbound C. N. R. freight train hove in sight, and the signalman, Peter Evans by name, was astounded to see a horse precariously perched on the pilot of the locomotive, and seemingly enjoying, more or less, a free ride.

Mr. Evans signaled the train to stop and also telephoned the Belleville police of the horse's plight. The train stopped and the horse jumped off and scampered away, apparently little the worse for his experience.

Investigation by the police disclosed the fact that the horse was owned by Ed. A. Kellaway, the Belleville grocer, and when rounded up the animal was found to have sustained injuries of a serious nature. Where the locomotive picked up the animal is unknown to the engine crew, who were entirely unaware of the strange passenger.

Will Not Stop Irish Convention

Attorney-General Cannot Find Precedent For Such Action

TORONTO, Oct. 15.—Hon. W. E. Raney will not move to stop the holding of the convention of the Self-Determination for Ireland League of Canada at Ottawa. His decision was given in a communication addressed to Mr. J. B. Moon, one of the members of a deputation of his constituents from East Wellington, who waited upon him on Tuesday to urge such action. The Attorney-General's position is explained at considerable length. He does not pay much attention to the argument that such a meeting is likely to lead to a breach of the peace, since that, it was conceded, was a matter for the local authorities to deal with.

"There remains," he said, "the suggestion that the Self-Determination League is a seditious organization and that for that reason the convention should be prohibited.

"As a lawyer you will realize that what you ask is an extraordinary exercise of authority. It would not be so in some countries, but it would be here in Canada where we have heretofore acted upon the British practice of meeting argument—such as will no doubt be heard at the approaching convention, if it is held—with argument and not with force. This was what Mr. Lloyd George did on this very question in his Carnarvon speech last Saturday and there are many people who will be of the opinion that that speech was more effective in the interests of the Government of Great Britain and Ireland, than the banning of Sinn Fein meetings in England would have been. In fact there are those who would believe that the banning of public meetings usually has the opposite effect from that intended."

Canadian Ships On High Seas

Manned by Canadian Sailors is Aim of Navy League

Canadian ships sailing to all parts of the world carrying Canadian goods and manned by Canadians is the slogan of the Navy League of Canada in their effort to raise $760,000 in a national campaign for the relief of merchant sailors' widows and orphans, the training of Canadian boys, to help sailors' institutes, and for the development and administration of the movement.

The Navy League of Canada deprecates the fact that Canada has fallen behind in maritime power. Seventy years ago she stood in third place, and her ships were manned by Canadians. Today she is the eighth power. The League plans to have the ships sailing from Canadian ports manned in the future by young Canucks, and thus boosting the Dominion the world over.

Statistics compiled show that it takes six times as long to train a seaman as it does to build a ship. Maritime strength cannot be achieved in a year or even a decade. Its growth can only be commensurate with the development of a sea-conscious spirit in the nation.

The continuous training of over 2,000 Canadian lads in the Boys' Naval Brigades of the Navy League of Canada is having an effect upon our Maritime future.

There are 8,700 ships under the Canadian flag today with a personnel of 45,000. The value of the merchant fleet is in money $25,000,000. Through lack of interest on the part of Canadians our maritime affairs has allowed the command to drift into other hands. Our ships are neither officered nor manned by Canadians. The burden of the British Navy is $17 per head of the British tax payer while Canadians escape with 25 cents.

The Navy League of Canada maintains that new routes must be opened, trade lines established and maintained. Commercial supremacy means contends the League, the ability to carry when and where required, to sell without interference and demands the freedom of the seas.

SATISFIED WITH EFFORTS TO RELIEVE POWER SHORTAGE

Peterboro, Oct. 15.—Mayor Stacey and ex-Mayor F. L. Major, of Oshawa, and Wm. Smith, M.P., South Ontario, formed a deputation to Peterboro yesterday to interview Mr. Henry Holgate, the engineer appointed to investigate the power shortage and to ask for immediate action. The deputation saw A. L. Killaly, superintendent of Trent Canal, on their arrival and were satisfied after a long confernce that everything possible is being done to remedy the shortage.

75th Anniversary Kingston Hotel Dieu

Also 60th of the Profession of Sister Philomene is Celebrated.

KINGSTON, Oct. 15.—A double celebration started yesterday in the Hotel Dieu here, it being the occasion of the 75th anniversary of the foundation of the institution, and also the 60th anniversary of the profession of Rev. Sister Philomene.

The celebration was inaugurated with Pontificial High Mass by Archbishop Spratt, assisted by a large number of the clergy of the archdiocese and many from outside points. Coincident with the celebration the priests of the archdiocese presented the Sisters with a urse of $2,000 in gold, the members of the Ladies' Auxiliary with a handsome crib for the chapel, valued at $100, and the Children of Mary with a purse of gold.

Rev. Sister Philomene was born in Quebec 78 years ago, and was professed by the late Bishop Phelan. Sharing in her celebration are her two brothers, Charles Larose of Cornwall and Napoleon Larose of this city.

The plans for inaugurating the new system are well advanced and the special stamps will be available for all merchants by the last day of this month.

The method to be followed, it is explained will give the Inland Revenue Department a complete chick on all transactions and the collection by means of stamps will make the operation of the act much more simple.

Startling Charge By Canon Scott

Quebec Chaulain Uses Blunt Language Regarding Ross Rifle Matters

Calgary, Alta., Oct. 15.—"When Sir Charles Ross brought action against the Canadian Government for $18,000,000, the Government did not dare to allow the case to go to court, because they feared that the truth about the Ross rifle, the crime of crimes against the Canadian soldiers, might come out, and they gave $3,000,000 as hush money. I demand an investigation into the Ross rifle. Let them put me in the box and do anything they like with me, but let the people not think that they can do anything to hush this thing up."

This statement by Canon Scott, of Quebec, senior chaplain of the first Canadian Division during the war, was heard by more than a thousand people at a public meeting here last night. Canon Scott charged that through Sir Sam Hughes' insistence upon the Ross rifle many Canadians lost their lives in the war, and declared that General Alderson was removed because he wrote a letter protesting against its use.

Wili Head Off Soviet's Plans

Allied Warships Put Out of Constantinople to Intercept Red Vessels.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 15.—Allied warships have put out from Constantinople to intercept the Soviet naval vessels and merchant marine that are endeavoring to transport supplies and munitions to Trebizond, according to advices from the Near East today. The Bolsheviki in Asia Minor are in need of supplies, it is reported, if they hope to push their campaign farther into the Near East and thence through Persia into India and the rest of Asia. This was the plan outlined at the Baku conference and it was decided by the Reds to open the door at Trebizond and thence into Asia Minor.

Murders Engineer On New York Street

NEW YORK, Oct. 15.—Pushing her way gently through the morning rush-hour throngs at 106th street and Second aveaue today, a modishly-gowned young woman slipped quietly up behind Frank Rucolano, an electrical engineer, pressed a revolver to the base of his brain and fired. His body fell and rolled over into the gutter. While scores looked on, the young woman gazed at her victim for a moment and then walked over and fired four more bullets into the body. Each bullet lodged in a vital spot.

Reaching into a gold meshbag, the slayer withdrew a lace handkerchief, wiped the smoke and powder stains from her fingers and in a well-modulated voice, said, "That is done."

As she turned away, completely ignoring a crowd, Jose Miller, a soldier attached to Company C, 13th Infantry, Hoboken, made a grab for her arm. Politely disengaging his hand she turned sharply and started out and along 106th street. Scarcely had she gone a block when Miller started after her. As he approached she suddenly stopped and slapped him vigorously on the face. There was a struggle. Carmelo Majesti attempted to assist the soldier, but the young woman wrenched herself free and ran down the street.

A crowd joined in the chase. With scores yelling at her heels, the woman turned into First avenue and disappeared into the hallway of a tenement house. By this time a half dozen policemen had come up. The house and others were searched from basement to roof but no trace of the fugitive was found. A hunt is on for the common law wife of Rucolano. He is said to be the father of her three children.

Significant Remark By Premier Meighan

OTTAWA, Oct. 15—A statement issued by Right Hon. Arthur Meighen last night contains the significant declaration: "Unless reasons can be shown to the contrary at the hearing, the order of the Board will doubtless then be finally rescinded." The Prime Minister has shown his appreciation of the importance of the issues raised by the application of the Canadian Sugar Refiners for assistance and by the order of the Board of Commerce by postponing his tour of Western Canada for a week in order to deal with them promptly.

Coal Strike Seems Certain In Great Britain

MINERS DEEM GOVERNMENT REPLY UNSATISFACTORY AND DECIDE TO STOP WORK MONDAY UNLESS DEMANDS ARE ACCEDED TO — ONE MILLION MINERS AFFECTED — GOVERNMENT PLACES BAN ON EXPORT

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer, Canadian Press, Limited.

LONDON, Oct. 15.—Unless some unforseen intervention develops more than one million coal miners throughout Great Britain will be on strike Monday and the country's all-important coal industry will be tied up. This decision was reached this morning at a conference of miners' delegates who announced that in view of the Government's unsatisfactory reply to the miners for increased wages there was nothing left to do but strike.

It was announced that some of the men in the engineering departments would remain at work to keep the mines in order.

Coincident with the strike decision came the announcement that the Government had placed a ban on the export of coal, which move will have far-reaching effects in neighboring countries, more or less dependent upon Great Britain for their supply.

Sugar Order Suspended By Federal Government

DECREE NOT IN EFFECT PENDING HEARING BEFORE GOVERNOR-IN-COUNCIL OCTOBER 20—STATEMENT BY REFINERS—FEAR RUIN OF INDUSTRY—BORDER CITIZENS BUYING SUPPLIES IN UNITED STATES — PREMIER POSTPONES TRIP.

OTTAWA, Oct. 14.—Before the order of the Board of Commerce, fixing a maximum price for sugar and restricting trade in that commodity to purely Canadian channels, has been a day in operation, it was suspended by the Government pending a public hearing by the Cabinet itself of the arguments for and against the regulation at the present time. The Government bases its action upon a report by the Minister of Justice expressing his conviction that the Board of Commerce had not statutory power to promulgate such an order. Furthermore, the Minister and the Government hold that the powers conferred upon the board were never intended to "restrain for the purpose of enhancing or maintaining prices buyers or sellers of commodities from dealing with the public at large, and to limit them to buying or selling from as to only certain specified classes of the community with the effect of practically prohibiting importation into Canada.

The order-in-Council suspends the sections placing limitations upon the course of trade in sugar, declaring the order effective until the end of the year and providing for the filing of objections to the order with the board by October 31st. The Government in its order-in-Council does not specifically refer to the sections of the order fixing the maximum retail price of sugar at 21 cents a pound plus freight. It makes the price regulating provisions ineffectual, however, by removing the restrictions on trading and consequently the ban against importation of sugar from the United States.

Premier Meighen was obliged to leave Ottawa to fulfill his engagement at Staffordville before the conclusion of the last interview of the sugar refiners with the members of the Government on Monday night. The refiners desired action which would prevent the importation of cheap sugars from the United States until they had disposed of their stocks and had avoided a situation which might cause them heavy losses. They carried their case to the Board of Commerce on Tuesday. The Board gaves its judgment yesterday. The Prime Minister arrived in Ottawa this morning after his East Elgin meeting to learn of the storm of protest aroused by the Board of Commerce order. That judgment was discussed at a meeting of the Cabinet Council, which adjourned early this afternoon. The order-in-Council was adopted, signed by the Governor-General and made public this evening.

Russian Bolshevik Leader Talks Revolution In Germany

FOUR-HOUR SPEECH TO GERMAN SOCIALISTS GREETED WITH CHEERS BY RADICALS, WHILE CONSERVATIVES WALKED OUT OF THE HALL — GERMAN SOCIALISTS MAY AFFILIATE WITH BOLSHEVIKI.

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer, Canadian Press, Limited.

HALLE, Germany, Oct. 15.—For fully four hours last night Zinovieff, chairman of the executive committee of the Third Internationale, and one of the four big chiefs of Soviet Russia, pleaded with Independent Socialists at their convention here to join with Moscow and create a revolution in Germany and help carry out the proletariat program for world revolution. At the conclusion of the Russian's address the radicals of the party and the audience in the packed galleries stood with bared heads singing the Internationale while Conservatives walked out of the hall. A great ovation was then accorded Zinovieff with many "hochs" and cries of "Long live the Internationale" and waving of hands. It is expected the rvote as to whether the independents will adhere to the Moscow organization will be taken some time today.

"Hubby" Ordered to Pay Bill By Jury of Women

JUDGMENT AGAINST WIFE REVERSED BY LADIES OF THE JURY, WHO ALSO CAUSE INNOVATION IN COURT LANGUAGE—OLDEST JUROR DECLINES TO OBLIGE CAMERA MAN.

ORANGE, N.J., Oct. 15.—New Jersey's first jury of women reversed a judgment against another of their sex in the district court trial here today.

The judge apparently approved the verdict, though remaining silent, but the sergeant-at-arms, thrown into a fractions mood by incessant activities of camera men during the trial, said he did not think any woman's jury would be called here. It caused "too much trouble," he complained.

Baby's underwear and feminine frocks and stockings were involved in the trial, which centred on a question of the ownership of the stock in a store. Antonio Pascarella claimed he was the owner while the McCall Company had obtained judgment against his wife, as owner, for not paying a bill. The jury today decided Pascarella was the owner.

Automobiles brought the women to the court house. Energetic camera men were already there and the jurors exposed themselves to the lenses by ones and twos and in a group. But when a camera man asked if the "oldest juror would mind posing" none offered to accommodate him.

The term "Ladies of the jury," found its way into the stenographic records for the first time. Another innovation in the court language came when the judge released the jury for lunch.

"Return promptly at 2 o'clock," he said, "and please do not discuss the case with any of your friends or among yourselves."

SEAMAN ABOUT ONE CHANCE IN TEN

Had Rheumatism So Bad He Was Told There Was Practically No Hope—Now Well and Strong He Gives Tanlac Credit For Recovery.

"The rheumatism got such a hold on me I was told there was scarcely one chance in ten I would ever be entirely rid of it again, but thanks to Tanlac it has entirely disappeared, and all my other troubles along with it," said Wm. R. Holovotsky, of 132 Higgins street, Vancouver, B.C.

"For about six years I suffered from a bad case of rheumatism. My right leg became stiff, and the calves of my legs swelled up. My arms ached and pained me so it was agony for me to put on my clothes. I had such chronic pains across my back that I don't believe it could have hurt worse had someone been jabbing me with a knife. My appetite dwindled away almost to nothing and I was continually losing strength and weight.

"While in Winnipeg on a visit I read about Tanlac in the papers and got a bottle. The results were so fine that I kept on taking it until the rheumatism left me entirely, and now I never have a sign of a pain of any kind. My appetite is so big I can hardly satisfy it, and I've gained ten pounds in weight. At night I sleep like a rock, and I feel every bit of ten years younger. Tanlac has certainly proved a remarkable medicine in my case, and I believe the best way in which I can show my gratitude is to make a statement for the benefit of others."

Tanlac is sold in Belleville By Ostrams' Drug Store, and by Leading Druggists in every town.

SILO COLLAPSED

One of the newly filled silos at the Homestead Canning Factory, Picton, collapsed during Thursday night and tumbled into the street, carrying with it the main power and light wires and breaking the large pole carrying the Homestead transformers and main line wires.

AEROPLANE ACCIDENT

An aeroplane accident that rather badly wrecked the machine but fortunately resulted in no one being injured occurred at Picton on Sunday evening. In attempting to land without the field being lighted, Capt. Janney's machine hit the fence and turned completely over. His passenger was Miss Marjorie Purtelle of Bloomfield. Most fortunately the wings held the body of the machine from the ground far enough so that the occupants were unhurt. They simply climbed out from under the machine thankful that they were alive and uninjured. Capt. Janney, who has been about town for some days, went to Trenton on Sunday with Miss Purtelle as passenger. He was delayed and was unable to leave on the return trip until after dark. Reaching Picton about 6.30 he found his landing field on Brisbon Hill unlighted. Circling about a couple of times he finally tried to light, one wing unfortunately striking the fence and overturning the machine. Considerable damage was done to the plane but Capt. Janney expects to have repairs completed in a few days.

BLOOMFIELD GARAGE BURNS

An early morning blaze destroyed the garage in Bloomfield owned by Mr. Blake Pearsall, also Mr. Stanley Gibson's barn adjoining on Wednesday of this week. The fire was discovered about 5 a.m. and the alarm at once sent in. The chemical fire extinguishers were soon on hand but it was impossible to save the garage or barn. No cars were burned, but all the tools and supplies were lost. A quantity of hay was lost in the burning barn. The properties were insured.

Catarrh Of The Stomach Is Dangerous

"Thousands Have It and Don't Know It," Says Physician. Frequently Mistaken for Indigestion—How to Recognize and Treat.

"Thousands of people suffer more or less constantly from furred, coated tongue, bad breath, sour burning stomach, frequent vomiting, rumbling in stomach, bitter eructations, gas, wind and stomach acidity and call it indigestion when in reality their trouble is due to gastric catarrh of the stomach," writes a New York physician.

Catarrh of the stomach is dangerous because the mucous membrane lining of the stomach is thickened and a coating of phlegm covers the surface so that the digestive fluids cannot mix with the food and digest them. This condition soon breeds deadly disease in the fermented unassimilated food. The blood is polluted and carries the infection throughout the body. Gastric ulcers are apt to form and frequently an ulcer is the first sign of a deadly cancer.

In catarrh of the stomach a good and safe treatment is to take before meals a teaspoonful of pure Bisurated Magnesia in half a glass of hot water as hot as you can comfortably drink it. The hot water washes the mucous from the stomach walls and draws the blood to the stomach while the bisurated magnesia is an excellent solvent for mucous and increases the efficiency of the hot water treatment. Moreover the Bisurated Magnesia will serve as a powerful but harmless antacid which will neutralize any excess hydrochloric acid that may be in your stomach and sweeten its food contents. Easy, natural digestion without distress of any kind should soon follow. Bisurated Magnesia is not a laxative, is harmless pleasant and easy to take and can be obtained from any local druggist. Don't confuse Bisurated Magnesia with other forms of magnesia, milks, citrates, etc., but get it in the pure bisurated form (powder or tablets), especially prepared for this purpose.

Mapping Out Imperial System

Hughes to Introduce Plan For Empire Parliament in the Commons

LINDSAY, Oct. 15.—The following motion will be introduced in the Federal House at the next session by Lieut.-Gen. Sir Sam Hughes.

"(1) That in the opinion of the House the time has arrived, much too long delayed, when all parts of the British Empire should be given, on an equal basis, full responsibility and representation in the Imperial Parliament of Great Britain and Ireland—rights which have always been theirs, but which have not been extended to them or exercised by them; and to that end that the present Imperial Parliament of Great Britain and Ireland should be organized on a proper basis to give representation to the nonrepresented portions of the Empire on the same basis as would be given to the present represented portions.

That this—the sovereign Parliament—should deal only with matters international, Imperial or international-Imperial finance trade, exchange, defense and such other questions as might be determined upon without the loss of any material privilege which the integral parts now possessed.

"(2) That for other purposes the Empire should be as now, divided into integral component parts: (a) Great Britain and Ireland, (b) Canada, (c) Australia, (d) New Zealand (e) South Africa, (f) India, (g) Newfoundland, each with a Parliament of its own dealing with such matters as may be determined to belong thereto.

"(3) That Parliaments within each of these integral parts and under the direction thereof should be established as deemed advisable, to consider matters of Provincial importance.

"Further, that no sovereign powers, that is, powers pertaining to a great Imperial Parliament should be at any time conferred upon any individual and that no portion of the Empire should be entitled to or be granted special laws and special privileges in so far as sovereign questions are involved."

Mothers Allowance Act Now In Force

Few people realize that the Mothers Allowance Act, which came into force in the Province of Ontario on October 1st, 1920, is the result of long agitation. The Trades and Labor Congresses in many parts of the Province, many City Councils, branches of both the Men's and Women's Canadian Clubs, the National Council of Women the National Executive of the I.O.D.E., the United Women Voters, the Executive Council of the Y.W.C.A., the Ontario W.C.T.U., the Toronto Synod of the Church of England, the Associated Charities of the Roman Catholic Church, the Toronto Presbytery, the General Conference of the Methodist Church, the Salvation Army and a host of other associations, both secular and religious, have sent to the late Government under Sir William Hearst and to the present Government under Honorable E. C. Drury, many and varied resolutions and petitions. The work begun under Sir William Hearst has been completed by the Government now in office. At the time of the last election an interim report compiled by Miss Margaret Strong, M.A., acting under the instruction of Hon. W. A. Riddell then Deputy Minister of Labor, had already been submitted to Sir William Hearst. Miss Strong was asked to fulfil her task by Hon. W. R. Rollo on his appointment to the Ministry of Labor last November.

Few, too, seem to realize that the scheme is no new one. The first "Mothers' Pension" law was passed in the State of Missouri in 1911 and in the investigation conducted by Miss Strong evidence has been secured from at least forty-one States in which a Mothers' Pension scheme is at present in operation. In Canada itself Manitoba was the first Province to take action, and a law providing Allowances for Mothers was passed in 1916 Saskatchewan followed suit in 1917, and Alberta in 1919.

With so many available sources of information, every care has been taken in the framing of the Ontario Act to sift the good from the bad, the workable from the unworkable.

The very name of the Act is suggestive—"An Act to provide for payment of Allowance in certain cases to the Mothers of Dependent Children." It is not a pension for Widows; it is not even an allowance for every widow who has Dependent Children; it has safe-guarded itself by those words 'in certain cases.'"

So many mistaken ideas seem to prevail as to those who will benefit under the Act that it seems well to state briefly the main qualifications.

A monthly allowance may be paid towards the support of the dependent children of a mother who,— "Is a widow, or wife of an inmate of a hospital for the Insane in Ontario or of a man who is permanently disabled and incapable of contributing to the support of his family.

"She must have been a resident in Ontario at the time of the application and for a period of two years immediately prior thereto.

"She must continue to reside in Ontario.

"She must be a British subject by birth or naturalization, or the widow or wife of a British subject.

"She must have proven to be a fit and proper person to have the care and custody of her children.

"She must have two or more of her own children under 14 years of age living with her, and must have no means adequately to care for them without the assistance of an Allowance under the Act."

The Act is administered by a Commission of five persons, two of whom are women. They work with local boards who forward to them the applications which after thorough investigation seem to come under the scope of the Act. These local boards have nothing to do with fixing the amount of the allowance to be paid the applicant. They simply investigate carefully the fitness of the applicant and when this is proven and the applicant receives the allowance they must visit her from time to time to satisfy the Commission that she is fulfilling the trust which is being placed in her. They must also send to the Commission satisfactory reports of the health and general welfare of the children. The Commission emphasizes the fact that this is no charity; rather that the mother, when in receipt of an allowance is to be regarded as an employe of the Ontario Government receiving remuneration for services rendered in the proper care of her children.

For Ladies

Said Mrs. C——— to Mrs. T———
One bleak and cold and wintry day,
"You know, my dear, this time of year
Is hard on folks.
If only we could feel assured
Of health and comfort, 't would be fine,
But it seems we can't, in such a clime."

"Well, do you know", smiled Mrs. T———
"I used to think this time of year,
Meant colds and sickness always near,
But we heard of an easy way,
To be healthy and comfy every day.
You know Mrs. Wise, across the street,
(Just the picture of health and always neat)
Well, she was told by a doctor friend
She'd never regret the money she'd spend
On good wool 'Undies,' the 'Ceetee' kind,
Made by Turnbull's of Galt, I think she said.
An advertisement somewhere then she read—
Telling folks how that particular kind
Was fashioned by experts—and that you'd find
The 'Undies' they made were the better kind—
Fashioned of wool that was not one bit 'tickly'
(Others, you know, tickle and seem sort of prickly)
That all "CEETEE" garments are so downy and soft,
We'd just love to wear them—in fact, very oft
Mothers buy them for babies, all fears to allay
Should they go for an airing on a stormy, chill day—
Why! the rain would'nt matter, neither wind, snow or frost—
"CEETEE" garments, in truth, are worth twice their first cost.
They're the finest of high-grade underwear,
And the thriftiest, best-dressed women who care,
Know that it pays to buy none but the best;
Don't you think we'd do well to give them a test?"

"CEETEE" for ladies is made with low cut neck and no sleeves—also with elbow sleeves and in higher neck and long sleeves.

"CEETEE" is knitted on very fine needles—this makes it very warm, soft and light.

Any doctor will advise you to wear wool next the skin: it is a non-conductor, thus retains the warmth of the body, keeps out the cold—and safeguards your health.

Why not try it this winter?

CORNELIA TAKES THE LEAD FOLLOWS JUDGE MURPHY

Lucy Doyle, the "Cornelia" of the Toronto Telegram, who is charged with the task of seeing that the activities of Toronto women and others are recorded upon the Woman's Page of that paper, has just been elected President of the Canadian Woman's Press Club.

"Cornelia" has a habit of getting anything she trails, and it is not surprising that she won her way to the leadership of the lady press scribes. The victory was only won, however, after a hard fight, Cora E. Hind, Commercial editor of the Manitoba Free Press, being defeated by the narrow majority of eight votes. However, the scrap was on the square and there will be no protest or recount.

Miss Doyle has been on the Telegram fourteen years and occupies the three-fold position of dramatic editor, editor of the women's department, and staff correspondent.

Miss Doyle was a member of the press party accompanying the Prince of Wales on the royal visit to the United States last autumn, and was the only woman correspondent to be taken to White Sulphur Springs with the royal party, an indication that Prince Charming entertained a high opinion of this talented Canadian press writer. Miss Doyle has had many other important assignments in which she demonstrated her journalistic ability.

It is worthy of note that the retiring president was Mrs. Murphy, of Edmonton, one of the first woman police magistrates in Canada, known Judge Murphy—yes, yer Anner!

CARE AND CAUTION PREVENT ACCIDENTS

When we look in our dictionaries for a definition of the word "accident" we find that an accident is "an unexpected event, a mishap." Accidents today are not accidents in that generally accepted meaning of the word. Accidents do not happen. They are caused, and caused largely by lack of care. Accidents are not "bound to happen"; they are not part of an established plan and can be prevented by the exercise of reasonable care and caution. The safety movement, like modern medicine, preaches prevention.

The pedestrian who crosses a busy thoroughfare, reading his daily paper, invites an injury. The motorist who drives recklessly and without consideration for others will some day injure someone. The street car man who forgets he is operating a powerful piece of machinery is almost sure to injure himself and others. The worker in the factory who takes a chance around moving machinery, is almost asking to be hurt and the factory manager who fails to provide adequate safeguards for his machines and employees is exposing both to a serious risk.

Accident prevention is largely a habit of mind. Train your mind to "Think Safety."

THIS IS "SAFETY WEEK"

CHRISTIAN UNITY IN HYMNS.

In their hymns the great body of Christians are already united, observes a writer in The Christian Century (Disciples), who believes that in the "songs of the soul" men find a common expression of faith and prayer. Each generation has produced its quota of hymns—hymns emphasizing the fads and theories of the time, and destined soon to be forgotten because they do not speak of the elemental instincts of faith and worship. But there are sacred songs which are of all time, which are sung by every race and creed. When we sing the hymns which have come down to us from the Middle Ages we do not think of the obscure and often absurd doctrines of the time. Instead, "out of the cells of monasteries, out of medieval mysticism and superstition, there shines for us the clear light of a real faith in an unseen Helper and an unseen world.

"When we sing Luther's battle-hymn we do not think of his theological quarrels or of his undoubtedly mistaken views of transubstantiation. That great hymn in which Carlyle heard the thunder of an Alpine avalanche and the first murmur of earthquakes, and which Heine called the 'Marseillaise' of the Reformation, is to us the expression of an unshakable faith moving to certain victory. When we sing 'Rock of Ages' we do not think of the bitter controversy over a theory of the atonement, in the midst of which it was written. We think of it as an instinctive expression of human weakness hiding itself in divine sufficiency. When we sing 'Love Divine All Love Excelling' and 'Jesus, Lover of My Soul,' we do not ally ourselves mentally with the eccentricities of early Methodism, but we feel a touch of the holy fervor which glowed through its teaching and practises and which still has warming and reviving power. When we sing 'Lead, Kindly Light' we do not think of praying for guidance in the matter of ecclesiastical authority. In his words we pray what was Newman's real prayer—seeking the real, eternal truth which he was unconsciously seeking.

"Today Christian worshippers are singing in separated groups the hymns which are a common inheritance of them all. Here is, indeed, a beginning of Christian unity."

By putting props under the price of sugar in Canada the Board of Commerce incurs the undying hostility of every housewife in Canada. When the prospects of ending up the preserving season with cheap sugar loomed brightest the Board of Commerce drew a veil of gloom over the prospect by listening to the wail of the refiners rather than the demand of the women to let the price of sugar drop as far as it would. The Board of Commerce missed a great chance to become popular.

Two Belleville Lions at Toronto found after the feast that their lairs had been pre-empted and that there was no soft place on which to lay their lordly heads. The hotel clerk smiled sweetly and offered the bridal suite for fifteen dollars, but this did not suit the Sweet Lions from Belleville-on-the-Moira Along about two o'clock in the morning a compromise was reached and Bob and Ernie coughed up seven-fifty for three hours accommodation, having to catch an early train. Next time these Lions will roar earlier and often to the end that their lairs will be ready when it is time to stop growling and turn to snoring. No bridal suite for them at $7.50 per.

OTHER VIEWS

THE APPEAL DIRECT.

Port Arthur Chronicle.

It will come with somewhat of a shock to the element that is decrying the newspapers as a "kept press" that the railway associations are publishing advertisements over the sign and seal of their organizations, in which those organizations speak direct to the people of Canada. Naturally if those interests "kept the press," they would order the newspapers to publish the facts and statements they desire to impress the public with and to do it under the guise of editorials or news stories. The newspapers have through a long course of slander at the hands of irresponsible agitators and intellectual nonentities sustained a dignified silence, knowing well that the time would come when the ravings of the radicals would be refuted by indisputable evidence.

FOLLOWING MEIGHEN'S TRAIL.

Sydney Post.

The Toronto Globe is making a rare spectacle of itself these days Figuratively speaking, it is following the trail of the Right Honorable Arthur Meighen, dancing a savage war dance incessantly and murderously. It is determined to have the Prime Minister's scalp the first time it catches him asleep, or to perish in the attempt. Convinced that those speeches Mr. Meighen delivered in the Eastern Townships were vile disruptionist outpourings, the sometime sedate and sanctimonious Globe has declared war on him to the knife. And firm in the righteous conviction that all is fair in war, it has become a sturdy distortionist of the Prime Minister's discussions of public affairs, and a belligerent denouncer of him for sentiments he never expressed and speeches he never uttered.

KEEP YOUR WAR BONDS.

Vancouver Sun.

Why do people with small quantities of war bonds persist in selling them while the market is unfavorable? Why will they refuse to recognize that they are themselves largely to blame if they receive less than par? War bonds are a commodity and their price in the market is governed by the same rules as any other commodity. If a lot of people want to sell and few want to buy, the price goes down correspondingly. To blame the Government for this result is foolishness. As a matter of fact, the Government is doing its best to keep the price up by itself buying bonds with whatever loose money it has on hand and by exerting pressure on large holders not to unload. But these processes are only available within narrow limits. The thing to do with your bonds is to put them away and forget about them except once every six months when the interest is due. If you do this you may be quite sure you will finally get a hundred cents on the dollar for them.

She was wondering how to state her errand when the telephone rang. It startled Bayard strangely. He caught it to his lips as a toper lifts a glass. He pressed the receiver to his ear and evidently recognized the voice that said "Hello" from somewhere.

He answered in monosyllables of the least importance, but Daphne heard gloom in them.

Bayard hung up the receiver, pushed the telephone away as a bitter cup, and laughed sheepishly.

"Great convenience, the telephone! Just learned that I've dropped more money than I ever hoped to have. 'For want of a nail the shoe was lost.' Oh well, it saves me from spending it foolishly. But if I'd had five thousand dollars— My God! if I'd had five thousand dollars."

Daphne could think of nothing more helpful to say than a casual, "How's Leila?"

"Don't ask me!" Bayard smiled. "Tell me. What can I do for you, honey, before I go to take some nasty medicine from the president."

"Nothing dear. I had to come downtown on an errand, so I thought I'd run in and say 'hello.'"

"Well, hello!"

He kissed her and patted her back with doleful tenderness and she went out of his office into the elevator. Its iron-barred door and its clanking chains gave it a congenial prison feeling, and the bottomless pit it dropped into seemed even more appropriate.

CHAPTER XXIV.

Daphne wanted to run away from her thoughts and she walked for a mile or two up the deep ravine of Broadway. She dared not go back to Mrs. Chivvis just yet with her bad news. She thought of asking Clay for a loan. She swept the appalling idea from her brain with a puff of derision. Besides, he was out of town, Bayard had said. She thought of asking Tom Duane for it. She tried to blow that idea from her mind, but it kept drifting back like a bit of stubborn thistle-down. She could not outwalk it.

At length she grew so desperate that she stopped at a telephone booth and brazenly called up Duane's number. He chanced to be at home. When he heard her voice he cried:

"Oh Lord, it's good to hear you. Sing again, sing again, nightingale!"

"I'm no nightingale. I'm a business woman, offering you an investment."

She told him the whole story. The name of Mrs. Romilly made him whistle. "Old Gorgon Zola," he called her, and added, "You're a made woman."

"But the clothes aren't made, and I can't make 'em till I get some money. Would you—could you advance me a little on the most excellent security?"

"How much do you want? Where shall I bring it?"

"Mail two—er—five hundred dollars to the shop, will you? And I can never thank you enough."

"Hush. It's me that thanks you. Don't you want more?"

"No, thanks."

"It will be there in the early mail and I may call round later to put a mortgage or something on the place."

"Good-by," she chuckled, and hung up the receiver. She was crying softly as she stole from the blessed booth, and she looked less like a successful business woman than ever.

Something made her think of Wetherell. She stopped off at Bayard's floor and rang the bell. Leila's new butler admitted her with pomp. Daphne walked past him into the drawing room. Leila and Wetherell were standing there in heavy coats. They seemed to [illegible] at seeing Daphne. She was horribly hurt at seeing them, but she chirruped:

"Just come in?"

"Just going out," Leila answered, kissing Daphne nervously.

"There must be a beginning in any great matter, but to continue unto the end, until it be thoroughly finished, YIELDS THE TRUE GLORY."—
SIR FRANCIS DRAKE.

To Continue in Public Service—

The Navy League of Canada Needs $760,000

Since the money must come from the people, explanation is due to them of the need for it. The work of the Navy League is:

To Continue the Sea-Conscious Spirit in the People and in the Government.

To enlighten people upon the importance of the sea; so that Canadian products may be shipped, through Canadian ports, in Canadian ships, officered and manned by trained Canadians.

To Continue the Sea-Conscious Spirit in the Schools.

As a Merchant Navy is the first step to sea power in any nation, so is the seed-sowing of fundamental national ideals in the schools, the first step to national greatness.

To Continue Training 2,000 Canadian Lads for the Sea.

The continuous training of over two thousand Canadian lads, in the Boys' Naval Brigades of the Navy League of Canada, is to-day having an effect upon our maritime future.

Since May last, sixty of these lads have completed their training and passed into the Canadian Merchant Navy. Fifty more have gone to England to man the new ships of the re-organized Royal Canadian Navy.

Under the guidance of Experienced Sea Minds, it is being planned to give chosen lads from the Boys' Naval Brigades an ocean-going education second to none, so that Canada will have efficient master seamen.

To Continue to Relieve Distress of Canadian Merchant Sailors.

After this year the League expects to cease asking for funds for the relief of the Canadian dependents of Merchant Sailors who were killed on Active Service. With the trust funds now in hand, together with the sum set aside in the Budget, to be raised by public subscription, it should be possible to establish an endowment, the income from which will be sufficient to provide these dependents with a pension equal to that granted to the dependents of Naval men killed on Active Service.

As many of these dependents are young children, the endowment must continue for a number of years, until the children become self-supporting.

To Continue Upholding Every Sailors' Home, Institute and Sailors' Welfare Society in Canada.

The Navy League seeks to make life comfortable for our sailors when ashore. After all, Canada is their home; and the home, while they are here, of the sailors of other lands.

The Navy League endows, maintains or assists in maintaining every Sailors' Home, Institute and Welfare Society in Canada. And every dollar subscribed for the maintenance of these Homes and Institutes will be money well invested and redound to our national prosperity. . . . . .

These objects can only be achieved through an organization representative of public responsibility and outside party politics.

The obligation is apparent, simple, easy! Borne in proportion, from coast to coast, the weight is felt, but not the strain. The public expect this work to continue and to be maintained by public subscription "until it yields the true glory."

Pulpit Sensationalism.

Kingston Standard.

The Ottawa Journal deals with the recent reported sensational statement of an Ottawa minister as to 'what goes on in some of the best homes of Ottawa on Saturday night," in a spirit of good-humored banter, which is probably the best way of dealing with it, for such a general charge is obviously wrong on the face of it is highly objectionable, and has been resented very properly when made in connection with other Canadian cities. In this connection it can only be said that it is deplorable that some clergymen—the few, happily, and not the many—are given to sensationalism in the pulpit and oftentimes allow themselves to be carried away, under the spell of their own verbosity, into saying things that may not be true, and even if true were better left unsaid from the pulpit. Often too, some of the clergy base these statements upon second-hand information which they have not been wise enough or careful enough to confirm, and thus the damage is done before the denial of the alleged conditions is forthcoming.

Too often we have a Talking Christianity rather than an Acting Christianity.

Her Mother's Fault Daughter Didn't Know

Powerful Photo-Play Exposes Pit-Falls On Life's Pathway.

A story as old as life itself but ever new in its variations of modern innovations and family carelessness is told with graphic detail in all its hideous truthfulness in "Enlighten Thy Daughter," a photoplay which has attracted nation-wide attention. The great interest taken in this screen story of real life was evidenced Thursday evening at Griffin's Theatre which was filled to the doors with a large and appreciative audience, even the boxes being crowded, an unusual thing for a photoplay. As the story of man's duplicity and woman's weakness was unfolded with its wealth of sorrow the tense interest of the audience was shown in the quiet attention paid to each phase of the story.

The dangers to which young girls are subjected through ignorance of facts which should have been told them by their mothers was vividly shown, the carelessness of parents and the impetuosity of youth depicted in a way which made the story very real and conveyed a lesson which should be heeded.

Automobile joy rides, one of the features of modern night life, add greatly to the danger of young girls just budding into womanhood and the photoplay might have gone much further to show the prevalence of night prowlers in motor cars searching the streets for young girls to invite for a ride which generally terminates at some isolated place in the country with a mythical breakdown and which gives an opportunity to the trafficker in souls to effect their diabolical purpose.

"Enlighten Thy Daughter," tells the story of a mother, dazzled by the bright lights of the Primrose Path who neglects her daughter and fails to enlighten her as to the pitfalls of shame, disgrace and sorrow which line the path of ignorance. Three families are involved in the catastrophe which follows the death of the girl victim of her mother's carelessness and neglect of duty, one family being broken up and husband and wife parted. The story also touches upon other dangers to womankind which have sprung up out of the feverish, fast life of a certain type of society.

That the story embodied in "Enlighten Thy Daughter" is absolutely true is obvious to all who see it and it cannot help but prove an emphatic lesson and warning to mothers, pointing out their duty to their daughters whom they wish to shield from harm. Not only should they surround their daughters with every protection, keep them off the streets at night, lift the veil from hidden dangers of sex, but they should make chums of their daughters who would then have no secrets from them. Careful supervision should also be kept over the boy and girl friends of the daughter insisting upon character as a basis of all friendships. One of the greatest dangers of all to be guarded against is the automobile joy-ride unchaperoned which affords such opportunities for evil-minded men to destroy purity and wreck lives of innocent girls.

"Enlighten Thy Daughter" should be seen by all parents and its powerful sermon founded upon fact of everyday life can not help but make a profound impression and point the path of duty so plainly that none can err in ignorance. The play will be presented for the balance of the week.

Colds & Common Sense

You have a cold, or your child has a cold; a cough; a tight feeling across the chest; a soreness in the breathing tubes.

In the past how have you treated such? You have bought some cough mixture, and swallowed this down into your stomach. Now, why? Your stomach was not ailing; and there is no direct connection between your chest (where the trouble is) and your stomach! Then why swallow into your stomach any mixture when the trouble is in your lungs and bronchial tubes?

It's a mistake; and Peps is the remedy provided to correct this un-commonsense treatment. Peps are little tablets, which contain highly beneficial Pine essences, combined with other medicinal extracts. These healing extracts are so prepared that as soon as you put a Pep into your mouth they are liberated in the form of healing vapors. You breathe these vapors down to the throat and lungs, and thus treat the organs that are inflamed, direct. In a way, it is like breathing from a vaporizer or bronchitis kettle, except that there is no apparatus needed, the little Peps providing everything needful for the treatment! The very small portion of Peps which you swallow has a slightly tonic effect upon the stomach and does you good, but the use of Peps is not for stomach troubles, but for lung, throat and bronchial troubles. Peps relieve these as no ordinary treatment can.

Children like Peps and they are best for the little ones because Peps contain no morphine, laudanum or other poison found in so many of the old cough mixtures.

Druggists and stores everywhere sell Peps 50c. box or from Peps Co., Toronto, for price. Remember the name—four letters only:—

Peps

REMEMBER THE CHILDREN

The generous response given the Easter appeal contributed largely in providing many needs and comforts for the little children within the care of the Shelter and the active interest shown was most encouraging to those in charge of the work that they should not be weary in well-doing. The approach of winter which always brings a greater number of children to the care and protection of the Society and increase proportionately their liabilities. Canada has been blest with an abundant harvest and once again the appeal is made to remember these little ones at Thanksgiving season. Saturday, October 16 has been set apart for Thanksgiving donations on which day gifts of groceries, clothing and money will be thankfully received and the presence of those interested in the work especially desired. To those who have so generously given of their bounty and effort in the past the Society is sincerely grateful and ever pray a continuance of your interest and support. The secretary of the Children's Aid Management Committee can be communicated with at Phone 447.

SUGAR STOCKS AFFECTED

Toronto, Oct. 15.—The effect of the suspension by the Government of the order of the Board of Commerce regarding sugar was early apparent on the Toronto Stock Exchange this morning when Atlantic sugar dropped in a few moments to 101 after opening six points down at 109. Over three hundred shares changed hands and after the liquidation movement had spent itself there was a slight recovery stock closing at noon at 103 for a net loss of twelve points.

WRANGEL VICTORY

Paris, Oct. 15.—The offensive begun by General Wrangel, South Russian anti-Bolshevik leader on the right bank of the Dnieper River, has been pursued successfully, says an official statement issued by the Wrangel administration Monday and received here today. "We defeated the sixteenth and twenty-first regiment of Bolshevik cavalry and part of the third division of sharpshooters," the statement adds. "We captured six cannon and other booty."

ATTELL IN MONTREAL

Montreal, Oct. 15.—Abe Attell, ex-pugilist, whose name has figured prominently in connection with baseball exposures in the United States, is residing in Montreal according to the Herald. When interviewed here by a Herald reporter, Attell said that he had been living in Montreal since the investigation began and intimated he proposed to stay here until what he termed "the stink" had blown over. When told he was being sought in the United States, Attell said "They can't touch me here and here I stay."

WHEAT CONTROL

Ottawa, Oct. 15.—Pleas of western farmers for resumption of wheat control were again under consideration at this morning's meeting of the Cabinet Council, but further consideration will be necessary before final decision is reached as to the course of action to be followed. Difficulty in resumption of control lies in the danger of the Government attempting to guarantee a minimum price.

BOXING BOUTS AT THE ARMOURIES

Toronto, Oct. 5th

E. D. O'Flynn, Esq.,
Belleville, Ont.

Friend Ed:

Regarding fights on the 15th, I am going to show the people in Belleville one of the best Bantams in the country in Ted Joyce. I tried to get Hoskins of Montreal to meet him, nothing doing. I tried to get a boy a lot heavier but they do not want any part of him. You are lucky to sign as you will see by the Toronto papers he is in big demand. He is the Babe Ruth of the Bantams, hits them a mile. He has been fighting 14 months, has been beaten twice, has fought 39 battles and has a recard of 19 K.O. I may say he has since beaten the boys that got the decisions over him. He is booked to fight Patsy Wallace the boy that gave Jimmy Wilde the grand battle May 24th and I think he will give a good account of himself. I am also bringing for you a boy who the fight-fans will hear of later, Chris Newton who is going to make his first appearance as a pro. He is a big drawing card in Toronto. I will say this that the fight fans are in for a good night's fighting and you sure did not make a mistake when you booked Joyce and Newton. The other boys I am not going to rave about but I know that both of them will fight and are game boys.

Hoping you have the hall packed as I know that I am showing a boy that will not be long in Canada.

GREAT ATHLETE WILL VISIT BELLEVILLE.

Mr. Walter Knox, Athletic Coach for the Canadian Olympic Team has written the Y.M.C.A that he will spend a few hours in Belleville on Saturday morning coaching the boys in town.

All the High school, Albert College and Public school boys are specially invited to be on hand Saturday morning at the High school Campus at 10-30 sharp.

Mr. Knox has the distinction of beating four Canadian Champions a few years ago. Beating such men as Bobbie Kerr, Olympic champion, 1908, Eddie Archibald in the Pole Vault, Calvin Bricker in the Running Broad Jump, and Tim O'Rourke in the Weights, and just recently at the Scottish games he defeated the best in Scotland in many cases just making one throw in the various events. Mr. Knox is a man 43 years of age and has challenged any man in the world his age in a set of games to be arranged, and he attributes his success to his clean living as he neither smokes or uses liquors.

NATURE'S MIRROR

When a woman is well and healthy—there's a sparkle in her eyes, a rose tint in her cheeks, and she has rich red blood. There's elasticity in every movement and a spring in her step. Love comes to every woman who has bounding health—but when she is pallid, dull eyed, languid, she has no magnetism nor does she appeal to any man.

Such a change in feelings and looks!

After suffering pain, feeling nervous, dizzy, weak and dragged down by weaknesses of her sex—with eyes sunken, black circles and pale cheeks—such a woman is quickly restored to health by the Favorite Prescription of Dr. Pierce. Changed, too, in looks, for after taking Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription the skin becomes clear, the eyes brighter, the cheeks plump. It is purely vegetable, contains no alcohol.

Feels Lost Without It

"We had never used Zam-Buk before but would feel lost without it now," writes a grateful Ontario mother, Mrs. T. G. Miller, of Winona.

"Whilst at play," she says, "my little two-year-old laddie ran up against a crosscut saw and gashed his forehead badly.

"As we happened to have a box of Zam-Buk in the house I got it down and applied a dressing to the injury. It speedily soothed away the pain.

"After treating the wound with Zam-Buk twice daily for three days, it healed so well that I was able to leave off the bandages. There's not even a scar now, thanks to Zam-Buk."

Our files hold thousands of similar letters confirming the wonderful soothing and healing power of Zam-Buk in Cuts, Burns and Scalds, and for curing chronic attacks of Eczema, Poisoned Sores, Ringworm, Ulcers, and Piles.

There is need of a thoroughly reliable antiseptic healer like Zam-Buk in every home. It ensures safety from festering and blood poison; prevents little sores from developing into obstinate and chronic skin disease. Zam-Buk has medicinal properties never associated with any ordinary ointment or salve, and it's purely herbal.

GLEAMS OF LIGHT

On Wednesday evening of this week the Women's Missionary Society of John Street Presbyterian Church held their annual Thank Offering meeting in the church lecture room with a good attendance, a number of visitors from other congregations being present. The speaker for the evening was Mrs. J. S. MacKay of Neemuch, India, who took for her subject "Gleams of Light Amid the Darkness" which was exceptionally interesting from start to finish. The offering which was the largest in the history of the Auxiliary included three new life members. At the close the Social Committee served refreshments and a social half hour was much enjoyed by all.

Inspector J. Miller of the Ontario Provincial Police Department was in this city last evening and with Sergt. Naphin of the local police force investigated an affair at Corbyville. On Sunday evening last Mr. John Orr of this city, night watchman at the Canadian Industrial Alcohol Company's plant at Corbyville was fired upon by an intruder the bullet passing through Orr's cap. Upon investigation it was ascertained that at the time the shot was fired another party was endeavoring to gain admittance to one of the company's warehouses. Every effort will be made to locate the party who fired the shot.

Part of a Child's Education

Don't think when you send a child to school and provide it with books you are doing your full duty. Most of what the little one learns is through seeing. It's part of a child's education to have good sight.

And it's your duty to have your child's eyes examined and the vision tested.

Long experience in taking care of children's eyes, makes certain that whatever should be done to protect and improve the child's sight will be done in the proper manner at Blackburn's.

BELLEVILLE, ONTARIO. SATURDAY, OCTOBER 16, 1920.

American Home Life Fosters Crime Says Preacher

FAMILY ALTAR UNKNOWN TO COUNTERACT MODERN DAY ABSORPTION IN MATERIAL INTERESTS, WHILE CHILDREN REMOVED FROM PARENTAL AUTHORITY IN PURSUIT OF PLEASURE.

TOKIO, Oct. 16.—Failure of home life and not the failure of the church was held to be responsible for the "social unrest, the sin and crime and shame that abounds on every hand," by the Rev. W. E. Biederwolf, D.D., of Chicago in an address before the World's Sunday School Congress here last night. The speaker charged that 25 per cent. of the ministers of America do not themselves maintain family worship in their own homes."

OTHER CAUSES

The causes for the decadence of family worship were set forth by the speaker as follows: "1. The quickening of a man's natural tendency to skepticism, so largely induced in this day by subtle and sometimes open attack on the fundamentals of his faith in press, in university and unfrequently in pulpit. The first point at which spiritual decay manifests is invariably in the neglect of family worship, if indeed it even so much as held a place in the life of the home.

"2. The nervous, feverish rush of modern life as evidenced by the inordinate absorption in material interests. Modern life is a dash through a crowd A man hardly has time to stop and tie his shoe-string. It is a race to keep pace with steam and electricity.

"3. The disruption of the family union. The latter was caused," said Dr. Biederwolf, "first, by the prevailing method of education which practically removes boys and girls from immediate and continuous parental influence in spiritual things for a period running between the ages of seven and twenty-one, and second, by the excessive pursuit of pleasure.

"Legitimate as this desire is, when all one's pleasures are found outside the home circle the family life from the standpoint just now under consideration must consequently suffer," he concluded.

Act Is Proving A Great Success

Under Its Terms Insurance Totaling Nearly $1,600,000 Has Been Secured

OTTAWA Oct. 16—Insurance to the amount of nearly $1,600,000 has been issued by the Dominion Government since the Returned Soldiers' Act has become effective. Already about $15,000 has been received in premiums and hundreds of inquiries are being received at the head office of the department here.

The majority of the policies issued so far have been for $5,000 the maximum that may be obtained under the Act by an individual.

An outstanding feature of the operation of the Soldiers' Insurance Department is that most of the policy holders are fit men. The scheme was originally intended for returned men of impaired health who were unable to obtain life insurance from insurance companies, but a very large number of fit men are taking advantage of the favorable rates. This is probably due to the fact that premiums must be paid monthly and it is much easier for the men of limited means to carry this insurance.

It is stated among those who have insured under the act are a large number of insurance agents, including several chief officials of leading insurance companies. A large number of physicians have also taken out policies.

No applications have been received from widows as yet, though the privileges of the act are available to widows of returned men who died subsequent to discharge or retirement from the army. This privilege is open only until September 1, 1921.

Lindsay Crawford Dropped By Irish

Eliminated From Speakers at the Self-Determination League Convention

OTTAWA, Oct. 15.—Overnight development in connection with the proposed convention of the Irish Self-Determination League in St. Patrick's Hall here on Saturday and Sunday nights are that the moderate element of the league's local membership has been successful in making its voice heard and has become, for the time being at least, dictator of the policy to be advocated at the convention.

One result of the victory of the moderates has been the elimination from the list of speakers of Lindsay Crawford. The list of speakers comprises English speaking Canadians and unless further changes are made no out-and-out Irishman, whether Protestant or Catholic, will be permitted to air his views at the convention. Frank Cahill, M.P. for Pontiac, and G. W. Gerish, member for the Independent Socialist party of Montreal, have also been struck off the list of official speakers.

Will there be a row here on Saturday night If so, official Ottawa is not worrying, and the attitude of the average representative citizen, as expressed in interviews this morning is decidedly one of indifference.

Political Tempest Rages In England

Asquith Attacks Lloyd George While Carson Scores Asquith

LONDON, Oct. 16.—The political tempest which has been aroused by the recent pronouncements of prominent men on the Irish problem, notably by Premier Lloyd George, Viscount Grey and former Premier Asquith, received a fresh impetus today when Mr. Asquith bitterly attacked Mr. Lloyd George while at the same time Sir Edward Carson, the Ulster Unionist leader, made an equally acrimonious assault on Mr. Asquith.

Speaking at Ayr with reference to Mr. Llyod George's Welsh address, Mr. Asquith declared that "all the Premier's flippancies and all his vulgarities have not diverted and cannot divert, attention from the out-standing fact of his confession of political bankruptcy."

He said that the Premier's speech would be interpreted as, at least, countenancing the reprisals in Ireland.

Sir Edward Carson, on his part, in a speech in London, asserted that Mr. Asquith, at the most critical moment in the Irish situation, was attempting to minimize the efforts toward a solution. A man who would do that for the purpose of gaining support for his party issues, he declared, was a traitor to his country.

Regarding the reprisals, Mr. Asquith said he was confident that when Parliament reassembled it would insist upon an independent and impartial inquiry into the reprisal cases, which "were not acts of self-defence, but blind vengeance."

Referring to the burning of creameries, he declared that no parallel to these reprisals could be found except in the achievements of the Germans. So far as he knew no one concerned in the outrages of the past four months had been punished. He concluded with a condemnation of what he called the makeshift Home Rule bill now before Parliament.

Sir Edward Carson, discussing proposals put forward by the Premier for Home Rule for the south and west counties and also for Ulster, said that a majority for this was secured but he personally thought it was cruel to the people of Ireland at present to try to lead Ireland into a political war for independence. If once that war broke out it could not be ended during the present generation.

SHELBURNE COAL IS O.K. EXCEPT IT WON'T BURN

Shelburne, Oct. 15.—The great Shelburne coal discovery turns out to be a mistake on the part of too sanguine prospectors. The black rock which was taken to be coal is now stated to be fluospar and hornblende. It looks like coal, but lacks one essential quality: it won't burn. The rock formation on one farm upon which "discoveries" were made shows sample of both deposits, but it is a formation which precludes any possibility of coal Investigations were made by Government officials and by Mr. H. A. Harrington, Ontario Fuel Controller, and these gentlemen are satisfied that there is no coal in the vicinity. A report has been made to the Government.

Board Of Education Discuss School Affairs

A regular meeting of the Board of Education was held Friday evening with the following members present: A. McGie, chairman, F. S. Deacon, H. W. Ackerman, T. Marshall, Dr. A. O. Marshall, J. A. Higgs, A. E. Bailey, G. T. Woodley, D. V. Sinclair, C. Whelan, J. Elliott and W. R. McCreary.

Principal MacLaurin stated that the commercial department was overcrowded. He recommended a $25.00 scholarship for lower school examination. It was suggested that the technical and industrial advisory committee be appointed. He also recommended that all girls in the entrance classes be required to attend the household science class.

Teacher Resigned

Mr. Edgar Richardson tendered his resignation as a public school teacher to take place in December. The resignation was accepted.

Principal MacLaurin reported on the High School and industrial night classes.

Supply Teachers $4 Per Day.

The school management committee reported the appointment of various teachers during the vacation and recommended that $4 per day be the remuneration to supply teachers. The report was adopted.

Authority was granted by the board for the formation of a fund for a memorial tablet for the fallen boys of Belleville High School.

The board decided to establish a twenty-five dollar scholarship for the lower School in the High School, on the Principal's recommendation.

Household Science

Principal MacLaurin, who spoke at the request of the Board, said that there was a resolution on the minutes requiring girls in the entrance classes to attend the household science class at the High School. The work was not repeated in the High School. He asked that the classes sent be uniform.

Col. D. Barragar, principal of Queen Mary school, told why he favored sending the junior fourth girls to the household science class instead of senior fourth girls.

Principal Mott, of Queen Alexandra school told why he sent girls of lower grades. He believed it resulted in the greatest good to the greatest number. He hoped the board would allow this to be continued.

Mr. Sinclair said this was the best department in the schools and urged that next year full advantage be taken and more uniform classes be sent up.

On the motion of Mr. Bailey no action was taken with the recommendation. In the meantime the inspector and the principals may take up the question and try and reach a solution.

Night Latin Classes.

Principal MacLaurin brought up the question of opening a Latin class in the night school for students deserving to improve their knowledge of latin, and equip them for matriculation. This is not a subject for the salary of the teacher of which the department gives any assistance, as this is a subject taught in the High school.

Mr. McGie thought the board would provide the quarters and the pupils pay for the tuition.

Mr. Deacon moved that the board pay half the expense of tuition. Principal MacLaurin said most cities had night classes for students who had no opportunity to complete matriculation studies during the day. The motion carried.

The board decided to pay the expense, $35, of the cadet corps of the Belleville High School on their visit to Napanee.

The board donated $20 toward the public school field day expenses. The matter of the appointment of an attendance officer was referred to the school management committee.

There is a considerable amount of truancy among the children it was stated.

Open Air Rinks.

Mr. McCreary brought up the question of constructing open air rinks at the four public schools.

On his motion a committee of Dr. Marshall, G. T. Woodley and W. R. McCreary was appointed to carry on the work. The total expenditure is limited to $500.

Mr. McGie urged the board to "get busy" on the plans and specifications for a collegiate.

HERBERT HOOVER

who spoke at the Canadian Red Cross Dinner at Toronto, October 15th, on behalf of the British Empire War Relief Fund to combat disease and distress in the war-stricken areas of Europe. Mr. Hoover was American Food Administrator during the war and was Director-General of Relief in Europe for the Allies and Associated Governments after the Armistice. It was Mr. Hoover's discerning genius which organized the saving meal a day of fat, sugar and milk for Belgian children during the occupation. After the Armistice Mr. Hoover organized the European Children's Relief Administration, whereby, at its maximum about 3,500,000 children in some twelve of the liberated countries received one supplementary meal a day to bring them through into normal growth and health.

Mr. Hoover commended very earnestly the Canadian Red Cross Appeal for funds to fight disease and to save the children in the war-stricken poorer countries of Europe. He said that the American Children's Relief Administration in Europe would co-operate in every possible way to aid in the distribution of supplies for the children through approved national and local agencies in the name of the Canadian Red Cross.

Prince Of Wales' Marriage Is Topic

Secrecy Prevails But Assumed Engagement is Now Imminent.

London, Oct. 15.—Everyone is discussing the London Times' editorial on the marriage of the Prince of Wales. The editorial is most delicate in tone and tells the Prince that the peoples of the British Empire, while entertaining the strongest desire to respect his privacy, are earnestly hoping soon to hear he is contemplating a marriage of true happiness.

The Times adds significantly, "we doubt whether there is now need—there may have been before the war—to limit the Prince's choice to the circle of royal blood".

Knowing Lord Northcliffe's happy knack of journalistic anticipation, it is assumed the announcement of the Prince's engagement is now imminent Many rumors are about but the utmost secrecy has so far been observed

One authority says:

"Secrecy does not exist, merely because as yet there is no particular lady in mind. When the name of the future Queen of England does transpire, popular sentiment will thoroughly approve and loudly applaud the choice. It will reveal the Prince as quite a romantic and discriminating Prince Charming, to employ the pseudonym popularly applied to the Prince nowadays, and cordially disliked by the hero thereof. The choice will, moreover, afford another proof of the progressive ideas now pervading the most exalted circles here."

CANADIAN W.C.T.U. IS ITS NEW NAME.

Windsor, N.S., Oct. 16.—The chief business conducted yesterday by the Dominion Women's Christian Temperance Union convention was the election of officers, as follows: President, Mrs. Gordon Wright, London; First Vice-President Mrs. L.C. McKinney, Alberta; Second Vice-President, Mrs. Asa Gordon, Ottawa; Corresponding Secretary, Mrs. C. Ward, Ontario; Recording Secretary, Mrs. W. T. C. Brown, Kingston, Ont.; Treasurer, Mrs. James Mabon, Montreal; Secretary, Y. Branch, Miss Edward, Ontario; Assistant-Secretary, Y. Branch, Mrs. Oliver, Magog, Que.; Honorary Y. Secretary, Miss Eleanor Smith, Windsor, N.S.; Secretary L. T. L. Mrs. Cushing, Quebec.

By resolution the convention decided to change the name to "Canadian Women's Christian Temperance Union".

Receipts Grow So Do Expenses

Toronto and Kingston Synod Budget For Coming Year $445,000.

Toronto and Kingston Presbyterian Synod closed its annual meeting last evening, after a day spent in disposing of routine business. The budget for the Synod was the chief subject considered at the morning sederunt. The allocations for the coming year amount to $446,000, which far exceeds that of any other year. It was estimated that the receipts for the past eight months had increased 13 per cent., and that expenditures had advanced nearly 50 per cent.

Speaking on the necessity of increased liberality on the part of congregations, Rev. D. L. Gordon stated that children were spending more on ice cream, candies and the movies every week than their parents were contributing to the treasury of the Lord. He advocated the tithing system of giving, and urged ministers to keep the missionary idea constantly before their people.

Rev. P. T. Pilkey of Owen Sound, speaking on "Life Service," quoted some statistics which showed that there were 2,138 names of Presbyterian ministers listed, but 1,637 were actively engaged in the ministry.

The Synod recommended that a "Life Service Committee" be formed in each community among the students and colleges for carrying on the work formerly allotted to the Committee on Systematic Giving.

Thrilling Chase For Thieves On Streets Of N.Y.

Police Open Fire on Fugitive Cab Containing Two Women—Arrests Effected.

New York, Oct. 15.—A wild taxicab chase along Broadway from 51st street to 42nd street, with two detectives on the running boards of the second machine spouting bullets and flame from their revolvers, crashed into the early morning life of the Tenderloin and stirred Longacre Square into an activity that has not been seen for many, many days.

In the first taxi were two screaming women, crouching on the floor as their machine shot along at a fearful pace. The patter of bullets resounded on the back of the hack. As the chase proceeded thirty other taxis filled with homeward-bound parties turned and joined in the pursuit, the stream resembling an auto race at Sheepshead Bay.

Down from 51st street the chase kept up and into Longacre Square, where the shots boomed like Fourth of July, brought men and women pouring out of all-night restaurants, and spectators filled the windows of hotels and apartment houses in pyjamas and kimonos. At 42nd street the first cab pulled up, and in less than a minute the occupants were trotted out, while one of the pursuers held a revolver at the head of the chauffer.

The women gave the names of Virginia Pell, 22, a manicurist, and Grace Moore, 25, both of 303 West 51st st. They were locked up at the West 47th street station, charged with grand larceny, and Thomas McCarren, of 105 West 53rd street, the chauffer, was charged with aiding and abetting the escape of prisoners.

RAID ON CITY HALL MADE BY MILITARY

Cork, Oct. 16.—The first raid on the Cork City Hall since Terence MacSwiney, the Lord Mayor, was arrested last August, took place shortly before noon yesterday, when four lorries mounting a Lewis gun and an armored car drove up and took possession of the building. The raiders remained for more than an hour. They made one arrest, John Sager, a clerk in the highways department, on whom they found a ticket for a raffle for a revolver.

Every person in the building was rounded up and with hands in the air was sent to the corridor on the second floor, where a personal search was made. In the meantime there was a systematic search of the various department offices.

Officials of the Treasury department asert that 33 pounds which were private funds, are mising from the safe.

Some English Miners Have Already Ceased To Work

PUBLIC WAITING ANXIOUSLY BEGINNING OF BATTLE WHICH MAY HAVE SERIOUS CONSEQUENCES—GOVERNMENT TAKES ACTION TO COPE WITH CRISIS—TRANSPORT WORKERS MAY STRIKE IN SYMPATHY.

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer, Canadian Press, Limited.

LONDON, Oct. 16.—Preparations for the great industrial struggle precipitated by the decision of delegates of the British coal miners to cease work went forward grimly today.

The machinery established by the Government to cope with the crisis was working smoothly at full speed. The miners for their part were equally active. Some of them, notably in Derbyshire and Nottinghamshire, already had ceased work at the end of their shift. Meanwhile the public is waiting anxiously, even fearfully, for the real beginning of the battle whose outcome none can foresee.

Since the action of the miners hits at the vitals of the country the issue of greatest importance which was hanging in the balance was whether the railroad men and transport workers would give their active support to the miners. This morning the executive committee of the National Union of Railroad Men decided to call a special conference of delegates for Wednesday next when a decision will be taken as to whether the railway men shall support the miners through a sympathetic strike. Meanwhile railway employees will remain at work. The National Faction of Transport Workers declined to indicate its position. The question may be considered at a meeting of the executive committee on Monday.

The special investigating committee of the New York State Chamber of Commerce and New York States waterways Association also went on record as opposed to the new project.

Reds Concentrate On Armenian Border

Planned to Join Turks in War on Armenia

PARIS, Oct. 16.—The Bolsheviki are carrying out a huge program of military concentration on the Armenian frontier with the Turks in war on Armenia, according to advices reaching the Foreign Office Tuesday.

Soviet forces have landed material at Trebizond, it is reported and the Russian vanguard is marching on Kars. Ardagan has been captured and the advance is continuing.

Fear was expressed at the Foreign Office that in case the Bolshevik plan for joining the Turkish treaty of Neuilly will be jeopardized.

Reports to the French Foreign Office today said Bolshevik troops had advanced against General Wrangel on the Sea of Azov, re-capturing several towns.

KINGSTON INDUSTRIES MAKING REDUCTIONS.

Kingston, Oct. 16.—That the labor situation in this city is serious and that there is every indication that it will become more so as the winter appears, was stated to-day by Major W. A. Stroud, Superintendent of the Ontario Government Bureau here.

He pointed out that one industry in the city employing 15 men has issued notice of a drop in wages of 15 per cent. and a big reduction in output. Another, which up till a very short time ago was paying 50 cents an hour, is now paying 35 cents, and getting plenty of workmen at that figure, while still another is employing only 25 persons, where formerly it employed 100.

WARSAW, Oct. 16.—Smashing of the Sixth Bolshevik Division by the Poles in the resumption of fighting on the Russo-Polish line is reported in last night's official war office statement. I tried different medicines I saw advertised and was treated by doctors in Amherst, also in my home town, but the Rheumatism came back.

In 1916, I saw in an advertisement that 'Fruit-a-tives' would stop Rheumatism, and took one box and got relief; then I took them right along for about six months and the Rheumatism was all gone and I have never felt it since.

Anyone who would care to write me as regards 'Fruit-a-tives' I would be glad to tell them what 'Fruit-a-tives' did for me."

G.W.V.A. BOXING BOUTS INTERESTING

Under the auspices of the officers and members of the Argyle Light Infantry of this city, a boxing tournament was held at the Armouries last night and the event was well patronized. This is only one of a series of such events and those in charge are to be congratulated upon the success of their efforts in providing for the spectators boxers of no mean ability. There was, however, some disappointment experienced owing to the fact that the main 10-round bout advertised between Ted Joyce of Toronto and Chris Newton of Toronto, finalist in featherweight class of 1920 Olympic games at Antwerp did not materialize. Both boxers were on hand but it was announced that the Boxing Commission of Ontario had at the last minute refused to allow Joyce to go ten rounds here as he has to box at Toronto on Monday night against Wallace of Buffalo to defend the championship in his class. Those present, however, had an opportunity of seeing Joyce in the ring as he had a three round bout with Chris Newton. The former refereed the two preliminary bouts of the evening and Mr. Henry McKeown who is manager for Joyce refereed the main bouts. Altogether the spectators got the worth of their money and during the evening saw some good boxing. It was also a noticeable fact that it was, as usual in Belleville, a most orderly crowd and but few remarks were addressed to the contestants.

PRELIMINARIES

The first event was a three round bout between two boys, Walter Keller and Robert Smith, both of this city and it proved quite interesting to the spectators. Both lads showed up well and handled the gloves in a manner that was pleasing.

The second event was a three round bout between Harry McDonald and Theodore Maraskas, both of this city. It was apparent from the start that McDonald was no match for his swarthy opponent, but he remained in the ring for the three rounds. Maraskas has every appearance of being a good boxer under proper training.

MAIN BOUTS

The first main bout of ten rounds was between Jack Jarvis of Toronto and Red Kettle of Niagara Falls. This proved to be the best event on the programme, both boxers mixing up in the rounds contested. In the sixth round Jarvis had the appearance of being all but in and was down for a count of six but he came back strong and had Red Kettle guessing and groggy when the bell sounded for the conclusion of the bout.

The second main bout was between Chris Newton of Toronto, finalist in featherweight class at 1920 Olympic games at Antwerp and Knockout Ross of Oshawa. This was scheduled for 10 rounds. Both boxers have a well-known reputation in the fistic art and they demonstrated their ability to use the gloves to advantage. Both did considerable sparring in the first five Ross appeared to be groggy. That rounds and in the sixth Knockout Newton had the advantage of his opponent it was apparent and had the bout continued in all probability would have scored a knock out. He is certainly a clever boxer, and is there with the punch.

At the conclusion of the sixth round Knockout Ross apparently had all the boxing he desired as he quit the game. Newton several times received the plaudits of the audience by his clever work.

The programme was closed with a three round exhibition bout between Ted Joyce and Chris Newton. In the three rounds neither boxer inflicted any punishment, in fact it was to use a familiar phrase rather tame. It was evident that neither boxer exerted himself to any extent. It however gave those who are expert judges of the art a line on the prowess of Joyce, who no doubt is clever. He is quick upon his feet and handles well his fists.

The G.W.V.A. band was present and during the evening rendered a number of selections which were much appreciated.

In the Friday night game the Grand Trunk Shops and the Steel Company staged a game that was the closest of the season to date, when the Steel Company managed to win out by a margin of five. The question is—Did they "Steal" this game or was the Grand Trunk team just a little weak in the pinches? Gardner of the Grand Trunk rolled the high single string with 170 and was also high man for the night with 421. Monday night's game will be Merchants vs. Curlers.

NEW BOOKINGS FOR GRIFFIN'S

The management of Griffin's announce the early presentation in Belleville of the United Artist's Co-operation pictures, which are being screened with wonderful success at Loew's New Uptown Theatre, Toronto and which includes among others, the latest pictures of D. W. Griffith, Douglas Fairbanks, Mary Pickford and the special 5-reel Mack Sennett comedies. The first to be presented in Belleville will be Mary Pickford in the glad play 'Pollyanna,' which will be shown here Monday to Wednesday, October 25th, 26th, and 27th. An innovation that will, no doubt, prove popular will be the presentation of a refined vaudeville specialty every two weeks, each act presented will be of guaranteed quality, some of the acts consisting of six people, and consisting mostly of musical and vocal numbers. The first vaudeville act to be presented here will be next Thursday to Saturday, when Professor Pahashitas Indoor Animal Circus will be the offering. The Griffin Management guarantee this attraction to their patrons. Be sure and bring the children to the animal circus.

"ENLIGHTEN THY DAUGHTER"

"Enlighten Thy Daughter," the most talked of photoplay in Canada to day, is being screened at Griffin's for the last time today, matinee and night. This photodrama has received more favorable comment locally than any that has been screened here in some time and shows how two girls, Ruth brought up in the atmosphere of loving parents who guide her every footstep; Lillian, brought up in an equally loving atmosphere but through a sense of false modesty, the mother hesitated enlightening her daughter—until it was too late. The disaster that befalls Lillian and the influence it works directly upon Ruth's life tells powerful screen story that will never be forgotten. It is a story that we see in everyday life, but goes unobserved—until brought home forcibly to us. "Enlighten Thy Daughter" reveals it to you with a shock. It handles a delicate problem in a way that tells the truth, missing nothing, yet without offense. Charles Hutchison in "The Whirlwind" serial, "The Roaring Lovers," a funny 2-reel Century comedy, and an interesting Outing Chester Travelogue are also being shown in addition to the feature offering.

WILL ROGERS IN "JUBILO"

If a prophet had told Jubilo that he was to inherit fortunes or be crowned King of the Jiji Island he might have believed him, but if anybody had told him that some day he would go to work and fall in love, well, Jubilo would fly into a panic. For he was a highly respectable hobo, and what member of his cult, no matter how lowly, would admit susceptibility to the despised instincts of work and love. But it did happen Jubilo did actually fall in love, and as a result did go to to work. And he found himself plunged into a whirlwind adventure which started with a big train hold-up, and from it emerged a new Jubilo—a Jubilo who knew the meaning of work, fighting and romance. You must see Will Rogers, the screen's most human star as "Jubilo," in his new Goldwyn play. It's bright and funny; it throbs with the real drama of human lives; it's one of the most delightfully entertaining pictures you've seen in a long time. "Jubilo" is being shown at Griffin's this Monday to Wednesday with a special Thanksgiving matinee Monday at 2.30, along with Larry Semon in a 2-reel comedy scream, Jack Dempsey in a new chapter of the "Daredevil Jack" serial and an interesting Burton Holmes Travelogue.

Guard The Children From Autumn Colds

The Fall is the most severe season of the year for colds—one day is warm the next cold and wet and unless the mother is on her guard, the little ones are seized with colds that may hang on all winter. Baby's Own Tablets are mothers' best friend in preventing or banishing colds. They act as a gentle laxative, keeping the bowels and stomach free and sweet. An occasional dose of the Tablets will prevent colds, or if it does come on suddenly their prompt use will relieve the baby. The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine. Co., Brockville, Ont.

THE MENNONITES.

They Propose a German Colony In Quebec.

The Mennonites in Manitoba — or rather some of them—are anxious to remove from a province in which they are required to educate their children up to the public school standard and give them a knowledge of the English language. They talked of removing to Brazil and the Mississippi, but have not done so. The leaders may be willing enough, but most of their followers are reluctant to give up their fine holdings in Manitoba. The latest proposal is that they shall remove to Abitibi in the Province of Quebec. The principal condition which they submit for agreement with the Province of Quebec is:

"The privilege of our own private school buildings and maintaining them at our own expense, and to educate our children in the same, according to our creed in our own customary German language without any restrictions."

This clause in the proposed conditions is well worded for presentation to the Government of Quebec, closely resembling as it does that which French settlers outside Quebec are asking for. But, while the French language has constitutional rights and the only question is as to how far they extend, the German language has no footing in this country except what agreement or usage may give it.

The Mennonites evidently want to use the German language and no other, and their leaders want the children to get such education as they prescribe and no more. They reject the theory that the state must concern itself with the intelligence and condition of its citizens. If Quebec could make such an agreement as is proposed with a thousand people why not with fifty thousand? And if the thing could be done without limit, the question arises whether a new province might not eventually Germanize itself altogether.

Want Cats Taxed.

The health departments of several Canadian cities have started in to round up and destroy the stray cats, which in holiday time are more than ordinarily numerous because so many people leaving town make no provision for the care of their feline pets.

In any community there is usually one cat for every three persons. Nobody has yet been able to explain why dogs should be taxed and cats not. In German cities there is never a superfluity of cats, because every one must pay annually for a license. Where the ownership of a cat is undetermined, the tax is assessed against the block in which it is found.

The dog tax keeps down the number of dogs to a reasonable limit, and has a tendency to eliminate curs; but in this country there is no limit on the number of cats except that of available food supply, which, for the pussies, is supplemented importantly by garbage. It is a stupid cat that cannot yank the cover off a garbage pail.

Nobody is allowed to kill a neighbor's cat, no matter how obnoxious the animal makes itself by yowling at night, by digging up flower-beds or otherwise. Any one who wants to make himself thoroughly disliked in a neighborhood and regarded as a disgusting brute, has only to gain a reputation as a cat-killer.

It is a rare cat that will tackle a rat, and the domestic pussy does not bother much with mice; it prefers birds. But the interest taken by health departments in cat control is due to the well-established suspicion that cats help to spread many epidemic diseases, particularly ringworm, measles and scarlet fever.

A Profiteering Tale.

While Nova Scotians were paying 25 cents a pound for sugar most of the summer, one of the reasons given for the high price being an alleged scarcity, millions of pounds owned by New York speculators were stored right in Halifax, in the Dominion Government warehouse at the ocean terminals. Having been stored there for nearly four months in the hottest season of the year, part of the 6,500,000 pounds which still remain is now beginning to cake, and hence is deteriorating in value.

Early in May 112,000 bags of sugar were sold by a refinery to some New York brokers, and the whole was stored in Government warehouse No. 25 in Halifax. Since then nearly half has been shipped to New York and elsewhere. The sugar has changed ownership several times, it is stated, without being moved from the warehouse, each time at an advance in price, but now that sugar is on the decline everywhere, the portion still remaining would cause the owners a loss anyway, even if the quality remained high. The sugar is, or was, best granulated, and is in a huge, long pile in the warehouse, which is a hot, sultry building in warm weather, and some of the sugar, particularly the bags at the bottom of the big pile, is feeling the effects of weather and pressure from above. During the shipyard strike in Halifax recently about $2,000,000 riot insurance was placed on it.

Canadian Boat for India.

The Canadian Pioneer, 8,400 tons, one of the new Government cargo vessels, has left Montreal for India to open up a Canadian Government trade route with the Orient. The Pioneer carries as part of her cargo many automobiles. The vessel is one of the fleet of forty ships now in the service of the Canadian Government. Twenty-six more are under construction.

Big Crop of Wild Rice.

Duck hunters, returning from Rice Lake, Ont., report a very bountiful crop of rice this season. The old beds at the eastern end of the lake seem to have revived and the rice has grown to such a height and is so well loaded with grain that a canoe cannot readily be paddled through. This has not been the case for many years.

GOVERNMENT REPORT ON FARM CONDITIONS

The following is a summary of the weekly reports made by the Agricultural Representatives to the Ontario Department of Agriculture:

Later sowing than usual of fall wheat has been the feature of the season. Kent says: 'Farmers have been sowing all week and are not through yet. This is the latest seeding in the county for years, but the weather is favorable."

Fall plowing has been more or less delayed by the hard condition of the soil, heavy threshings, and the desire to get the silos filled before the frost comes. In this connection the opinion of several representatives is voiced by Frontenac: "Farmers are experiencing the lack of machines for threshing and silo filling. The situation in regard to threshing is especially acute, for the reason of the abundance of stray, some farmers having from two to three days threshing when one day would have been sufficient last year. The tendency will be towards the securing of outfits to meet the demands for threshing and silo filling by farmers in small groups".

The threshing of oats is revealing some large individual yields. One man in Frontenac reports 110 bushels to the acre.

Fort William speaks highly of the appearance of the potatoes raised for certified seed. Some reports in older Ontario are not so favorable regarding the quality of the late potatoes, as some rot has appeared.

Most of the corn has matured splendidly with the comparatively warm fall weather, but it is difficult to get men and machinery to handle the crop quickly. Renfrew complains of some frozen corn.

Grey says: "Some yields of sweet clover seed run as high as eighteen bushels to the acre while others go only about eight bushels. One man who brought in about sixty bushels was paid $8 a bushel.

Sugar beets are now being dug and shipped to the factories. They have done well. Recent dry weather, however, is said to be telling on turnips.

In the Niagara Peninsula grapes are selling at from $85 to $100 a ton.

Some representatives say that the drop in the price of wheat is causing an increased haul to market, while others state that the effect has been to bring marketing almost to a standstill.

Lincoln reports that some, market gardeners are quitting land operations to work on the Canal at 85 cents an hour.

There are fewe beef cattle an hand than usual. Bruce reports that a considerable number of live stock have been shipped recently, and that stockers are being brought in and sold by auction at 11 to 12 cents a lb. Frontenac states that one drover has been shipping one or two carloads of cattle weekly to the United States by way of Cape Vincent. Grey says that three carloads of live stock were sent out of the County in each of the last two weeks. Oxford reports that four carloads of heifers were shipped to Saskatchewan during the week to the order of the Live Stock Commissioner of that Province. Waterloo states that during the last week four carloads of western stosks were brought in by one drover.

Referring to the closing on a very short notice of a number of milk receiving stations in connection with powder factories, the Oxford representative says: "The blow has been a severe one to the milk industry in this County".

Lambs are being marketer freely, but however, points out that wool has gone up to 35c a lb., where only 15c was offered two months ago.

IVANHOE

Quite a number from this vicinity visited the convention held at Tweed on Tuesday.

Misses Louella Benson and Lottie Moore spent Tuesday and Wednesday at Mrs. Ernest Bateman's Lodgeroom.

The Misses Tanner and Bessie Fleming attended Norwood Fair.

Mrs. Fleming visited her daughter, Mrs. C. B. Hamm recently.

Miss Laura Moore has returned home for Thanksgiving.

Our teacher, Mrs. Rowe, is attending the convention at Tweed.

Miss Louella Benson spent Monday at Foxboro.

POINT ANNE

The lawn party held on the school grounds recently was a splendid success. Mrs. E. A. Teney and her band of willing workers had charge of the affair and over seventy-five dollars was realized in aid of the Methodist Church Fund.

The Boy Scouts held a corn roast in the school grounds on the 17th of September. A goodly number of youngsters enjoyed a very delightful evening.

Mr. Frank MacDonald and family, Mr. G. C. MacDonald and family returned home after spending the summer in Wellington.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence MacDonald returned home from Consecon where they spent the summer at their cottage on the Lake Shore.

Miss Dorothea Reafher is attending High School in Belleville.

"You know my father had a nervous breakdown when he was my age."

"AND what has that to do with you?"

"Well, I have been worried a lot lately, and feel that my nerves are playing out. Besides, I believe that nervous troubles are hereditary, and I guess I am doomed."

"Now, old man, the sooner you get rid of that idea the better. You may inherit a nervous temperament, but not disease of the nerves. It is up to you to take care of yourself, and not allow your nervous system to become exhausted."

"But I am afraid it is too late, so far as I am concerned. My nerves are all shot to pieces. I am restless and fidgety, cannot sleep at night. Everything seems to worry me, and I cannot stand it much longer."

"Why don't you go away for a while and take a good rest?"

"Simply because I cannot. My business requires my constant attention."

"Then I will tell you what to do. Go to your druggist and buy a dozen boxes of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. I will guarantee that by the time you have used it you will feel like an entirely different man."

"Oh, I have been taking medicine enough from my doctor, and what good has it done me? Perhaps I have had a night's rest occasionally as a result, but certainly no permanent benefit."

"That is just the point. You have sought relief by deadening the nerves instead of restoring them. Dr. Chase's Nerve Food works on an entirely different principle. It forms new, rich blood, and nourishes the depleted nerve cells back to health and vigor."

"That sounds good to me."

"Because the Nerve Food works in this natural way you cannot expect much change after the first box or two. It takes a little time to build up an exhausted nervous system, but if you have a little patience the results will make it worth your while."

"I will follow your advice, for I have been terribly oppressed of late by the hopeless outlook. I know you would not recommend Dr. Chase's Nerve Food unless you felt sure it would restore my health, so I shall do my part and give it a thorough trial."

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, 50c a box, all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Ltd., Toronto. Refuse substitutes, and look for portrait and signature of A. W. Chase, M.D., on the box you buy.

Miss Dora MacDonald spent her Thanksgiving holidays with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. G. M. MacDonald Kingston Road.

WINNIPEG TELEGRAM ABSORBED BY TRIBUNE

Winnipeg, Oct. 15.—Another important newspaper transaction, it is said, will be consummated on Saturday. Under it the Winnipeg Telegram will be absorbed by the Winnipeg Tribune and the Telegram's publication as a seperate newspaper will cease after this week. This will leave in the daily paper field in Winnipeg only the Tribune and the Free Press with morning and evening editions.

The Telegram has recently been owned and published by a company in which it is understood Davidson and Smith, grain operators, who are interested in a number of newspaper properties, had control. In former years it was regarded as a special organ of Hon. Robert Rogers. About two years ago the plant was seriously damaged by fire, resulting in a suspension of publication for some weeks. The Free Presh, as recently announced, is now controlled by the Southam interests.

The Bait.

While other maidens boated, bathed,
And flirted all the day,
On the hotel piazza she
Sewed busily away.

"Here is the wife for me at last,
Industrious," I said,
"And so domestic in her tastes."
And shortly we were wed.

Alas! My shirts are buttonless,
My socks are full of holes,
She gallivants both night and day
With kindred female souls.

"Why you have changed, my dear,"
I cried,
"And in so brief a span?"
"That sewing stunt was merely bait,"
She said, "to catch a man."

LITTLE WELSHMAN WARNS SINN FEIN

Premier Lloyd George has spoken on the Irish question, dissecting that bunch of trouble with his keen lance of logic and incidentally exposing Asquith's hollow bid for Irish votes and favor.

The British Premier has spoken plainly, leaving no possible room for misunderstanding.

During the war Britain's greatest cause of worry was Ireland and Germany's greatest hope of success, stated the Premier, and Great Britain's enemies will not be permitted to destroy the British Empire through Ireland. No campaign of murder or terrorism financed in Germany and the United States will have any effect except to bring ruin to Ireland and death to the conspirators.

The British Lion is waking up, and the Hun and Fenian plotters will find that murder as a sport is not profitable in the end.

David, the little Welshman, is just as brave and resourceful as that David of old who slew the braggart giant Goliath with a pebble from the brook and will apply methods which will check this campaign of cowardly murder and make Ireland safe for decent people.

HE PROFITS MOST WHO SERVES BEST

Writing in The Rotarian for October, Lucius E. Wilson furnishes much food for thought when he discusses the question, "What is Business?" He defines it as the organized means of satisfying human wants. No profit, he rightly asserts, is legitimate which is made because of the misfortunes of one's fellowmen. The socialist who assaults our institutions finds his opportunity in the shortcomings, injustice and unfairness of modern business. The individual who teaches that business should exist for profit and for service after, is teaching a false doctrine that will destroy business. If one teaches, this writer declares, that it is business to get and not to give, he is robbing business of its own defence against the onslaught of socialism.

In his assault against capitalism, the radical challenges the right to private property. He says it is wrong for a man to own anything; that everything should belong to all. We ought to be able to defend private ownership intelligently if we defend it at all. The right to own property has not always existed. That right or that privilege was non-existent when our ancient forebears pastured their flocks on the open plains of Asia Minor. No man owned a foot of land for himself. No man owned a sheep; no man owned a goat. That was the one time in mankind's history when no person could get another's goat. No man had a goat to get. But the tribal fathers discovered that a man would not till the soil, plant a crop and harvest it unless the tribe was organized to protect the industrious one in carrying through his plan. A man would not tend his flock with unceasing care unless organized society protected him in the enjoyment of part of the fruit of his labors. The simple fact is the basis of all our present-day intricate law of private property. Civilization evolved the right to private property because such a right tended to advance civilization itself. But if the right to private property is abused to such an extent that it becomes a menace to the advance of civilization, the society will rise up and destroy the whole system which fails to serve. There are only two fundamental philosophies of business in all the world. One is the philosophy of absolute selfishness which teaches a man to get all that he can while the getting is good. The other philosophy is expressed by the slogan of the Rotary Clubs, "He profits most who serves best"—a slogan that must not be interpreted in crass terms of dollars and cents, but which is so thoroughly human that it teaches men to recognize those greater human values which last after money is done.

Mackenzie King, Liberal leader, was overcome with "indignation," or indigestion, publicly, when he heard of the Board of Commerce sugar order. It is surmised that privately Mackenzie King was filled with unholy glee at such a political weapon being placed at his disposal. However, Premier Meighen quickly changed the situation by having the obnoxious order suspended. While it lasted it was a sweet morsel for the Kingites, the Globeites and all the little Hittites.

Premier Lloyd George is of the opinion that when Uncle Sam gets the election germ out of his system he will seek a reservation in the League of Nations. It is a safe bet, also, that when Uncle Sam enters the League of Nations the chorus, "We won the war," will be sung with variations, including "Who made the League? Winkie, Woodrow Wilson! Who are we—wee, wee, wee! Rah, rah, rah! Sizz, boom, bah! We made the league. We won the war. We made Wilson. Wilson made the Kaiser quit. OTHER VIEWS

OPOLY.

Baltimore Sun.

The theory of monopoly, of the exclusive right to perform a public utility service, involves a corresponding obligation to render that service satisfactory. If a monopoly cannot do that, the reason for the monopoly ceases. There is no question of gratitude or of inherent right in the relations between a public service corporation and the people. It is a pure question of business. It is to the popular interest to facilitate the work of the corporation and to grant it such additional revenues as will enable it to do the special task intrusted to it. But if it cannot do this or will not do it without imposing too great burdens or too heavy costs upon the public then it cannot logically or legitimately object to such competition as may supplement its inadequacy.

AGAINST PRICE REGULATION

St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Interference by the Government in the natural operation of the laws of trade during the war was made necessary because of abnormal conditions and national exigencies. Much other control of private matters was also assumed, but solely as a temporary war measure. The people want the government to head in the opposite direction, to surrender assumed power instead of assuming additional ones. Whatever prosperity the nation enjoys, whatever of development of industrial, commercial and social life our people have had, is the result of the play of natural forces, with freedom of individual action, held only within the bounds of honesty and right by the action of established law and the courts. There can be no freedom of development of industry and trade under the shadow of government interference through operation of a bureau.

POETS' CORNER

FALL O' THE YEAR.

Silver and mauve of sea holly, foxgloves all purple and snow,
Bells blue as sea in the sunlight, daisies like stars in a row;
Phlox where the wind loves to linger with a soft little sound like rain,
These are my garden's glory at the fall o' the year again.

Rosemary's green and gray tangles, basil and balm and rue,
Thyme in soft cushions of purple, lavender's mists of blue,
Mignonette's russet and amber, lad's love and marjolaine—
These make the sweets o' my garden at the fall o' the year again.

Hollyhocks splendid in satin, peach-hued and pink and pearl.
Fuschias like eardrops for fairies aswing to the wind's soft whirl,
Anemones curv'd like pale sea shells that cherish the waves' refrain—
'Mong them I roam ne'er rememb'ring the fall o' the year again.

—Augusta Hancock.

BLUE HAZE.

Beauty is garnered in the Autumn haze,
For the harvest come the reapers of the year—
Frost, and a wind that thrashes color clear
From sodden earth through chill, unquiet days,
Beauty is garnered, blue and gold and red—
Warm shapes, remembered scents of woodland ways.
All, all are gathered in the azure haze
That lingers, leaving Summer comforted.
The fruits of earth are shorn from hill and vale
Against the barren cold, provision stored
By man and beast—a comfortable hoard,
But only heaven remembers beauty. Frail
As gossamer, the net of misty blue
That draws from earth, through mellowing sun and rain,
The loveliness that shall return again
From some far freshening place beyond the dew!
As seeks a gleaner through the fields whence gold
Of grain is shorn, I search the wood and find
Only a scarlet leaf that's left behind,
And one late aster, challenging the cold.

—Linda Morris, in New York Times

When The Sea Gives Up Its Dead

A Talk On Thanksgiving

Do you really give thanks?—

What does Thanksgiving mean to you? Has it any spiritual significance, or is it merely an occasion for feasting?

It is not our purpose to preach, but it is our purpose to bring home to you some things for which, as a Canadian, you should give thanks.

Consider your welfare in contrast to the hopelessness of many Europeans, remembering that but for the spiritual and personal sacrifice of hundreds of thousands of our Soldiers and Seamen, Canada might be suffering as Europe is to-day.

Then consider those who still bear the loss of husbands and fathers and sons and who must continue to suffer this loss until the sea gives up its dead.

There are, in this country, wives and mothers and children whose husbands and sons and fathers just as surely laid down their lives for Canada's welfare and protection as did soldiers and sailors who died in battle.

Canada's Merchant Sailors—the unsung dead—the plain men of undaunted courage and spirit, who won for their grave the boundless deep. Cypress nor Yew shall weave for them their shade. Their memory is graven in the lonely hearts of waiting women and uncomprehending childhood.

During the war the people of Canada undertook to provide for such as these. They are the people's charge. The Navy League is merely their trustee—you are their hope and their refuge.

Special Note.—

After this year, the League expects to cease asking for funds for the relief of the Canadian dependents of Merchant Sailors who were killed on Active Service. With the Trust Funds now in hand, together with the sum set aside in the Budget, to be raised by public subscription this week, it should be possible to establish an endowment, the income from which will be sufficient to provide for these dependents until the need no longer exists.

But as many of these dependents are young children, the endowment must continue for a number of years, until they become self-supporting.

Their Faith is in You. Ye cannot—ye dare not Break Faith.

A Brave American.

From the United States came Bellenden S. Hutcheson, M.D., to join the Canadian Army Medical Corps when war broke out, and he was attached to the 75th Battalion. Now that the war is over he has returned to Illinois and is practicing medicine again in the city of Cairo. Here is the story of how he won the V.C. on September 2, 1918:

"For most conspicuous bravery and devotion to duty when, under most intense shell, machine gun and rifle fire, he went through the Queant-Drocourt Support Line with the battalion. Without hesitation and with utter disregard of personal safety, he remained on the field until every wounded man had been attended to. He dressed the wounds of a seriously wounded officer under terrible machine gun and shell fire, and, with the assistance of prisoners and of his own men, succeeded in evacuating him to safety, despite the fact that the bearer party suffered heavy casualties.

"Immediately afterwards he rushed forward, in full view of the enemy, under very heavy machine gun and rifle fire, to tend a wounded sergeant, and, having placed him in a shell hole, dressed his wounds. Captain Hutcheson performed many similar gallant acts, and, by his coolness and devotion to duty, many lives were saved."

Englishwomen In the West.

Mrs. Richardson Rice has been touring Canada at the instance of the women's Section of the Ministry of Employment in England. While she reports that she has not found that the bed of the English girl in Canada has been one of roses, she is convinced that in the main the women who have come out as the wives of Canadian soldiers are making good and are satisfied. Homesickness was one of the greatest obstacles to happiness and contentment.

She praised the Saskatchewan Government for the pains it was taking to see that incoming women got every facility to fit themselves into the new conditions with comfort and profit. Vancouver had 6,000 unemployed, and she found that school teachers had to go into domestic occupations. This was caused by the refusal to let them teach without permits.

Mrs. Rice claims that Canada is "sadly in need of population." She was perturbed by the presence and activity of so many Chinese and Japanese on the Pacific coast of Canada.

Greek Ancona.

Ancona, ancient port of the Adriatic, built by the Greeks of Syracuse about 380 B. C., is just the place where finds, such as are announced, might be expected. The very name Ancona is the Greek word for elbow, given to the port because of the shape of its harbor. And now, after centuries, peasants in the fields have come across some wonderful painted vases dating from the grand age of Greek art. Escaping the destruction inflicted by the Goths and the Longabards, these treasures had lain buried in the earth until the shovel of a peasant brought them to light. Ancona is as important now as she ever was, having been during the great war, the base of the Italian navy. She has had her accommodation enlarged within the last few months by the building of a quay which has been given the name of Captain Fryatt.

DIAMOND & HYDE

The Thirteenth Commandment

by
RUPERT HUGHES

Copyright by Harper & Brothers

"Where?" Daphne asked, with intrepidity, as she shook hands with Wetherell—a prize-fighter's preliminary handshake it was.

"Oh—er—just motoring about a bit."

"Thanks—I'd love it," Daphne dared to say, almost as much amazed as they were at hearing her accept the invitation that had not been given.

She was quite shameless from their point of view, but she felt that it would be unpardonable to let her brother's wife go unrebuked or at least unaided and unchaperoned on a cruise so perilous to reputation if not to character.

While she was at the miserable business she decided to make a good job of it. When they went down to the car she squeezed in between Leila and Wetherell. Leila blanched with jealousy and cold rage.

They dined at Long Beach and watched the dancers, in sullen mood. Wetherell ordered much champagne and would not listen to Leila's pleas that he let it alone. He frightened her a little by his reckless mood, and Daphne began to dread the journey home in the dark with champagned hands on the steering wheel.

After Daphne and he had executed a funeral dance Leila was emboldened to step out with him. They talked very earnestly and he seemed to horrify her by what he said to her. Daphne could not imagine what it was. Bayard had not told her of Wetherell's downfall from power.

Wetherell confessed his disgrace to Leila in the dance, and Leila was sickened with the sordid outcome of her romance. She had played with fire and got soot on her hands. She quit the dance and asked to be taken home.

Wetherell felt that she had turned against him and he reached for the last of the wine to fling it down his throat. Leila grimly took it from his fingers and emptied it in the ice bucket.

"Chauffeurs and champagne are a bad combination," she laughed, but there was a sneer on her lips.

"Oh, very well!" Wetherell sneered in turn. He paid for the dinner and tipped the waiter with the lavishness of a bankrupt. He tipped lavishly the man who guarded his car, and swung out into the road with an instant speed that would have been prettier if there had been less danger.

Daphne and Leila were good sports, but they were not merry. Wetherell furnished all the merriment, and his was from wine and despair. It was the wine that brought out the truth. He had to tell Daphne what he had told Leila, of his misfortune with his bally old government.

Wetherell Furnished All the Merriment and His Was From Wine and Despair.

He asked Daphne to explain to Bayard how sorry he was that he was involved in the crash.

"Your broth' Bayard's aw'fly nice fel', Miss Skip. He's got nicest li'l' wife in worl'. Perf'ly good li'l' girl. Straight as a string—straight as they make 'em. No nonsense about li'l' Leil'. I just love her—perf'ly hon-or'ble love. I'd do anything in worl' for Leil'—or li'l' Miss Daffy—or ol' broth' Bay'd. Tell him 'at, will you, like a goo' li'l' girl? Tell Bay' 'at, will-li?"

Daphne grew furious. She felt now that she had justified her presence here. She held Leila fast in her embrace and commanded Wetherell. "Slow down at once! Do you hear? Slow down this car!"

Wetherell laughed: "Bless li'l' heart. I'm goin' take you home. You're quite shafe with me—quite. Man that's born to be hanged never drown or get automokilled—that's good word—automokilled—eh, what?"

They whipped round a somber jut in [illegible] road, and his searchlight [illegible] the [illegible] painted instantly in white outlines against the black world a wagonload of sleepy children returning from some village church affair. They were singing, drowsily, "Merrilee we ro-la-long-ro-la-long."

Daphne and Leila seemed to die at once.

Wetherell groaned, "Oh, my God, the li'l' chil'ren!"

There was nothing for Wetherell to do but what he did. He spun his wheel and drove his thunderbolt into an open concrete culvert. There was a furious racket. The car turned a somersault and crumpled in a shuddering mass.

Wetherell, pinioned under the wheel, was knocked this way and that and his beautiful head cracked on the concrete like a china doll's.

Leila was snatched from the car as if invisible hands had caught her exquisite body for a lash to flog a telephone pole with, then threw her into a ditch. Daphne was flung and battered and thrust under the car when it turned over. And then the gasoline spilled from the shattered tank and caught fire.

CHAPTER XXV.

Underneath the machine lay the relics of Wetherell, who would suffer no more here. Close by was Daphne Kip, whom a brief unconsciousness gave a short furlough from torture. She was not alive enough to be afraid of the long, lean flames about the gasoline tank, though they kept springing at her like wolfhounds held in a weakening leash. They had not yet quite reached her, but they missed her less and less.

A small distance off, Leila lay still, in almost her first ungraceful attitude, oblivious for a few moments of the outrages the blind forces of momentum had wreaked on her with the fury of a Bill Sikes trying to beat a woman to death.

The chauffeurs and passengers of cars that drew up in lengthening queues ran to the scene of Wetherell's disaster.

At first they could not see Wethcrell, but they saw Daphne and her peril, and they set frantically to work to drag her free. But she was so caught that they could not release her until they should remove the car. They pulled and heaved, but it was jammed into the culvert and the ditch so tight that they could not budge it, though they took risk enough and suffered blistered hands and charred clothes.

At last one chauffeur fastened a chain to the rear axle of Wetherell's car and to the front axle of his, and,

Rheumatic People

Can Only Find Relief by Enriching The Blood.

"Rheumatism is a disorder of the blood. It attacks people when the blood is overcharged with acid and impurities, thus setting up inflammation in the muscles and joints. Wet weather or cold weather may start the tortures of rheumatism, but is not the cause. The cause is in the blood and the blood only. Victims of this malady have every reason to fear the first dull ache in the limbs and joints, followed by sharp pains through the flesh and muscles; these are the symptoms of poison in the blood which will shortly leave the victim painracked and helpless.

There is only one way to cure rheumatism, and that is through the blood. Liniments, hot applications and rubbing may give temporary ease, but cannot possibly root the trouble out of the system. That can only be done by the rich, red blood which Dr. Williams' Pink Pills make. This new blood drives out the poisonous acids and impurities and the rheumatism disappears. If you are a sufferer from this painful malady begin the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and see how soon the pains and stiffness of the joints fade away, leaving behind new energy and new health.

You can get Dr. Williams' Pink Pills from any medicine dealer or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Liquor 'Curb Mart' In The Bowery

NEW YORK, Oct. 15.—Frank L. Boyd, supervising prohibition enforcement agent for New York State, has received orders from Federal headquarters in Washington to investigate the alleged existence of a "curb market" in contraband liquor in the Bowery, it was learned here.

Although Mr. Boyd declined to discuss the report when pressed for confirmation, he admitted he had "heard about the matter."

According to published reports the traffic in liquor in this section has become so thriving that the bands of bootleggers engaged in supplying saloons and "speakeasies" have hit upon the plan of modeling their market after the curb market of the financial district in order to facilitate transactions.

Within a short distance from police headquarters large transactions in liquor are said to have been made, the actual supplies being kept elsewhere in trucks ready for immediate delivery. The "market" is said to be open from late evenings until the early morning hours and the "brokers" changed its location occasionally in order to avoid detection.

Fortune Had Odd Career

ARTHUR T. WALKER, formerly an Ontario school teacher, got his name in most of the newspaper in Canada and the United States a few days ago when it was announced that he had been made the chief heir of the late Edward F. Searles, by whom he had been employed for some years. It was said that he had inherited $50,000,000, but the probability is that the fortune is much less than this. People began to ask who was this Searles, and where had he accumulated all the money that he left to a humble clerk, and when the story was told it was a remarkable one. The last chapter of the Searles' romance is yet to be written, for his nephew, Victor Searles, an artist of some talent, who was cut off with a beggarly $250,000, threatens to contest the will in an effort to prove that his uncle was of unsound mind. If he goes to law, and fails to succeed, he will forfeit the quarter of a million, and our own idea is that he ought to forfeit it, for Mr. Victor Searles is fortunate in inheriting a quarter of a million dollars which he never earned, and no dollar of which his uncle earned. The money is not really Searles' money at all. It is Hopkins' money.

Edward F. Searles was a New Englander by birth, and had hard hoeing in his younger days. About his chief asset was a fine presence and a highly dignified exterior. He had nice taste also, and an ear for music, which probably explains why he did not enlist in the Civil War, for which he was highly eligible, but moved to another town and began to teach music. Eventually he adopted the profession of interior decorator, or, as his enemies said, he got a job as a paper hanger. In the pursuit of this calling he went to San Francisco. The West was still rather crude in those days, and Mr. Searles' dignified appearance, smooth manners and good looks brought him customers. One of them was Mrs. Mark Hopkins, widow of Mark Hopkins, one of the original '49ers, who had laid the foundation of his fortunes by a partnership with Collis P. Huntington in the hardware business. Mark left many millions to his widow when he passed on, no children surviving. At the time when Mr. Searles became acquainted with Mrs. Hopkins she was employed in the decoration of her home on Nob Hill. Mr. Searles gave her tactful advice, and as time went on established himself as a friend.

In fact, Mrs. Hopkins became his sole customer. Having exhausted the decorative possibilities of Nob Hill, Mr. Searles was commissioned to go to Great Barrington, Mass., and erect a magnificent building in the town where Mrs. Hopkins was born. He had complete charge of the operations, and as regards expense he was given what Ring Lardner would call blanc mange. He even went to Europe to purchase works of art, and in one way and another spent a tremendous pile of money in Great Barrington. All this time the affections of Mrs. Hopkins, who was 68 years old, were ripening toward Mr. Searles, and after consideration he accepted her. Later on she changed her mind, but soon afterward his ardent pleadings melted her heart completely, and they were married. Mr. Searles at that time was 46 years old.

They lived together happily for a short period and then Mrs. Searles died, leaving her whole fortune to her husband. He was not permitted to enjoy it undisturbed, but was immediately attacked in the courts by Timothy Nolan Hopkins, nephew of the deceased Mark, who declared that Searles had unduly influenced his bride. The matter was settled out of court, Mr. Hopkins receiving a couple of million, so it is said, and Mr. Searles keeping the remainder. The lawsuit, however, had embittered him, for it had dragged into publicity many details that he would rather have kept secret. He admitted that when he married Mrs. Hopkins, money had something to do with his decision, but declared that the dominant factor was love. The diary Mrs. Searles kept during her honeymoon and after, was produced and pathetically revealed the doting of the old lady upon her handsome husband. Apparently, she never regretted her choice, and since Mr. Searles certainly did not, the marriage was reckoned a success. Mr. Searles became a recluse, finding his chief occupation in building a mansion in Methuen, Mass., where he had been born, and after local quarrels had driven him out of the place, in building elsewhere. He had a passion for stone walls and iron gates, and was continually building and tearing down so that something stronger might be reared. Armed guards were employed on his estates to keep intruders away, and his nephew says that the last time he tried to see his uncle he was menaced by a rifle.

That Mr. Searles was vindictive, is known. A local editor who commented unfavorably upon Mr. Searles found to his amazement shortly afterward that he had lost his paper. When he tried to make a living as a baker he found some mysterious influence opposing him, so that eventually he left town, and thereafter his fellow-townsmen were extremely cautious in their comment upon Mr. Searles. On the whole Mr. Searles did little good with his money when he lived, and now that he has died it promises to be the cause of bitter quarrels. The least anarchical among us will agree that Mr. Hopkins might well have a reasonable kick that his fortune be first left to a man whom he never heard of, and by him to another man, a Canadian, his widow had never heard of.

NATIONAL SECRETARY HERE

Mr. Thomas F. Best of Hamilton, a National Secretary of the Y.M.C.A and especially interested in religious work is spending a few days in Belleville. Mr. Best was through the South African War and also the recent great war, doing work in connection with the Y.M.C.A.

CLOSING SESSION

The closing session of the Annual Convention of School Teachers of Hastings, Belleville and Trenton was opened with Devotional Exercies conducted by Rev. A. H. Foster of Belleville. Following this the President of the convention, Mr. Lester Rose, addressed the teachers, thanking them for the great honor conferred upon him Mr. E. E. Ingall, B.A., of Peterborough Normal School, then gave a talk on "The New Geography and its Methods" which was practical and helpful.

The fourth item on the program was the report of the delegate to O.E.A., given by Inspector H. J. Clarke, B.A., owing to the absence of the delegate, Mr. V. E. Clarke, at Queen's University.

Miss Ethel Adams then gave an account of her trip to Northern Ontario which was both interesting and educating.

There was a large attendance at the convention and all the teachers report the sessions to have been instructive and helpful.

In presenting the report on the Aged and Infirm Ministers' Fund, Rev. A. B. Winchester stated that the provision for retired men was so inadequate that they had to resort to chicken-raising and other means of adding to their income. He pleaded for an additional allowance to men who had served the Church faithfully, but who were no longer fit for service.

Rev. Dr. Christie and other missionaries addressed the Synod at the afternoon sererunt on their work in the foreign fields.

REAR END COLLISION

A Grand Trunk passenger train, No. 29, westbound from Kingston to Toronto at 6.45 Thursday morning pitched into the rear end of a freight train near Ernestown. There were no casualties but one track of the main line was blocked for some time, the wrecking crew from this city being called to the scene. George Knox, Toronto, was the conductor in charge of the passenger train. W. B. Moffatt of Brockville, was conductor-in-charge of the freight train. The track was cleared late Thursday morning. An investigation into the cause of the collision is being held.

TODAY'S MARKET

Today's market was well attended by sellers and buyers and there was a good demand for all products offered for sale and especially for dressed fowls for Thanksgiving. Fresh dairy butter was not offered for sale in large quantities and found ready purchasers at from 70c to 75c per pound. Fresh eggs command a good price realizing from 67c to 70c per dozen which is a high price for this time of the year. Dressed chickens sold all the way from $1.50 to $9.50 per pair according to the size and quality. The ruling prices for ducks was $3.50 and $4 a pair. Fifty cents a pound was asked for turkeys and they were rather scarce. Potatoes sold at $1.25 and $1.50 per bag and some tomatoes at 25c a peck. Apples were plentiful selling at 25c and 30c per peck. Garden products were plentiful and found ready purchasers for the same. Water melons sold from 10c to 25c each and musk mellons at the same price.

PETERBORO HIGHWAY

Hon. W. A. McLean, Deputy Minister of Public Highways for Ontario, made the statement at Peterboro that the Provincial Highway from Peterboro to Port Hope will be completed late next year. Next Spring the construction of culverts, bridges and the roadbed will be commenced. A careful survey will be made of the requirements of the road.

TRENTON FIELD DAY

Trenton Collegiate Institute held their Annual Field Day in Fireman's Park. In the open events Belleville High School more than held their own. In the high jump, Woodley, the Belleville junior champion, secured first place in the Junior and Intermediate jump and third place in the Senior. First and second in the senior jump were also taken by Belleville, Armstrong holding the highest, 5 feet, 2 inches and Maidens securing the second. The event of the afternoon was the Intercollegiate Relay Race between Belleville High School and Trenton Collegiate. Hagerman, Armstrong, McCle and Maidens represented Belleville and although Trenton won, our boys showed fine form and gave the Trentonians fine competion, which judging from the cheering, both teams received from the grand stand, was more than appreciated. After the Field Events the Belleville girls showed Trenton what fast basket ball was by defeating the Trenton girls 21-16. The game was one of the fastest our girls ever played and was anyone's game until the end when Belleville girls secured the basket lead.

OSGOODE "LIT" ELECTIONS

The annual election of officers for the school year 1920-1921 of the Legal and Literary Society of Osgoode Hall Law School was held on Friday, October 8th. Considerable interest was taken in the proceedings, the results being as follows: President, A. K. Roberts; Vice Pres. S. Hayden, Sec. Treas. Mr. Buchanan; Year Representatives, Messrs. W. Nickle, Roach and Dunbar.—Toronto Globe.

COMMITTED FOR TRIAL

James Nayler was this morning before Magistrate Masson charged with breaking into Mr. McKee's store at Stirling and stealing therefrom. Only enough evidence was taken to commit the accused for trials at a higher court. Mr. Carrew for Crown and Mr. E. D. O'Flynn for the accused.

PAINFULLY INJURED

Master Jack Wills, whose home is with Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Wills, Yeoman street, city, was last evening the victim of a serious accident, and one which will confine him to bed for some time. He was riding a bicycle on the Trent Road just west of the city limits when he was struck by an auto which threw him off the wheel to the side of the road. The lad suffered a compound fracture to the right ankle and was otherwise injured about the body. After being given first aid, Jack was removed to the hospital. The wheel was put out of commission and the car was damaged to some extent. The owner of the car rendered every possible attention to the injured lad.

MEN WHO STEAL WIVES.

English Journal Asks: "Why should They Go Free."

England to-day is a land strewn with the wreckage of homes, says Pearson's Weekly.

All over the country there are signs of the breaking up of family life upon a scale greater than ever before. The ties of marriage are being treated with contempt by a type of man who stops at nothing in pursuing an attack on another man's home.

The result is that at the present time the divorce courts are working at high pressure dealing with petitions for divorce presented by husbands who, on returning from service abroad, have found that advantage has been taken of their absence by the home-wrecker.

Many people think it is a serious flaw in our legal system that so many of these men usually should escape with nothing more than a few scathing words from the judge.

The president of the divorce court a short time ago, in concluding the hearing of a case, said: "It is much to be regretted that there is not some mode of marking the infamous conduct of such men as the co-respondent, who, while the husband was away, took the opportunity to corrupt the wife."

The war was largely responsible for the growth of the evil, but the menace not only continues to exist, but is actually increasing. This is proved by the number of cases that are still being put down for hearing at the divorce courts.

A type of man has been let loose whose sole aim seems to be to rob other men of their wives, regardless of the fact that by so doing he is inflicting untold misery by breaking up their homes.

The fact that there is no legal remedy for this state of affairs has led to the exercise of what is called the Unwritten Law, in which the injured person himself sets out to deal with the offender. Several notable examples have occurred during the past few years, resulting in the death of the home-wrecker at the hands of the husband.

To many people this may seem a just way of dealing with the offence, but the majority agree that, however richly the guilty one may deserve such a fate, it is far more desirable that the punishment should be meted out by a judge in a court of law.

Human nature is always liable to err, especially in the heat of passion, and while in some cases the home-wrecker has undoubtedly met a just fate, in others there have been grave doubts.

As the law stands at present, however, there is every encouragement to the husband who has suffered at the hands of one of these scoundrels to exact his own price.

The result is that, unless something is done to remedy the evil, the country will be stirred by more crimes of this nature in the near future than ever before. The number of men whose lives have been ruined by the home-wrecker is considerable, and some of them, easily fired with a lust for killing as the outcome of their war experiences, will stop at nothing to wipe out the injury they have sustained.

In wrecked homes the husband or the wife is often at fault and the intrusion of a co-respondent is merely an incident in a series of troubles. Yet from cases of this kind there emerges one fact, namely, that there do exist men who look upon wives as being their natural prey, who are prepared to go almost to any length to gain their own end.

Piles Cured Permanently Without Drugs

Internal Bathing Relieves the Cause.

Mr. A. N. Steele Cupar, Sask., writes: "I had been troubled with my Stomach, Piles and Constipation for years until I had become very thin and looked 20 years older. A leading Doctor in Regina told me that the main canal was badly ulcered. I gradually became worse, until one day, when perchasing a threshing outfit from Mr. Russell of Regina, Mr. Russell noticed my condition and said: 'I can cure you. Get a J.B.L. Cascade.' Well, I did so, and the first night I used it I slept all night for the first time in weeks, and in a short time felt quite myself again. It also cured my piles, which had troubled me for years."

If you are troubled with constipation don't drug yourself. Internal bathing with the J.B.L. Cascade is the only permanent way. This wonderful appliance is the invention of Dr. Chas. A. Tyrrell, New York. It is pleasant and easy to use and will serve the whole family. It should be in every home. See the J.B.L. Cascade at J. S. McKeown, Druggist, Belleville, Ont., where it will be shown and explained to you. Ask for 22-page booklet all about internal bathing.' It is free, or write Tyrrell's Hygienic Institute, 163 College street, Toronto, Ont.

IM MEMORIAM

LONGDEN—In loving memory of my dear husband, Charles Joseph Longden, who died Oct. 15th 1918, of pneumonia.

We watched him suffer day by day,
It caused us bitter grief
To see him slowly pine away
And could not give relief
But some sweet day we'll meet again mere
Beyond the toil and strife.
And clasp each other's hand once
In heaven, that happy place.

Sadly missed by Wife, Mother and children.

Hastings Doctors Get Together

Medical Association Of Hastings County Meets at Trenton.

TRENTON, Oct. 15.—The regular meeting of the Hastings' County Medical Association was held at the Gilbert House, Trenton, forty-two members being present. Dr. F. N. G. Starr of Toronto, gave an instructive address on gall bladder infection. Dr. H. K. Detweiler, of Toronto, read a paper on hay fever, and its treatment. A supper was provided by the medical fraternity of Trenton who acted as hosts for the county medical association. After supper the president again called the meeting to order and all retired medical practitioners in the county were formally made honorary members of the association. Dr. Clinton of Belleville spoke respecting the death of Dr. W. J. Gibson and the great loss the association as well as the community had sustained in his demise, drawing attention to the fact that for thirty years he was the recognized leader of the medical profession in the Bay of Quinte district. Dr. Clinton closed his remarks by moving that the secretary be instructed to send Mrs. Gibson a suitable letter of condolence, this was seconded by Dr. Mather, of Tweed, a life-long associate of the late doctor. The motion was adopted by all the members rising to their feet.

Visiting practitioners were present from Port Hope, Brighton, Picton, Bloomfield and Wellington.

This brought to a close a series of meetings of which the Hastings County Medical Association are justly proud. Beginning in May, monthly meetings were held in Belleville, Tweed, Madoc, Marmora and Stirling.

A union Thanksgiving service will be held in the Baptist Church Monday, Oct. 18, at 11 a.m. Rev. Dr. Cleaver will preach. Collection will be taken.

Golden Harvests

Why speculate with hazardous hopes?

Few people realize fully the handsome returns which some of the most unquestionable securities actually bring. This applies not only to those who are just beginning to save, or are just forming investment habits, but, indeed, to many who have been investing for years.

For instance, if an investor were to purchase a $1,000 Victory Bond due 1934 on, say, October 15th, the cost and return would be:

COST		RETURN
At 93 and interest:		29 half-yearly interest payments of $27.50 each	$ 797.50
For principal	$930.00	and at maturity	1,000.00
For accrued interest.	25.16
TOTAL	$955.16	TOTAL	$1,797.50

If the interest payments were not spent, but were re-invested promptly in securities yielding 5½%, the total return would be still further increased to $2,196.20.

A $100 Bond costing	$ 95.52	A $50 Bond costing..	$47.76
would return	179.75	would return	89.87

$10,000 worth of Bonds, costing $9,551.60, would return $17,975, or, if re-invested, $21,961.95; and other amounts in proportion. This is the kind of golden harvest which the safest security in Canada will give you. Whether the amount is large or small the same proportion holds. Plant your dollars now in Victory Bonds and your harvest will be sure.

Bonds may be bought in $50, $100, $500 or $1,000 denominations.

TO PRESERVE OLD LANDMARK

Creation of National Monument Area Assures Security to Posterity of Famous Mullan Tree.

The Mullan tree, landmark of the old Mullan trail, the first highway connecting Montana and Idaho with the coast, will be preserved to posterity through the creation of a national monument area by the president.

On July 4, 1861, Capt. John Mullan, leader of the party having charge of the survey and construction of the Mullan trail from Walla Walla, Wash., to Fort Benton, Mont., closed his work at the connecting point of the roads from the east and west, at the head of the Fourth of July canon, between Wallace, Idaho, and Coeur d'Alene, Idaho. There he marked appropriately a huge white-pine tree, which since that time has been known as the Mullan tree. Tourists seeking souvenirs of their jaunt along the Yellowstone trail have damaged the ancient tree so much that forest service officers have found it necessary to take steps to protect it, and, to accomplish this, have submitted a petition proposing that a national monument area be created, which has been approved.

When Paint Causes Wood to Warp.

Coatings of equal moisture resistance should be applied to all surfaces of a wood product which would give dissatisfaction if it were to warp in service. Tests at the forest products laboratory, Madison, have shown that even when wood is properly kiln dried, no coating entirely prevents it from picking up or giving off moisture and, consequently, from swelling and shrinking under the influence of varying atmospheric conditions.

Varnish, shellac, and other moisture-resistant finishes merely decrease the rate at which the moisture changes in wood occur. The higher the grade and the more coats applied, the slower will be the moisture changes.

Unequal coatings on opposite surfaces of a wooden article cause unequal rates of change in moisture content and hence unequaled shrinkage on the two sides of the piece. The result is that the wood tends to cup or twist out of shape.

Look To British Parliament To Settle Coal Strike

PROSPECTS OF REOPENING OF NEGOTIATIONS FOR SETTLEMENT OF MINERS' GRIEVANCES—COAL STRIKE SITUATION MENACES PROSPERITY OF THE NATION—IRISH QUESTION OBSCURED.

LONDON, Oct. 19.—The eyes of all Britain were centred today upon the first session of Parliament after the summer recess. The entire nation is looking anxiously to the legislators for action which might open the way to end the coal strike. Interest in the Irish question, which otherwise would have been the first topic of discussion today, waned in the presence of a situation menacing the prosperity of the whole country, and the members assembled with the idea of devoting themselves to the pressing problem.

Rumors in political quarters beforehand as to the probable developments dealt mainly with two suggestions: One that as a result of certain private discussions of political leaders and prominent labor men the Government and miners' faction would soon get into negotiations again; the other, that the Government was contemplating dissolution of Parliament in order to test the opinion of the nation.

Ten-Year-Old Girl Strangled In Park

Dastardly Murder Committed at Point Edward by Someone Unknown.

POINT EDWARD, Oct. 18.—A foul murder occurred in Bayview Park, here Saturday evening, when Dorothy, the ten-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. Buchanan, of this place, was strangled to death by an unknown assassin.

The child, who was walking through the park to meet her father coming from work, as she did every evening so that she could ride home with him on his bicycle, was last seen at 6.10 o'clock by Watchman Rogerson of the S.S. Huronic. Her father, coming somewhat late from work, missed her at the park bridge, and upon arriving home was told of her absence. A frenzied search by the villagers and the Sarnia police officials was instituted, and finally at a quarter to eleven the body of the little one was found in the waters of the adjacent bay.

Dr. W. Logie conducted a preliminary inquest this morning, which was adjourned until Wednesday evening.

THREE DAILY PAPERS TOO MANY FOR WINNIPEG

The absorption by the Winnipeg Tribune by the Winnipeg Telegram is announced. Though claiming a hundred thousand population, the newspaper field in the chief city of the west has been crowded with three dailies, and two of them have joined their fortunes. The process is one that has been going on in the United States and Canada for several years. It began before the war and has been going on in increasing degree. In Ontario since the year began four daily newspapers have had to go under, some of them after as much as 20 years' existence. The costs increased more rapidly than the revenue; and to avoid commercial tragedy, and sometimes because of it, the weakened fighter went down. The loss to the public is not great. The three chief causes of mortality are increased cost of labor, of paper, and of news; and the readers get more news than ever.—Montreal Gazette.

Two deaths occurred today as the result of the rioting Saturday night. The victims were Matthew McMaster and William Mitchell, who succumbed to gunshot wounds. Several others were seriously injured.

Soldiers' Boat Fired On.

Kingston Convicts Go On A Howling Tobacco Strike

UPROAR HEARD FOR BLOCKS OUTSIDE KINGSTON PENITENTIARY—MEN REFUSE TO WORK—SUPPLY OF NARCOTIC CUT OFF WHEN SMUGGLERS CEASE EFFORTS.

KINGSTON, Oct. 18.—As a startling aftermath to the attempted general jail delivery at the Portsmouth Penitentiary which was reported last week, between 150 and 200 convicts at the penitentiary on Saturday went on strike and since then have absolutely refused to work.

Late on Saturday the construction gang, known as the "stone-pile gang," and the tailor shop gang refused to work and were locked in their cells. All Saturday night and most of yesterday they kept up an uproar, shouting and hammering on their cell doors with their eating utensils. The ringleaders of the gangs were locked up in separate places, but the uproar continued.

Hear Din For Blocks.

This morning the mason gang refused to work, and they also were locked up, and all morning the shouting continued and could be heard for blocks.

While the frustrating of the plot at a general jail delivery was one of the principal causes for the uproar, it was known that the men, in being refused tobacco, were indignant. It has been known that tobacco has been smuggled in to the men, and the avenues through which tobacco came were cut off. Several of the men in the stonepile gang are foreigners and they led in the demonstration against working.

No Work; Much Noise.

This afternoon was a half-holiday at the penitentiary and every phase of work in the institution has been stopped. The uproar, however, continued, and it is likely that drastic measures will be taken to put down the strike.

Warden Ponsford refused to discuss the matter, but the noise could be heard on the street outside the penitentiary.

It is known that some of the officials who were suspected of trafficking in tobacco have stopped the trade.

Belleville Campaign For Navy League Of Canada

ENDORSED BY ROTARY CLUB AND LEADING BUSINESS MEN—IT IS EXPECTED THAT BELLEVILLE'S OBJECTIVE WILL BE EXCEEDED — CHAPLAIN BOAL CONFERS WITH LOCAL CAMPAIGN COMMITTEE.

Chaplain Rev. S. Boal, representing the Navy League of Canada, was in Belleville today conferring with the local organization in regard to Belleville's participation in the campaign being waged this week all over Canada to raise funds to carry on the work of the League.

Some time ago at a meeting of Belleville business men held in the Hotel Quinte an organization was perfected to take charge of the Navy League campaign here, and the aims and objects of the League were heartily endorsed. The Rotary Club of Belleville also endorsed the League by resolution and promised every assistance.

There has been a little delay in making the final arrangements for the Belleville campaign, but this is being attended to and it is confidently expected that Belleville objective will be exceeded.

Missing Child's Body Is Found

PORT HOPE, Oct. 18.—The inquest into the death of George Albert Hines two-year-old child of Albert Hines of Cobourg, whose body was found yesterday in a bush near here was opened to-night, and the report of the postmortem examination showed that the child had been murdered, his throat having been cut.

The father had left a board bill unpaid at the Balmoral Hotel in Cobourg and gone to Niagara Falls, N.Y. It was on the charge of beating his board bill that he was brought back from the United States.

Hines had rented a house in Cobourg and had gone there with his wife and child to look at it; telling his wife to go upstairs to see the rooms, he then disappeared with the child and nothing more was seen here of either until he was brought back without the boy.

After coming back from overseas service suffering from shell shock, he was for a time in hospital. He has lived in Cobourg about three years. The Chief of Police of that town says he is said to suffer from lapses of memory.

The father has not yet been informed of the finding of his child's body.

The inquest will be continued next Monday night.

Miners Quietly Leave The Pits

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer

Canadian Press Limited

LONDON, Oct. 19.—Great Britain's coal mining industry has been almost completely paralyzed by the strike of coal miners. Reports of idle pits come from all coal fields in England, Scotland, and Wales, but thus far in the strike no disorders have occurred. Sharp autumn weather prevails over the British Isles and the belief was expressed today that this would have an important bearing on efforts to end the strike. No announcement so far has been made by the National Union of Railwaymen and transport workers realtive to joining the miners in striking. The Premier is expected to make a statement today regarding the situation and measures taken by Government to meet crisis.

FOUR MEN ACCUSED OF STEALING $12,600 BONDS

Montreal, Oct. 19.—Four men alleged to have blown a safe in the office of a hotel at Bala, Muskoka, last Wednesday and stolen $12,600 worth of Victory bonds, were arrested here yesterday. The prisoners claim to reside in Toronto and gave their names as Jerry Loughlin, William MacDonald, George Harrigan and Thomas Pennington. The hotel is owned by J. W. Burgess and the bonds were made out payable to J. W. Burgess, his brother, W. S. Burgess and Miss Catherine Burgess. When arrested the accused had these bonds in their possession. The Toronto police were communicated with last night and they informed the local police that the men were wanted by the Provincial Police. They will be held until Provincial officers arrive to take them to Muskoka for trial.

Mob Of London Unemployed Storm Government Offices

FIERCE STREET BATTLE BETWEEN MOB OF TWENTY THOUSAND AND MOUNTED POLICE — MANY INJURED—MOUNTED POLICE CHARGE MOB.

LONDON, Oct. 18.—Whitehall was this afternoon and tonight the scene of a battle of elementary savagery when twenty thousand unemployed attempted to storm No. 10 Downing St., where Premier Lloyd George was conferring with London Borough Mayors concerning measures of relief in the coal strike.

Again and again mounted police with truncheons drawn, galloped at full speed into the dense mass of people—screaming and yelling hordes of men and women—knocking them down and trampling them under the feet of the police horses, while mobs retaliated by throwing cobblestones and other missiles.

Many Windows Smashed.

Bricks, stones, paving debris, bottles, clubs, shattered windows of the Treasury, the War Office, the King's Privy Council, the Home Office and other Government buildings.

The demonstration had sent a delegation to the Premier, and as the Mayors, leading the immense parade, promised the authorities that the men would remain quiet while a conference was held with the Premier, the police closed all possible entrances to Whitehall. For nearly an hour there was a lull. Nothing happened except restless mutterings by mob leaders who made several ineffectual attemps to parade the men directly past the Premier's residence.

After several attempts the police cordon was pushed back, the leaders with their human mass behind them surging like sea waves, forcing the vanguard of the police from their pathway.

Soon an inextricably mixed restless mob resulted, pushing its dense throng against the struggling police.

Suddenly from out the mob appeared a resourceful leader who, astride a great white horse, rode through the crowd and attempted to force a passage through the police lines. He was dragged to the ground by the men in uniform.

Signal for a Riot.

This act was a signal for a riot and pandemonium broke loose. The crowd became unmanageable, broke through the lines of police, hurling missles of every description, tearing down balustrades of buildings they passed.

Worn Out, Weak Men and Women Testify

Chatham, Ont.:—"For many years I suffered with stomach trouble and I tried many remedies but they seemed to be a failure—my stomach seemed to be getting worse instead of better. One day I came in possession of a bottle of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and took it. My stomach seemed completely cured. I have great faith in this medicine and hope any sufferer that reads this will give the 'Discovery' a trial. Once tried, you will never be without it."—C. TITUS, Jr., 28 Duke St.

New Wiltshire, P. E. I.:—"I suffered three years with bronchial asthma. I was so weak I could hardly walk three steps at a time. I could not sleep so would get up and stay up the rest of the night. One day a friend advised me to use Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery so I sent to my druggist for a bottle and when I had taken half of it I felt a great deal better. When I used that bottle I sent for two more, and when I finished the third bottle I was completely cured. "It is over two years since I first took Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and I have not been troubled a day with asthma since."—ALEX McLEOD.

Hamilton, Ont.:—"I have suffered with rheumatism for the last five years and I have only taken three bottles of Dr. Pierce's Anuric (anti-uric-acid) Tablets and three bottles of 'Golden Medical Discovery' and am nearly cured. I also had that dread disease, Spanish Influenza, leaving me in a terrible condition. Only those who have had it know what an awful condition it leaves one in. I am sure if it had not been for Dr. Pierce's medicines and advice I certainly would have died.

"I want to recommend Dr. Pierce's medicines to any sufferer with kidney trouble or to anyone rundown after having the 'Flu'. Also try Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets for constipation."—MRS. ESTELLA GRANBY, 54¼ James St. North.

SURPRISE PARTY

A very enjoyable evening was spent at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Smith, Foster Avenue, Thursday, October 14th, when a number of school friends of Evelyn and Sybil gathered to spend the evening with them before their departure from this city for Guelph. The time was spent in music games and dancing. After a dainty luncheon was served, Cecil Facer, on behalf of those present, presented Evelyn with a gold brooch set with pearls and Sybil with a silver mesh purse. Although taken by surprise, the girls thanked them for their lovely keepsakes and expressed their regret at leaving their many friends. The party broke up with the singing of "God Save the King."

DISCOURSES APPRECIATED

What might have proved a fatal accident took place at Havelock on Thursday last. A rock slipped off the teeth of the dipper, and falling, struck William O'Malley of Frankford, who was stooping over to remove some blocks from behind the dinky cars. The unfortunate young man received severe injuries to his head and one foot badly crushed. He was taken home, and is progressing favorably.

PAN-AMERICANISM.

Chief Apostle Wants Co-operation of Canada.

John Barrett, the unique, the irrepressible, the lovable, finally has retired from the directorship of the Pan-American Union after 25 years devoted to the public service, 14 of them spent in the upbuilding of the Pan-American Union. He is succeeded by the capable Dr. L. S. Rowe, a former assistant secretary of the Treasury, later in charge of Latin American affairs for many years. Mr. Barrett resigned for the reason, which he frankly states, that if he remained much longer at his present post he would find himself "in danger of going eventually from the beautiful Pan-American Union, which he loves with the affection of a parent for its favorite child, to the lowly poorhouse." Mr. Barrett says that after spending a month with his aged mother at the family homestead in Grafton, Vt., and a brief trip to Panama to assist in the inauguration there of the new Pan-American College of Commerce, he will establish connections in large American and possibly some Latin American cities as a general counsellor and adviser in Pan-American and other international affairs, based on his long official experience.

An entirely separate and civic project of international character, however, to which he will contribute his spare time and which will most appeal to public interest, will be the carrying to early completion of the organization, already initiated by him, of a great popular and practical "League of American Nations and Peoples," which will probably be known either as the "League of the Americas," or the "Pan-American League." Its purpose will be to organize effectively for Pan-American progress, prosperity and peace that large and rapidly growing number of men and women in North, Central and South America who realize the immense possibilities for the good of the Americas which will result from their economic, social and intellectual co-operation, free from political, governmental or official control. This league will in no sense be a special agency of the United States for advantage over the other American countries or antagonistic to Europe or Asia, Mr. Barrett says, but a natural and logical co-operative effort of Western Hemisphere peoples, from Canada to Chile, for Western Hemisphere good.

A new and important feature will be the active participation of Canadians, who heretofore have been treated to a degree as outside of the Pan-American family. It will not rival in any way or clash with the work and prerogatives of the Pan-American Union, as a great international office which is strictly official and hence limited in its popular activities. It will co-operate with and enlarge upon the work of the powerful Pan-American Society of United States, whose headquarters are in New York city and of which Mr. Barrett had the honor to be the founder several years ago.

Trees on the Prairie.

The Canadian Forestry Association sent to the Prairie Provinces during the summer of 1920 a tree-planting car in charge of an expert. The object was to enlist and direct the enthusiasm of the prairie people for tree-planting—a movement that has attained much importance in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta. The experiment has been an unqualified success, for the help given to farmers and town residents in their tree problems will show splendid results in a few years—when the trees now set out grow to normal size. The prairie need no longer be treeless, even in the dry belts, and no home need be without a protecting fringe. Near Lethbridge, one farmer has succeeded, in the driest years, in growing trees to fourteen feet. In another part of Alberta, an Englishman has succeeded in growing a wind-break of trees around his entire farm, and has a rich border of English perennials all along the side of the drive to his house. He does not suffer from drifting soil, as do his neighbors, and he has grown strawberries and other tender fruits under the protection of the trees. This widespread tree-planting movement is one of the solid constructive features of Western life, and can be made a great economic and social asset. We in the East often regard trees as a sort of nuisance, but in the irrigation districts, and on the monotonously unbroken levels of Western Saskatchewan, they are prizes to be cared for as we care for rare roses and rhododendrons.

Merrifield, the Modest.

Pte. William Merrifield, now of Sault Ste. Marie, is, above all things a modest man, though a V.C. wearer. It is recalled of Merrifield that when he was returning home on the troop train with his unit, the 4th Battalion, he was hunted up by a reporter who was intent on getting the tale of how he won the V.C. Merrifield simply wouldn't talk about it. Perhaps he couldn't. Anyway, the scribe says that as he tried to get the soldier to "loosen up" the big drops of perspiration stood out on the hero's bronzed face. It was less of an ordeal to win the medal than it was to tell how it was won.

"For most conspicuous bravery and devotion to duty during the attack near Abancourt on the 1st of October, 1918. When his men were held up by an intense fire from two machine gun emplacements, he attacked them both single-handed. Dashing from shell hole to shell hole he killed the occupants of the first post, and, although wounded, continued to attack the second post, and with a bomb killed the occupants. He refused to be evacuated and led his platoon until again severely wounded.

Called By Death

RICHARD C. ARNOTT

The truism "that in the midst of life we are in death" was strikingly exemplified on Sunday afternoon when Mr. Richard C. Arnott, License Inspector, was suddenly stricken by death whilst in the discharge of his duties. At about 1.45 in the afternoon Mr. Arnott was down street near the City Building, when he noticed two men, who were apparently under the influence of liquor. He was in the act of taking the parties to the police station and when near the rear gangway leading to Sloan Company's premises, he collapsed and fell upon the sidewalk. Drs. Cronk and Robertson responded to a call for medical aid but death had been almost instantaneous. Tickell & Sons Undertaking Establishment was notified of the sad occurrence and the body was subsequently removed to the family residence, 157 Albert street.

The late Mr. Arnott was in his 60th year having been born in Belleville on the 8th of November, 1860. He was a son of the late Mr. Robert Arnott and in early life followed the occupation of a moulder, being engaged for a considerable period with the late J. and G. Brown Foundry Company. Following this Mr. Arnott was for some time leasee of the Bay Bridge and was deservedly popular with the travelling public, as he was at all times courteous and obliging. For a number of years Mr. Arnott was an official of the city, being truant officer, as well as fulfilling other duties. He also, during the winter season, conducted successfully a skating rink.

When the Conservative party came into power in the Province of Ontario he was appointed License Inspector for West Hastings and subsequently was made Inspector for the southern portion of Hastings County and the County of Prince Edward. He was a most zealous and faithful officer ever attentive to his duties.

Mr. Arnott was much interested in sport, especially hockey and gave not only his time, but means to promote this favorite winter sport. For some years he managed a junior hockey team here and was ever solicitous for the boys' welfare.

Mr. Arnott was a member of Bridge Street Methodist Church and on Sunday morning attended divine service. He also took considerable interest in Societies being a member of Eureka Lodge A. F. & A. M. and the Preceptory, also a member of the I.O.O.F. and Orange Societies. At various times he held offices in the Societies of his choice. During his life-long residence in this city the late Mr. Arnott made many friends and the heartfelt sympathy of all will go out towards those who have so suddenly been bereft.

A widow, three sons and two daughters survive. The sons are Garfield, Richard and Raymond of this city and the daughters are Mrs. (Dr.) Pocock of Kearney, Ont., Misses Clara and Grace at home. Three brothers are living, Thomas, of Toronto, James and Fred of this city.

WILLIAM BROWN

Mr. William Brown, a well-known resident of the city passed away on Monday after being ill for some time. Deceased was in his 85th year and was born at Adolphustown. For upwards of fifty years he had been a resident of this city. For some time he conducted a grocery store on West Moira street, but of late years had lived a retired life. He was a member of the Methodist Church. An aged widow and one son, Sidney H., residing in Wisconsin survive, also four sisters Mrs. Mahalla Patterson of Prince Edward County, Mrs. Amelia Conroy of Calgary, Mrs. Adelia Smith of Iowa, and Mrs. Amelia Lawrence of Michigan.

FRED C. YORK

Fred C. York, aged five years, who was a ward of the Children's Aid Society of this county, died on Sunday after two weeks' illness. The lad was born in this county and had been for some months at the shelter here.

EPIDEMIC PLAGUES.

Imported Diseases Against Which Canada Fights.

Before the armistice was signed the various departments of public health were making preliminary plans for an after-the-war campaign against epidemic diseases which were only too certain to threaten an invasion of this country from abroad.

War spreads these diseases in a frightful way. Cholera, bubonic plague, typhus and smallpox are at the present time making havoc in the Old World, and they can be kept out of Canada only by the exercise of utmost precautions. Plague, the "black death" of the middle ages, threatens every Canadian seaport.

All of the great epidemic diseases seem to have originated in the Orient, where populations are thickest, most ancient and dirtiest. Thus bubonic plague has apparently its proper breeding place in the Yunnan province of China, which is a permanent storehouse of the infection; and from that source have come all the waves of that dreaded malady that have swept the world since the beginning of historic time. One of these epidemics, starting in 1894, took 180,000 lives in Canton, and for many years thereafter killed half a million people annually in India. The worst on record struck Europe in 1334, and wiped out 25,000,000—one-fourth of the total population of that continent.

The bacillus pestis, which is the cause of plague, owes its distribution to the rat flea. A plague-stricken rat when it dies is deserted by the fleas, where thereupon are likely to seek human beings and bite them. The plague germ thus communicated enters the glands, and sets up a rapid and destructive inflammation, which is usually fatal.

Acquaintance with the germs that cause these deadly disease is a great help in dealing with them. The bacillus of cholera is familiarly known. Its infection is spread most commonly by drinking water, but sometimes by flies and in other ways. In former days we had dreadful epidemics of cholera in this country—for instance, in 1848, in 1866 and in 1872—but now our health authorities know how to deal with it.

Cholera seems to have its original home in the delta of the Ganges. Conditions favor its spread in India, where the dirtiest ponds are the holiest, and therefore frequented by crowds of true believers, who come to bathe and wash away their sins. The disease owes its distribution, however, mainly to pilgrims who journey from southern Asia to Mecca. Those who die en route—as they do, by thousands—are assured of eternal salvation. Which is perfectly all right so far as they are concerned; but unfortunately, scattering on their return from the holy city, they spread cholera far and wide.

Smallpox is undoubtedly of Asiatic origin, having been known in China and India since remotest antiquity. The only thing of real importance that the crusaders in the middle ages brought back with them from the Near East was this horrible disease, which killed 500,000 people annually in Europe. A century ago it was reckoned that one-fourth of the human race bore in blindness or disfigurement traces of smallpox. The germ is doubtless a bacterium, but is too small to be seen even with a high-power microscope, and so has never been discovered.

Typhus is a disease of uncleanness, and raged everywhere during the age of the louse—the period when knighthood was in flower and there were no bathtubs. The late war has made us familiar with the insect that carries the germ. The bug has probably killed more men than ever fell in battle. But where the malady had its origin, nobody knows.

Slew Sixteen Huns.

Corpl. Philip Konowal, of the 47th Battalion, Ottawa, is a Canadian of Russian birth, and he proved himself a bonnie fighter when he won the V. C.

His section had the difficult task of mopping up cellars, craters, and machine gun emplacements. In one cellar he himself bayonetted three of the enemy and attacked single-handed seven others, in a crater, killing them all. On reaching the objective, a machine gun was holding up the right flank, causing many casualties. Corpl. Konowal rushed forward and entered the emplacement, killed the crew, and brought the gun back to our lines. The next day he again attacked single-handed another machine gun emplacement, killed three of the crew and destroyed the gun and emplacement with explosives. This non-commissioned officer alone killed at least sixteen of the enemy, and during the two days' actual fighting carried on continuously his good work until severely wounded.

Icy Blankets.

To conserve the ice supply in the domestic refrigerator, many people resort to the expedient of covering the ice with a piece of paper. Sheets of parafined paper, called "ice blankets," are sold in shops for the purpose.

The idea is all right, so far as saving the ice is concerned. When covered in this way (paper being a good nonconductor of heat), it melts much less rapidly.

But it is the melting of the ice that makes the cold. When the melting is retarded, the temperature of the refrigerator is correspondingly lower. Ice is saved, but the food in the icebox is imperiled.

Girls Missing.

The police records of London show that for every day of the year an average of twenty to thirty girls are reported "missing" in the British metropolis.

Lovable Vagabond Is Hobo Jubilo

Had to Work in Order to Eat and Developed Appetite For Work

The misadventures of a soldier of fortune that describes Will Rogers' new Goldwyn photoplay, "Jubilo," which was screened before a large audience at Griffin's last night. A wealth of simple, homely humor and quality of universal appeal. The story of "Jubilo" is simple and at once humanly appealing and dramatic. Set in a background of rustic simplicity, it tells a direct story of plain folks revealing in a rapid succession of events both dramatic and humorous, the elemental emotions that govern the lives of provincial characters. Will Rogers is presented in the role of a kindly and lovable wanderer from Vagabondia—a hobo—a bit of human driftwood sliding slowly and aimlessly down the stream of life; a figure both amusing and pathetic. Work, water and worry he abhors as things to be avoided as one would avoid a pestilence and the evading of them is to him a fine art of which he is pastmaster. Then into his life enters the miracle of love with his meeting a sweet, wholesome country girl. Life takes on a new meaning and he faces his new found world with hope in his heart and a grim determination to make good. Disregarding all the precepts of hobodom he actually goes to work and worships at the shrine of a woman. But his happiness is short lived. A big train hold up has taken place and Jubilo, to shield the girl's father, assumes the blame for the crime. His vindication comes in a thrilling climax which to reveal here, would spoil the spectators enjoyment of the picture.

Larry Semon in a funny 2-reel comedy, "Solid Concrete," an interesting Burton Holmes Travelogue and Jack Dempsey in a thrilling chapter of the "Daredevil Jack" serial are also being shown on the same program.

WHAT WILL BELLEVILLE DO FOR CANADA'S SEA POWER?

This is Navy League week.

What are we going to do about it?

Are we going to "pass the buck", let George do it, or are we each going to do our little bit, determined that Canada shall assume her share of the burdens of Empire as well as participate in the rewards?

The Canadian Navy and the Canadian merchant marine must be manned by Canadians if we are to rise to the full status of nationhood within the Empire and the lassitude which has succeeded the war must be shaken off and succeeded by national progressiveness and energy.

The Navy League of Canada has performed a useful service in keeping alive the ideals of nationhood and the importance of sea power and sea commerce, as well as caring for the sailors and their dependents.

This is Navy League and all Canada will say in good Canadian dollars just what the sea means to Canada's future progress and prosperity.

What will Belleville do?

Can we afford to do anything less than our very best in this national undertaking which means so much to every one of us?

ANOTHER GIANT FOR LITTLE WELSHMAN TO FIGHT.

England is facing another menacing situation in the strike of the coal miners, which has been threatening for months but has been deferred from time to time through the unceasing efforts of Premier Lloyd George and his associates, assisted by the moderates among the union leaders who recognize the possibilities of disaster to the nation's industrial life from a tie-up of the coal industry. The possibility of a prolonged cessation of coal production in England can not be viewed with anything but alarm, as every branch of industry in the British Isles depends upon an adequate coal supply, and the one ray of hope lies in the resourcefulness and courage of Premier Lloyd George, who faces the crisis as he has so many others in the past with the same calm spirit of confidence which has always won out against the heaviest of odds and will not fail even in this emergency. The right little tight little isle will come through this struggle, scarred perhaps, but cheerful and able as always to "carry on."

CANADIAN SONS ON CANADIAN SHIPS.

The greatness of a nation depends upon the individual effort of its people. No nation can become great if its people lack the vision of national greatness. A great nation means a prosperous nation. And the Navy League of Canada in their campaign for $760,000 is endeavoring to make Canada a great nation. Not only does the League look to the future, but in pensioning the widows and orphans of merchant sailors who lost their lives during the war are living up to "British fair play" and the tradition of the British Navy.

History shows that the great and wealthy nations of the past achieved power and wealth through a system of international trade. Their vast fleets of merchantmen sailed the known seas of the world and brought to home ports the riches of civilization. The same principles apply to the twentieth century as they did to antiquity.

If Canada is to be the great nation of our hopes and aspirations we must develop a great export trade. This must be borne upon the keels of a vast fleet of Canadian merchantmen, officered and manned by Canadian sailors, and protected by a Canadian navy adequate to guard our trade channels.

In its campaign to promote national maritime expansion, and to educate the people to the vital necessity of sea power, the Navy League of Canada is laying the foundation of the future greatness and prosperity of the nation. This work is a concentrated effort to promote a wider spirit of Canadianism. A spirit that will send Canadian ships ploughing across the seven seas carrying Canadian goods and commodities to the great marts of the world.

It must be remembered that sea power decides the fate of nations. A country unable to keep its lines of sea communication intact at all times is sure to suffer defeat at the hands of an enemy.

When we look in our dictionaries for a definition of the word "accident" we find that an accident is "an unex pected event, a mishap." Accidents are not "bound to happen"; they are not part of an established plan and can be prevented by the exercise of reasonable care and caution. The safety movement, like modern medicine, preaches prevention.

Navy League—What—Another Campaign?

We think we hear your exclamation. You want to forget the war and all its aftermath. We are with you in your desire to forget—but we must not, in forgetfulness, bury the solemn obligations undertaken in the days of sacrifice.

Canadians have bounden duties to those who must bear a burden until the "graves are opened and the sea gives up its dead"—who must forever carry the memory of sons and husbands and fathers who went down to the sea in ships and never returned.

Navy League—What—Another Campaign?

Yes, another campaign. A campaign from which the Navy League does not flinch; but on the contrary is proud to bring before the people—because it is the people's trustee.

The obligation to provide for our merchant sailors' dependents was undertaken by the people during the war, and must be maintained by them, until the need for it is no more.

After this year, however, the League expects to cease asking for funds for the relief of the Canadian dependents of Merchant Sailors who were killed on active service. With the Trust Funds now in hand, together with the sum set aside in the Budget, to be raised by public subscription this week, it should be possible to establish an endowment, the income from which will be sufficient to provide these dependents with a pension equal to that granted to the dependents of Naval men killed on active service.

As many of these dependents are young children, the endowment must continue for a number of years, until the children become self-supporting.

Navy League—What—Another Campaign?

Yes, another campaign. Is it nothing to you? Maybe not; but there are wives and mothers and children praying anxiously this week, knowing that upon the results of the campaign must depend their sustenance for many years.

Navy League—What—Another Campaign?

Yes, another campaign. The people accepted this responsibility during the war. The people must live up to it now. Give generously when you are called upon.

SYNOD ESPOUSES ANGLICAN CAUSE

Montreal, Oct. 16.—Following an address by Chancellor Davidson, in which he argued that the ecclesiastical decrees affecting marriage should not be permitted to override the civil law of the country the Presbyterian Synod in session here placed itself on record in the following resolution:

"That this Synod of Montreal and Ottawa affirms its belief in the right of the Presbyterian ministers and of other officers of civic status in any part of Canada to marry those who have obtained a marriage licence, or after due publication of banns, regardless of the religious affiliations of the parties representing the same.

"That this Synod protests against the action of certain Roman Catholic authorities and of certain judges of the civil courts in declaring null and void marriages which have been solemnized in the manner declared by the Supreme Court of Canada to be legal and valid.

"That this Synod do further overture the next general assembly of the Protestant churches in the Dominion in endeavoring to procure the passage of such messages as may be necessary to guarantee that the Crown shall be duly represented in all suits taken for the annulment of marriage and making it the duty of such representative of the Crown to enter an appeal from any judgment rendered contrary to jurisprudence in such matters of the highest courts of the land."

The proceeding of the Synod closed this afternoon. The next meeting will be held in Chalmer's Church Ottawa, on the second Tuesday of October, 1921.

The unique power of Zam-Buk is well demonstrated by the case of Mrs. S. Cliff, of Melette, S.D. Here, once again, are facts which convincingly prove that pain, inflammation and blood-poison cannot withstand Zam-Buk's powerful antiseptic healing.

Mrs. Cliff, says, "I gashed my hand severely between the fingers with a piece of tin. The wound, though carefully tended to, somehow became infected and poisoned. I had doctor's treatment and used numerous prescribed remedies but the swelling and throbbing spread right up into the shoulder.

"Hearing splendid reports of Zam-Buk I determined to try it. So long as I live I shall remember the wonderful relief experienced the first time I used the balm. Under the cooling and soothing influence of Zam-Buk, pain disappeared, the swelling reduced rapidly and I was at last able to sleep."

"Day by day there was vast improvement and, when every trace of inflammation and poisonous matter had been drawn out of the wound by Zam-Buk, perfect healing resulted.

"Again when laid up with my leg, swollen and inflamed from the knee down, there was nothing to touch the trouble but Zam-Buk. This wonderful balm soon put me on the sure road to recovery. To-day my faith in Zam-Buk is such, that never again would I be without it." 50c. of all dealers.

by alternate backing and swerving, dragged and hoisted Wetherell's car upward and rearward while other men snatched Daphne from beneath and away from the flames just as they were nibbling at her skirts.

At the same time they disclosed the body of Wetherell and with huge difficulty fetched it forth. Still others found Leila in a heap, a toy with broken joints.

The last thing Daphne had known was the sensation of being shaken to death, a helpless mouse in a terrier's mouth. The next she knew was that she was seated on the edge of a ditch and leaning against the shoulder of a kneeling woman in evening dress.

A number of shadowy men and women wavered against the searing glare of the gasoline.

They arrived at last at a hospital. Daphne was lifted out and delivered into the possession of two curt young internes. She was stretched on a litter, carried feet foremost into an elevator, down a corridor to a room, and rolled out on a bed. Two nurses proceeded to undress her and bathe her. Then an older doctor came in and examined her injuries. She blazed with shame, one complete blush; but to him she was hardly more than a car brought to a garage. He nodded cheerfully and said:

"Not a bone broken, young lady, and no internal derangements that I can discover. A few burns, that's all, and a big shock."

"Is Leila hurt much?" Daphne mumbled.

"She is hurt a trifle worse than you. But she'll come round all right."

"I don't believe you!" said Daphne, and sighed, "Poor Bayard!"

"Who is Bayard?"

"My brother—her husband."

"Ah, the young man who was— The other young man was not your husband, then?"

Daphne shook her head. "He is no relation—a friend."

"Perhaps we'd better notify Bayard. What's his last name? Has he a telephone?"

Daphne muttered his name and number. Then her head was lifted, a capsule placed in her mouth, and a glass of water held to her lips. When she was restored to her pillow a sedative was within her to subdue the riot of her thoughts.

She wondered what Duane would think of her now. She remembered the money she had asked him to lend her. It would be in the morning's mail. But she would not be there to open it. Mrs. Chivvis might not dare to.

All her acquaintance began to march past Daphne's brain in review. Thoughts and half-thoughts and whimsies danced through her mind in a carnival of stupor and frenzy, while to the eyes of the nurses she lay still and slept.

In another room Leila was shrieking and fighting, whimpering and moaning, a torn gazelle under the claws and fangs of tigerish pain. Abruptly there came a lethal silence also from her. They had succeeded in drugging her at last.

• • • • • •

When Daphne had left Bayard in the afternoon she had found that he was depressed, but not how deeply. She supposed that his money loss was only a failure of expected profits, or the mishap of an investment. She did not dream that he was crippled financially.

Bayard was so forlorn, so profoundly ashamed of his bad guesswork, that he could not bear to show his face at any of his clubs that night. He had boasted there too often of having bought heavily of the stock. He had persuaded too many of his friends to invest in it.

So he went where busy men go when other places are closed to them. He went home. When he reached his apartment he found that Leila had given the servants a night out.

Leila had left no word of her own plans. After a forlorn delay Bayard called for Daphne. She was gone, too, with no word of her return.

At last the telephone rang. A man's voice spoke and explained that it spoke from the hospital.

"Is Mr. Kip there? Is this Mr. Kip? Mr. Bayard Kip? Your wife is here, and your sister, and your friend Wetherell—automobile accident—out here on Long Island—pretty bad smash. Your wife's not very well—better come out—as soon as you can."

The world reeled. Bayard seized his hat, played a tattoo on the elevator bell, darted into the street, yelled at a taxicab with ferocity, got in, ordered the driver to "go like hell." He kept putting his head out to howl at him.

At the hospital he questioned the interne fiercely about Leila and Daphne, and had evasive answers. He did not ask about Wetherell, but the interne volunteered the news that he was dead.

That made the ultimate difference. Bayard stopped short in awe, his forehead cold as if a clammy hand had been laid on it. Death was at work. Where would he stop?

In the chill white aisle of the corridor his frenzy gave place to a sense of bitter cold. A chill white nurse led him past doors and doors to a room where in a white bed lay a chill white thing, a cylinder of cotton.

Leila's face was almost invisible in bandages; her whole body crisscrossed and swaddled. She was an Egyptian princess mummied. For a moment her soul came out of the drug at his gasp of pity. It ran about inside its cocoon trying to find a nerve to pull or a muscle to signal to him outside. The mere lifting of her hand brought from her a moan of such woe as canceled all Bayard's grievances against her.

Once Bayard's resentments and jealousies were swept from his mind, his old love came back throbbing and leaping. His very soul bled and he dropped to his knees, his arm thrown across that bundle of wreckage which had been his choice among the world's beauties.

He was soon dragged from his communion with his once-more unconscious bride by the young doctor, who lifted him up with the unpracticed diplomacy of internes and led him aside, grumbling: "Say, what you trying to do? Kill her? She's weak and her heart's fluttering. Cheer her up if you can. If you can't, you can't stay. Better not stay, anyway."

Bayard apologized cravenly and promised better behavior, and was permitted to steal back to Leila. He took her one undamaged hand; it was as beautiful as the severed hand of a Greek statue, and as marblish white and cold.

The interne led him at length out into the corridor. And now Bayard remembered that he had also a sister, an only sister, in this same tavern of pain. His heart went out to her. He remembered, too, that they had a father and a mother to tell or deceive.

The interne assured him that Daphne's injuries were slight. She looked sad enough when he peered in at her, though she was far from the dreary estate of Leila. She was asleep, but she woke at the sound of his step, and, turning her head with effort, opened her eyes and smiled at him feebly and whispered his name, and beckoned to him with one weak finger.

Daphne's heart ached out to him; she hugged him as hard as her weak arms would let her. She searched her mind for comfort. She could think of nothing so comforting just now as a hearty, reassuring lie. She whispered:

"It's all my fault, honey. You see, Mr. Wetherell was taking me out for a ride. I met Leila. She told me you telephoned you weren't coming home for dinner. She looked so lonely that I asked her to come along and chaperon us. I'm to blame for it all. Can you ever forgive me?"

(To Be Continued)

A DEADLY REGION.

It Is Shunned by the People of Mexico.

Revolutionary bands and brigands may ride up and down Mexico, but there is one strip of territory that even the hardiest and most daring of them will not brave. This region, which is shunned by all humanity, is given over to the deadly alacranes, or scorpions.

It is a desolate desert country that extends from a point near the city of Durango to the borders of the State of Zacatecas, perhaps seventy-five miles long by fifty miles wide.

It is asserted that the myriads of scorpions which infest this region are the most deadly of the species. In fact, it is rarely the case that a victim of the sting of an alacrane survives the poison.

In the City of Durango, although regarded as outside of the more deadly zone, the death rate, due to scorpion stings, is very high. This is especially true as to children. The alacrane, as the insect is commonly called, is regarded as such a deadly pest that for many years the municipal government has paid a bounty of one centavo, equivalent to about one-half cent of Canadian money, for each one killed and delivered to the official custodian of dead scorpions.

Something like 100,000 of the scorpions are killed and bounty paid for them annually. In fact, killing scorpions is a regular industry with many men, women and children of Durango. One is told that some of the natives even go so far as to establish regular colonies of the poisonous insects in their homes for the purpose of breeding them for the market.

While the scorpion pest in the city of Durango and its immediate environs is serious enough, it is in the so-called "malo," or bad-belt, which borders the Sierra Madre range that the insects are so numerous and deadly as to make the region practically uninhabitable. They are such a scourge that they have even rid the region of all other animal life. It is only occasionally that some venturesome native enters the territory that is given over to the plague of scorpions, and he usually pays for his daring with his life.

In other parts of Mexico where scorpions are found in considerable numbers their stings are not of deadly effect, although painful. It is explained by scientists that the reason the Durango scorpions are the bearers of such a deadly poison is that they absorb into their system in some manner a peculiar quality of the mineralized soil of the territory that they inhabit.

One of the first warnings that a child receives when it comes to an understanding age is to beware of the alacranes. The insects hunt out the damp, dark places in the homes and it is not unusual for one of them to suddenly drop from the low ceiling of the living room or kitchen, causing terror and consternation to the occupants.

The Truth About Sugar

THE Sugar Industry of Canada is confronted with a serious situation and has appealed to the Government to come to its assistance. Ignorance of the circumstances leading up to this situation has led many people to enter objections to the measures of relief that have been proposed.

The purpose of this statement is to put the plain facts before the people of Canada, in the belief that at heart they want to play fair and are willing to accord a square deal to everyone.

The present upheaval in the world's sugar trade has been brought about by enforced liquidation of some large stocks of raw and refined sugars held by American and Cuban interests. Its effect in Cuba, where some of the native banks have been forced to suspend payments and where the Government has put into effect a sixty-day moratorium, are of common knowledge. A feature of the disturbance has been the dumping upon the American market of a quantity of so-called "distressed" sugar, in amount relatively unimportant to the whole supply, but sufficient, nevertheless, temporarily to disorganize the trade.

Part of this "distressed" sugar, forced into the market under conditions of practical bankruptcy, has found its way into Canada where it has, temporarily, upset trading conditions and made it impossible for Canadian Refineries to market their product except at a ruinous loss.

It is pertinent to observe that the low prices quoted for this "distressed' sugar now being dumped in Canada, by no means reflect the true market price in the United States. Only a day or two ago the newspapers announced that the American Sugar Refineries Company, the largest sugar refiners in the States, and who control some 40 per cent. of the production of that country, are selling sugar on the basis of 22½ cents a pound, equivalent to 25 cents in Canada, at the present rate of exchange, several cents a pound higher than that contemplated for Canada in the order made by the Board of Commerce, and since set aside.

At the present time the plants of four of the largest Canadian Refineries are closed; thousands of men are out of employment; millions of capital are temporarily inactive and unproductive.

The refiners have bought or are committed to buy raw sugars to the value of over $60,000,000. Their sales in Canada due to the conditions before stated, are at a standstill. It follows that the financing of the raw sugar already under contract, should these conditions continue indefinitely, will be an impossible task for the refineries with all their resources. The burden will devolve upon the banks if a critical situation comparable to a panic is to be avoided.

The question naturally arises, why have the Canadian Sugar Refineries allowed this situation to develop and what justification have they for appealing for public support of their industry in this crisis.

The Refineries disclaim responsibility for the situation.

They maintain that if they had been left to shape their own course the situation, so far as they are concerned, would not have developed.

They frankly admit that had control of their business not been taken out of their hands by agents of the Government, they would now have no shadow of excuse for appealing for protection.

What are the facts?

For over a year the Board of Commerce, created by the Government, excercised absolute control over the prices at which sugar could be sold in Canada, and fixed the price, from time to time, on a basis contrary to all established commercial usages.

At the same time the Trade Commission, another agency of the Government, refused permission to the refiners to export sugar, which they might have done and thereby reduced their liabilities very materially without injury to the domestic market.

Government control went further and even prevented the resale abroad of raw sugars not necessarily needed in Canada.

Government control caused the refineries to lay in additional stocks of raw sugars after the price had advanced and when it was economically less desirable to buy.

Throughout all these transactions, the refineries vigorously protested against the invasion of their rights and frequently gave warning as to what the ultimate result would be. They were met by assurances that their rights would be fully protected.

In meeting their objections the Board of Commerce promised that the refiners would be protected in a falling market to the same extent that they had been deprived, by the Board, of their opportunity to take advantage of a rising market.

The Board of Commerce, in a ruling dated June 11, 1920, laid down this principle:

"THE BOARD WILL NOT RECOGNIZE PRICES BASED ON REPLACEMENT VALUES ON A RISING MARKET. IT WILL BE ITS DUTY IN GOOD TIME, AS IT HOPES, TO AS CAREFULLY PROTECT THE TRADER ON A FALLING MARKET BY PERMITTING HIM TO AVERAGE HIS COST DOWN AS IT MUST NOW CAREFULLY PROTECT THE CONSUMER IN COMPELLING THE TRADER TO AVERAGE HIS COSTS UP."

The present appeal of the refiners to the Government and to the Board of Commerce is merely a request for a fulfilment of the pledge thus given.

In the same judgment, as illustrating the powers of the Board, it says:—

"THE BOARD WILL PROHIBIT ALL REFINERS FROM SELLING TO OTHER THAN WHOLESALERS. IT WILL PROHIBIT WHOLESALERS FROM BUYING FROM OTHER THAN REFINERS. IT WILL PROHIBIT SPECULATORS FROM BUYING OR SELLING AT ALL."

In other words, the Board assumed full power to control the price as well as the conditions under which sugar was marketed in Canada.

The ruling recently made by the Board and suspended by the Government, pending a further hearing, was in strict conformity with the principles the Board had laid down and is in no sense an innovation.

Sugar control and restrictions on exports were finally lifted July 1st, 1920, but with the order revoking the restrictions a letter was issued from the Department of Trade and Commerce which practically once more tied the hands of the refineries so that they were not free even then to sell their products in the world's markets, where the price was still some six cents a pound higher than the prevailing market price in Canada.

Had they been left entirely free, even at this late date, to adjust their trade to the new conditions, Canadian refiners could have sold their products abroad at a price that would have protected them against the slump which has since ensued, and enabled them to meet later conditions without serious loss. Again, they were prevented from doing so.

THE ACTUAL COST OF GOVERNMENT CONTROL TO THE SUGAR REFINERIES OF CANADA, IRRESPECTIVE OF THE LOSSES WHICH IOW CONFRONT THEM IN THE DISPOSAL OF THEIR PRESENT STOCKS, IS CONSERVATIVELY ESTIMATED AT FROM TWENTY TO TWENTY-FIVE MILLION DOLLARS.

The refiners have facts and figures to prove that their losses, if compelled to sell in competition with "distressed" sugar dumped into Canada from the States, will run into many additional millions.

The sugar refineries are in a different position from any other class of manufacturers in Canada, whose products have not been under Government control, and who have not been denied the right to a free market.

The refiners do not believe, when the situation is fully and fairly analyzed, that their request involves any serious hardship upon the Canadian public. On the contrary, taking into account the benefits the public have already enjoyed in having been enabled to purchase sugar in Canada for months at a time at a price materially lower than the price prevailing in the world's market, amounting, at times, to 10 cents or more a pound; having regard for the national interests involved in keeping the sugar industry actively operating and preventing the loss occasioned by unemployed labor and unproductive capital; considering, furthermore, the strong advisability of keeping trade within the national boundaries instead of sending it abroad where a Canadian dollar is regarded as being worth only 90 cents or less; and having regard, above all, for the very grave necessity of maintaining Canada's industrial, financial and commercial equilibrium in these trying days of world-wide readjustment, the Sugar Refineries of Canada believe that both the Government and the people will admit the justice and fairness of their position and will afford them the temporary consideration necessary to meet the situation.

WAR CAUSED FRICTION

AMERICANS LEARN ABOUT FEELING IN CANADA.

They Have Been Investigating In the Dominion to Find Out Why We Do Not Admire Them as Much as They Admire Themselves — Some Sane Conclusions Reached Regarding International Relations.

WILLIAM S. M'NUTT in Collier's has an article on "As the Canadians See Us." He got started on the article by meeting a business man who told him that the Canadians were boycotting American goods, so he interviewed New Yorkers who had business dealings with Canada. One of them told him that the United States in 1919 did business with all the countries of South America to the value of $969,276,505, and the balance of trade was $167,473,203 against the United States. With Canada, in 1919, the United States did business to the value of $1,282,667,849, and the balance of trade was in favor of the United States to the amount of $344,768,213. The United States sells more goods to Canada than to any other country in the world except Great Britain. These facts impressed Mr. McNutt, and he interviewed others.

He met a traveling man, just back from Canada, who said the Canadians hated the Americans, and that he had had a terrible time. Another traveler, on being told of this, exclaimed:

"I know just what happened. He went over to Canada, and started in to tell all over again how America won the war. I'd bet anything that's what got him in wrong, and I wish they'd hang him before he got back! It's fellows like him who have made it hard for all of us in Canada. Americans go up there and blab around about how Americans won the war, and naturally the Canadians, who were in the war for more than four years, hear it and get sore at all Americans."

Mr. McNutt decided to come over to Canada and see what the state of feeling is, and he visited Toronto, Ottawa, and Montreal. He finds that nearly all Canadians have been made weary of the boastfulness and spread-eagleism shown in American movie films in Canadian picture houses; that they resent the abuse directed against Great Britain in certain American newspapers; that there is no boycott of American goods, although there is a campaign under way urging people to buy made-in-Canada goods. Every Canadian he met resents the fact that the Canadian dollar is rated away below par in the American market—he hates to lose the exchange, feels it to be a dead loss, and in some way or other an injustice. In England people are familiar with the fluctuations of exchange; in Canada people are not, and as they are buying American goods all the time this discount on their own money is a constant annoyance.

The conclusion at which Mr. McNutt arrives is that the friendship between Canada and the United States will long out-last the friction. He thus advises Canadians: "Be a little patient with the seeming boastfulness of the Americans as expressed in the movies and in some periodicals and newspapers. Perhaps, after all, the individual Yankee is not as vain-glorious and susceptible to flattery as some of the American movie, periodical, and newspaper writers may think. At least remember that most of the flamboyant conversation was meant for family ears only, and believe that it is as embarrassing to the majority of Americans as it is annoying to the majority of Canadians. Remember also that in our dark days during the Civil War the American dollar was worth only 40 cents in Canada, and that it did not get back to par until 1879." All of which advice is good. He advises Americans to remember that Canada has gone through a terrible ordeal, and that it is necessary to strengthen justice with a little gratitude.

Sunken Ships Recalls War.

Thirty miles east of Kingston, Ont., in the St. Lawrence river, lies the hulk of the Canadian steamer Sir Robert Peel, which was fired and sunk during the Patriot War of 1837-38.

It was on the night of May 30, 1838, that this steamer, en route from Prescott to Toronto, Ont., with nineteen passengers and $20,000 in specie for paying the troops in Upper Canada, was taking on wood at what was then called McDonnell's wharf, when a company of men led by Bill Johnson, known as the hero of the Thousand Islands, disguised and painted like Indians and armed with muskets and bayonets, rushed aboard, shouting: "Remember the Caroline!" The night was dark and rainy. The passengers who were asleep in the cabin, together with the crew, were ordered ashore and had to leave. The Peel was then pushed out into the river and burned and sunk. All the attacking band escaped punishment. Several were tried at Watertown, N.Y., for arson, but were acquitted.

Johnston kept a hotel for years at Clayton, N.Y., formerly known as French Creek. He was a native of Lower Canada and claimed to be a confidential friend of William Lyon Mackenzie, leader of the rebellion in Upper Canada in 1837. His daughter, Kate Johnston, furnished the band with supplies while they were outlawed and in hiding among the Thousand Islands.

Both Suitable.

An old gentleman entered a country newspaper office and approaching the editor said, "I want to get copies of your paper for a week back."

The editor replied: "Hadn't you better also try a porous plaster?"

Safes were first brought to a state of satisfactory security about 1840.

You Do Not Cure Constipation You must prevent it

It isn't like measles—caught—endured—cured—never to return.

Constipation can be so ever-returning as to become chronic.

The best way to be free from it, is to prevent its recurrence by removing the cause.

Salts or pills partly clear the bowels but do not remove the hard secretions that cause constipation.

But Par-ol should take these secretions away by softening them, and prevent the constipation returning. One week's Par-ol treatment should amazingly benefit you.

Par-ol is a highly refined petroleum oil of unvarying purity. It has a specific gravity of .865 to .870 at 15° Centigrade.

Most druggists sell it. Don't accept a substitute—you'll be disappointed—Par-ol—that's the name. $1.00 bottle is enough for a month's treatment.

COLLIDED WITH TRUCK

George McPhail whose home is in Kitchener was yesterday afternoon apprehended here on advice from the High County Constable of Lennox and Addington County. It appears that at an early hour yesterday morning McPhail was driving a Ford car in which two other companions were seated, along the York road outside of Napanee when he collided with a truck in which four men were riding, and it is alleged that McPhail did'not stop. The number of the car was obtained and Police Officer White apprehended McPhail here in charge of his car. High County Constable Brien came to the city and took the accused back to Napanee for trial.

LOST CHILDREN

Two children, a boy and girl of tender years yesterday wandered away from their homes in the city and were picked up near the County House of Refuge outside of the city limits. The little ones were taken to the Children Shelter where they were taken care of until the parents were notified of their whereabouts.

GRANT TO NAVY LEAGUE

Renfrew has voted $1,500 to the Navy League campaign. Some years ago the council voted a large sum for patriotic purposes, which was not all exhausted owing to the sudden termination of hostilities. The town was asked to subscribe $1,500 for the present Navy League campaign and the council, with the concurrence of the patriotic committee has decided to allot $1,500 to the Navy League which means that no canvas of the town for the funds will be necessary during Trafalgar week.

HORSE DROWNED.

On Thursday last Mr. M. C. Potter, Front of Sidney Township, reported to the police that a horse belonging to him had either been stolen or escaped from a pasture field near Jones' Creek. The disappearance of the animal has been accounted for as its body was seen floating in the bay.

DIED IN TORONTO.

Miss Carrie Callery, a former resident of Cannifton, died in Toronto yesterday as the result of a paralytic stroke. Deceased was 45 years of age and was born at Cannifton, where she resided the greater portion of her life. The body was brought here today for interment. Mr. Charles Callery, of Cannifton is a brother of the deceased.

A FINE SPEAKER.

Mr. Thomas F. Best, of Hamilton, National Secretary of the Y.M.C.A who is especially engaged in religious work, on Sunday afternoon gave an address at the Palace Theatre which was much appreciated by those in attendance. On Sunday evening he occupied the pulpit of Bridge Street church, delivering a sermon which was of a helpful nature to all who heard it. Mr. Best is a fine speaker and had a varied experience during the South African war and the late war.

KNOCKED DOWN BY CAR

Saturday evening, Helen Walsh, daughter of Mr. James Walsh, residing at 16 St. Charles street, city, was knocked down by an auto driven by Clayton Houston, R. R. No. 6 Thurlow. After the victim had been conveyed to her home and a physician summoned it was ascertained that whilst she was severely bruised about the body, no bones were broken. Houston reported to the police the occurrence, and did all he could for Miss Walsh.

CALLS FOR POLICE

On Saturday evening the police responded to two calls but the trouble was not of a serious nature and no arrest was made.

AUTO IN SEWER

A rather peculiar accident happened this afternoon, but fortunately no person was seriously injured. A Ford car, containing three men, was being driven along Mill street and when in front of the Donovan butcher shop the auto from some cause swerved and plunged headlong into the sewer excavation on that thoroughfare. Only the rear part of the car was visible after the drop. The three men emerged from the auto apparently only sustaining slight bruises. Some damage was sustained to the car.

W. P. HUPP, of Akron, Ohio, who who says he would not take one thousand dollars for the good Tanlac has done him. Declares his health has been fully restored and that he has gained over 20 pounds.

"I would not take one thousand dollars for the good Tanlac did me," said W. P. Hupp, 839 Camden St., Akron, Ohio, for the past ten years a valued employe with the Firestone Tire and Rubber Co.

"I will always owe a great debt of gratitude to Tanlac," he said "because it restored my health completely after everything else failed, and I have gained over twenty pounds. I can now eat better, sleep better and work better and I feel like a brand-new man.

"Before taking Tanlac I suffered night and day from indigestion and my stomach was terribly disordered. I was nervous and weak and could neither eat nor sleep to do any good. I seemed to be going down hill every day for six years. Finally, my condition became so rundown that I lost one or two days from work every week. But now, since my troubles have been overcome, I can hold my own with any man at the plant, and often after working hard all day, I put in overtime at night and feel none the worse from it. I just seem to be full of new life and energy.

"After seeing the good Tanlac did me, my wife began taking the medicine and now she says she feels better than she has in years.

"Tanlac certainly beats anything I ever saw in my life."

Tanlac is sold in Belleville by Ostrom's Drug Store and by the leading druggists in every town.

Letters To The Editor

JUBILEE CELEBRATION AT MARCHMONT HOME, BELLEVILLE

To the Editor of The Intelligencer:

Dear Sir,—Thanksgiving Day, 1920, was a time of special significance at the Marchmont Home.

Fifty years ago the Home was given by the people of Belleville to receive and distribute into Canadian families English orphan children brought to Canada by the late Annie MacPherson and her band of helpers. Since that date over seven thousand children have been brought to Marchmont and have found homes and employment among the farmers of Hastings and Prince Edward and neighboring Counties.

Many of the younger ones were adopted and helped by the farmers to get a good education, and today are serving their generation as ministers, doctors, teachers, nurses, etc. The older ones were placed out on yearly wages, and many now own their own farms and are themselves employers of labour.

During the Great War, a large number of the boys enlisted voluntarily and served overseas. Government Statistics show that ten thousand British boys emigrated by the various Homes served with the Canadian forces. Surely this is the sturdy, healthy and loyal population which the Dominion wishes to encourage to come to these shores.

During the war emigration was suspended but now the way is opening again, though the cost of transport, outfit and upkeep of the Home has more than doubled.

Unfortunately our subscribers at Home are unable to double their subscriptions and we must try to double the number of subscribers.

The Marchmont Home has been acquired by the Committee of the Liverpool Sheltering Homes for Orphan and Fatherless children and in conjunction with the Annie MacPherson Home in London, England, they propose to continue to send out carefully chosen and trained children. Two parties have been brought this year, but before another party arrives, certain additions must be made at Marchmont in order to provide baths, lavatory and sanitary conveniences, a laundry and an additional dormitory. For this purpose the sum of five thousand dollars is needed at once and it is hoped that friends and former employers of the children, also the young people themselves will feel led to help us in this undertaking.

It would be a great encouragement to our Committee in England who are faced with heavy burdens at present, if I could report that the people of Hastings and Prince Edward and of the City of Belleville were still as well disposed to the work and as generous towards our English orphans as they were fifty years ago.

Contributions may be sent to the Canadian Superintendent, Mr. W. H Merry, Marchmont Home, 193 Moira street, Belleville, or paid in to the account at the Molson's Bank, Belleville.

I, myself, am shortly returning to England to spend the winter interviewing children and families in need of help, supervising their training with the aid of our devoted staff of teachers and nurses and preparing the outfits for next spring. We are all in dread of an exceptionally trying winter in the old country and that much hardship may have to be faced.

Will your readers so fortunately situated away from the disturbances political and social which we have to face at home, and so bountifully blessed by Providence with all the good fruits of the earth, remember us "over there" and give their sympathy and help to the Home here.

Yours faithfully,

In the service of little children,

LILLIAN M. BIRT.

THE TEN LOST TRIBES.

Claims Made on Behalf of Anglo-Saxon Race.

Herbert Garrison, secretary-general of the British Israel World Federation, recently announced that proofs have been obtained which would prove absolutely that the Saxon race is descended from the famous Lost Ten Tribes of Israel, and that they will be published shortly. The theory is not a new one, and no doubt many readers will recall that Rev. Joseph Wild, formerly of the Bond Street Congregational Church, Toronto, used to discourse on the matter frequently and did indeed write a book in which he developed the argument at length. Dr. Wild was the first or one of the first of what may be called "topical" preachers in Toronto and drew large crowds by reason of his unconventional subjects and the eloquence with which his ideas were presented. It is recalled by an old worshipper that on one occasion he proved that Noah's Ark had landed in the Mammoth Cave of Kentucky. It was not Dr. Wild, however, but a bishop in another church, who expressed the view not long ago that instead of man having been descended from monkeys, monkeys had in fact descended from man. The absence of monkeys from Ireland would seem to cast a doubt on the theory.

Dr. Wild found most of his evidence in Biblical prophecy. Beginning with the statement that David's seed and throne are to last to the end of time, he found that the only throne which would likely fulfil this condition was the throne upon which Queen Victoria then sat, and indeed in the light of the recent war, there is reason to believe that the last throne of all will be that of Great Britain. When Dr. Wild wrote it seemed to be most strongly challenged by the throne of Russia, and it is unlikely that ever again there will be a throne in Russia. "God," said Dr. Wild, "made the children of Israel, and throne of David His executive for civilization, evangelization, order and conquest. Through them God will conquer the world to a universal peace."

It is well known that David had many wives, but the wife through which the Saxons are supposed to have descended is Bathsheba, formerly the wife of Uriah, the Hittite, whom David caused to be destroyed in battle with the complicity of Joab, the able if unscrupulous captain of the host. However, the little irregularity by which David secured Bathsheba is supposed to have been compensated by the fact that she became the mother of Solomon. So that on one side of the house, at least, we would appear to have had some very distinguished ancestors, if the theory of Dr. Wild and the statement of Mr. Garrison are to be relied upon. According to Dr. Wild, Adam lived from B.C. 4000 to B.C. 3070 though contemporary and subsequent scientists have dated the beginning of the world from a somewhat earlier period. However, Dr. Wild drew up a genealogical table beginning with Adam and continuing to David (B.C. 1085-1015) which was in conformity with the marginal calculations that appear in the New Testament.

From David he branched off to include the ancient kings of Scotland and Ireland as well as Argyleshire and Great Britain, and ran down the stretch to Queen Victoria. If he proved his case up to that point nobody need have the slightest doubt about carrying it on for the next two generations and acclaiming King George V. as a descendant of King David and Bathsheba. Said Dr. Wild: "If we once get a clear idea who the seed of David are then we can search among the people of the earth to find them. Of the special marks one was that they were to possess the gates of their enemies." Do the Anglo-Saxons possess the gates of their enemies? Yes, says Dr. Wild, and he names the Guernsey Islands, Gibraltar, Malta, Cyprus, the Suez Canal, Aden, Pashawar, Bombay, Calcutta, Singapore, Malacca, Penang, Hong Kong, Sarawak and Labuan. It might be added that the war has added to these gates, and also has reduced the number who might have been listed as enemies in David's time or Dr. Wild's.

Dr. Wild said that the Anglo-Saxon race was destined to rule over the rest of the world, and bring about an era of universal peace. The rule would not be wholly good, due to human imperfections, but the bad would be greatly outweighed. He saw Russia as the chief power for evil, and who will say that his opinion of more than thirty years ago is not the opinion of millions to-day. Dr. Wild thought that the world would come to an end toward the close of this century, or as soon as all the prophecies in the Bible had been fulfilled, and especially when the other nations had been brought to understand that it was for their own good and to carry out the decrees of Providence that they should be ruled over by the Lost Tribes, their heirs and legatees.

An Industrious Beaver.

A beaver in a park was experimentally placed at work on a tree twelve feet long and two feet six inches thick, just as the town clock sounded the hour of noon. The beaver began by barking the tree a foot above the ground. That done, he attacked the wood. He worked hard, alternating his labor with dips in his bathing pond. He bathed and labored alternately, then he ate his supper of bread and carrots, which the keeper had brought him, and paddled about in his pond until half-past five o'clock. Ten minutes later, when only one inch of the tree's diameter remained intact, he bore upon his work and the tree fell. Before it fell the beaver ran as men run when they have fired a blast. Then as the tree lay on the ground he portioned it out mentally and began to gnaw. He worked at intervals all night; cut the log into three parts, rolled two of the portions into the water, and reserved the other third for his permanent shelter. The work done, he took a bath.

Thirtieth Annual Convention Woman's Missionary Society

SPLENDID GATHERING HELD AT WALLBRIDGE—INTERESTING ADDRESSES BY RETURNED MISSIONARIES—SOCIETY IS PROGRESSIVE AND ENERGETIC —OFFICERS ELECTED.

The thirtieth annual convention of the Belleville District Women's Missionary Society was held at Wallbridge Methodist Church on October 13th, 1920.

There was a morning and afternoon session, the morning session opening with devotional exercises conducted by Mrs. Hinchcliffe and Mrs. Phillips.

In a few well-chosen words Mrs. Phillips of Wallbridge gave the ladies a splendid greeting, after which the Misses Wallace, assisted by their father, the Rev. Mr. Wallace of Sidney Circuit, rendered a fine duet. The rest of the morning session was of a business nature.

OFFICERS ELECTED

The new officers for the coming year were elected as follows:

Mrs. McFarlane of Foxboro, was unanimously elected as district organizer a position which she held last year in a very capable manner.

Mrs. S. Gay of Foxboro, was elected as assistant superintendent. After her election Mrs. McFarlane spoke of how pleased she was to have the help of Mrs. Gay in this great work.

The Rev. Mrs. Foster of Holloway Street Methodist Church, Belleville, was elected as Recording Secretary for the coming year.

The reports of the various auxiliaries, Circles and Bands were given by each delegate, and in most cases were very favorable reports.

The morning session was then brought to a close by a solo by Mrs. Fred Campbell, which was appreciated by all.

A sumptuous dinner was served in the hall by the ladies of Wallbridge, after which the ladies assembled in the church for the afternoon session.

Mrs. O'Flynn of Belleville, opened the Praise Service by using hymn 28, "Come Thou Almighty King," after which Miss Martin read a few verses from Isaiah 35 and 55. In her talk on these verses she reminded us of the wonderful work done by Dr. Grenfell of Labrador. Mrs O'Fly n appealed for witnesses for Christ. "We cannot all go to the field to work for Christ, but we all can at least witness for Him." Many did witnesses for their Master in short sentences. The first and last verses of "Take time to be holy" were sung and then Mrs. O'Flynn led in prayer.

Mrs. McFarlane called Miss Steele, Miss Hartwell, (both returned missionaries from China), Mrs. White, and Rev. Mrs. Wilson.

A very pleasing solo, "God will take care of you" was given gy the Rev. Mrs. Foster, after which the "Blue Book" was introduced by Mrs. Spafford. The following are the reasons she gave why every woman should take the Blue Book:

To keep in touch with Missions throughout the world.

To see where your money goes.

For inspiration to see what other societies are doing as well as what our missionaries and mission schools are doing.

How to induce each woman to take it:

Keep it into circulation among ladies. They will be sure to look inside and consequently become interested.

Use parts of it for program.

Have talks given on it.

Mrs. Callery of Cannifton gave the constitution as given in "Blue Book."

First of all is the District Organizer and her helper, the Assistant Superintendent. Then over every society there is a President. The ladies can care of you" was given by the Rev. work. Let every lady help her by working and by friendly criticism. There is also a Recording Secretary who takes the minutes of each meeting. The Treasurer is a most important personage. "She should be on her job and keep correct reports of all money matters." Another thing the Constitution says, "There should be public meetings quarterly." Mrs. Callery remarked that this was the one failure of most societies. They do not have enough public meetings. She also mentioned the fact that each member of the W.M.S. should try and induce others to join. I am sure Mrs. Callery made plain what was expected of each W.M.S. member and officer.

After Mrs. Callery's helpful address, hymn 185 was sung.

CHINA MISSION WORK

Miss Steele, returned missionary from Chentu, China, gave an excellent address on her work in the Middle School (similar Canadian High Schools). The school was opened in 1914, and year by year the attendance was increased until there are thirty-six girls attending this year. The aims of this school are to prepare girls to follow Christ in every day life, be leaders, know how to be useful in their homes when they leave school and be able to teach school and also teach the Bible.

Every one of these girls were Christians when they entered the Middle School excepting one, and within six months, the other girls had persuaded her to follow Christ. It is very easy for us to be Christians and also very easy for these girls to be Christians when at school, but when they return home they have the severest prosecutions to face, and more than this they have to face a home full of the lowest of sin and crime which is worse than any prosecution or scorn inflicted upon them. How many of our girls could face such sin and stand true to their colours? Miss Steele told this story—Just before one of the girls went home when school closed, she came to her teacher and said, "My sister is ill and my mother will force me to perform the religious duties of our heathen home, will it be doing wrong for me to do them to please her You don't know how she will try and force me to obey her. What shall I do, teacher?" The teacher and girl talked the matter over and prayed over it until finally the girl said, "I will not conduct those services no matter how much I am prosecuted." She came back to school and reported that she had kept her promise by the help of God. Another girl said, "They can kill me, but I will not deny my Christ." This beautiful life was taken soon to be with her Christ forevermore. What a grand faith these Chinese girls possess.

These girls find it hard to become leaders as they have never been trained for leadership. Miss Steele told an amusing story of how the girls make new rules and come to the teacher to have them enforced. Then they select a committee to see that the rules are kept. One girl breaks a rule, the committee promptly reprimand her. She gathers her girl friends and they condemn this committee and the said committee refuse to act any more, as their position is not a popular one. However this shows their tendency to become leaders, if they receive the necessary training.

The social conditions of China are very degrading. There are a great many slums in evidence. Foot binding is not a thing of the past and the evil habits of opium using and gambling are dreadful. Worse than all these is the immorality of the homes. This evil is so black that it cannot be told from the public platform.

Another thing these Chinese girls are taught is the art of Domestic Science. There is a school for these classes and four Middle School and four smaller children attend this school. These girls learn the proper method of preparing meals, how to sew, to be clean and tidy, and also how to entertain guests in proper Chinese manner. The four older girls attend to the four smaller ones, help them with their lessons, teach them to read their Bible and hear them say their prayers night and morning. A monthly allowance is given to these girls to keep house on. Some manage very well while others fail. These feel ashamed of themselves and try and do better the next time.

One thing these Middle School girls think is a waste of time is Physical Training. However they enjoy their exercises while doing them, but they think the time could be more profitably spent studying their lessons.

A goodly number of these girls will become teachers in the future and these are needed very badly indeed. They make splendid teachers too. Every girl in the school is a Sunday School teacher. Some go out in the slums and hold services for the children, while others teach the children of the parents who come to church. These children have to be kept quiet sometimes for two hours and it is wonderful how well they do their work. They invent most remarkable stories which always end with "this teaches you" and so on.

The women of the Methodist Church have made themselves responsible for these girls. "You pray for the missionaries, are you praying for our Chinese girls who are some day to be

Irish Liberators Pelted At Ottawa

Eggs and Tomatoes Thrown at Delegates—Police Force Outside Place of Meeting Prevents Counter-Demonstrations.

Ottawa, Oct. 18.—Resolutions of sympathy for the French minority in their fight to maintain the status of their language in Canada, and of support to Ireland in its struggle for freedom and self-determination, were passed at the two-day conference of the Self-Determination for Ireland League.

There was little in the way of organized counter-demonstrations tho a large crowd gathered in front of the hall where the meetings were being held on Saturday night and hurled a few eggs and tomatoes as a greeting to the delegates.

Another crowd of about one hundred men marched to the home of Mayor Fisher and demanded that he come out and kiss the flag. The mayor had previously refused to take any action toward preventing the holding of the convention. Twelve arrests were made, five in front of the mayor's house but these were all freed later.

Armand Lavergne, Quebec Nationalist; Lindsay Crawford, of Toronto, and C. J. Foy, Perth, were prominent among the speakers. The struggle of Ireland was represented as a fight for freedom against the domination of England, and every reference to the hunger strikers of Brixton prison brought forth rounds of applause.

A mass meeting held in one of the theatres tonight was the wind-up of the convention. At this meeting, Armand Lavergne and Lindsay Crawford were the chief speakers. There was expectation of a clash between the delegates and antis at this meeting, but almost the entire city police force, including the traffic cops and mounted squad, had been recalled to duty for the occasion, and uniformed and plain clothes police lined the sidewalk in front of the theatre entrance to keep the crowd in hand. As a consequence, while there was much crowding about the doors during the early hours, there was no disturbance.

The resolutions were passed amid wild cheers. Some of these extended thanks to the mayor of Hull who had offered accommodation for the holding of the convention there; to the mayor and city council of Ottawa for allowing the convention here, and the main resolutions setting forth support for the French language and for the Irish freedom cause. Sinn Fein colors were prominently displayed during the convention (many of the delegates also wearing the "Irish republic" buttons.

Hustling Highway To Quebec Boundary

The Ontario Department of Public Highways expects to cease road operations by December 10, by which date the greater portion of the contracts now under way should be completed. All the heavy work between Highland Creek Hill and the Quebec boundary and on the Ottawa-Prescott highway a distance of about 350 miles in all, will be done before the end of the year, also about 95 per cent. of the culverts and bridges on these roads.

"The policy of the department in dealing with the new Provincial highways is first to put them in a reasonable state of repair, ready for immediate use," said W. A. McLean, Deputy Minister. "For the most part the highways consisted of old gravel and stone roads, formerly constructed as toll roads or county roads. The first repair is followed by the building of culverts and the widening of culvert approaches. This is necessarily accompanied by the grading of hills and the opening of ditches for drainage. While the earth work and other construction is in progress, it is the effort of the department to keep the road in a reasonable state of repair."

"The effect of this policy is to produce a system of highways of standard cross sections having a width of from 28 to 30 feet between the shoulders, and a surface of gravel or macadam 20 feet wide. It is the policy of the department to secure, in the first place, a well-drained, well-settled foundation before any permanent surface is put on."

The success of the permanent surfaces in England and the older countries was due to the fact that the authorities there had always waited until there had been considerable traffic over the temporary surfaces before putting on the permanent surface. In the United States they had to report failure in many places because this precaution had not been taken.

Welland, Oct. 20.—Contrary to expectations the trial of David McNeal, charged with murder of little Margaret Boucock, on July 13, did not commence this morning, but it has been definitely stated that McNeal will come up for trial to-morrow, Oct. 21. Welland is crowded, people from all parts of the country flooding the city to get a glimpse of the accused, who was almost lynched by an infuriated mob at Thorold during that night of terror, August 16, but escaped death after making an eloquent plea for fair play and British justice.

Navy League Campaign To Commence Next Week

GRAND RALLY SUNDAY NIGHT—CITIZENS TO ORGANIZE TO ASSURE BELLEVILLE'S QUOTA — EVERYONE MUST HELP—A CANADIAN NAVY AND MERCHANT MARINE MANNED BY CANADIANS.

Owing to Thanksgiving having interfered with the organization of the Navy League Campaign in Belleville, it has been decided to postpone the campaign week until the week of the 25th to 30th October.

The campaign will open with a grand rally on Sunday night. The citizens of Belleville will, for the first time, view the wonderful films of the surrender of the German Fleet. This picture has made a tremendous impression wherever shown, and it has been impossible to accomodate the thousands who have desired to see it. The showing of these films will be accompanied by an illuminated address by Rev. S. Boal, Chaplain, on the British Navy and Merchant Marine. Captain Boal has the reputation of having recruited over 10,000 in the Great War, and was especially honored and thanked by Lord Kitchener. The admission will be entirely free.

During next week donations will be received by the Citizens' Committee appointed for that purpose, or voluntary contributions may be left with the treasurer, Lieut.-Col. E. D. O'Flynn, the Standard Bank or the Union Bank.

On Friday evening an organization Dinner will be held at the Quinte Hotel at which the Citizens Committee representatives, the Rotary Club, the Lions Club, Chamber of Commerce, I.O.D.E., G.W.V.A., and Argyle Light Infantry will confer with Captain Boal and perfect organization.

As this is the one and only, as well as the most necessary patriotic appeal that the citizens of Belleville have been called upon to answer this year, it is to be hoped that every man, woman and child will put forth an effort to make this campaign a success, and put Belleville abreast of the other Municipalities, as all appeals so far made have been exceeded.

Industrial Commissioner By-Law May Be Repealed

ALD. WOODLEY GAVE NOTICE THAT HE WILL INTRODUCE A BYLAW AT NEXT MEETING OF CITY COUNCIL REPEALING BYLAW APPOINTING E. P. FREDERICKS INDUSTRIAL COMMISSIONER CITY FATHERS QUICKLY CLEAR LIGHT BUSINESS DOCKET.

At the City Council meeting last night the business transacted was chiefly of a routine nature. Ald. Woodley gave notice that at the next meeting he would introduce a bylaw to repeal the bylaw appointing E. P. Fredericks as City Industrial Commissioner. A committee was appointed to consider the renaming of certain streets.

Members present were Mayor Riggs, Aldermen Wensley, Doyle, Bone, Ponton, Hanna, Woodley, Ostrom.

Minutes of the last meeting read and confirmed.

Reports of committees, communications, etc., laid on the table and Council went into committee of the whole on reports, etc., Ald. Doyle in the chair.

The accounts recommended to be paid were passed, as were also the following recommendations:

That the tender of Bumbacca Bros. for construction of Everett Street sewer of $2,099 be accepted.

That the construction of a sanitary sewer on east Moira street be advertised for under section 9 of the Local Improvement Act.

That tenders be advertised for the construction of a sanitary sewer on East Moira Street, tenders to be in by Thursday, October 28th, inst., at 5 p. m.

Damages to Autos.

That R. J. Graham be paid $13.25, being the city's share of a claim for damages to a car on McDonald Ave.

That the claim of McBride be settled for the sum of $25.

Stop Whistling.

That the City Clerk communicate with the proper authorities regarding the stopping of excessive whistling by C. N. R. and C. P. R. trains passing Belleville hospital.

That the city close up McDonald Ave. at the railway crossing.

S. A. Grant.

That a grant of $500 be made to the Salvation Army to assist in the renovation of the citadel.

C. of C. Taxes Remitted.

That the Chamber of Commerce taxes for the year 1920 be remitted.

$300 for Boards of Trade.

That W. Elliott, representing the committee in charge of the entertainment of the Ontario Associated Boards of Trade, meeting in Belleville November 25th and 26th, be granted the use of the City Hall and Council Chamber on these dates and that a grant of $300 be made towards entertainment.

The committee rose and reported. Report received and adopted.

Frank Street Crossing.

Ald. Hanna stated that he and Mayor Riggs had taken up the matter of the reopening of Frank Street crossing with the G. T. R. and if the railway did nothing the Railway Board would be appealed to.

Inquiries.

Ald. Bone—Will the sidewalk on Front street nearly opposite Campbell street where a hydrant was broken off be repaired?

Ald. Woodley—A new hydrant would be put down.

Ald. Bone asked if something would be done to streets leading off Bridge street east, also with Murney Hill as regards grading.

Ald. Hanna—Yes.

Ald. Ponton asked that a written report be prepared by the City Engineer in reference to the sewer on North Front street, especially that portion near Mr. Latta's residence.

Ald. Doyle asked if the holes in the pavement on Front street in front of the city building would be repaired.

Ald. Hanna—They will be attended to.

Where is Commissioner?

Ald. Woodley—Has any one seen or heard of our City Industrial Commissioner?

Ald. Ponton—I have not seen or heard of him since the 29th of September and I do not know when I will either hear from him or see him. I have some information which I will give privately to the members of the Council in the matter. No one regretted the situation which has arisen more than the speaker.

Ald. Woodley—I intend to give notice of a bylaw to repeal the bylaw appointing E. P. Fredericks Industrial Commissioner.

Ald. Bone—It is unfortunate that this situation developed just after the Chamber of Commerce had got into its new premises. The directors will take the matter up.

Ald. Hanna—Has anything been done to change the name of Hambly street to Oak street?

City Clerk—No bylaw has been prepared.

Ald. Bone—A committee might be appointed to deal with the matter of renaming streets.

Roof Damaged.

Mr. T. J. Delaney addressed the Council stating that when Bumbacca Bros. were putting down the sewer on Yeomans street the roof of his house was damaged by flying stones and the roof leaked badly in consequence. It was a "Paroid" roof and many holes had been made in it.

Ald. Woodley said that Bumbacca Bros. were responsible for the damage done, and not the city.

Ald. Ostrom suggested to Mr. Delaney that he have the roof repaired and send the account to Bumbacca Bros.

Motions.

Ald. Bone moved, seconded by Ald. Hanna, that a committee, to be named by the Mayor, be appointed in the matter of renaming certain streets.

The Mayor named Aldermen Bone, Woodley and Hanna as a committee and the motion passed.

Ald. Ponton moved, seconded by Ald. Hanna, that that portion of a bylaw referring to a granolithic walk on the west side of Ann Street be repealed.—Carried.

Ald. Ponton moved, seconded by Ald. Bone, that some lots on Church street and south John street belonging to Elizabeth Thompson be purchased for $500 free from all encumbrances.—Carried.

Rearranging Offices.

On motion Ald. Doyle and Bone were appointed a committee with power to act in the rearrangement of the city treasurer's office. Some discussion took place on the motion, it being suggested that other offices, including the clerk's office be rearranged.

Ald. Bone—The city building has a good shell, and some time in the future the interior might be torn out and proper offices made.

Ald. Ponton—Our city clerk's office is a disgrace. The special committee might have some plan prepared to improve all the offices.

Ald. Ostrom—The offices of our officials should be properly fixed up.

Ald. Doyle said his committee had been allotted $6,000 and about $5,000 had been expended. We cannot do much overhauling this year.

Industrial Commissioner Bylaw.

Ald. Woodley gave notice that he would, at the next meeting of the Council, introduce a bylaw to repeal a bylaw appointing E. P. Fredericks City Industrial Commissioner.

Ald. Bone gave notice of a bylaw to have proper street signs erected.

Council adjourned.

PEKIN, Oct. 20.—An explosion and fire in the Tong-Shan coal mine, in Chi-Li province, killed upwards of four hundred Chinese laborers on Thursday last, but news of the accident reached here only today.

There were 119 survivors. An accurate accounting of the number of men employed in the mine is not available but a report by the mining company places the dead at 422. The explosion occurred in the next to the lowest level, smoke causing most of the deaths.

What Prominent Ontario Women Say

Tillsonburg, Ont.:—"I found Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription very beneficial during expectancy. I felt quite poorly, was nauseated and sick, could not eat anything and I was extremely nervous and weak. I took 'Favorite Prescription' and it soon stopped the nausea, my appetite returned, also my strength and I was soon feeling fine and strong. My baby was strong and healthy and has always been so. I consider 'Favorite Prescription' a great help to the expectant mother and am glad to recommend it."—MRS. AMOS MILLS, Box 238.

A HAMILTON WITNESS

Hamilton, Ont.:—"A few months ago I was stricken down and was confined to bed about ten days. My strength all left me. It was my first illness since a child. I lost five pounds and felt awfully weak afterward. I could hardly do my work. I was advised to try Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription in tablet form. I tried a couple of bottles and before I knew it, I was well and strong and had gained 9½ pounds. I can recommend Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription to build one up."—MRS. E. MARTIN, 397 Dundurn St.

After suffering pain, feeling nervous, dizzy, weak and dragged down by weaknesses of her sex—with eyes sunken, black circles and pale cheeks—such a woman is quickly restored to health by the Favorite Prescription of Dr. Pierce. Changed, too, in looks, for after taking Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription the skin becomes clear, the eyes brighter, the cheeks plump. It is purely vegetable, contains no alcohol.

On Monday when entering the town of Lindsay, down Victoria avenue, Engineer Hutchinson on the "Klondyke" noticed a group of children piling leaves on the track. King George a Sportsman

A KING would be an unpopular monarch if he were not a sportsman. The British would seriously consider establishing a republic if their ruler were not a sportsman.

Every American correspondent in his round of daily visits to the British Foreign Office hears substantially this lecture from a certain permanent official whose name, according to the traditions in the British diplomatic service, must not be disclosed. "Look here, Mr. ——, if you really want to understand the British you must realize that they never get disturbed except over one thing — an interruption of their holidays and sports. Do you know that when war broke out in August, 1914, the first thing thousands of us thought of was that grouse shooting, to begin on August 1, would be interrupted? I have shot grouse for twenty-seven years on August 12. This will be my first year since 1914 to go back to it again."

The conclusion of the lecture was along these lines:

"When you understand that we take our sports and recreations just as seriously as our work, you can read our history and not laugh over such an incident as the dancing of the people when London was burning in 1666. You can also understand how our soldiers gambled all night until zero hour when they were to go over the top in the morning. And our King, because his chief job is to encourage national life, must be a good sportsman. It is his business to be interested in all sports, and fortunate and happy for him if he loves some one sport. And by this standard George V. does not fail. He is a sportsman, and has two sports that he personally loves and excels in."

The King shows his interest in horseracing by holding court at a horse race—at Ascot. The King and his people picnic together at Ascot. Queen Anne had the course on Ascot Heath constructed in 1711, with an eye for scenery as well as for a testing place for thoroughbreds. For two centuries the British public has shown its approval of the Queen's choice. Ascot is essentially a women's meeting, for there the leaders of fashion make history by revealing their well kept secrets.

On the opening day at Ascot this year the King and Queen drove down the course in state. They motored through the great park of Windsor to the approach of the course and there took the royal carriages. Eight carriages made up the procession, the first being drawn by four grays and the remainder by four bright bays, for which the royal stud is so famous. In the first carriage rode the King and Queen with Prince Albert, now Duke of York, and Princess Mary, while Prince Henry was among those in the second carriage.

Each day at Ascot the King gave a luncheon in the royal dining room immediately to the rear of the royal box. The Queen attended only on two of the four days, which means to those who would garb properly that they must wear the tall black silk hat when she attends and the tall white "topper" when she does not.

But it is quite a different matter at the Derby. There the King and Queen attend, in so far as they can, merely as two individuals among a quarter million other members of the great throng. They go by train and take their box by the nearest route from the entrance. Tradition says that here they wish merely to show that they have common tastes with the rest of their subjects in what is properly described as a national institution, where a few good colts race over a very bad stretch of ground.

George V. is not as fond of racing as was his father, King Edward. He seldom bets, not because he thinks it is morally wrong, but because he believes it injures the sport. King George believes in sport for sport's sake. He has brought up his children on that theory.

But the horse race the King really enjoys is Newmarket. There he can wear a bowler hat and go around as any other man in the paddock and stables chatting with his friends.

Because King George had been trained in the navy many people expected that aquatic sports would be his favorite diversions. But such is not the case. He owns a yacht, the Britannia, which will sail in the races this year, and in the one at Clyde the King will actually be on board, and, according to rumor, sail it himself, for he is perfectly competent to do so. He is a very good sailor. The story is told that one time when, then but a prince, he was in command of a destroyer, his father wrote to the commanding officer of the port for permission for George to spend a few days with him in the country. The permission was granted, and when the officer told George he was to go on leave he said:

"What will happen to my ship while I am away?"

"Oh," said he, "it will stay at anchor here."

"Then," said George, "I will not take the leave."

The King's devotion to things he undertakes personally is a stronger characteristic. For instance, as a salmon fisher he is excelled by few. He goes salmon fishing in Scotland every year and is rated with Lord Grey as an angler. The King as a pistol shot has only three peers in England. Englishmen say he is probably one of the best pistol shots in the world. Grouse and pheasant shooting is his favorite sport. He goes to Sandringham soon after the season opens in August and spends many days on his ranges there. He takes great care of the birds on his estate there.

WILL ROGERS AT GRIFFIN'S

If a prophet had told Jubilo that he'd inherit a fortune or be crowned King of the Jiji Island Jube might have believed him. But if anybody had told him that some day he would go to work and fall in love, well, Jubilo would fly into a panic. For he was a highly respectable hobo, and what member of his cult, no matter how lowly would admit susceptibility to the despised instincts of work and love, and as a result did go to work. And he found himself plunged into a whirlwind adventure which started with a big train hold-up, and from it emerged a new Jubilo—a Jubilo who knew the meaning of work, fighting and romance. See Will Rogers, the screen's most human star, at Griffin's to-night as "Jubilo" adapted from the Saturday Evening Post story by Ben Ames Williams. Larry Semon in a 2-reel comedy, "Solid Concrete," a Burton Holmes Travelogue, and Jack Dempsey in a thrilling chapter of "Daredevil Jack" are also being shown on the same program.

MADGE KENNEDY MADE HER STAGE DEBUT AS A CORPSE

Madge Kennedy made her stage debut as a corpse! Happy thought, isn't it?

It happened in Brooklyn, the play was "The Whip," the famous English melodrama that sent shivery thrills up and down the spine of millions of Americans several years ago, after it has similarly vibrated the people of every other nation. Miss Kennedy was one of the wax figures in the museum scene and she was so frightened that she almost tumbled "out loud," which is something no well brought up corpse should do.

From the humble beginning of an undertaker's model, Miss Kennedy, a favorite leading lady, appearing with marked success in several of the Selwyn successes on Broadway, in each case assaying the leading feminine role. She started her screen career with Goldwyn in "Baby Mine." Miss Kennedy is appearing at Griffin's tomorrow to Saturday in a 6 reel Goldwyn comedy, "Through the Wrong Door," a 2-reel Hank Mann comedy, Charles Hutchison in "The Whirlwind," and a Travelogue complete the photoplay portion of the program. Pamahasistes Indoor animal circus, a vaudeville turn of guaranteed quality and consisting of a flock of trained dogs, monkey, pony, cat and bird actors is also being presented in addition to the photoplay program.

WOMEN'S INSTITUTE.

The September meeting of the Rednerville Women's Institute was held at the home of Mrs. Morton Weese, with a good attendance, the president, Mrs. Wm. Orvis, presiding.

After the business discussion the programme consisted of a reading by Mrs. David Stafford, "Only Mother"; a solo by Miss Audra Brickman, and a vocal duet by Miss L. Arkils and Mrs. Harry Cunningham. Selections on the Sonora were given while lunch was served by the young ladies. The winners of the special prizes given in the School Fair contest for the best hand-made button-holes were: Class 8-10 years, Miss Kathleen Giles; class 11-14 years, Miss Helen Redner.

In spite of unfavorable weather the tag day at Roblin's Mills Fair realized $37.00 for the Prince Edward County Hospital. The officers are very grateful for the generous response of the public on that day, to the girls who so faithfully tagged, to the captains, Mrs. David Stafford and Mrs. Roy Anderson, and to Mr. Roy Anderson for the use of his car.

SALADA BUILDING, TORONTO.

SALADA BUILDING MONTREAL.

THE THREE LARGEST TEA-WAREHOUSES IN THE WORLD.

These three huge warehouses, owned and operated exclusively by the Salada Tea Company, are the largest in the world devoted to the blending and packing of tea. In less than 30 years "Salada" has become a household word throughout Canada and the United States and is, indeed, by far the largest selling tea in America. Large quantities are also exported to South America and to Europe. Besides these buildings in Toronto, Montreal and Boston, other Salada offices are situated in Winnipeg, New York, Chicago, Detroit, Buffalo, Pittsburgh, Philadelphia, Los Angeles, San Francisco and London, Eng. The Company trades only in tea and only in tea of Salada quality, thus assuring undivided attention to the product. Every packet of Salada wherever bought may be relied upon to be of exactly the same fine quality and to yield an unequalled cup of tea. This policy of keeping faith with the public has been responsible for Salada's extraordinary sale.

Annual Meeting Of The W.M.S.

leaders among their own people? Only through Christ can the evils of their land be overcome and Thank God nothing can be impossible with Him."

After this excellent address from Miss Steele, Miss Hartwell, also a returned missionary from China, spoke a few words. She is a nurse in Chentu Hospital for men. Her work is a great one too. She spoke of how every morning she could look out and see the shining roof of the Model School Buildings and how even this inspired her in her work seeing that these Chinese people were having a chance as our pupils have in this land.

Miss K. Sisson of Albert College rendered a solo, "Lead Kindly Light," in a very capable manner.

Mrs. (Rev.) Wilson then gave the report of the Board Meeting.

She presented the ladies with some statistics. There are 56,496 members of the W.M.S. an increase of 6,370 However an increase of 20% was wanted and there was only a 12¼% increase. There are 280,000 women in the Methodist Church, that is members of the church. Why are they not all W.M.S. ladies? The total amount of money raised was $413,994.51. Mrs. Wilson emphasized that the Board had not sufficient backing by the women. Mrs. Ross, the President of the Board resigned. She was presented with a beautiful bouquet of twenty-three roses, referring to her twenty-three years of active service in this missionary work. The Board set apart $15,000 for a memorial to her, and let her choose what the memorial should be and she promptly said it was to go towards the building of the Model School in Chentu. Girls are needed to go out and teach in Canada as well as in the foreign fields. The work of summer schools, probation work, etc., lead to work of missionaries. "The dawn of opportunity in our own land was when immigration began" was quoted by Mrs. Wilson. She summed up her talk by giving our duties as follows:

Present work of Missionary Society to the Sunday School and Epworth League.

To heed the call of 20% increase in membership.

Every woman in Methodist Church a member of W.M.S.

Prayer, which can do all things.

Mrs. White then explained the meaning of stewardship. We generally think of it as meaning stewards of money. However we are stewards of time and talent.

Miss Morden dealt with "Talents." We all have not the same talent. Some can sing and play, speak or pray far better than others. However, some of us may have a mind that can take in everything we read and remember it too. Could we not impart some of our reading to others. Then again, others have a bright and cheery disposition which is very useful to well people as to the sick. We have begun to realize how great a talent this is. Intercessory prayer is the deepest of talents. "To present our bodies as a living sacrifice, is only reasonable sacrifice."

Mrs. S. Gay then dealt with our "Time" as a talent, in the following manner:

We have to give an account of what we have done with each day given us. Our minutes wasted in idleness are never caught up again.

Time wasted at laborious work. A mother may labor all day and still waste her time as she has never spoken a word to Christ. Is a mother's time wasted in hearing her babes say, "Now I lay me down to sleep?"

We must work for Christ, but not necessarily neglect our home duties. Our time is not wasted with working for our Master in the vineyard of life. We are our "brother's keeper."

Frivolous time is wasted time.

Sabbath desecration (the worst of crimes) is surely wasted time.

The offering was then taken and some of the reports from the various auxiliaries, circles and bands were given that had not been given in the morning. The announcements were given by Mrs. McFarlane as follows:

Proceeds from dinner $126.

The Convention of W.M.S. is to be held at Cannifton next year.

It was moved and seconded that a vote of thanks be extended to the ladies of Wallbridge for the pleasant day the ladies had, also moved and seconded that a vote of thanks be extended Miss Steele and Miss Hartwell for their inspiring talks.

The meeting closed by singing, "Praise God From Whom All Blessings Flow." The ladies all report of having spent a splendid and profitable day.

CATTLE DYING

The large number of deaths amongst cattle in Verulam township, the cause of which has been a mystery for some time, has at last been attributed to black leg, although none of the usual signs of the disease has been apparent among the cattle affected. Dr. J. W. McKay, veterinary, of Fenelon Falls, sent a blood test from one of the animals to Ottawa for examination. It was adjudged to be effected with black leg disease.

Letters To The Editor

IMPURE DRINKING WATER

Belleville, Oct. 19th, 1920.

To the Editor of The Intelligencer:

Dear Sir,—As the greatest complaints and grievance of the people at present is the bad water from the water works, and it appears that the only cure that can be procured from the Board of Health is to boil the water before using which indicates that the Board of Health have no solution to a genuine purification of the stagnant water that is lying dead around the suction end of the intake pipe, and for the purpose of assisting the Board of Health and encourage a pure and wholesome flow of water for the water system, I will advise to do away with the polluted and stagnant water altogether. This can be done by promoting a current that will carry the water right through to the east side of the Bay Bridge road and let the water flow on down the Bay and let a new flow of pure water from the west take its place. This can be done by dredging a cut on the north side of Zwick's Island in a line east across the Bay Bridge road, and have a law made to compel the Bay Bridge Company to substitute their road embankment with piers or large culverts so that the westerly current can go through their road.

Trusting our Representative will be only too glad to make this little claim as a very great and necessary harbour improvement for pure water, I remain

Very truly yours,
THOS. SULLIVAN,
30½ Bridge St.

They furnish the alkaline effect to offset acidity of the stomach and also pancreatine to aid intestinal digestion of starchy foods.

A CURE FOR DIABETES

used to be considered impossible. Thousands of people suffered through all of its stages, and finally died without ever having any relief, although in many cases the disease held them in its grip for a quarter of a century or more.

Through Chiropractic Vertebral Adjustments diabetes has lost its terror. More than ninety per cent. of diabetic patients completely recover under Chiropractic adjustment. There is a CAUSE for diabetes impingement, by subluxated vertebrae of the nerves that feed the organs of digestion and elimination.

Every part of the body—every organ and every cell—is supplied with its life and impulse to normal function by the nerves which carry the vital forces of Nature from the brain to the part or organ. The only place where this force can be shut off or hindered in its flow is in the spinal column. Here subluxated, or displaced, vertebrae impinge (pinch) the nerve cables as they emit from the spine. The flow of vital force is hindered and dis-ease results.

The Chiropractor, by palpation, finds the subluxated vertebrae, adjusts them into normal alignment, the normal flow of nerve force is resumed and Nature heals, or cures, the affected parts.

SUFFERING IS UNNECESSARY. SEE YOUR CHIROPRACTOR.

GERMAN SCHOLARS HAVE NOT REPENTED.

Forgive and forget is a good maxim, but there is always a possibility of extending the olive branch before repentance has paved the path of reconciliation. Germany thus far, has shown no signs of repentance for her horrible war record, rather has she developed a fiercer brand of hatred for all things British. German professors of science and art during the war signed a document approving Germany's conduct of the war. This document with its brazen impudence and untruths was given widespread publicity, showing that even educated Germany gloried in the shame that was hers.

Now Oxford professors are extending the hand of friendship to Austrian and German scholars and are taken to task by the London Times as follows:

> "The Oxford signatories, in their eagerness for reconciliation, seem ready not merely to forget the war and the German crimes in the war, but to imply that these crimes were committed under the impulse of loyal patriotism,' such as inflamed our own people.
> "They make no distinction between the 'embitterment of animosities,' rightly kindled by the deliberate sinking of our hospital ships or the bombing of our open cities, and the black passions of the wretches who perpetrated these enormities.
> "Are the Oxford professors so ignorant of modern German thought as not to know that these same passions were systematically fostered and propagated by the professorentum and learned societies of Germany for generations before the war? Have they no recollection of the manifesto of Germany in October, 1914, signed by no less than 93 'representatives of German science and art'?
> "Many of the greatest names of Germany in theology, in natural science, in law, in history and in philosophy were appended to that blank repudiation of German guilt, that whole-hearted defence of the violation of Belgium and of the murders done there; that frank confession that 'it is for the protection of kultur and out of kultur that militarism has arisen.'"

SACRIFICING THE BABIES ON THE ALTARS OF IGNORANCE.

Fourteen babies out of every hundred die in their first year in the United States, and to combat this appal'ing waste of human life baby-welfare movements have been started to dispel the clouds of ignorance so menacing to child life, and by educating the mothers to give the infants a better chance to fight their way through the danger period. A writer in the Christian Advocate, Pittsburg, claims that no other nation has as bad a record as the United States in infant mortality, which he characterizes as a disgrace, and states that boys and girls of school age are treated not much better than the babies. Tens of thousands of children are suffering from physical defects that might easily be remedied if the particular States and communities were as careful and humane as they should be in providing medical inspection for all children, establishing community clinics, and installing school and community nurses. This is offered as a simple and approved program: "Long hours of sleep with open windows; daily use of tooth brush; one full bath a week; plenty of outdoor play every day; at least four glasses of water a day; plenty of fruit and vegetables in the diet; a bowel movement every day." If these few rules were obeyed, "our American children would be healthy little animals, whatever else they might be." If we really have the welfare of our young at heart, here are a few other things we should do:

> "We ought to teach our children health 'in terms of strength, and beauty and joy, rather than of weakness and disease.' We should tell a boy that if he keeps clean and sleeps long hours and takes plenty of outdoor exercise he will feel well, and will grow up to be a good athlete and hunter and fighter for the weak and for good causes, like Theodore Roosevelt. The girls should be told that by keeping clean and well they will have a sense of bodily comfort, and will grow up fresh, pretty and attractive, like the girls in the advertisements of the high-grade magazines—or at least as near like them as an actual human being could ever become. In teaching very young children the necessary rules of health, it is enough to tell them what to do, rather than why it should be done. The all-important thing at this age is to install right physical habits. Children of grammar-school age should be given the why, so that they may have their reason satisfied, and so co-operate more cheerfully and wisely in the health program laid out for them. At the high school age, scientific knowledge concerning health and personal welfare should be imparted to the child, and he should be actively interested in community health programs. By that time he will have reached a point where he is not only able to care for himself intelligently, but also be willing to help promote and conserve civic conditions that make for good health and clean, safe community life."

Civil Service Reform

Vancouver Province

The civil service of Ottawa has greatly improved under the Civic Service Commission system. Its members are better educated men and women, with more self-respect, inasmuch as they have attained their place on their own merits. As they do not owe their positions to political favor they do not expect advancement by such influence On the whole the independent Civil Service Commission has vindicated itself in Canada as it has in Great Britain and the United States. It is a relief to most members of Parliament to be no longer besieged by friends and supporters seeking office for themselves and for their relpless dependents.

The Bluff That Failed

Toronto Telegram

Mayor MacSwiney is still starving away nicely, thank you. He may be attempting to show that to live long and happily you should avoid overeating. He has demonstrated beyond a doubt that there are easier ways of killing a Sinn Feiner than starving him to death. And he has proved conclusively that the hunger-strike method of creating sympathy is a joke and a bad one. The Imperial authorities showed their wisdom when they refused to condone murder because one of its propagandists threatened suicide. Mayor MacSwiney may yet qualify as a Sinn Fein martyr, but indications are daily pointing him out as a spoon-fed bluff.

Public Utilities

Hamilton Herald

They (the National Railways) do not pay now. Probably they will not pay their operating expenses for some years to come. But it is highly probable that they will yet be the most profitable national asset, and that the era of deficits will give place to the era of surpluses.

A public utility often requires to be nursed into prosperity. It is possible that aerial transportation will become a public utility—that it will be necessary to establish aeroplane services for the public some time before such services become self-supporting. There will have to be a long succession of deficits before the services earn enough to pay expenses.

POETS' CORNER

OCTOBER ROBES THE WEEDS IN PURPLE

Walter Malone

Far, far away, beyond a hazy height,
The turquoise skies are hung in dreamy sleep;
Below, the fields of cotton, fleecy white,
Are spreading like a mighty flock of sheep.

Now, like Aladdin of the days of old,
October robes the weeds in purple gowns;
He sprinkles all the sterile fields with gold,
And all the rustice trees wear royal crowns.

The straggling fences all are interlaced
With pink and azure morning glory blooms,
The starry asters glorify the waste,
While grasses stand on guard with pikes and plumes.

The sunset, like a vast vermilion flood,
Splashes its giant glowing waves on high,
The forest flames with foliage red as blood,
A conflagration sweeping to the sky.

Ordering His Coat.

They went in to the tailor's together.

"We haven't quite finished the coat," said the shopman, "but it will be ready to-morrow without fail."

"You are sure,' said Mrs. Brown that the fit will be good?"

"Quite sure. We are very careful in our measurement."

"And you think the cloth is fashionable?"

"The very newest material."

"You're sure it will be warm enough? He catches cold so easily.'

"The cloth is very closely woven. I am sure you will be satisfied."

And he bowed the two ladies out.

"Bless me!" said her friend. "Does your husband let you order his coats for him?"

"My husband? Oh, no! That's for my little dog."

A Wicked Waste.

"This is rather a curiosity,' remarked an artist who was entertaining a lady in his studio.

As he spoke he produced a tiny but exquisite painting.

"It is nice!" gushed his visitor.

"I was out in the country one day," he went on, "and had all my materials with me except a canvas. But I was so keen on painting this scene that I took out my handkerchief, stretched it upon my case, and painted the picture.

"Dear me!" exclaimed the lady. Then a look of horror came over her face as she went on: "But you'll never be able to wash all that paint out of it."

AS OTHERS SEE US.

What British Press Women Thought of Dominion.

Some interesting impressions of Canada and Canadians were expressed by several of the ladies of the Imperial Press after their tour of the Dominion. So happy had been the experiences of most of them during their trip from coast to coast that they refused to criticize, and would only compliment. Lady Burnham, however, when asked directly to criticize, said she considered that waste was the great fault of the Canadian people.

"You waste everything," she said, "food, lumber, water power—everything. You cut down trees, and instead of cutting them near the ground you saw them off several feet from the ground. You allow your fallen timber to lie around and rot. You should see our woods in England. Why, the poor people gather up every stick, there is scarcely a twig left lying on the ground."

But the waste of food was what appalled the visitor from overseas most of all.

"After England, where one ounce of butter is all that is allowed, to see the large pats of butter wasted, thrown in the pig tubs — oh, it is dreadful!" she exclaimed.

The large helpings piled upon the plates at receptions, in hotels, on the trains, etc., far more than one person could eat, also shocked the visitors, which involves a greater part of the food being thrown out.

"Food is so needed in Europe," Lady Burnham repeated, "and if you had lived in England during the war you would have learned the lesson not to waste it." But of Canada and the people Lady Burnham cannot speak too highly.

The prairies held two surprises for Lady Burnham, who has travelled twice over the veldt of South Africa and the plains of Australia. "I never expected to find farms so near together or the prairies so extensively cultivated," she stated, "and the size of your cities in the West astonishes me."

Mrs. Percy Hurd, whose husband is the editor of the Canadian Gazette, said:

"What has impressed me most in the Canadian women is their intense interest in the welfare of their own country, and their natural anxiety to know what we are thinking. We, of the Old Country, are more inclined just to take thinks as we find them and make the best of it. You are always trying to improve things. Your qualities and ours are complementary. What better team could we wish?"

Mrs. Mitchell, who comes from "Bonnie Dundee," and is the only Scotch lady among the party, could not say enough in praise of the country.

"I should like to take the whole trip over again," she declared. Her husband is editor of the Dundee Courier, and Mrs. Mitchell laughingly declared that he insisted upon her accompanying him.

Canada's National Railways.

When the amalgamation of the Canadian National, the Grand Trunk, and the Grand Trunk Pacific lines has been completed within the next few months, the Canadian Government will own one of the largest railway systems in the world. As a result of the merger the Canadian National Railways will control 22,000 miles of railway, employ 70,000 persons, operate 2,000 modern locomotives, 1,800 passenger cars, and 70,000 freight cars with a carrying capacity of 600,000 tons.

Stretching from Sydney, N. S., to Victoria, B. C., a distance of 4,030 miles across the continent, the system will operate 1,038 miles in Nova Scotia, 279 miles on Prince Edward Island, 1,107 miles in New Brunswick, 2,496 miles in Quebec, 6.352 miles in Ontario, 2,320 miles in Manitoba, 3,576 miles in Saskatchewan, 2,090 miles in Alberta, 1,227 miles in British Columbia, and 1,81 miles in the United States.

The merger carries with it thirty-two ships sailing from Atlantic and Pacific ports. The Government program calls for the construction of an additional thirty freighters, which will bring the total capacity of the fleet to 360,000 deadweight tons. Sixteen ships will sail out of Vancouver to China, India, Japan, Hawaii, the East Indies, and Australasian ports, and the remainder will sail from Quebec, Montreal, and Halifax to Europe, South America, and the West Indies.

Oil From Corn.

Corn oil is a far more important product than most people imagine. During the present year 37,500 short tons of it will be consumed in this country.

It is derived from the germ of the corn, which at the mills is thrown out in the preparation of meal and hominy. Were it ground up with the meal, the latter would not keep well; it would soon turn rancid.

The germs thus separated are pressed for the oil, which has many valuable uses. It is good for table purposes, whether for salad, for frying or for shortening. In the manufacture of soap, soap powder and oil-cloth it is largely employed; and by a vulcanizing process it is converted into an artificial rubber that is extensively utilized for overshoes and automobile tires.

Efficiency Wanted.

Officials of the city of Winnipeg and the province of Manitoba have started a survey to determine the best plan for handling the employment of young workers systematically. Letters have been mailed to more than 1,000 employes asking for information on the employment of juvenile workers. On receipt of the replies a conference will be held to determine the best manner of aiding the workers under eighteen years of age and giving them the right kind of employment.

Save Your Eyes

Much poor health comes from the eyes

The human eye is a "mechanical organ", like the lens of a camera.

If your eyes are out of focus, the image is blurred. If light rays enter your eyes at the wrong angle, it will be a constant effort to see. The nervous strain caused by impaired sight is the cause of much ill-health. There is one way to correct these defects—by properly fitted glasses.

The Optometrist can find the imperfections in your sight and correct them. If, upon examination, it is found that your eye is diseased, that is another question. That is work for a medical practitioner to whom you will be referred.

If your sight is defective, the Optometrist can and will tell you.

Treasure Trains Closely Guarded

VANCOUVER, B. C., Oct. 18.—Two seemingly unrelated items appeared recently in news despatches which recalled an hitherto unpublished and romantic story of the war. The scene centred in Vancouver, but under censorship rules the story could not be published at the time.

The two items were these:

A Reuter despatch in which Mr. Novitsky, former assistant to the Minister of Finance in the All-Russian Government, hinted at the huge amount of gold which was snipped through Vancouver during the war, including 60,000,000 from Vladivostok. A statement of the sale of the obsolete government warship Rainbow to a Seattle firm.

Both Mr. Novitsky and the Rainbow were central figures in one of the most interesting incidents of the war so far as it affected Vancouver.

The first shipment of Russian gold, amounting to about $45,000,000, arrived here in the February of 1916. It was in the form of bullion encased in boxes about fifteen inches long, six inches wide and three or four deep. It was loaded at Vladivostok for transfer to the mint at Ottawa, and came across the Pacific in a big Japanese warship with Novitsky in charge of the treasure.

The treasure warship never came into harbor. Far out at sea off Cape Flattery in a half gale the warship was met by the little Rainbow and the precious freight transferred between the heaves of the rollers. The most elaborate measures of secrecy were observed and it was three o'clock of a morning dark and wet, when the Rainbow nosed her way to Shed 1 on the C. P. R. docks here.

Awaiting her were Mr. Peters and Mr. Vickers, head of the foreign department of the Dominion Express company, who came out especially from Montreal, to superintend the transfer of the bullion across the continent. A specially selected crew of trusted men had been warned to be on hand for special duty and marched down to the wharf after midnight under special guards, and without any information of their duty or destination.

Awaiting the Rainbow was a train of coaches disguised as a silk train with five special express cars. On each of these cars was loaded $9,000,000 worth of gold. Four men armed heavily with rifles and revolvers received the cargo from the sailors. Each car was then closed, the doors heavily barred and guard mounted. The guards stood equal shifts throughout the journey. A telephone system connected the whole train and when any of the sentinels wished to pass to the diner or to any other car they did so only on release from the official car to the door keepers. These doors were never opened when the train was at a standstill. No guard was permitted to show himself at the windows when passing through towns. The train, at night, ran in absolute darkness, the men doing their night work by flashlight.

This was the first of four or five such trains which passed through Vancouver during a period of a year and a half, the details being as follows: February, 1916, $45,000,000; August, 1916, $50,000,000; January, 1917, $117,000,000; August, 1917, $50,000,000.

Pleasing Program Opens Star Course

Del Mar Ladies' Quartette Open Y. M. C. A. Star Course Very Acceptably.

The management of the Y. M. C. A. of this city has a reputation for providing excellent entertainers for the Star courses, and this season will be no exception to the rule, judging by the first entertainment given in the auditorium Tuesday evening by the Del Mar Ladies' Quartette. The quartette is composed of Misses Gladys Snowdon, first soprano, sketch reader and pianist; Beulah Anderson, 2nd soprano, pianist and 2nd violin; Idah Katzger, 1st alto and cellist; Katharyn Bouder, contralto and 1st violinist. They are talented young ladies who can sing, play and recite in a manner most enchanting. Each number rendered was heartily encored by the large audience. The program was varied and most entertaining. It was in every respect one of the most pleasing entertainments that has taken place in the city for some time. The instrumental selections were given in a manner that demonstrated superior talent, while the songs and recitations given were by no means of a secondary nature. The programme was as follows:

Overture—Bridal Rose .. (Lavallee)
"Old Fashioned Garden" and "Comin' Thro' the Rye"—in costume.
Reading—Miss Snowdon.
Solo—"Joy of the Morning" (Ware)—Miss Anderson.
"Come Down Laughing Streamlet" (Spross); "Stuttering Billy"—Quartette.
Solo—Aria from "Romeo and Juliet" (Gounod)—Miss Snowdon.
Instrumental—"Russian Romance"; "Poppy Blossom".
Quartette—"Christ in Flanders (Ward-Stevens); "Recessional" (Kipling).
"Awake, Dearest One (Ball)—Misses Snowdon and Bouder.
Instrumental—"Scented Violets (Reynard).
"Good-Night, Beloved" (Pinsutti).

The program closed with the National Anthem.

Sugar Refiners Must Show Cause

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer. Canadian Press, Limited

Ottawa, Oct. 20.—That it would be for the sugar refinery interests opposed to the action of the Government in suspending the order of The Board of Commerce respecting the maximum price and importation of sugar, to show cause why this should not have been done, was a pronouncement made by Prime Minister Meighen this morning at the opening of the hearing of the matter before the Governor-in-Council. "Should they fail to make a case, there will be no reason for hearing anything more" Mr. Meighen added.

The Prime Minister reviewed briefly the action of the Board of Commerce and the reasons which actuated the Government in suspending the order issued by that body. He quoted two clauses of the Board's order which, had they gone into force, would have restricted sugar sales to the Dominion and prohibited importation, and stated that the Government had three main reasons for the position it had taken:

1. Because in its opinion the Board had gone beyond its powers.

2. Even if it had not exceeded its legal powers, the order was not in accordance with what was contemplated by Parliament when that body enacted legislation constituting a Board of Commerce.

3. Because the purpose and spirit of this act did not contemplate giving the Board power to prevent losses but simply to prevent the making of excess profits.

Remains Suspended.

The sugar order of the Board of Commerce will remain suspended. With dramatic suddennes this morning hearing by the Cabinet of the sace came to an end even without any plea being made by the opponents of refiners claims. Huntley R. Drummond, president of the Canada Sugar Refining Co., had presented the Refiners' case. "As it is now stated" he concluded "that there was not warrant in law for the action of the Board of Commerce we do not press for the order to be confirmed but leave our claims for redress in the hands of the people and the Government of Canada with complete confidence that justice will be done."

He Can Do Twice As Much Work Now

"I'm Delighted With What Tanlac Did For Me," Declares Henry Coffin.

"I was just about down and out when I started on Tanlac, but that medicine has built me up to where I never felt better in my life," recently declared Henry Coffin, 152 Hillsborough street, Charlottetown, P.E.I.

"For the past twelve months I was in such awful shape that I never expected to be a well man again. Everything I ate disagreed with me and I would bloat up terribly with gas. I had such pains after every meal that I was afraid to eat and fell off in weight until I was as thin as a rail and too weak to do heavy work. I also had trouble with my kidneys and had a continual pain across the small of my back. It was agony to use a saw or plane and I often had to lay off from work for as much as ten days at a time. The pain from my back was so bad at night that I rarely got very much sleep and was getting worse all the time.

"The way Tanlac benefitted me was little short of marvelous. I soon had such an appetite that I was hungry all the time and could eat anything I wanted and never suffer from indigestion. The pains disappeared from my back and I haven't been bothered with my kidneys since. I have gained over ten pounds and am so much stronger that I can do as much work in one day as I used to in two. I'm on the job every day now and can work all day without getting tired. I sleep like a log every night and get up in the mornings feeling just fine."

Tanlac is sold by Ostrams' Drug Store and all the leading Druggists in every town.

SHOT TO DEATH

Philadelphia, Oct. 20.—The body of Elmer C. Drewes, a student of Dartmouth, who left his home here Saturday to return to college was found with a bullet hole through the top of his head, on an isolated road in the northern part of the city early yesterday. The police believe he was murdered.

Money, bonds and jewelry valued at several thousand dollars were found untouched in the young man's pockets. The body lay propped against a lamp post. An overcoat had been drawn over the knees and a soft hat lay in his lap. This, according to the police clearly indicates that robbery was not the motive.

Landmarks of Mackenzie

SINCE William Lyon Mackenzie King, the Liberal leader, has been visiting some of the shrines of his illustrious forebear, from whom he gets his Christian names, it is permissible for the average citizen, regardless of his politics, to do the same.

The remains of the rebel leader rest beneath the low spread branches of a mountain ash in the Necropolis in Toronto. Within a small plot, bordered by a hedge, four little stones, only a few inches high, mark a row of graves. One bears the word "Father" and below "William Lyon Mackenzie, next to it is a stone marked "William Lyon and George Mackenzie," and the fourth "Barbara and Helen." A substantial monument has been erected to William Lyon Mackenzie in the same God's acre where a granite shaft commemorates Lount and Matthews, two of his chief lieutenants, who gave up their lives for the faith they had in their leader and his cause.

Parts of the basement walls of the old Toronto Jail, in a cell of which Lount and Matthews were kept till their execution, are still traceable in the office building at the southeast corner of Toronto and Court streets.

From the Necropolis we pass to Bond street where at No. 82 stands the three-storey dwelling in which Mackenzie died. Toward the end of his strenuous life, which was one of almost continuous opposition to things as they were, some of the rebel leaders' friends, moved by sympathy for his condition, presented this property to him, though against his will, for his native Scottish independence never forsook him.

Here he spent his closing years—years of gloom and despair, it is said, and with a consciousness that he had not achieved all he sought in the realm of reform. After sixty-six years of strenuous struggle he passed away, and with his passing a page of Canadian history was closed.

As one sits at the old desk used by Mackenzie when a member of the Upper Canada Legislature (now preserved in the cabin of the York Pioneers in Exhibition Park), it is easy to conjure up the exciting scenes in which he figured and of his five successive expulsions from the old Front street chamber. It must be admitted that he drew fire as when he wrote that "the House was an assembly of sycophants" and the Government "a band of public robbers." "If a Government emanating from England can cherish such a corrupt star chamber crew (as the Family Compact), then the days of the infamous Scroggs and Jeffreys are returned upon us! They were tools of a servile power, official fungi more numerous and pestilential than the quagmires and marshes that encircle Toronto!"

No wonder there was a "come back" "William Lie-on Mackenzie" was a comparatively gentle rejoinder. He was, according to his enemies, a reptile, a spaniel dog, a seditious little liar, a firebrand, a political mountebank, a squip scribbler who began to feel his importance among small people and, like the frog in the fable, to swell with pomps and vanity.

Another Mackenzie reminder in Toronto still exists in the old Doel house, on the northwest corner of Adelaide and Bay streets. John Doel became associated with the leaders of "the Party of Reform." During the exciting days preceding the actual outbreak of the rebellion at the skirmish at Montgomery's Farm, the house was a rendezvous for Mackenzie sympathizers, while larger gatherings were held in the adjoining brewery where "The Canadian Alliance Society" was probably discussed if not formed, and other plans laid for the raising of an armed force, and where their leader no doubt frequently met with them.

Yet another visible reminder of Mackenzie is a pleasant one in his portrait, in the City Hall, as the first Mayor of Toronto, in 1834; indeed, as the first mayor ever elected in Upper Canada. It was during his year of office that the "little mountebank" proved to be a hero in personally risking his life during a cholera plague; in fact, he was stricken with the disease, but fought it successfully.

Among the Mackenzie relics in the John Ross Robertson collection in the Toronto Public Library are some of the military orders issued by Mackenzie and his rebel army, as well as the proclamation offering £1,000 for his capture. A curio in the Normal School Museum is a cane apparently given to Mackenzie by some political enemies in a spirit of irony, the lettering reading: "This vine was cut on Navy Island, U. C., after the Lion (Mackenzie) and his pirate followers fled to the boats on January 16, 1838, finding the grape of Canada too potent for their relish." (Signed) "HEMP."

More than one old Ontario farmhouse has legends of having given him sanctuary during his flight. A cave near Dundas is still pointed out as one of his hiding places, while, in the same town, the building which he once occupied—the Leslie House, has survived the passing of the years.

Queenston also holds a pathetic reminder of the turbulent Scot in the ruins of his old printing office, in which the Colonial Advocate was first printed and which so exasperated Sir Peregrine Maitland and all the Government rulers of the day, and, generally, a glimpse of Navy Island, in the upper Niagara, tells its story of the short-lived Provisional Government there set up by Mackenzie, ere he finally escaped to the American shore. —Frank Yeigh in Star Weekly.

RICHARD C. ARNOTT.

Under the auspices of the Masonic fraternity, of which deceased was a member, the funeral of the late Mr. Richard C. Arnott, License Inspector, took place this afternoon, and the number in attendance was an evidence of his popularity. The police force headed by Chief Newton attended in a body. At the family residence Albert street, an impressive service was held, conducted by Rev. Geo. Brown, associate Pastor of Bridge st. church, assisted by Rev. Dr. Baker, Principal of Albert College and Rev. D. C. Ramsay of John st. Presbyterian church. Wor. Bro. J. O. Herity, Master of Eureka Lodge, conducted the funeral services of the Masonic order. During the service Prof. Staples of Albert College sang with much effect a solo "Face to face," accompaniment being played by Miss Potter. The floral tributes were numerous and beautiful, bearing mute testimony of friendship. Interment took place at Belleville cemetery. The bearers were members of the craft, namely: Chief Brown of the Fire Department, Mayor Riggs, F. E. O'Flynn, W. B. Deacon, M. Robertson, and T. D. Buxton.

ADVERTISE IN THE INTELLIGENCER

Sidelights on Borden

SIR ROBERT BORDEN, who has just retired from the Premiership of Canada, has been accused of slowness in making decisions. Political enemies have gibed at him at times as "Robert the Unready." A story which he tells himself would seem to indicate that he realizes a certain ponderousness in his mental make-up. Once as boys he and his brother, Hal, were in bathing. Robert got into difficulties in the water. As he declares himself, "after going down the second time I decided I had better remove my coat." If he had not taken off his coat the recent history of Canada might have had to be rewritten.

The Prime Minister is looked on as wealthy, but he is generally credited with being careful in money matters. He invited a newspaperman to dine with him at the Rideau Club in Ottawa just after the Conservative defeat of 1906. Several Conservatives were at nearby tables celebrating their defeat. Champagne was flowing at hand and the newspaperman was thirsty. He wondered if he was not going to be asked if he would like a little wine, but Borden gave no sign. When the desert arrived the scribe had abandoned hope. It revived though when his host leaned over very confidentially and began in his low deep voice—"They make excellent deep apple pie here."

Sir Robert Borden was never seen to read a newspaper. In the House he would sit for the most part of recent years apparently wrapped in thought even when his colleagues all round were rustling through the news of the day. The day after he was howled down in Kitchener during the 1917 election campaign he told a newspaperman that he never reads a newspaper.

Another characteristic of his was his habit of hitching an invisible lawyers' gown when making a speech. This habit has persisted to the present day as has his other of tapping his eyeglasses on his hand. His speeches were very simple and very logical and generally effective—his speech at the opening of the first war session was very fine—but of recent years he developed a bad habit of reading documents and often dull documents to the House. Many a lively debate has received its quietus when the Premier got busy.

Sir Robert Borden never carried his goods in the show window. He is for example one of the finest German scholars in Canada but never proclaimed it. In 1907, when touring the West he spoke at Humboldt, Sask. The greeting of the schoolmaster there ended with a few lines from Schiller. Sir Robert began where he left off and ended the quotation.

He is a wide reader and very closely acquainted with classical literature, yet he has seldom been known to make a quotation in his speeches. In this regard he is like Parnell, who was said to read little. After his death his books, however, were found with many marks and notes. Sir Wilfrid Laurier is said to have been not nearly so widely read as Sir Robert Borden, and yet he seldom spoke without bringing in some apt quotation, frequently from the Bible.

Sir Robert has been always rather stiff and wooden to his own followers. Whether it was due to short sight or absent-mindedness he often passed them without recognition. But they had a good deal of affection for him. In the earlier years of his leadership there was always a certain amount of jockeying to get him out. In 1911 just after the election campaign had opened, a Conservative caucus went in favor of exchanging him for either the late Sir Richard McBride or Hon. Robert Rogers. Borden behaved with wile. He invited them all to a banquet. Rogers proved himself the poor speaker he always has been. McBride was off color. Borden made one of the best speeches of his life. The boom exploded and the last real insurrection against his leadership died in infancy.

Although thus lacking in the quality of being approachable Borden was always easily accessible both to followers and newspapermen. It was perhaps one of his faults that he gave up too much time and attention to detail. He signed hundreds of letters which might just as easily have been attended to by a secretary. A curious thing about him was that his intimate friends were never intellectual men. Some were inclined to call them rather stodgy fellows. There is no need to mention their names.

Borden has always been famous for his fine head of hair. In his younger days he was a stalwart, yellow-haired athletic figure, who might often have been seen on the Ottawa cricket field. His hair has now turned grey but he still keeps up his athletic proclivities and devotes much time to golf.

Of recent years he had admirable control of his temper and it was hard to rouse his anger though he often spoke quite impassionedly in the House. But in his youth he is credited with being more easily roused. During the discussion of the Arctic scandal he gave Hon. L. P. Brodeur, then one of Laurier's Ministers, now a judge of the Supreme Court, what practically amounted to the lie direct. There was very nearly being a nasty scene, but Hon. W. S. Fielding prevailed on Brodeur to sit down and on Borden to withdraw his remark.

Sir Robert Borden himself said once, when asked, that his two outstanding characteristics were patience and perseverance.

"I Am Having a Terrible Time, I Simply Cannot Sleep"

"PERHAPS it is something you have been eating?"

"No, it is not. I am always careful about what I eat, particularly in the evenings."

"Are you often that way?"

"Yes, two or three nights a week, and I am getting worse all the time."

"Is it your nerves?"

"Yes, I suppose it is, for after any little excitement I am sure to have a sleepless night, and I do not know anything much worse than tossing in bed, unable to sleep."

"Do you have headaches?"

"Yes, often, more especially after a restless night."

"Why don't you try Dr. Chase's Nerve Food? That is what nearly everybody uses for nervous troubles these days."

"I don't know just why, unless because I have a dread of taking any drug that is strong enough to produce sleep."

"But, my dear, Dr. Chase's Nerve Food will not produce sleep in that way. It is only after using it for a time and after the restorative influence is felt by the nerves that you will find yourself sleeping well and naturally.

"So many of my girl friends have told me about using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food for sleeplessness, headaches, nervousness and such troubles that I have the greatest confidence in it."

"How does it act?"

"It is a restorative, makes the blood rich, feeds the nerves and builds up your system in every way so that the benefits are lasting."

"How long will I have to use it?"

"Oh, I suppose two or three months. It takes time, you know, to get exhausted nerves fully restored. It will not be long, though, before you find yourself sleeping well, enjoying your meals and entirely free from headaches."

"Say, I believe I will try it, for I do suffer most terribly when I cannot sleep, and then I am so tired out next day."

FARM WATER SUPPLY

Practical Pointers About Installing Suitable Equipment.

Putting Running Water In the Home and the Barn—How to Develop the Natural Water Supply—Several Systems Suggested.

(Contributed by Ontario Department of Agriculture, Toronto.)

IN penning this short article the writer desires to stress two main points in regard to this subject, first, the need and importance of securing an adequate and permanent supply, and, second, the installation of suitable equipment for getting the water "on tap" in house and stables and about the lawns and gardens.

In regard to the supply of drinking or hard water, it may be said that of late many of the old shallow wells of the Province have been failing seriously, thus indicating that the water-table is not as high as it used to be. It is to be hoped that this is only a temporary condition and that many of these wells will soon become serviceable again. However, the shallow well can seldom be relied upon absolutely, and so as a rule it is wise to sink such wells deeper. This usually means drilling. Sometimes there is good reason for abandoning the old well altogether and choosing a new site. A careful survey of the existing wells of the district in respect to depth, supply and character of the water will usually prove useful in regard to the advisability of drilling, also a knowledge of the nature, depth and dip of the underlying strata or rock formation may help too. Instruments for locating underground water, so far as our experience goes, have not been a success in this Province, although much is claimed for them in some other countries differing widely from Ontario in geological formation. Some individuals claim that they can locate underground water by means of a forked twig from such trees as cherry, plum, and hazel, and because we have known good wells to be found in this way, and because prominent scientists have given the matter considerable attention in recent years, we are not inclined to pooh-pooh the idea. In some cases old wells go dry because the water veins feeding the well have become clogged. If so, a charge of dynamite in the bottom will effect a remedy. Sometimes an old dug well will supply plenty of water for all time if it is dug a few feet deeper, or if the formation is sandy or gravelly (fine) for some depth below the bottom a special filter may be sunk into a water-bearing layer of sand or gravel with good results. It is well to emphasize the value of a good spring. If one exists reasonably close to the buildings it may be made to supply them with water if certain condition obtain. In every farm home there should be a large cistern either in the cellar or just outside the cellar wall and below the ground for storage of rain water. This water can be used for washing purposes, bathing and flushing the closet. A large cistern at the barn and connected with the eave-troughing thereon, will supply a large portion of the drinking water for the stock in the rainy periods. It is very essential that the supply be ample and never failing, and when this is assured steps may be confidentially taken to install water systems in order to have the water convenient about the home.

The second point, namely, the distribution of the water supply, is a very big one, and one about which a good deal might be written. Space will permit only the very briefest treatment, but if more details are required write the Department of Agriculture, Toronto, Ontario, for Bulletin No. 267, entitled "The Farm Water Supply and Sewage Disposal," or the Department of Physics, O. A. College, Guelph, will gladly advise regarding any problems received by letter.

(1) If the well be shallow, that is the level of the water is never more than 25 feet below the surface, or say the level of the pump cylinder, the pump may be located inside the buildings instead of directly over the well. Greater convenience would be the result of such a change.

(2) A small water tank in the attic of the house will make it possible to install plumbing fixtures, as sinks, bath and closet in the home.

(3) Better than the attic tank system is the compression system. A strong steel cylindzical tank is located in the cellar or some frost-proof place, water is pumped into it from well or cistern against air pressure which forces the water to all points where it is required. The pump may be operated by hand or better by gasoline engine, windmill, or electric motor.

(4) If electricity be available the compression system can be operated automatically and the storage tank made so small that the water is drawn fresh from the well instead of from a large storage tank.

(5) If a good spring exists on [illegible] ground [illegible] higher, a pipe under the frost-line between spring and house is practically all you need in order to have the spring water on tap.

(6) If not high enough for a gravity system the spring may possibly be advantageously located for installing a hydraulic ram which will pump the water to a tank in house or stable or trough in yard. It is worth while having pure and cool spring water always on tap about the buildings.

The fall would be a good time to put in a system so that you will not be obliged to carry water another winter. First be sure that your supply is ample for all requirements, and then go ahead with the installing of some suitable water system, and do not forget that we are anxious to help you.—R. R. Graham, O. A. College, Guelph.

Spinsters Wear Labels.

In some districts in Siam, a girl who reaches a certain age without finding a husband is required to wear a label, and thenceforth is a more or less privileged person, under the special care of the king, who is bound by ancient custom to find a husband for her. The royal matrimonial bureau has less difficulty in arranging matches than might be expected, for it works on a very simple system. A prisoner in any jail in the kingdom may gain freedom and pardon by marrying one of the king's charges, and as many eagerly take advantage of the right as there are available freedom-bringing maids. Whether or not the man is already married is of no consequence, as one wife is not the legal limit.

Crown Dating From 1000 A. D.

The rumor, current in the European press some months ago, when the Bela Kun administration ruled in Hungary, that the Hungarian crown was to be sold, seems to have disappeared, and the later government apparently means to keep it. It was an odd circumstance, says a writer commenting on that rumor and its disappearance, that, with so much talk of discarded insignia of royalty, the one crown actually mentioned as being for sale should have been the most ancient one, with a single exception, in Europe. For whereas the German crown, for example, is comparatively modern, and was made no longer ago than 1871 for the former kaiser's grandfather, this crown of Hungary traces back, at least in legend, to the year 1000, and the sum of 100,000 Swiss marks, about $19,000, which, last summer, was circumstantially reported as the price for which it was to be sold, does not seem particularly exorbitant.

The fact that thousands of 'teen age young people, especially the boys, leave the Church and Sunday school, presents a problem that is calling forth the concern of Christian organizations everykhere. Statistics shaw that only one in every three of the Protestant population is enrolled in the Sunday Schools, and that 85 per cent. of thise who unite with the Church are from the Sunday School. It is an astounding fact that the other two-thirds of Canada's Protestant population provide only 15 per cent. of our church membership.

To turn the outflow of 'teen age young people into church channels, is the great work of to-day, and that the denominations are concerned about it and are taking action is shown by the fact that practically all of them, together with the Y.M.C.A. and Y.W.C.A., are combining to promote religious education among boys and girls. This is being done in Ontario under thesupervision and with the leadership of the Ontario Religious Education Council, previously known as the Ontario Sunday School Association. The handling of this big proposition is recognised as not being solely a matter touching the church, but bearing directly on promoting a wholesome type of Canadian citizenship, keeping the future of Canada well in view, for no nation is greater than the character of its citizens.

Two large conventions have been planned by the Ontario Religious Education Council for this year: one in Belleville from October 26th to 28th, and one in St. Catherines from November 2nd to 4th. Speakers of international note will be in attendance, and altogether the program is one that commends itself to all Sunday School enthusiasts. The outstanding speaker is Dr. M. A. Honline, one of America's most forceful platform men and a man exceptionally qualified to discuss the subject of Religious Education in its many phases. Already indications point to a record-breaking attendance at both conventions.

The Thirteenth Commandment

By RUPERT HUGHES

He was so grateful, so eager to be deceived, that he forgot her state and clenched her hand hard and kissed it in gratitude for a priceless boon. The nurse, returning, saw the deed and smiled, not knowing what joy Bayard was taking in absolving Leila of suspicion and loading himself with blame. At such a time we love to bow our own heads in shame and cast ashes upon our hair. The taste of ashes in the mouth is good at such a time.

Daphne's first visitor after Bayard was Mrs. Chivvis.

"Oh, my dear!" she murmured. "I read in the papers about your misfortune. Such a night as I had spent! I was so afraid for you! And to think that you were lying here in such pain! And I might have helped you."

Daphne smiled, and they clasped hands like the two splendid little business women they were.

"How's the shop?" Daphne asked.

"I haven't been there."

"It isn't open, then?"

"No, indeed. With you here?"

"That makes no difference," Daphne stormed, already converted to the shop religion. "Customers must not find the door shut. Run open it at once. Suppose Mrs. Romilly dropped in. We'd lose her—unless this notoriety drives her away." A little blush of shame flickered in Daphne's pale cheeks a moment and went out. She sighed: "I suppose Mr. Duane has stopped that check, too—if he ever sent it. Oh, dear!"

He Was So Grateful, So Eager to Be Deceived That He Forgot Her State and Clutched Her Hand Hard and Kissed It in Gratitude.

Then a nurse knocked; brought in a card growing in a large little azalea tree. Daphne scanned it. "Mr. Thomas Varick Duane!" She peered closer at the pencilings and read aloud: "'I just learned. I'm heartbroken. Isn't there anything I can do?'"

Daphne felt as if outraged society had forgiven her.

"Isn't he a darling?" she murmured.

Mrs. Chivvis begrudged a stingy, "Well, of course—" She had the poor folks' conscientious scruples against wasting praise on the rich. "You'll want to see him, I presume."

But Daphne had had enough of evil appearance. "See him here? Never!" She glared at poor Mrs. Chivvis with a reproof that was excruciating to accept, and ordered her to go down and meet Mr. Duane and incidentally learn about the check. "Business is business," she said.

Mrs. Chivvis descended in all the confusion of a Puritan wife meeting a Cavalier beau. She came back later to say that Mr. Duane was really very nice, and spoke beautifully and had sent the check and would send another if Daphne wished it, and would make old Mrs. Romilly go on with the order, and would she like some special fruits or soups or something? He was really very nice.

Daphne eyed her with ironic horror and said, "You've been flirting with him! and me so helpless here!"

"Daph!—nee!! Kip!!!" Mrs. Chivvis screamed. The only counter-thrust she could think of was, "And what does Mr. Wimburn say?"

This sobered Daphne. Why had Clay sent no word? Everybody else in town had seen the papers. Clay read the papers. Surely he was not capable of such monstrous pique. When your worst enemy gets badly hurt you've just got to forgive—if you're human.

CHAPTER XXVI.

Leila was determined to endure everything that might be necessary to regain her beauty. She would go through any ordeal of knives or plaster casts or splints or medicines for that. She was quite grim about it. Her resolution extended to the spending of as much of Bayard's money as might be necessary on surgeons' fees and doctors' bills. If she bankrupted Bayard it would be with the tenderest motives.

Five times she went to the operating table, made that infernal journey into etherland, knowing what afteranguishes waited her, what retching and burning and bleeding. She braved death again and again, took long chances with cowering bravado. And all for Bayard's sake.

One morning when Bayard reached his office after a harrowing all-night vigil at Leila's side he was just falling asleep over the first mail when his telephone snarled. He reached for it with alarm. A voice boomed in his ear:

"Ah you thah?" [illegible]

"Yes."

"Keep the line, please. Now, you ah through, sir?"

Then a growl replaced the boom, a growl that made the receiver rattle:

"Ah you thah, Mr. Kip? This is Colonel Marchmont. I dare say you remember our conversation about those damned contracts with Wetherell. A little farther discussion might not be amiss—if you could make it perfectly convenient to drop ovvah at, say, a quawtah pahst fah?—Good! I shall expect you at that ah."

Bayard pondered. What new persecution was fate preparing? As he went to the office, he bought an evening paper. A heavily headed cablegram announced that the laborers in the British munition works were striking or threatening to strike. A gleam of understanding came into Bayard's eye. When he reached the desk of Colonel Marchmont he looked unabashed into the revolver muzzle of the old war horse's one eye.

Without any preliminary courtesies or any softening of his previous tone the colonel snorted: "Those devilish contracts you made with Wetherell—The poor fellow is no longer alive—more's the pity, but— Well, I'm afraid I was a bit severe with you. I fancy we might see our way to renewing those contracts at a reasonable figure—say at a 25 per cent reduction from the terms you quoted."

Bayard smiled and shook his head. He bluffed the bluffer. "The prices we quoted included only a fair profit, colonel. Since then materials have been going up in price every minute, owing to the demand from abroad. And the home market is booming. We can sell all our product here, and more, too, than we can make."

Greenwich Observatory.

The celebrated Observatory at Greenwich, the place from which we reckon longitude, was founded by Charles II. in 1675, mainly for the purpose of investigating the movements of the moon in the interests of navigation. Although in the intervening two and a half centuries astronomers have worked at the problem, the moon has not yet become entirely amenable to their mathematics. In a recent report of the observatory at Greenwich attention is invited to the increasing deviation between the calculated position of the moon in the sky and its real position as shown by the Greenwich observations. The deviation has lately been growing in a serious manner. The error last year was more than twelve times as large as the error twenty years ago, and the average annual increase during the two decades has amounted to half a second of arc in longitude. The reason that astronomers have failed in getting exact results from calculations based on the dynamical law of gravitation is possibly the existence of some attractive force that they have not yet discovered, although the result may also be affected by the true shape of the earth, whwich still awaits accurate determination.

Britain, the Greatest Maritime Power, Supports Her Mercantile Training Ships Wholly by Voluntary Public Contributions, Because it is Realized that the Sailor is a National Asset.

It takes six times as long to train a seaman as it does to build a ship.

Maritime strength cannot be achieved in a year or even a decade. Its growth can only be commensurate with the development of sea-conscious spirit in the nation.

The continuous training of over two thousand Canadian lads, in the Boys' Naval Brigades of the Navy League of Canada, is to-day having an effect upon our maritime future.

Only through this medium can the foundation be laid of trained Canadian seamen for our ships.

Since May last, sixty of these lads have completed their training and passed into the Canadian Merchant Navy. Fifty more are on the new ships of the re-organised Royal Canadian Navy.

Under the guidance of Experienced Sea Minds, it is being planned to give chosen lads from the Boys' Naval Brigades an ocean-going education second to none, so that Canada will have efficient master seamen.

The Merchant Navy of any nation is its first step to sea power.

Public opinion demands that this work be maintained.
From the public, then, must come the funds.

IMMIGRATION.

Trade Will Not Flow Strongly For Over a Year.

Probably a year, or slightly more han a year, will elapse before the movement from Great Britain to Canada reaches a really large number, in the opinion of Hon. James A. Calder, Minister of Immigration and Colonization. Mr. Calder, who has eturned to Ottawa, after an official rip to England and Scotland, finds hat shipping conditions are at presnt operating to restrict the movement. Moreover, Canadian immigraion agents overseas have instrucions to take every precaution to see hat no more people migrate to the Dominion than can at present be bsorbed.

They advise persons not likely to nd employment within a reasonable ime of their arrival in Canada to efer their departure from England. hipping agents, too, in view of the enalties to which they are liable for ringing unsuitable persons to the Dominion, are careful to scrutinize pplicants for passages. In conseuence, Mr. Calder asserts that Canda is securing a better and more uitable class of new citizens than ver before.

The shipping situation, however, revents any immediate increase in he volume of immigration. Mr. Caler interviewed officials of the North tlantic shipping conference, and as informed that accommodation n vessels coming to Canada was ooked for about a year. In so far s the outlook for immigration in he future is concerned, it will deend a good deal upon economic conitions in Great Britain. For intance, Mr. Calder states that there n at present almost as great a shortge of domestic servants in England s in Canada. Women, who were ained for domestic service, found mployment in industry during the ar. They are only gradually leavg that field and returning to doestic service. The Minister of Imigration, however, found in Great ritain a feeling that a fairly serus unemployment situation might evelop there in the near future. uch a condition would tend to drive ople to seek homes and livelihoods other countries. It has been varusly estimated, moreover, Mr. Caler points out, that Great Britain has surplus population over pre-war ys of from 600,000 to 1,200,000. efore the war 250,000 people left ritain every year. At the same me, having regard to the shipping tuation, Mr. Calder inclined to the ew that immigration would not ach really large numbers for probly a year, or until the spring of 922.

Cutting Down Waste.

People of average means can hardafford in these days to keep sernts. Households which formerly pt two or three now get along with e maid. Many manage with half a rvant, sharing her with a neighbor. ot a few housewives have been iven to the necessity of doing their n cooking and sending the washg to a laundry.

This has meant a great deal of scomfort, but there has been an cidental gain. Waste is enormously duced.

Servants make nearly all the waste a household. Many housewives, prived of "lady help," have been tonished to observe a shrinkage of eir food bills, notwithstanding the esent doubled and trebled prices.

When a domestic establishment ploys half a dozen servants the ste is enormous. Nearly always in house run on that scale the butler d cook "stand in" with the butchand grocer, and their rake-off inases with the amount of food they row away.

Recent investigations proved that average family living in a prite house, with one or more sernts, throws away a pound and a arter of perfectly good food every y.

It was found that the average artment house family throws away ly one-fifth as much — largely, ubtless, because such families rece domestic service to a minimum.

In the tenement districts of Tonto one garbage can usually sufs to hold the food refuse of twenty nilies. But in the "private house tricts" it was found that 163 famihad 175 garbage pails, or more n a pail apiece.

Examination of the 175 pails realed eighteen pounds of bread and s, fifty pounds of meat, thirty-five nds of potatoes, sixteen pounds cereals and large quantities of pertly edible fresh vegetables.

Always the amount of food waste ies directly with the number of vants employed. As a matter of t, the full garbage pail seems htho to have been regarded in this ntry as a manifestation of prosity. Not until very recently have ple begun to think that possibly s was a foolish idea.

KILLS HIS SISTER WHEN WAVING HER GOOD-BYE

Wairton, Oct. 19.—Christina McKay fourteen years-of-age, a daughter of Archie McKay, in the Ottwell settlement, was instantly killed by a shot from a rifle carried by her brother, Charlie, a lad of sixteen years.

The little girl was sitting by the window, and as her brother was leaving the house, he partially turned waving goodbye with his hand. In so doing he swung the rifle on his shoulder, and the trigger caught in his coat, exploding the cartridge.

The bullet went through the window splintering the glass, and struck his sister, killing her instantly. No action has been taken by the authorities up to the present time.

VOTING AS DUTY URGED UPON NUNS

Baltimore, Md., Oct. 19.—Supplementing his general advice to women to register and vote, Cardinal Gibbons has issued an oral statement through his secretary urging sisters of the various orders of the church to take similar steps.

In his message to the sisters the Cardinal emphasized the fact that they were in no sense forced to register and vote, but that, nevertheless, it was a duty which belonged to them in common with other women. He recommended strongly that this duty be observed.

COLLEGE ATHLETICS

Why Agricultural College Students Need Physical Culture.

Brawn and Brain Work Well Together — Students Help to Direct In Sports—Building Up the Body for Later Usefulness.

(Contributed by Ontario Department of Agriculture, Toronto.)

ATHLETICS at our College are being revolutionized and placed on a more stable basis than in the past.

Progressive colleges are coming to realize the supreme importance of bringing physical training to the front in educational work. College authorities are realizing that they are responsible for the ignorance among the alumni of the colleges, regarding the care of the body, as it is a well known fact that eighty per cent of graduates die from ten to thirty years before the age at which they should. They are also realizing that under the old method less than fifty per cent. of the students are engaged in any form of systematic or organized exercise. This is due to the fact that our colleges were, and some are as yet, fostering two classes—one class attends for social and athletic advantages, and the other attends largely for intellectual opportunities. The first class is inclined to neglect mental work and carry athletics to excess, while the second class is inclined to neglect physical training and carry mental efforts to excess. Neither class lives strictly hygienic lives.

Now our colleges are adopting new methods to eliminate such conditions and are awakening to the fact that physical education has a legitimate place in the college curriculum.

Some of these methods are as follows: (1) Intra-collegiate sport and recreation in addition to our inter-collegiate sports, with the constant purpose in view of usefulness in after life. This draws in the spectators on the side lines and promotes interest by friendly rivalry. (2) Organization of activities on the basis of athletic sports, rather than on gymnatic basis, giving games to the student if normal physically; if not, remedial gymnatics until fit. It is necessary to have a wide range of sports, games, and physical activties, and a plan to encourage more general participation in them. (3) Exercise taken systematically and at regular intervals. (4) A subject with required attendance. (5) Strength test upon entering and at the end of each year, so a student may realize the benefit of systematic training. (6) Encouragement of the type of physical exercise that a student is likely to use in after life. (7) The teaching of fundamental principals of hygienic living. (8) Increase of facilities for outdoor sports in winter and summer.

In the past years athletics at the O. A. C. have been carried on without these advantages and, in spite of great difficulties, we have been handicapped primarily in not having an athletic field, and necessary funds for equipment which is essential for executing an effective program; this is our greatest need and will be a hinderance to our progressive program for this year. It is our great desire that it will not be long before we benefit by both.

The whole student body had a meeting before final examinations on the thirtieth of last March for the purpose of discussing and voting on the new program for the coming year which was outlined by our athletic executive. Professors Blackwood, Toole, and Crowe, and Dr. Creelman pointed out to the students and faculty the great need of such a program and their duty in regard to athletics and themselves. After a discussion, voted each cause of this program was .... on and passed unanimously by the whole student body.

(1) Students who have had previous training to act as leaders in the different branches of sports—to coach in boxing, wrestling, aquatics, and track and instruct in athletic games.

(2) Promote a fuller program of inter-year athletics by having schedules in more branches of sports. Inter-year competitions in the following sports: Rugby, soccer, play ground ball, push ball, volley ball, outdoor basket ball, boxing and wrestling, track, mass athletic meets, cross country runs, tug of war, tennis and aquatics.

(3) For those students who do not take part in these sports, two compulsory periods a week will be given in which they will be instructed in athletic games, field and indoor events, swimming, boxing and wrestling.

In order to promote this program, we had to enlarge on our Athletic Council which was composed of the sports managers, picked from the faculty, and the Athletic Executive. To this we added a Leaders Corp and Managers of inter-year sports picked from the students. The Leaders Corp is made up of directors of sports (one for each sport) and their leaders. The inter-year managers (one for each sport) have charge of the coaching and managing of their teams and are responsible to their year representative who is a member of the executive.

By such an organization we feel confident of swinging our program successfully, which means every student will take part in some branch of athletics. Those students, who come under clause (3) of our program, will be given special instruction by our Leaders Corp and will greatly benefit themselves and the college. In this way we will be able to reach the stud... ... the student on the side lines.

Suggestions regarding athletics in rural community centres will be presented in a future article.—K. W. Forman, Director of Athletics, O. A. College, Guelph.

Profiteer Disgorges.

A Swiss multi-millionaire company promoter and financier, M. Jules Bloch, who made enormous profits during the war and declared only a portion for taxation, has been fined by the Federal Commission at Berne the record sum of 16,000,000 francs, which, according to the present rate of exchange, amounts to more than $3,250,000. The case has been pending since the armistice.

Just in Time To Save Lives

THE visitor was ushered into the little living-room. Through a back window one glimpsed three children busy over mud pies.

The last time the visitor had seen the young mother and her husband had been at the Muskoka Free Hospital for Consumptives.

Some months previous to that both had developed tuberculosis. Future health—life, indeed—depended on prompt measures. Yet, if the husband stopped earning, how could they live. Their despair had been tragic. In just such cases the "Muskoka Free" fulfils its mission. Husband and wife were sent there and given every care. Grandmother, with financial help from the Samaritan Club, kept the children. To-day, they are home again, cured.

"We went just in time," said the young wife, gratefully, a tender light in her eyes as she glanced at the little mud-pie cooks.

SENSATIONAL SPEECHES.

Sir Auckland Geddes Reads Industrialism a Lecture.

The Canadian Bar Association owes its origin and rapid growth chiefly to the fostering care of Sir James Aikins, who, being impressed with the utility of the American Bar Association, has devoted his energies to creating a parallel organization in Canada. At the recent meeting held in Ottawa, two very sensational addresses were delivered which will have echoes up and down the land for some time to come.

Mr. W. E. Raney, the Attorney-General of Ontario, in moving a vote of thanks to Lord Cave seized the opportunity to condemn the main reasons urging this change: firstly, it is quite inconsistent with our new claims to full national status that Canadian courts should not be good enough to interpret laws made by Canadian legislatures; and, secondly, the heavy expense of Privy Council appeals imposes an unfair handicap upon poorer litigants and often forces inequitable settlements. Mr. Raney's daring venture was backed up by Mr. W. D. Gregory and received support from an unexpected quarter in Mr. R. B. Bennett. Naturally the Attorney-General brought down upon his head the stern disapproval of most of the delegates, though he probably reflects the opinion of a large majority of the general public. Sir James Aikins and other leading legal lights were obviously pained, but wisely held their peace and it was left to Mr. Hartley Dewart to make common cause with an unbending Tory, Mr. White of Pembroke, in expressing angry horror at what they considered the disloyal and improper proposals of the Attorney-General.

But if Mr. Raney behaved with impropriety, his crime paled its ineffectual fires beside the misdeeds of Sir Auckland Geddes. In Britain Sir Auckland is classified as a Tory and an Ambassador is supposed to have no political or economic opinions. But to the astonished association he delivered a speech which had a flavor of earnest radicalism, and while it gained him many fresh admirers, lost him some old ones. Consider the irony of the situation. Here has the Labor Department been spending funds on pamphlets seeking to prove that the country is honeycombed with Bolshevist agitation. And now along comes Sir Auckland and tells his audience in categorical terms that denunciation of agitators is about as profitable a pastime as swatting mosquitoes, and that just as malaria cannot be got rid of until the swampy pools in which the mosquitoes breed are drained, so industrial unrest will continue till industry is humanized and intelligent and drastic readjustments of the existing system come to pass. He also brushed aside the theory that democratic unrest is merely a temporary aftermath of the war and will soon subside. Sir Auckland knows better and gave a moving account of his discoveries as Director of Recruiting in Britain, which apparently made him a reformer. Without undue emotion he narrated how he found on every side terrible evidence of the evil effects of unbridled industrialism, the physical ill-being of millions, the ghastly overcrowding, the destruction of home life and the reduction to mental stupor produced for multitudes by the dull task of minding soulless machines. His measured indictment of industrialism will not secure him an early invitation to address the C. M. A. in session. But his speech made a deep impression upon his audience. He spoke with a Calvinistic force and sincerity and obviously has not only thought deeply and clearly upon all current problems but he also claimed for himself complete freedom of utterance when the opportunity to strike a shrewd blow for sane progress offers.

Unique "Angels."

Theatrical history is full of tales of "Angels." But surely no would-be star ever had a prettier story to tell than that of Mrs. M. A. Trestrail, first known to theatregoers as May Anderson. After playing with several road companies Mrs. Trestrail decided to make her home in Toronto with her two boys, and became director of dramatic art at the Canadian Academy of Music. When one of her young sons went to France, mother returned to the stage once more and played the dark mammy of Henry Miller's "Come Out of the Kitchen."

But now comes the pretty part of the story.

Her two boys have bought mother one of last year's New York successes, and she will be the first woman producing manager in Canada. New York theatrical magnates are paying tributes to the ability of various feminine stage managers whom they are now giving a chance. But thanks to the devotion of May Anderson's sons, their mother is going even one further than New York's latest fad.

Mrs. Trestrail is to play the Trans-Canada route from Halifax to Vancouver. It is interesting to note her play is also the work of a Canadian, Harvey O'Higgins, and his collaborator, Harriet Ford. It is the George Tyler comedy hit of last season, "On the Hiring Line," and is a satirical farce on the domestic servant problem. May Irwin starred in it.

No Rivals.

It was a geography lesson, and the teacher had been asking what some of the different counties in England were noted for. Looking at one of the little girls, she asked: "Tell me, Florence, what Rutlandshire is celebrated for?" For a moment the child was silent, then an inspiration apparently came to her. "Rutlandshire," replied the child, "is celebrated for being the only country in the kingdom that is the smallest."

All Complete.

Lady, at railway station, to porter: "Now, porter, are you sure I have all my luggage in the train?"

Porter: "Yes, ma'am—not even a——."

Porter: "Nothing, ma'am — not even a copper."

Looking at the suit that you ought to buy—and buying the suit you ought to have looked at

That happens to a lot of men. Don't let it happen to you this fall.

Here's what they do.

They go into a good store and ask for a good suit of clothes and try it on. So far, so good. That's the only way to get good clothes.

Then they go somewhere else and try on a suit a little lower in price. That old dollar gets in front of their eyes and after that they can't see anything but price. Pretty soon they aren't looking at anything but price marks. The suit they finally buy is one they literally haven't looked at.

No man ever looked his best in a suit of clothes that he bought because it was a few dollars cheaper than the one he wanted.

It is on that theory that we ask you to look at Society Brand Clothes.

An Appreciation

Moved by Mrs. Wills, Seconded by Mrs. Bell, and passed by a standing vote—

With the most profound feeling we record the decease this month of William J. Gibson, M.A., M.D., C.M.F., A.C.S., the most valued member of the medical board of our hospital who since its erection has placed his preeminent professional skill at its service. He has done much to make our institution what it is today by his untiring energy, devoted efforts and marked ability, not only as a surgeon but as a wise and capable counsellor. We beg to tender to his family our deepest sympathy in their bereavement. "The Lord gave and the Lord has taken away".

Recording Secretary's Report

Madam President, Officers and Members of the Woman's Christian Association:

I bring to you once more the annual report of the W.C.A. This report of the 41st year of the life of the Association is not a record of any great achievement and perhaps it will not be as cheerful a report as we have had in other years. Many days during the year were very dark oones, when we felt almost overwhelmed with our burdens, but when those burdens were the heaviest some cheering word would come to us, as a beautiful sunset so often comes at the end of a dark and gloomy day, promising fine weather on the morrow.

Our Hospital as the largest part of our work always comes first in the report. The new Materity wing commenced last year, beautifully furnished and splendidly equipped was opened during the early spring but owing to the shortage of help, both in the domestic service and the nursing, the rooms have only been used when the crowded condition of the other parts of the building have made it absolutely necessary. A number of the rooms in this wing have been furnished either by private donation or by public subscription. The Red Cross and Patriotic Society and the Quinte Chapter I.O.D.E. have rooms in their respective names, and the "Edith Cavell" room named after that heroic nurse was furnished by voluntary subscription. The "Flora Yeomans" furnished and maintained by the legacy left by the late Mrs. L. M. Yeomans, the "Ralph Graham" rooms furnished by Mrs. R. J. Graham, and still another, the donar of which wishes to remain unknown. All during the year workmen have been at the Hospital painting, decorating, finishing floors, remodelling and in many ways improving the building. To an ordinary observer necessary repairs means very little, but as the Treasurer's report will show it means an outlay of many hundreds of dollars. Among the improvements this year was the installation of hot and cold running water in all the wards, private, semi-private and public. Much to our disappointment we are still without the X-ray. This necessary part of Hospital equipment involves a very considerable outlay, not only for the initial expense of the machine and to provide rooms for the different work connected with it, but also for the services of an expert operator. In spite of our efforts we were obliged to place a mortgage on the Hospital for $15-000, we hoped to be able to tide over this period of financial depression but found it impossible. Perhaps it is well for us to have this set back to make us realize that what we are enjoying now was only gained by great labor and sacrifice on the part of those who founded and built this splendid Hospital and perhaps looking back at the way we have come, we will gain the courage for our future problems.

Miss Green and Miss Morrison are still in charge at the Hospital and no words can express to you what their pains-taking efforts their self sacrifice have meant to the Hospital, the Association and the citizens of Belleville. We are deeply grateful to them and we also wish to express our appreciation and thanks to the nurses who have stood so faithfully by us during the past year. We also wish to thank for their help and many kindnesses the Medical staff. Just at the end of our year, has come to us the news of the death of Dr. W. J. Gibson. The passing of that great and good man, the best friend the Hospital ever had, the finest type of not only his loved profession but of citizenship, has left a vacancy that can never be filled. Like a good soldier he died at his post.

The Home Board has been as usual busy and faithful. We are grateful to the Matron for her excellent management of the Home and the inmates, her capabilities are known to all and it is to her care and kindness that her household is in such a splendid condition of health and happiness. The annual garden party was held at the Home during the summer and was a success financially as well as giving a great deal of pleasure to the old people. I have told you of our Home Board and the splendid work done by the Matron of the Home, but what can I say of the Home itself. In spite of our entreaties for a new building we face again the prospect of another winter in the present building, heated by stoves, condemned by the Government Inspector as unsanitary, mended and patched until now even the patches are refusing to hold together. We have always felt ashamed of the name Home for the Friendless, but we feel now that it is a very suitable name, for is there anything more friendless than a leaking roof.

The Indigent committee have had a very busy year especially so at Christmas time, when the splendid legacy left by the late Senator Corby is distributed in comforts and cheer throughout the city. The severe winter of 1920 was a great drain on the resources of the Indigent account. The smaller but not less important committees, Linen, Devotional, Dorcas

NAVAL HISTORY OF THE WAR—CANADA'S OPPORTUNITY—MERCHANT MARINE AND DEFENSIVE NAVY—WHAT SEA POWER MEANS TO CANADA.

Dr. R. H. Grant, Minister of Education has approved of the plan of the Navy League of Canada to have a copy of the League's "Trafalgar Day" program placed in the hands of every pupil in the Province and the objects explained by the teachers.

While Trafalgar presents the basis, the battle of Jutland, the surrender at Scapa Flow of the German fleet and the priceless sacrifice of the lives of British seamen are not forgotten. A bit of Canadian history is included under the titles of "Canadian National Existence," "The Threatened Destruction of Canada Was Averted," and "The Thin Gassed Line," at Ypres.

After dealing with foreign trade in this time of peace, the freedom of the seas, and Canada as a Maritime power Canadians are appealed to by "Canada can do what Britain has done."

The Navy League endeavors to continue the sea-conscious spirit in the people, in the schools and in the Government.

It is aimed to continue training 2,000 Canadian lads for the sea to eventually officer and man merchant ships sailing from Canadian ports.

The Government of Canada has accepted the responsibility of providing a Defensive Navy of augmenting the Merchant Navy, of Maintaining ports and lighthouses and undertaking regulations for the Conservation of National Sea Power.

It is the responsibility of private enterprises to own merchant ships, find cargoes and from profits by the freights provide sea transportation.

The Canadian public's responsibility is to insist upon the development of our sea heritage to enlighten people upon the importance of the sea so that Canadian products may be shipped, through Canadian ports, in Canadian ships, officered and manned by trained Canadians.

To encourage and to undertake the training of Canadian lads to man Canada's Navy and Mercantile Marine—to formulate a fundamentally sound policy for the training of our present sea-faring population, to meet an emergency, so that Canadian overseas commerce will be adequately protected—to support facilities for making the sailors' life ashore endurable—to provide for dependents of those who died to protect Canada, Nationally, Imperially and Commercially.

These objects can only be achieved through an organization representative of public responsibility and outside party politics.

$700,000 is required by the Navy League of Canada including $450,000 from Ontario to pension widows and orphans of the merchant seamen who were killed on active service, promotion of a national sea-conscious spirit the training of boys' institutes, development and administration.

Health And Happiness Help Children To Master Lessons

SCHOOL NURSE WORK REMARKABLE FOR EFFECTIVENESS AND USEFULNESS — DENTAL CLINIC TREATS 305 CHILDREN — 649 HOME VISITS — 55 TONSIL OPERATIONS—VOLUNTEER NURSES.

The wisdom of the Board of Education in protecting the health of the school children as the most important part of education has been amply demonstrated by the results achieved in the various schools by Miss Sinclair, the school nurse, through whose efforts the children are healthier and happier, and better able to master their lessons.

An interesting document is Miss Sinclair's annual report which reads as follows:

Annual Report

On beginning the work in Belleville, the earliest need was to secure suitable quarters and equipment. In the three schools where room was available, we have now well equipped offices, with the small supply of drugs etc., necessary for emergency work.

The physical examinations, advised three times during the school life of a child, were begun at once, the cards recommended by the Department of Education being used for records. Along with this, it was aimed to have fortnightly inspection of all grades up to Sr. II., with health talks and drills. The great amount of contagion during the year has interfered much. In the attempt to deal with this, we are indebted to Sanitary Officer Mr. Wills, who has reported at once to the school principal every known case of contagious disease among school children. The telephone system installed during the year has been of much service.

The following summarizes the work done:

Number of pupils examined, 654; Number written notices to parents, 310; Number home visits, 649; Number of pupils excluded from school for live head vermin, 35; for minor contagion (itch, etc), 43; for suspected contagion, 37.

Care of Teeth

In March a dentl survey was made by the eight local dentists. Out of 1216 children, 93 per cent. were found to have defective teeth. In April a dental clinic was opened in Ann St. school. The loan of a dental chair was secured, the W.C.T.U. gave $20, for a sterilizer, the Knitting Circle of the Children's Shelter gave $25 for a cuspidor, and a private citizen supplied funds for a dental engine. During April and May clinics were held twice a week, five of the local dentists giving their time. During June a daily clinic was held by Dr. Gerald Morton. Other valuable volunteer service was given by Miss Evelyn McCarthy and Miss Ruth Sinclair. They took entire charge of the clinics, records, etc. They report as follows:

Number of children treated ,80; Number of amalgum fillings, 124; Number of cement fillings, 57; Number of deciduous extractions, 46; Number of permanent extractions, 10.

Faulty Nutrition

A nutrition clinic was started in April in Queen Mary school; a group of twenty children markedly below normal weight. For the complete physical examination of these children Drs. Gibson and Cronk gave their time. The weekly weighing and diet instruction has been in charge of Miss Jessie McGie. Too much cannot be said of the value of this work, which is every where receiving increased attention as being the most basic of all health work.

Remedial Work

During the last ten months, the following remedial work is known to have been done:

Number procuring glasses, 29; Number having tonsil operation, 55; Number having orthopedic operation, 1; Number receiving dental care, 305.

In every effort that has been made the co-operation of the Inspector and teachers has been unfailing and is gratefully acknowledged. Much of this first year's attempt has been foundation work. Its growth will be in proportion to the encouragement and understanding given by parents and trustees. The value of school nursing to any community is no longer questioned—the results achieved are in direct proportion to the interest and support given by the community.

A. V. SINCLAIR, R.N.

DYNAMITE OUTRAGE IN LEEDS COUNTY

Brockville, Oct. 20.—A dynamite outrage is reported from the vicinity of Westport, when the residence of Thomas Martin is said to have been damaged by a blast, through motives at present unknown. A sister of Mr. Martin was in the house at the time, but escaped injury. Because of the outlying section in which the incident took place local justice officials have not yet obtained particulars of the case. It was stated today by License Inspector Taber that Martin was recently convicted of an infraction of the Ontario Temperance Act, and that another charge had been laid against him.

Trenf Water Flow Control Is Approved

Expert Warns Against Increasing Volume of Discharge.

Ottawa, Oct. 20.—Henry Holgate of Montreal, the hydraulic engineering expert to whom was referred the question of the use and control of water for power purpose in the Trent district, has reported to the Government that the water in question has been judiciously handled, and that, if reasonable security is to be insured, discharge above the present flow which is about 1,200 cubic feet per second, should not be permitted.

He does not advise lowering Stoney and Buckhorn Lages, as has been suggested, as the possibility of replenishment this fall by abnormal rains is too risky. He reports that conditions in the upper part of the Trent reservoir are bad, as there is insufficient water there now to replenish the lower lakes.

Must Draw no More

This he holds to be the key to the present situation, which can only be improved by heavy rains. "You have," he states, "already drawn on your storage in favor of power and can afford to draw no more; early rain will alter the whole situation."

Mr. Holgate was asked first as to the desirability of releasing from Stoney and Buckhorn lakes at the present time as an immediate betterment for power interests, what water still remains in storage upon those lakes, and

Secondly, as to the present system employed by the department's officials in storing the maximum quantity of water upon the reservoir lakes, as well as upon the Kawartha lakes; their system of the regulation of the flow maintained in the Otonobee and Trent rivers, including an opinion, after investigation, of the efficiency of the system employed in storing and regulating the maximum obtainable as a benefit to the people of that section of the Province.

Want Winter Distribution

Mr. Holgate interviewed the managers of the Utilities Commission and power users generally at Peterboro' and obtained the views of power producers and users at other points by telegraph. These were asked whether they wished water now or distributed over the winter, and whether they had any criticism to offer as to the present system of control and flow. The invariable preference was for distribution throughout the winter, and they stated they had no criticism as to the department's present system of control.

Railway Men Stay Out Of Strike

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer Canadian Press, Limited.

LONDON, Oct. 21.—A decision on the question whether the National Union of Railwaymen and Transport Workers would join in the strike of miners which began last Saturday was expected at a meeting held by the two organizations here today. Conferences of executive officers of the two unions were held yesterday and the situation was reviewed, but nothing definite was done, it being decided to wait another twenty-four hours before taking sides in the industrial controversy.

Oil Strike In Tyendinaga Looks Very Promising

FARMER DRILLING WELL STRIKES FLOW OF GAS AND OIL —EXPERT EXAMINES PROPERTY WITH RESULT THAT OPTIONS ARE TAKEN FOR ENGLISH COMPANY ON OVER ONE THOUSAND ACRES — INDICATIONS MORE PROMISING THAN IN OIL DISTRICTS OF MEXICO.

That Canada is destined to become one of the greatest oil-producing countries in the world is believed by many interested in this industry, and recent discoveries in various parts of Canada would seem to bear out this probability. Startling events of the past few days uncover the possibility of this section of Ontario becoming an important oil-producing centre. In Tyendinaga township discoveries have been made which are very promising, and one of the largest companies in the world interested in development of oil properties is already in possession of options on over one thousand acres of land in that township.

DISCOVERED BY ACCIDENT.

The story of the Tyendinaga discovery of oil indications, like nearly every other discovery of new fields of fortune in minerals, oil or gas, has its romantic side. A farmer named Roach living about three miles from Lonsdale, had a well which he couldn't use on account of the strong oil flavor, so he decided to drill another one. When down forty-two feet on the new well the rush of gas compelled suspension of operations, and there seemed more gas and oil than water. The farmer wanted water badly, but the recurrence of oil indications set him thinking. A relative from Pennsylvania, by profession an oil driller, had visited the farm a year or so ago, and noticing indications of oil, expressed great surprise that the oil scouts who cover the world looking for new fields had overlooked this locality.

Mr. Roach came to Belleville and told Mr. John Elliott, manager of the Standard Bank, his story. Mr. Elliott at once communicated with his son-in-law, Mr. W. H. Reeves, travelling representative for the General Oil Fields, Limited, of London, England, who is spending a vacation in Belleville, having recently returned from Mexico. Mr. Reeves never passes anything up without investigation, and at once set out for the Roach farm. What he saw convinced him that the prospects for an oil field here were excellent; in fact he states that the indications are better than anything he saw in Mexico, one of the greatest oil countries in the world.

OPTIONS ON 1000 ACRES.

Mr. Reeves thinks so well of the property that he at once secured options on over one thousand acres of land, including the Roach farm. If oil is discovered in quantity the farmers will be paid a good rental besides royalties which means sudden fortune for a number of families in the vicinity of Marysville and Lonsdale.

Geologists have been sent for by Mr. Reeves and a thorough examination of the property will be made at once. If the property proves up as Mr. Reeves thinks it will he states that his company will spend at least one million dollars in development within the next year.

What an oil field in close proximity to Belleville will mean to this city in increased business can be imagined, and with the shortage of power the prospects of augmenting the Canadian supply of oil and gas is something very much to be desired.

Open Market For Sugar Must Be Maintained

GOVERNMENT MAKES SHORT WORK OF REFINERS' CLAIM FOR EMBARGO ON AMERICAN SUGAR—CANADIANS MUST NOT BE DENIED OPPORTUNITY TO SECURE CHEAP SUGAR.

OTTAWA, Oct. 21.—The hearing before the Government in the sugar case came to an abrupt conclusion this morning.

The refiners failed to establish a case, and without calling upon the other side for a reply, Premier Meighen announced that the hearing was over.

The Cabinet Council at a special meeting, following the hearing, passed an Order-in-Council declaring permanent the suspension of the Board of Commerce order.

In other words, there is now an open market in sugar and the Canadian householder will be able to secure supplies at whatever prices market conditions dictate. There will be no fixed price and no ban on importations.

If sugar can be secured at lower prices in the United States, Canadians are free to buy there, should the domestic trade be unable to make similarly favorable quotations.

Belleville-Oswego Route Is Now In Full Swing

MANY SHIPS UNLOADING CARGOES IN BELLEVILLE PORT—USEFULNESS OF GOVERNMENT WHARF DEMONSTRATED — NEW TRANSPORTATION ROUTE SUPPLYING CENTRAL ONTARIO WITH COAL AND OTHER COMMODITIES.

Great activity is in evidence in the Belleville Harbour in connection with the trans-shipping of coal from sailing vessels and barges into cars.

Years ago Belleville was the central distributing point for grain and in those days it was no uncommon sight to see from 15 to 20 schooners loaded with grain leaving the port of Belleville. That Belleville has natural shipping advantage is obvious.

During the last ten days the barge White and Friant, capacity 700 tons, has unloaded two cargoes of coal here. The steam barge Hinckly and the schooner Filer have also been in port this week. The Horace Taber with 450 tons is discharging her cargo today and the schooner Oliver Mowatt 425 tons capacity, is enroute from Oswego to Belleville. These barges and schooners are all under charter by The Schuster Co. Ltd., to whom the traffic is consigned.

PARTRIDGE ARE PLENTIFUL

Partridge are said to be very plentiful this season. Last week Mrs. A. W. Cram, Carlton Place, had a visitor. A partridge dashed against her kitchen window with such force as to smash the glass and passing through the hole perched itself on the sideboard. Here it rested for some time, after which it took its departure again through the door.

NARROW ESCAPE

An unidentified man had a narrow escape from serious injury at Kingston Junction when he was struck by the cylinder of G.T.R. train No. 14, Engineer William Adamson of Belleville. The platform of the station was crowded and the man leaned over the edge slightly, with the result that, although he was not struck by the buffer beam of the locomotive, he was hit by the cylinder. He was pushed to one side, but apparently received no serious injury, for when Engineer Adamson stopped his engine and returned to the scene, the man was not to be found. Fortunately the train was travelling slowly at the time preparatory to stopping.

MAIL STOLEN

Brockville police are investigating the disappearance of three mail bags from the Canadian Pacific Railway wharf, where they had been left to be taken across the ferry for connection with the New York Central train. The carrier deposited the bags on the wharf and as the approaching boat was in sight, drove away, thinking they would be safe, but before the boat touched the wharf the bags had been stolen. One of them, containing a valuable registered package of bonds consigned to Merristown, N.Y., was later found in the Canadian Pacific Railway yard near the wharf. It had been slit open, but its contents apparently did not interest the thief as the bonds were intact. There is as yet no trace of the thief or of the other two bags.

AN ENJOYABLE FUNCTION.

Under the auspices of the young ladies of St. Michael's Church a card party was held last evening in St. Michael's Academy, which was largely attended and proved to be a most enjoyable function. Those in charge did everything possible in their power for the pleasure of their guests, which attention was appreciated. The majority of those present indulged in card playing, euchre and five hundred being the games played. Appropriate prizes were given and the successful players were as follows:

Mrs. John Murphy, first prize in euchre for ladies, and Mrs. Goyer, second prize.

P. Harrison, first prize for gents, and Mr. Ethier, second prize.

Mrs. Frank Fitzpatrick won first prize for lady in five hundred, and Mr. Frank Walsh gent's prize. Miss G. Thompson, of the G.N.W. telegraph office secured a prize for bridge.

At the conclusion of the games a dainty lunch was served and this was also a enjoyable feature of the evening. In one of the large class rooms on the first floor many of the young people indulged in dancing, for which appropriate music was furnished.

Death Hovers Over Wee Kiddie At Play

LINDSAY, Oct. 19.—Death hoverd over a tiny three-year-old girl at play on the Victoria avenue railway tracks here Monday.

She and some of her little companions had been gathering autumn leaves and piling them upon the tracks, taking turns at burying one another. She was "it" and had curled up in her little nest between the rails, completely hidden from sight, when Engineer Hutchison entered the town with a long string of freight cars. Leaning from his cab window he saw the heaps of leaves covering the tracks and the children playing alongside. Proceeding slowly, the pilot of his engine had almost reached the leafy heap when the towzled curls and laughing face of the tiny girl popped up from their hiding place.

With screaming brake shoes and a grinding shudder the heavy train came to a stop within a few inches of the little one.

CHOOSE RIGA FOR PEACE NEGOTIATIONS

Riga, Oct. 19.—Snow, hail and sleet marked the beginning of winter and probably will make further military activities in the Baltic area difficult until there is sufficient snow for sledges. While it is not definitely an- are virtually agreed upon Riga as the location for permanent peace negotiations. The secretaries of both delegations are remaining here and expect to begin work on the treaty immediately after the Libau ratification of the preliminary peace treaty and armistice.

FINE SHOWING OF TEDDY JOYCE

Toronto, Oct. 19.—Upwards of four thousand spectators saw "Patsy" Wallace of New York draw with "Teddy" Joyce of Toronto in ten rounds at the Armories here last night. The local lad weighing 125 lbs., had an advantage of 8 lbs. and a further advantage in height and reach. His showing against the little Italian-American, who twice fought Jimmy Wilde to within an inch of his world's flyweight title, was a source of much satisfaction to his local admirers and a prominent feather in his headgear.

SPORTSMEN NOT SPORTS

Philadelphia, Oct. 21.—Man o' War Samuel D. Riddle's great thoroughbred racer, will not attend the dinner in his honor planned for the Waldorf-Astoria, New York. On behalf of himself and the horse, Mr. Riddle has declined the invitation of his New York friends.

"We wouldn't think of such a thing," Riddle said today. "There has been some talk of having Man o' War at such an affair, but I would not hear of it. We are sportsmen, not sports. There is a big difference, so the dinner is off."

RUTH BREAKS WRIST

"Babe" Ruth sustained a fracture of the left wrist in a game between his "All Stars" and a Binghampton, N.Y. team. He received the injury while attempting to slide to first base. Although in considerable pain, he completed the game, making his customary home run in the eighth. Physicians said one of the small bones in the wrist had been fractured.

OFFERED $100,000 FOR MAN O' WAR

"There is not enough money in existence to take Man o' War out of the United States."

This was the declaration with which Samuel D. Riddle owner of the mighty stallion which conquered Sir Barton in the $75,000 match race at Windsor, greeted the crowds that gathered at Glen Riddle near Philadelphia to meet him and his party upon their triumphant return.

Following the statement, Mr. Riddle announced that he had refused an offer from a would-be purchaser, who wanted to use him in Canada for breeding purposes.

A MEATLESS HOT PIE

Another Use Discovered For Those Oxo Cubes.

Here is a recipe calling for no meat other than the concentrated beef-goodness to be found in the familiar Oxo cube.

Peel and slice sufficient potatoes to half-fill a large pie dish, add few small onions, also sliced. Put into cold water, bring quickly to a boil, boil one minute, then drain.

Put back in pie dish with few slices of tomato, season with pepper and salt and flavour with herbs. Dissolve one Oxo cube in ½ pint of hot milk and pour over mixture. Put few bits of butter on top and bake for two hours in moderate oven. It's delicious.

Colonel Marchmont squirmed, but he was a soldier and loved a good counter-attack. He smiled as he squirmed. Wetherell was avenged when his successor signed new contracts at a higher price than he had made. The changing times changed everything: yesterday's exorbitance was today's bargain.

Wetherell Was Avenged When His Successor Signed New Contracts at a Higher Price Than He Had Made.

Bayard departed with a wallet full of business. He got back to his office on feet fledged with Mercurial wings. His feet were beautiful on the rug of the president's office.

Bayard felt so kindly to all the world that he hurried to the hospital to scatter good news like flowers over Leila's couch. She was in that humor when anybody else's good fortune was an added grief to her.

"I'm no use to you now," she wailed. "I never was much. But at least I dressed and kept looking fit. And you said I was pretty. But now— Oh, Bayard, Bayard! You used to call me beautiful, and I tried to be beautiful for you. But now— To be ugly and useless both—it's too much!"

Wise pathfinders say that when you are wandering in strange country you should turn every now and then and look back at the way you came. It wears a different aspect entirely from its look as you approached, and you will need to know how it will look when you return.

From childhood on, Leila had been warned against extravagance—as Bayard had, as have we all. But only now that she was looking backward could she realize the wisdom, the intolerable truth of the adage, "Waste not, want not."

Meanwhile Daphne was having so different a history that she felt ashamed. It seemed unfair to her to get well quickly and with no blemish except a scar or two that would not show, while Leila hung between death and deformity.

But seeing Bayard alone and hearing Leila fret, she felt confirmed in her belief that she had done the wholesome thing when she joined the laboring classes. There were discouragements without cease, yet Daphne was learning what a remedy for how many troubles there is in work. It seemed to be almost panacea. It was exciting, fatiguing, alarming, but it was objective. She was on her way at last to that fifty thousand a year she had dreamed of. She was uncertain yet of earning a thousand a year, but she was on the road.

Clay Wimburn, seeking chances in the West, did not see the New York papers or any other record of Daphne's accident. When he got back to New York, his pockets full of contracts, Bayard, equally successful, greeted him enthusiastically. Then he learned of the accident and the fact that Daphne was "in trade." He was indignant at the news and wanted to see her at once.

Bayard gave him the address, and Clay wasted no time asking further questions. He made haste to the subway, fuming; left the train at the Grand Central station and climbed up to a taxicab.

Then he found Daphne.

She led him into a little shop empty of everything but the debris of removal.

"Where are we?" said Clay.

"This was my shop."

"What's the matter? Busted already?" Clay asked, with a not unflattering cheerfulness.

(What the Press Agents Say)

THE MAID OF THE MOUNTAINS

"The Maid of the Mountains," the biggest spectacular musical comedy success in the world's history with the entire London company will be the attraction at Griffin's Opera House next Thursday night, October 28th.

"The Maid of the Mountains" comes here direct from Daly's Theatre, London, Eng., where it ran for five years breaking all world records for a continuous run of one musical comedy.

The piece is described as a musical play in three acts, with the book by Frederick Lonsdale, lyrics by Harry Graham, F. Clifford Harris and Valentine, music by Harold Fraser-Simson and additional numbers by James Tato.

It is a George Edwardes production brought intact to Canada under a special arrangement with the Estate of George Edwardes and will be offered here as originally staged gy Oscar Asche.

Among the musical numbers, most of which have already found their way to Canada via "His Master's Voice," are: "Friends Have to Part," "Live for Today," "My Life Is Love," "Farewell," "Dividing the Spoil," "We're Gathered Here," "Love Will Find a Way," "Save Us," "Dirty Work," "A Paradise For Two," "Husbands and Wives," "A Bachelor Gay," "I Understood," "When Each Day," "When You're In Love," "Over There and Over Here," and "Friendship and Love."

The music in "The Maid of the Mountains," is almost operatic in its beauty, soul-stirring grandeur and brilliancy and it requires a cast and chorus of highly trained voices to interpret it. For that reason the entire London compady is being brought here intact.

After a limited tour of the larger cities in Canada the piece goes to the States where it will undoubtedly have long runs in both New York and Chicago.

W.C.T.U. Concludes Convention Work

Resolution on Marriage Health and False Registration Adopted

WINDSOR, N.S., Oct. 21.—At the Canadian W.C.T.U. convention, the final report of plan of work and resolutions committee was submitted and passed.

The report was read by Mrs. N. B. Pugsley, of St. John, N.B., and embraced a variety of plans for reform work.

Among the resolutions passed were the following:

To put an organizer in the field for travellers and work to enlarge the outlook by interesting the Y.'s.

"That the Federal Government be memorialized to suppress both the editing and circulation of anti-British newspaper and other periodicals, especially the Hearst publications, and that the use of His Majesty's mails be forbidden for this purpose."

Also that at regular intervals the ownership of periodicals be declared by oath and that all such agitators be summarily convicted and deported.

"Whereas, the high cost of living is doubtless caused by profiteering, therefore, recommended:

"That our Government be asked to place all cold storage food supplies under control of the Board of Health which shall have power of seizure and sale before they become unfit for use.

"Whereas the health of our nation is being increasingly menaced by communicable diseases and the mental and moral status harmed by the marriage of the unfit and the laxity of our marriage laws, therefore

"Recommended that this convention seek, through its various provincial organizations to rectify these conditions; and to this end submit the plan of preventing indiscriminate issuing of marriage licenses, and introducing that of having license issued only by duly appointed official who shall be subject to a heavy penalty should either of the contracting parties be allowed to fail to give him a clear bill of health from a duly qualified medical practitioner, and, furthermore,

"That we again memorialize the Federal Government, asking that adultery and false registration as man and wife in hotels, etc., and other public places be made criminal and heavily penalized offences"

CATARRHAL DEAFNESS MAY BE OVERCOME.

If you have Catarrhal Deafness or head and ear noises or are growing hard of hearing go to your druggist and get 1 ounce of Parmint (double strength), and add to it ½ pint of hot water and a little granulated sugar. Take 1 teaspoonful four times a day.

This will often bring quick relief from the distressing head noises. Clogged nostrils should open, breathing become easy and the mucus stop dropping into the throat. It is easy to prepare, costs little and is pleasant to take. Anyone who has Catarrhal Deafness or head noises should give this prescription a trlai.

Ships that Pass in the Night

Foreign Trade is Essential to Domestic Prosperity.

Else—stagnation at home. New routes must be opened, Canadian Trade Lines must be established and maintained. With ships, the markets of the world are open to Canadians. Canada produces a surplus of necessities. Commercial supremacy means—the ability to carry where and when required, to sell without interference, and Demands the Freedom of the Seas.

By willingness and ability to provide ships, Canada this year has drawn the West Indies closer to herself and to the Empire. She can make preferential trade agreements with other peoples under the British Flag without arousing international complications.

The trade of 45,000,000 people in British Tropical Africa is waiting for us to-day.

Trade Follows the Flag.

The very existence of the Empire proves it. But to secure trade there must be ships and men with adventurous spirit to man them—and men with vision to seek out markets.

The Navy League advocates a Merchant Marine, officered and manned by Canadians trading from Canadian ports.

Politics have no place in this work. It promotes a national ideal. Commercial and agricultural prosperity depend upon it.

Unless we develop Overseas Trade, we may become mere hewers of wood and drawers of water for other nations.

To carry on this work costs Money.
The money must come from the Public.

SAILOR VICTIMS OF HUN DEVILISHNESS.

During the war 2,198 ships of nine and a half million tonnage belonging to the British merchant marine were sunk, with seventeen thousand lives of brave sailors doing their bit that the Empire might live even to the sacrifice of their lives.

Thirty-three thousand sailors of the merchant marine were disabled as the result of the war.

The widows and orphans of the 17,000 dead sailors and the dependents of the 33,000 disabled sailors have no government pensions, no gratuities, no government allowances to make life easier for them.

These startling figures were given by Chaplain Boal in addressing the Lions' Club at the Hotel Quinte on Wednesday.

These gallant heroes of the sea gave their lives to save the Empire—will that great sacrifice be forgotten?

The Navy League of Canada says NO! a thousand times NO! confident that the great loyal heart of Canadianism will supply the means whereby pensions can be provided for the widows and orphans of the sailor heroes and provision made for the disabled.

Afloat and ashore, Jack must be cared for and Canada's merchant marine and navy so developed that young Canadians will find a profession attractive, interesting and useful, surrounded by all the comforts and protection possible.

Next week Belleville will have an opportunity of contributing to the success of the Navy League's splendid financial program and that contribution should be worthy of this prosperous and loyal city.

SOVIET CONNECTION WITH SINN FEIN JUNTA.

The London correspondent of the Chicago Tribune and Montreal Star cables that a chart in the archives of the British Secret Service shows the ramifications of Red propaganda over Western Europe from headquarters in Berlin, and it shows the connections of the Reds with revolutionary movements in Ireland and in other parts of the British Empire.

The intrigue is headed by Victor Kopp, Soviet envoy at Berlin, who handles funds from Russia and also organizes propaganda through newspapers and agents. A prominent feature of Kopp's work is said to be the distribution of arms for revolutionary movements, as well as the organization of espionage systems.

Most of the lines on this chart lead to various points on the Continent of Europe, but the most interesting is the one that connects Chatterton Hill, an Englishman now a resident of Berlin, and a "Mrs. Lincoln," who is said to be either British or American, with persons in Paris, and finally with three members of the inner Sinn Fein circle in Ireland. It is believed by British authorities that a great deal of money has been sent to Ireland over this route.

DEEPENING THE ST. LAWRENCE

Dilating on the canalization of the St. Lawrence river, the Toronto Globe says editorially:

"The greatest advantage to the Canadian people will be the creation of an almost unlimited source of electric power at the dams which must be built to raise the river levels. The engineers of the Ontario Hydro-Electric Commission, who have long been at work on the problem of power development in its relation to the deepening of the waterways, are of the opinion that the power equivalent of twenty million tons of bituminous coal yearly can be secured on that part of the St. Lawrence bordering upon or within the province of Ontario. Twenty million tons of bituminous coal would cost a hundred and fifty million dollars at the pitmouth under present conditions, but even at normal rates the cost would be about eighty million dollars plus freight. It may be that Eastern Ontario could not at first find work for this enormous quantity of electric power, but the necessary storage basins would be available when from time to time more turbines were required.

"There is no coal in the province. Importation from the United States is growing costly. In no other way can Central Canada do so much to place itself in a position of economic independence as by developing the tremendous energy of the St. Lawrence river. Navigation facilities urgently require improvement, but, after all, the power issue, as Sir Adam Beck points out, is paramount."

"All Democrats are not horse thieves, but all horse thieves are Democrats," was a slogan hung about the neck of the Democratic party in the United States, which did that party no good. Premier Meighen has been ridiculed as an alarmist because he has alluded to the danger which threatens from Red propaganda in Canada. CITY NOISES

New York Tribune

Every one has a pet abhorrence in the noise line that seems to go to the heart of his being, whereas other noises roll off his soul unnoticed. For one person it is an old-fashioned truck clattering over cobblestones, for another the pneumatic riveter, for another the squawking motor horn. A correspondent who advocates sleigh bells for automobiles to replace horns is looking forward to a far ampler Utopia than this crowded town can ever be again. The automobiles' sudden warning is necessary for the sake of the pedestrian quite as much as for the driver. But if a town cannot be made empty of noise, it might at least be made less raucous than at present. Effort by the authorities would surely result in noise reduction. Voluntary effort by organizations might do even more. Automobile manufacturers and clubs could maintain an active campaign against noise. The muffle cut-out has gone. A new standard of effectiveness in mufflers could be established. The most raucous horns could be tempered.

RESTAURANT CLEANLINESS

London Free Press

With the finding of over 90 per cent. of local restaurants unclean, the City Council took the proper action when it unanimously passed a resolution requesting the Board of Health to have inspection cards prominently displayed in all eating houses. In justice to the large number of citizens who daily pay high prices for food, the first requisite of which should be cleanliness, it is up to the Board of Health to carry out the wishes of the City Council. The first duty of a Board of Health is to guard the health of all people within its jurisdiction. Who will have the temerity to say that unclean restaurants have not been responsible for the spread of disease?

BRITISH POLICY VINDICATED

Victoria Times

Fifty-five delegates of the South African Nationalist parties have been in session at a conference for several days with the object of effecting a radical re-union among the Boers; but the Boers of the South African party resolutely refused a reunion which would not include the British element. Could there be a more striking tribute to British influence. British justice and British institutions than this?

"You look disgruntled," said the shoe man.

"Yes," snapped the hatter. "I had a little rush just now and a couple of prospective customers walked out without being waited on."

"They seldom get away from me," declared the shoe dealer. "I take their shoes off as soon as they come in."

Tears but not Idle Tears

She was crying unrestrainedly. Not a sound came from the pretty trembling lips, but the great tears rolled down her cheeks.

The man seemed to enjoy the sight. A sarcastic smile played about his cruel mouth as he watched her; indeed, he looked as if he could never have smiled any other kind.

The girl's beautiful eyes looked up pleadingly to his. His tongue seemed to lash her like a whip as a torrent of words came hissing from his mouth. Then she crumpled up and gave way entirely to her grief.

"Fine, fine," the man cried to her. "Two hundred of that is enough. Now we'll shoot a little of the next scene, where you hang by one foot from a five story building."

Whereupon the lovely girl chucked the onion overboard.

LIFE.

The home is happy, Mother is there,
With her loving ways and her tender care;

When babe is cross, (needs extra care),
Then Mother sits in the rocking chair;
And taking the laddie upon her knee,
She cheers him up with pleasantry.
When Mother chats in her pleasant way,
Soon lads and lassies begin to play;
And you hear them shout aloud with glee,
Their fretfulness has passed away.

A hush steals o'er the home so bright,
Where Mother has made the hearts so light;
Her life shone out like a sunbeam fair,
But her voice is heard no longer there.

Her life passed out at the close of day,
No one noticed her fade away;
Until too late her life to spare,
They closed her eyes to the world of care.
No one seemed to think or care,
Imagining Mother had always been been there;
To cheer the fainting, the hungry to feed,
To tuck the children safely in bed.

It is different now, could we but be
With he again, her sweet face to see;
We would care for her as tenderly,
As she nurtured us in our infancey.

The home is empty, but our lesson we share,
With those who still have a mother's care.

Good Work Accomplished By W.C.A.

and Magdalene and Jail have all done excellent work in their different branches.

The Association takes this opportunity of thanking the Red Cross and Patriotic Society for the priveleges of using their system of raising money by the Penny Bag monthly collection. This has been tried for eight months and has proved very satisfactory.

We also wish to thank the Auditors, the Advisory Board for their counsel and the many friends of the Hospital and Home for gifts.

Today the Association faces a situation of great difficulty, that of finding workers. After the war the enforced activities of war work, has followed a period of what might almost be called exhaustion. While this perhaps was to be expected it is hoped that the coming year will find many more willing to take up and carry on the work founded so many years ago. It is not work that can be done spasmodically but many hands make light work and though this work of the Association in its different branches should interest every woman in our city, if more of the younger citizens would allow themselves to become interested there is no doubt they would show the same devotion to the same ideals that has characterized so many of the earlier members. The work we do for our Association we do for our city, when we work for our city we work for our country and when we work for our country we work for our God.

Respectfully submitted,
Helen G. Wallbridge,
Recording Secretary

Corresponding Secretary's Report

Madam President and members of the Woman's Christian Association:

The total number of letters written were 94 of which five were letters of sympathy. Annual reports were sent to the Advisory Board, City Clergy, Medical Staff, Mayor and Aldermen, Warden and County Councillors. The Annual Meeting was advertised in the daily papers and notices of same read in the City churches. Hospital and Home notes were sent to the local papers each month and by them kindly inserted. I have again to thank Mrs. R. J. Bell who has so kindly performed my duties for the past three months.

President of Hospital Board's Report

After hearing the very full report of the Recording Secretary, it is not necessary nor advisable for me to take up your time this afternoon by referring in detail to the work of the year just closing by the Hospital Board.

I thought it might be interesting to give a short history covering sixteen months of our work. In the Spring of 1919, it was shown by the Hospital Management and the Medical staff that we needed more wards, both private and semi- private. The third flat of the new wing had not been laid out into wards. The Board decided that, being the only available space, it would be wise to undertake the work. In May, 1919, the advisory Board was called to talk the matter over. At that meeting resolutions were passed advising us to extend the work, and to engage an architect to make plans. This was done and satisfactory plans were provided, along with the untiring services of Miss Green, our superintendent, we have a most desirable and up-to-date maternity ward.

In opening the third flat of the new wing we thought it wise to improve the accomodation for our staff of help. Their sleeping rooms are upon the third flat of the main building. They were overcrowded and contrary to the sanitary law. We had the interior taken out and plans drawn up. It has been finished and furnished, thus adding materially to their comfort. On that flat we have three semi-private wards, bright, airy and well-furnished.

In starting out we had aimed at large things. We were ambitious to bring our splendid hospital to a high standard of efficiency, to make it second to none of its size. While we have done much we have not finished our plan. The high cost of material and labor has been a serious detriment in the completion of our work.

We have expended from May, 1919, to September 30, 1920 on extraordinary repairs $33,229.37. Expended as follows:

Completion of Upper Flat including Store House and extensive changes in the Basement	$14,258.39
Tinsmithing	543.75
Steam-fitting, Plumbing and Fixtures	6,460.36
Painting	3,361.20
Covering for Floors	1,059.00
Electric wiring second and third Flat and basement	3,905.67
Installing Electric Elevator	2,743.00
Furnishings	898.00

The work we have not accomplished consists of the following:

Rebuilding the verandahs on the back of the hospital.

Painting the woodwork on the outside of the buildings, installing an X-Ray machine, and electric food hoist, finishing improvements already commenced in the basement, such as, cold storage plant, mens rooms, new morgue, trunk and linen room, new coal bin for range coal.

We need changes made on the first flat, consisting of a waiting room for the patients' friends and an office. The last great need I shall mention, is the need of a motor ambulance. We had hoped that some of the many organizations would take the matter up and provide something more comfort- require the need of an ambulance.

It may seem to some of our citizens presumption on the part of the Association to launch forth on such a big undertaking, but they have not understood the compelling forces of necessity, and compulsion that were behind us nor the irresistible lure of a vision beckoning us forward.

Signed on behalf of the Hospital Board,

Margaret E. Moynes.

IN THE LAURENTIAN MOUNTAINS, QUEBEC

1. Planting Tobacco in Quebec.—There are many scenes like this in the Laurentian Mountains.
2. The Bake-oven, Familiar in the Laurentian Mountains.

BEHIND every Laurentian Farm there is a sacred spot. It is the place where vegetables grow. There are rows of cabbages, tomato plants, a patch of corn, the square where serried rows of of carrot and turnip and onion sprout, the strawberry bed, thick the wild strawberry plants that the children brought down from the hills and gave Madame to plant, there are pie-plant and rows of stringy beans, and in a sheltered nook all its own, and visited punctually by Monsieur when he comes home from work at night, there is a patch where the tobacco plant grows.

It is no joke to raise anything at all in the stony-hearted soil of the Laurentian Mountains. As you drive past the farms in the summer season you see in every one of them a slow kneeling procession, moving along inch by inch on its hands and knees. Drive out in the early afternoon sunshine, and you see Madame and all her little ones in this reverent posture on the arid earth. They move along, intent-eyed, hunting for caterpillars.

Drive back from your pleasure trip in the cool evening, when the sun has gone down in a bank of fiery cloud and only the cool grey dusk is ahead of you, and still you see the family procession, still caterpillar hunting, still on its knees.

Now with the dusk Monsieur has joined the group. He too is hard at work—but not on vegetables. Monsieur's heart and soul are in the tobacco plant that later he will smoke.

THE OLD oven stand outside the cottage door—stands outside every cottage door as you go along the high-rood just outside St. Faustin. In the village itself these relics of something that is now almost a past exist no longer. There, in the village houses, and sometimes even in the bigger, richer farmhouses, there are up-to-date stoves with first-class ovens; and in such cases as these the old oven just outside the door, in the little yard before the house, stands empty and unused.

It is half a pity and half an advantage. No doubt more things and more elaborate things can be baked inside the kitchen in the grand new stove with its nickel-plated front. You have only to see the row of pies which the proud housewife takes out of her oven and lays on the table and surveys with a glistening eye to see that you can do more in the stove that came from the big factory in the city. But there is something to be said for the old oven too. Nothing can ever quite recapture the joy of taking your wares out of your log-cabin into the fresh wild mountain air, popping your risen loaf into the old-fashioned iron oven that stands erected from the ground on its tripod of iron rods, and then passing in and out of the shack, opening the oven door now and then, and peeping in with the sunshine in your eyes preventing you from seeing well, to observe how your loaf is rising. T the visitor to St. Faustin there i much to be said for the picturesqueness of the old oven.

There are lots of log cabins ye where the folks have only the ol oven, and they wish for no other Madame bakes once a week. I the bread is good — so much the better, if it is bad so much the worse; in either case it has to b eaten. You will see how importan it is that the old iron oven shoul heat properly, that the fire of stick below it should be fed by Madame— just right. She is Mistress of Fire She lays her three sticks—thre make the traditional fire! — sh balances and adjusts them.

When she has finished her toil an the loaf is drawn out of her oven, i seems to the passing visitor the mos delicious bread in the world.

Lion Cubs Listen To Tale Of Sailors Service And Sacrifice

HOW MEN OF MERCHANT MARINE SUFFERED DURING THE WAR KEEPING OPEN THE SEA LANES OF COMMERCE DESPITE LURKING SUBMARINES SEEKING TO SINK EVERY SHIP AFLOAT—CHAPLAIN BOAL TELLS BELLEVILLE LIONS WHAT THE EMPIRE OWES TO HEROES OF MERCHANT MARINE.

Seventeen thousand men of the merchant marine lost their lives during the war when the Germans by their campaign of submarine terrorism sought to frighten every British sailor from the sea and thus bring defeat to Britain and the allies through lack of necessary supplies, while England was to be starved until she begged the haughty Hun for mercy.

At the regular weekly gathering of the Belleville Lions Club at Hotel Quinte Wednesday noon, Chaplain Rev. S. Boal, of the Navy League of Canada, gave some startling figures, official but not generally known, of how the war affected the merchant marine. His address was short, sharp and incisive and the Lion Cubs present could not help but be impressed with the necessity of boosting the Navy League Campaign to the full extent of their ability as a national duty and as a tribute of loyalty to that greater British Lion which watches over the liberties of the world.

"Ginger" Stewart, the genial official Tailtwister, occupied the chair and Cub License was fine twister pro tem. The customary glad session of gay songs was enjoyed between courses, and the program included brief addresses from Chaplain Boal and Mr. Geo. B. Jones, of the Judge Jones Milling Co., one of Belleville's newer industries but one which in the short time of operation has become one of the most important industries of the city, an industry marked by pep and progressiveness to a marked degree.

Chaplain Boal gave some figures on the war not generally known on account of the necessary secrecy maintained by the British Navy. One hundred and eighty-two German submarines were sunk at sea and fourteen were scuttled by their own crews to avoid surrender. The effect upon German sailors of the frequent sailing of submarines which never returned must have been very great and helped materially to defeat Germany's unrestricted submarine hellishness.

Chaplain Boal compared the casualty lists of Canada and the United States in the war showing that Canada with nine million population had more casualties than the United States with one hundred million population.

HUN HARVEST

Speaking of the merchant marine, Chaplain Boal told of the 2,198 ships sunk by submarines, of the 17,000 sailors who had lost their lives, the widows and orphans of whom are looking to the Navy League for pensions as they get no government assistance of any kind. Thirty-three thousand sailors were disabled during the war and the Navy League is determined that they shall not want for necessities and comforts. They are the men whom the Huns thought to frighten from their ships, failing to realize the British grit and determination which refuses to retreat and knows no defeat.

All the glorious cubs of the British Lion have done must be left to future historians but every Britisher is proud of being known as a lion—375,000 cubs left Canada to help the British Lion maintain liberty in the world, 51,519 Canadian cubs remained overseas, their duty done to the full, content to lie in their narrow beds until marshalled before the Greater Commander of all to hear His well done.

Chaplain Boal expressed the hope that the Belleville Lions would jump into the campaign with vigor alongside the brother club the Rotary which was already pledged to help to the uttermost.

COMMUNITY SERVICE

Mr. Geo. B. Jones gave an interesting talk along the lines of community service and co-operation comparing Belleville with Montreal and Stratford. Belleville has great natural advantages not fully appreciated or made known in an effective way. Mr. Jones referred to the unrest which disturbed the whole world today and said that it was the result of lack of understanding and selfish unconcern for the weal of the other fellow. Get together and try to find a basis of understanding in working for the greatest good for the greatest number and unrest would soon disappear, said Mr. Jones.

A hearty vote of thanks was tendered the speakers on motion of Cubs License and Wotten.

President Bob German made a few remarks and Cub Cherry announced that the guest of honor at the next meeting would be Mr. J. J. B. Flint who would entertain the cubs with a talk about California.

Prohibition Is Defeated By British Columbia Voters

RETURNS SHOW SUBSTANTIAL MAJORITY IN FAVOR OF GOVERNMENT CONTROL OF LIQUOR — WOMEN VOTED FOR THE FIRST TIME ON THE QUESTION.

VANCOUVER, B.C., Oct. 20.—British Columbia today voted overwhelmingly in favor of Government control of the sale of liquor. At this hour (ten o'clock) with returns from many parts of the province indicating that the present Prohibition Act has been defeated in cities and towns and villages, the majority in favor of Government control totals 15,000. Moderationists, however, claim that when final figures are in, the majority in favor of Government control will total close to 30,000. Moderationists who supported Government control of the sale of liquor, have scored a great victory, and the defeat of the present "dry" Act is conclusive.

All the cities in the lower mainland and Vancouver island returned large majorities in favor of the repeal of the present Act, the outstanding surprises of the voting being the large "wet" majority recorded in this city, of 10,176.

Victoria also gave a large majority for a "wet" law of 3,321, while Westminster and Prince Rupert registered a vote favorable to Government control. Kamloops, Nanaimo, Fernie, Rossland, did likewise.

A record vote was polled, not only in the cities and towns but in the rural districts as well. The women took part in today's voting, following an active part in the campaign.

Final official figures of the vote in this city are: Government control, 23,942; prohibition, 13,766.

Fernie has given a large majority for Government control, the vote being: Prohibition, 235; Government control, 613. Coal Creek vote is: Prohibition, 14; Government control, 97.

In Crow's Nest the vote stands: Prohibition, 82; control, 16.

Nelson, final vote stands: Prohibition, 914; Government control, 891.

The questions on which the people voted are as follows:

Which do you prefer: (1) The present Prohibition Act, or (2) an Act to provide for Government control and sale in sealed packages of spirituous and malted liquors?

In the 1916 referendum on the liquor question the vote was: For prohibition, 41,806; against, 36,102. The women did not vote in 1916, but they had the ballot today.

SEIZE 500 BARRELS OF BOURBON WHISKEY

New York, Oct. 19.—A squad of prohibition enforcement agents seized 500 cases and twenty barrels of Bourbon whiskey, valued at $75,000, which they found in the wholesale liquor establishment conducted by Sabella Brothers at 118 Elizabeth street. The seizure followed the discovery of 102 quarts of whiskey, in seventeen packages, in an automobile near the "curb market" conducted by bootleggers for the past month at Mulberry and Broomer streets, one block from police head-quarters.

Two negroes and negress found in the automobile, were held for questioning.

COL. BIGGAR WILL PROBE PENITENTIARY SCANDALS

Kingston, Oct. 21.—Col. Biggar of the Department of Justice completed his investigation into charges made by three penitentiary officials for wrongful dismissal and left this morning for Ottawa. Col. Biggar would not make any statement regarding the matter. He said that he would submit his report to the Justice Department. A special report will likely be submitted to the Justice Department regarding the row of the convicts as during all day Tuesday Col. Biggar experienced great trouble in conducting his investigation at the penitentiary owing to the noise created by the convicts. Residents of Portsmouth are up in arms over the disturbance of the convicts and some have expressed the opinion that steps should be taken to have the prison transferred to some other place stating that they are sick and tired of all the trouble the institution has been causing during recent years.

The latest word from the penitentiary states that many of the prisoners who were kept locked up from Saturday to Tuesday have been allowed out to work. Many are still engaged in keeping up their defiance by shouting, yelling and pounding their bars but they are mostly foreigners.

London Wants Three M.P.P's

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer
Canadian Press Limited

LONDON, Ont., Oct. 21.—At the next meeting of City Council, Alderman W. A. Wilson will move that, "Ontario Legislature be petitioned to increase London's representation in the Provincial Parliament." It is argued by the Alderman that the County of Middlesex proper has three representatives in the house while a city with the same population has but one.

Alderman Wilson has a large number of supporters, particularly among Labor people who will ask for two at least and if possible will have three M.P.P.'s sent from London to the Legislature.

Coal Situation Takes Unexpected Turn

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer
Canadian Press Limited

LONDON, Oct. 21.—The coal strike situation took an unexpected and grave turn this afternoon when railwaymen and transport workers announced that they would strike in sympathy with the miners unless negotiations between Government and miners were re-opened this week. The railwaymen's delegates issued what was virtually an ultimatum to the Government that all members cease work Sunday at midnight unless the strike was settled or negotiations which would effect a settlement begun by Saturday.

B.C. Premier On Anti-Probition Vote

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer,
Canadian Press, Limited.

VICTORIA, B.C., Oct. 21.—Premier Oliver, voicing surprise at the result of the liquor referendum, said last night that in view of the expression of public opinion, the necessary legislation to repeal the existing act and bring into effect Government control, would be brought down by the Government. The will of the people would have to be met. The Premier had nothing to say on the possibility of an early election.

Passenger Train Held Up By Bandits At Buffalo

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer, Canadian Press, Limited.

BUFFALO, N.Y., Oct. 21.—A hold-up of a New York Central passenger train which was being made up in the yards here early today, resulted in the wounding of a trainman and netted the bandits less than one hundred dollars. A shot fired by one of the robbers grazed the head of Mary Jane Smith, 13 years of age, of Cleveland, who, prompted by curiosity, disobeyed the command of the bandits that all passengers remain in their seats or berths.

Caring For Poor And Aged In Life's Sunset Shadows

LADIES OF W. C. A. DOING A SPLENDID WORK AT HOME FOR THE FRIENDLESS, WHERE AGED PEOPLE WITHOUT MEANS ARE CARED FOR — MANY IMPROVEMENTS NECESSARY.

The general run of citizens hear very little of the Home for the Friendless, an institution which is doing a great deal of good in a quiet way under the direction of the Women's Christian Association. To those citizens not in touch with the work of the Home for the Friendless, the annual report of the Home Board of Management should prove interesting. The report reads as follows:

Madam President, Officers and Members of the Women's Christian Association:

At the close of the year we had six inmates in residence, three men and three women. There were three deaths during the year, Mrs. Kaiting, aged 91, Ann Gaffney, aged 78, John Renfrey, aged 84. Mrs. Roote passed out to go to live with her daughter and has since died. There has been one admission to the Home in the person of Robert Lindsay. The health of those remaining in the Home has been excellent. The aggregate days' stay is 2,859 a decrease from last year of 1,108.

We are very grateful to those devoted people who have so kindly held devotional services every Sabbath throughout the year. We are pleased indeed to welcome Mrs. Merry of the Marchmont Home among these workers, also as a member of the Board.

In July our Annual Garden Party was held on the Home Grounds and was a great success, due to the efforts of those women who so generously gave their time and money. We desire to thank them, also the I.O.O.F. Band, who come to us every year and kindly give their services free. The total receipts were $140.98.

We also take this opportunity to gratefully acknowledge the many donations of money, clothing and provisions received from interested friends. These totaled about $160.48 in value. In addition to these gifts a Berliner Grafonola was donated by Mr. H. W. Ackerman and also many records by a number of friends; these have added greatly to the enoyment of the old people. We wish also to thank the City Council for the use of the lot south of the Home grounds, from which we received splendid returns in produce. Will you allow me just here to pay sincere tribute to our capable matron, who is indefatigable in her efforts to do all in her power for the comfort and welfare of those committed to her care.

INTOLERABLE CONDITIONS

We must repeat with added emphasis, what was said in previous reports regarding the very unsatisfactory condition of the present Home Building. It has for years been lacking in the ordinary comforts, and even decencies of life, while the combined kitchen and dining room is now almost uninhabitable as it leaks in a score of places and apparently cannot be repaired except by putting on a new roof, which we fear that part of the building will not stand. The matter of a new home was brought up before the City Council, by whom it received sympathetic consideration, but action was postponed owing to the pressure of other obligations previously assumed. We think the members of the Association and the public generally should be made acquainted with the existing conditions in order that public sentiment can both justify and urge immediate action. A considerable number of men and women, including most of the members of the City Council, have inspected the building during the past twelve months and in every instance were surprised and shocked at the almost intolerable conditions existing, and which we hope will in the near future be remedied. We quote the following details from a statement submitted to the Council: "The inmates live by day and sleep by night in the same rooms, with no proper system of ventilation. To quote from Inspectors report, 'Inmates should not be allowed to remain in dormitories in daytime.' In our present building however, this is unavoidable as there is but one room for the men and one for the women, which we are sure you will all agree is very unhealthful. Another serious defect of the building is that we have no infirmary ward or separate room for the sick. When an inmate is ill or even dying the other inmates are compelled to spend the whole of their time in the same room under conditions that are generally very disagreeable and sometimes almost unbearable.

"You will, no doubt, be surprised and shocked to know there is only one combined bathroom and lavatory for the use of all the inmates, men and women, also the matron and her daughter. No comment on this condition is necessary. The only private room for the matron and daughter, which is both bedroom and sitting room, is 8 feet by 12 feet with no wardrobe accomodation.

"In the present building there is no separate dining room and the kitchen has to be used for this purpose. It is several feet lower than the main building, and it is impossible to heat it sufficiently. In cold weather the matron has to wear an overcoat and overshoes when working there. On very cold days it is unsafe to allow the old people to eat in this room, so their meals have to be carried to them on trays. The roof of the kitchen leaks very badly, and apparently the timbers are too rotten to permit of repair.

PROBATION ROOM

"Another outstanding necessity is a detention or probation room for new inmates, many of whom come to the Home covered with vermin and in a very unsanitary condition generally. It often takes many days to get them in proper condition to mingle with the other inmates and there should be a separate room where they could be kept during this process. At present these people have to be at once put in the dormitory with inmates, and the result is too obvious to require further comment. In view of these conditions, you will, we are sure, quite agree that a new Home should be provided and you are aware that according to the Statutes this duty devolves upon the Council. For a long time the inadequacy of the present building has been recognized, and this is not the first time this matter has been brought to the attention of the Council. As far back as 1906 the Association pointed out the need for a new building and in 1908 the then Council took the matter into consideration. The report of the W.C.A. for 1908 says:

"The mayor asked for a committee to meet him with a builder at the house owned by the city, opposite our present Home—the old Children's Shelter—to see if it could be remodelled. We had plans and estimates made and found it would cost nearly as much as to build a new one, and then not be at all up to date. At the same time we had the builder look over our own Home. He thought it would be throwing money away to do anything with it."

If the building were in such a state twelve years ago you will readily see that time has not improved conditions. It had been the intention of the association to press for a new Home several years ago, but the project was postponed until after the war, but we feel now that something should be done. Of course the cost and equipment of a suitable building will be considerable, but we would like to remind you that this Association has saved to the taxpayer more than the amount required, as we have, during the forty years since the Home was established, received only a small yearly grant for its maintenance, the Association providing the balance. The Council has thus saved, on a fair computation, at least $500 a year on an average, which would amount to $20,000. If we add to this the compound interest the total saving to the city treasury has been at least $40,000.

LARGER GRANT NECESSARY

"The Association finds it is also necessary for a larger yearly grant for maintenance. The year before the war it cost $745 to maintain the Home and last year it cost over $1,500. This increased outlay of course is due to increased prices and not to any lack of economy and careful management, as, according to Inspector's report, the per capita cost of maintaining the Belleville Home was less than that of any similar Institution in Ontario and less than half of the average for the whole Province. Last year to run the Home it cost over $500 more than the amount of money provided for that purpose and the balance had to be taken from the Hospital funds, as the Association has no other source of revenue available for this purpose. We therefore respectfully request your Honourable body to grant us a sum sufficient to reimburse the Hospital Board for the outlay and to provide for the needs of the Home for the current year."

General Strike Threatened All Eyes On Lloyd George

GOVERNMENT CONSIDERING AN APPEAL TO THE COUNTRY FOR MANDATE TO SETTLE MINERS' STRIKE—THREAT OF TRAFFIC TIE-UP CONTAINS SERIOUS POSSIBILITIES—STRUGGLE MAY BECOME HISTORIC.

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer, Canadian Press, Limited.

LONDON, Oct. 22.—Interest in the miners' strike and threatened walkout of railroad and transport workers throughout the country was centred today on 10 Downing street, the official residence of Premier Lloyd George, who was served with a virtual ultimatum by the railroad and transport men to begin negotiations with the miners today on pain of facing a tie-up of railroad and possibly other traffic on Sunday night. The Premier was expected to make a definite announcement of the stand the Government would take.

Members of the Cabinet met last night and held a long session, but the decisions reached were not made public. It was learned, however, that one matter discussed was an appeal to the country for a mandate to settle the miners' strike. Indications of a political as well as an industrial crisis were found in the situation, it was declared, and it appears that Labor had joined issue with the Government in a struggle which might become historic.

General British Strike Threatened

Coal Strike Situation Takes on Extremely Grave Turn.

LONDON, Oct. 21.—Orders have been issued for British railwaymen to strike Sunday at midnight in sympathy with coal miners. The Transport Workers Federation will also take similar action within the next twenty-four hours if negotiations between the Government and the miners are not re-opened in that time.

The Ultimatum.

J. H. Thomas, general secretary of the National Union of Railwaymen, announced that the delegates of the railwaymen had decided "to instruct the general secretary to intimate to Premier Lloyd George that unless the miners' claims are granted or negotiations resumed by Saturday which will result in a settlement we shall be compelled to take the necessary steps to instruct all our members in England, Scotland and Wales to cease work. In addition a telegram is being despatched to all members to be prepared to cease work at midnight of Sunday next unless they hear to the contrary."

Majority In B.C. For Control By Gov't Is 26,739

The Approximate Totals Are 75,964 For Moderation, 49,225 For Prohibition

Vancouver, Oct. 22.—Approximate totals show that 125,189 votes were polled in British Columbia yesterday—easily a record. The latest returns show 75,964 for moderation and 49,225 for prohibition, giving a net moderation majority of 26,789.

Although there are many districts yet to be heard from, the vote in the cities and towns is conclusive and decisive so far at the fate of the Prohibition Act is concerned. Penticton and Nelson alone among the cities gave meagre majorities of prohibition. All the others went to Government control by substantial majorities, in many cases there being two votes to one in favor.

The city of Vancouver, which at the former referendum was strongly in favor of prohibition, gave a majority of 10,000 against the present act.

Both sides at the outset expressed their fullest confidence, the prohibitionists relying very heavily on the vote of the newly-enfranchised women.

The poll all over the Province was a heavy one.

Surprise Even To Moderationists

The extent of the victory for Government control was a surprise not merely to the prohibitionists, but to many of the moderationists.

On Vancouver Island and throughout the interior, all the way from the Buckley Valley south to the boundary line, voters expressed their overwhelming desire for Government control.

NO WHEAT CONTROL

Ottawa, Oct. 22.—That the Government will not re-establish wheat control is practically certain. It is understood that before the departure of the Prime Minister for the West on Friday, an official statement will be issued giving the Government's reasons for the continuance of present open trading conditions.

Fort Norman Oil Fields Attract Daring Prospectors

PARTIES LEAVING WITH DOG TEAMS FOR FAR NORTH—MOUNTED POLICE MAY STOP STAMPEDERS WITHOUT SUFFICIENT SUPPLIES OR KNOWLEDGE OF BRITISH LIFE.

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer, Canadian Press, Limited

EDMONTON, Alta., Oct. 22.—Faith in the genuineness of the Fort Norman oil strike is evidenced by the fact that during the next week several parties will leave Edmonton for the new oil fields via dog team to stake claims in advance of other prospectors who will travel by the river route with the advent of spring.

It is possible that some of the prospectors who plan to reach Fort Norman may be turned back by the Royal Canadian Mountell Police at Fort Smith, on the Slave River, it being necessary to satisfy the police that they possess sufficient food supplies for their requirements, or failing this they are sufficiently versed in conditions of the north to enable them to live in the Indian manner. Fort Norman oil claims are already being bartered in Edmonton, the first of which will come up for sale tomorrow.

Hydro Power House Menaced By Fire

Explosion at Healey Falls Power House Cripples Two Power Generators.

Shortly after midnight last night the power house of the Hydro-Electric Power Commission of Ontario, situated at Healey Falls, narrowly escaped destruction by fire. The blaze was caused by the explosion of the lightning arrester tanks. The roof of the building was badly damaged, but the timely aid secured from Hastings village prevented the destruction of the building, which would have proved a calamity in regard to electric power for this section of the community. Owing to water being used to a considerable extent, two of the three generators in the building were temporarily put out of commission, but one is in service today and it is confidently expected that the remaining two will be dried by this evening and be again ready for use. The assistance received from Hastings village was much appreciated by the Commission.

English Colony In Florida Everglades

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer, Canadian Press, Limited.

NEW YORK, Oct. 22.—Lieut.-Col. F. A. Woodcock, formerly of the British army, who sailed yesterday on the Caronia, selected recently at Moorehaven, Everglades of Florida, a large tract of land for an English colony of fifty families that will come with him when he returns to the United States late in the fall. He said the colonists were all friends of his and they told him to pick out a site where there was plenty of sunshine, and he said he believed he had succeeded in doing so.

Thieves Steal Lady Borden's Jewels

Porch-Climber Made a Haul at Ottawa Worth $6,000.

OTTAWA, Oct. 1.—Porch climbers who visited the home of Sir Robert Borden, 201 Wurtemburg street during the dinner hour on Tuesday evening, made a complete get-away with the major portion of Lady Borden's personal jewelry valued at $6,000. The burglars conducted their job so skilfully that the robbery remained undiscovered until late last night. The police have absolutely no trace of the burglars who did not leave any trace to work on.

Lady Borden discovered the loss only last evening when she had occasion to look for a small souvenir and found that all her jewelry was gone. Nothing about her room was in disorder and the drawers had not been ransacked. Lady Borden thinks that the burglars must have climbed a tree and thus obtained access to the verandah and then to her room.

Charged With Murder Of Son

Albert Hines Remanded at Cobourg Charged With Murder of His Young Son

COBOURG, Oct. 21.—Before Police Magistrate Floyd this morning, Albert Hines was arraigned on a charge of murdering his young son. Crown Attorney W. F. Kerr was present on behalf of the Crown, and the entire proceedings occupied only a few minutes.

Governor McLaughlin brought the prisoner, handcuffed to him, into court. Hines appeared quiet and showed little evidence of emotion, unless it was a slight nervousness and when the charge was read to him made no comment. Magistrate Floyd remanded him until next Wednesday and he was taken back to jail.

Although no document has been made public, it is stated that Hines has made a written confession of the murder of his child.

Yesterday afternoon the body of the murdered baby was interred in the Cobourg Union Cemetery. A funeral service was held the previous day but, at the request of the Crown, burial was deferred until after a post-mortem examination was held. This was made by Dr. Benson of Port Hope and Dr. Geo. Field of Cobourg.

How Civic Funds For Poor Are Expended By W.C.A.

INDIGENT COMMITTEE OF W. C. A. LOOK AFTER POOR OF CITY—SUB-COMMITTEE FOR EACH WARD—MUNICIPAL GRANT $125 PER MONTH — SENATOR CORBY'S BEQUEST AND TRUST FUND DISTRIBUTED.

In every community are families who from various reasons, such as sickness, death, lack of employment, etc., are in reduced circumstances, and need assistance from their more fortunate neighbors as is their bounden duty if they wish to win the favor of the great and kindly God who marks even the sparrow's fall. The work of caring for the poor in Belleville is undertaken by the Women's Christian Association, and as this work interests every citizen the annual report prepared by Miss Mary Yeomans, Chairman of the Indigent Committee of the W.C.A., as given below will be found to cover every phase of the work:

I beg to present my report of the work done by the Indigent Committee of your Association from October 1st 1919, to October 1st, 1920.

The people of our City should be interested in knowing by whom, and to what extent, the money apportioned by their council for the assistance of the poor is being expended. It is in the hope of supplying that information, to some of our citizens not yet in possession of it, that once again I take the liberty of repeating the personnel and duties of the Indigent Committee, appointed by the Woman's Christian Association, for that purpose.

"The Indigent Committee consists of a chairman, her assistant, and a convenor for each of the seven wards of the City, with one or more ward visitors as assistants."

These ladies cheerfully give their time and services free, in the interest of humanity and of our city, with the desire to help those less fortunate than themselves, to live cleaner, better and happier lives.

"The convenors with their assistants, investigate all known cases in need of help, giving such assistance as is necessary and reporting any new or odd cases requiring unusual help to the chairman."

Municipal Grant

The funds at the disposal of this committee are the Municipal Grant, now 5125 per month, the interest on the very generous bequest of the late Senator Corby, "to be expended on Christmas gifts for the poor," and a trust fund (gifts of private individuals) used at the discretion of the chairman in cases of emergency, especially needy cases, or private charities.

We would be very glad to have our citizens contribute little or much, to our Emergency fund at any time.

When necessary, patients sent to the Hospital on the recommendation of the physician in charge at the time of the public wards, are treated at the expense of the Indigent fund. Thirty-five received treatment during the past year at a cost of $443.

Social Workers

The ambulance, when required, is also supplied free of charge to the patient, but only when the order for its use is given by the President of the Association or by the Chairman of the Indigent committee. The committee appreciates very greatly the kindness of these physicians in visiting any needy sick at the request of the chairman or her assistant. The work has grown to such an extent that we feel it is impossible to get the best results by means of purely volunteer help. The Ward convenors and visitors are all women with home ties, which make it impossible to do the visiting and investigating they feel requisite to thorough and effective work. For some years we have keenly felt the urgent necessity of employing the assistance of a trained worker, and to this end we approached the Council early in the year, explaining the difficulties of our position and gaining from them a grant of $1,200 the lowest required salary of a social worker. We have experienced some difficulty in securing the best, for this salary, and we do not wish to engage anyone not entirely capable of covering the work. We are at present in communication with one who has been highly recommended, and hope in the very near future that she will report for duty.

Home Visits

During the year 195 visits have been made: In Foster ward, 10; in Samson ward, 4; in Ketcheson ward, 26; in Baldwin ward, 37; in Bleecker ward, 53; in Murney ward, 19.

Monies Expended

The monies expended from the Civic Indigent Fund were as follows:

Foster ward, $316.23; Samson ward, $50.40; Ketcheson ward, $53.38; Baldwin ward, $250.08; Bleecker ward, $184.55; Coleman ward, $405.21; Murney ward, $261.78.

Money had to be borrowed to pay these amounts, therefore the City increased its grant twenty-five dollars per month, and we fear with the present high cost of living a further increase will be necessary for the winter. Two years ago we paid three dollars and a half for half a ton of coal, now we are paying eight seventy-five and nine dollars for that amount.

Christmas Presents

The gift of the late Senator Corby for Christmas presents amounted this year to $663.76 and was spent as follows:

33 tons of coal were given out—Foster ward, nine and a half tons; Samson ward, two and a half tons; Ketcheson ward, three and a half tons; Baldwin ward, four tons; Bleecker ward, two tons; Coleman ward, two and a half tons; Murney ward, nine tons; also two and a half cords of wood were given.

Boxes of provisions including meat, one pair chickens, one turkey, seven bags of potaoes, one bag of turnips, and two bushels of apples were sent to different families. The boxes sent out were augmented and made especially attractive by very generous donations from the Melrose Women's Institute, through their President, Mrs. Robert Sparrow. We appreciated these gifts very much as it enabled us to send out nicer and more boxes than ever before.

Provisions, $50; Coal, $525.75; Wood, $31; Cheques, $15; Printing, postage and delivery, $2.45; Referred to Emergency Fund, $6.50; Special Charities, $29.66; Total, $663.76.

Emergencies

The expenditure from the Emergency Fund during the year amounted to $187.99.

Donations from special cases during the year amounted to $107.50 in money, besides beds, bedding and clothing.

In closing I would like to thank all those who have so quickly responded to calls of distress, or assisted our work in any way, and especially the faithful, willing workers forming the Indigent Committee of the Women's Christian Association, without whom the work would have been impossible.

Ward Convenors

The ward convenors for the coming year will be:

Foster ward, Mrs. R. J. Bell, 257 Albert street, telephone 1044; Samson ward, Miss M. Holden, 220 George street, telephone 604; Co-convenor, Mrs. R. B. Prevent Overlapping

We also feel that our work would be very much more effective if all other charitable organizations and individuals would join with us in preventing the overlapping of charity which seriously confuses the work, and also has a demoralizing influence upon the very ones we are striving to help maintain their self respect and independence.

DEATH OF BOY

STIFF SENTENCE

Donald Holdcroft, Havelock, grand son of James Holdcroft, Tweed, who was relieved of his "wad" while travelling in a C.P.R. sleeper recently by a colored porter, has recovered the money, which was found in the porter's bed by Constable Evans at the station at Havelock. The porter was taken to Peterboro for trial last week and was sentenced to one year at the Burwash reformatory at hard labor.

MONSTER LOCOMOTIVE

So heavy was the monster locomotive turned out by the Locomotive Works at Kingston this week that no chances were taken in passing over the switches in the Kingston yards. A man went ahead of the engine and spiked the switches securely to the ties in order to avoid the possibility of accident. The engine can pull a train of 2,500 tons up heavy grades.

DO NOT BURN LEAVES

A Horticultural Society in Ontario gives the following advice in regard to leaves which are at present rapidly falling: Put them on your flower beds or garden. They make excellent fertilizer. Do not however leave them on your lawn as they would likely kill the grass. If you cannot obtain rich fertilizer for your Tulip Beds—gather your leaves now and when the frost comes, spread them about 3 inches deep over your Tulips—and soon as ever frost is out of ground, take leaves off.

Mr. King admitted the charge and was fined $10 and ordered to pay costs amounting to $11.75.—Cobourg Post.

Animal Circus Very Entertaining

Large Audience at Griffin's Amused by Clever Pony, Dog, Monkey, Cat and Bird Actors.

A really high class, novel and entertaining program is provided by Pamahasika's Indoor Animal Circus, which opened a three-night and matinee engagement at Griffin's Thursday evening. The large audience was more than delighted with the cleverness of the little performers and the unanimous verdict was that it was the best vaudeville offering presented in Belleville for many moons. A dainty pony which dances and does about everything but talk is a feature, and the dogs are exceptionally clever, while the monkey, cats and birds perform seemingly impossible stunts. An outstanding feature of the program presented by the tiny actors is the humor which enters into the performance and laughs were frequent and hearty.

In addition to the vaudeville a good program of motion picture plays is given, besides an excellent Outing Chester travelogue showing scenes in Bolivia. Madge Kennedy is at her best in the feature picture, "Through the Wrong Door," which is very amusing and entertaining. The entire program is one of the strongest ever presented in Belleville.

Oil Indications Create Interest

Thorough Test Will Be Made of Tyendinaga Oil Prospects

Great interest is being taken in Belleville and vicinity in the reported indications of oil in Tyendinaga township and the prospects of having a thorough test made by experts as the result of Mr. W. H. Reeve's examination of the locality and his prompt action in securing options for his company on over one thousand acres of land for oil development purposes.

Prospecting for oil in a limited way has been done in Hastings county in years past but without striking any gushers or oil in quantity but the indications are so striking that it is possible that a thorough geological test by experts such as proposed, by Mr. Reeves may show better results.

Mr. Reeves is not a man to be easily stampeded by surface indications as he has been all over the world looking up new oil fields and inspecting producers and is fully acclimatized to all kinds of oil boom excitements. That he considers the Tyendinaga prospects worthy of taking options and employing experts to examine is an encouraging sign to those who have hopes of a producing oil field in Hastings county.

T. W. Gibson, Ontario Deputy Minister of iMnes when spoken to by the Toronto World as to the oil indications in question referred to past prospecting and said that the geological aspect of rocks in Hastings County in general was not favorable where oil was concerned. It may be remembered that the same was said about the prospective presence of silver in the Cobalt district only the scientists were more emphatic in their expressions that the formation prohibited the possibility of silver being found in paying quantities in the Cobalt area. Notwithstanding the fiat of the scientists Cobalt became noted for its silver production and some really good text books had to be considerably revised.

Located only three miles from the railway the Tyendinaga oil prospects will prove very valuable if oil is found in quantity.

T. W. GIBSON'S VIEW

T. W. Gibson, Ontario deputy minister of Mines when spoken to by the World last night about the reported oil field said that he was not hopeful about the district becoming an oil producer. Some years ago oil indications were believed to exist near Melrose, in Hastings county, and a well was sunk to a depth of about 1,000 feet, when granite was struck, which disposed of hopes, as oil deposits depended upon sedimentary rock formation. The geological aspect of rocks in Hastings county in general was not favorable where oil was concerned he said.

Great Field Of Oil Found In Northland

Geologist Says They Have Discovered One of World's Biggest Deposits

EDMONTON Alta., Oct. 22—A program of big oil development in the north country is likely to be mapped out as the result of information sent from an Edmonton Office of the Imperial Oil Company to the head office of the company in Toronto, confirming the news that a real strike had been made at Fort Norman.

T. A. Link, geologist, in charge of the experimental work in the far north this summer has reached the official news of the big strike made by oicial news of the big strike made by the drillers at Fort Norman in the latter part of August.

One of the biggest oil fields in the world has now been opened in the north, according to Mr. Link's story. It stretches all the way from Fort Norman to the Arctic coast and the explorer Stefanson was camped on the far end of the same oil vein when he was on Victoria Island. The season's experimentation has absolutely proven the existence of an enormous body of oil-bearing rock in the Mackenzie river territory, compared to which Mexico and Peru are in the miniature class, says Mr. Link.

TO SARNIA TO BE TESTED

Samples of the Fort Norman Oil were brought out by Mr. Link's party and will be sent to the company's laboratories at Sarnia, Ont., for testing. The oil is said to be of a high grade, with a particularly high content of gasoline. The strike was made at a depth of about 800 feet in the same hole from which the Seepage Oil reported earlier in the summer, was taken at some sixty to seventy feet. The well is forty miles north of Port Norman and 200 yards from the river bank.

CAME OUT WITH GREAT FORCE

When the oil was struck, it came up with a force that carried straight in the air to fifteen feet or more above the top of the derrick, from a six-inch casing. The well was capped and two men have been left in charge during the winter, the rest of the drilling crew coming out with Mr. Link.

There is not supposed to be any connection between the Mackenzie oil field, thus tapped at Fort Norman, and the fields at Windy Point on Great Slave Lake, and it is expected that drilling will be continued at the latter place next year in the hope of finding still another supply.

MUSIC AND DRAMA

WHAT THE PRESS AGENTS SAY

"THE MAID OF THE MOUNTAINS"

The All-British production of "The Maid of the Mountains" which will be seen at Griffin's Opera House next Thursday, October 28th, continues to draw capacity audiences, and up to date it has broken all records, including even that scored by the famous "Chu Chin Chow". In Toronto this week there was an unprecedented demand for seats long before the opening night. The receipts on Thanksgiving Day were phenomenal, and the theatre is sold out for the entire week.

The Toronto critics were unanimous in their verdict that "The Maid of the Mountains" is an entertainment which has not been equalled in Canada for brightness, originality, attractive melodies, and clever acting. Moreover, they were enthusiastic about the brilliant scenery, and their opinion is endorsed by the public to such an extent that hundreds of requests have been received urging that the production be retained in the Queen City for another week. This, however, it has been found impossible to do, and the tour will in consequence be carried out according to the existing schedule, which means the date originally set for the appearance of the company here will be adhered to, other conditions permitting.

Acids In Stomach Cause Indigestion

Create Gas, Sourness and Pain How to Treat.

Medical authorities state that nearly nine-tenths of the cases of stomach trouble, indigestion, sourness, burning, gas, bloating, nausea, etc., are due to an excess of hydrochloric acid in the stomach and not as some believe to a lack of digestive juices. The delicate stomach lining is irritated, digestion is delayed and foods sour, causing the disagreeable symptoms which every stomach sufferer knows so well.

Artificial digestents are not needed in such cases and may do real harm. Try laying aside all digestive aids and instead get from any druggist a few ounces of Bisurated Magnesia and take a teaspoonful in a quarter glass of water right after eating. This sweetens the stomach, prevents the formation of excess acid and there is no sourness, gas or pain. Bisurated Magnesia (in powder or tablet form—never liquid or milk) is harmless to the stomach, inexpensive to take and is the most efficient form of magnesia for stomach purposes. It is used by thousands of people who enjoy their meals with no more fear of indigestion.

Larsen Freed By Peel Jury On Murder Charge

Counsel for the Defense Makes Eloquent Plea After Attending a Picture Show

Brampton, Ont., Oct. 21.—Frank Larsen was found not guilty of the murder of his brother-in-law, James Davidson, by the jury sitting at the Peel Assizes here. Handclapping was heard in the courtroom when the jury brought in the verdict after being out for one hour and forty minutes.

The Chief Justice said: "Prisoner, you are discharged."

Once out of the prisoner's dock, Frank Larsen went over to his father, and clasped the old man's hand. Joe Larsen kissed his brother on the cheek, and his sister, Jim Davidson's widow, did likewise. Congratulations became general.

The movies played their part in the Larsen trial , when T. G. Agar, counsel for Frank Larsen, charged with the murder of his brother-in-law, Jim Davidson, resumed his address to the jury.

Mr. Agar felt that Tuesday's circumstances had prejudiced the prisoner somewhat. "There was no night session," said Mr. Agar, "but a divine hand was in it. I did something that I seldom do. I went to the moving pictures, and saw a film, "The Gauntlet." As the reel proceeded I was struck by its bearing on this case. The story tells of a Toronto capitalist who has been offered a big price, for a timber limit down south. He sends his son to investigate. Down in the woods and hills among the moonshiner, the son sees a man's body roll down an embankment. The sheriff appears, finds a bullet wound, and arrests the young Canadian for murder. The latter, unfortunately, has an empty cartridge in his rifle, the effect of a stumble. The young man is innocent, but a murderer's death threatens him until the truth comes out. A southern feud has claimed a victim. This is revealed, and the Toronto man escapes an awful and unmerited death.

"Gentlemen of the jury," Mr Agar went on impressively, "what do we find in the case before you. That Inspector John Miller hastily concluded that Frank Larsen murdered Jim Davidson, just as the southern sheriff condemned the Toronto man. Davidson was shot, but it was an accidental shooting, not a deliberate act. I have used the reel to make my meaning clear.

"To convict this boy, this Frank Larsen, of murder, the Crown must prove beyond the shadow of doubt that the prisoner deliberately took up the gun, loaded it, closed the breech and fired. Or did the gun go off by accident.

The little widow of the man who is dead was a pathetic figure in the witness box. When she was told that her brother, Frank Larsen, was charged with the murder of her loving husband, she sobbed out. "I am sure it was an accident."

Murder required intent. None was shown here. Friends and pals, there was no grudge. Mr. Agar had known prosecutors to ask juries to finds verdicts of not guilty, but Mr. Agar was not instructing Mr. McKeown.

Sinn Fein Aim Is To Smash Empire

Sir Hamar Greenwood Replies to Arthur Henderson's Attack On Government

London, Oct. 21.—Sir Hamar Greenwood, Chief Secretary for Ireland, declared in the House of Commons that the Sinn Fein campaign is an organized and highly-paid conspiracy to smash the British Empire.

Sir Hamar's declaration was made in reply to an attack on the Government by Arthur Henderson, who said the Sinn Fein had been provoked to outrages by the Government's policy of repression. Mr. Henderson admitted there had been provocation for police reprisals, but said the Sinn Feiners had been driven to act by the Government's intensified coercion.

Sir Hamar Greenwood charged that Henderson had obtained his information from the head-quarters of the Sinn Fein army, organized as part of the "conspiracy" to disrupt the Empire.

Sir Hamar Greenwood declared it the Government's policy to rid all Ireland, including Ulster, of arms and ammunition. "We will arrest all leaders of the Sinn Fein murder gang," he declared. "Hundreds of these desire to emigrate to the United States, but the United States is adverse to augment the forces of disorder ther."

Purse Of $50,000 For Archbishop

TORONTO, Oct. 21.—St. Michael's Cathedral has been the scene of many gatherings unique in the history of the religious activities of the Roman Catholic Church in Canada, but it is doubtful if any surpassed in significance and enthusiasm the celebration yesterday of the Episcopal Silver Jubilee of the ordination to the Priesthood of the Most Reverend Archbishop Neil McNeil, of the Diocese of Toronto. The event was made doubly interesting by the presence of his Excellency Mgr. P. di Maria, on his first official visit to Toronto as representative to Canada of His Holiness, Pope Benedict XV. The esteem in which Archbishop McNeil is held by his parishioners was evident by the large and representative gathering present when the jubilee ceremony opened with Pontificial Solemn High Mass, the sermon being preached by Rt. Rev. Michael O'Brien, Bishop of Peterboro. Following the religious ceremony, Archbishop McNeil was made the recipient of a purse of gold—amounting to $50,000, the presentation being made by Dean Hand on behalf of the clergy and laity of the diocese.

TO RAKE IRELAND FROM END TO END

LONDON, Oct. 21.—The Government has refused to open an independent inquiry into the reprisals in Ireland, it was disclosed in the House of Commons today when it was stated by Bonar Law that the Government is merely undertaking an inquiry of each military or police outrage.

Answering an attack on the Government in the House of Lords for its failure to put an end to the reprisals, Lord Curzon gave as the reason for the Government's refusal to investigate that "every Sinn Feiner perjures his soul fifty times in order to get the blood of a policeman."

When the debate on the Irish situation opened in the House of Commons Sir Hamar Greenwood Chief Secretary for Ireland, charged that a "deliberate and highly paid conspiracy is in existence to smash the British Empire."

Sir Hamar declared that he knows hundreds of republican assassins and will track every one of them down. He added that the Government would search Ireland east, west, north and south for arms. In speaking of the refusal of the railway men in Ireland to man trains that were used to transport troops, Sir Hamar said:

"I would rather see the railways in Ireland closed down for 100 years than yield to the demands of the men, so long as the men refuse to transport British soldiers."

BEWARE OF DECEPTION

Statistics show that when egg albumen is used as a constituent of baking powder, the amount so used is too small (usually 15/100 of 1%) to affect the quality or effectiveness of the baking powder containing it, and when so used, is plainly for the purpose of fraud. Intelligent buyers will not permit themselves to be deceived by the water glass test.

NEAR-WHISKEY MORE DANGEROUS THAN NEAR-BEER.

Bone-dry Ben Spence says two-and-a-half per cent. beer is too strong and wants the O. T. A. amended to make one-half of one per cent. the limit. Ben must have been drinking buttermilk—but even that healthful beverage has more kick than two per cent. beer. Ben also wants the ban placed on native wines. Ben overlooks the cider barrel, but that is natural, seeing that he wears glasses bifocal and U.F.O. The Toronto Telegram advises Ben to go after near-whiskey in the following editorial:

> Rev. Ben Spence is campaigning against near-beer. The despised two and a half per cent. that "looks like beer, tastes like beer, but lacks the influence" has too severe a kick for the prohibition apostle's sensitive stomach.
> But near-whiskey, not near-beer, is the beverage that should receive attention at the present time. The brand of "red-eye" that is evolved from chewing tobacco and bluestone and that the bootlegger peddles as a luxury is a graver menace to public health and morals than all the temperance beer that will ever find its way down the public throat.
> "Bootleg" whiskey has all the temptation of stolen apples. One drink of it is said to be enough to turn an ordinarily sane man into a raving maniac. And yet reformers rave about near-beer and a temperance Government makes a million out of its monopoly of the retail trade in good whiskey and is content to "borrow" the men who are to put down the bootlegging of poison.

BURNING LEAVES ON THE PUBLIC STREETS

The Brockville Recorder calls attention to the dangerous and unwholesome practice of burning leaves on public streets. This time of year it is a popular pastime with children. The element of danger in so doing is also present. It cannot be obviated so long as the practice is permitted. There also is the effect on the atmosphere of the smoke from the burning leaves. It is anything but invigorating. In this country we get in the natural course of events a long cold winter. These delightful autumn evenings are a great boon to the public, but unfortunately are too often marred by the smoke-filled air. We have asserted that the dead leaves are a good and powerful fertilizer. This view is discussed in a trenchant letter to the London Advertiser by a well known farmer of the Niagara district, and is worthy of publication. He says:

> "Now that the ground around the trees is being carpeted with falling leaves, would you let me call the attention of those who have garden plots to the great value of these as fertilizers? In the past it has been a too common practice to collect them in heaps and burn them instead of storing them on the beds for future use or at once digging them in. The fallen leaves of each autumn are, apart from decaying trunks and branches, nature's systematized and almost only material contribution to the fertility of the forest soil, which gives strength and size and grace to the trees. The department of agriculture at Washington has given it out as a scientific fact that as a fertilizer they are better than barnyard manure. To show that they are equally valuable in our gardens, I have this year been making some experiments. Previously I had utilized them as a winter cover for strawberries, and then in the spring dug them in, with the result of having strawberries of large size, but, late in March last, they were placed to the depth of six inches over the beds in which were to be grown sunflowers, asters, melons and beans, and were well dug in. No other fertilizer was applied beyond waste liquids from the kitchen. The soil was a sandy loam, and care was taken to have occasional surface cultivation, and to provide, throughout the summer, ample moisture. The result was a revelation. The sunflowers grew to eleven and twelve feet in height and their flowers were all ten to twelve inches across. The asters were two and a half and three feet high, and their flowers were all four to five and a half inches in diameter, and in their perfect shape were like chrysanthemums in beauty. The melons overran the beds allotted to them by several feet, while the beans, although not very specially noticeable for the growth of their stems and leaves, continued up to the middle of September to contribute about every second week to our dinner table. It does not follow that the same fertilizing agent will do for all garden plants, but in these days when artificial fertilizers are so unnecessarily expensive, it is well to have so readily accessible that which nature has so liberally provided."

PEOPLE SPEAK, AND THE GOVERNMENT LISTENS

The Government has confirmed the suspension of the Board of Commerce's sugar order.

This means that the Government has its ears open to the voice of the people. It also means that the people will not stand for any artificial supports to the present high cost of living.

And as the Board of Commerce has proved its uselessness as a protection against extortionate prices it should also mean the extinction of that now obsolete court.

With the Government listening and the people speaking there shou'd in future be closer and more immediate connection and better understanding between the powers at the capital and the people who live in the various sections of this broad Dominion.—Toronto Telegram.

CRISP COMMENT

Premier Meighen did not waste much time or sympathy on the sugar refiners; the interests of the people came first, and being a man of plain speech he bluntly told the refiners that they had no case.

J. W. Curry, Liberal representative in the Legislature for South East Toronto, told the committee enquiring into the operation of the Ontario Temperance Act that there was hardly a hotel in Toronto where a guest could not secure a bottle of whiskey within ten minutes of securing a room. The great difficulty of securing a room in any Toronto hotel and the excessive prices charged, particularly after midnight, would seem to lend color to Curry's charge, but travellers will say that the whisky story will hardly hold water.

OTHER VIEWS

Smuts's Great Triumph
Johannesburg Times

We think that both within parliament and without many people who do not belong to the South African Party realizes that that party's policy is sound, and recognize that its leader is the only man to whom the government can be intrusted with any degree of confidence. Men who did not sit on the Ministerial benches voted for the government in a crisis simply because they saw that a change would not benefit the country. In experience, knowledge of world affairs, and administrative ability there is no man in South Africa so well fitted for the premiership as General Smuts. The session was a personal triumph for him . He smoothed over difficulties, handled criticism with unwearying patience, and displayed a desire to meet those who did not see eye to eye with him.

The Revolver Danger
Montreal Herald

In sentencing a murderer to be hanged at Sault Ste. Marie a few days ago Mr. Justice Orde saide to the convict: "Your case shoud be a striking example of the danger involved in the carrying of firearms," and he added that "it would be a good thing in this country if the law could be better enforced as to carrying weapons."

That is precisely the point. We do not need legislation so much as we need the enforcement of legislation already on the statue book. For something like thirty years we have had the Blake Act against the carrying of concealed weapons. There is also a regulation requiring all dealers in firearms to take out a license and to register each sale. Under law as it is at present a man is liable to a pretty stiff sentence if he is found to have a concealed weapon on his person.

POETS' CORNER

ROADSIDE FAIRIES

Have you ever seen the fairies
That live in the roadside ditches?
They wear the Lady's Mantle
With spider cobweb stitches.
They lie on the Yellow Bedstraw,
The hedgerow is their town,
And for a clock to tell the time
They have the thistledown.

The nettle is for ailment,
The docken-leaf for cure;
The rich have gold of colt's-foot;
The garments of the poor
Are the leaves of Ragged Robin
With blushing crimson face;
And those who go a journey far
May take the Speedwell's grace.

They sup from off the toadstools
On hips and rowans red;
Their music's from the blackbird
That perches overhead;
The road it is their ballroom
With dusty floor and white,
And for their lamps and candles shine
The gypsy fires at night.

USING WASTE LUMBER.

By-Products of Sawmill May Be Valuable.

Only forty per cent. of our cut timber is utilized; the rest is thrown away. This sounds as if we were wilfully wasteful; it means really that the unused sixty per cent. is in such shape that it would not pay to use it. The problem of utilizing waste material, we are told by James D. Lacey, writing in the Lacey Timber Digest, is that of making its utilization profitable. This problem, he says, is being rapidly solved, in the case of timber wastes, by the work of chemists: for chemistry affords the chief key in this instance. The enhanced value of timber to-day is making profitable the conversion of waste into merchantable products — hence the activity of those who are studying those products. Not impossibly, Mr. Lacey thinks, the by-products of the sawmill will outvalue, in the near future, the finished lumber. Alcohol, tanning extracts, turpentine, pine oils, fibre for all sorts of fabrics, "wall board," insulating materials—these are but a few of the products that may be obtained from sawmill waste formerly thrown away. Writes Mr. Lacey:

"It is not altogether improbable that the time may come when the by-product distillates of wood will rank in value with the product of the co-ordinate sawmill operation. No one knows just when the production of petroleum may begin to fall below the tremendous and constatly increasing demand for oil. Whenever a serious shortage sends oil prices above a certain point, however, ethyl (grain alcohol distilled from wood) will afford an efficient substitute for many purposes for which oil products are now used, including the operation of internal-combustion engines for the automobile and other automotive machinery. Grain alcohol may be produced from any wood at relatively low cost and by a process which yields other products of value as well. Wood alcohol, produced by destructive distillation, is one of the pioneer by-products, but one for which the demand is increasing rapidly, but for direct use and to serve as a denaturing agent for grain alcohol distilled for industrial use.

"Relatively few of the important chemical by-products can be produced from any one wood. Tanning extracts, for example, are obtained chiefly from the bark of oak and hemlock. Turpentine is reclaimed from those woods possessing the necessary resinous content. Pine oils as the name implies, are produced from the pines. But chemical scrutiny demonstrates that practically every wood possesses important by-product possibilities that may be greatly magnified as experts explore further the field of organic chemistry.

"During the war the range of by-products was greatly increased. In Germany fabrics of many varieties were developed and manufactured from wood. Wood fabric rugs and carpets of serviceable character were produced. Bags and sacks, fibre silks, imitation leather, and many other articles of utility found market as substitutes for materials that were no longer obtainable. In the United States, too, recent years have seen remarkable development in the use of wood in manufacture of wall board, an industry of great and growing size, and in the production of linoleums, heat-insulating materials, etc., thus creating important industries that are totally dependent on our forests for their primary raw material.

"Progress is dependent upon the chemist's pioneer work plus commercial development and exploitation that create demand and find markets. Until these things began to be done, the lumber manufacturer necessarily limited his utilization to the conversion of his raw material into lumber and other primary products which he could make and sell with profit.

"Much of this chemical pioneering has been done, but far more is coming, and as it comes it will steadily cut down the percentage of waste. Less of the tree will be left in the woods to rot. Less will be discarded as valueless at the mill. And a constantly increasing volume of other products than lumber will develop out of the sawmill industry, with resulting increase in the profits, operation and proportionate enhancement of the value of timber.

"It is not unreasonable to suppose that eventually the value of chemical by-products may very nearly equal the value of the direct products of the sawmill."

Canada and Englishwomen.

The new number of the Canadian Pacific Railway Budget, which is ably edited by Mr. Ernest C. Gill, contains many interesting articles dealing with Canada, its life, scenery, and industries. Mary MacLeod Moore's contribution on the domestic side of life in the Dominion is of special interest to Englishwomen.

"In Canada," she says, "the mistress of the house not only directs the work, but works with her maid as a rule. The latter gets a considerable amount of liberty, and the wages paid are so good that it is said the present incumbents are a little averse to an influx of women 'demobbed' from the various services, lest they reduce the scale as now paid. Fifty dollars and more a month is paid to a cook, and thirty-five and forty to a general servant, with, of course, board, lodging, and washing.

"More trouble is being taken than ever before to choose the right women for Canada, and to safeguard their interests. Emigration is no longer haphazard. Not only are the immigration laws much stricter than formerly, but excellent arrangements are made in Canada for the reception of women from the Old Country.

"'Are Englishwomen welcomed in Canada?' is sometimes asked by the timid. The wives and other dependants of the Canadian soldiers married over here and lately repatriated could answer that question with a warmth and gratitude of reassuring depth."

Women of Canada Testify

Dacre, Ont.:—"I am more than pleased with Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. I was run-down and so nervous that I could not even stay in the house alone in the day-time and tried every kind of medicine I heard of but got no result. One of my friends advised me to take 'Favorite Prescription,' said that it would cure me, and it did. After taking four bottles I felt like a new woman and it is also the very best medicine for a woman bringing up a family. I will recommend 'Favorite Prescription' to any one suffering like I did."—MRS. JOSEPH BEAUDRY, R. R. 2.

WEAK AND NERVOUS

Tillsonburg, Ont.—"I found Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription an excellent medicine for the ailments of women. I had become very weak and nervous. I was just miserable when I began taking the 'Favorite Prescription' and it proved most beneficial. It so completely restored me to health that I have never had any return of this ailment. I do advise the use of 'Favorite Prescription' by women who suffer with womanly trouble."—MRS. GEO. WALKER, P. O. Box 490.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is made of lady's slipper root, black cohosh root, unicorn root, blue cohosh root and Oregon grape root. Dr. Pierce knew, when he first made this standard medicine, that whiskey and morphine were injurious, and so he has always kept them out of his remedies. Women who take this standard remedy know that in Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription they are getting a safe woman's tonic so good that druggists everywhere sell it, in liquid or tablet form.

Five years of dependable time-keeping service for $3.25—260 weeks at a cent and a quarter a week.

Why, $3.25 is often less than the annual upkeep of an expensive watch, less than interest on a high-priced watch investment.

"Not in the least," Daphne explained. "We've expanded so fast we had to move. We sublet and moved across the street.

"You remember Mrs. Chivvis, don't you? Mrs. Chivvis, you haven't forgotten Mr. Wimburn. He's kept away so long you might have, though. Where've you been, Clay? But wait—you can tell me on the way over to the new shop."

When she led him into her new emporium the graceful fabrics displayed were all red rags to him. He was a bull in a crimson shop.

Daphne made Clay sit down and asked him if it were not all perfectly lovely. He waited until Mrs. Chivvis went on to the workroom. He had a glimpse of a number of girls and women on sewing bent. They were laughing and chattering.

He answered, "It's perfectly loathsome."

Instead of resenting this insult Daphne laughed till she fell against the counter. The worst of it was that her eyes were so tender.

"Where did you get all the capital for all this stock?" Clay demanded, with sudden suspicion.

"Oh, part of it we bought on credit and part of it on borrowed money."

"Borrowed from whom?"

"From Mr. Duane."

This was too much of too much. Clay stormed: "I'll get him!"

"Oh, no, you won't!"

"Oh, yes, I will!"

"I won't have you assaulting the best friend I've got in the world."

He groaned aloud at this, not noticing how she used the word "friend." She ran on. She had not talked to him for so long that she was a perfect chatterbox.

"He lent me five hundred dollars when I didn't know where else to get it. And it nailed our first real contract—a big commission from old Mrs. Romilly. We paid back Mr. Duane's five hundred and then—" She giggled in advance at what was coming to Clay. "And then I borrowed a thousand from him. We owe him that now."

Clay was as wroth as she had wished. He took out a little book. "Well, I'll give you a check for that amount—or more. And you can pay Duane off with interest. I won't have you owing him money."

"You won't have!" Daphne mocked "You won't have? Since when did you become senior partner here?"

"Senior partner!" Clay railed. "I'm no partner in this business! I hate this business. It makes me sick to see you in it."

"Then step out on the walk," said Daphne. "You're scaring away customers and using up the time of the firm. The boudoir is no place for you, anyway."

A young woman with a bridal eye walked in and Daphne left Clay to blunder out sheepishly. He did not see that she cast sheep's eyes after him. He was a most bewildered young man. He had made a pile of money and still he was not happy!

CHAPTER XXVII.

In the course of a few wretched days Clay picked up some of the facts about Daphne's presence in Wetherell's fatal car. He was more furious at her than ever and more incapable of hating her.

He saw Bayard often, but Bayard knew little and said less. One afternoon he invited Clay to ride with him to the hospital, whence Leila was to graduate. He warned Clay not to betray how shocked he would be at Leila's appearance, which, he said, was a wonderful improvement on what it had been.

She was, indeed, a mere shell, and Clay was not entirely successful with his compliments.

Leila sighed: "Much obliged for your good intentions. I'm a mere sack of bones, but I'm going to get well. The doctors say that if I take care of myself every minute and go to a lot of specialists and go to Bar Harbor in the hot weather and to Palm Beach in the cold and spend about a million dollars I'll be myself some day. That's not much, but it's all I've got to work for. Poor Bydie! He didn't know he was endowing a hospital when he married me."

"What do I care, honey?" Bayard cried, with perfect chivalry. "The money is rolling in and I'd rather spend it on you than on anybody else."

"The money's rolling out just as fast as it rolls in," Leila sighed. "The Lord seems to provide a new expense for every streak of luck. And that's my middle name—Expense."

She had actually learned one lesson. That was a hopeful sign.

Clay sought Daphne in her odious (to him) place of business. She asked him what she could sell him. He said he would wait till the shop closed. She raised her eyebrows impudently and gave him a chair in a corner. He sat there feeling as out of place as a strange man in a harem.

Eventually the last garrulous customer talked herself dumb; the last sewing woman went. Mrs. Chivvis pulled down the curtains in the show window and at the door and bade good night.

Then Daphne locked the door, dropped wearily into a chair, and sighed, "Well, Clay?"

"I want to know why you don't give up Tom Duane."

She shrugged her excellent shoulders again, but she did not smile. She spoke instead: "I don't ask you to give up your stenographer."

"Oh, it's like that, eh? Well, then, why won't you let me lend you money instead of Tom Duane?"

Her answer astounded him with its feminine logic: "I can borrow of Mr. Duane because I don't love him and never did and he knows it. I can't borrow of you because—"

He leaped at the implication: "Because you love me?"

"Because I used to."

"Don't you any more?" he groaned.

"How can I tell? It's been months and months since I saw the Clay Wimburn that came out to Cleveland and lured me on to New York. The only Clay Wimburn I've seen for some time has been a horribly prosperous, domineering snob who is too proud to be seen with a working woman. He wants to marry a lady. I never was one and don't want to be one. I'm a business woman and I love it."

"And you wouldn't give up your shop for me?"

"Certainly not."

He looked at her with baffled emotions. She was so delectable and so obstinate, so right-hearted and so wrong-headed. It was intolerable that she should keep a shop. He spoke after a long delay:

"May I come and see you once in a while?"

"If you want to."

"Where you living now?"

"Still at the Chivvises'."

"You ought to take better care of yourself than that. Surely you can afford a better home."

"I suppose so, but it would be lonely anywhere else. It has been safe there—since you quit calling on me. It doesn't cost me much."

"But you're making so much money."

"Not so very much—yet, but it's all my own and I made every cent of it, and—golly! how I love to watch it grow."

"You miser."

"Maybe. I guess that's the only way to save money—to make a passion out of it and get a kind of voluptuous feeling from it. But I really think that it's the fun of making it that interests me most. It certainly keeps me out of mischief and out of loneliness. Oh, there's no freedom like having a job and a little reserve in the bank. It's the only life, Clay."

"And you wouldn't give up your 'freedom,' as you call it, even for a man you loved? Couldn't you love a man enough to do that?"

"I could love a man too much to do that. For where's the love in a woman's sitting around the house all day and waiting for a man to come home and listen to the gossip of her empty brain? That isn't loving, that's loafing."

Clay was not at all persuaded. "But there's no comfort or home life in marrying a business woman."

"How do you know? You know plenty of unsuccessful wives who are not business women."

"I want a housekeeper, not a shopkeeper."

"Go get one, then, I say. If a woman can't earn enough outside to hire a housekeeper let her do her own housework. But if she can earn enough to hire a hundred housekeepers why should she stick to the kitchen? In my home, if I ever get one, the cook will not be the star. Besides, it enlarges life so. Instead of two living on the wages of one two will live on the earnings of two. It seems to me it couldn't help being a better and a happier way of living."

"It Seems to Me It Couldn't Help Being a Better and a Happier Way of Living."

Clay blushed vigorously as he mumbled "What's your business woman going to do when the—the babies come? Or do you cut out the kiddies?"

Daphne blushed, too. "Well, I should think that the business woman could afford babies better than anybody else. She has to give up the housework, anyway, even when she's a [illegible]

The Hidden Parts

Fit-Reform tailors are like the engineers of a great office building. They know that the beauty and permanence of the parts you see, depend on the strength and faultless workmanship of the hidden parts.

In the case of Fit-Reform Suits and Overcoats their graceful lines, their elegant appearance, their permanent shapeliness, depend on the intricate, painstaking hand work of the hidden parts.

It is this faultless hand tailoring which makes Fit-Reform garments look so well and wear so long.

Let us show you some of the new styles. 406

Legal Offices In Need Of Reform

The Ontario Civil Service Commission, after a tour through western Ontario have returned and report that they were greatly struck with the efficient organization of the Detroit police court, which is known as the municipal court and has five judges, appointed for six-year terms, with an annual salary of $11,500. These judges have full jurisdiction in all cases such as appear before our police court and, in addition, those which are appealed to the county judge. The probate court and the land titles offices were also inspected.

REDUCE DIVISION COURTS

Most of the judges, who appeared before the commission expressed their opinion that the number of division courts should be largely reduced. There was also a general expression of opinion that no one should be appointed by the provincial government to a county office hereafter unless personally qualified to perform the work of the office.

An exception to this was taken by T. H. Purdom of London, who held that offices should be maintained for the furnishing of rewards for those who had rendered political service.

At one place it was found that the individual holding the office of clerk of the county court and registrar of the surrogate court, and who had no training for the office, had as his deputy a lawyer to whom he paid $17 a week, while he himself retained $60 a week.

In another instance, the sheriff, who was a physician who still carried on his profession, visited his office once a day. He paid his deputy $7 a week, while he himself, after paying this amount, had an annual income of $1,800.

NICE LITTLE NEST EGG

A registrar of the surrogate court who carried on his private business visited his office once a day to sign papers, paid his deputy $800 a year, while he retained $3,300 for himself.

In another case the registrar of deeds received $1,700 a year and paid his deputy $5 a week. This woman had been in the service for forty years and the local bar expressed their opinion that she was "the most efficient deputy registrar in Ontario."

General exception was taken to the paying of police magistrate and constable by fees. Police magistrates, it was held, should be properly qualified men receiving an annual salary, who could devote the whole of their time to the duties of office. There should also be a well-trained high constable for each district appointed by the county or the provincial government.

It was generally favored that a place should be prepared in each community where lunatics could be confined during the time between their commitment and their removal to the asylum. At present in nearly every case they are kept in the county jail, which is totally unsuitable. An unanimous expression was voiced that the issuing of marriage licenses should hereafter be confined to the clerks of municipalities.

PEDDLED MARRIAGE LICENSES

In one instance it was stated that the issuer of marriage licenses, prior to a trip to England, signed a number of blank forms which were to be handed out during his absence. In another case signed forms had been handed to a person who peddled them to foreigners, receiving as his commission 50 cents each, while the remaining fee went to the issuer.

The police magistrate said he thought that a police magistrate should have the right to perform the marriage ceremony, as a number of persons objected to being married by a minister and were living together unmarried, with the result that the number of illegitimate children was increasing.

The justice of the peace came in for a good deal of criticism and it was recommended frequently that no J.P.'s be appointed unless the fitness was certified by the county judge, the sheriff and the crown attorney. It was recommended that J. P's should try no cases, except those for a breach of municipal by-laws and as few of those as possible.

Thorold Child Was Strangled

The Trial of David McNeal Charged With Murder, Proceeds

WELLAND, Ont., Oct. 22.—Testifying yesterday afternoon at the trial of David McNeal, charged with the murder of Margaret Boucock, aged 4 years, at Thorold on July 13. Dr. J. Vanderburgh of Merriton, who made the postmortem examination on August 4 in conjunction with Dr. Publow was disarranged. He found some light was disarranged. He found som light brown human hair on the back of the skull. There was nothing except the dress to indicate the body was that of a female child. The head and body were separated and a doll's sash or belt, produced was lying at the back of the neck. A single knot in the belt would indicate it had been tied round the child's neck, and the belt then appeared to have been tied in a double knot round the throat. Cross-examined, he said there was nothing to show whether death was due to a criminal act or natural causes. The clothing was intact. He found no evidence of ill-treatment.

Dr. A. G. Publow corroborated and said the mouth, tongue and jawbone were missing. "I believe the child was strangled," said the witness to Crown Counsel Jeffries. The fact that the knot was moist would indicate it had been in contact with the body.

In his opinion it would have been impossible for the child to reach the place where the body was found by itself.

Convicts On Strike Quiet But Sullen

Guards on 24-hour-a-day Duty at Portsmouth Penitentiary

KINGSTON, Oct. 21.—While the strike of from 100 to 200 convicts in Portsmouth Penitentiary is subsiding in a measure, the men are sullen and the officials are keeping a close watch. The strike was a lively one when at its height, according to interesting details published in today's Standard.

In the tailor shop, where the trouble first started Saturday, 80 convicts refused to work. One young Pole, said to have been sentenced at Toronto to a 25-year term, is reported to have leaped upon one of the tables and cried:

"Murder, blood, that is what we want."

This, it is said, started a fresh tumult among the men in that shop, who thereupon, were marched back to their cells, as also were some 45 men on the stone pile when they persisted in their refusal to work. Once in their cells, the men seemed to go mad, shouting and hooting and pounding their prison bars until they could be heard for blocks around.

Permit System Is Plan Of British Columbia

Speculation There on the Form Control Policy Will Take.

VANCOUVER, B. C., Oct. 21.—Although the Government always declined to discuss the details of a State sale measure until the people had first expressed a desire for it, there is said to be general agreement among the members that there will be no table serving, and may even spell abolition of the present near-beer bars.

The plan favored by the Government is said to be a permit system, whereby any adult citizen may procure a permit on the principle of a ration card, entitling him or her to purchase liquor in reasonable quantities for personal and domestic use upon presentation at the nearest Government store.

It is probable the Government will exact a reasonable fee for the purchase of permits, which may be revoked or suspended for abuse of its privileges, or refused altogether, where adequate reason is shown.

Elliott's won a game on Thursday night from the Ritchie team. The match proved to be a quiet one compared with the bombardment of the night before, when the Young Merchants and Grand Trunk Offices had a real tussle, and records were broken right and left. However, it looks as if the Ritchie team are to be heard from, and while they were beaten in this match they have plenty of time to recover and may yet be contenders. High single score for the evening was made by A. Childs of the Elliott team of 164, while the high three string was made by Bryant of the Ritchie team, of 403.

MENACE TO MOTORISTS

There is a contemptible wretah in the vicinity of Newtonville who appears determined to cause serious injury to motorists. Our readers will recall some years ago of a wire being stretched across the road near this village. It was only the good fortune of Mr. Blake Crawford having his car top up that the occupants of the car were not killed. The wire was so arranged that it would strike those in the front seat directly across the face. Fortunately the straps in front of the car struck the wire with sufficient force to break it and the occupants were saved from severe if not fatal injuries. Last Monday night Mr. J. T. George had a fortunate escape near the same place. On the top of the hill of the Provincial Highway where the side line leads down to the station a heavy rail was placed across the road, and just beyond this a dozen or more broken bottles were strewn all over the road. Coming up the hill the auto lights shone above the rail and he was in the centre of the trap before he noticed it. Fortunately, his car stood up under both bottles and rail and no damage was done. An effort is to be made to locate this cowardly scoundrel, and if successful it will prove a sorrowful day for him.—Port Hope Guide.

Hydro Claims Trent Report Is Incorrect

Flow Not 1,200 Feet, by Commission's Records, is Statement

According to a statement issued yesterday by the Ontario Hydro-electric Power Commission, if they had been getting at the Central Ontario power development the water flow that Mr. Henry Holgate of Montreal, in a special report to the Department of Railways and Canals on storage waters in the Trent river, said they were getting, there would be no power shortage.

Mr. Holgate's report says the flow is about 1,200 cubic feet per second. The Hydro, on an automatic gauge, figures that the average flow from October 1 to October 13 was never above 1,050 cubic feet per second, and was as low as 930. The figures on which Mr. Holgate's report was based, according to the Hydro-Electric Power Commission, were taken on two occasions during the day when the flow was at its maximum, while the Hydro figures are a daily average made by the automatic gauge.

Beck Says Holgate Opposes Hydro

Sir Adam Beck, Chairman of the Ontario Hydro-electric Power Commission, said that he had complained to the Dominion Government regarding the appointment of Mr. Holgate to make the report "on the ground that Mr. Holgate had publicly and privately opposed Hydro."

"This protest was ignored, and the summary of the report published in this morning's Toronto dailies confirms the commission's belief that it would be a vindication of the Department of Railways and Canals," said Sir Adam.

"Nothing is produced in the summarized report to alter the commission's belief that the storage waters of the Trent have not been administered in the best interests of the power users of the district," says the statement.

"One of the commission's engineers accompanied Mr. Holgate on October 13 to Nassau and Young's Point to make an inspection of gauges, etc., and none of the commission's staff were afterwards afforded an opportunity to discuss with Mr. Holgate the engineering features involved, or to elaborate verbally the written arguments presented to Mr. Holgate on October 14. Apparently the information supplied by the Department of Railways and Canals was accepted without reference to data supplied by the commission."

Fell Under Train On Railway Bridge

Young Man Tried To Get On Freight Train—Missed Hold And Fell Beneath Wheels.

Thomas Delanty, a returned man who his been in Belleville for some days, was this morning the victim of an accident which may prove fatal. From information which can be obtained, it appears that Delanty was on the railway bridge over the park entrance and made an effort to board an east bound C.P.R. freight train, but missed his hold and fell beneath one of the moving cars which passed over his left arm crushing it in a terrible manner. As quickly as possible after the accident Delanty was conveyed to the hospital when upon examination it was found necessary to amputate the arm which was done. The victim also received other injuries about the body and his condition this afternoon was such that it was feared he could not survive.

The victim of the unfortunate affair is not generally known in the city, as he has been here but a short time and stopped at the Queen's Hotel. Previous to the accident he was with a companion named Blair, who is connected with a restaurant known as the Veterans' Lunch Counter. He was, however, unable to tell just how the accident occurred. From papers on Delanty it has been learned that he was a returned soldier. He enlisted with the 130th Battalion and served in France with the 38th Battalion. He had evidently been at Tweed, Victoria Harbor and Toronto and is a member of the Toronto Branch of the Order of Moose. The G.W.V.A. of this city has interested itself in the matter and are making every effort to locate relatives of the unfortunate man. Delanty is about 25 years of age.

FIREMAN HELD ARTERIES

Delanty with his companion, evidently intended to take a pleasure ride and when the C.P.R. freight train slowed up for the bridge, they climbed upon the structure and tried to board the train while it was in motion. Blair succeeded in getting on the train but Delanty stumbled and fell with his arm on the rail. He picked himself up quickly and walked across the bridge to the crossing calling to his companion to get a doctor that he was injured. He was noticed by Fireman William Lynch at No. 1 Fire Station, who at once went to the injured man's assistance and helped him to the verandah of the house, corner of Front and Dandas streets. Fireman Lynch endeavored to stop the flow of blood, but the injury was so near the shoulder that a tourniquet was impossible, he therefore held the arteries until the arrival of Dr. Cronk, who came in response to a telephone call from the fire station.

Delanty was removed to the hospital where it was found necessary to remove the arm from the socket, and on account of loss of blood and shock his condition was most serious.

Delanty came to Belleville early in October and recently has been picking apples on the farm of Mr. Felix Allore, proprietor of the Queen's Hotel.

Feels That She's Doing Good Deed

Toronto Woman Wants Others to Know What A Blessing Tanlac Has Been to Her.

"I am delighted with the results I have received from Tanlac, for I am once more enjoying life and health," said Mrs. Nell McNeil, of 65 Crawford street, Toronto, Ont.

"I have been almost a constant sufferer for more than a year from stomach trouble and nervousness. I could not eat much of anything, for my digestive organs were so badly upset I was in distress after every meal. It was hard for me to retain anything on my stomach and I felt nauseated most of the time. Sickening headaches often came on me and I had to give right up and go to bed. My nerves were unstrung and at night I was always restless and many times wasn't able to get to sleep until early morning. My strength and energy seemed to leave me and most of the time I was too weak to do my housework. I did everything possible to get relief and even spent some time in the hospital, but nothing seemed to help me.

"It was my husband who suggested that I try Tanlac, and I began to improve steadily right from the start. The nervousness and indigestion started leaving me and I commenced to eat things I hadn't been able to touch. To-day I call myself perfectly well and can do my housework all by myself. I eat just whatever I please and never suffer one bit afterwards. Those sickening headaches have disappeared and my nerves are so steady and quiet I sleep soundly all night long. I've told lots of people about Tanlac and I always feel I am doing a good deed every time I do it."

Tanlac is sold at Ostroms' Drug Store and by the leading durggists in every town.

IN MEMORIAM

JOSE—In loving memory of Mrs. A. Jose, who passed this life, October 22, 1918.

It was just two years ago today,
  Since we remember well;
We sat beside our loved one's side,
  But no story could she tell.

No one knows the pain,
  That struck our hearts,
When she was laid
  Silent with the dead.

Safe in the arms of Jesus,
  Safe on His gentle breast;
There by His love o'ershaded,
  Sweetly her soul shall rest.

In loving memory of Mrs. A Jose, who passed this life two years ago, October 22, 1918. By Mrs. H. Holban and daughter Audrey.

THE SPIRIT OF THE TIMES!

"Cash and Carry," has won such favor with the buying public and the merchants throughout the Continent that two more of our local firms will on and after the 1st of November next adopt this system of selling their goods. It cannot be denied that the buyer who pays cash is entitled to a greater consideration than the one who does not. The customer who carries his or her purchase is thereby effecting a saving of service and consequent expense to the merchant and in all fairness under such circumstances the purchaser should receive the direct benefit of such economy.

The large expenditures of maintaining a system of delivering parcels under prevailing conditions and of which only a small part of our citizens take advantage of, is much greater than the general public are aware of, and the merchant who can eliminate this expense is enabled to cater to the requirements of his trade at considerably lower prices.

The customer who is economical and buys for cash is the one who makes possible a successful business in the long run. Nothing good can be said of the and shows appreciation by delaying and hows appreciation by delaying payment indefinitely. And nowadays the merchant who is enabled to do so and will sell for less money is deserving of the trade of the general public.

On and after the 1st of November next, Messrs. R. Oliphant & Son and Green & Company of this city, will adopt the CASH and CARRY system of selling their goods, in order to compete with others in their line. And we predict that their customers will welcome this change of policy and show their appreciation of the benefits which will accrue to them. ltd

Heartrending Stories Told By Victims Of Ponzi

WAR VETERANS, WIDOWS, OLD MEN, YOUNG MEN, POOR SHOP GIRLS AND PERSONS IN ALL WALKS OF LIFE RECOUNT STORIES TO COURT—SAVINGS OF LIFETIME IN MANY CASES LOST IN CRASH — PONZI'S WIFE AND MOTHER BROKEN-HEARTED.

BOSTON, Mass., Oct. 23.—Pathetic stories of little bank accounts, a few hundred dollars saved through long years of scrimping and saving, now gone in the bursting of Ponzi's frenzied financial bubble, have come one after another with the Ponzi bankruptcy hearing.

Hourly was added much to what has already been told of just how much suffering Ponzi's manipulations have really caused. Heartrending were many of the tales that women, young and old men, well and poorly dressed and even young girls, clerks in stores, or workers in factories, told as they left the double line of noteholders that testified. As they came and went they talked excitedly, heaping abuse upon the man who had fleeced them, or alternately condoled one another, telling the court of this dream and that, plans of a lifetime smashed with the crash of Ponzi's expose.

A VETERAN'S STORY

A world war veteran, twice wounded and gassed, had saved $700, money enough to take him to Arizona, the state where physicians had told him lies his only hope of staving off tuberculosis that gas-weakened lungs are showing signs of. He put it all with Ponzi and failed to cash it in before the crash came.

When asked by the court in a kindly manner as to what he intended to do, he smiled wanly and said: “Well, I guess I can stand it here. It isn't any worse for me than it is for these poor women here. I'm in a bad shape, but I will find a way out some way. They told me that Arizona was the one state that might fix me up. When Ponzi blew into my life, I thought that I was a wise guy, and I figured it out that I could just double my money. That I could then stay out west and perhaps live a little while longer, $1,400 worth or just twice as long—well, you know what the story is now.”

THEIR LITTLE HOME

A printer down in the North End who had been paying rent all his life, had saved up $4,600, he said, “My wife and I were going to buy a little house and figured we could buy a regular palace if Ponzi doubled our money,” he said. “Guess it's a doghouse now.” He finished with a brave attempt at cheerfulness.

Another couple, countrymen of Ponzi, had saved up $2,600 and was to have gone to Italy this very week. They drew out their money and went and had a long talk with Ponzi, a personal talk. He assured them that they would not only have $2,600 to go to Italy with, but would have an additional $2,600 to enjoy themselves with. They wept, quite unashamed, as they displayed their worthless note following identification.

MOTHER'S HOPE

A mother and daughter told an honest little tale of hope battling common sense. They only had $600. They invested it with Ponzi and with the first rumors of trouble they took the note and “cashed in.” Then one of Ponzi's smooth agents called and told them a wonderful story of how he had made $15,000 profit in Ponzi's scheme starting with a small sum. Mother and daughter listened, then went and got their $600, split their money and put back $300 each. The worthless note, which they identified was all they had of their hard earned savings which represented several years of toil, real toil.

MORTGAGED HOME

A Beachmont woman mortgaged her home for $800 and invested it with Ponzi. She had a large family and only recently finished paying for their home. As to hundreds of other easily led women and men, too, Ponzi's wonderful tale of his dreams sounded good.

“Not in a life time will I ever be able to pay back that mortgage,” she zi had saved up $2,600 and were to down her cheeks. “To think that he could be so mean—to take money from a woman and not only myself but those,” she cried, pointing to the many score of poorly clad, apparently poverty-stricken women looking on. And so it went, all along the long lines.

VAIN PLEADING

One woman, a Mrs. Rebecca Lane of West Roxbury, gray-haired with a kindly pathetic wrinkled face, brokenly told of her thousand dollar Liberty bond purchased with her yearly savings cashed in by Ponzi in exchange for a worthless piece of paper. She went to Ponzi before the crash and pleaded “with all my heart,” and as she put it to have him return the bond to her. She asked for no interest, just the return of the bond. Even though she had delayed eleven days to wait before the note matured for double the amount of the bond her plea was refused emphatically.

CLEVER MANIPULATOR

In reference to Ponzi and his customers, Referee Olmstead says: “While Mr. Ponzi is not to be classed in the same category with a robber and a burglar, he was undoubtedly a clever manipulator who took advantage of the credulity of the investing public which in this instance, is the usurer. The investors who loaned their money for a return of the principal and fifty per cent. interest, would seem themselves to be guilty of usury, if such existed. That Mr. Ponzi took advantage of a weakness and willingness of the community to be victimized is apparent and sufficient to condemn his acts.

“There was no evidence adduced before me that Mr. Ponzi who was sole proprietor of the Securities exchange Company, ever conducted his business by circulars or by use of the mails.

“Both accountants state that Ponzi had issued notes in excess of $14,000,000; that his outstanding liabilities at present about the time of filing the petition were $6,918,267.38. To meet this liability of nearly $7,000,000 Mr. Rittenhous submitted a list of assets showing a grand total of $2195,685.56. Mr. Ponzi in a statement in court tried to meet the situation by claiming that he had paid $9,500,000 instead of about $8,000,000 stated by Mr. Pride that there should be added to the $2,000,000 of assets reported by Mr. Rittenhous about $1,000,000 derivable largely from refunds of agent commissions. I am inclined to plant more reliance on the report of the accountants that the liabilites were nearer $7,000,000 than the $3,000,000 that Mr. Ponzi claimed he owed. In a statement to Mr. Pride Mr. Ponzi had stated that he could not raise more than $4,000,000 and that he was insolvent.

“The petitioners allege that the respondent made transfers of his property during July to certain creditors mentioned. I find, as a fact, that the transfer or payments were made alleged and constitute acts of bankruptcy. I find that the allegations all the petitioners as to insolvency acts of bankruptcy have been unsustained.”

Americans Willing To Knock Off Exchange

MONTREAL, Oct. 21.—The adverse rate of exchange set up by the United States against Canadian purchasers is beginning to crack, according to information received by Canadian importers. It is said that business conditions are so poor in the Eastern States, manufacturers and merchants there are beginning to look anxiously at their falling export trade, and in order to boost it will accept Canadian funds. If, as is hoped, the movement becomes at all general it presages a fall in the cost of living, for business men here point out that this means a ten per cent. drop in the cost of imported goods, and Canadian manufacturers and producers, to meet it, would have to reduce their prices too.

“Several of the largest American houses have quoted prices recently and said that Canadian funds would be acceptable,” said W. P. Downey, a Montreal importer, this morning. This applied to crude drugs and herbs. One firm, by far the biggest in the United States, several wholesale confectionery firms and wholesalers of Chinese products had also expressed their willingness to take Canadian funds.

“This applies, so far as I know, only to the east. In the western States New York funds are still demanded,” said Mr. Downey. “The reason is that business is so bad in the East. Eastern firms have lost so much business. Now they are coming to their senses and disregarding the rate of exchange. Their business had been almost cut in two in a number of cases.” This is expected to increase American imports into Canada, but it was not thought the increase would be excessive, but merely bring back pre-war conditions

Press Opinions On B.C. Election

Vancouver Sun: Even enthusiasts among the moderationists must be a little surprised at the decisive character of their victory yesterday. Explanations are idle to seek. The idea that a preponderating majority of women would vote dry has gone glimmering. They are evidently nearly as afraid of the evils of drink as the supporters of prohibition have supposed. The contention that the workingman and the storekeeper had become wedded to total abstinance will not survive the revelation of the ballot box. So far as the prohibitionist forces are concerned the outcome expressed is not understandable.

Calgary Herald: Evidently the people are out of patience with the spurious sort of prohibition they have been given for some years past in British Columbia. British Columbia has been no better or no worse than other Provinces in this respect. The so-called “dry” law has been given a fair trial and found wanting. They do not want a “wet” Province in the sense of pre-prohibition wetness. The bar has no friends, either there or elsewhere. But they do want an end put to the crookedness in the conduct of the liquor business.

Vancouver World: Supporters of the Prohibition Act labored under several handicaps, which, judging from the vote, proved fatal to their hopes. Under the Provincial law they were powerless to prevent importation, and an effort to get the last Legislature to invoke the ominion safe guards in that particular was voted down. The scandalous non-enforcement of the law doubtless aroused wide resentment, because it fostered responsibility on the act that belonged to the electors. It is an infallible political practise that the way to secure the repeal of a bad law is to enforce it, and the way to repeal a good law is not to enforce it.

No Room For Question

Vancouver Province: The present Prohibition Act is condemned and Government control and sale of liquor is preferred by an overwhelming majority of the people of British Columbia. This majority is so large and so generally distributed through the Province as to leave no possible room to question the validity of the verdict. As the record stands, it cannot be taken otherwise than as a clear and definite statement that the British Columbia people are at present opposed to the principle of prohibition. Anyone is free to discuss the question whether it is right or wrong. But the fact is that after three years of the statutory prohibition they have said they do not want it any longer.

Illicit Trade a Scandal.

Victoria Colonist: The desire of the people, in the light of the experience through which they have gone during the past three years, is obviously in favor of a measure which will promote temperance, instead of a prohibitory law. Doubtless the result was contributed to by the illicit rade in liquor which has become a candal in this Province. The effect of what has been done here will undoubtedly be felt in its remotest consequences much farther afield.

INSPECTOR OBJECTS TO SPECIAL AGENTS

Windsor, Oct. 21.—License Inspector M. N. Mousseau of Essex county told members of the Board of License Commissioners over the long-distance telephone today that the board might expect him to leave its service if it retained the special agents of the department, now working under Rev. J. O. L. Sprackin. This is one of the developments following the action of the board, which decided yesterday that the charges preferred against Rev. Mr. Sprackin and his agents were groundless.

Lawyers Will Force Investigation

Another development was the decision of local lawyers who drew up a dozen affidavits, now in the possession of the Attorney-General, which make charges of bribery, corruption and terrorism, to force an investigation of the conditions now existing in Essex county, which one of them, William Furlong, declared would result in bloodshed. Petitions were circulated by Mr. Furlong asking the Provincial Government to hold a public investigation into the charges.

MONTREAL REFINERY CUTS SUGAR TO $17

Montreal, Oct. 21.—The Dominion Sugar Refining Company today announced a drop in sugar prices. It is now quoting $17 as the price per 100 pounds. No change has yet taken place in the quotations of the other refineries. The price charged for sugar here retail has been 21 cents and wholesale 18 1-2 cents per pound.

Diplomats May Have Their Wine

WASHINGTON, Oct. 23.—The Department of State will apply to the Courts for an injunction to prevent the Treasury Departmedt from opening the baggage of incoming diplomats at New York and searching it for liquor, it was indicated by Secretary Colby today.

This statement followed an an- the Treasury Department from open- proposed to disregard all international usage and proceed with the search despite the protest made by the State Department and the diplomatic corps.

The tempest between the two departments and which threatens to involve practically every foreign Government with diplomatic agents in Washington arose, it was learned today over the seizure by Customs officials six weeks ago at New York of a case of wine consigned to a member of the French embassy.

The French Government immediately protested to the State Department release the wine. This the with a demand that the Treasury Department release the wine. This th Customs officials agree to do, but only on condition that a member of the embassy go to New York and personally conduct the wine to Washington, which was done.

Subsequent shipments of wines and liquors to other embassies were also stopped.

Readers Must Pay More For Papers

TORONTO, Oct. 23.—At the seventh annual meeting of the Association of Canadian Advertisers at the Prince George Hotel, Vice-President W. G. Stewart declared that the time had arrived to impress upon the publishers the necessity of charging more for their product.

“We all know that there is a world-wide paper shortage,” said he, “but so far the advertiser has had to pay the larger proportion of the increased costs, and many of us believe that the time has now arrived for the reader to pay his fair share of the increase in the overhead expenses of the publisher.”

President D. George Clark and Vice President Steward both emphasized the need for more color work in advertising.

After a discussion of circulation and rates of various mediums C. A. Crabtree of Ottawa, president of the Crabtree Company gave an address on “Art, work and engraving problems, and how to meet them economically.” This afternoon will be devoted to a discussion of film, bill-board and other advertising mediums with an address by F. T. Stanford of the Canada Life Assurance Company on “Co-operative Institutional Advertising.”

Express Messenger Fought Robbers

Was Besieged by Desperadoes For Over Hour in Express Car

CHICAGO, Oct. 22.—Gustave Merkerman, express clerk, prevented three men from carrying out an attempt to rob the express car of train number 13 the westbound Detroit-Chicago flyer of the Michigan Central Railroad last night. The men boarded the train at Niles, Michigan, and beat down part of the car entrance with an iron bar. Merkerman wounded one of the men in the hand which was groping for the spring lock. He braced packing cases against the door and exhausted his ammunition, holding the men off for more than an hour when the three escaped in the Michigan city yards. Jewelery and merchandise valued at $270,000 was on the train.

Miners Will Confer With British Premier

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer
Canadian Press Limited

LONDON, Oct. 23.—The Evening Standard says the Miners' Executive Committee is to be asked to meet the Premier and his experts at the Premier's official residence in Downing street, although the time for such a meeting has not been fixed. It asserts also that the skeleton of a formula slightly more favorable to the miners has been sketched and that this has unofficially been approved by prominent miners leaders although this does not necessarily mean that the miners as a whole would accept it.

LONDON, Oct 23.—Armenian Premier is reported in a London Times Constantinople despatch to have refused to submit to ultimatum of Russian Soviet Government that Armenians repudiate treaty with Turkey and break off diplomatic relations with Entente. This action by Armenia, it is pointed out, was taken despite the fact that the Eastern frontier of their country is seriously menaced by Bolshevik forces.

Marmora Child Dies Of Wounds

Shot Herself While Handling Gun—Seven Years of Age

Margaret Crawford, aged seven years, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Crawford, who reside near Marmora village inflicted injuries upon herself whilst handling a gun, death resulting. It appears that the parents went to Marmora village and left their youngest son, aged 9 years and Margaret at home. Apparently the children got a 44 repeating rifle, which was in the house and were playing with it. The gun had an empty shell in it and one cartridge in the magazine. The other cartridges had been put away out of reach. It seems they pumped the cartridge into place and the lad states he left the house for a minute and while out heard a shot. When he ran in his sister was lying on the floor with the bullet hole through her just below the throat. The older brother arrived home about the same time and some of the neighbors were notified of the accident and a call sent to the village for the parents and the doctor.

Organized For Sailors Week On Trafalgar Anniversary

ONE HUNDRED AND FIFTEEN YEARS AGO BRITAIN CELEBRATED VICTORY OF TRAFALGAR, WHEN SEA POWER OF BRITAIN WAS CLINCHED, NEVER TO BE RELINQUISHED—LOCAL SOCIETIES CO-OPERATE IN BIG DRIVE FOR SAILORS.

Facing death bravely to save you,
Counting all but victory and loss,
They were dying for you just as truly
As did your Lord on the cross.

Can you, will you, refuse them?
Oh, I plead do not say them nay,
When a willing Navy League worker
Asks for a dollar that day.

Give lest on the day of judgment
The words that you hear shall be
“As you did it not to my helpless
You did it not unto me.”

With these verses, Chaplain Rev. S Boal closed a powerful appeal for the Navy League campaign at the organization meeting in the Hotel Quinte Friday evening. Chaplain Boal pointed out the duty of providing for the widows and orphans of the seventeen thousand sailors who went down with their ships during the war, victims to Hun devlishness. This the Navy League had undertaken together with the care of the 33,000 sailors disabled during the war, besides the management and financing of the sailors institutes, the training of two thousand boys each year for the navy and merchant marine and the many other activities in connection with the navy and merchant marine of Canada.

TRAFALGAR ANNIVERSARY

Chaplain Boal drew attention to the fact that one hundred and fifteen years ago this very night the beacon fires were burning brightly on every hill in the British Isles celebrating Nelson's great victory at the Battle of Trafalgar, clinching Britain's sea power which has never since been seriously disputed until the battle of Jutland when the German navy was humbled and hunted to their holes never again to emerge except to abjectly surrender at Scapa Flow.

Chaplain Boal gave facts and figures showing the immense importance to Canada's future prosperity of a merchant marine and the duty of all patriotic Canadians to assist the Navy League in its campaign for the sailors.

Various organizations were represented at the meeting including the G.W.V.A., Rotary Club, Lions Club, Chamber of Commerce, G. T. R. and other organizations.

Stirring addresses were made by Mr John Elliott, who acted as chairman, Col. E. D. O'Flynn, Major R. D. Ponton, Mr. Geo. B. Jones, Messrs. Robert Gorman, W. L. Doyle, D. J. McMillan, W. Hume, G. Appell, E. Finkle.

Organization was perfected and strong committees will put the campaign over in a big way so that at the end of next week Belleville will stand high on the roll of Canadian cities which have responded handsomely to the call from the sea.

The campaign officers are John Elliott, Chairman; F. Guss Porter, K.C. M.P., Lieut.-Col. W. N. Ponton, Mayor W. B. Riggs, Vice-Chairmen; Major A. L. Johnson, Secretary; Lieut.-Col. E. D. O'Flynn, Treasurer; W. L. Doyle, Chairman of Publicity.

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer

There was a very small attendance of members. The House on motion of Bonar Law, Government leader, had previously voted for immediate termination of suspension from House of Joseph Devlin, Nationalist member from Falls division at Belfast. Mr. Devlin was supended on August 8th during debate preceding final passage of Irish Coercion Bill when he defied the chairman to silence him upon objection to some of his rmarks.

MAY BE GRADED SCALE FOR ONTARIO AUTO LICENSES

Biggs, minister of public works, has under contemplation plans for changing the rating under which automobiles are licensed, with a view to making the larger pay a higher license than the smaller cars. At present all pay $10 each. The stroke of the engine and the weight of the car may be the determining factors in the size of the license fee in future, although the minister has not yet definitely decided the matter.

MUSIC AND DRAMA

(What the Press Agents Say)

'THE MAID OF THE MOUNTAINS'

Direct from its record-breaking run of five years (1,352 performances), the greatest musical comedy of all time, "The Maid of the Mountains," is now on a limited tour of Cadada prior to its New York opening, and will be the offering at Griffin's Opera House next Thursday night, October 28th, for one night only.

The wonderful success attained by this musical play may fairly be attributed to the fact that it possesses to a full degree the four elements which are essential in musical plays—story, song, music and spectacle. These are splendidly balanced in this piece.

The settings are beyond compare. The first showing the bandits retreat in the mountains is a rare landscape gem. The second setting is that of the courtyard of the Governor's Palace where all is regal gorgeousness. The final act is laid on a lonely key on Devil's Island, giving a wonderful marine view from the rugged coast. Here the beautiful heroine, half Carmen and all Maid, is again re-united with her lover, whom she has betrayed in a fit of jealous anger.

"THE WANDERER"

In "The Wanderer" which will come to Griffin's Opera House Monday, November 1st, for one night only, Maurice V. Samuels is said to have made a remarkable prodigal son, transforming its simple narrative into dramatic action and dialogue of tremendous interest.

Combined with the sumptuous production given the play with true prodigality by those enterprising young producers, Messrs. Comstock and Gest, there is a cast of players of great fame such as Fred Mosley, Charles Cline, Margaret Flyn, John Dougherty and scores of others. Even an enormous flock of sheep with many goats and dogs are carried to land the typical Belasco effect, for none other than this great master of stagecraft directed the rehearsals of "The Wanderer."

Just as it is recorded by St. Luke in the Bible, the Prodigal son in "The Wanderer" is shown faring forth from the sunkissed hills of Judea to Jerusalem the Golden, where he wastes his substance with riotous living and then returns home broken in spirit and body to receive forgiveness for his sins and feast on the fatted calf.

A ballet of thirty, led by Charlotte Wynters, is a feature of the second act which reveals the Babylonian idolaters feasting and celebrating before the shrine of Ishtar the goddess of Love.

"POLLYANNA"

Critics everywhere assert that "Pollyanna" is one of the greatest picture-plays ever filmed. The reason for this is that the philosophy upon which the story is based constituted a theme which at the present time has an unusually wide appeal. This production will be the feature at Griffin's this Monday to Wednesday.

Miss Pickford points out in this story that even when things are bad they might be worse. This thought, planted in the minds of people who are dissatisfied with wage conditions or who think they are not getting a fair price for their goods, will tend to stimulate a line of mental activity which will result in stabilizing conditions.

In addition to the above feature offering Charlie Chaplin appears on the same program in a highly amusing reel comedy, "The Fireman," Jack Dempsey in "Daredevil Jack," and an interesting Burton Holmes Travelogue will also be presented.

Can Spirits Of The Dead Speak To The Living

SOME PROMINENT MEN CLAIM THAT COMMUNICATION WITH THE DEAD IS POSSIBLE—SIR OLIVER LODGE, SIR CONAN DOYLE AND OTHERS CLAIM TO HAVE TALKED WITH DEAD FRIENDS.

Written by J. J. B. Flint

Sir Oliver Lodge wrote: "We shall certainly continue to exist, we shall certainly survive, why do I say that? I say it on definite scientific grounds. I know that certain friends of mine still exist, because I have talked with them. I have conversed with them as I could converse through a telephone with anyone in this audience, now. Being men of cultivated minds, they have given proofs that it is really they, not some impersonations not something emanating from myself. They have given definite proofs, some of these have been published, more will ultimately be published. I tell you with all the strength of conviction that I can muster, that the fact is so, that we do persist, that people still take an interest in what is going on, that they still help us, that they know far more about things than we do, that they are able from time to time to communicate."

What Conan Doyle Says

Sir Conan Doyle writes: "I found myself as a young medical man, a convinced materialist as regards our personal destiny, in other words I believed there was no future life. When it came to a question of our little personalities surviving death, it seemed to me that the whole analogy of nature was against it. When the candle burns out the light disappears, the electric cell shattered the current stops, when the body dissolves where is the end. I was convinced that death ended all.

Take the experience of the celebrated F. W. Meyers, who was an earnest believer in traditional Christianity but earnest reflection had destroyed the structure of his faith. After thirty years of reflection and examination of physical problems he became convinced of the truth of immortality from evidence of departed friends. Sir Conan Doyle says, the positive evidence of the survival of many friends convinced him of the truth of immortality.

The celebrated Professor Hyslop had the same experience. Dr. Hodgson says that from repeated conversations with a deceased friend, he was absolutely convinced that it was indeed the spirit of his friend with whom he conversed.

A celebrated judge of the Supreme Court of the United States says that for years he had conversations with his deceased wife.

Clergyman's Experience

A clergyman, a leader in one of the great orthodox churches in the United States, and who won great honors, lost his wife says, "eleven months had passed away and noot even a dream about the one I loved better than my own soul. During our life we were exceedingly sensitive to each others condition, and when she was in difficulty, or ill, and away from me, I always knew it. She died in May, in April following I was in the Benjham House, Philadelphia. I went to my room about twelve o'clock at night. A chandelier with five lights was in the centre of the room, and a push button at the head of my bed. I was lying with my eyes closed, not asleep, as truly awake as ever in my life. I was thinking of her. It didn't seem to come suddenly, it seemed to come naturally.

The room was filled with her presence, I could see her form, shadowy, with something that looked like the mist of the morning about it and I said "darling, why have you not come before?" She answered "the Good Father wouldn't permit me." I said, "I have been so lonesome, and so heartbroken, that I have hungered for you, where did you come from?"

She answered: "I have been up to see the children. They are lonely.

She seemed to be sitting on the edge of the bed. I reached up, and touched the button, and the room was flooded with light. I stretched my arms towards her, but saw nothing.

I cried, oh Father forgive me, let her come back. That was my prayer I do not know how long I waited, praying earnestly, when I saw her in the room again. I could see the smile on her face. I was afraid to move, lest she should disappear. She came in with a gentle laugh and said: "oh why did you do that?"

I don't know how long we talked. I know I never slept that night, we talked of our life together of our children, of her father, and brother, who had passed on, and whom she said she was instructing on the other side. I have never feared death since. That was our conversation, there wasn't a trivial thing, nothing but what was of interest to her and to me. She said "I have come to you, that you may stop grieving for it is making it impossible for you to do your work that must be done." She was gone.

Parnell Comes Back

Parnell, the brother of the great Irishman, Charles Stuart Parnell, relates in his history of his brother, that his brother came into his room and sat beside the bed and talked for a long time about the condition of Ireland and then vannshed. Parnell had been dead for a year at the time of his appearance.

The eminent actor Southern, states that a French tutor called upon him and conversed for some time when he land and then vanished. Parnell had came in and said his father had died at three o'clock although he had been in Southern's room at half past five.

Plato believed in immortality. Socrates said when he had to drink the poisoned hemlock: "You can kill my body, but cannot catch me." Hamlet feared what might happen in the future. We are immortals—Death does not end all.

Charges O.B.U. Uuder Orders From Moscow

Minister of Labor Says Alberta That Strikes Results of Soviet Propaganda.

Fort William, Oct. 22.—Senator Gideon Robertson, Minister of Labor, told the Fort William Canadian Club Sat- subsidiary of the revolutionary organizations existing in the United States and which have their fountainhead in Moscow."

The One Big Union strike in the coalfields of Alberta had been brought about under such auspices. He himself had gone to Drumheller, where trouble existed, and had found that the foreign element was on strike and the English-speaking element at work. His observation was the result of a careful inquiry as to the cause of the strike from a committee of seventeen men drawn from the various mines in that Valley.

Have Soviet Aims

Even two foreigners on the committee admitted that it was largely true that foreigners in the camp were mainly responsible for the strike, adding that nearly all the foreigners were Russians and Austrians, most of them being members of secret societies the object of which was to establish Soviet rule in Canada as in Russia.

These foreigners were acting on instructions and urgent requests "to work for the cause" under the supervision of agents who did their best to see that all members of the secret organization lived up to their obligations as such members.

H. A. HARRINGTON NOW FUEL ADMINISTRATOR

Toronto, Oct. 23.—Mr. H. A. Harrington, who acted as Fuel Controller under the old regulations, has been appointed by the Ontario Government to the office of Fuel Administrator for the Province under the new orde passed by the Dominion Railway Commissioners. The regulations are stated to be similar to those formerly in vogue, though the penalties are a little more drastic for breaches of the law.

The Administrator has the right to put retail coal merchants under license, and it is expected that the fees will be higher than those previously prevailing.

It is understood that the fixing of necessary, will be in the hands of the Board of Commerce.

Find Arsenic In Hastings County

Economic Treatment on Ontario Mispickle Ores Claimed Feasible

The serious shortage in the world's supply of arsenic is drawing a great deal of attention to the new sources of supply of this increasingly useful commodity in Canada, and in Eastern Ontario particularly. The sources of arsenic in the United Statek have been practically exhausted, and American manufacturers are anxious to tap the mineral resources of Canada in order to carry on their business.

The only arsenic that is being produced in Canada at the present time is that obtained as a by-product from Cobalt ores, and is being manufactured by two or three firms. But the output of these concerns has been practically all bought by American agents, so that it is now difficult to buy Canadian arsenic without going outside of Canada to do business. Arsenic, which was about four cents per pound a few years ago, now stands at 13 3-4 to 14 cents per pound. This price is regarded as abnormal, and it cannot be maintained if the new sources of supply are developed. The manufacturers who use large quantities of arsenic are seriously contemplating entering the mining business in order to procure what they want, not only at a reasonable price, but in sufficient quantities.

It is generally recognised that mispickle ore is the most natural mineral source of pure white arsenic. Mispickle mines in the United State have been exhausted. The only known deposits of mispickle on the continent of any workable size are in Hastings county, Ontario. These deposits have been prospected very thoroughly during the last twelve months by American mining experts and have been pronounced the largest in the world. These mispickle ore areas extend over many miles of the county, but they are said to be richest at certain points in the township of Elzever.

Water Power Abundant

The country is very suitable for mining development, as it is well supplied with water power and transportation facilities, and labor is easily available.

As to the uses of arsenic, there have been some remarkable developments in this direction in recent years. Being a rank poison it has naturally been applied to the purpose of killing things. An American Government expert recently discovered that arsenic was the most effective exterminator of the boll weevil, which plays such havoc with the vast cotton plantations in the South. Arsenic has also been used in large quantities for the destruction of rank vegetation and weeds that spring up on the railway tracks. The use of Arsenic in the form of "Paris Green" for the destruction of the pestiferious potato bug is well-known.

More Than a Destroyer

Arsenic, however, is no longer regarded as a destroyer merely. While it can be used to kill both vegetation and the insect that preys upon vegetation, it is now found to be a life-giver as well as a life-destroyer. Agricultural experts are awakening to its possibilities as a fertilizer. Experiments have proved that when scientifically used arsenic can be made to destroy embryonic insect life in the soil and at the same time promote germination and growth in vegetation. A patent was recently applied for in the United State for an arsenic impregnated fertilizer, but was refused on the ground that the use of arsenic on a combined insecticide and fertilizer was not a new process. Both chemists and agricultural experts realize its potent and far-reaching possibilities in this direction.

If North Hastings, the land of rocks and shallow farm lands, can supply a commodity with such great value to agriculture, it will be another illustration of the wonderful provision of nature, and the strange but happy irony of events; for the barren places shall give new life to the more fruitful regions of the earth.

MAN TALKS WHILE WOMAN WORKS

The late Elbert Hubbard, Fra of the Philistines and Sage of the Roycrofters of East Aurora, N.Y., who with his wife, Alice Hubbard, perished in the Lusitania outrage, held strong views upon women's place in the world. In reviewing a book written by his wife upon the subject of women's work the Fra said:

> "Woman has always been demonetized by male man. Mrs. Hubbard thinks this an error for both parties and gurgles her disapprobation in Caslon. Woman's services have been paid for in clearing house promises payable in Heaven.
> As to who discovered woman, Mrs. Hubbard coincides with Rev. Dr. Buckley, and admits she does not know. A few inspired persons always have had their suspicions; but only in very recent times has woman's presence been taken seriously.
> "Scripture charges her with disarranging the plans of Deity; the Puritans invented and operated the ducking stool for her benefit; all of the twenty witches hanged at Salem were women; she was voted out of the General Conference of Methodists—although the mother of John and Charles Wesley, and seventeen other Wesleys, was a woman, and a preacher; a woman was sentenced to prison in England because she insisted on having her political preferences recorded; Blackstone calls her an undeveloped man; women are not allowed to speak in Episcopal nor Catholic churches.

Despite all discouragements, however, woman has persisted in her desire to be useful not only in the home circle, but in the community at large, and has more than demonstrated her ability to do some things better than the men.

There is a great deal of very necessary world's work which would never be accomplished were it not for the ambition, faithfulness and charity of women. One can hardly imagine a womanless church, for the hardest part of church work is religiously—or rather, unreligiously—sidestepped by the men, who are content to do the talking while the women do the work.

The reports presented at the annual meeting of the Belleville Women's Christian Association reveal a great labor of love performed by the women of this splendid organization embracing a mass of system and detail which is astonishing. Those who do not take an active interest in this work and are therefore unfamiliar with the great service performed by the W. C. A. should at least read carefully the annual reports as published in The Intelligencer this week, which will be found very interesting and should suggest the thought in the minds of all readers

"Am I giving as much of my time and money to these necessary branches of community service as duty demands?"

The General Hospital, Home for the Friendless, Social Service Work, relieving the necessities of the poor, visiting the sick, and other departments of the W.C.A. call for time, tact, and executive ability of a high order and the work of the association shows that all these qualities and more are possessed by the lady workers.

CANADIAN SAILORS IN THE GREAT WAR.

It is easy to sing "Britannia Rules the Waves," but it is not always that the singer realizes the price that has been paid for that rule, a price paid not alone by the Admiralty, as told of by Kipling, but by the merchant marine, which, during the great war, proved of a verity the sister service of the navy. In this sacrifice Canada had a goodly share. While this country has not emblazoned to the world through the medium of its postal issues, that the sailors from Canada were everywhere, as Newfoundland has done, it is a fact that Canada was represented on the seven seas in both branches of the service afloat. Even Ontario had a large number of men in the navy and the merchant marine. At Jutland, at the battle of the Falkland Islands, in patrolling channels in the British seas, Canadian men were to be found.

BONE-DRY PROHIBITION NOT POPULAR IN B.C.

The electors of British Columbia after some years trial of prohibition voted for its repeal by a large majority. This was preceded by a long public discussion of the subject in its various phases. Women took an active part and many cast their ballots for the first time.

The reasons which impelled the people of the coast province to declare against prohibition, as shown in the course of the campaign, were that bootlegging was rife and almost openly carried on in every part of the province; that medical men were being corrupted by having the legal right to prescribe alcohol; that the law turned large numbers of respectable citizens into law-breakers, with a consequent contempt for law and order, and that the rising generation, which is prone to buy its experience was left to the mercy of the bootlegger.

There is evidence that the returned soldier vote went almost solidly for the repeal of the Prohibition Act. The national convention of the Army and Navy Veterans in Canada, in session at Victoria last week, went on record to that effect.—Montreal Herald.

The Toronto Mail and Empire says that with regard to the tariff the public wants evidence and not "vehement denunciations of showy generalities. The enquiring spirit of the time will not be satisfied with frothy verbiage or passionate appeals. The day when windy or pretentious advocacy of economic policies availed is past." Exactly so; and the same thing applies to other matters than the tariff.

The sailors asked for nothing during the war and were all but forgotten in the many patriotic movements. Victory, complete and decisive, was materially contributed to by the sailors, and now in peace time the Navy League proposes that the sacrifice and service of the sailors shall be remembered in a worthy national testimonial which should enlist the hearty support of every loyal Canadian.

WAR LOSSES

Kitchener Record

In calculating the losses resulting from the war, the positive facts are bad enough without enlarging them by drawing upon the imagination. The Society for Studying Consequences of the war, places the death list at 35,000,000, made up as follows: Killed, 10,000,000; died from epidemics, results of blockades, etc., 5,300,000; fall in birthrate because of 56 millions of men mobilised for war, 20,200,000. You cannot very well lose what you never had. The loss of twenty-millions who might have been born is about as real as that of a man who might have bought a certain stock at 50, but did not, and then calculated the amount of money he lost when the stock went to 125.

TOOK A CHANCE

Moncton Times

On monday a cable was published from Lord Beaverbrook congratulating Hon. C. W. Robinson on his election in Westmorland. It is understood that the noble lord sent similar cables to Hon. Robert Murray, Provincial Secretary, who was overwhelmingly defeated in Northumberland County, and to Premier Foster, whose Government was virtually if not actually defeated at the polls. For obvious reasons the cables to Mr. Murray and Mr. Foster were not published. Possibly in sending these cables Beaverbrook "took a chance," as he frequently does in his financial and other ventures.

MR. KING'S POSITION

Sydney Post

But "free trade" in Canadian political discussion, can mean only one thing, for the total abolition of the tariff is obviously out of the question, and none but a madman would advocate it. A Canadian free trader is one who would have a revenue tariff, under which customs duties would be collected on such commodities as are not, and cannot be, produced in this country, while there would be no duties levied on industrial products that are manufactured both in Canadian and in foreign factories.

Mr. King surely knows that there is such a thing as a "free trade tariff." Such a tariff is that which is described above. Such a tariff was maintained in England for two generations before the war. No one questions that England was a free trade country from 1846 till 1914, and everyone knows that during that period England collected many billions of pounds in customs duties.

Mr. King therefore talks inconsequential nonsense when he says he is not a "free trade" because he is not advocating the total abolition of the tariff.

What the public have a right to know, and what he shall yet be obliged to disclose, is whether he favors a free trade or a protectionist tariff.

POETS' CORNER

A SONG OF LIFE

Sing me a song of splendid Youth,
  Free as the vagrant wind;
A merry song, a light song,
  The song of a care-free mind,
When life is made of happiness,
  And Youth is unaware
How surely Fate will mark him
  With the lining hand of care.

Sing me a song of life's great prime,
  So brave, and strong, and deep;
A steady song, a full song,
  The song of those who reap,
And find life's harvest rich and ripe
  With good that never dies,
When seeds of Great Ambition
  Are sown by Enterprise.

Sing me a song of life's calm close,
  Tranquil, and sweet, and frail;
A little, sad, contented song,
  The song of the ended trail,
When, happy with our memories,
  We watch life's twilight fall,
And smile on Death all tenderly,
  When answering The Call.

... housekeeper. I suppose she could give up her shop for a while. At least she could share the expense—or her husband could stand the bills since he escapes the pain. I tell you, if I ever had a daughter I'd make her learn her own trade if she never learned anything else. I'd never raise her to the hideous, indecent belief that the world owes her a living and she's got a right to squeeze it out of the heart's blood of some hard-working man. No, sirree! It may be old-fashioned, but it isn't decent, and it isn't even romantic. The love of two free souls, with their own careers and their own expenses, seems to me about the best kind of love there could be. Then both of them can come home evenings and their home will be a home—a fresh, sweet meeting place."

Clay breathed hard. He was silenced, but not convinced—beyond being convinced that Daphne Kip was still the one woman in the world for him, in spite of her cantankerous notions. Still, of course, a woman had to have some flaw or she would not be human. Daphne's foible was as harmless as anyone's, perhaps. So he blurted out:

"I suppose you've given up all thought of marrying me?"

She answered him with pious earnestness: "I've never given up that thought, Clay. I've been trying to make myself worthy of the happiness it would mean. I have had the trousseau all made, and paid for, a long while. That's what I came to town for originally—our trousseau. But when I saw how much sacrifice it meant for my poor old father and what a bundle of bills I'd be dumping on my poor young lover I couldn't see the good of it. So I took my vow that I wouldn't get a trousseau till I could earn the price of it myself. And now I've earned the price and I've got it. But I've lost my excuse for wearing it.

"Still, I'd probably have lost you, anyway, or ruined you if I had brought you my old ideas. Everybody always says that money is the enemy of love. I wonder if it couldn't be made the friend. It would be an interesting experiment, anyway."

"Daphne, honey, let's try the experiment."

She looked at him with a heavenly smile in her eyes, and answered, "Let's."

He moved toward her, but she dodged behind the counter. She studied him a moment, then reached below the counter. A bell rang and a drawer slid out. She took some bills from it, made a memorandum on a slip of paper, and put that in the place of the bills, closed the drawer, and leaned across the counter, murmuring:

"They say all successful businesses are begun on borrowed money. So I'll borrow this from the firm—for luck."

She put out her hand. Clay put out his. She laid three dollars on his palm and closed his fingers on them.

"What's all this?" he asked, all mystified. She explained:

"A plain gold band costs about six dollars, and that's for my half of the partnership. Women are wearing their wedding rings very light nowadays."

"I should say so!" Clay groaned, but with a smile.

She bent forward and he bent forward and their lips met. She was only a saleswoman selling a customer part of a heart for part of a heart, but to Clay the very counter was the golden bar of heaven, and Daphne the Blessed Damozel that leaned on it and made it warm.

CHIROPRACTIC FOR GOITRE

One of the astounding and pleasant experiences of a number of Chiropractic patients is the disappearance of a goitre while being adjusted for some other trouble. Many patients will testify that after receiving a number of adjustments for stomach or kindred trouble, they have noticed that their goitre has partially or totally left them.

The explanation for this is the relation which the pneumogastric or "pulmonary-stomach" nerve bears to the thyroid gland where the goitre is found.

Like all facts when known, the explanation is very simple and what was an apparent miracle is only a natural process which has taken place. The reason for the rapid spread of the Science of Chiropractic from one end of the country to the other is due to the accomplishment of these simple but nevertheless welcome benefactions. If you are afflicted with goitre, come to this office today for a Spinal Analysis and Consultation regarding your case.

A RED CROSS BRIDGE.

Food Plentiful In Canada, Scarce In Europe—Needs of the Children.

The development of the dairy industry of Canada during the past two decades has been surprisingly rapid. Quick to realize the profits to be derived from milk production and the great value of dairying in conserving the fertility of the soil, the Canadian farmer has not hesitated to increase his investments in dairy cattle. The industry expanded during the five years of world war. Canada, being distant from the theatres of war, although handicapped by the drafting into military service of half a million of her most vigorous manhood, was able to continue the development of many of her important industries, particularly agriculture.

It was not so in Europe. There the fiery blast of war, which left profits in some parts of the world, almost extinguished not only industry but national life itself in other. The drain upon manhood was so great that now in hundreds of thousands of families no adult males remain. Europe moreover is filled with orphan children whose prospect of life is marred by the lack of all that is necessary to bodily and mental growth. In most cases the earning power and consequently the purchasing power of their families is utterly destroyed.

Turning again to Canada we find there a surplus production of the commodities that are so badly needed in Europe. Condensed milk for instance is a commodity that is a prime necessity for the children of the poor communities of Europe but the nations to which they belong have no means of purchasing it for them. The Canadian Red Cross is going to endeavor to supply part of their needs by means of a general appeal for contributions to be made during Armistice week on behalf of the British Empire Fund, which is to be used in the humane task of relieving the sufferings of millions who are stricken by famine and disease. Part of the fund will be used for purchasing in Canada suitable supplies and thus the Red Cross will farnish the bridge across which some of our surplus milk will reach the enfeebled children in war-stricken areas. Those who assist will not only have the satisfaction of having contributed to relieve the sufferings of others less fortunate but by helping others will thereby indirectly help themselves.

FROM GENEVA.

Organizer for League of Red Cross Societies Tells of Need of Europe's Orphans.

"While we at home are intent on industrial expansion and a place in the sun, Europe in its war-weakened condition is fighting for its very existence," said Donald W. Brown, director of the department of organization in the League of Red Cross Societies of the World, which has its headquarters at Geneva, Switzerland. He visited Toronto to learn the peace program of the Canadian Red Cross Society and to establish closer contact between it and the league.

Millions of War Orphans.

Having just arrived from Europe, Mr. Brown was able to give the Canadian Red Cross some first hand information concerning the people of Europe. He called attention particularly to the condition of the children, so many of whom are now orphans. While the exact number who have lost one or both parents during the war cannot be determined, the most conservative estimate places the number at over ten millions. This number seems quite consistent with the heavy war casualties among so many nations.

Dependent Upon Charity.

The condition of these children is in most cases very pitiable. Many of them have no homes and they are dependent upon whoever may be charitable and kind enough to help them. But there are few who are able to give such help for the mass of the people of Russia, Poland, parts of Roumania, Czecho-Slovakia and other countries are so poor that they have not necessaries for themselves. Consequently in the great area between the Baltic, the Black and the Adriatic Seas, there are millions of children who face the next few years, and particularly the coming winter, without hope of proper care unless outside assistance is given them.

Disease Prevalent.

In addition to the unhappy condition of the children the adult populations are in the direst of misery on account of disease. Suffering has been accentuated by lack of food and clothing, nursing and medical attention, and tuberculosis, smallpox, typhus and dysentery are continuing unchecked.

Typhus which has so often proved a scourge and menace to the human race is again prevalent, and unless checked will most likely extend its ravages to an alarming degree.

British Empire Appeal.

For these urgent reasons, Mr. Brown said, the League of Red Cross Societies has made an earnest appeal to the people of the British Empire and he was glad to hear that the cause of the suffering children was being taken up in Canada. He had learned that an appeal on behalf of the British Empire Fund would be made in Canada by the Canadian Red Cross during Armistice week and wished for it every success.

Typhus In Canada.

In its earlier days Canada suffered from the ravages of a disease then known as "spotted fever" but now known generally by the name of typhus. It is a disease that spreads rapidly and is very destructive of human life. In the years 1846-47 it was brought to Canada by immigrants and caused great loss of life. It is only by taking urgent measures to stamp it out in the centres where it is now raging that it can be prevented from extending.

Miss Betsy Lane Shepherd, famous concert soprano, has made this test 185 times. 185 public audiences in 185 cities, have heard her compare her voice with its RE-CREATION by the New Edison. No one, out of a total of more than 100,000 listeners, has been able to tell when Miss Shepherd was singing, and when the New Edison—except by watching her lips.

4,000 similar tests of direct comparison, made by over fifty other celebrated vocalists and instrumentalists, have given this same result.

The New Edison is perfect realism achieved!

What kind of music "gets" you?

Tell us—and we'll show you how all its emotional power is RE-CREATED by the New Edison

Is it the soulful violin?—a mellow contralto?—the scintillating flute?—a sweet, soothing tenor?—that draws the quickest emotional response from you.

Let us play your favorite voice or instrument in a new kind of Realism Test. See whether you are touched by the RE-CREATED music in the same way that you are touched by the living music.

We want to show you that the New Edison RE-CREATES all the vital power in all music.

Remember what to ask for—"personal favorites" Realism Test!

The NEW EDISON

"The Phonograph with a Soul"

Perfect realism is your one vehicle to the inner joys of music which you crave.

Mr. Edison spent three million dollars in the research work which gave the New Edison perfect realism. He did this in order that the phonograph might transcend its former limitations and (here we quote Mr. Edison's own words), "bring into every American home, music so realistic and so perfect in its rendition as to be an unending source of benefit and pleasure."

The instruments which proved this perfect realism in Miss Shepherd's 185 tests were all exact duplicates of the original Official Laboratory Model on which Mr. Edison spent his three million dollars. You can also have an exact duplicate of this three million dollar original. We have it in our store, and guarantee it to be capable of sustaining the same test of direct comparison.

Important Practical Detail

Our Budget Plan brings your New Edison for immediate enjoyment, without asking for immediate payment. Ask about it when you come in to hear the "Personal Favorites" Realism Test.

Widows And Orphans To Receive Pensions

The pensioning of widows and orphans of sailors of the mercantile marine who were killed on active service during the war, the continuous training of 2,000 Canadian boys, the helping of Sailors' institutes throughout Canada, Canadian ships officered and manned by Canucks, development and administration, are some of the very worthy objects incorporated in the campaign of the Navy League of Canada to raise $760,000 during "Trafalgar" Sailors' Week.

No widow of a man who gave his life for his country should be allowed to go hungry. No child of such a hero should be allowed to go through life without a proper education. The funds asked will do this, and should be willingly subscribed by every loyal Canadian. It is a duty we all owe to the man who was brave enough to fight his country's battles, and make the supreme sacrifice when it was necessary.

Mr. D. B. Hanna, President of the Canadian National Railways, has given his full support to the movement, and the campaign. Canada's future depends on her commercial possibilities. The foreign trade depends on ships. These ships should be officered and manned by Canadians. They should be Canadian trained. No country ever faced such a brilliant future, and the Canadian people must be trained in a sea-conscious spirit.

"HEALTH TALKS"

Being a quotation from "Health Talks", in Montreal daily star, by J. B. Huber, A. M., M.D. on "mental Dyspepsia".

. . . . "These mental pyspeptics often importune surgeons to operate on them, one surgeon being thus importuned to operate for stomach cancer, on examination found no evidence of such a formation, and advised the sufferer to have her eyes examined, this being done and the proper glasses fitted, the vomiting and the other stomach symptoms disappeared. The Eye Strain (which the glasses relieved) had acted reflexly on the digestion. . . .

We frequently have patients come to us to have their eyes tested, who complain of stomach trouble and these are sometimes sent to us by their physician after medicine had failed to give the desired relief, and it is frequently the case after such patients have had the eye strain relieved by the proper glasses, that the stomach trouble disappears, just as stated above. We specialize on obscure forms of Eye Strain and the consequent reflex effects.

NEW ONTARIO BANDITS SENT TO PENITENTIARY

Sudbury, Ont., Oct. 23.—Leonard A. Clark, Thomas Logan, Leonard Lloyd and Gordon Golroy, four bandits who have been terrorizing settlers in the outlying parts of this district for the past month, were sentenced to three years each in Kingston Penitentiary by Magistrate Brodie, on three separate charges of robbery with violence. The sentences will run concurrently. The four men were armed and held up a number of settlers, on one occasion forcing an autoist to leave his car and making a getaway in it. They were captured by Provincial Constable Grassick at Thor Lake, some fifty miles back in the bush.

Drawing On Your Reserve Strength

This is What Thousands of People Throughout the Country Are Doing

Thousands of Canadian housewives are working from day to day on their nerve. They are daily drawing more and more on their reserve strength, knowing full well that they are using up that vital force which often means life or death in the crisis of disease. They are the victims of a feeling of hopeless exhaustion after the performance of even the small tasks which were once the simplest and easiest parts of the day's work. They find the appetite failing, sleep is disturbed and unrefreshing; they lose weight and always feel tired and depressed. In this condition a blood-building tonic is needed to restore health and activity, and for this purpose Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are unsurpassed. Often the trouble will have progressed to a point which makes full recovery slow but the treatment should be persisted in and renewed health and activity will be the result.

The case of Mrs. W. Schooley, R. R. No. 2, Tilsonburg, Ont., well illustrates the value of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills in cases of health breakdown, through weak, watery blood. Mrs Schooley says: "For upwards of five years I felt my strength declining until at last I could not do light chores around the place. Then a doctor was called in, and after doctoring about a month he said that only an operation would help me. I did not feel like going through this, and decided that in any event I would wait a while. I had no appetite, often had headaches accompanied by dizzy spells; several times I had fainting spells and my legs would swell and I could not even sweep a floor without resting several times. Again a doctor was called in and he said the trouble was general debility and nervous breakdown. The treatment, however, did not help me and then one evening as my husband was reading the paper, he came across a case in many respects similar to mine, cured through the use of Dr Williams' Pink Pills. The next day he got me a supply of the Pills and to their continued faithful use for several months, I owe my present splendid health. I may say that soon after beginning the use of the pills I felt a gradual improvement in my condition, my appetite improved, I began to feel rested after a night's sleep and I gained in weight. My friends were continually expressing surprise at my improved condition, as it was generally believed I had become a chronic invalid. I always take a delight in telling them that Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are responsible for my present good health, and as they have been a real blessing to me I shall always continue to praise them."

If you are suffering from any condition due to poor, watery blood or weak nerves, begin taking Dr. Williams' Pink Pills now, and note how your strength and health will improve. You can get these pills through any dealer in medicine, or they will be sent by mail, post paid, at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 by The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

SAYS SUICIDES INVARIABLY HAVE DISEASED TONSILS

London, Oon., Oct., 22.—The Western Ontario Academy of Medicine was today addressed by Dr. E. L. McConte, chief of the post mortem examination department of Cook county hospital, Chicago. The doctor told his hearers that his experience taught him that persons who committed suicide invariably suffered from diseased tonsils, and particularly from over developed lymphatic tissues. Especially was this true of persons who used revolvers, etc., to end their lives. And it applied with increased truth to those who shot themselves in the right temple.

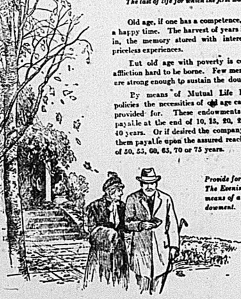
The "Evening of Life"



IT should be the best part of the day:

"Grow old along with me,
The best is yet to be—
The last of life for which the first was made."

Old age, if one has a competence, should be a happy time. The harvest of years is gathered in, the memory stored with interesting and priceless experiences.

But old age with poverty is certainly an affliction hard to be borne. Few men or women are strong enough to sustain the double burden.

By means of Mutual Life Endowment policies the necessities of old age can be amply provided for. These endowments are made payable at the end of 10, 15, 20, 25, 30, 35 or 40 years. Or if desired the company will make them payable upon the assured reaching the age of 50, 55, 60, 65, 70 or 75 years.

Provide for the needs of The Evening of Life by means of a Mutual Endowment.

Growing Old Together

THIS aged couple, mellowed by time and the experiences of life, are happily growing old together.

They are happy because they are healthy. Life is still full of interest to them, and they are wide awake to new ideas.

These are the kind of old people that everybody likes. For, in spite of the years, they are cheerful and optimistic.

It is only natural that the blood should get thin and vitality wane as age advances, but there are ways of keeping up the quality of the blood and maintaining health and vigor.

Very many men and women have found in Dr. Chase's Nerve Food exactly what they need to restore energy and strength and keep them healthy and happy.

As an example Mr. Stephen J. Leard, North Tryon, P.E.I., writes: "At seventy-five years of age my heart gave out and became very irregular and weak in action and would palpitate. My nerves also became weak, and I could do nothing but lie in bed in a languishing condition, losing strength and weight. In that condition I began using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and am cured. Had I not obtained this treatment I would now be in the box with the roof over my nose. At eighty-one I have an energy which means go, and I am writing this letter so that old people like myself may prolong their health and strength by using this great medicine."

There can be no doubt that this treatment contained exactly what was required to build up Mr. Leard's system.

We are constantly receiving so many letters of this kind that we can, with the greatest confidence, recommend people of advanced years to put Dr. Chase's Nerve Food on trial, as a means of restoring and maintaining health and vigor.

Here is another interesting letter. This time from a lady:

Mrs. Joseph Lalonde, Hydro Glen, Ont., writes: "I have to thank you very much for what your medicines have done for me, especially the Nerve Food and Kidney-Liver Pills. I was so run down and nervous last summer that I was in bed most of the time, unable to do any work. I have also been troubled with my kidneys for over twenty years, and tried every doctor I knew of without any permanent results, but I can say that Dr. Chase's Nerve Food and Kidney-Liver Pills have made me feel quite different. Since taking this combined treatment I have been able to do my housework, and although I am now 76 years old, I feel better than I have for years."

("I know Mrs. Joseph Lalonde, and believe her statement regarding Dr. Chase's medicines to be true."—W. P. Flannery, Postmaster.)

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, 50 cents a box, 6 for $2.75, all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Ltd., Toronto. Only the genuine bears the portrait and signature of A. W. Chase, M.D., the famous Receipt Book author, on every box.

PROSPECTING FOR OIL

Oil, oil everywhere, but not a drop in the price of gasoline, yet; however, if hopes are realized in Tyendinaga, gasoline like flivvers may quit climbing in price. Since the publication of reports of oil indications in Tyendinaga township there has been considerable excitement all over Hastings county and many farmers are prospecting their property for signs of oil finding it, too, if all reports are true. Mr. John Elliott, of the Standard Bank, through whose efforts the Tyendinaga prospects were [illegible] has been besieged with offers of options on other property accompanied by rosy stories of oil indications in the back townships. On account of previous failure to find oil in quantity in this district many are skeptical of any measure of success this time.

LARGE MARKET

There was a large attendance upon the market today, the interior of the market building being well-filled up with sellers whilst upon the market square there were many gardeners and others selling their products. Fresh dairy butter was a rather scarce article and sold as high as 75c per pound. A few lots were sold at a slightly lower figure. Fresh eggs sold at 68c and 70c per dozen. Dressed chickens, whilst very plentiful commanded a good price, namely from $2 to $3.50 a pair, according to size and quality. A few pairs of ducks brought $3 a pair. Garden products were readily disposed of. The ruling price for potatoes was $1.50 per bag whilst in a few [illegible] was asked. Apples were plentiful, retailing at 25c and 60c a peck. A few tomatoes sold at [illegible]

From the evidence it was ascertained that the accused was only recently married, and on Wednesday evening last he and his wife had an argument which resulted in Downer securing a razor and threatening to cut his throat. The wife, in her evidence, stated that her husband threatened to harm her if she said anything. In the cross-examination it came out that Mrs. Downer had been the cause of the trouble. As a result of the investigation the charge was dismissed. Mr. Carnew for Crown, Mr. E. D. O'Flynn for the accused.

Don't Use Drugs for Constipation

Bathe Internally—the One Natural Way

Did you ever know of any person who was permanently cured of constipation by taking drugs of any kind? Drugs simply force Nature, and larger doses are required from time to time until the trouble becomes chronic.

Internal Bathing with the J. B. L. Cascade is the only permanent relief from Constipation. It keeps the Colon or large lower intestine, free from all accumulation. Soon the system performs its regular functions and there is no further trouble.

Mr. F. Babin, Proprietor Alexandria Hotel, Ottawa, writes: "The J. B. L. Cascade has made a new man of me. I would not sell it for all the money in this world if I could not get another. Through my recommendation I know of a number of my friends who have been using it with the same satisfaction. For people troubled with Constipation, I say it is a godsend and can heartily recommend it."

The J. B. L. Cascade is the only perfect appliance for Internal Bathing ever devised. It is endorsed by over half a million enthusiastic users. Ask to have it explained to you at J. S. McKeown, Druggist, Belleville, Ont., or write for booklet to Tyrrell's Hygenic Institute, 163 College St., Toronto.

Two Arrests In Bank Robberies

Aftermath of Sensational Robberies At Ottawa

Ottawa, Oct. 23.—Napoleon Franche and Joseph St. Louis, two well-known young Ottawa men now in the hands of the police on charges of having entered and robbed the Rideau street branch of the Bank of Nova Scotia and the branch of the Bank Nationale at Bourget, Quebec. Franche has already given sufficient information to the police to assure them that they have the guilty men. At the Bank of Nova Scotia, they secured $1,050 and in the Banque Nationale, two months later, got away with more than $9,000. None of the money has so far been recovered, although from stories told by the men the police believe they can locate it.

The crimes for which the men are now in the hands of the police were two of the most daring ever chronicled in this region. In broad daylight Franche and St. Louis entered the Bank of Nova Scotia, held up the cashier, W. C. Scott and his ledger-keeper C. S. Fleming and disappeared with the money. They then ran around the corner, where they jumped in a rig and drove away.

Daring Robbery

The robbery of the bank at Bourget was equally daring. Two bandits entered the second storey window of the bank building with the aid of a ladder, gagged Mrs. Napoleon Longtin, wife of the bank manager, and forced Miss Clementine Longtin, assistant to, and daughter of the bank manager, to get out of her bed and lead the way to the bank vault. By jabbing revolvers in her face she was forced to open the vault, and within a few minutes the masked men were letting themselves out of the building by the front door carrying a kit bag containing $9,000 in currency. Mrs. and Miss Longtin are now on their way to Ottawa to indentify the prisoners.

Bandit Killed In Sensational Bank Hold-Up

Bank Clerk and Two Burglars Seriously Wounded—200 Shots Exchanged

Cleveland, Oct. 23.—George "Jiggs" Losteiner, said to be under indictment in many states on charges of murder and robbery, is under arrest at a local hospital, shot through the neck, as the result of a street battle at Bedford, ten miles from here late yesterday, which resulted in the death of one bandit, the serious wounding and capture of two others and the probable fatal shooting of a bank clerk.

More than 200 shots were fired.

The battle was the culmination of one of the most spectacular bank robberies ever staged in this state, during which eight bandits held up the Bedford branch of the Cleveland Trust Comapany.

The dead man was identified by Bertilon experts as Albert Joyce, alias Johnson. William Petrie, a bank clerk, was the victim of a shotgun in the hands of a citizen, who had answered the burglar alarm and mistook him for one of the bandits as he emerged from the bank. Physicians say he is dying.

The robbery occurred just as the bank was closing. Six of the gang entered with drawn revolvers and commanded the five employees and three customers to the rear of the building. The employees were forced to lie on their faces and the customers were placed under guard in a room.

Seized $50,000

Seizing all the money in sight, said to amount to $50,000, the bandits rushed into the street. Almost simultaneously George C. Flickinger, manager of the branch, touched the burglar alarm, which sounded in every downtown business house of Bedford.

E. W. Porter, a tyre dealer, one of those attracted, fatally shot Joyce, who was at the wheel of the waiting automobile.

Unable to start the engine, the other bandits fled, leaving the money intact in the machine. During the ensuing battle Losteiner, Harry Stone and an unidentified man were wounded. R. Western, proprietor of a grocery [illegible] bringing down two of them.

Posses last night were searching for the other members of the gang. The men appeared to be armed with more than one revolver each, as when they emptied one, during the fight, they quickly produced another and returned the fire.

Why we sell Society Brand Clothes

Because you should buy them

When a man puts on Society Brand Clothes he, in a measure of speech, steps entirely out from the crowd of commonplace clothes wearers—he becomes a style leader.

Society Brand Clothes give distinction of appearance through their skill and good judgment in tailoring. It is tailoring without fancy trimming—tailoring without a flaw.

We find that the men who think ahead of the crowd like Society Brand Clothes—for their style value, their wear value and the ease with which they can purchase a correct-fitting suit or overcoat.

David McNeal Acquitted Of Child's Murder

Jury Brings In Verdict of "Not Guilty" After Three Hours

WELLAND, Oct. 23.—After three hours' deliberation the jury acquitted David McNeal of the murder of four-year-old Margaret Boucock of Thorold on July 13 last.

As the words "not guilty" fell from the lips of Foreman Neff, McNeal was embraced by his wife and her mother, Mrs. Honeywell, who came from Los Angeles to comfort her daughter through the trial.

A demonstration of approval was started, which brought from Justice Kelly a stern rebuke. Then the nerve which the accused displayed all through the trial and his ordeal in August at Thorold, when he was almost lynched by a mob, disappeared. He sank into his chair in the prisoners' box and wept.

HAD CLOSE CALL

Justice Kelly informed McNeal, whose correct name is Walls, that he had a close call and that another jury might have convicted him on the same evidence.

As McNeal walked from the box he was taken in charge by Inspector Reynolds of the Dominion Immigration Department, and will be held for deportation, which is expected to fit in with the plans of the United States Federal authorities, as he is wanted in Philadelphia for robbery and other charges.

Mr. Hart was rushed to Ridean Street Hospital and up to a late hour to-night had not regained consciousness. He has serious injuries on his head and face.

Risks His Life To Save Horses

Dramatic Scenes When Barns, Crops And Stock Burn

THORNHILL, Oct. 23.—In an attempt to save his horses from being burned to death, Mr. John Moriarity very nearly perished himself when his barns and season's crops were destroyed by fire. He was saved by his brother William, who came to his assistance when he had been overcome by smoke, and who dragged him through a curtain of the fire to the open air.

John Moriarity was badly burned about the head, hands and face. He was rushed to Dr. Charles Johns' office in Thorhill, where his burns were treated. It was stated to-night that he would recover. The horses which he risked his life to save perished in the burning buildings.

MEN BADLY SCORCHED

The fire broke out while thrashing was in progress this mornig. A ball of fire whirled suddenly from the end of the blower and in an instant the mass of loose straw in the mow was in flames. The men had not a chance to fight the fire. It was a case of drop their pitchforks and run for their lives. The men in the straw mow had their eyebrows singed and their faces scorched as they burst through the ring of fire in their flight for safety.

TRIED TO SAVE HORSES

Mr. Moriarity was one of the men in the straw mow. No sooner was he in the open air than he rushed for the horse stable. Before he had loosened the animals the whole building was ablaze. The horses rared and kicked in the smoke-filled stables. Unmindful of his own safety, Mr. Moriarity attempted to bandage the horses' eyes and lead them out. Before he could do it he was himself overcome by the smoke.

BROTHER RESCUES BROTHER

The fire was eating its way downwards. Hay in the mangers was blazing. Flames were crackling around the wooden partitions of the stalls and licking their way toward the body of the unconscious man when William Moriarity came to his brother's rescue. He hoisted the body across his shoulders and worked toward the door. An instant after he reached the open the thrashing floor gave way and blazing beams and cinders fell to the floor below.

All the live stock in the building, horses, pigs and chickens, perished. Not a thing was saved. The thrashing machine, the property of John Brummwell, was destroyed with the rest of the implements.

Mothers Allowance Act For Dependent Children

BELLEVILLE BOARD ORGANIZED TO ADMINISTER PROVISIONS OF ACT—NOT A CHARITY, PROVINCE REIMBURSES MOTHER FOR CARE OF CHILDREN—BRITISH SUBJECTS ONLY PROVIDED FOR, WITH TWO YEARS' RESIDENCE IN CANADA AN ESSENTIAL.

Great interest is being taken in the operation of the Mothers' Allowances Act, which went into force October 1. The provisions of the Act will be administered in Belleville by the following Board: Mayor Riggs (President), Mr. J. A. Higgs (Vice-President, Mrs. W. C. Mikel (Secretary), Miss Mary Yeomans, and Mr. J. F. Wills.

The following memorandum has been prepared by the Mothers' Allowances Commission for the guidance of applicants and beneficiaries under the Act:

The Mothers' Allowances Act, under certain conditions, provides for the payment of a monthly allowance toward the support of dependent children in the care of their mothers.

APPLICATIONS.

1. Applications are considered only when the mother of the children is a widow or the wife of an inmate of a hospital for the insane in Ontario, or of a man who is permanently disabled and incapable of contributing to the support of his family.

2. The mother must have been resident in Canada at the time of the death or total disability of the father of the children on whose behalf the allowance is to be made, and for a period of three years immediately prior to the application for an allowance.

3. The mother must be resident in Ontario at the time of the application for an allowance and must have been living in Ontario for the two years immediately prior to this date.

4. The mother must continue to live in Ontario with her dependent children so long as they are receiving an allowance. Any change of residence must be reported at once.

5. The mother must be a British subject by birth or naturalization or the wife or widow of a British subject.

6. The mother must be a fit and proper person to have the care and custody of her children.

7. The mother must have two or more of her own children under fourteen years of age living with her, and must show that she cannot care properly for them without the assistance of an allowance under the Act. Where a mother has two or more children, even if they are now being cared for in institutional homes, it is quite legitimate for her to make application for an allowance in order that she may make a home for them.

ADMINISTRATION.

The Mothers' Allowances Act is administered for the Province by a Commission with offices located at 604 Jarvis Street, Toronto. Every city, separated town and county, however, will have a local board, and application for an allowance should be made in the first instance to this board. Where there is no local board in the district, applications may be sent directly to the Provincial Commission, Toronto.

INVESTIGATIONS.

The members of the Commission do not wish applicants to be considered as applying for charity; rather, the mother, when in receipt of an allowance, is to be regarded as an employee of the Ontario Government receiving remuneration for services rendered in the proper care of her children.

It is the duty, therefore, of the Commission and of the local boards to investigate carefully the fitness of the applicant for her position.

Certificates of marriage and the birth certificates of the children may be required for examination, and where the mother is a widow, the death certificate of her husband.

SUPERVISION OF BENEFICIARIES.

The mother, as an employee of the Government, must not only satisfy the Commission of her fitness to receive an allowance at the time of her application, but she must satisfy them that she is fulfilling the trust which is being placed in her, and co-operation with the official visitors of the Commission and local boards is necessary toward this end. Satisfactory reports of the health and general welfare of the children must be received if the allowance is to be continued.

AMOUNT OF ALLOWANCE.

The Act does not state any fixed sum or schedule according to which the payment of allowances will be made. The Commission, however, will fix the maximum and minimum allowances which will be granted, and each family will receive individual consideration within these limits. Allowances will be granted in accordance with a cost-of-living budget prepared after due study of the present assets and resources of the family and its needs. No allowances will be paid before October 1st, 1920, and time will be required for the investigation of each particular case before payment can be expected. As far as possible, applications are considered in the order in which they are received.

MOTHERS' ALLOWANCES COMMISSION,
Rev. Peter Bryce, Chairman.
Mrs. Adam Shortt, Vice-Chairman.
Mrs. Wm. F. Singer.
Major T. J. Murphy.

MEIGHEN GOES WEST FOR SPEAKING TOUR

Ottawa, Oct. 23.—Premier Meighen started last night for his Western speaking tour, and opens his meetings at Winnipeg on Monday night. Thereafter he will touch at almost every important point in the West, proceeding by the south route to British Columbia and returning by the north.

It is the intention of the Premier that practically every constituencey in which there are voters, shall have an opportunity of hearing him. He will be joined by Dr. R. J. Manion, M.P., at Fort William and waiting for him at Winnipeg he will find Hon. J. A. Calder, President of the Privy Council. Along the way he will be joined by local members.

The last date announced is November 18th, so that the tour will occupy at least a month.

Premier Meighen goes forth to fight on enemy ground. He has hopes of support in Manitoba and British Columbia, but Alberta and Saskatchewan are supposed to be the exclusive stamping ground of the new Progressives. Nevertheless, it is fully anticipated that the Premier will carry the war into the enemies' camp.

Canadian Mills Ignore German Paper "Invasion"

Not Enough Available to Affect Contract Prices.

Somewhat of a scare—a German scare—was thrown into the pulp and paper security market on Wednesday by a series of reports from New York chiefly that large quantities of German newsprint were coming on the American market and being offered at 6 cents, or $1.20 a ton, and would result soon in a weakening of the price of $130 now enjoyed by most of the Canadian mills on long-term contracts.

Canadian newsprint circles, when consulted by The Financial Post, refused to take the threat seriously. Indeed there was a disposition to accept the stories as part of a propaganda set in motion by a group of newspaper proprietors meeting in Chicago and backed up by a bear raid on International Paper and Union Bag. The local market, however, declined in sympathy a couple of points or so.

In support of the contention that German paper—and Scandinavian for that matter—are negligible quantities it is pointed out, even taking the stories at their face value of 3,000 tons a month available, this would be only 35,000 tons a year, or not 2 per cent. of the total of 1,900,000 tons consumed in the United States during the past year. For the matter of that the International Paper Company, by closing its newsprint mill at Niagara Falls, is cutting down its output by almost double the 35,000 tons for next year, and demands on Canadian mills for 1921, over and above what they feel they can guarantee, are also double the 350,000 ton total. Hence, with no increase in demand for 1921 over 1919—and with considerable decrease compared with 1920—the German-Scandinavian export would not begin to fill the deficit.

Even the ability of Germany to supply a surplus of anything like 3,000 tons a month is questioned, as its total production is barely more than one-half what it was before the war, as a large portion of its pulpwood supply was cut off when part of Bohemia was withdrawn.

Up to the end of August only about 11,000 tons of Scandinavian paper had been exported to the United States or a rate of less than 20,000 tons for the year. It is quite true that the United States, which exported 110,000 tons last year, is sending out much less this year, but the extra demand will take care of the balance readily.

Paper mills point out that the time is approaching—December 1—when prices for the first three or six months of 1921 are likely to be fixed, so that propaganda may be looked for along similar lines of bearing the price until definite contracts are signed. "Spot" prices, of course, naturally have responded by a decline, but not contract.

Death Followed Long Hunger Strike

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer Canadian Press, Limited

London, Oct. 25.—MacSwenay, Lord Mayor of Cork, died at Brixton Prison in this city at 5-40 this morning. His death followed a hunger strike of more than 73 days, eclipsing any in annals of the medical world. MacSweney, who had been unconscious for several days, did not recover his faculties before he died. Father Dominic, his private chaplain, and his brother, John MacSweney, were with him when he died. Father Dominic was at the prison all night, and did not leave until several hours after MacSweney breathed his last. John MacSweney and the chaplain who had been waiting down stairs in the prison were told by prison officials at 3-45 o'clock that they should go to the mayor's bedside as they thought death was approaching. The brother asked for the privilege of communicating with other relatives who were not present but the officials, he alleges, refused him the use of the telephone.

MINERS' STRIKE

London, Oct. 25.—Premier Lloyd George and members of the Government this morning conferred with Government experts concerning a new set of figures for wages of coal miners and production of coal industries.

Later Government leaders and representatives of the miners met and continued negotiations begun Sunday, for settlement of the miners strike.

From Trafalgar To Jutland Lord Nelson To Lord Jellico

BRITAIN'S SEA POWER HAS REIGNED SUPREME—ELOQUENT AND INTERESTING ADDRESS BY CHAPLAIN REV. S. BOAL, OF THE NAVY LEAGUE, OF CANADA, OPENS SAILORS' WEEK IN BELLEVILLE.

The reasons why Belleville citizens should heartily support the campaign of the Navy League of Canada being conducted in this city this week were clearly and ably set forth Sunday evening in Griffin's Theatre by Capt. Rev. S. Boal for the Navy League and Mr. John Elliott for the local committee. The theatre was packed to the doors showing the great interest taken in the work of the league and the desire to become acquainted with its aims and objects. The effect of the strong appeal made by Capt. Boal was evidenced by the hearty response made on the collection plates in cash and pledge cards. The collection was taken up by members of the G.W.V.A. Rotary and Lions Clubs who are taking a deep and active interest in the campaign.

Mr. John Elliott acted as chairman sire to become acquainted with its manner and briefly but pointedly explained the aims and objects of the meeting and the great usefulness of the Navy League of Canada. Rev. Mr. Brown of the Bridge Street Methodist Church opened the meeting with prayer, appropriate and pleasing songs were rendered by Mr. Harold Barrett, and patriotic poems were recited by Mrs. Powell of Napanee, in a manner which captivated the large audience present. Mr. Robert Gorman, President of the Lions Club, occupied a seat on the platform, and at the conclusion of the speaking moved a vote of thanks in kindly terms to Rev. Mr. Boal and Mrs. Powell which was heartily endorsed by the audience.

A number of excellent pictures showing Britain's naval power and glory were thrown on the screen as well as moving pictures of the navy and merchant marine.

FROM TRAFALGAR TO JUTLAND

Capt. Boal's address was a masterpiece of eloquence and information, sketching the rise of Britain's sea power from the time of Nelson's great victory at Trafalgar which he sealed with his life's blood, to the battle of Jutland when the German challenge was effectively met and destroyed and the remnants of the German fleet chased back to the Kiel Canal never to emerge again until that historic day when the remaining warships upon which such proud German hopes had been placed came slinking forth to abjectly surrender at Scapa Flow showing itself to be the only navy in the world with a yellow streak.

DANCING WARHORSES

Capt. Boal sketched the preparation of Germany for world conquest and how the growth of their navy had been closely watched by the Navy League of England and precautions taken to meet the challenge when it came despite the sneers of pacifists who denounced the navy leaguers as "dancing warhorses." The early days of the war when Britain's "contemptible little army" as the German war lords termed it halted the tide of invasion and gave their lives that the empire might be free, were graphically sketched by the speaker, who said that God was the Commander of that army and the King the General, so that victory was won by right not by might. A high tribute to the valor and effectiveness of the Canadians was paid by Capt. Boal, also to the work of the Canadian women, and when he voiced the belief that David Lloyd George was a man raised up by God as the man of the hour for the tremendous task of prevehting the Empire from being shattered the long and loud applause of the audience shewed that the sentiment had struck a responsive chord.

SAILOR HEROES

The sacrifice of the men of the merchant marine during the great war in staying at their posts despite the submarine menace and keeping the armies supplied with reinforcements, munitions, food and supplies was told by Capt. Boal with the 17,000 who gave their lives and the 33,000 disabled, concluding with a strong appeal to stand by the widows and orphans of the sailor heroes who were under the protection of the Navy League of Canada, which has also undertaken to endow or maintain every sailors home, institute and welfare society in Canada, as well as train two thousand boys for the sea, and the magnitude of this task can be appreciated when it is known that it takes six times as long to train a seaman as it does to build a ship.

It is just such meetings as that Sunday evening which will fully reveal to Canadians the importance to this nation of a strong merchant marine manned by Canadians to carry Canadian goods to every part of the world and worthy support of the navy of the Empire which guards the sea routes of commerce and ensures peace and prosperity for all the world. Canada is growing rapidly and her surplus products of farm and factory must find the best markets and the best way to do this is to have Canadian ships officered and manned by Canadians.

Strong committees have been formed for Sailors Week in Belleville and a thorough canvass for funds will be made by members of the G.W.V.A. Rotary and Lions Clubs, while various women's organizations will take an active part.

New York Irishmen On Macsweney Death

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer Canadian Press Limited

NEW YORK, Oct. 25.—A mass meeting of citizens to denounce British treatment of MacSwiney Lord Mayor of Cork, who died today in London, called for next Sunday afternoon at the polo grounds was announced today by a committee on Irish independence. Protests against the attacking of towns by British police and treatment of other hunger-strikers are to be made in speeches by DeValera, president of Irish Republic and Frank P. Walsh, of committee on Irish independence.

Winding Up Board Of Commerce

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer, Canadian Press, Limited.

OTTAWA, Oct. 25.—The staff of the Board of Commerce, it is understood, is being placed at the disposal of the civil service commission for transfer to other duties as needed, and clearing up of the work on hand will be proceeded with by a small staff under the direction of Capt. W. White, who, previous to his appointment as chief commissioner of the Board was secretary of the Board.

Capt. White now resumes the work of secretary, which he has carried on while also occupying the post of chief commissioner, which appointment, it is stated, carried with it no salary increase or additional salary.

Four Provinces Vote On Importation

Toronto, Oct. 25.—Four Canadian Provinces, Nova Scotia, Manitoba, Alberta and Saskatchewan are today taking a general plebiscite on the question of prohibiting the importation of liquor from other provinces.

At present each of these Provinces is under prohibition so far as the open sale and distribution within itself is concerned, but the Federal law at present does not prohibit importation from wet provinces.

The issue in the referendum in British Columbia last week was different from that in the four Provinces polling today. In British Columbia it was a straight vote between prohibition and the open sale of liquors under Government control. The latter was favored by the voters of British Columbia. Early advices from the Provinces polling today indicate that there would be heavy polling on the issue and the women's vote would be a strong factor.

Charge Prison Officials With Drug-Running

Investigation Said to Have Revealed Shocking Violations at Kingston.

OTTAWA, Oct. 22.—The Evening Journal this afternoon publishes the following item regarding affairs at Kingston Penitentiary:

"Following an exhaustive investigation into conditions at the Kingston Penitentiary, the Department of Justice is arranging, according to information coming from a reliable source, to make wholesale changes in the staff of the institution. It is stated that more than 75 per cent. of the guards, some of whom have resided in Kingston for years, will be retired in a short time and their places filled by much younger men—in some instances by men who are expected to be more reliable than certain ones now employed.

Violated Many Rules.

"Investigation has brought out the fact that the rules and regulations of the penitentiary, and even the Penitentiary Act, have been violated by the guards, who have held the confidence of their superiors for years. A number of strong cases have been prepared, it is alleged, and the Kingston Magistrate will be kept busy for many sessions. The charges will range from accepting bribes to trafficking in tobacco and drugs. At least one dozen cases have been completed and the evidence is considered most conclusive.

Bribery Alleged.

"It is claimed that some guards have received large sums of money for "assisting" convicts in their desire to secure contrabands of divers kinds. On two occasions relatives of convicts who were sent from this district have been successful in having placed in the hands of prisoners money, tobacco, matches, etc. For this kind of service a guard's bank account was increased $30 weekly.

"These are cases taken at random, but are by no means the most serious."

War Cut Down Papal Income

Pontiff Obliged to Appeal to Spain, Latin America and U.S. For Funds

ROME, Oct. 23.—As a result of the war the chief sources of the Vatican's income, represented by Bavaria, Austria, Belgium and France, became so impoverished that Pope Benedict was obliged to appeal to Spain, Latin America and the United States, declares The Giornale d'Italia in an article under the caption of "America the Pope's Hope." The newspaper adds that when Monsignor Bonaventure Cerretti, Under-Secretary of State at the Vatican went to the United States to attend the golden jubilee of Cardinal Gibbons, a report was circulated that he had gone with the object of negotiating a loan of $1,000,000 for the Holy See. In reality, however, his object was to collect $1,000,000 from the United States Catholics.

OFFER OF $1,000,000

Monsignor Cerretti, the newspaper declares, appealed to the Knights of Columbus, an organization having nearly 1,000,000 members, and which could easily raise the fund required. The delegation of Knights which recently came to Rome is said to have offered Pope Benedict $250,000, promising the remainder, which, perhaps, might even exceed $1,000,000.

HOSPITALITY IN U. S.

"Besides," says the journal, "the Knights gave the Pope to understand that if grave troubles should arise in Italy he could find protection and hospitality in the United States. After Rome was occupied by Italian troops in 1870 a French vessel awaited the orders of Pope Pius for a year at Civita Vecchia, and the Knights said that in the event of a new crisis a United States ship would take a similar position."

A Witness Testifies
SHE WAS WEAK AND NERVOUS

Brampton, Ont.:—"About five years ago I began suffering with woman's trouble. I became all run-down weak and nervous. I was so completely down and out that I could not do anything, could scarcely dress myself. I had the doctor and took other medicine but without getting better until I began taking Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and his Golden Medical Discovery. It was only necessary for me to take about three bottles when I was completely restored to health and strength and I have been in better health than I ever was before. I have had no use for medicine since, but should I need it I would take these same remedies, knowing them to be excellent."—MRS. HARRY KNIGHT, Jessie St.

OWES HER LIFE

Ft. Saskatchewan, Alta.:—"It is with great pleasure that I write the following and I hope it will help the many sufferers who do not know the good Dr. Pierce's medicines would do them if they would try them.

"In regard to my condition, I will say that I suffered from childhood from a very weak back; I had the misfortune of having spinal meningitis when I was one year old and until I was 13 I did not see a well day, but a very kind lady told my mother about Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and she got a bottle to try it. It did me so much good that mother got me 6 bottles. Recently I happened with a car accident and hurt my back badly. My doctor gave me up and said I would not live, but I still stick to Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and to my surprise in three weeks I was out of bed and better. I owe my life to it and nothing else, and shall never be without it.

"If any sufferer wishes to write I will answer with pleasure."—MRS. NOEL BARTHOLOMEW.

DISASTROUS FIRE

A disastrous fire occurred on the farm of Mr. Frank Anderson, Bunker Hill, near Port Hope, Friday afternoon. Mr. Anderson was picking apples in his orchard when he noticed a fire in the stack. He hurried to the scene and endeavored to extinguish it, but it spread with great rapidity and soon the large barn was all in flames. The barn, implement sheds, and all the outbuilding were completely destroyed together with the entire season's crop from a two hundred acre field. Several calves were also burned but all the other live stock was saved. The loss is a very heavy one, and unfortunately Mr. Anderson has only a small insurance. The cause of the fire is not known.

TO RE-ESTABLISH STRENGTH AFTER SICKNESS

How Many People in This City Have Done So

There is one great drawback to recovery for a person who has been sick, and that is poor devitalized blood and consequent weakness, nervousness and depleted strength. If people in this city who have been ill and are still in a weakened condition could only realize the value of Vinol to enrich the blood, create a hearty appetite and restore strength, druggists would not be able to supply the demand.

For all run-down, nervous, anaemic conditions, and for delicate children and feeble old people, there is no other remedy like Vinol.

Messrs. A. C. McFee and W. J. Cook of the Inland Revenue Department of this city, in company with Sergt. Naphin of the local police force at an early hour this morning visited the home of John Johnson, Benjamin street, city, and seized what is alleged to be a still for the manufacture of liquor. Johnson was apprehended, taken to the police station and locked up. This morning the accused was brought up before Magistrate Masson when the following charge was preferred against him:

"With having, in the city of Belleville, on October 25th, 1920, unlawfully in his dwelling on Benjamin street a still and mash tub for the manufacture of spirits without having obtained the permission required by the Inland Revenue Act, thereby acting contrary to said Act."

Magistrate Masson stated that the Crown was not ready to proceed in the case and enlarged same until Thursday of this week.

Johnson, who is a colored man, has lived in the city for some time and is employed as a store house keeper for a business firm on Front street.

A small barrel, a copper receptacle which at the bottom has a tap and also a drainage pipe attached was seized with a quantity of molasses and two bottles partially filled with liquid which, it is alleged is of a spirituous nature.

Premier Oliver Appeals To People

British Columbia Legislation Was Dissolved on Saturday Last

VICTORIA, B.C., Oct. 24.—The British Columbia Legislature was dissolved shortly after 2 p.m. Saturday. Nomination day has been set as Wednesday, November 10, with the elections on Wednesday, December 1.

The present House has until September 21, 1921 to run, but it is seldom that any House runs for its full time. As constituted today, the House consists of 31 Liberals, 9 Conservatives 4 Soldiers, 1 Socialist and Mrs. Ralph Smith, the only woman member who is an independent. There is one vacancy in the House, the seat for Atlin.

Premier Oliver stated that he would issue a manifesto early next week outlining the appeal of the Government to the people.

Government control of the sale of liquor is such a wide question that the Government, it is stated, has decided to submit a set of general principles for the proposed new Act and secure the benefit of public opinion at the hustings before final drafting of the measure.

The chief principles of the measure remains undisclosed, but it is freely predicted in official circles that among them will be the principle of a revokable permit to purchasers, administration by an independent commission and a refusal to allow sale by any private parties.

Liberal and Conservative forces are preparing for an energetic campaign.

He Waves Good-Bye Going To His Death

Suicide at Niargar Falls Has Jest Just Before He Waded In.

Niagara Falls, N.Y., Oct. 24.—Before the eyes of a score of sightseers at Prospect Point late this afternoon a man climbed over the railing waded out into the river and was carried over the American Falls. Too astounded to act, the spectators stood by while the man drifted to the brink waving his hand and shouting: "Here's where I leave you; good-bye."

In a black derby found near the place where the man climbed the railing was found a piece of paper on which was written:

"This hat belongs to Carl A. Ellis of Hamburg, N.Y." The description of the suicide corresponds to that of Ellis, who could not be located in Hamburg.

The owner of a souvenir stand near the falls told the police that the man approached him and laughingly said: "Well, I can't vote for Harding, so I may as well go over the falls." The souvenir seller thought the man was joking and paid no attention to the incident until a short time later when he saw the fatal leap.

MUSIC AND DRAMA

(What the Press Agents Say)

'THE MAID OF THE MOUNTAINS'

Nothing has ever been attempted on such a gigantic scale to supply the wants of a theatre-going public than was the importation to Canada of the entire London cast and chorus of 'The Maid of the Mountains,' which comes to Griffin's this Thursday night, October 28th, for one night only.

To secure this world's greatest musical attraction for a tour of America immediately following its five years record breaking run at Daly's Theatre in London, reflects great credit upon Mr. George Driscoll, who arranged the tour with representatives of the estate of George Edwardes, in London and amply evidences the fact that the Trans-Canada Theatres Limited are ready and willing to supply Canada with the biggest and best theatrical attractions on the world market.

Nearly everyone in Canada is familiar with the story and the music of "The Maid of the Mountains," the returned men by seeing it while over there, their friends by hearing them rave about it, and the balance of the populace by hearing the music played by bands and orchestras, and finally by hearing both words and music of the songs via "His Master's Voice." Of all the twenty song numbers "Love Will Find a Way" is probably the most popular here. The seat sale opens at Griffin's to-morrow morning at 10 a.m.

"THE WANDERER"

One of the greatest parables of the greatest of all teachers, the Prodigal Son, which has formed the basis of many books and plays will be told anew on the stage of Griffin's Opera House next Monday night, November 1st, for one night only. "The Wanderer," the colossal biblical spectacle produced by Messrs. Comstock and Gest, and which ran for nearly two years at the Manhattan Opera House, New York. The production will be given with all the splendor that characterized the Metropolitan offering.

David Belasco is credited with having staged "The Wanderer." This accounts for its bewildering pageantry artistic coloring and splendid acting. The scenic and costuming investiture is said to be of a magnitude and opulence which will amaze all playgoers. The incidental dances were arranged by Alexis Kosloff, the music by Anselm Goetzl, and the scene painting and costuming are by Stern of Paris.

Certainly seldom, if ever before, has a cast of such undoubted excellence been brought to this city. Chief among the original interpreters of the leading roles will be found Frederick Lewis, Mabel Griffith, Dwight Dana, Fred Mosley, Charles Cline, Margaret Bryn John Dougherty and a hundred others.

Charlotte Wynters is the premiere danseuse. Many sheep, goats and dogs are shown in the first act. There is only one company of "The Wanderer" on tour.

MARY PICKFORD

When Eleanor H. Porter wrote "Pollyanna," thus strumming the heartstrings of the people with the magic of her genius, she little realized that she was creating an ideal vehicle for the world's greatest motion picture actress.

Yet that is exactly what this appealing novel has proved to be, and in the film version released by the United Artists Corporation, to be shown at Griffin's to-night to Wednesday, Mary Pickford paints in black and white the most pathetic, adorable, lovable Pollyanna that could possibly be conceived.

There is a depth of feeling in her characterization that reaches out and grips the heart. The humor, the pathos, the genuine humanness that she puts into her work in this picture add the largest and by far the most brilliant jewel to her already sparkling crown of success. Undoubtedly Mary Pickford's Pollyanna will linger long in the memories of those who follow the Flicker Art.

Jack Dempsey in "Daredevil Jack," a 2-reel comedy and an interesting Burton Holmes Travelogue will also be presented on the same program. Usual photoplay prices will prevail.

CHIROPRACTIC PLUS NATURE EQUALS HEALTH

It may not be proper to classify Chiropractic alone, since it is a part of Nature—a Natural process of keeping fit.

There is nothing new or revolutionary to Chiropractic adjustments. They are now as they have been for thousands of years, a part of the natural system which aboriginal peoples use to keep their bodily processes normal.

Chiropractic adjustments remove the cause of disease, which is pressure upon nerves by segments of the spine that have been misaligned from their normal position.

The Chiropractor restores the offending vertebrae to normal position in the spine, relieving the pressure and Nature restores Health and normality to the body.

We will be glad to tell you frankly just what Chiropractic adjustments will or will not do in your case. See us today.

MOTOR CAR NEWS

Automotive Activities Throughout the World.

British Columbia has 26,000 automobiles in use.

Cost of tire mileage is from one-quarter to one-half cent per mile per tire.

The American public is expending $6,000,000,000 a year, or $280 per family, for operating and riding in motor vehicles.

The daily consumption of gasoline for all motor vehicles in the United States is reported between 13,000,000 and 14,000,000 gallons.

During the month of August, 150,573 passenger cars and 18,000 trucks were produced in motor factories in the territory of Detroit, Mich.

Through the experiments of distilling motor spirits from wheat straw, it is stated that a ton of straw will produce forty gallons of gasoline.

Western cities in the United States strongly enforce laws against "jay-walking"—crossing of streets by pedestrians in the middle of the block.

As a result of the difficulties of help in France, motor tanks are becoming a desirable substitute for human labor, which is so costly and hard to obtain.

Army engineers have developed a new type of search light mounted on a rubber-tired trailor that can be pulled great distances by motor truck.

Garage owners in Philadelphia are required under the law to keep a record of the movements of all machines—time of arrival, length of stay and time of leaving.

The queerest "graveyard" in the United States is one in a small town named Vintage, in Pennsylvania. Many useful parts are obtained from the remains of more than 50 different makes of automobiles.

The first tramp tour on record for a motor vehicle is a motor truck now running from Green Bay, Wis., to the Pacific Coast, earning all traveling expenses by picking up a load whenever possible and hauling en route.

As a plan to erect a worthy memorial to General Robert E. Lee, the promotion of a great national highway to extend from New York to New Orleans, and thence to San Francisco, to be known at the Lee Highway, has been inaugerated.

What is believed to be the largest ring of motor thieves since the passage of the Dyer Act was recently arrested in Detroit, Mich. The "trust" operated internationally, most of the automobiles stolen in the United States being sold in foreign countries.

Owing to the inability to obtain satisfactory railroad rates. Mormon Church authorities of Ogden, Utah are discussing the advisability of using hundreds of automobiles to transport members of the church to the general conference in Salt Lake City this month.

Some Miner's Leaders Already Accept Plan

London, Oct. 25.—The nation-wide railway strike, scheduled to start at midnight Sunday as a sympathetic demonstration with the miners' walk-out was proposed.

The calling off of the strike followed a conference of the executive boards of the railway workers and miners, at which the latter asked the postponement on the grounds the threat of a sympathetic strike would prove embarrassing at a new conference with the Government to which they had been invited by the Premier Lloyd George.

Miners' Official Statement

The official statement issued by the miners said that, acting on their advice, the railway workers had suspended their sympathic strike to "give every opportunity for an honorable settlement." The suspension, it was said, would continue during the period of negotiations between the miners and the Government.

The Evening Standard said it understood that the Premier would present a new formula at the conference which already had received the unofficial approval of several leaders of the miners.

The readiness with which the railwaymen acceded to the miners' proposal was accepted as a victory for J. H. Thomas, secretary of the railway union, who had opposed the strike from the start and had formally refused to be a participant. Thomas represented the more conservative element of the union, while the radicals were headed by Charles T. Cramp, the president.

Settlement Believed Near

Predictions were freely made in official circles that, with the action of the miners in seeking postponement of the railway strike indicating a change in their attitude, the renewal of negotiations would bring about a quick settlement and operation of the mines would be resumed shortly on a compromise agreement.

Anglican Clergy Oppose Bone-Dry Law

Winnipeg, Oct. 25.—Anglican clergymen opposed bone-dry prohibition when it was propagated from the platform of the Holy Trinity Church at the meeting of the Manitoba Synod.

Canon Bury was the first to speak in opposition to the motion pledging the support of the Church of England to the referendum to stop inter-Provincial liquor traffic.

'Many people are supporting the referendum because they lack the courage of their conviction," he said. "I supported legislation against liquor so far as it concerned the closing of bars and saloons. But I feel that this proposed legislation, which will shut off all liquor except by prescription, is in advance of the moral development of the community."

Rev. H. G. Dawson, of Saskatchewan, asserted that some members of the responsible professions were breaking the liquor laws daily.

"Nine-tenths of the population will do so if the law is made stricter," he said. "It is absolutely impossible to make the Province bone-dry."

Delegates from the mining and rural communities, however, were firm in their conviction that the inter-Provincial trade was a mixed evil and voted the opposition down. The resolution pledging support of the referendum was carried.

Board Of Commerce Out Of Business

Toronto, Oct. 24.—The Toronto sioners of the Board of Commerce have resigned. Reasons for this step were given in a letter sent to Premier Meighen by the Chairman of the board, Captain William White, and it is understood that he spoke as well for the other two commissioners, Mr. F. A. Acland, Deputy Minister of Labor, and Major Gerald Dillo. This letter was not made public by the Premier when announcing that the members of the board had tendered their resignations, except to say that it was "following the decision of the Government reversing the order of the Board of Commerce with regard to sugar."

Is The Trent Report Correct

According to a statement issued by the Ontario Hydro Electric Power Commission, if they had been getting at the Central Ontario power development the water flow that Mr. Henry Holgate of Montreal, in a special report to the Department of Railways and Canals on storage waters in the Trent River, said they were getting, there would be no power shortage.

Mr. Holgate's report says the flow is about 1,200 cubic feet per second. The Hydro on an automatic gauge figures that the average flow from October 1 to October 13 was never above 1,050 cubic feet per second and was as low as 930. The figures on which Mr. Holgate's report was based, according to the Hydro Electric Power Commission, were taken on two occasions during the day while the Hydro figures are a daily average made by the automatic gauge.

SEVENTEEN DOLLARS OVER THERE TWENTY-FIVE CENTS OVER HERE.

Canada is now the eighth maritime power.

Seventy years ago she was the third.

Her ships were then manned entirely by Canadians.

There are 8,700 ships under the Canadian flag today with a personnel of 45,000.

The value of the merchant fleet of Canada is $250,000,000.

Through lack of interest of Canadians in their maritime affairs these ships are neither officered nor manned by Canadians.

Today the protection of Canadian trade routes is not given by Canada.

The burden of the British Navy is SEVENTEEN DOLLARS per head of the British taxpayer.

The burden of the Canadian Navy is TWENTY-FIVE CENTS per head of the Canadian taxpayer.

This is the reason for the Canadian Navy League.

HEALTHY CHILDREN MAKE BETTER SCHOLARS.

Realizing that education is one of the most vital factors in the making of a nation, Canadians have always tried to keep abreast and even in advance of the times in improving educational facilities in order to equip the rising generation with that knowledge which will fit them for the battle of life, make for better citizenship and a better and higher standard of community and national life.

Canadian educational methods and standards are being constantly improved and our school system is not surpassed by any other nation, while it is far ahead of many.

One of the most practical and efficient aids to education is the medical inspection of scholars in the primary schools. This departure is of comparatively recent origin and like all substantial reforms was received by many with doubtful misgivings and looked upon by some as an unnecessary fad. A feeling frequently found expression that what was good enough for the mothers and fathers in their school days was good enough for the children of today. The fallacy of that argument was amply demonstrated in the examination of recruits when the nation was threatened by a foreign foe. The number of physically unfit among the young men showed conclusively that an education which did not include a health and physical development program was faulty.

Recognizing that healthy children make good scholars the Belleville Board of Education engaged a school nurse, and the result after a year's trial has more than justified the wisdom of the members of the Board.

Teeth, tonsils and general physical condition are closely watched by an expert and the health of the individual child protected as well as the entire school. Care is taken that no child exposed to a contagious disease is permitted to attend school, and in this way dangerous epidemics are prevented. Cleanliness is also insisted upon, for it is well known the disastrous effect one dirty child can have on a whole school.

Out of 1216 pupils ninety-three per cent. were found to have defective teeth, and a dental clinic was established in connection with the schools, which accomplished splendid work, the local dentists co-operating in the true-hearted spirit of community service.

The nutrition clinic has also proved very successful, and pupils below normal in weight are examined and diet instructions given under medical supervision.

ing the past year 649 home visits were made and the health of the child-

The duties of the school nurse do not stop with the school, for durren discussed with the parents, to whom much useful information was imparted, and as a general rule deeply appreciated. The reports are made periodically to the parents and a closer connection established between the school and the home.

Healthy children make better students and the medical attention has materially contributed to better educational results, promising also a higher type of citizenship in the days to come when the school children of today are the men and women of affairs of tomorrow, and this after all, is the great aim of all good citizens, for as a stream cannot rise above its source, neither can a nation rise higher than the mental level of its citizenship.

A BIT PEEVISH IS MACKENZIE KING

The oil in the lamp which Mr. D. D. Mackenzie hung in the window to attract wanderers from the Liberal camp has long since burned out. Under the regime of Mr. Mackenzie King, largely dictated by Mr. Jacques Bureau and Mr. Ernest Lapointe, the sinners may no longer return. Instead of being entreated to come back, the conscriptionist Liberals of 1917 are objects of abuse, subjects to calumnies and insinuations as bitter as they are false. Mr. Rowell, when he was in the Cabinet, was the main object of these attacks, but now that he is gone they have concentrated upon Mr. Ballantyne. Thus Mr. King, who, whatever his other shortcomings, used to maintain the decencies of political debate, has begun indulging in the most unseemly attacks upon the Minister of Naval Affairs. Worse, he has got down to making insinuations deliberately intended to mislead.

It is a poor business, and not likely to prove politically profitable. For Liberals who had enough red blood in them to put country before party in 1917 are not likely to submit tamely to villification of their leaders in 1920.—Ottawa Journal.

CRISP COMMENT

Mackenzie King newspapers, chagrined at Premier Meighen's prompt reversal of the Board of Commerce's sugar order, try to find solace in the sneer that public opinion forced the Premier's hand. Well, let's be thankful that we have a Premier who responds so quickly to public opinion. That is just the kind of a Premier that Canada needs.

NO NEED FOR MONEY

New York Correspondent

A magazine office received a curt note from one of its leading contributors recently reading: "Don't send me any more money until next year. I don't know what to do with it." The writer is away off in the wilds where he has built his own house and is living in primitive fashion. One might imagine when he goes on an orgy of spending when he reaches New York. But primitive habits are hard to break. The last time he was in town he gave a dinner for four at the Waldorf and tipped the waiter a dime.

THE MODERN VIEW

Perth (Australia) News

There may be persons even now who regard a university as a superflous luxury, a sort of social frill, as a source of "unproductive expenditure," and who would like to see the university grant diverted into road and bridge making, railway construction and public works channels. Such short-sighted individuals fail utterly to grasp the most pregnant truth that has been forced upon the intelligence of the whole civilized world in the last half century—namely, that national effectiveness and success are dependent upon education. Furthermore, the higher education is carried, the higher and more powerful becomes the national force and character.

TIRED OF PUBLIC LIFE

Sydney Post

Mr. Mackenzie King, Opposition Leader, has completed his political tour of British Columbia, and is now addressing public meetings in Alberta How he will fare in Alberta remains to be seen. How he fared in British Columbia may be inferred from the fact that there is to be no supporter of his nominated in the Yale-Caribou by-election, shortly to be held. The contest is between a Government supporter, and a Farmer-Labor candidate. Yale-Caribou will be the eight constituency in which the Mackenzie party has failed to name a candidate in a federal by-election this year. Such a record of defaults by a political party is unprecedented. And yet Mr. Mackenzie King continues to affirm that he is desirous of an early general election. The inference must be that he is tired of public life.

POETS' CORNER

OLD FRIENDS

Give me my old coat again
That I have worn through many days of rain,
Whose hue is varied, ripened by the sun
To subtle patterns; give me one
Of my old books to read by firelight half asleep,
Whose effaced memories leave gaps of deep
Conjecture over thoughts that lie in rest
Beneath their placed linen. Let the blest
White hands of silence touch me, and the white
Cool hands of rivers soothing through the night;
Give me my old town again
That I have watched through ghostly scarves of rain,
Through fringes of pale lights, and let me see
Her streets that would into my brain so stealthily
That I hear yet the chant of them that roars
Along their blinded spectral corridors,
Give me my old joy and wonder back again,
The adolescent loveliness of pain;
But let me touch them now; and know and bless
With this new love and dawning tenderness.

MRS. LAURA RARICK, of Peoria, Ill., who says she believes she is the happiest woman on earth since Tanlac so completely restored her health.. Regains 50 pounds which she lost during a period of ill health which lasted eleven long years.

"I believe I am the happiest woman in the world, and it is all because of what Tanlac has done for me," said Mrs. Laura Rarick 403 Meidroth St., Peoria, Ill., a well-known and highly respected resident of that city.

"I never dreamed that I would ever find anything that would do for me what Tanlac has done," she said. "I was in a wretched state of health and was down in bed so long that I lost fifty pounds in weight, but I have gained back every pound I lost and I now feel as well as I ever did in my life. The indigestion and other troubles that has made life a burden for eleven years have entirely disappeared and I am like a new woman.

"My stomach was so disordered that even liquid foods and plain water caused me to have dreadful cramping spells that lasted for hours. My Kidneys were disordered and I had pains across my back almost constantly. I had severe headaches nearly every day and became so dizzy I could hardly stand. I was so nervous it was impossible for me to get a good nights sleep. I tried every conceivable medicine and was treated by specialists, but nothing helped me, and finally I was told I would never be well again.

"But Tanlac has made me a perfectly well woman in every way. I can now eat and sleep like other people and I haven't a pain about me.

"I am glad to give this statement, for I want to do all I can to let the world know about this wonderful medicine."

Tanlac is sold in Belleville by Ostrom's Drug Store and by the leading druggists in every town.

Wedding Bells

CONGER—LONG.

At Dominion Methodist Church, last evening at eight o'clock, the marriage was solemnized of Miss Mabel Anna Long, eldest daughter of Mr. Albert Long and Mrs. Long, to Mr. Karl B. Conger, second son of Mr. and Mrs. James B. Conger, formerly of Belleville. The church was very effectively decorated with palms, ferns, ropes of smilax and a beautiful arch was formed of oak leaves. The altar was banked with quantities of lovely white chrysanthemums. Rev. J. W. Aikens officiated, and during the signing of the register, Mrs. Arthur Mackie contributed a very effective solo.

The bride who was given away by her father, wore a lovely gown of kitten's ear satin with long court train lined with orchid crepe meteor and caught with orange blossoms, and she wore the gift of the groom, a rope of pearls with diamond clasp. Ophelia roses in shower were carried. Miss Alice Long, as bridesmaid, wore a dainty frock of pale green charmeuse satin with overdress of shadowed silver lace and trimmings of pink ostrich tips, pink ribbon and silver. Her picture hat was of tulle with French flowers and she carried an arm bouquet of pink roses.

Mrs. Albert Long, mother of the bride, was attired in taupe charmeuse with overdress of taupe georgette, and wore a smart taupe velvet hat with ostrich feathers. Her corsage bouquet was of deep red roses. Mrs. J. A. Conger, mother of the groom, was gowned in grey satin with embroidered panels, and her hat was of grey tulle. She wore an imported scarf of brocaded liberty satin, and carried deep pink roses. Miss L. Conger, sister of the groom, was frocked in pale blue georgette crepe with trimmings of silver, and wore a wide black hat of panne velvet. Her corsage bouquet was of violets. The groom's gift to the bridesmaid was a diamond bar pin, and the ushers were presented with pearl tie pins.

Col. W. S. Conger, brother of the groom, was best man, and the ushers included Mr. Arthur Mackie, Mr. L. Wightman and Mr. Clifford Gilchrist.

A largely attended reception was held after the ceremony at the home of the bride's parents, the decorations being white and yellow chrysanthemums and pink roses. Later Mr. and Mrs. Conger departed on their honeymoon, the bride travelling in a handsome costume of dark brown broadcloth and sand colored georgette blouse, with smart brown velvet and taffeta hat, and a long scarf of grey squirrel. On their return they will reside in Ottawa.

Among the out-of-town guests were Miss Emma Ross, of Charlottetown, P.E.I., and Miss Hazel Bradshaw, of Montreal.—Ottawa Journal.

CARD OF THANKS.

Mr. Ralph Smith and family desire to extend thanks to Miss Morrison and nurses at the hospital, friends and neighbors, for kindness shown to their late son; also for flowers sent by sympathizing friends.

Mrs. H. V. McLean is returning to her Western home after spending several months with her mother, Mrs. M. Vanwhart, and sister, Mrs. M. Crosby of Rednerville.

Gun In Auto
Young Man Killed

Lefroy, Oct. 25.—Ernest Colgan of Belle Ewart was fatally hurt yesterday, when a gun he had with him in his motor car by some accident discharged its contents into his left side. The accident occurred about a quarter of a mile from here. Colgan, who was about 22 years of age, went hunting with a friend, Dolph Trombley. The story told by Trombley is that after doing some shooting in the woods he came back to the motor car, cranked it, and got in. Colgan was driving, and the only explanation Trombley could give as to how the accident happened was that when Colgan released the emergency brake the handle struck the hammer of the gun, with the resultant fatal discharge.

Trombley rushed his friend to Lefroy and called a doctor. The doctor said that Colgan was dead before the car reached Lefroy.

CANADIAN LOANS.

"Victory Bond" Campaigns Taught Useful Lessons.

Canadians learned much during the war, and among other things they learned how to buy bonds. Many Canadian cities and towns during the past year have been taking advantage of the education of the public in the purchase of their own bonds, and having staged miniature "Victory Bond" campaigns, offering the debentures of the municipality to local citizens for investment. An announcement by the City Treasurer of Brantford the other day that $524,000 of the city's bonds had been sold "over the counter" to citizens of Brantford, instead of being offered in the larger money markets of Toronto and other cities, created a great deal of interest, but while Brantford may have carried the home bond selling to a further degree than most cities, it is not by any means the only Canadian city or town that called for local support in its civic financing, in order to avoid borrowing from outside investors. Among others, the following cities have sold their municipal debentures locally to citizens, during the past year, in much the same way that the Dominion Government sold its bonds in the various Victory loan campaigns: St. Thomas, Ont.; Victoria, B.C.; Regina, Sask.; Pictou, N.S.; Simcoe, Ont.; Woodstock, Ont.; North Battleford, Sask.; Wallaceburg, Ont.; Oxbow, Sask.; Penticton, B.C.; Grand Fork, B.C.; Prince Rupert, B.C.; Cobourg, Ont.; Moose Jaw, Sask.; Cote Ste. Michele, Que.; Lanark county, Ont.; Goderich, Ont.; Orillia, Ont.; Merritt, B.C.; Calgary, Alta.; Gravenhurst, Ont.; Peterboro, Ont.

The aggregate of the bonds sold in this way has been about $3,000,000. Practically all of them have been offered in small denominations of $100 up, and in some cases as low as $50, so that even the man of small means can get a "stake in his own home town" by buying his municipality's bonds. Many of these bond selling campaigns have been attended with interesting features, such as public meetings, parades, and all the enthusiasm-evoking features that were learned during the war.

The following table showing where Canada borrowed its money in four typical years indicates how the country is learning to finance itself. The figures include Government, provincial and municipal borrowings; the rise in New York exchange which made it profitable for Americans to invest in Canada accounts for the rise in the amount of money borrowed from the United States in 1919 as compared with 1910:

Total.	P.C. in Canada.	P.C. in U.S.A.	P.C. in G.B.
1910— $231,000,000	17.00	1.50	81.50
1913— 374,000,000	12.20	13.50	74.24
1918— 764,000,000	94.87	4.70	.43
1919— 910,000,000	76.89	22.54	.57

No Washington Minister.

Appointment of a special Canadian Minister plenipotentiary to the United States has been indefinitely postponed. Canada's interests in the United States thus will be left in the hands of Sir Auckland Geddes, the British Ambassador, who, because of his long residence in the Dominion, is regarded by the Canadians as having full personal knowledge of the aims and needs of their country.

Steps looking to the appointment of a Canadian Minister were first taken some months ago, Canadians feeling that because of the urgency in rebuilding the trade and economic relations between the Dominion and the United States there was pressing need for direct diplomatic representation of Canada in Washington. The project progressed with the sanction of the British Government to a point where the Canadian Parliament actually made the appropriations for the maintenance of such an establishment in Washington.

It is understood, however, that as one result of the recent visit to Canada of Sir Auckland, the plan of establishing a special Canadian Minister in Washington has been suspended, at least in legislation.

The element which has been considered in connection with direct Canadian representation in Washington is that Australia, South Africa and other British dominions might desire similar representation. In fact, there was a movement in some of the dominions for such representation, and the British Foreign Office was said to have taken the view that inefficiency might result from having several Dominion Ministers in the United States.

Customs Receipts.

An increase of $23,806,017.08 is shown in the customs receipts for the six months ending September, as compared with the corresponding period of 1919. In the month of September just closed, there was an increase of $697,658.50, as compared with September of last year.

Customs receipts in September, 1919, were $14,833,240.67; September, 1920, $15,530,899.17, an increase of $697,658.50.

Receipts for the six months ending September 30, 1919, $82,269,212.02; September 30, 1920, $106,075,229.10; increase, $23,806,017.08.

The Oldest Chorister.

Richard Stapells of Toronto, is the oldest chorister in the world. Born in London, eighty-seven years ago, he was a close friend of Charles Dickens. Sixty-eight years ago he first sang in a choir at Rochester, England, and now he is finishing his forty-seventh years as a member of the choir of All Saints' in Toronto. His son, Richard Jr., is organist of the Church of the Messiah in the same city.

Quite a Send-off.

From an English paper: The Rev. E. Thomson will preach his farewell sermon on Sunday next. The choir will render an anthem of joy and thanksgiving specially composed for the occasion.

The word "chauffeur" originated in France, and applied to a member of a band of travellers who roamed over the north-eastern part of that country under the command of John the Skinner, or Schinderhanes.

The reason lenses were made flat was because only recently has the way to grind curved lenses been perfected. These curved glasses — Toric lenses—give a wider field of vision, can be set closer to the eye, and are better looking and more comfortable.

Stand By Widows And Orphans Slogan Of Navy League

STRONG COMMITTEE NAMED FOR SAILORS' WEEK CAMPAIGN IN BELLEVILLE—HEADQUARTERS AT CHAMBER OF COMMERCE BUILDING—G. W. V. A., ROTARY AND LIONS' CLUBS TAKE ACTIVE PART.

That the Navy League Campaign in Belleville will be full of "pep" was evidenced by the large and enthusiastic meeting of workers held Monday evening in the spacious quarters of the Chamber of Commerce which has been placed at the disposal of the campaign committee for headquarters.

Mr. John Elliott is the general chairman of the campaign assisted by the following:

Vice-Chairmen—E. Guss Porter, K. C., Col. W. N. Ponton, Mayor W. B. Riggs.

Secretary—Major A. L. Johnson.

Treasurer—Col. E. D. O'Flynn.

Publicity Committee—W. L. Doyle, F. R. Wotten.

Chairman of Committees—Robt. Gorman.

CAPTAINS

No. 1, Corbyville—W. J. Hume.
No. 2, Industries—A. F. White.
No. 3, Foster Ward—E. D., Finkle.
No. 4, Ketcheson—Col. A. P. Allen.
No. 5, Sampson—E. Dickens.
No. 6, Baldwin—B. F. Jennings.
No. 7, Bleecker and G.T.R.—Ald. Adams.
No. 8, Coleman and Murney—Ald. Hanna.

It was decided that in case of wet weather the Community Dance, scheduled for Tuesday evening on Front street would be postponed until Thursday evening, weather permitting.

Mr. Robert Gorman, chairman of Committees presided over the meeting and urged all to stand by the campaign which was for a most worthy cause and deserves the support of all citizens. The time has come to get to work, to act and to give said Mr. Gorman.

Chaplain Rev. S. Boal, in a brief, snappy address outlined the work of the Navy League, and made a strong appeal in the interests of the widows and orphans of sailors who looked to the Navy League for support. There must be no slacking up now in patriotic endeavor for Canada is more prosperous than ever before which is amply evidenced by the bank deposits. In 1911 the bank deposits in Canada amounted to $909,964,000, while in 1920 they toal $1,746,878,000.

One hundred dollars per month for a widow with four children or $20 per month for each member of the family is the aim of the Navy League of Canada in pensioning the widows and orphans of Canadian mercantile sailors who lost their lives on active service during the war, said Chaplain Boal. The League during Sailor's week propose to raise $760,000 for the work in general of which $144,000 will be used as an endowment for pensions. The income from this endowment along with funds already in hand will be sufficient to meet the national situation.

The Navy League of Canada in appealing to the public funds feels that no sailor's widow should go hungry or any child go through life without a proper education because the father paid the supreme sacrifice on active service. Many of the men on the merchant ships carrying food, munitions troops and general supplies were torpedoed at sea and went down as British seamen always have done standing aside, "Women and Children First."

The plan as decided upon by the executive is to grant a pension to each widow and family according to requirements, and carry on the relief work already commenced upon a larger and permanent scale. Each child who lost his or her daddy during the war will be granted a pension adequate to cover necessary expenses for a good education and therefore the country at large, through the medium of the Navy League of Canada will be fathering all these children, giving them homes, education, until they are able to support themselves and get a proper start in life.

Through this endowment the mother will be able to remain at home, take care of her children, and make a home what it ought to be. The League considers that every woman with children should be in the home, sufficiently supported with finances, so that she can bring her children up properly, and not be forced to leave them alone all day to play on the streets while she works taking the place of both father and mother.

Will Be A Shake-Up At Kingston Pen

Kingston, Oct. 26.—A special despatch from Ottawa to the Whig stated that Col. O. M. Biggar, special counsel to the Dominion Government, who, on Tuesday last investigated the circumstances attending the recent dismissals of guards G. McCauley, P. Dowsley, and R. Paynter from the staff of the Provincial Penitentiary at Portsmouth, has reported to the Department of Justice that the dismissals were justified.

The same despatch says that Col. Biggar is coming to Kingston next week to begin an investigation into other matters in connection with the penitentiary. He will likely decide upon a number of changes that are necessary in order that the regulations may be carried out and harmony prevail in the prison. The Ottawa despatch also states that warrents have been taken out against a number of guards who are charged with supplying tobacco to the convicts and other things and against one or more for disposing of penitentiary property. Decidedly interesting developments are expected in the Kingston Police Court shortly. The Whig is advised from Ottawa that Brig-Gen W. S. Hughes, superintendent of Dominion Penitentiaries, is coming at once to Portsmouth to take temporary charge of the Penitentiary and see if order cannot be restored there. Warden Ponsford, it is stated, is to be given leave of absence.

LOW WATER TIES UP OTTAWA RIVER MILLS

Ottawa, Oct. 25.—Ottawa and Hull are faced with an almost complete tie-up of the pulp, paper and lumber mills because of the low water in the Ottawa river. The mills at the Chaudiere are operating far below normal. More than 800 men are out of employment. The production of paper, newsprint and cardboard has been reduced by at least two-thirds. Only heavy rainstorms at the head of the Ottawa river will alleviate the situation.

Belleville Man Took Long Journey

Long Arm of R.C.M.P. Reaches To Hudson Bay

Once more the long arm of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police has reached into the northern wilds in the interest of justice. This time the scene of action was Belcher Islands, on the east coast of Hudson Bay and the principals in the matter an Eskimo, who killed another member of his tribe; Inspector J. W. Phillips and Sergeant A. H. Joy, who left Halleybury, Ont., on Aug. 6 last for Belcher Island to inquire into the reported murder.

While their quest proved successful in locating the man wanted, he will not be brought from the north for trial because it was established at an inquest that Tukautauk, the Eskimo who did the killing, acted in self-defence. The jury, which was made up of men who accompanied Inspector Phillips on his trip recommended that no further proceedings be taken against the accused, the fault for the row being laid at the door of Ketaushuk, the dead Eskimo.

Inspector Phillips and his party went north by way of Moose Factory. From there they proceeded by a Hudson Bay Company boat to Charlton Island. At this point they fell in with a couple of men who were prospecting and who accompanied the little force to Belcher Island.

Better Outlook For Strike Settlement

LONDON, Oct. 26.—Formal negotiations between the Government and the Executive officers of the Miners' Federation in an effort to settle the coal strike, were re-opened this morning, indicating that the formal discussion which had been in progress since Sunday had proved satisfactory in some measure. The miners Executive body had previously been in conference over the Government's new proposals, and as a result of its deliberations it decided to begin formal negotiations.

Decorate Graves Of Canadian Soldiers

MONTREAL, Oct. 26.—A special cable to The Star says that Canadians living in Paris have decided to adopt All Saints' Day for the yearly decoration of their soldiers' graves. It is estimated that there are 2,000 Canadians in Paris who will join in the memorial movement which is being headed by Phillip Roy, Canadian High Commissioner.

On the morning of November 1, a special train will be run from Paris to one of the Canadian cemeteries in the Arras region, where 31,000 sons of the Maple Leaf lie buried and every grave will be decorated with the Canadian flag and Canadian flowers.

The Canadians intend to concentrate their efforts on one cemetery each year, the tentative program naming Vimy for next month and Ypres where the Canadians received the first German gas attack, next year.

TELEPHONE FROM HERE TO THE HEREAFTER

Paris, Oct. 26.—The report of Thomas A. Edison's statement that he has invented a telephone to communicate with the dead is causing a tremendous stir in Paris. Many French savants, like Branly, the inventor of the first wireless apparatus, remain doubtfully expectant, others claim no man of science would vouch for a life after this and the possibility of establishing scientific communication between spirits of this world and the other. Below is the opinion of Camille Flammarion, the noted French astronomer and scientist, author of "Death and Mystery."

"Edison's apparatus need not be a chimera. I admit I do not understand what substance he will use to establish the connection between the corporal bodies of this world and the astral bodies of the other. Selenium, perhaps, but it seems to me that even the smallest human brain, or the brains of any living creature, dog or cat, would be more sensitive than any metal or metalloid.

"In our heads, within our skulls, we already have the instrument which enables us to communicate with the dead. No human invention will ever surpass it. We don't know how to use it, yet. But that will come in time.

"For the soul exists, survives after death. Matter is but the clothing of the spirit. Nothing dilsappears—everything changes.

"Our dead are still living. They see us. They hear us. In many cases they are still interested in terrestial matters and sometimes are able to convey signs of this interest in us.

"As a scientist I cannot affirm that the soul is immortal. But I do affirm that the soul lives long after the body is dead, and that in time man will be able to control the fluids which makes communication between the realm of death and life possible."

Case Against Railways and Government in Steel Rail Dispute Is Begun

OTTAWA, Oct. 26.—Three million dollars is at stake in a case brought before the Exchequer Court. Because Hon. J. D. Reid, Minister of Railways directed the Dominion Iron & Steel Company to divert its organization from the making of shell steel to the manufacture of steel rails, the company demands that under the compensatory clause of the War Measures Act it shall have made good to it the additional profits it would have made on shell steel but for Dr. Reid's order.

The order in Council through which Dr. Reid made his order effective stated that the Minister would himself set the price later after finding out the cost of production.

The price set later was $65 a ton, and the dispute in whether the order in Council or the compensatory clause of the War Measures Act governs.

Hon. Wallace Nesbitt, Mr. E. M. McDonald, K.C., and Hector McInnes, K.C., appear for the steel company and Messrs. Meredith and Holden for the Government. As the steel rails were for the railways, the latter have an incidental interest in the inquiry. C.P.R. is represented by Mr. W. N. Tilley, K.C., the Grand Trunk by Mr. W. C. Chisholm and the T. H. & B. Ry. by Mr. Sewell, K.C., of Hamilton.

Wife Defies Revolver, Frees Her Husband

Together They Beat Off Two Italians Who Attempted to Rob Him

HAMILTON, Oct. 25—Two Italians who obtained entrance to the home of William Barr, at Vinemount, by asking permission to use the telephone, attempted to hold up Mr. Barr and rob him of a large sum of money they had discovered was in the house. When pretending to use the telephone they severed the wires. They then pointed a revolver at Mr. Barr and proceeded to tie him to a chair. His wife, who was attracted by the scuffle ignored the threatening revolvers and freed her husband. They were able to beat off the Italians.

Greek King Dead From Monkey Bite

Athens, Oct. 25.—King Alexander of Greece is dead.

King Alexander became King of Greece on June 17, 1917, when his father, King Constantine, abdicated and fled from the country following a political disturbance. His death was due to the bites of two monkeys, inflicted on Oct. 2, when King Alexander defended his favorite dog from an attack while he was walking in the park at the royal palace at Athens. Since being bitten by the monkey the condition of the King has gradually increased in seriousness, and little hope was at any time held out for his recovery.

Nova Scotia Votes Bone Dry

Halifax, Oct. 25.—At midnight it was estimated that Nova Scotia had gone "bone-dry" by over 40,000 majority. Halifax alone, of all the towns heard from, gave a wet majority. The mining and industrial centres, which many had indicated would vote wet, went dry by large majorities. Apparently little interest was taken in the referendum, as an exceptionally small vote was caste. In Halifax which recorded 1,054 majority for the "wets," less than one-third of the qualified voters went to the polls. Early returns indicated an even smaller percentage of actual voters to qualified voters in the rural sections of the Province. Sydney City gave 1,582 for bone dry.

No Importation After Fixed Date

An order-in-Council is to be passed by the Dominion Government fixing a date after which importation of liquor into the provinces which went "bone-dry" today will be prohibited. Under the Amendment to the Canada Temperance Act, passed last year, it is provided that, after the prohibition of importation is declared to be in force:

(1)—No person shall import into the province concerned any intoxicating liquor.

(2)—No person shall manufacture or sell any intoxicating liquor to be unlawfully imported into the province.

(3)—The carriage of intoxicating liquor through the province shall only be by means of a common carrier, by water or by railway, and during the time any intoxicating liquor is being so transported no person shall open or break any package or vessel containing such intoxicating liquor, or drink or use any of the liquor.

To-day's dry votes will close an avenue of liquor traffic opened when the prohibition order-in-council was rescinded last December. The order-in-council was a war measure and passed under the terms of the War Measures Act. It prohibited both manufacture and importation of intoxicating liquor. With the termination of the order-in-Council, however, a resident in dry territory could import for his own personal use, but not for sale Now, all importation into the "bone-dry" provinces will be prohibited.

To-day's plebiscites were the first to be taken under the legislation of last year.

FOUR NEW LOCOMOTIVES FOR T. & N. O. RAILWAY

Kingston, Oct. 26.—The Canadian Locomotive Company has received an order for four locomotives for the Timiskaming Line, Timiskaming & Northern Ontario Railroad. It is stated that this order will make about 28 engines yet to be completed. At the present time the men in the works are busy on ten locomotries which are being built for the Grand Trunk. It is understood, with the present orders on hand, it will mean that the company will have lots of work until some time after the first of February.

Prairie Provinces Voted Dry Liquor Importations To Cease

RURAL CONSTITUENCIES RETURN LARGE MAJORITIES FOR BONE-DRY PROHIBITION—WINNIPEG GAVE SIX THOUSAND MAJORITY IN FAVOR OF IMPORTATION PRIVILEGES—SMALL VOTE POLLED IN ALBERTA.

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer
Canadian Press Limited

WINNIPEG, Oct. 26.—Three provinces in Western Canada, Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, expressed strong views in the way of sterner prohibition.

With a heavy vote in the rural constituencies of Manitoba opposed to liquor traffic, the majority in favor of bone-dry prohibition will probably total 15,000.

City of Winnipeg turned in a wet majority of over six thousand, this being a feature of the Manitoba referendum.

In Saskatchewan a majority in favor of stopping importation on liquor will run something over ten thousand. Regina and Prince Albert were the only cities in Saskatchewan to turn in a wet majority.

In complete returns from Alberta late last night indicated that the dry vote will have a majority of over 15,000. Every city in the province with the exception of Lethbridge returned a prohibition majority.

In all three provinces there seemed to be considerable indifference on the part of the citizens to vote. In Manitoba about sixty per cent. of the voters exercised their rights and in Saskatchewan about the same, while in Alberta it is estimated that not 35 per cent. of the voters visited the polls.

British Government Prepares To Cope With General Strike

EMERGENCY POWER BILL GIVING ADMINISTRATION FAR-REACHING AUTHORITY SUSTAINED BY VOTE OF 257 TO 55—ASQUITH AND LABOR LEADERS DENOUNCE THE MEASURE AS "PANIC LEGISLATION."

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer, Canadian Press, Limited.

LONDON, Oct. 26.—Strong opposition to the Government Emergency Bill giving the administration far-reaching authority in the event of a general strike or of disorders, was anticipated in the House of Commons today. The measure entered the committee stage of consideration and the Government issued instructions for all supporters to be present at today's session of the House of Commons. Last night a motion for rejection of the bill offered by William C. Adamson, Labor leader, was defeated by a vote of 257 to 55 and the measure was passed to a second reading. Liberal and Labor leaders, including H. H. Asquith, former Premier; J. H. Thomas, and Mr. Adamson, Labor leaders, and John Robert Clynes, former Food Controller, made strong appeals to the Government to withdraw the measure, which Mr. Adamson characterized as panic legislation, which is always dangerous. Mr. Thomas based his appeal on the ground that emergency powers were needless, pointing out that although a million workers were directly affected by the coal strike and that millions were indirectly interested, there had been no disorders.

Sugar Refineries Reduce Price

MONTREAL, Oct. 25.—The price of sugar dropped from $19 less 5 per cent. per hundred pounds to $17.90 less 5 per cent. at 1.30 p.m. today, it was announced by all refineries with the exception of the Dominion refineries, which are selling at 16 cents. This drop brings the Canadian refinery prices to a level with those in the United States. Sugar in New York quoted this morning at $12, less 2 per cent. and if imported into Canada would mean between $17.50 and $18 per hundred pounds to the consumer.

The meeting of the refiners this morning resulted in the decision for the present to reduce prices to the level which will prevent American sugar from flooding the market. The Dominion refineries today sold both beet and cane sugar at $16 per hundred pounds, a reduction of $1 on the prices quoted for the latter part of the past week. Other refineries are not attempting to compete with them as the Dominion refineries, it is said through handling beat sugar at this time of year, can undersell those handling only the cane variety.

WORKLESS AMERICANS FLOCKING TO CANADA

London, Oct. 26.—Declaring that a rush of unemployed men from the United States has already begun, and that the stream will increase as the winter approaches, members of the Central Veterans' Council of London announce that the intend to have a memorial to the Dominion Government praying that the immigration laws be rigidly enforced so as to prevent the glutting of the Canadian labor market and a consequent cutting of wages.

Information received here by the Veterans is to the effect teat in very many American cities large numbers of men have been laid off by the various industries, especially by auto factories, and that such men are flocking to this country to secure work.

It is claimed that already the effect is being felt in this city, where labor is becoming more plentiful and wages are dropping.

RULE MAN CONNOT DISPOSE OF BODY

Ottawa, Oct. 25.—A husband, though dead, is closer to his wife than his parents. There is no property in his body, and he cannot, by will or any other instrument, dispose of it, nor the body of anyone else. This in brief is the civil British law in regard to the possession of deceased bodies, which was steadfastly upheld by Mr. Justice Latchford, presiding over the Supreme Court of Ontario, when he dismissed the action of Louis and Mary K. Gallien, parents of Hormidas Gallien, against his widow, Lida Gallien, and the Roman Catholic Episcopal Corporation of the diocese of Ottawa.

Mrs. Gallien, mother of the deceased was absolutely refused the possession of her son's body and he counsel, Mr. W. C. Greig, was repeatedly told by His Lordship that his client could not get the body away from where the deceased's wife had placed it under the law.

During the course of this most interesting action, which has been pending in the civil courts for several months, Judge Latchford referred to the Ninth Chapter, the Fifth Verse of the Gospel of Matthew, to emphasize that the law he was upholding or the view that he was taking was not by any means a new one. The verse says: "For this cause shall a man leave father and mother, and shall cleave to his wife, and they twain shall be one flesh."

"It so pained and irritated him that he could not sleep. He was so badly disfigured that I felt ashamed to let him go out of the house. As nothing did him any good I took him to the Hospital. When the treatment there appeared to make the eczema worse I heard about Zam-Buk.

No More Eczema!

"So I got a supply of Zam-Buk, and applied it liberally and regularly. The pain disappeared and the irritation was wonderfully allayed. Soon healing began, and as I continued the Zam-Buk treatment the disease gradually disappeared until in time my boy's skin was perfectly clear, healthy and smooth."

UNWELCOME VISITOR

At 7.15 this morning the police answered a call to 47 Strachan street where it was alleged a man was in the house who had no right to be there. The officers responding to the call found John Morrison in the house and placed him under arrest on a charge of vagrancy.

OFFICIAL VISIT

Rt. Wor. Bro. W. J. Potts of Trenton, the newly elected District Deputy Grand Master of Prince Edward district, A. F. & A. M. last evening made his first official visit and Lake Lodge Ameliasburg Township was the lodge visited. A large number of brethren were present, including many from this city. After the business of the lodge had been completed a banquet was held and the spread was all that could have been desired. Addresses were given by the D.D.G.M. and others present and were interspersed with suitable vocal selections.

COMPOUND FRACTURE OF LEG

Mr. Grinyer, manager of the Wm Davies store in this city, was yesterday afternoon the victim of a painful accident and one that will necessitate his retirement from active duties for some time. Some parties were engaged in trimming trees at his home on Foster Avenue when a large limb fell as Mr. Grinyer was beneath the tree. He was unable to get out of the way and the limb struck him on the left leg causing a compound fracture between the ankle and knee. The unfortunate man was conveyed to the hospital where the fracture was attended to.

NOT A VAGRANT

John Morrison, a stranger in the city, was this morning before Magistrate Masson charged with vagrancy. After the facts had been ascertained it was shown that the accused did not come under the Vagrancy Act and the charge was dismissed.

BRITAIN'S WAR DUMPS.

London Times Tells of Waste of Material.

No more palpable example of the waste of public money, says the London Times in a special article attacking the Government, could be found anywhere at the present time than that offered by the Army Ordnance Depot at Chilwell, near Nottingham. During the war Chilwell became known as "the V.C. factory." Here were filed 19½ million shells or 50.3 per cent. of all the high explosive shells used by the British army, a task which cost 134 of the employes their lives in the terrible explosion of July, 1918.

It is now a "dump." The site comprises 18 acres and semi-buildings cover 10 acres under a single roof. Soon after the million or so of full shells lying here when the armistice was declared were removed, the Government began to bring trainloads of war material from the various theatres of war until to-day millions of pounds' worth of stores lie rotting and rusting. Vast as the buildings are they cannot accommodate more than a portion of the stuff that has been accumlated and is still being piled up. Much of the material has been lying in the open for months.

It is stated that if war broke out again to-morrow there are stores enough at Chilwell to equip an army almost as large as that which we had in the field when hostilities ceased. As an illustration, the clothing stacked here includes 10,000,000 pairs of socks, 6,000,000 army shirts, thousands of bales of Cardigan jackets, trousers, blankets, Scotch tweed (much of which has never been unpacked), thousands of pounds' worth of cord for breeches, and miles of cloth in khaki, blue, and Scotch plaid.

The most wanton form of waste, however, concerns the vehicles. In serried rows are ranged thousands upon thousands of wheels for use not merely on gun carriages, but on vehicles of all descriptions. Soaked by the spring rains, they are now suffering even more damage from the sun, and are deteriorating at an alarming rate. Yet farmers and tradesmen and wheelwrights would gladly pay a fair price for some of these spare wheels. In the "vehicle park," as this part of the site is called, are tens of thousands of four-wheel wagons and two-wheel carts, which will be ruined if they are not soon rescued.

To look at the horseshoes, one would think that the whole British army was mounted. There are something like six million horseshoes rusting at Chilwell. There are vast quantities of saddles, too, but these would be of little use for anything but cavalry. Great care is being taken of the guns, of which there are large numbers of all calibres, from Lewis guns to the biggest siege artillery. These are receiving proper attention, and a considerable amount of repair work is in progress.

The "A.N." (ammonia nitrate) mill is full of scientific instruments for wireless and other installations, and the laboratory is a gigantic museum of watches and clocks. Bicycles are also to be found by the thousand, many of them quite new.

The quantity of barbed wire is incredible. There is more than enough to fence the whole coast of England. Why this should be retained at a time when barbed wire is fetching three guineas a hundred pounds and is so badly needed on the land passes comprehension. The thousands upon thousands of tents, camp kitchens (many uncovered), and hose pipes, and miles upon miles of rope, hemp and other stores are also to be seen. In addition, there are lying idle boilers, engines and dynamos of enormous capacity. The switchboard is 50 feet long, the largest of the engines has 1,03[illegible]

Rejoice And Be Glad With Mary Pickford

Popularity of "America's Sweetheart" With Belleville's Movie Patrons Shown.

Pollyanna's missionary father said that the Lord did not put "rejoice and be glad" over eight hundred times in the Bible without a purpose and Pollyanna spread the "Glad" gospel wherever sickness and sorrow needed the rainbow of joy and promise. The large audience at Griffin's Theatre Monday evening demonstrated beyond doubt that Mary Pickford is still the most popular actress with Belleville movie patrons and her production of "Pollyanna, the Glad Girl" fully justified that popularity. The theatre was packed at eight o'clock and the prospects are for exceptional attendance for the remainder of the engagement.

As Pollyanna Whittier, Mary Pickford quickly wins her way to the hearts of those who watch the play and succeeds in holding their deepest sympathy until the very last flicker in the final fade-out.

There is a depth of feeling in this picture that has never been shown in any other production. Miss Pickford puts all the delicate shading into her work that only a great artist is capable of. She often carries her audience to a tear and then suddenly snaps the tension by a bit of quaint, laugh-provoking comedy.

The pranks played by Pollyanna furnish unending fun. Those with whom she comes in contact think it strange that this little girl is able to be glad no matter what happens. Her unusual philosophy wins many friends and in the end, after she has been badly hurt in an accident, those who had held out persistently against her teachings, and who needed the leaven of her philosophy the most, saw the folly of their ways and the "glad game" became a part of their lives.

A "Smiling" Billy Parson 2-reel comedy, Jack Dempsey in "Daredevil Jack" serial, and a beautiful Burton Holmes Travelogue are also being shown on the same program.

AUTOMOBILE TO SOLVE THE HOUSING PROBLEM

French automobile manufacturers are attempting to solve the housing crisis by manufacturing large automobiles, which, like pulman cars, may be transformed into sitting or bedrooms at will and which also contain small kitchenetttes and bathrooms.

Considering the number of people in France who wish to marry but can't do so because they can't find any apartments or houses to live in, the new automobile apartment should prove a boon.

Honeymoons will be but a delightful shifting of scenery, entirely at will while settling down at home loses all terrors.

An attractive site is chosen a little out of the city. Here the automobile stays at night. In the morning hubby and wifey go to town together, he being brought to the office, she to the department store, her house waiting for her outside while she shops. Business men's lunches at home become the ordinary thing, while return to the suburbs at sundown, is a poem of house and family.

SPENCE TAKES CHANCE ON THOMPSON'S CIGAR

Just after Rev. Ben Spence had told the O.T.A. Investigating Committee that he favored reducing "near beer" from two and one-half per cent., Dr. Forbes Godfrey asked: "Would you cut out smoking?"

"Now, if you have a good cigar," began Mr. Spence, with a smile.

"Here you are," said Capt. Jos. E. Thompson, as he threw a cigar to Mr. Spence.

Dr. Godfrey was on his feet, and delivered a pointed but brief talk, declaring that medical science knew that smoking had killed hundreds of people. "You say two and one-half per cent. beer is bad for some, and therefore should be reduced to everybody. Now, that tobacco is bad for some."

"Not that. That's a good cigar," interrupted Capt. Thompson.

"If tobacco is bad for some why don't you quit smoking?" concluded Dr. Forbes Godfrey. But Mr. Spence did not think the argument applied, and smilingly bit the end off the cigar.

MUSIC AND DRAMA

(What the Press Agents Say)

"THE MAID OF THE MOUNTAINS"

It will take a long time to exhaust the popularity of "The Maid of the Mountains," the greatest musical comedy success of the century which comes Griffin's Thursday night, October 28, for one night only.

The success attained by this musical play may fairly be attributed to the fact that it possesses the four elements which are essential in musical offerings—story, song, music and spectacle. These are splendidly balanced in "The Maid of the Mountains."

The settings are attractive and give distinct character by their harmony in design and color.

"The Maid of the Mountains" was played 1,352 times at Daly's Theatre in London and it will be offered here with the entire London cast and chorus.

"THE WANDERER"

Messrs. Comstock and Gest will present "The Wanderer" the great Biblical spectacle, which ran for many months at the Manhattan Opera House, New York, at Griffin's Opera House, next Monday night, November 1st. The company numbers more than 70 with a ballet of thirty and a wealth of scenery and costumes.

The play was staged by David Belasco and it is the most sumptuously mounted production ever given in this country. The cast includes Frederick Lewis, Mabel Griffith, Dwight Dana, Fred Mosley, Charles Cline, Margaret Bryn and John Dougherty. Charlotte Wynters leads the great ballet. A flock of sheep, goats and other animals are among the features.

"VULGAR MENDACITIES," IS MINISTER'S RETORT

Ottawa, Oct. 26.—Hon. C. C. Ballantyne, Minister of Marine, characterized the alleged statement of William Duff, member for Lunenburg, at Lethbridge, as "vulgar mendacities." Mr. Duff accused the Minister of "attempting to draw a red herring across the trail," with reference to his connection with the sugar interests, and intimated that Mr. Ballantyne might still maintain a "paternal interest" in the St. Lawrence Sugar Refining Company. The member for Lunenburg also intimated that the Minister had used the Canadian Merchant Marine to help the Montreal refinery in which he was interested.

Y.M.C.A. BOWLING

The interest in the Y.M.C.A. Industrial Bowling League continues in spite of the many activities in town, and last night's game between Ritchie's and G.T.R. Yards was no exception. While there were no high scores pulled it was a nip and tuck game until the last frames were bowled and when the total score was added up it was found that Ritchie's had won by 70 points. Tuesday night's game will be Curlers vs. G.T.R. Shops.

Man Of Action Never In A Hurry

Railwayman Who Quickly Rose To The Top

Samuel J. Hungerford, who has been appointed Vice-President in charge of operation and maintenance of Canadian National Railways, is of the type of man, young in years and old in experience. Born near Bedford in Quebec, he was only 48 last July, but he has been engaged in the business of the "rolling wheel" for thirty-four years.

As a boy of 14, at Farnham, Quebec he first really became acquainted with a railway locomotive. Metaphorically speaking, he boarded it then and has made it carry him from the lathe of the machinist's apprentice to the chair of the Vice-President of what will be of the line and provided the power and cluded, the world's greatest railway.

Mr. Hungerford is a man of quick action who never seems to be in a hurry. He has a wide circle of friends in the railway world—friends that he made while mastering his various jobs in the Mechanical Department at important railway points clear across the country. Any of these friends, officer or employee, Easterner or Westerner, will say that "S. J. is there with the goods" and that he knows a locomotive and a car from the rails up, and how to utilize them to the best advantage. He has the reputation of being past-master in the art of handling men, of one who cannot be beaten on wage negotiations, and of one who is an all-round diplomat but firm as the proverbial rock when necessary.

In 1910 when the Canadian Northern, having a little more than 3,000 miles of railway in Western Canada, required a head for its Mechanical Department, the management approached Mr. Hungerford, at that time Superintendent of the C.P.R. shops at Winnipeg. The decision was typical of the method of the man in all things. He foresaw a bright future for the new line that was being so rapidly extended, and gave up twenty-four years of service with the C.P.R. to become Superintendent of Rolling Stock of that Company's only Western competitor.

He knew the West and also the country served by the C.N.R. He had seen the C.P.R. expand from a system of 4,319 miles in 1886 to one of 11,000 in 1910. He knew also that Canada required a great deal more railway.

The expenses of the Mechanical Department of the C.N.R. increased sharply during the first year of office of its new Superintendent of Rolling Stock whose motto was in effect "First get your engines in good shape, then use them." He watched the operation of th line and provided the power and his plan was to urge the use of the heaviest engines where traffic was heaviest in order to reduce the train movements, making it obligatory on the Maintenance of Way forces to keep the track to the standard required. The heavy engines went on and the tracks were maintained.

REAL ENGINES

The new C.N.R. official had also a definite idea as to what a real engine on a real railway ought to be. The C.N.R. standard, or 100% locomotive was of 23,000 pounds drawbar pull as against the C.P.R.'s 20,000 pound standard, which shows that the new road was nothing if not ambitious. Mr. Hungerford considered that in the light of the rapid development of locomotives these engines were too puny to be classed as 100%, so he, as it were "hitched his chariot to a star" by adapting for the C.N.R. 100,000 pounds drawbar pull as the requirement for a locomotive ranking 100% on that road. This is probably the highest standard adopted by that line. The C.N.R. had at that time no engines rating higher than 35% on its rating and has not even now any that go as high as 100%, but they have engines that have a drawbar pull of 65,000 pounds, which gives them a percentage of sixty-five. This rating means that for each 1% there is 1,000 pounds of drawbar pull or tractive energy delivered by the locomotive to the train.

At the end of five years, the Mechanical Department of Western Lines of the Canadian Northern Railway was in first class shape, and S. J. Hungerford's jurisdiction was extended over the Eastern lines of the system in May, 1915. For two years and a half he was Superintendent of Rolling Stock for the system at Toronto, having wider jurisdiction than that of the General Managers, but he built up no departmental walls. Although always a Mechanical Department officer, he was bigger than its limits would have made him, and always realized that engines and cars belonged to the Railway and not to the Mechanical Department, and that the good of the Railway as a whole was also the good of any department in it. So he set about the business of standardization of shop practices and of the distribution of rolling stock throughout the system. Man of—Galley Two

DESERVED PROMOTION

When that work had been completed, a vacancy occurred in the General Managership of the Eastern lines of the Canadian Northern and Mr. Hungerford was appointed to the position which he occupied until the consolidation of the lines of the Canadian Government Railways with those of the Canadian Northern Railway System was effected one year later. Again there was the necessity for standardization in connection with the shop practices and equipment of these two systems, but the Canadian National mangement did not consider it desirable to establish a separate Mechanical Department. So a new title was created—Assistant Vice-President — and Mr. Hungerford was appointed to it. As such, he was the head of the mechanical end of the great system and second in command of the operating and maintenance forces. This arrangement was continued until the recent appointment of Mr. M. H. MacLeod as Vice-President in charge of Construction for the System, Mr. Hungerford in sequence becoming Vice-President of operating and maintenance activities.

The job of Operating Vice-President is one of the most important in railway service, and, as the Canadian National is easily among the biggest of railway systems, S. J. Hungerford's new job may be classed in like proportion.

He will have the direction of forces that spend more than 90% of the total operating expenses of the system and these on the present mileage, (including the G.T.P.) and with the present scale of expenditure amount to 167 million dollars per annum. It is Mr. Hungerford's business to see that the great expenditures of money day by day on the publicly-controlled road are so made as to insure the largest return in condition of track structures and equipment and the movement of the largest amount of traffic possible. Those who know S. J. Hungerford well, have complete confidence in his capacity. He is regarded as one of those men, who, with the President, Mr. D. B. Hanna, will set new standards of devotion to duty and loyalty to employers—in this case the general public of Canada.

PENNY BAG CONTRIBUTORS HELP IN GOOD WORK

The Women's Christian Association wishes to thank all who have contributed through the Penny Bags to the support of the Hospital and Home for the Friendless. The liberal response is gratefully recognized as an evidence of public sympathy with the work of these two institutions.

The annual reports, published in last week's dailies, have fully explained present conditions and needs, and with confidence we appeal to the continued generosity of our citizens as the collectors this week again make their rounds.

It is our earnest hope that none will hesitate to give because the amount may be small. If all will have their contributions, whether large or small, ready month by month as the collectors call, the sum total will be a pleasant surprise and a very great encouragement to those who have work in hand.

INSULT THE MEMORY OF HEROIC DEAD.

To a Republican candidate for office who is warning the people against the League of Nations, Mr. Everett P. Wheeler, former President of the American Bar Association, has sent a letter which breathes the spirit of sturdy patriotism.

The candidate had played upon the fear of fathers and mothers that their sons would go abroad and fight. Writes Mr. Wheeler:

> Let me take my own case as an illustration. My son felt that it was the duty of America to help our friends in England, France and Belgium to repel the German invasion. He went into the French service, was wounded in battle and received the Croix de Guerre. When we went into the war he received a commission in the 16th infantry and was killed by a German shell in the front rank. We all honor him for it, and think he died a glorious death and that it was nobler for him to do what he did than stay peacefully at home. Your remarks insult his memory and shock the feelings of hundreds of thousands who are in a like case with myself.

FINE WEATHER NOT ALWAYS GOOD FOR BUSINESS.

The exceptionally pleasant weather of the past few weeks has been very much appreciated as a prolongation of the outdoor season, before the cold weather demands heavier clothing and a general hiving up indoors. The fine weather has effected a great saving in coal bills, for which everybody is thankful, but the general effect upon business of the unseasonable weather has been to curtail sales, escially in winter clothing and footwear.

Bradstreets, commenting upon the effect of the weather upon business says:

> Unseasonable weather continues to retard retail trade, according to the statements of merchants, although this condition does not seem to be causing any very great concern. It is believed that once the cold weather sets in, in real earnest, there will be a strong revival of buying. Such cold days as have been were followed by an more active demand. Until the public is forced to lay off its summer apparel,, and put on heavier garments, there does not appear to be much likelihood of great activity. It is hard at the moment to interest customers in winter merchandise.
> Owing to the shortage on many lines of goods which, it is believed, exists among a large percentage of the population, it is felt in a number of quarters that when buying once commences it will be on a good scale.
>
> Business in the smaller towns and villages is reported to be much better than in the larger centres, one reason for which is probably that the effect of the good crops which have been harvested this year is more quickly felt in the country than in the city. One feature, however, which may have had a more or less retarding effect this year, east and west, is the attitude which it is claimed has been adopted by many of the farmers in holding up the marketing of their grain, etc., partly in order to get other work done and partly in the hope of higher prices. Whatever the ultimate value of farm products may be, it is not likely that money will get into active circulation until the great bulk of the crops is marketed.
> That there is reason for confidence in the future, however, seems to be generally admitted.

THE SPECK OF RED IS A PIMPLE ON THE BODY POLITIC.

Canada is emerging from the after-war muddle with the sun of prosperity shining bright over her broad domain. Her barns are bursting with the foodstuffs for which the older countries hunger. Her gold and silver mines are pouring forth their riches. Her almost inexhaustible coal deposits are daily taking on new value. Her frozen north is seeping with oil that will feed the millions of autos for five hundred years to come.

The inevitable unrest that follows a world conflict is settling. The speck of red that gives you anxious thought is merely a pimple on the body politic. Could you hear the thousands cheer the patriotic pictures at the Exhibition or watch the spectators at football games stand with bared heads while the band plays the National Anthem without realizing that the country is sound at heart?

Prices are coming down! Isn't that what you have been shouting for? Then why should the decline cause that troubled feeling?

Canada is coming back to normal—coming fast—coming also to a great period of prosperity.

HARDING'S POSITION
Victoria Times

Senator Harding, Republican candidate for President across the border, told a meeting in Des Moines yesterday that he would no more tell Great Britain what to do with Ireland than he would permit Great Britain to tell the United States what it should do with the Philippines. He also expressed the opinion that Great Britain was approaching a solution of the Irish problem.

THE INDIVIDUALISTS
New York Globe

If revolution ever comes in this country it will be over some tangible grievance, like the tax on tea or the slavery traffic, not for a general and comprehensive scheme to make the world better. We are not a revolting people. We care a lot about what hurts us, but we do not really care much about theories and institutions, except as they affect us particularly. We may talk for or against the constitution or the single tax, but what we really care about is whether or not the world treats us right according to the rules of the game that actually prevail.

THE GIFT

With hands outstretched unto the God of Might,
I asked that power should be given me
To change the wrong in this old world to right,
And put an end to all its misery.

Again I asked the God of Melody
To grant the gift of music to be mine,
That I might heal the world's long agony
By flooding it with harmonies divine.

Kneeling I prayed unto the God of Life
To give me power to heal the world of pain;
To put an end to pestilence and strife
And make of earth an Eden once again.

Vainly I called on Heaven to let me do
What God in His Omniscience left undone,
Till one day in my heart the question grew,
"What if the need of Pain is not yet run?"

"What gift, O Lord, shall I then ask of Thee
With which I best may help the multitude,
Whereby Thy Kingdom came more speedily
And all the hosts of Satan be subdued?"

Humbly I waited at God's altar dim,
To hear what gift it was I most did need;
And lo, the answer came to me from Him.
"Faith that is even as the mustard seed."

New Turk's Tragedy

THE inner tragedy of the modern Turkish intellectual, who with his assimilated Western ideas loses his roots in the native Turkish soil without really becoming Europeanized, is analyzed by the Constantinople correspondent of the London Morning Post, who writes:

"Westernization, as far as it has reached the Turk, has produced in him, both in his men and women, a melancholy and a sense that he is at a loss, neither belonging to one thing nor the other. Especially in facing the adventure of marriage do the old customs of his country hamper him in his choice when he has seen the West.

"For an example, on the male side there is my typical Westernized acquaintance, Ali Fuad Mehmed Bey, back here after a long spell of study and pleasure in London and Paris. He has been pestered day in and day out by his relatives to marry and enter the family traditions of the Osmanlis. Hardly a day passes but his lady mother calls him and talks to him about it. And the way her pleading goes, he tells me, is something of this sort:

"'But, my son, I assure you she is a very nice girl. Blonde, tall, large gray eyes and a gentle expression, instructed in music, and with a very sweet and equable disposition, she is fit to make any man happy.'

"'Yes, my mother, but I should like at least to see her. All you say may be true enough and yet she may not be suitable for me. If I could have but one interview!'

"So the amiable quarrel goes on perpetually, and my poor acquaintance is never bold enough to overcome his new-fangled prejudices in favor of seeing the girl suggested to him and making up his own mind after a sight of her. (Though here the wiser Westerner points out to him that women's appearances are deceptive and that as many mistakes are made in marriages by sight as in marriage by faith,) But under the false glamor of a tradition not his own he is willful and, to the sorrow of his kin, criticizes Moslem institutions—and remains unmarried.

"On the other side, there are a few women who have been brought up in Western surroundings and who have a little culture not belonging to the traditional Turkey. Upon them comes a melancholy and a sense of separation from their kind which oppresses them. There are before them two alternatives and born frighten them. One is to marry a Turk and forget all they have learned. But the trouble is that when they look around the men of their race they find there is in themselves a fastidiousness which rejects every possible suitor. These men, they feel, for whatever cause it may be, are not what they want—are narrow, even feroce. The alternative, which they are not bold enough to face, is to marry a foreigner. This, they know, would cut them absolutely off from their nation, not primarily for religious reasons — for Turkey and the Turk are now practically skeptical—but by the strength of the tradition which, whatever may have become of the Moslem dogmas, still separates, and will perhaps ever separate, the Osmanlis from the rest of the world.

"This clash of new knowledge with ancient customs really brings an impasse into the lives of that small minority of Turkish youth which is at all modernized, and it oppresses them with the sense of futility. Probably the stout, ancient Pachas laughed—the young ones never do. And though they think they are sad because, as they say, their country is foundering, their sadness is really due to the much more general fact that they do not see in their country a chance for a happy home life."

Listen!

Have you heard about Peps? Peps is a scientific preparation put up in pastille form, which provides an entirely new and effective treatment for coughs, colds, chest and throat troubles.

Peps contain certain medicinal ingredients, which, when placed upon the tongue, immediately turn into vapor, and are breathed down the air passages to the lungs. On their journey, they soothe the inflamed and irritated membranes of the bronchial tubes, the delicate walls of the air passages, and finally enter and carry relief and healing to the lungs.

In a word, while no liquid or solid can get to the lungs and air passages, these Peps fumes get there direct, and at once commence healing.

Brookfield Eggs

Boxes and Cartons Designed to Suit Special Requirements of Different Kinds of Goods

Comes Flat to the Packer

The Rudd collapsible egg box comes to the packer flat. Little storage room is, therefore required for the empty boxes before filling. It can be "set up" much quicker than most egg containers, and its sturdy construction and compact assembly insure maximun protection in handling and shipping.

The first sanitary container was invented by the hen.

But the egg-shell insures sanitation only, so we designed a container to insure safe handling.

The Rudd egg container—which when "set-up" provides a separate compartment for each egg—has an added advantage in that it also enables the packer of selected eggs to brand his goods.

The Rudd egg container is but one of many types of containers which we have designed to suit the special requirements of unusual commodities.

Our experience in this line will be of assistance to you in designing a container for your product. At any rate we'll be glad of an opportunity to discuss the subject with you, and submit samples.

This Week Only

At any drug store named below, a 10-Day Tube of Pepsodent. Simply present the coupon.

Get this free tube. Its use will be a revelation. To you and yours the results will open a new era in teeth cleaning. Learn now what they mean to you.

Start Tonight
This new way to beautiful teeth

Your druggist today has a new way of teeth cleaning. And a ten-day tube is free.

Millions of people now employ it. Leading dentists everywhere advise it. You would never go without it if you knew.

Go ask for that free tube. There are few things more important than well-protected teeth.

Remove the film-coat

You brush teeth now, but you leave much of the film. A viscous film clings to the teeth, enters crevices and stays. The ordinary tooth paste does not end it. So teeth too often discolor and decay.

Dentists now know that the reason lies in film. That causes most tooth troubles. And, until one ends it, brushing fails to save the teeth.

It is the film-coat that discolors, not the teeth. Film is the basis of tartar. It holds food substance which ferments and forms acid. It holds the acid in contact with the teeth to cause decay.

Millions of germs breed in it. They, with tartar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea. And pyorrhea wrecks countless lives today.

An alarming situation

Tooth troubles have been constantly increasing. Very few people escape them. So dental science has in late years studied to combat that film.

Now we know how. The methods have been proved by careful clinical tests, made under able authorities. Now millions of people employ them, largely by dental advice. A new era in teeth cleaning is fast spreading the world over.

These new methods are combined in a dentifrice called Pepsodent. A 10-Day Tube is given to everyone who asks. Now all who will may quickly know that film can be combated.

What you will see

A test of Pepsodent brings quick and unique effects. One sees and feels them clearly. And a book which comes with the 10-Day Tube tells the reasons for them.

One ingredient is pepsin. Another multiplies the starch digestant in the saliva to digest starch deposits that cling. Each application also multiplies the alkalinity of the saliva—to neutralize the acids which cause tooth decay.

Two factors directly attack the film. One keeps the teeth so highly polished that film cannot easily adhere.

Day by day we fight the film and all its ill effects. You see the results in whiter teeth. You feel them in cleaner teeth. But the great results are such protection as teeth never had before.

You owe yourself a knowledge of these facts. Old ways of brushing have proved sadly inadequate. Nearly everybody at some time suffers troubles caused by film.

Now science knows how to combat film, and in ten days you can know. Never again will you trust the old ways when you know the new.

Teeth will glisten when the film-coat goes

Get this free tube and watch it. Note how clean the teeth feel after using. Mark the absence of the slimy film. See how teeth whiten as the film-coat disappears.

You will instantly know that Pepsodent does what nothing else has done. In a few days you will realize what clean teeth mean.

Survivals In Cloths.

A large number of interesting survivals in dress illustrates the innate conservation of humanity. Among these is the hatband, the original purpose of which was to hold a piece of cloth or linen around the head.

A picture exists of an Egyptian figure dated 3500 B.C., the headgear of which consists of a piece of linen with a band tied round it that terminates in two tails at the back. A survival of that is to be found in the tails of the present day Scottish bonnet and of the sailor's cap.

Again, the clocks on stockings were originally a species of ornamentation put on to hide the seams where the stuff was joined together. The "points" on the backs of gloves were originally strips of braid to cover the seams in the gloves of early times.

Men of fashion, when they tired of particular suits of clothes, have always given them away to their servants, and the practice has resulted in some styles of servants' costumes familiar to us in modern days.

The groom, for instance, represents a gentleman of the beginning of the nineteenth century, and he still wears the belt that ladies used to hold on by when riding behind on the pillion.

The footman with plush breeches and powdered hair is a gentleman of the time of George III.; the sheriff's coachman, with full-skirted coat and wig, is a gentleman of the time of George II., and the Lord Mayor's coachman and suite are very fine gentlemen of the time of George III.

In the twentieth century we hand our evening clothes to the waiters who stand behind us at the dinner table.

No Trace of Zeppelin Havoc.

"Show us some of the damage done by the Zepps," is the first demand of the crowds of tourists now seen in the streets of London. The Houses of Parliament, Westminster Abbey, the Tower are set back to be visited after an inspection of the few remaining vestiges of London's great war terror.

"Why, is that all?" they chorus as they gather in groups around the base of Cleopatra's Needle, on the Thames Embankment, snap-shotting the splinter-holes on the granite plinth and running their fingers into the slits in the metal statues that were made by flying fragments.

Disappointment is invariably expressed, for the truth is that London shows no trace of the Zeppelin and Gotha raids that are worth crossing the street to see. At Lincoln's Inn and Gray's Inn there are small bomb holes now filled with cement, but such "sights" make no appeal to the imagination.

Out in the working-class suburbs, where small houses were blown to bits, the damage was worse, but even that does not tell the story of the nameless horror of the invisible death that hovered nightly over nine million people, and that is why the tourists go on to France convinced that "bomb-shattered" London is a myth.

Another source of disappointment is that there are no genuine souvenirs of the raids to be bought. Only a small trade is being done in the inevitable "fakes," which some of the people living in the bombed districts have collected, with an eye to the American demand.

The Chaplain Relented.

The chaplain was a Scotsman, who resented any innovation in the service. A generous member of the congregation, thinking it would be desirable to have the lessons read from a lectern instead of the prayer desk, presented the church with a handsome brass one in the form of an eagle.

The minister, however, did not take kindly to it, and declined to use it the first morning, but towards evening he relented somewhat, and at the close of the service he astonished and entertained his congregation by giving out the following: "I give notice that next Sabbath the wurrd of God will be read from that burrd."

Wolf Hunters Reap Harvest.

"Wolfers" are expert trappers and hunters who have developed a special aptitude for hunting wild animals. They are dead shots with rifle or revolver, and think nothing of crawling into a wolf's den with no other weapons than an iron bar and a hatchet, the iron bar being thrust into the wolf's mouth in case of attack and a blow with the hatchet ending the battle.

Hunters sometimes work for days excavating a wolf's den and may be rewarded by finding a litter of young wolves, every puppy counting a scalp and also bringing a high price in the fur market. Generally the killing is done in or near the wolf's den. The most effective work is done in the spring, when the wolf families are at their largest.

One wolf may cost a stockman about $1,000 a year in slaughtered cattle, so the men in the cattle business find it cheaper to hire good "wolfers" to hunt these animals. The "wolfers," while hunting wolves, have an opportunity of catching other fur-bearing creatures, the beaver being the only one strictly exempt by law against killing.

Canadian Aborigines.

In round numbers the aboriginal population of Canada, consisting of Indians and Eskimos, is about 100,000, the Indians numbering 106,000, and the Eskimos a few more than 3,000.

They are the descendants of the people who held all this north land when Cabot skirted the Labrador coast, and when Jacques Cartier sailed up the St. Lawrence. At that time the entire country was theirs over which to make war, and hunt, and lead their wretched existence. In the southern half of the Dominion all this is changed. It no longer contains roaming Indians. They live upon their reserves and to a considerable extent obtain a livelihood by following the white man's pursuits. They are learning to till the soil, to engage in commercial fishery, to labor in the lumber camps, and even to engage in trades.

TREES IN DESERT OF SAHARA

Besides the Palm, There Is Said to Be Many Varieties, Also Forage Plants and Shrubs.

Besides the palm tree, which requires rather a large sheet of water, various other sorts of trees are found in the Sahara aside from numerous shrubs and tamarisks, principally the rubber tree and the ethel, a variety of the tamarisk. In the southern Sahara the Doumor Egyptian palm is found; it does not bear fruit, but the trunk and branches serve various purposes. The Apir possesses other arborescent species—notably mimosas of all sorts in the most unpromising regions. Foureau believes that wooded plateaus will exist.

The Sahara contains a number of forage plants and shrubs. It was on these that the caravans pastured, and that even the 1,200 or 1,300 camels of the Foureau-Lamy expedition and its auxiliary convoys succeeded in sustaining themselves.

It must not be forgotten that we are speaking here of spontaneous vegetation, which grows without demanding help or labor from man. It is, therefore, an incontestable fact that these pasture lands are capable of a certain degree of improvement, provided there is an initial establishment of roads of communication. This improvement can be attained by the selection of the best grasses, forage plants and arborescent species. According to Messrs. L. Trabut and R. Mares, the Saharan plants are very remarkable in their adaptation to a dry climate and a salty earth. The date tree is adapted to those Saharan regions, which are well provided with water; beneath the date trees cultivation of the kitchen garden is very well developed. In the oases are found the fig tree, the apricot, the peach and the grape. Agriculture succeeds well in the oases of the North as at Biska. The cultivated cereals are barley, wheat, sorghum and millet; lucerne is the forage plant of the oasis. It is of a very beautiful variety, with wide leaves and seems very resistant to salt. Industrial cultivation is now confined to a few plants, such as madder and a variety of tobacco used for snuff.—Scientific American.

Estimating Age of Moon.

Geological dates can hardly be very precise, yet Prof. W. H. Pickering seeks to reconcile Sir George Darwin's view that the moon was thrown off from the earth less than 60,000,000 years ago with the figures of rock students showing that the earth's crust became solidified at least 1,200,000,000 years ago. Professor Pickering's suggestion, as stated in Popular Astronomy, is that the moon was detached while the earth material was still sufficiently plastic but that for ages it circulated around the earth as a cloud of fragments. The tidal influence of this cloud being small, the earth would have long retained its primitive rotation period of about four hours. Centrifugal force would have greatly reduced gravity in the tropics, making it possible to explain the existence of reptiles of such huge size as the Atlantosaurus and the Diplodocus, and the flight of such heavy reptiles as the Pterodactyls. It seems indicated that the fragments consolidated in the Cretaceous period, which was marked by a great invasion of the land by the sea and a tremendous volcanic activity that may have been due to the great tides raised while the young moon was so near the earth. This time of consolidation is found to agree fairly well with Darwin's calculation of the date of the moon's birth.

Par-ol
The Human Body Lubricant

For Indigestion, constipation, flatulence and acidity

It helps to remove the cause.

You do not Cure Indigestion. You must prevent it. It is not like measles—to have and be done with. It is ever returning unless you prevent it.

One of the causes of Indigestion and similar ills is Constipation.

No use taking salts or pills to relieve bowels temporarily; the constipated condition will return in a few days.

You must oil your bowels regularly with Par-ol, and the hard bowel secretions that cause constipation should soften and disappear. Continue with Par-ol treatment and you should prevent recurrence of Constipation, Indigestion, Acidity and Flatulence, because you will have removed the cause.

Par-ol is a highly refined petroleum oil of unvarying purity. It has a specific gravity of .865 to .870 at 15° Centigrade.

Most druggists sell it, $1.00 a bottle. Don't accept a substitute—you'll be disappointed. Par-ol—that's the name.

EVEN THE COWS DEVOUR FOUR-DOLLAR MEALS

Mimico, Oct. 25.—"To one breakfast, two cows, at $4 per cow—$8." Such was the bill—split fifty-fifty—that Frank Colosa and Walter Haro were ordered to pay by Magistrate Davidson in the Police Court. The men's cows had breakfasted on a neighbor's turnips and cabbages. They operated on the table d'hote system. But the owners think it an expensive restaurant.

To complicate matters for the Magistrate both men claimed that their cows were not trespassing, that they had oversight of the garden in which the animals broke their fast.

The cows had committed the offense, the Magstrate declared, and it did not matter who managed the garden.

HOW 'TEDDY' CAME

No Flourish of Trumpets Heralded Roosevelt.

Just One of the Crowd Doing Good Work in Hopi Land, but Supreme in Quality of Leadership—Proved His Energy.

I was travel stained from head to foot, and on the front of my khaki riding skirt flared with a placid disregard of all conventions a large round circle of black axle grease, where the camp wagon had branded me for my affront of trying to climb in over the wheel, writes Natalie Curtis in the Outlook. My companions called the round stain an "Indian sun symbol," and it was not comforting to hear them jeer that nothing but a bath of gasoline could ever make me clean again. * * *

I ran across the sandhills to the little schoolhouse to which the Hopi children trail down from the mesa top to be taught in the ways of the white man. All the white employees of the government school were busy with scrubbing brushes—so busy that they did not look up from their work as they said, "Sorry, we can't bother about anything now. We're cleaning up for Roosevelt." "But so am I," I cried. Yet they only went on scrubbing.

At last I spied a silent and empty motor car. A man on horseback seemed to be the owner. "I am going to meet Col. Roosevelt," he said; "too busy to help you now. You can have as much gasoline as you like if you get it for yourself." I fetched a handleless cup from the schoolhouse, but I gazed at the car in despair. I was as ignorant of its inner workings as an Indian. Presently a handsome and deep-tanned young cowboy in blue overalls passed me, leading some horses.

"I wonder if you could get me some gasoline from this car?" I called. "I am allowed to have it. You see," I continued, confidentially, "we are all trying to clean up in honor of Col. Roosevelt—he is expected today some time." The young man smiled, and a few minutes later he lay in utter celvalry under the car, milking gasoline into my cup. I thanked him warmly and sped away. I was glad to see that he was just as weather stained as I.

As I climbed the crest of one of the sandhills I stopped short, open mouthed in wonder. A stalwart figure on a cow pony was riding up the hill, alone and unattended; without any flourish of trumpets, Col. Roosevelt had arrived! His sunburned face was partly shaded by a big felt hat, a red handkerchief fluttered at his throat, and he, too, looked as though gasoline might improve his khakis. I waved my sombrero and cried "Hail to the chief!" No one had expected the great guest so soon, but it was like him to be ahead of the rest of the world.

He leaped from the saddle and we shook hands warmly. "This is capital!" he exclaimed. "But don't spill my gasoline," I cried. "Every one in Hopi land is trying to clean up for you!" He laughed heartily. "You must meet my boy," he said, and called loudly, "Archie!"—and at this the knight in overalls appeared!

"We have met today before," he said, with a smile, and glanced significantly at my cup. It was nearly empty. The desert sun was drinking up all my efforts, but I did not care.

The stars were still alight the next morning when we left our camp fire, but we paused for a moment to fill a bottle with hot coffee for the colonel, who had made his headquarters in the schoolhouse. When we reached the schoolhouse, the colonel's room was empty. "One must indeed get up early to be abreast of Theodore Roosevelt," we told each other, rather shamefacedly.

Now, to climb the Walpi trail, a steep 600 feet, even on horseback, is no pleasant task before daylight (and breakfast)! But when we scrambled on foot to the summit, tired and breathless, there stood the colonel, strong and secure, among the topmost rocks of the Hopi buttes, silhouetted against the "yellow line," as the Hopis call the dawn. The little incident was characteristic of his natural drive of energy, his unfailing promptitude and his inborn quality of leadership.

Peat, long used in Great Britain and Ireland as a substitute for coal, now gives considerable promise of taking the place of wood pulp for the manufacture of paper, says Popular Mechanics. Experiments recently conducted in Manchester, England, demonstrated the possibility of making a usable grade of newsprint from bleached peat pulp, and the inventor displayed samples of other papers of various tints, suitable for wall papers, wallboard, wrapping paper, etc. For better grades of stock, it is proposed to mix the peat pulp with wood pulp.

An Important Voyage.

The Empress of Britain, the first trans-Atlantic oil-burning vessel to pass up the St. Lawrence, arrived recently at Quebec from Liverpool, in five days and twenty-two hours, breaking all previous records between those ports. It was her maiden trip as an oil-burner and she clipped six hours from her best previous time. The expense of reconditioning her as an oil-burner equalled the cost of her original construction.

MOON ECLIPSE WILL NOT BE VISIBLE IN CANADA

A total eclipse of the moon will take place during the night of October 26-27, but, unlike the last eclipse, will not be visible in this part of the globe. The beginning of the eclipse will be observed in the western portion of North America, on the Pacific Ocean, in Australia and in Asia, with the exception of the western portion. The ending of the eclipse will be visible in the western part of the Pacific Ocean, in Asia, Australia, the Indian Ocean, Eastern Africa and Europe, with the exception of the western portion.

The last total eclipse took place on May 2, last, beginning at 8-15 and ending at 9-27, and was seen in the eastern part of Canada and the United States. It was also visible on the Atlantic Ocean, in Europe, Asia and Africa, and on the western part of the Indian Ocean. Towards the end of the eclipse it was seen all over North America, except the extreme northwestern portion, and in western Europe, western Africa, on the Indian Ocean, and in South America.

"LIQUOR" IN HEARSE EMBALMING FLUID

Windsor, Oct. 25.—License Inspector Spracklin "caught a tartar" when he stopped a hearse owned by Albemy Janisse, Windsor undertaker, and searched for liquor. The inspector in a dark corner located a jar, which when shaken gave forth a suspicious sound. When the cork was removed and the usual test applied the "liquor" was found to be embalming fluid.

Saved Lives of Husband and Wife

THERE is a pathetic instance of a little Toronto family, sadly handicapped owing to the War. The young husband suffered a serious head wound at Passchendaele. Months later, he was invalided home to his wife and two little sons.

But the trouble was not over. Violent convulsions followed. Finally the dangerous operation of removing a bone splinter from the brain was performed, and the man is recovering. Just as happiness seemed within their grasp, the wife developed tuberculosis. Never of rugged health, anxiety and care had exhausted her strength. If her life was to be saved, complete rest was imperative.

But the money——

SIR ADAM BECK PROTESTS TO PREMIER MEIGHEN

Sir Adam Beck, has, by telegram, protested to Premier Meighen against the report of Henry Holgate, engineer of Montreal, to the federal authorities, on which the latter base their refusal to grant the Hydro Electric Commission a greater flow of water for the Trent Valley Power system. Holgate reported a flow of about 1,200 cubic feet per second, whereas the Hydro records from October 1-13 show it to be from 930 to 1,050. Sir Adam states that Holgate, whose associations have been with Montreal power companies has no sympathy with Hydro. To his statement that already storage waters had been drawn upon extensively for power development, the Hydro replies that the spring surplus of water was allowed to be wastefully used in lumbering operations, and was further allowed to run away to maintain a rigid navigation level. Mr. Holgate held that lakes now are lower than they should be under normal conditions, but Hydro engineers report that since August the levels have been rising and are above regulated water level.

Sir Adam states that if there is not more co-operation on the part of the Ottawa department, the value of the Trent power system will be depreciated fifty per cent.

Paris Welcomes Canadians

M. JACQUES BARDOUX, reputed to be one of the best writers in France, contributes the following article to the Journal des Debats, of Paris:

Many years ago, when it was decided to reconstruct the Sorbonne, an architect proposed to create — or, rather, to revive—the University City of Paris. All the buildings necessary to the divers faculties were to be grouped on Ste. Genevieve Hill and constructed around the Pantheon. And thus the youth of France was to mount eternal guard over the great dead.

Under a form less complete, and in a less spectacular frame—the time has passed and the occasion is no more — the idea reappeared on the morrow of victory. M. Brunot, the distinguished dean of the Faculty of Letters, proposes to trace across the Observatory Gardens, and right up to the Gate of Orleans, a large avenue, a grand street of the University of Paris. On the two sides would rise the new buildings necessary to satisfy the growing needs of new specialization. M. Honnorat would pursue a project that would worthily crown that of M. Brunot. The street of the "Gay Savoir" would no longer terminate in space. It would have its logical termination. It would unite the Cite du Livre to the Cite des Etudiants — Ste. Genevieve and Luxembourg to the Park of Montsouris. Around the playgrounds, on the site of the fortifications, city gardens would be laid out; and a generous gift now permits us to foresee this work being carried out.

I hope that all those who, like M. Luchaire, consecrate, to the realization of this idea a great deal of their activity and a small portion of their heart, will be ready and willing to seize the present unique occasion to restore, in a manner adapted to our time and country, this collegiate outline without which no university life can be complete. How can there be created, without that institution that the Anglo-American universities have borrowed from mediaeval France, a corporate life, healthy existence, and moral traditions? Our universities will be truly cities of youth and intellect only when, intimately blended with the local life, listening inspired to all learning, they will have added to the superiority of their methods and knowledge that which Oxford and Harvard possess — students' houses grouped, in the verdure and the light, around a cloister that calls up names, and a hall that will recall the glories of past generations. Ugly furnishings and badly ventilated cafes are no longer indispensable for the formation of French genius.

And now foreign countries are asking M. Honnorat if they may not build in that university city to which the Minister would properly give his name, colleges reserved to their own countrymen? Collective houses which stood on Ste. Genevieve Hill at the dawn of modern times, when Paris, still more than Rome, was the capital of mediaeval Christianity, would thus be revived — under different names—after an interval of several centuries. The victory which puts France again within her historic limits and rebuilds on the Rhine the Roman threshold, is it to have for one result the re-establishment of the mind of France in its first preeminence and the University of Paris in her humane mission? What Frenchman is not sufficiently French to accept the augury?

The Hon. Philippe Roy, who represents the Dominion of Canada in France with so much frankness and authority, has thought that the Dominion ought, in its double origin, to be the first, on the morrow of the Franco-British peace, to build her students' house in the new city. Dedicated to the memory of her Canadian soldiers who were killed in the great war, she would thus contribute to the vitality of the land on which her men fought their last battle and where they sleep their last sleep. No better monument could be erected to proclaim their victory and perpetuate their sacrifice. Have not these volunteers who responded to the call of their King safeguarded by their death the life of France? The students' house, which would assure the moral radiance of the life of France on Canadian soil, would forever recall the memory of that Anglo-French army whose members astonished the Prussian Guard by the audacity of their patrols and the violence of their attacks.

This French radiance is necessary to Canadian unity and British security. When new talents shall come to reinforce that Canadian group, a collection of whose poems has been gathered together by Commandant Olivar Asselin in a volume of charming penetration; when many more professors shall write and speak in a French language as elegant and pure and classic as that of M. Edouard Montpetit, who was ever "at the service of the French tradition," the moral prestige and intellectual originality of the Dominion will be strong enough on the American continent to defy all the attractions. But in order to reinforce within the limits of the British Empire that Canadian independence, it is necessary that a wider interpretation of the two civilizations should consolidate the political unity. The day when English Canada understands better, and respects more, the beauties of French culture the national life will expand, and with fewer shocks, towards a future of infinite possibilities. At the present time there are a choice few Anglo-Canadians who understand it; and it is in the English-speaking provines, in Ontario notably, that the Hon. Philippe Roy has found most generous co-operation and assistance.

NIAGARA'S POWER.

May All Be Needed Some Day In Ontario.

Like the fabled New Zealander of Macaulay's Essays, who shall stand in future ages amid the broken arches of London Bridge and gaze upon the ruins of St. Paul's, so may the Canadian of a coming generation stand one day at the brink of Niagara's chasm and view the bare rocks over which the mighty cataract used to tumble. Likewise above the falls he may see a dry river bed where in bygone years the rapids roared, and below the falls a sluggish pond where once the whirlpool tossed and swirled.

What vandalism! Yes, perhaps, but stern necessity may force it. And the Niagara river from Lake Erie to Lake Ontario may one day be flowing through a pipe, so to speak, giving every whit of its energy to the manufacture of power. A future generation, through lack of coal and the development of industry, may be obliged to destroy the beauty of the falls and the river. Mayhap the people of that era will look back with wonder upon the unprogressive mortals of 1920 who allowed millions of horse-power to run waste merely because they loved to watch Erie's mighty flood racing towards blue Ontario.

Sacreligious as seems the mere suggestion, nearly the whole of Niagara's energy could be harnessed, and the day when such will be the case does not seem to be so utterly remote. To-day 425,000 horsepower is being developed along the Canadian side of the river and 300,000 on the American side—a total of 725,000 horsepower and only a fraction of that available there. Theoretically the Niagare river, which discharges 212,000 cubic feet per second, would, if completely harnessed, generate about 8,000,000 horsepower in the 20-mile course of its fall of 325 feet from Lake Erie to the level of Lake Ontario.

But like most theories, this would not work out in practice. The power actually available is considerably less. Of course the problem of the ice disposal would have to be dealt with. But allowing for this and for a loss of 20 per cent. in efficiency from the turbines, experts calculating in the most conservative way, and basing their estimates upon the average flow at low water seasons of the year, figure that Niagara fully harnessed from lake to lake, would yield a total of 4,500,000 horsepower, of which Ontario's share would be of course, 2,250,000—or five times what is now being developed there.

Niagara's too, is only a fraction of Ontario's available power. It is estimated that the St. Lawrence under the proposed international development, whose canal would make Toronto an ocean port, could be made to yield about 4,000,000 horsepower to Canada, of which a large proportion would be in Ontario. Apart from the international rivers, the St. Lawrence, Niagara, and St. Mary's—Ontario's northern rivers, the Ottawa, its adjacent streams, and the big rivers flowing into James and Hudson Bay and into Lake Superior, could render 6,000,000 horsepower.

In short, Ontario has, estimated on the average flow of the rivers in dry weather and allowing for a loss of 20 per cent. in efficiency through the turbines, a total of some 11,000,000 available horsepower, of which 10,000,000 is to-day running to waste.

Dog Saves Feline Chum.

Deuce, an Irish terrier, proved at a fire in the pet shop at 270 Livingston street, Brooklyn, that the term "cat and dog life" sometimes means the opposite of hate, combat and commotion. Deuce had been living in amity with seven blooded cats in the shop for several weeks. When the fire started he saved himself, and then watched the firemen rescue the cats. Apparently he counted them, for when the men stopped rescue work after bringing out the sixth he dashed into the burning shop and came out carrying the seventh by the scruff of its neck. Deuce had to open a cage to do it. When he released the cat on the sidewalk, the latter purred and rubbed against his legs, until the shop owner gathered up both animals and took them away.

Select the Breeding Poultry Stock.

In selecting the male always look for a vigorous, active bird, whose head is broad with a comb of bright red color. The sides of the shanks or legs should show considerable red color. Be sure that such a bird has a well-muscled breast that is straight. If possible secure one bred from a laying hen.

All that has been said of the male applies to the female. Most laying hens do not develop much internal fat on what is commonly called a crop behind. Those of the yellow-legged broods lose much of this color, and those broods having white ear lobes show very little, if any, cream color in them if the bird is a good layer. —Ontario Agricultural College Notes.

Lady Bowlers Have Good Season

Belleville Lady Bowlers Among Best In the Province

The Ladies' Bowling Club has made the Bowling Green on William street one of the most attractive places of amusement and recreation in the city.

During the whole season they have given afternoon teas on their special club day, (Thursday) at which many useful and valuable prizes have been given for competition by the hostess each week. They have thus kept up an active interest in the excellent exercise of bowling, and today the Club numbers amongst its members some of the best lady bowlers in the Province as was evidenced by the success of two rinks who went to Toronto a few weeks ago on the invitation of the Parkdale Ladies' Club supposed to be one of the best in the Province, the home rinks winning by scores of 10 to 8 and 11 to 10.

The afternoon teas have been greatly enjoyed by many invited guests and also by the members of the Men's Bowling Club, who have always been welcome guests and enjoyed not only the good things provided by the hostesses but the excellent playing in the contests for the weekly prizes.

Special interest centred last week in the finals played for the beautiful trophy presented by the President, Mrs. S. S. Lazier to the Club last year, the winners this year being the rink skipped by Mrs. Stewart Robertson, the other members of the rink being Mrs. Wagner, Mrs. M. Robertson, Mrs. Waters and Mrs. Dolan, skip.

Practice has been kept up much later than usual on account of the exceptionally fine weather. The members are very enthusiastic over the season's results and are looking forward to and expecting to make next season even more successful than this.

Home bread-making reduces the high cost of living by lessening the amount of expensive meats required to supply the necessary nourishment to the body. The increased nutritious value of bread made in the home with should be sufficient incentive to the thoughtful housewife to give this important food item the attention to which it is justly entitled. Bread made with Royal Yeast will keep fresh and moist longer than that made with any other.

Prominent Horseman Dead

The death occurred Monday of William E. Jewell, the we-llknown horseman whose fine stock farm lies a mile east of Bowmanville on the Kingston road. The cause of death was cancer in the head, from which he had suffered intense pain for a year or more. Although he received the Glover treatment, the disease had progressed too far, and he gradually declined in strength till the end came. He was 52 years of age, and had been recognized as one of the leading agriculturalists and stock farmers in Durham county. He was President for some years of West Durham Agricultural Society and had since for several years been manager of the fall exhibition. He was often an exhibitor of horses at the National Exhibition in Toronto. He is survived by his wife, one son and four daughters.

A woman from the middle west spent a few weeks in Gloucester last summer and in conversation with a new acquaintance she made known the fact that it was her very first glimpse of the ocean.

"It must have been quite a treat," remarked the other. "And how did the ocean impress you?"

"Well," was the reply, "when I saw the amount of water they have here it struck me that the fish might be a little bit cheaper."

The Coming of the War Seen by Lord Loreburn Due to Secret Diplomacy

LORD LOREBURN'S extremely interesting and valuable historical essay, "How the War Came" constitutes first of all a scathing indictment of the practical workings of secret diplomacy. It constitutes in the second place a damaging criticism of the quality of Sir Edward Grey's statesmanship.

The author is peculiarly well qualified to undertake the task in hand. As a veteran British statesman he has long been familiar with the atmosphere of the London Foreign Office and with the trend of continental politics. At the same time, as he was not connected with the Government during the war, he does not labor under the very human temptation to strain the facts a trifle in order to clear his own reputation. Moreover, he possesses the calm, dispassionate, analytical cast of mind that is indispensable for any serious and fruitful historical analysis.

Earl Loreburn describes in detail the gradual development of Anglo-French relations from the "entente cordiale" initiated by Lord Lansdowne into what was practically a defensive military alliance. This alliance, gradually cemented by secret and informal military agreements, placed Britain under an inescapable moral obligation to stand by France when the latter country was attacked by Germany. And it was this alliance not the violation of Belgian neutrality, he says, that brought Britain into the war. On August 1 Sir Edward Grey refused to give the German Ambassador any assurance that Britain would remain neutral if Belgian neutrality were respected. And on the following day he promised naval aid to France. This aid, obviously, could not have been given without at least limited participation in the war. The German ultimatum to Belgium was delivered on the evening of August 2.

Lord Loreburn points out very conclusively the danger and weakness of drifting into a secret alliance. If Parliament had kept in touch with the negotiations between the French and British Foreign Offices it could have approved or disapproved the strengthening of the bonds between the two countries. Had it approved it certainly would have felt bound to take steps to remedy Britain's unpreparedness, to create an army able to take part effectively in a continental war. Being ignorant of the obligations to which the country was committed it allowed matters to drift, with the result that a disproportionate share of the war's burdens was cast upon France.

Moreover, Sir Edward Grey's lack of frankness during the critical week which preceded the outbreak of the war, while actuated by a very sincere and laudable desire to preserve peace, had a directly contrary effect, Lord Loreburn declares. A plain statement of Britain's intention and obligation to support France would quite possibly have had a restraining influence upon the German and Austrian jingoes. Lord Loreburn does not share the theory that Germany wished to precipitate a European conflict. The German and Austrian policy was inexcusably arrogant and domineering. But the author quotes from the British White Book to show that there was a perceptible slackening of Austria's belligerency on the last two days of July, due presumably to pressure from Berlin. What chance there was of bringing Germany to reason, according to the author, would certainly have been greatly enhanced if Britain had made a clear, definite statement of her position, instead of keeping both France and Germany in the dark as to her ultimate intentions. Earl Loreburn sums up his case with convincing force when he says:

"Secret diplomacy has undergone its 'acid test' in this country. It had every chance. The voice of party was silent. The Foreign Minister was an English gentleman whom the country trusted and admired, who was wholly free from personal enmities of every kind and who wanted peace. And secret diplomacy utterly failed. It prevented us from finding some alternative for war, and it prevented us from being prepared for war, because secret diplomacy means diplomacy aloof from Parliament.

"Let us have done with it for good."

Geographical Sisters.

Miss Rose asked her eighth grade: "What are the sister states?"

Mabel answered: "I am not sure, but I should think they were Miss Ouri, Ida Ho, Mary Land, Callie Fornia, Louisa Anna, Della Ware, Minne Sota, and Mrs. Sippi."—The St. Cloud (Minn.) High School Mascot.

Its Fault.

"Did you think that joke about the antipodes was a good one?"

"I thought it was too far-fetched."

Sunday School Workers In 55th Annual Convention

TRYING TO MAKE THE SUNDAY SCHOOL MORE EFFECTIVE —"BRING THEM ALL IN" IS THE SLOGAN OF THIS GREAT GATHERING OF FAITHFUL WORKERS IN THE SUNDAY SCHOOLS, THE NURSERIES OF THE CHURCHES.

The 55th Annual Convention of the Ontario Religious Education Council or what was formerly termed the Provincial Sunday School Association, was formally opened on Tuesday afternoon at Bridge street Methodist Church. During the forenoon and the early part of the afternoon work conferences were held in the various churches and at the Y.M.C.A. building. The auditorium of Bridge street church was well filled when the President, Dr. E. A. Hardy, of Toronto, called the convention to order.

Owing to Rev. Dr. Cleaver, Pastor of the church being ill, Rev. Dr. MacGillivray, of Toronto, conducted impressive devotional exercises.

Welcomed by President

President Hardy in a few well-chosen remarks welcomed the delegates and spoke generally of the work before the convention. He voiced the opinion that we are on the threshold of a great church movement which will mean much for the advancement of the Kingdom of Christ on earth.

Mayor Riggs being called upon was heartily received. He delivered the following message of welcome:

Mayor's Welcome

Mr. Chairman and Delegates to this Sunday School Convention which I now see goes by the name of "The Ontario Religious Education Council":

It gives me great pleasure to extend to you a hearty welcome to our City on the occasion of your 55th Annual Convention.

As one who has served his time in Sunday school work, both as a Superintendent and as a teacher, I consider that such a gathering as yours, represents the very highest form of Christian Service.

When I read the long list of eminent speakers and leaders on your program I felt that at last the Sunday School has come into its own in the life of the Christian Church and that the children of to-day are indeed fortunate. When these outstanding men and ministers of our churches are willing to give their time and talents and experience to train and inspire a band of Sunday school workers' such as I see before me today, it augurs well for the future of our Canadian citizenship and Christian character and for the organized forces of religion in Canada.

I remember reading about a distinguished botanist who went to Scotland to study the blue-bell. One day when he was kneeling among these lovely flowers, he noticed a shadow falling across his shoulders. At first he thought it was a cloud passing over the sun but it turned out to be the burly form of a highland shepherd. "What are you doing?" asked the shepherd. Studying the blue-bells replied the botanist, "have a look at one", and he showed the shepherd all the exquisite beauty of a Scottish blue bell, and when the shepherd had seen it with the eyes and the soul of that botanist, what do you think he said? He turned to the botanist and said, "Sir I am sorry I have seen it," "why so?" said the botanist, and the shepherd answered, "because I have crushed so many of them with these hob-nailed boots of mine."

It is appalling the child life that has been crushed in years gone by, through the neglect, indifference and ignorance of the Christian church.

But I am glad to have lived to see this day of appreciation of the value and beauty and possibilities of child life, and your attitude as delegates to this Sunday School Convention is expressed in those beautiful words of the poet—

"Ye are better than all the ballads,
That ever were sung or sair;
For ye are the living poems,
And all the rest are dead."

I sincerely hope, that as a result of your gatherings this week, the great institution of the Sabbath school and of Christian education generally, may receive a real uplift, and that you, yourselves, may have the brightest of all rewards for your noble endeavors, namely—the approval of Christ, the friend of all little children, and the co-operation of all who believe in your work.

Again I welcome you and pray God's blessing upon all your services.

Rev. H. A. Abraham

Hon. N Parliament was expected to reply to the adress of welcome, but in his absence, Rev. H. A. Abraham, of Guelph did so in a manner that was most pleasing. He thanked the mayor on behalf of the delegates for the hearty welcome extended. In reply to the privileges which we enjoy the speaker said, we sometimes forget that they are the result of religious teaching. We enjoy democratic liberties and privileges which have been bequeathed to us by our forebears. It is for us to carry on in Ontario this supreme work especially in these critical times. All should be imbued with a desire to uplift our citizenship. The kindly expressions of the Mayor of Belleville are reciprocated.

Professor Langford

Rev. Prof. F. Langford, Professor of Religious Education, Victoria University, gave an address, his subject being: "Bring them all in." This should be the slogan of our ambition and work for the coming year. Let us see our task in personal terms. Who are we to bring in; First there is that group that will come in where a new Sunday school is opened. Bring them all in and keep them. It is estimated that in the United States there are millions of children who do not attend any Sunday school. Our enrollment of Sunday school scholars is some 600,000 in Ontario, but this does by any means cover the number does not by any means cover the number ther are who should be attendents at Sunday schools. We should raise the standard of our Sunday schools and bring them up to an all round efficiency. We should take a census of our community and get in personal touch with the children who are non-attendants at school. Bring them in and link them up in the work.

The meeting closed with the singing of the National Anthem.

Evening Session

The evening session was opened by a service of song in charge of Mr. W. K. LeDrew of Toronto, followed by scripture reading and prayer by Rev. Rural Dean Swayne, Rector of Christ church, Belleville.

Mr. C. W. Bishop, of Toronto, National Secretary of the Y.M.C.A. gave an address, the subject of which was: "The Accelerated Progress of Christian Missions." In his opening remarks the speaker said that degrees to which the missionary theme is emphasized in our Sunday schools might be intensified. The spread of the gospel of Jesus Christ to all lands and all peoples, is accelerating there is no doubt. The work of the christian church is spreading rapidly in many foreign countries. It is a course that was with our grandparents and is with us and our children and generations unborn. It is a course that clothes itself with different aspects; it was one thing to our fathers and it is another thing to us. In China with a population of 400 millions it would be a christian nation in less than one generation if each christian in that country made a convert each year. Tens of thousands are yearly added to the Protestant churches and this is due largely to co-operation by the various missionary societies. The acceleration of the mission cause in foreign fields is due to many causes. Concentration of mission societies has had a great influence for good. In closing the speaker made a special appeal to those engaged in Sunday school work to impress upon the scholars the necessity of assistin in mission work.

Religion in Education

"The place of Religion in Education" was the subject of a masterly address given by Prof. M. A. Honline, of Dayton, Ohio, Associate Superintendent Education Department, International S. S. Association. The learned speaker in referring to the child, said he is what he is by heredity, what he has is his environment and the question was what is he going to do with it. Good seed, good soil and good cultivation was necessary for a good crop. It takes good seed and good soil to produce a good human crop. Every child the speaker said, had a right to be properly born. Every child is born or should be born with intellectual, physical, social and religious capabilities which must be properly developed. Nature makes us religious but nurture makes us denominational. It behooves us to develop

Attempt To Raise Revolt In Britain Revealed In Court

STATED LETTER FROM SYLVIA PANKHURST TO LENINE FOUND ON MAN OPERATING BETWEEN REVOLUTIONARIES—SENSATIONAL CHARGES MADE IN BOW STREET COURT.

LONDON, Oct. 26. — Sensational charges were made in Bow Street Police Court today against a mysterious man of undivulged nationality who, the Government attorney declared, has been acting between members of revolutionary circles in this country and the Russian revolutionists.

The Government attorney said that among the letters found on the accused was one from Sylvia Pankhurst to Nikolai Lenine, Premier of Soviet Russia, saying:

"The situation is most acute; not ready for revolution yet."

The accused declined to answer questions put to him. He was remanded for a week.

Red Plan as Revealed.

The following are the main points in the plan of campaign advocated by the British Communist Party, and instigated by Moscow. They are set forth as follows by various delegates at a secret conference held in Gorebrook Hall, Knutsford Road, Gorton, near Manchester, and called for the purpose of hearing the report of Miss Sylvia Pankhurst, who on her return from Moscow, as on her outward journey, had succeeded in evading the British passport requirements.

Main Objective.

Armed revolution.

Preliminary Activities.

Propaganda in dockyards.

Smash trade unions, and take control of strikes.

Use starving ex-service men and their children as a means to spread Bolshevik doctrines.

A detective force to be formed to "watch" capitalists and other marked men.

Trusted members to carry the campaign into Government departments, wireless stations, foundries, and factories generally.

Others to work their way into the Councils of Action (organized by the extremist trade unionists) with a view to controlling strikes.

No communist to vote at elections, local or parliamentary.

A house-to-house campaign throughout the country, using the "no rent" cry as propaganda.

It was added that classes were now being held to teach members how to erect barricades, and men were being trained as officers to command the revolutionary army. Drilling should be carried on openly as was now being done in Fifeshire and Lanarkshire. The police were wrong in thinking these men were Sinn Feiners; they were all Communists with the exception of about 50, and were preparing to seize the mines.

Miss Sylvia Pankhurst and a delegate from Glasgow had a lengthy interview with Lenine in Moscow, who declared that he was very optimistic with regard to England.

Revolution in England was the only thing that would "save" Russia, he said, and he proposed that the next "International" should be held here about four months hence, and he would also welcome delegates from England to study Bolshevik methods.

The conspiracy is only in its early stages. The total number of Communists of all sections is stated at between 5,000 and 6,000. Of them, 410 are pronounced revolutionaries. That may seem a small number, but it is within the power of 400 assassins to start a blaze which will not be easily overcome.

It would appear that Lenine and Trotsky had also laid upon Pankhurst the duty of co-ordinating and uniting the various Communist sections in Great Britain. Whether or not this will be accomplished remains to be seen. The actual revolutionary Communists are not apparently a numerous body yet, but in London they have already branches in Hammersmith, Bow, Barking, Camberwell, Soho and other districts, while in the provinces their greatest strength is in Glasgow, Manchester, Hull, etc.

Certain significant facts were brought out at the conference, viz., that so little do the Communist "comrades" trust each other that each is to be shadowed by another, so that in case of the arrest of one he "cannot confess where the party papers are," and Miss Sylvia Pankhurst announces that all revolutionary literature was never stored at headquarters, but was made into small parcels and left at the cloakrooms of different railway stations, underground and otherwise in fictitious names.

Hines Confessed To Murder Of Son

Coroner's Jury Brought in Verdict of Murder Against Father

The inquest to enquire into the cause of the death of George Albert Hines, two years of age, was held in the Police Court room of the Town Hall, Port Hope, Monday evening. Coroner Aldrich presided and Mr. W. F. Kerr was present on behalf of the Crown.

Albert Hines, father of the boy, who has been under arrest, made a confession to the effect that he left Cobourg on September 23rd, and carried the boy along the railway track to the woods at Port Britain. Here he cut the little fellow's throat and concealed the body behind some trees. Hines then walked to Newcastle where he had dinner at the hotel and then took the train for Niagara Falls. He could give no reason for the terrible crime. Chief Ruse produced the large jack knife which Hines was carrying when arrested. In the little grove of the large blade are several little blood clots and the knife will be sent to Toronto for analysis.

The jury brought in a verdict that George Albert Hines came to his death in the Township of Hope on or about September 23rd, 1920, and that Albert Hines by cutting the throat of the child with a knife did kill and murder the said Albert George Hines. Hines was present during the evening and he followed the evidence very closely. Since he tried to commit suicide he has been obliged to grow a beard. This with his long hair and a dark shirt without a collar gave him a rather haggard appearance.

The prisoner was taken back to Cobourg and will appear in court on a charge of murder.

MANAGER AND OTHERS ACCUSED OF THEFT

Windsor, Oct. 24.—Charged with entering the premises of the Tanlac Company in Walkerville, Davis A. McKinney, Manager of the branch with John M. Vicary and William Turtle, all of Walkerville, have been summoned to appear before Police Magistrate Myers Tuesday. It is alleged that the men took one hundred gallons of alcohol from the factory of the Tanlac Company, had it conveyed to an up-river point, and then smuggled it across the river to Detroit.

Reform Planned For All Prisons In The Dominion

Royal Commission Appointed Following Strike of Convicts at Kingston Penitentiary.

OTTAWA, Oct. 27.—Col. O. M. Biggar, K.C., W. F. Nickle, K.C., ex-member of Parliament for Kingston, and P. M. Draper, Secretary of the Trades and Labor Congress of the Dominion, have been named a royal commission under the Inquiries Act to draft a new set of regulations for the penitentiaries of the Dominion. The need of this being done has been emphasized by recent developments at Kingston Penitentiary, but for some time past preliminary drafts of new regulations have been made by officials of the penitentiaries branch.

Use Prison Labor.

The commission will also look into the question of the possibilities of the utilization of prison labor for the making of articles required by the Government. In past years organized labor has been opposed to any competition from prison labor and it is still strongly adverse to the products of the penitentiaries being placed on the market in competition with the products of free labor. Little objection is now taken, however, to the Government utilizing prison labor for the making of goods required by the Government.

It is understood that the Department of Justice is inclined to the view that good would result if convicts could be given opportunity to earn some money during the terms of their imprisonment.

In the case of married men earnings could be used for the support of families, while unmarried men would have something on which to make a fresh start at the end of their terms.

The Use of Tobacco.

The commission will look into all aspects of the labor question in the penitentiaries. It is also probable that it will take up the question of the use of tobacco in the penitentiaries. At present it is supplied only to convicts laboring at certain tasks, such as sewer work. Other convicts receive allowances of tobacco only on the doctors' orders.

In connection with the framing of new regulations it is thought probable that a plan may be adopted for the exchange of guards as the best means of preventing a system of trafficking between guards and inmates, which is one of the most difficult things to guard against in connection with the administration of penitentiaries.

Bandits Locked Up Chief Of Police

Daring Coup by "Knights of the Gat" Performing in Rollicking Wild West Fashion.

CHICAGO, Oct. 26.—In rollicking wild west fashion four "Knights of the Gat" swooped down upon North Chicago last evening, shot up Andre Puchin's general merchandise store, at Eleventh street and Sheridan Road, locked eighteen persons and the chief of police in the basement, robbed the safe of $10,000 and escaped.

Their easy, workmanlike manner convinced the victims that the robbers hail from Chicago. They completed the job in fifteen minutes. Almost as their automobile was driving away from the store, Mrs. Catherine Pucin, who lives across the street, was telephoning the police station.

The news was flashed to all towns south as far as Chicago and north to Milwaukee. Guards were posted at all roads with orders to stop all cars. But no trace of the robbers was obtained.

Eighteen customers were in the store when the robbers entered. They, including Chief of Police Hemmick, of North Chicago, were lined up against the wall, as were the clerks, and a harvest of watches and cash was garnered.

Chief Hemmick yielded a star, a revolver and a pair of handcuffs.

"Well," observed one of the robbers as he rolled a cigarette, "you must be a policeman."

The chief was silent, inasmuch as the robber had a loaded revolver against his stomach.

OFFER HUGE BRIBES TO REAP BIG PROFITS

Windsor, Oct. 25.—Referring to the temptations held out by the bootleggers to License Department officials, Rev. Mr. Spracklin, special officer, stated that one of his men had been offered $3,000 for information regarding the whereabouts of the license inspectors for a single night.

It is now up to the citizens of Belleville to be ready when the canvasser calls. It is a mission of love that they come on—so greet them with a smile and a liberal contribution.

The organizations behind the Navy League speak well for the worthiness of the organization they represent,—The Lions' Club, The Rotary Club, and the G.W.V.A. have put their shoulder to the wheel to make it a great success.

The following are the officers of the drive:

CAMPAIGN NOTES

Another worthy Institution and organization has been lined up to aid the Navy League Campaign, namely, St. Agnes' School.

With the Lions, The Rotarians and the G.W.V.A. behind the campaign—what better support could any object have.

Capt. Boal is working night and day to put this campaign across and Belleville will see that his energies and enthusiasm are not wasted.

$7000.00 and then some more is the objective—Come on Belleville and let's live up to our past glorious achievements and records.

Says Motor Boat Was Set On Fire

Rev. Spracklin Denies That Vessel Has Been Destroyed

WINDSOR, Oct. 26.—Rev. J. O. L. Spracklin, special license inspector, declares he has not the slightest intention of quitting his job. He says rumors that he would resign have been spread by factions opposing him.

"This fight has only begun," said Mr. Spracklin, "and I am going to see it through. There is a well-organized attempt to discredit me and my work but I am going to fight it down.

"I am going to hire some new assistants to take the place of men recently dismissed at the request of M. N. Mousseau, chief license inspector and will fight the liquor traffic to the limit. I shall not submit to Mousseau's dictation as to my activities, as I was appointed as special license inspector. If Mr. Mousseau doesn't like the way I am doing, let him quit. I shan't."

Reports that the Leopard, Mr. Spracklin's speed boat was destroyed by fire are said to be untrue by Mr. Spracklin.

"She was only slightly damaged," said the minister. "I believe she was set on fire.

To Clip The Wings Of Doctor Stork

LONDON, Oct. 27.—"The German society for the international regulation of the population" is on the trail of "old Doctor Stork," and intends, if possible, to clip the old bird's wings.

The society, which has just been organized in Berlin asserts that the only way to prevent future wars is to curtail the stork's activities, thus preventing the manufacture of cannon fodder for those terrible governments which are now busily engaged in fostering and encouraging increases in the population.

"There are too many people on earth. Their number must be reduced. If future wars are to be avoided the wings of the stork must be clipped and the birth rate reduced. The world war was nature's way of reducing the number of humans who were overburdening the earth."

Thus declares "Der Mensch Erde Bund" or "Mankind Tarth League" which has been organized and registered in Berlin by Wilhelm Doms, artist and sociological writer, together with others. Its official name is the "German Society for the International Regulation of Population."

Vengeance Expedition Was Halted At Kingstown

EIGHT MEN ARRESTED WHEN ABOUT TO BOARD A SHIP FOR ENGLAND—ALLEGED TO BE SINN FEINERS BENT ON REPRISALS FOR MACSWENEY'S DEATH.

LONDON, Oct. 27.—A "vengeance expedition" of eight Sinn Feiners en route to England to attempt reprisals for the death of Lord Mayor MacSweney was apprehended today at Kingstown, Ireland, the Irish Office announced.

During MacSweney's hunger strike, it was reported that Lloyd George was marked for assassination if the Lord Mayor were permitted to die.

The eight men, described as "desperate characters," were seized by soldiers as they were about to board a boat for Holyhead, the nearest English land.

The men are said to have been wearing Sinn Fein uniforms under their outer garments and to have been carrying a number of disguises. The party was bent on criminal enterprises in reprisal for MacSweney's death, the Irish Office declared.

The eight were believed to be from Cork, and not connected with MacSweney's funeral bodyguard.

The men were dragged to shore and placed under military arrest. They maintained a defiant attitude while they were being searched.

Soldiers stripped off the civilian garments to reveal the uniforms beneath. The hand-bag carried by one of the party yielded four disguises.

All Irish ports were under close watch with instructions to soldiers on duty to see that no other "vengeance" party boarded ship.

When The Day Is Over

When the household cares and the worries of everyday life have dragged you down, made you unhappy, and there is nothing in life but headache, backache and worry, turn to the right prescription, one gotten up by Dr. Pierce fifty years ago.

Everything growing out of the ground seems intended for some use in establishing natural conditions. Dr. Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y., long since found out what is naturally best for women's diseases. He learned it all through treating thousands of cases. The result of his studies was a medicine called Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. This medicine is made of vegetable growths that nature surely intended for backache, headache, weakening pains, irregularities, and for the many disorders common to women in all ages of life.

Orillia, Ont.:—"I suffered from a bad case of woman's trouble with backache, nervousness, disordered digestion, irregularity and I had great pain all the time, sometimes I would faint at my work. I had one physician after another but they did me no good. I then took Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and it fixed me up all right, I look much better and feel fine. I will recommend the 'Prescription' to all suffering as I did."—MRS. MAYBELLE B. GRATRIX, 115 Albert St.

LOST TOPS OF FINGERS

Mr. H. Muir, injured at the Elliott Mfg. Co., Monday was not as seriously injured as reported. He lost the tops of two fingers only.

MOTHER ALLOWANCES

The local Board of the Mother's Allowance Commission met Tuesday evening in the Mayor's office of the City Hall, when nine applications were received and dealt with. The powers of the Board are restricted only to mothers who have two or more children under fourteen years of age and whose fathers are dead or completely incapacitated from work. This benefit is not only for the children of soldiers or those whose fathers were engaged in mechanical labor but for all mothers who come under the above class. A misapprehension has gotten abroad, that the members of the local board receive remuneration for their services. This is incorrect as the services of all members of the board are given gratuitously. Another meeting will be held next week of which due notice will be given in the newspapers.

EXPENSIVE DOGS

At Clarke Township Council meeting on Tuesday a bill of $571.50 was passed for sheep killed by dogs. Of the above amount Mr. L. Buckley received $204 for sheep killed.

ILL-TREATED CATTLE

Barney Navin, who resides near Peterbor, was by Mr. R. C. Smith, Inspector of the Humane Society prosecuted for ill-treating his cattle. The case lasted all day, and Navin was fined twenty dollars and costs.

HEART TROUBLE

In most instances is merely an adaptative symptom of some other trouble—usually of the stomach. Oftentimes the most severe heart pains are caused by nothing more than undue pressure in the region of the heart. This gaseous distention as we have said, is probably due to an abnormal condition of the stomach. When the stomach is provided with its normal supply of mental impulses the abnormal gaseous condition disappears, the pressure is removed from the region of the heart and the pains, palpitation or other defects in the functioning of that organ disappear.

If the trouble is directly with the heart, the results which the Chiropractor gets in a vast majority of cases are very remarkable. It is a common experience of the Chiropractor to take cases that have been exceedingly stubborn in responding to other forms of so-called treatment. The fact that these cases did get excellent results under Chiropractic adjustments are matters of record in the offices of Chiropractors. Your case should not be an exception in responding to Chiropractic adjustments.

CATTLE MARKETS

TORONTO LIVE STOCK.

TORONTO, Oct. 26.—With around 5,000 cattle on sale yesterday at the Union Yards trade generally was very dull, and the quality mostly inferior, though some good loads were sold, as the prices will indicate. The market generally was no higher than last week and some of the buyers were of the opinion that the better class of butchers were from 15c to 25c stronger.

There was a fair inquiry for good and choice butcher cattle and breedy feeding cattle to go back to the country. Other classes were generally slow and lower. Choice butcher cows sold well, as there was a fair to good demand for this class of cattle.

Good to choice milkers and springers were bringing satisfactory prices, but the common and medium class were none too strong.

The run was 4,937 cattle, 497 calves, was a good inquiry for canners.

The run was 4,9377 cattle, 497 calves, 1,850 hogs, and 2,515 sheep and lambs.

Americans Flocking to Canada.

LONDON, Ont., Oct. 26.—Declaring that a rush of unemployed men from the United States has already begun, and that the stream will increase as the winter approaches, members of the Central Veterans' Council of London announce that they intend to have the council present a memorial to the Dominion Government praying that the immigration laws be rigidly enforced so as to prevent the glutting of the Canadian labor market and a consequent cutting of wages.

Information received here by the Veterans is to the effect that in very many American cities large numbers of men have been laid off by the various industries, especially by auto factories, and that such men are flocking to this country to secure work.

It is claimed that already the effect is being felt in this city, where labor is becoming more plentiful and wages are dropping.

Airman Establishes Record.

HALIFAX, N.S., Oct. 26. — Capt. H. A. Wilson, of Montreal, established an eastern air record on Saturday, when in company with Major L. S. Breader, D.S.O., inspector of the Certificate Branch of the Canadian Air Board, he piloted a hydroplane from Riviere du Loup and Fredericton, N.B., and covered the last leg of the journey in two hours and twenty minutes.

The planes usually take from two hours and a half to three hours to cover this leg of the trans-Canada air route.

The plane, which was aided by a strong north wind, arrived here at 5.15 p.m. There was a heavy sea running in the harbor, but the plane made a perfect landing off the station.

Fifty British girls arrive in Toronto for domestic service.

MUSIC AND DRAMA

"THE WANDERER"

Announced as "the biggest dramatic spectacle on tour" it is said that "The Wanderer" which will be seen at "Griffin's Opera House next Monday night November 1st for one night only, possesses such dramatic interest that when its wonderful polychromatical pagentry has long been forgotten the thrill and appeal of its story still will be remembered. "The Wanderer," who is none other than the well-known Prodigal Son will appear in this city.

The master genius of the American stage, David Belasco, groomed the Prodigal Son for his appearance in "The Wanderer" and Messrs. Comstock and Gest who are the producers of this colossal stage spectacle, are said to have been most lavish in providing scenic and costumic settings of un-precedented opulence.

An all-star cast, consisting of such well-known favorites as Frederick Lewis, Mabel Griffith, Dwight Dana, Charlotte Wynters, Fred Mosley, Charles Cline, Margaret Bryn, John Dougherty and others to the number of one hundred will be brought here as well as numerous sheep, goats and pigs, which are a big feature of the first act of "The Wanderer."

TOT OF THREE DOES MOVIE "GLAD DANCE"

Many who view Mary Pickford's first United Artists Corporation picture, "Pollyanna," when it is shown at Griffin's to-night for the last time will wonder where she learned the quaint little dance which features her "glad" visits to Mrs. Snow, the invalid.

After Miss Pickford and her director, Paul Powell, had figured for several days on different steps and after Little Mary had even hired half a dozen children to dance for her that she might watch their steps and study their actions in an earnest search for "kid business," she finally got just the steps she wanted from her little niece and namesake, Mary Pickford Rupp.

This little girl, just past three, came to visit her famous auntie one afternoon, and was quite surprised to find her garbed as a little girl and indulging in all sorts of queer and awkward antics calculated to represent a child's efforts at dancing. Thinking it some kind of a game, little Miss Rupp insisted on joining the party, whereupon both Director Powell and Miss Pickford were treated to a great surprise—for in her quaint romping they found exactly the steps they were seeking for the "glad dance."

CURTAIN AT 8.10

The great rush for seats for "The Maid of the Mountains," indicates that every seat will be filled when the curtain goes up Thursday evening at 8.10. Patrons are requested to be in their seats by eight o'clock as the doors will be closed at 8.10 and no one admitted until after the first act.

TRY IT YOURSELF

Theodore R. Melch, of 550 West One Hundred and Fifty-seventh street, New York, who is a screen admirer of Mary Pickford, makes the following interesting story by using the titles of the many photoplays in which Miss Pickford has appeared:

"A Good Little Devil" told "Tess of the Storm Country" that "Cinderella" was "Such a Little Queen" that even "The Eagle's Mate" loved her. "Caprice" took "Mistress Nell" "Behind the Scenes" to see "Fanchon the Cricket" in "The Bishop's Carriage." "Esmerelda" said that her "Little Pal," "Poor Little Peppina" was a "Girl of Yesterday" because when she saw "The Foundling" she wept. "Hulda From Holland" told "Madam Butterfly" that the "Dawn of a Tomorrow" would see "The Poor Little Rich Girl" in "Rags." "The Pride of the Clan" said that the "Eternal Grind" was making her feel "Less Than the Dust," but the "Little American" told her that the "Hoodlum" was worse off. "Rebecca of Sunny Brook Farm" declared that a "Romance of the Redwoods" is always beautiful. "The Little Princess" told "Amarilly of Clothes Line Alley" that "Stella Maris" "Heart's Adrift." "M'liss" declared "How Could You, Jean?" when he proposed. "When my Johanna Enlists' in the army of wives, I'll turn into a 'Captain Kidd, Jr.' of happiness," was the reply of her "Daddy Long Legs," who had left his "Heart o' the Hills" with "Pollyanna."

INCENDIARY FIRE

William M. Horsey, Police Magistrate of Bowmanville, sustained a loss of more than $4,000 by the burning of his farm buildings. His country residence is on Westmount, across Barber's Creek, so situated that the firemen were unable to do more than prevent the fire spreading into the nearby woods, so that as there was no insurance, and two seasons' crop of hay were in the barn, and some pieces of valuable furniture, including a $500 sideboard, were stored in the drive, the loss is great. No doubt exists but that the fire was of incendiary origin, and suspicion rests on a man seen hiding in the grass on the Toronto-Eastern track, only an hour before the fire broke out.

DOYLES DRUG STORE

"BONE DRY" EFFECTIVE BEFORE END OF YEAR

Ottawa, Oct. 27.—While the three prairie Provinces and Nova Scotia have voted a ban upon the importation of intoxicating liquors it is in the discretion of the Secretary of State to declare when the ban shall become effective. Imports shall be illegal only when "proclaimed" so by the Governor-in-Council on recommendation of the Secretary of State. Until such proclamation is made there will no doubt be a feverish rush on the part of the vanquished "wets" to provide against the long drought ahead.

It is intimated here that two months will elapse before the proclamation issues. The prohibition forces, elated by their victory, will no doubt press strongly for an immediate enforcement of the ban for which the electors have fairly decisively spoken, and will represent that the only reason for delay must be a desire on the part of the Government to permit an opportunity for the replenishing of empty cellars. On the other hand "moderationist" forces are likely to urge the alleged injustice to rural "dry" centres imposing their will on urban "wets."

As soon as the proclamation issues conditions in these Provinces will be similar to those under the War-time which expired on January 1st last.

BETTER VISION THROUGH SCIENTIFIC OPTOMETRY

Save Your Eyes

Nerve energy

NERVE energy is the commodity most needed to successfully fight the battles of life.

Your eyes use many times more nerve energy than any other organ of the body. The nerve energy consumed in seeing, for instance, is twenty times that used in hearing.

If your vision is faulty, or if your eyes are focussing improperly, you are burning up nerve energy that ought to go into the business of living.

Do not go along wondering if your eyes need attention.

If you are not sure about your eyes, MAKE SURE.

Consult an Optometrist this very day! He knows.

Taking the In Out of Indigestion

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets Are Nicely Balanced to Enable You to Eat What You Like Without Distress

Indigestion is about the most universal complaint of mankind. And when the stomach is sour, gassy bloated-like and you get that peculiar bilious taste in the mouth due to indigestion or dyspepsia there is nothing more relieving than one or two Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets.

Many people are afraid of nearly all the good old savory dishes, the fried eggs, sausage, steak and onions and so on, as they usually experience the peculiar acidity which often follows such food. But Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablts were designed to supply the stomach with the alkaline effect to offset the acid condition. For this reason many physicians recommend these tablets and you can get them in any drug store at 60 cents a box.

HUGE BALLOON PASSED OVER TORONTO

Toronto, Oct. 27.—Although, owing to the clouds, it could not be seen, a balloon which is taking part in the great international race, passed over Toronto Monday. A printed greeting was dropped from the balloon and was found by A. W. Adams, at Lorne Park. The circular reads: "This is a report from the balloon 'Belgica', Lieut. Ernest DeMuyter, pilot; Lieut Mathieu Labrosse, aide, that left Birmingham, Alabama, at 4.30 p.m. Saturday, Oct. 23, in the international balloon race.

It goes on to request the finder to inform the press where and when the slip is found so that the country at large may follow the course of the balloon.

Mr. Adams has filled up the report and sent it to the Birmingham Age-Herald.

COX'S PROMISE IS CALLED WICKED

London, Oct. 27.—Governor Cox's promise to bring the cause of Ireland before the "bar of public opinion" was condemned by the Globe today as "not only impertinent, but wicked."

"If he were really, as President, to attempt to carry out his promise, it could only be done at a cost of fratricidal war," the Globe said. "If the Americans view that prospect with the same horror as ourselves they had better clap a muzzle on Cox."

Political Jig Dancers Says Premier

WINNIPEG, Oct. 26.—A defence of the Government's course over the past three years, an attack on what he termed the "political jig dancing" of Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King in his present western tour, and a statement on the Government's tariff policy, featured the address here of Hon. Arthur Meighen, Premier of Canada, in the opening meeting of his tour of the western provinces. He was preceded by Hon. J. A. Calder, who is to accompany him on his trip, and who reviewed briefly what he considered some of the outstanding achievements of the Government in recent years.

What Tariff Must Be.

"There must be," said Premier Meighen, "such a tariff as will make it pay Canadian industries to remain in Canada, and make it pay industries to grow and to make goods within this country. Up to that point and not beyond that point, the tariff in Canada on any class of goods should be. I ask the people of Winnipeg, if you first of all decide that you must take account of the needs of industry and the need of keeping them in this country, can you possibly adopt a more restricted principle than that? We do not intend to go further. There is no value whatever in a tariff that does less. I do not see how to find out what is necessary except by the most careful and thorough enquiry that can be made. That is the course the Government is pursuing, and before the electors of this country are asked to decide between our course and the vagaries of our various oppositions, they will have a definite tariff from us in black and white. By the principle I have defined, by the limits I have clearly set out, that tariff will be constructed.

GAVE LITTLE GIRLS POISONED CAKES

Sarnia, Oct. 27.—The city police opened an inquiry into the narrow escape from death by poisoning of Margaret Cowley, four-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. Cowley, Maxwell street, and Leila Causley, five-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Causley, residing on the same street. The little girls ate portions of cakes given them, which were later discovered to have been poisoned. When one of the girls had consumed a portion of the cake, she was noticed by her mother, and asked what she was eating. In response she ran over and showed the cake, remarking that it had some "funny stuff on it." Examination revealed that it was smeared with rat poison. A physician was hurriedly summoned and antidotes given to counteract the effects of the poison. Barring serious after-effects, the girls are out of danger.

CHOCOLATE ORGY FOLLOWS VICTORY

Toronto, Oct. 27.—It is sppposed the phrase, "What'll you have?" is a dead language, according to the burlesque comedians. But the Rev. Ben Spence, secretary of the Dominion Alliance, readily found a substitute with which to greet his visitors. The well-known temperance reformer was in high spirits at the news of the dry victories in the West, and couldn't resist the desire to celebrate. Instead of the customary "What'll you have?" he said, "Have one or two!"

But the one or two consisted of chocolates from a huge box which he had brought in specially for the occasion. "It was a famous victory. Let's celebrate,' said Mr. Spence, by way of greeting.

A FRIENDLY AMERICAN.

U. S. Weekly Supports Canada In Pulp Policy.

With a little mild criticism thrown in, the New Republic (New York) takes the stand for Canada against Senator Underwood's proposals of retaliation for our wood pulp policy.

"Ten years ago," explains the New Republic, "the Provinces of Ontario, Quebec and New Brunswick enacted laws prohibiting the export of unmanufactured wood from the crown lands. (There were not then nor are there to-day restrictions on the exportation of wood from private lands, nor any restrictions on the export of pulp or paper.) It does not appear that these enactments were met with objection at the time of their passage. But there is to-day complaint from certain American manufacturers who leased portions of the crown lands prior to the restrictions subject, as they must have known, to the right of the provinces to exercise their proper police power over the disposition of Canadian produce."

Senator Underwood says this: "We should appoint a commission and let them (the Canadians) know that if they are not willing to yield we will ask this commission to report in what shape an embargo shall lay on their backs until they quit. I intend that the bill shall have a big stick in it, and if they are not going to do the fair thing we will make them."

"To force Canada," thinks this paper, "to increase her export of pulpwood would hasten the exhaustion of the North American supply and would directly impoverish forests which export 85 per cent. of their print-paper manufacture to the United States. It is true that the provincial restrictions are not adequate; that they look to the protection of Canadian mills rather than to an absolute prohibition on cutting. But in their effect they are necessarily conservative measures. And the remedy for the present paper stringency in the United States is an international policy of conservation and reforesting, not an international misunderstanding resulting from the trade grievance of a few promoters of industry, and the fulminations of any angry Senator."

On a wider aspect of the issue, the New Republic says satirically, "the right of international industries to dominate the foreign policy of the United States is not, perhaps, established to the satisfaction of the constitutional lawyers. But there is no doubt in the minds of directors and stockholders that the prerogative exists. The control of Mexico all but assured, they turn naturally and hopefully to the problem of Canada. Any attempt on the part of the Canadians to conserve their forests is considered an affront to the majesty of the United States."

Writing in the same paper, William Weber says: "The shortage of printing paper is the result not so much of the exhaustion of our natural supply of pulpwood but of the treatment meted out to the producers of pulpwood by the paper mills. The Department of Forestry at Washington as well as the corresponding officials of our states report still large areas of woodland available for pulpwood. It is only a comparatively narrow strip of land, running parallel to our railroads, about three miles wide on either side, and the banks of our navigable rivers which are cleared of trees suitable for pulpwood."

After detailed analysis of costs, Mr. Weber says it is not profitable for private owners to produce pulpwood.

His solution is like this:

"If our paper mills could make up their minds to treat the owner of pulpwood as they compel their customers to treat them, there would be no scarcity of paper. It is easy enough to ascertain the cost of raising pulpwood. That includes, of course, the cost of the land on which it grows, the taxes paid for the same labor to improve the growth of pulpwood trees as well as interest on the money invested. Suppose the farmer was allowed six per cent. interest on his investment and dealth with fairly, he would undoubtedly prefer to leave his poorer land covered with scrub pine insead of clearing it for agricultural purposes. For the latter choice requires an immense amount of labor and a large capital without promising immediate returns. A regular income from his woods would enable him to employ the whole year around a number of good workers who would help him during the farming season to raise better and more abundant crops."

Decayed Shell Fish.

In most of the bays indenting the shores of Prince Edward Island are found extensive deposits of mussel mud, so called locally, being organic remains of countless generations of oysters, mussels, clams, and other shell fish. The shells, usually more or less intact, are found embedded in dense deposits of a mud-like substance, and this combination is a fertilizer of high value and potency. It supplies lime and organic matter, besides small quantities of phosphates and alkalies. An ordinary dressing of it has a very marked beneficial effect on the poor and most exhausted soils. The shells decay slowly year by year, throwing off a film of fertilizing materials. The deposits around Prince Edward Island vary from 5 feet to 25 feet in depth. They are taken up by dredging machines, worked from rafts in summer or from the ice in winter.

A UNITED CANADA
NO EAST, NO WEST.

Premier Meighen is touring the West, where he will beard the free trade lion in its den and spread the gospel of a greater Canada with selfishness eliminated as far as possible ,each for all and all for each. Canadians must co-operate and view national questions in a national way, for a vision which can not rise above the chimney-pots of our own community is of very little value in the upbuilding of a great nation.

Canada's agricultural interests must be protected and so must the manufacturing industries—there must be a working understanding between all classes for the general good of all, and selfish interests must be eliminated if Canada is to rise above the level of detached parishes and become the great nation which her advantages entitle her to be.

Premier Meighen has a message for the prairie and the mountains, the cities and the hamlets of the great and growing west, and it is a message of true Canadianism, the same message which he has delivered frankly and freely in the east in plain words which none may misunderstand, the message of a greater Canada to greater Canadians—a call to put Canadianism above party politics and work together for the progress and prosperity of all Canada.

The West being wide and broad and peopled by big-hearted, open-minded men and women, will heed the message and rebuke the false prophets who seek to divide Canada into classes animated by selfish ambitions.

WHAT GERMAN VANDALS
DID TO FRENCH ART.

The extent of Hun depredation in France is now known. It is a pretty figure, amounting to over one hundred and twenty-five million dollars. That France could lose so much and still be dowered with artistic riches only enhances our view of the immense productivity of the French genius. The figures, which are described as "official," are furnished by the Department of Foreign Information of the Bankers Trust Company of New York, where we read:

"This figure, which has been recently calculated for the information of French minister delegates to forthcoming international conferences, has been arrived at after an exhaustive examination of the ruins of historic monuments, statues, churches, museums, and their contents. The irreplaceable nature of these losses is indicated by the sum of six hundred million francs, which is set against 'moral injury.'

"'This sum of six hundred millions,' explains the official text, 'is an approximation of the loss the French people have sustained by having lost forever works of peculiar value because of their beauty and historic associations.'

"In order that a fair statement of values might be made, the art commission sets forth the losses in terms of both pre-war and post-war currency, as follows:

	1914 Value Francs	1920 Value Francs
Historic buildings (750 in all) ..	300,000,000	1,200,000,000
Historic monuments	25,000,000	50,000,000
Museums	15,000,000	30,000,000
Moral injury	300,000,000	600,000,000
Total	640,000,000	1,880,000,000

"The 640,000,000 francs of losses, on the basis of pre-war values, are equal at normal exchange, which then prevailed, to about $128,000,000. An estimate of the loss in stolen or damaged jewelry and precious stones is placed at 1,119,000,000 francs, present values. The loss in personal property and objects of art owned by private individuals has been placed at 4,500,000,000 gold marks."

GROWING POPULARITY OF MOTOR TRUCKS.

The Financial Chronicle makes an interesting comparison of the cost to shipper by three methods of transportation, rail freight, express and motor truck.

The comparative charges per hundredweight from New York to Newark are: Rail, 91 cents; express, 97 cents, truck, 15 cents. New York to Philadelphia: Rail, $1.02; express, $1.45 ;truck, 80 cents. To Boston: Rail, $1.36; express, $1.50; truck, $1.50. To Providence the charges are, in the above order, $1.32, $1.59, $1.10; to Worcester, $1.13, $1.45, $1.20. To Newark, Philadelphia and Providence, truck is cheaper than either other way; it is cheaper than express in every case.

Six hundred different lines of trucking companies are already in operation in the United States. Nebraska is trying the experiment of treating truckportation as other public utilities are treated, enforces rules for its regulation, and prescribes charges. In California the business is under semi-regulation; but in other states the conduct of the business is not under special supervision. Several railway companies are operating truckportation lines of their own out of their congested terminals, and many lines of freight motors are operating practically parallel with the railroads which offer no objection, being usually glad to be rid of the short hauls.

The business is not yet systematized, says the Boston Commercial, but it is growing rapidly and is likely soon to be recognized as an important public utility.

CRISP COMMENT

Ottawa Journal says "lots of girls are not so bad as they are painted," referring, no doubt, to Ottawa girls. Sounds as if there might be an opening for another beauty parlor at the Capital.

The farther away William Lyon Mackenzie King travelled from Ottawa the louder and more caustically he declaimed against the government, individually and collectively. He will have plenty of material when he returns to explain how he was "misreported."

Thieves who break into a man's cellar and steal therefrom his supply of spiritus frumenti against epidemics and other dry seasons are lower in the criminal scale than degenerates who rob church poor boxes, steal pennies from blind men and take candies from babies. When Old Mr. Hubbard goes to his cupboard to relieve the bone-dry constriction of his mucous membrane and finds an aching void which no two-per-cent. can never fill, what depth of sorrow is his!

Toronto Globe, which claims to be a great national newspaper, has never a good word to say for Premier Meighen or the Government in power at Ottawa. If the Government does anything meriting the approval of the Globe the organ sneers that it was forced to do it by public opinion. But the Globe has also denounced Mackenzie King, so it is difficult to understand just what the Old Lady of Melinda Street really wants. Perhaps it is just an acute attack of peevishness over the impotency of the so-called Liberal party, which contains so few real Liberals.

The two newspapers in Welland have amalgamated. The same thing has occurred in Aylmer, Woodstock, Owen Sound, Tillsonburg, Sarnia, Lindsay, Niagara Falls, Peterborough, Brantford, St. Thomas, Mitchell, Smith's Falls, Almonte, Eganville, Arnprior, and a number of other places. The high cost of paper and everything else is having its effect.

It may be that times have changed, but irresponsible attacks such as those of King W. L. M. and William Duff, M.P., on Hon. C. C. Ballantyne don't seem to awaken a response in the public heart today as in the old days when guff and declamation counted. Mr. Ballantyne's reply was doubly effective because his substantial public service is well known and appreciated by the Canadian people. In the upbuilding of the merchant marine—a profitable undertaking—he has accomplished more in a few years than Mr. Duff is likely to accomplish in his lifetime.—Ottawa Journal.

UNIVERSITY PRESIDENTS

Detroit News .. ..

More and more the president's chair in the university is coming to be occupied by the man who has a lively interest in and a sympathetic understanding of the world beyond the college campus, who sees in the student body merely the representatives of a much larger group which must in some way be brought under the influence of the educational process. University extension sources have put within the reach of practically every citizen, though he may live hundreds of miles from the nearest centre of learning, the educational advantages formerly offered only to those on the college campus.

HARD TIMES IN JAPAN

Tokio Times

London papers depict long queues outside the theatres and a general rush for amusements as one of the features of modern life in the British metropolis. It used to be so, too, in Tokio during the war years but the summer's economic depression has brought theatre-going to a sudden end and people are now more concerned with how to obtain money than how to spend it. Hard times have hit Japan. The flush and open-handed ways of war-time are no more; and all places of amusement and public resort, as well as dealers in luxuries, are feeling the pinch.

POETS' CORNER

THE LAND OF BEGINNING AGAIN

I wish that there were some wonderful places
Called the Land of Beginning Again
Where all our mistakes and all our heartaches
And all our poor selfish grief
Could be dropped like a shabby coat at the door
And never put on again.

I wish we could come on it all unawares,
Like the hunter who finds a lost trail,
And I wish that the one whom our blindness had done
The greatest injustice of all
Could be at the gates, like an old friend that waits
For the comrade he's gladdest to hail.

We could find all the things we intended to do,
But forgot and remembered too late
Little praises unspoken, little promises broken,
And all the thousand and one
Little duties neglected that might have perfected
The day for one less fortunate.

It wouldn't be possible no to be kind
In the Land of Beginning Again;
And the ones, we misjudged and the ones whom we grudged
Their moments of victory here
Would find in the grasp of our loving hand clasp
More than penitent lips could explain.

For what had been hardest we'd know had been best,
And what had seemed lost would be gain;
For there isn't a sting that will not take wing
When we've faced it and laughed it away;
And I think that the laughter is most
In the Land of Beginning Again.

"Did she predict some very great trouble?" said her mistress, sympathetically.

"Ochs mem, sich therrible news!" moaned the girl, rocking backwards and forwards and wringing her hands.

"Tell me what she said," asked the mistress, wishing to comfort the girl.

"She tould me thot me father works hard shovellin' coal an' tindin' foires for a livin'!"

"But thats no disgrace no sorrow," said the lady, a trifle vexed at such affectation.

"Och, mem, me poor fathe!" sobbed the girl. ("What a hard time he must be having' an he's been dead these noine years!"

The Meaning of Sponsorship

Bonds of Ontario towns and cities which are today selling at prices to yield from 6½% to 6¾% interest, offer unusually good investment opportunities. Full particulars regarding these will be mailed on request.

Wealth of a community and conservatism in its government are not the only criterions of the value of town or city bonds. The state of a city's finances, the future prospects of the town as affected by its location, the number and kind of its industries—these are equally important in determining the value of their bonds.

Few investors have the time or the inclination to examine conditions for themselves. It is left to experienced investment houses to scrutinize, and, having satisfied themselves that the security is sufficient and that all legal requirements have been complied with, to purchase the bonds with their own funds before selling them to investors in the financial markets of Canada and the United States.

The sponsorship of a conservative investment banking house, of large experience, is essential in selecting bonds for investment.

1000 Eggs In Every Hen

If You Keep Chickens, Cut This Out — Four to Seven Eggs a Week per Hen Through Cold Winter Season — With Eggs at Dollar a Dozen, Means $5.00 Profit per Hen in Next Six Months — Amazing Poultry Secrets Revealed by

AMERICA'S FOREMOST POULTRY EXPERT

This is an offer no reader of this paper who keeps chickens can afford to ignore. We will tell you why.

Henry Trafford, Famous Poultry Expert and Breeder, for nearly eighteen years Editor of "Poultry Success," has developed a new and remarkable system of rearing, breeding and feeding chickens for heavy egg production that seems certain to revolutionize the poultry industry and give five eggs or more for every egg produced today. This plan or system is explained in Mr. Trafford's "1,000 Egg Hen" a free copy of which will be sent to any person who keeps six hens or more.

Poultry keepers, following Mr. Trafford's directions, learn how to start young pullets laying early; make old hens moult quickly and resume heavy laying during entire winter season. Most any hen will lay in spring when eggs are cheap. Mr. Trafford tells how hens lay four to seven eggs a week during coldest winter days when eggs sell at a dollar a dozen or more. His system shows how any breeder, with ordinary care, may get 1,000 eggs or more from nearly every hen in four years' time at a net profit of $25.00.

There is big money to be made with chickens this winter by the man or woman who gets the eggs. The time to get the hens ready for heavy winter laying is now. Mr. Trafford's "1,000 Egg Hen" system tells how and arrangements have been made whereby any reader of this paper may receive one copy absolutely free by using the Coupon below. Send no money, but cut out the Coupon and mail it with your name and address to Henry Trafford, 567N Tyne Bldg., Binghampton, N.Y., and the story of the 1,000 Egg Hen will be sent you by return mail.

the religious nature of a child. The question might well be asked what would this or any community give for its children. Education on the right lines means changing of potentialities into actualities. We should see to it that every child is educated upon right lines and if this is done the influence for good cannot be computed.

"My, You Are Looking So Much Better!"

"YES, I am feeling fine, too."

"And how is baby?"

"He is just dandy and as good as can be."

"And what have you been doing to look so well?"

"Oh, I got run-down nursing baby and began to get discouraged I was feeling so miserable. I suppose it was my nervous condition that got baby restless, and then, of course, it worried me trying to look after him."

"I thought you looked so worn-out when I was in last time."

"Well, I was feeling so discouraged that I sent for mother to come and she was not here a day before she had me using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food."

"I should have told you about it, for we always use Dr. Chase's Nerve Food when any of us get nervous or run-down."

"For the first few days I could not see that it was doing much good, but soon I found myself sleeping better and feeling less worried and irritable during the day. My appetite improved and as I gained strength baby seemed to sleep better and be less trouble. He is just fine now and as good-natured as any baby ever was."

"How do you take the Nerve Food?"

"One pill after each meal and at bedtime. I will soon be able to discontinue using it, but want to be sure that my system is thoroughly built up before quitting."

"That is great. It gives me more confidence than ever in Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and that is saying a good deal, for you know what it did for me when I had that nervous breakdown. Has your mother gone home?"

"Yes, and I tell you it was a lucky day for me when she came to the rescue with her help and good advice. Her experience with Dr. Chase's Nerve Food proved to be a blessing for me."

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, 50 cents a box, all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Ltd., Toronto. On every box of the genuine you will find the portrait and signature of A. W. Chase, M.D., the famous Receipt Book author.

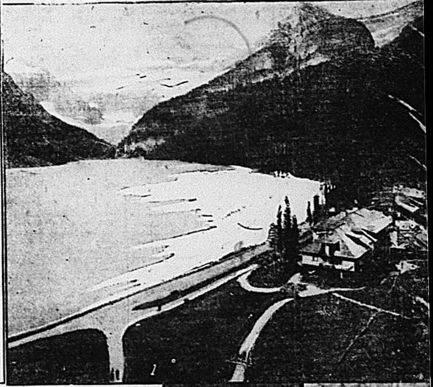
TAME BEARS AT LAKE LOUISE



(1) A recent picture of Lake Louise
(2-3) Lower—the bears that amuse tourists at Lake Louise.

At Lake Louise in the Canadian Pacific Rockies last spring, a well-grown bear awoke from his long winter sleep. In his solitary forays for food the big animal finally dropped down the slope into a place where an attractive odor arose from a heap of tins. He investigated, and he found remnants of luscious jams, preserves, bacon rinds, bread crusts, and an endless variety of other desirable but strange goods. He gorged himself cautiously and retired to his native fastnesses. Next day the call of the cans came again, and he responded. Time passed, and he made the cans his regular source of supply. He grew fat and sleek, and very contented.

One day when lumbering down to dine, he espied a human. Hitherto he had always fled from such as from a plague, for his mother had taught him they were not to be trusted. This time, however, the bear did not run. His nerves had been steadied and his suspicions blunted by the more or less general scent of humans at his feeding grounds. So he merely waited curiously. The human happened to be a man who liked animals and was not afraid of them. He had some chocolates in his pockets. These he drew forth and held out to bruin, who approached slowly and doubtfully and then gingerly partook of the dainty. It was new but it was good. He stepped closer for more. The man, himself a little doubtful, stepped backward slowly, feeding chocolates as he judged necessary. Arriving at the tins the bear turned to them and buried his nose in a jam jar. The man sped to the nearby Lake Louise Hotel, borrowed and begged and bought pastry and bread from the chef, and returned to his new acquaintance.

He fed him again and they parted in mutual confidence. This went on for some days, until finally the bear was so well-acquainted with his new friend that he would wait in the timber until called by a whistle. He became a show bear for tourists. Others of the mountain bears apparently kept an eye on the original discoverer of the pile of tins. Doubtless his well-nourished appearance caused envy and jealousy. Undoubtedly they watched and followed him, because it was not long until others were dining at the pile of cans. Taught by the actions of the discoverer, they never displayed temper, anger or doubt when humans came near. They continued well-behaved and orderly. Great cinnamon and black bears that a year ago were wildest of the wild, who had dod trappers and hunters for ye learned in a few short days that men and women who came out see them meant them no harm expected to receive none. The be throughout the past summer h been gazed at, photographed, ha fed at times, and have consistg conducted themselves with e plary politeness. Next Spring t will be there again, for normal be never were known to desert a go safe, easy feeding ground. And t will be in increased numbers, cause there will undoubtedly be fu little cunning cubs, rolling and pl ing with each other and slapp empty tins around for footbal

WAR VETERAN MISSING

What has become of William York, a former member of the 21st Battalion? This is the question which the authorities have been unable to answer. Mr. York served with the 21st in France, having gone overseas with the original battalion. While with that unit he suffered from shell shock and was returned to Canada for treatment. He later went to Detroit. Some time last February or March he left home where he was living, and nothing has been heard of him since that time. His family residing on Princess St., Kingston, are anxious about him. It is thought that he suffered a relapse from the shell shock.

It Did The Work Says Phone Man

Has Enjoyed Finest Health Ever Since Tanlac Put Him On Feet Three Years Ago.

"Although it was three years ago that Tanlac relieved me of a bad case of stomach trouble and built me up thirty-six pounds in weight, I've been enjoying the best of health ever since and today am feeling just as fine as I ever did in my life," said Frank Slingerland, employed by the Bell Telephone Company, living at 229 Balsam Avenue, South, Hamilton, Ont.

"I was in a terribly run down condition due to a badly irritated stomach caused by working in a munition factory. I was continually breathing the fumes and kept getting worse and worse until I could scarcely retain a glass of milk on my stomach and at times I couldn't even drink a glass of water. Everything I ate caused my stomach to pain for hours, and I had frequent headaches lasting two or three days at a time. In the morning I was just as tired as when I went to bed at night, and I never felt rested but was simply miserable all the time.

"I just kept hearing so much good said about Tanlac that I finally began taking it myself and it wasn't but a little while until I was improving right along. After taking five bottles I am in tip-top condition, feeling fine and can eat anything set before me without my stomach hurting me a bit. I have put on thirty-six pounds and have been feeling like a different man ever since. Tanlac certainly did the work for me all right and I don't hesitate to give it my highest endorsement."

Tanlac is sold in Belleville by Ostrom's Drug Store and by the leading druggists in every town.

"You didn't go at it the right way, my dear," replied her husband. "I let him a nickle he couldn't turn it for half an hour."—Boston Transcript.

CATS PUT TO FLIGHT BY ARMY OF RATS

New York, Oct. 26.—Swarms of rats made savage by starvation, a means instituted by quarantine officials to eradicate them, have attacked and put to flight a large cat family and otherwise played havoc aboard the steamship Leviathan, formerly the German liner Vaterland, it was learned today.

Since the Leviathan has been tied up at a Hoboken pier her rodent population has multiplied into legions and infest her eleven decks and intricately-subdivided interior. Fumigation was found impracticable by officers who sought to remove them and starvation tactics were employed several weeks ago, no particle of food being permitted aboard.

After the feline army was gone the rats attacked the ships furnishings, luxurious leather cushions, panels and other fittings being gnawed beyond repair.

Quarantine officers say, however, that the end is in sight. In their battle for life, they declared, the rodents would destroy one another.

Niagara Falls, Ont., Oct. 27—Yeggs blew the safe in the Queen Theatre on Queen street and stole $450. The safe was carried from the office down through the auditorium to the stage. There the yeggmen drilled a hole in the safe door, and blew the safe almost to pieces with nitro-glycerine. The robbery was discovered when the business staff arrived for work this morning.

CARNEGIE LEFT 23 MILLIONS

Pittsburg, Oct. 26.—The appraisal of the estate of Andrew Carnegie has been completed and is published here. It shows a gross value of $26,893,024 and a net estate of $23,247,161, which is even less than the estimate of Mr. Carnegie's fortune (between $25,000,000 and $30,000,000), made at the time of his death.

The huge fortune which he once possessed was reduced to these relatively small figures by the many public and private gifts Mr. Carnegie made during his life. The appraisal shows to what degree Mr. Carnegie succeeded in carrying out his purpose to dispose of the great bulk of his fortune before his death.

Belgian Girl Sues Toronto Student

TORONTO, Oct. 27.—Walter Woods McKeown, of Toronto, a student-at-law, is being sued by Miss Mariette Van Hoorde, of Brussels, Belgium, for $20,000 damages for alleged breach of promise. The defendant was an officer in the army when the pair met overseas, and the plaintiff was engaged in relief work. Miss Van Hoorde alleges that she became engaged to McKeown in April, 1920, and they were to have been married in June. On June 20, she states, he cabled from Cambridge, England, where he was a student at the university, that he was ill, but would be in Brussels on June 22. He did not go to Brussels but came to Toronto. She expended $1,000 on her trousseau, she stated, and she followed her lover to Toronto, the trip costing her $500.

The defendant has filed a counter-claim against the plaintiff for $500 special damages and $1,500 general damages, a Toronto lady being involved in his claim. He alleges that Miss Van Hoorde and the Toronto lady in question conspired against him and carried a newspaper propaganda for the purpose of injuring him, both before and after the breach of promise action was launched and Miss Hoorde's picture was published in the Toronto newspapers, he states, for the purpose of holding him up to public ridicule and contempt. He contends that he is not in a financial condition to marry as he failed in his final examination.

No Wheat Till Price Hits $3 Farmers Say

[illegible] They Hold 96,000,000 Bushels

WICHITA, Kas., Oct. 27.—With 96,000,000 bushels of wheat in the bins and stacks of Kansas farmers, representing two-thirds of the year's crops with empty box cars on nearly every railroad siding in the State and with the country elevators ready to purchase wheat, there were just 18 carloads of Kansas wheat on the Wichita market today.

The wheat growers' strike is on.

ORDER THREE WEEKS OLD

The strike was ordered three weeks ago, when the officials of the National Wheat Growers' Association with headquarters in Wichita, issued a proclamation to 70,000 members not to sell any wheat after 8 o'clock, October 25, until the price at their nearest terminal market reached $3 a bushel.

Many farmers stopped selling wheat at once, and the decline in receipts has been gradual since that time. One year ago today, with more than half the year's crop marketed, the receipts on this market were 26 cars.

"HEALTH TALKS"

Being a quotation from "Health Talks", in Montreal daily star, by J. B. Huber, A. M., M.D. on "mental Dyspepsia".

. . . . "These mental dyspeptics often importune surgeons to operate on them, one surgeon being thus importuned to operate for stomach cancer, on examination found no evidence of such a formation, and advised the sufferer to have her eyes examined, this being done and the proper glasses fitted, the vomiting and the other stomach symptoms disappeared. The Eye Strain (which the glasses relieved) had acted reflexly on the digestion." . . .

We frequently have patients come to us to have their eyes tested, who complain of stomach trouble and these are sometimes sent to us by their physician after medicine had failed to give the desired relief, and it is frequently the case after such patients have had the eye strain relieved by the proper glasses, that the stomach trouble disappears, just as stated above. We specialize on obscure forms of Eye Strain and the consequent reflex effects.

Education In Religion An Important Question

PROF. HONLINE DISCUSSES NECESSITY OF COMBINING RELIGIOUS TEACHING WITH EDUCATION AT CONVENTION OF SUNDAY SCHOOL WORKERS—OTHER TIMELY TOPICS DISCUSSED.

Between four and five hundred delegates are in attendance at the 55th annual convention of the Ontario Religious Education Council which is being held in this city and which will be brought to a close this evening. The sessions have proved both interesting and profitable and there is not the slightest doubt the delegates will return to their homes taking with them pleasant memories of their stay in the City of the Bay.

Yesterday morning after an open and general session at 9 o'clock in Bridge Street Church, presided over by Mr. Theran Gibson, of Toronto, four departmental conferences were held, namely one at Victoria Avenue Baptist Church, children's division, with Miss Bertha Laine of Toronto, presiding, one at St. Andrew's Church Girls' Work, presided over by Mrs. E. Turkington of Whitby, one at the Y.M.C.A. auditorium, Boys' Work, presided over y Mr. W. S. Kirkland of Toronto, and the adult division conference at Bridge Street Church, presided over by Mr. T. F. Harrison of Cobourg. A number of prominent Sunday School workers took part in the discussions.

At 1.45 in the afternoon, a general session was held in Bridge Street Church previous to departmental rallies in various other churches. Mr. W. S. Kirkland presided.

RELIGION AND EDUCATION

After a song service, scripture reading and prayer was given by Rev. T. W. Savary of Kingston. Prof. Honline of Dayton, Ohio, gave a most instructive and able address, his subject being, "The Place of Education in Religion." Prof. Honline in his opening remarks stated that if the function of Education to develop aright all desirable qualities in human nature and religion is a desirable quality. Therefore it is the function of education to develop aright the religion that is in a child. Religion did not grow out of creeds and doctrines, but vica versa. Religion looks in two directions towards Jesus Christ and our neighbors. In teaching we should carry this out and impart the lesson to the scholars of our Sunday Schools. Remember that the teacher teaches and the scholar learns. Bear in mind that every child is equipped with an endowment for religious thought which should be carefully developed. Whether a child becomes an actual saint or an actual sinner depends upon his education on religious lines. We should ascertain what a scholar is capable of becoming and do what we can do to teach him or her to reach that end. Education serves life and serves it more abundantly.

In concluding his address, Prof. Honline impressed upon teachers and Sunday School workers the necessity of proper education along religious lines.

Mr. T. F. Harrison, Cobourg, treasurer and business manager of the Council presented a statement of the financial position of the Council and made an appeal for more giving. An effort was being made to raise $30,000 the coming year to carry on the work and enlarge the scope of the Council.

At the conclusion of this session at 3.30 denominational conferences were held at Christ Church, St. Andrew's Church, Bridge Street Church and the Y.M.C.A. auditorium, the programme being carried out as follows:

Anglican: Christ Church Parish Hall. Leader—Rev. T. W. Savary, Kingston. Devotional Period. Rev. W. G. Swayne, Rector, Christ Church Belleville. Address: "Getting the Pupil to Study." Rev. T. W. Savary. Discussion. Conference. Address: "The Mission of the Sunday School Teacher." Rev. J. H. H. Coleman, Vicar, Napanee. Closing.

Baptist: Victoria Avenue Baptist Church. Leader—Rev. W. H. Wallace Belleville. Outline of Plans in Religious Education. Dr. Geo. T. Webb. (1) Home Religion. (2) Educational Evangelism. (3) Demonstration Schools. (4) Institutes and Conferences.

Methodist: Bridge Street Methodist Church. Leader—Rev. C. H. Coon, President, Bay of Quinte Methodist Conference. Evangelism in the Sunday School. T. F. Harrison. The Sunday School Programme of Our Church. Rev. E. B. Cooke. Extension. Rev. J. G. McKee.

Presbyterian: St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church. Leader—Rev. H. E. Abraham, Guelph. Forward Movement Continuation Policy Adopted by the General Assembly: Religion in the Home. Training Children in Worship. Sunday School Extension. Program, Organization and Equipment. A Comprehensive Missionary Policy. Older Boys and Girls Enlisted. Young People in Training. Trained Leaders, including Life Service Recruits.

Congregational, Christian, Disciples of Christ, Evangelical, and all others: Y.M.C.A. Auditorium. Leader—Rev. W. P. Fletcher. Discussion of Forward Movement Themes: Home Religion. Sunday School Extension. Training for Leadership.

EVENING SESSIONS

Department rallies were held in various churches in the evening and a large number were present at the adult conference in Bridge Street Church, presided over by Mr. Wm. Hamilton, of Toronto. A song service was conducted by Mr. LeDrew followed by an address by Mr. T. F. Harrison of Cobourg, the subject being "The adults of the church helping to make a successful Sunday School." It was a well thought out address and was of a profitable nature.

BROTHERHOOD

Prof. Honline of Dayton, Ohio, was the chief speaker and his able exposition of the subject of church work was attentively listened to. In speaking of brotherhood the gifted professor said the world had not yet been converted into one brotherhood. We must look to the church to accomplish this if it is to be accomplished. The great democracy of the future must come through the church, the brotherhood of man. We want religion in education and education in religion. The church of to-morrow must press service rather than doctrine. Love towards God and justice to all men must be the watchword. The teaching of Jesus Christ is clear. He came into the world to correct men's lives. The church should stand for formation as well as reformation. Train up a child as he should go and he will not depart from it. The good in a child should be encouraged and the bad should be corrected. In speaking generally of the church and its office, Prof. Honline said the church of to-morrow is not going to allow ecclesiastical interest to run counter to community interest. It was a fact that in the United States that 69 3-10 per cent. of the children are not receiving religious instruction in any school which was deplorable. We want in the Sunday School work as in the Public and High Schools trained teachers who can make the lessons interesting and profitable to the children. Teach children through their reason. The nature of the child should be studied. In referring to proper equipment the speaker said we insist on our public schools being thoroughly equipped for the proper teaching of the pupils; but we are satisfied to allow our Sunday School teachers to struggle on without any equipment. This is not as it should be. In a number of places in the United States, religious schools are going on parallel with the public schools and it is proving a great benefit. In concluding his address Prof. Honline made a special appeal for greater activity in Sunday School work.

ANGLICANS PROTEST MARRIAGE ANNULMENT

Winnipeg, Oct. 27.—The following resolution was adopted by the executive council of the General Synod of the Church of England in Canada at its meeting here on Saturday.

"Resolved that this executive council of the General Synod of the Church of England in Canada hereby puts on record its firm protest against the action taken by the ecclesiastical authority of the Roman Catholic Church and of the civil courts of the Province of Quebec, in annulling marriages solemnized according to the civil law of the province, and promises its full sympathy and aid to the authorities of the church in the two dioceses of the province in such constitutional action as they may take to remove all doubt as to the validity of marriages so solemnized according to the civil law."

Prospects Brighter

London, Oct. 27.—A member of the miners' Executive body informed the Conference of Trades Union delegates here today that there was every prospect of terms for settlement of the coal strike being reached tonight.

TEMPEST IN A TEA CUP !

It used to be said that it cost ninety-nine cents to send one dollar to the heathen.

Of course it wasn't exactly true, but it served as a good excuse for those who did not want to contribute to foreign missions.

A Navy League canvasser knocked at a door and the man who answered put the query, "Who pays for those banquets we hear about?" I have no money to pay for other people's pleasures, but if it is going to reach the sailor I'd like to give what I can."

The canvasser was giving ten dollars of his own money and fifteen dollars' worth of time to the Navy League, and if he did sit in at a seventy-five cent business luncheon, don't you think he paid for it himself many times over in cash and service?

A feature of all modern movements for the raising of funds for general public benefit is the Business Luncheons, or banquets, as they are sometimes called.

WHO PAYS?

The question is often asked, "Who pays for these spreads?"

The answer is easy. Generally they are paid for directly by the people participating just to prevent possible criticism, but in any event they are paid for twenty times over in cash contributions and service by the people who attend the luncheons.

In all community movements it is the busiest men who are called upon to put them over. Their time is valuable and generally fully occupied but they have to find time for their meals and it has been found from actual experience that the best time to get them together and the most economical time for all concerned is at lunch time, when they can kill two birds with one stone as it were and talk business over the luncheon table.

These men are prepared to give liberally of their time and money for all worthy objects, and their time alone is worth a great deal of money, so that the food consumed at business luncheons is paid for many times over in cash and service by the people who attend these luncheons.

FIFTY DOLLAR MEN.

As an example at a recent luncheon held in Belleville one man present who was not expected to contribute a cent said: "I cannot give the campaign any time, but here's fifty dollars." Another man who attended a business luncheon said that he had not taken any interest in the campaign before but upon getting an inside view of it he was prepared to give a substantial subscription of his time. He also arranged at that luncheon to give the campaign twenty dollars in advertising space in the local papers.

Many more instances along the same line might be cited.

There have been no Navy League banquets in Belleville thus far. There have been one or two business luncheons for workers attended by not more than a dozen people in any instance. The Rotary has held luncheons and paid for them; so have the Lions.

INVESTMENT IN PSYCHOLOGY.

No great movement is successful in these days without the expenditure of money in publicity and psychology, but the entire expense in actual cash seldom amounts to one cent in every dollar raised.

Without publicity all of these movements would fall flat as a pancake and without the application of business principles and a study of the human side of community service there would be no large movements at all for the general benefit of humanity.

There does not seem, therefore, any real necessity for a Tempest in a Tea Cup, for nothing is free, not even Salvation, and nobody who is anybody wants anything for nothing—so there you are. There are two sides to every question, and sometimes a few angles. Avoid the angles—they are liable to cut you!

35 Vessels Completed For Merchant Marine

Government Program Calls For 63—Arranging to Finish 2 Ships At Toronto

OTTAWA Oct. 28—Thirty-five cargo vessels already have been completed and are flying the ensign of the Canadian Government Merchant Marine in the seven seas.

The shipbuilding program of the Government contemplates the construction of sixty-three vessels in all, with an aggregate tonnage of 376,725 and a total cost of $72,332,940. The completed vessels are now being operated in conjunction with the Canadian National Railways.

Arrangements now are being made with the liquidator of the Dominion Shipbuilding Co. of Toronto for the completion of the two 3,500-ton ships which that corporation had under contract; about three-quarters of the work had been completed when the firm went into liquidation. The Department of Marine will either undertake to complete the work itself or have it done through the liquidator.

Sylvia Pankhurst Again In Prison

LONDON, Oct. 28.—Sylvia Pankhurst, arrested on October 19th charged with attempting to cause sedition in the navy by editing and publishing an issue of the newspaper, "The Workers' Dreadnought," on October 16th, was sentenced today to six months' imprisonment on conviction of the offense.

Strike Settlement Not So Hopeful

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer
Canadian Press Limited

LONDON, Oct. 28.—Members of the British Cabinet had been summoned to meet early this morning before heads of miners and Government resumed negotiations for the settlement of miners' strike. The call for a session of the Cabinet was the result of the sudden termination of yesterday's conference at which it was confidently expected an agreement with the miners would be reached. The sudden halt in the negotiations which dashed the hopes of optimists yesterday caused disappointment proportionate to the confidence felt earlier in the day. This hope has not been abandoned but it is more cautiously indulged in as both sides take a very serious view of the difficulty still to be overcome.

May Celebrate Armistice Day

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer
Canadian Press Limited

OTTAWA, Oct. 28.—Asked if the city would take any immediate steps towards declaring a civic holiday or arranging a celebration for Armistice Day, Mayor Fisher intimated that the city was waiting for a lead from the Government, but would fall in line with any proposed policy for commemorating that day. His Worship said that it was a matter for the whole Dominion and that as such it was for the Government to say what would be done.

U.S. In Last Week Of Election Fight

Preparations Going on or Actual Registration of Voters Next Tuesday

NEW YORK, Oct. 28—While the several thousand candidates for various Federal and State officials are devoting the last week of the election campaign to a whirlwind of oratory, election officials are busy preparing for the actual registration of the votes on Tuesday next.

A Federal election in the United States is a vastly more complicated matter than a general election in Canada. In almost every district there are scores of different offices to be filled and the United States voter who casts a ballot for each office must needs exercise a good deal of perseverence. Election day is a holiday throughout the United States, so that no voter can plead lack of time to make the various crosses.

The preparations for voting day are in charge of election superintendents and other municipal officers and the arrangements vary according to the conditions prevailing in the various districts. In the rural districts the school houses will be used as balloting places; in most of the cities stores and public buildings will be used, the arrangements in this respect being similar to those in a Canadian election.

The participation of women voters in this election is giving the election officials a good deal of work. Greater care has to be taken in the selection of polling places, and provision must be made for a greatly increased number of voters.

Governor Cox closed his West Virginia campaign at Kenova with another appeal for the League of Nations. The churches, labor, and women were united in a movement for the League which was "sweeping the country," he said. He will address an audience at Cincinnati to-night.

Defied N.Y. Mob With Union Jack

Mother of Canadian Soldier Flies British Flag in Faces of an Angry Mob

New York, Oct. 27.—Several hundred persons solemnly burned a Union Jack on East Ninety-Fourth street yesterday as a protest against the display of a British emblem in the second-storey window of the apartment occupied by Mrs. William Sadler, a citizen of the United States born in the north of Ireland. Mrs. Sadler displayed the British flag while her neighbors were unfurling flags of the "Irish Republic" in reverence to the late Lord Mayor MacSweney. Her brother served in the Canadian army.

Every possible means was applied to pull down Mrs. Sadler's flag, including sticks, mops and other implements, augmented by angry murmurs and taunting threats. Mrs. Sadler took it down herself, however, after kissing it in full view of the mob. The flag burning was accompanied by a "funeral oration" over the British Government, rendered by Patrick McGovern, of 196 East Ninety-Fourth street.

Requiem Mass Over MacSweney's Body

LONDON, Oct. 28.—Pontifical requiem mass was celebrated this morning in St. George's Cathedral over the body of the late Lord Mayor of Cork, MacSweney, who died in Brixton Prison Monday morning after a hunger strike which lasted more than 73 days. Church dignitaries, the Lord Mayor of Dublin, Deputy Lord Mayor of Cork and deputations representing the British parliamentary Labor party and various Irish political and civic organizations attended.

Coal Miners Strike Is Settled

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer

LONDON, Oct. 28.—The strike of coal miners throughout England and Wales was settled this afternoon, but the settlement is contingent upon a ballot of the miners.

Navy League Campaign Off to A Splendid Start

ALL THE WHEELS OF A WELL ORGANIZED CAMPAIGN WERE SET IN MOTION—REPORTS COMING IN VERY ENCOURAGING—EVERYBODY LOVES A SAILOR AND CANVASSERS ARE MET WITH SMILES.

Right from the start off this morning the Navy League campaign promised to be an overwhelming success. The canvassers were at their posts bright and early in the day and from reports reaching headquarters at noon the results so far are exceedingly satisfactory. The canvassers held their final "get together" last evening and received their instructions from team chairman Bob Gorman.

It is seldom indeed that a campaign of this sort takes hold of the people in such a favorable manner as this one. But then, a worthy cause such as this always finds favor with the good people of Belleville who have learned to give and sacrifice, and after all what satisfaction is there in living if we cannot serve others less fortunate than ourselves.

That statistical picture of 17,000 seamen who found a watery grave and the 45,000 widows and orphans left behind surely brings to mind that if ever there was a time to be up and doing it is now. These are the team captains of the various wards. If you are out when they call, then get in touch with your ward captain. If you hear of anyone wishing to give phone headquarters, Chamber of Commerce building, and remember, all banks will accept your subscription.

Captains.

Corbyville—W. J. Hume.
Industries—A. F. White.
Foster Ward—E. D. Finkle.
Ketcheson Ward—Col. A. P. Allen.
Samson Ward—E. Dickens.
Baldwin Ward—B. F. Jennings.
Bleecker Ward and G. T. R.—Ald. Adams.
Coleman and Murney Wards—Ald. Hanna.

The Government does not allow any widows' pensions or gratuities to dependents of those lost at sea, no matter what the cause; so this is the only way in which their needs and sufferings can be relieved. These brave men who went to sea in ships have paid the price, as Kipling says:

> "If blood be the price of Admiralty,
> Lord God we ha' paid in full."

Yes, they have paid in full. But have we here in Belleville? Our chance comes today and tomorrow. Be ready for the canvasser when he calls on you, and "pay in full." Give till it hurts.

Campaign Notes.

Just think of this: The busiest men in Belleville sacrificing valuable time in the interests of the Navy League—a day, and perhaps two days away from their business. Then, perhaps, you will appreciate your duty to your canvasser and to the Navy League.

Mr. A. F. White has the industries well lined up and expects a big response from this source—and he'll get it.

The G. W. V. A., Rotary and Lions' Clubs have all got their shoulders to the wheel in a way that means business—big business, too! Five thousand dollars and more is their slogan.

IRISH SYMPATHIZERS ASSAULT ENGINEER

New York, Oct. 26.—Joseph P. Dugan, 30, an engineer of 4 East Twelfth street, nearly lost his life at the hands of a mob in Columbus Circle tonight, while speakers harrangued a crowd of 5,000 Irish sympathizers near the Main Monument. A casual remark to a friend was misinterpreted and Dugan was badly beaten before a traffic policeman with a pistol drove away his assailants.

Canadian Industries Must Be Adequately Protected

PLAIN TRUTHS TOLD TO WESTERN TARIFF TINKERS BY PREMIER MEIGHEN AND HON. J. A. CALDER—FREE TRADE REPUDIATED IN HOME OF ITS FRIENDS.

MOOSE JAW, Sask., Oct. 27.—In the heart of Free Trade Saskatchewan here, the Prime Minister and Hon. J. A. Calder made clear-cut, unmistakable declarations in favor of adequate protection for Canadian history. Mr. Meighen repeated the fiscal pronouncement which he made in Winnipeg on Monday night, throwing down a challenge to the agrarian movement in no uncertain terms, while Mr. Calder was no whit behind his leader in his repudiation of free trade. Indeed, the speech of the Minister of the Interior, made in his own constituency and the first public pronouncement which he has made on the fiscal question since the platform of the National Liberal and Conservative party was launched, was the feature of the night's gathering. It was such because it showed that Mr. Calder has definitely crossed the Rubicon.

For months past there have been whisperings as to his future. There were those who claimed that he was preparing to return to the camp of his old friends, and many followers of Mr. King, including some of Mr. Calder's former Saskatchewan colleagues, unwilling to lightly surrender a captain to the foe, were prepared to forgive him much if only he would come back. To-night, however, the Minister of Immigration burned his bridges behind him.

"I stand for neither East nor West I am a Canadian," he declared, "and as a Canadian, having regard for the best interests of my country, I must stand for adequate protection. I do not believe in the farmers' platform on the fiscal question; it is too extreme and I do not think that its policy of taxing unimproved land is practical. This does not mean that I am a high protectionist. I am not. It simply means on this fiscal question I stand where the Prime Minister stands, for adequate protection for Canadian industry, which is protection for all classes.

"There are four fiscal schools in this country. There is a free trade, the high protectionist, the man who believes in a tariff for revenue only and the moderate protectionist. I belong to the last school. I belong to it because in my judgment free trade is impossible because high protection is wrong and is not this Government's policy and finally, because there is no such a thing as a tariff for revenue only. The policy for which I stand may not be popular with many here to-night. I know it is not popular with many in this province. In my judgment, however, it is the right policy for this country and by it I am prepared to stand or fall."

It was a confession of a convert, of man to whom the responsibility of governing had brought a new and saner conception of things, and the large audience—there were more than 3,000 present—recognising its obvious sincerity and its courage did not stint its applause.

PREMIER'S ADDRESS

The Prime Minister's address, like Mr. Calder's dealt mainly with the tariff issue. At Winnipeg Mr. Meighen contented himself with an expose of the fiscal inconsistencies of Mr. King. To-night it was the turn of the farmers, and the Premier did not mince words as he analysed and condemned their creed as a class movement bad for the farmers themselves.

The meeting, like that of Winnipeg was marked by the greatest enthusiasm. A few days ago Mr. King, who spoke here, drew less than nine hundred persons to hear him. To-night more than 3,000 crowded the local armories to hear the Premier and his lieutenant.

Moosejaw is a great Canadian Pacific divisional point, in the heart of the most prosperous agricultural district on the plains and the audience was representative of farmers, workingmen, railwaymen and business interests. It was an audience such as one rarely sees in the East, and the speakers were heard with an interest and attention which showed what a vital interest this part of the Dominion takes in the living issues of the day.

Late to-night the Prime Minister and his party left for British Columbia, where he will deliver a series of addresses.

MUSIC AND DRAMA

(What the Press Agents Say)

THE WANDERER

Since time began there have been women known as vampires. Inordinate of love, they have not stopped at toppling thrones. By their great beauty or their great brilliance of mind, they have won even kings away from their ambitions and hurled them to ruin and destruction. Cleopatra was such a woman. She lured Mark Anthony from his fondest dreams. Madam Pompadour at one time held the destiny of France in the hollow of her little hand and there have been others who have swayed kings and kingdoms as they lightly willed.

But in Tisha, the Babylonian vampire in "The Wanderer," the great Biblical drama which comes to Griffin's Opera House next Monday night November 1st, for one night only is seen at its best or worst. This young woman, the daughter of Nadina, the keeper of the Palace of Pleasure in Jerusalem, makes love to those she loathes in order to win jewels and money and flattery.

THE WOMAN IN ROOM 13

No ordinary story is "The Woman In Room 13." No collection of cut and dried complications which have been seen before on the screen and whose outcome can be seen on the quick-thinking part of the spectator. "The Woman in Room 13" which is to be screened at Griffin's to-morrow night and Saturday matinee and night starts off like a shot with a matrimonial complication of the most gripping kind. The question of a woman's right to separation arises. She weds. And her husband, a former police commissioner, looms up on the horizon of her happy existence to throw the shadow of terror over it. Then Laura Bruce (Pauline Frederick) finds that the future of her husband is dependent on an employer to whom women are game. In this painful and delicate situation she is torn by a thousand conflicting emotions. From climax to climax with the inevitable logic of a Greek drama, sure as fate and gripping with the iron pressure of a steel vise, the story mounts to its cataclysmic climax, tearing the spectator from its complacency by the sheer power of its soul-moving, tear-wringing suspense and human appeal.

Charlie Chaplin also appears on the same program in "The Fireman," the latest chapter of "The Whirlwind" serial and a beautiful Travelogue will also be screened.

GIVE THE BOY A CHANCE

Give that boy a chance! What a challenge that phrase contained! How big with destiny it is! How much he needs encouragement, strength, purpose, ideals, vision. And how easy it is to help him! A little recognition from you, Mr. Man-of-affairs, or even you, Mr. Man-of-the-street; a kindly smile, a helpful word, just even enough attention to show him that you know he IS, that you believe in him and that you are counting on him.

I knew a boy like that, years ago—a boy of sixteen, a stranger in a strange town, timid, diffident, uncertain of everyone, uncertain of himself, thinly clad in the inclement weather, sawing cordwood into stove length with a bucksaw, his work near the sidewalk. Many people passed, none spoke. Not one. He was only a boy sawing wood—a commonplace, unpromising boy, at a commonplas unpromising task. No one cared. No one thought. In all the town there was no one cared. The boy worked on in lonesomeness. Then something happened. A man saw him; stopped to talk to him, ask him his name, where he came from. Every day the man—that boy's man—"the man who stopped"—passed by on his side to the office, morning and evening. Every day he spoke to the boy, sometimes only a word or a nod; sometimes a sentence, expressinb his confidence. The boy knew intuitively that this man was his friend and that he believed in him and counted on him, and knowing that he would have sawed the last stick of that wood pile had it been many times as great. There was born of these kindly words and the confidence expressed between the boy and "the man who stopped" a friendship that has never been broken. "The man who stopped", then a practicing lawyer, became judge of the Circuit Court in the district in which he lived, and later a judge of one of the great higher Courts of the State. The boy, too, became a lawyer, and was admitted to practice before his friend then a member of the Senate, then the boy a member of the Congress of the United States, and then Governor of his State. Both are still alive—"the man who stopped" and the boy—both now in private life, still friends.

Give the boy a chance, Mr. Man-of-affairs, Mr. Man-in-the-street, a chance to find himself, a chance to know there are those who count on him. Knowledge of that one fact will give him courage in hours of doubt, strength of purpose in moments of weakness, and balance to his character when temptation comes, and will be worth more to him than title deeds to palaces of marble.

—From an article by Ex-Governor Hanley of Indiana.

CITIZENS OF BELLEVILLE, AHOY

BY 'JACK' TAR

Don't pass a Nevy Leaguer on either your port or starboard side without keel-hauling your pocket for that contribution to the great work which he is furthering.

If you are in a fog as to what the Navy League stands for he will pilot you convincingly to a point of clearing, finally landing you in the Port-o'-Kind-Acts and Duty-Well-Performed. When he heaves-to alongside of your hearing and whatever assistance you dry-dock please give him a courteous can afford, because he is a volunteer worker for the Cause which he nobly endorses as righteous by the mere fact that he serves it.

Remember when you give, that both you and he have paid tribute to the Men who hane gone down to the Sea, the Men who are on the Sea and the Men who will go down to the Sea, maybe some of these your own Boys, if not, adopt them and then they will be Our Boys. Since they denied themselves the joys and pleasures of shore life to serve us—carrying our wheat and grains, our cheese our shoes, our hardware and machinery to those foreign peoples who are in dire need of them—let us deny ourselves the little pleasure a few dollors can bring to look after their dependents when a cruel sea or enemy claim their spark of life, and also provide them with a few of the wholesome comforts (which we take as a matter-o'-daily-fact) when they are ashore in strange land, and 'tis here where they are our real ambassadors, for it is by their conduct and behavior that our whole nation is judged by those amongst whom they go; then too we must not allow the breed of Canadian seamen to thin out or else the glory they have won already for us will fade and we shall be numbered with the decadent nations of an earlier history.

Every time their ship clears port they chance their all against the great Unknown elements of the Seas, and we, landlubbers that we are, grubbing in our soil hammering at the forge, addressing a jury or ballancing our column of profits, are we to hesitate in chancing a few dollars for their welfare.

Help the Team Captain and his canvassers of your district turn in the largest amount for this Navy League Work which we have made our own for this memorable week. The Boys on the Sea, yea, those on its very bottom will never forget your kindness and in their hearts ask God's blessing for you.

The Young Merchants added another scalp to their string Wednesday evening when they won from Ellitt's by a margin of 171. HEAVIES WILL MEET IN CUBA

NEW YORK, Oct. 27.—The bout between Jack Dempsey and Georges Carpentier for the heavyweight championship of the world will be held in Havana, Cuba, it was announced here.

Selection of Havana as the scene of the contest was made by Tex Rickard, Charles B. Cochran and William Brady, who stated they had received an offer of such proportions from a syndicate of Cuban capitalists that it was finally determined the championship battle would be staged in Havana.

Details of the match have been agreed upon, and the actual signing of the articles of agreement merely await the arrival of a representative of the Cuban syndicate. He is expected to reach this city within a week, and upon his arrival definite announcement of the date of the contest will be made.

TARZAN RETURNS TO JUNGLE

Of all the Tarzan stories the jungle stories are the best. Tarzan does not shine in a full-dress suit or gathering. Tarzan returns to the jungle in the Intelligencer's new serial which begins Saturday, and on account of an injury to his head reverts to his original state when he was Tarzan of the Apes. Read it! It's a great story.

WOLVES NEAR ALMONTE

Wolves are roaming within six miles of the town of Almonte. Their howls are heard of a night by farmers livxing in Huntley on the other side of the Burnt Lands. Some sheep have been interfered with but there have been no depredations such as occurred in Lanark township some time ago. However, there are serious inroads upon game. There is some talk of organizing a wolf hunt.

BIG STEAMER TIED UP

Following the arrest of two members of the crew of the steamship Lakeport, plying between Conneant, Ohio, and Canadian ports, charged with transporting liquor, L. J. Bing, Conneant revenue collector, acting on orders from Cleveland, ordered the steamer tied-up at the dock, took away the passports of Capt. T. B. Greenway and sent him to Cleveland to appear before Chief Collector Stone. The Lakeport is a very large vessel and is well known in Kingston marine circles as she has often been here from Cleveland with grain for Richardson's elevator.

TARZAN COMES AGAIN

Tarzan of the Apes and all the other Tarzans have won favor with thousands of readers and movie patrons, but the greatest of all Tarzan stories is "Tarzan and the Jewels of Opar", which begins as a serial in Saturday's Intelligencer. Watch for it, read it, full of surprises and thrills.

TRANSFERRED TO WATERLOO

Mr. Hugh A. Rogers, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. Rogers, of this city, who has been for some time in the Inland Revenue Department at Prescott, has been transferred to Waterloo.

Gov't Report on Crop Conditions

The following is a summary of the weekly reports made by the Agriculture Representatives of the Ontario Department of Agriculture:

The heavy crops of spring grains demanded more time than usual for harvesting and threshing, and the mild, open weather of October has been perfect for the large amount of cutting and siloing of corn which has been hurried along to escape possible frost for the digging of potatoes and roots and other field work.

Fall plowing, however, has been somewhat neglected on this account, and also from the fact that lack of rain has rendered clayey lands difficult to penetrate. It is estimated that fully half the necessary fall plowing still remains to be done.

More apples are being handled than in recent years, yet the quantity of this and other fruit going to waste in Ontario orchards this season is deplorable. Lack of containers and reliable help are given as the chief reasons.

APPLE PRICES

Middlesex reports Spies as selling at from $2.25 to $3 a barrel on the trees. Elgin states that dealers have been offering from $2 to $2.50 a barrel for apples, "and are not keen to get them at that." while evaporators are paying 40c a cwt. Lennox and Addington cities sales at from $3 to $4 a barrel in the dealer's container. Prince Edward reports nine carloads being shipped out in bulk, and one carload in sacks for Winnipeg. Canning factories in that county are paying one cent a pound for hand-picked tree run, delivery at the factory.

Welland reports grapes as selling at from $85 to $100 a ton, chiefly for shipment to the United States.

Sugar beets are reported to be an excellent crop and they have been harvested under ideal conditions. The sugar content is generally high.

Brant states that at an auction sale last week both sweet clover and mixed hay sold at $22 a ton.

Fall wheat is said to be coming along pretty well, although with hardly as heavy a top as usual. The acreage on the whole will be less than that of last year.

Some farmers in eastern Ontario are complaining of the scarcity of water in the wells.

DAIRY INDUSTRY

Dairy cows are still giving a most encouraging yield of milk. Cheese sold on the Picton Board on Friday at 28 1-8 cents a lb. The condensery at Picton has been closed, but the milk patronage has been absorbed by local cheese factories and a creamery.

Hogs are selling in moderate numbers at from $18.50 to $20 a cwt. Brood sows are considerably scarcer than a year ago. Peel quotes little pigs at from $15 to $18 a pair.

Horses are hard to dispose of. Prince Edward says that a team weighing from 2,800 to 3,000 pounds, eight and nine years of age, and serviceably sound, recently sold for $200.

Dundas states that a cold storage plant in that county is fattening chickens which are sent in from the surrounding townships. They have handled about 9,000 birds this fall, or an average of about 300 a day.

Literary Notes

J. M. GIBBON ONCE MORE

THE CONQUERING HERO. By J. Murray Gibbon, Toronto: S. B. Gundy, London: John Lane.

The book, No. 3 in the catalogue of Mr. Gibbon's works, is, perhaps, the best. The opening scene is the fishing camp of the Hoodoo Club, in Northern New Brunswick. The characters are the memers of the organization, mostly from New York, Hector Macdonald, the head guide, and owner of much property, and his nephew, Sergeant Donald MacDonald, back from the war, where he had done good service and been repeatedly shrapnelled. Donald's grandfather had been a member of the Black Watch, the famous Forty-Second, had served in the Crimea and India and had come to Canada, married, and raised a family. Donald was his only grandson and the centre of his affections. The lad was brought up on oatmeal porridge, Jane Porter's "Scottish Chiefs" and the history of the Black Watch. His knowledge of geography was largely gained from hearing of the campaigns for the famous regiment, how it won its "red hackle" at Guildermalsen.

In time Angus Macdonald (Donald's father) followed the old Highlander's trail to the far west and established himself on a farm in the golden valley of British Columbia. There, when the war brake out, the call came to Donald. He started eastward for Fredericton, and at Montreal heard the pipers recruiting for a new battalion to wear the Black Watch's garb and bear the number 42. He was an undemonstrative young man. "So you are one of those splendid Canadians who have come to fight for the cause of righteousness?" an effusive caller had said to him in London.

"No; I have come to fight for the Forty-Second," Donald answered.

At Zollern he got his first shrapnel. After four months in hospital he got his D. C. Medal at Vimy, a dose of gas and then some more shrapnel. After fifteen months in hospital he was discharged from the army, and on his way to his home stopped a while with his uncle Hector, helping him in his duties as farmer and guide.

While the rough clad and unshaven Hoodoo Club members were showing their wit and humor "joshing" each other, there came a report that another camping party, including a woman was in the neighborhood; and presently she appeared, graceful of figure, beautiful of face, richly dressed, a wonder to all who beheld her. She was the Princess Stephanie Sobieska, she said, figuring as a movie actress, a curious character in some ways, bringing into the wilderness the wardrobe of a fashion devotee of the city. Circumstances suggested that she was a "vamp," and this opinion was strengthened by her entourage, which included a maid, a press agent, and Griffin, her manager who had something of a time of it with her whims. the Princess was attracted by Donald and showed her favor. When she left his D. C. medal disappeared. To recover it he made a visit to New York where he found the Princess rightly bore her title, a Polish one, was a true woman, whose son had been killed in the war, and who devoted her talent and her money to getting Polish volunteers for the war for her home land. Donald, whose medal had been taken by the press agent, who paid for his folly, became an admirer of the Princess. He did not stay in New York, and to find that in his absence his property had been well cared for. He also found that he had a new neighbor, a Colonel Mackenzie, who had commanded a battalion of the Scottish Forty-Second. The meetings of the man who had been a private and the old-fashioned colonel gave occasion for some amusing fencing. In the end, they came to understand each other, as also did Donald and Kate, the Colonel's daughter. The story includes a description of a trout fishing expedition, a moose hunt, and a forest fire, and abounds in humorous, philosophic and telling incidents and dialogue. It will add to Mr. Gibbon's reputation as a writer.

PORT POSSIBILITIES OF BELLEVILLE.

It has been amply demonstrated that Belleville has great possibilities as a port. With a splendid government wharf and warehouse and facilities for loading direct from boat to cars, railway tracks traversing the wharf connecting with the G. T. R., C. P. R., and C. N. R. lines, and with a short, direct route to United States ports, no other place has better advantages.

Coal, molasses and other commodities are being brought into Canada via Belleville port in large quantities and experience has shown that deliveries can be made so much quicker via this route that its economical advantages are obvious.

The Belleville-Oswego transportation gateway has great possibilities and deserves more attention than has hitherto been accorded it by the public men of Belleville. All the barges, schooners and other vessels arriving at this port have to be provisioned, sailors receive good pay and are good spenders, repairs and equipment have to be provided from time to time for the upkeep of the boats and the development of this industry would provide employment for an increasingly larger number of citizens.

While it is wise to reach out for industries it is wiser to develop the possibilities which already exist here.

Canada is growing in population, wealth and commerce and transportation facilities must expend to accommodate the increased trade. Belleville has the facilities for a great port without the congestion which obtains in larger centres where the bulk of international traffic is now being handled.

OLD PARTY LINES SHATTERED BY THE WAR.

That old party lines have been broken down as a result of the war, as asserted by Premier Meighen in his historic speech at Stirling, is becoming more apparent every day. A feature of the Winnipeg meeting addressed by the Premier in opening his western tour, refers to the Winnipeg meeting as follows in a despatch to his paper:

> Right Hon. Arthur Meighen and Hon. J. A. Calder opened their western Canada campaign on behalf of the platform and the policies of the National Liberal and Conservative party here by addressing an audience of five thousand electors.
> Judged from every standpoint, from the size of the audience, from its representative character, from the spontaneous warmth with which the speakers were greeted, and from the character of the speeches—the meeting was a striking success. Perhaps its outstanding feature was the unity of the leaders of the two old historic parties, which the character of its composition proclaimed. On the platform acting as chairman and pleading for the submergence of the old party warriors, was Mr. Isaac Pitblado, K.C., one of the leaders of Winnipeg Liberalism, while others present who in days gone by were stalwarts under the banner of Sir Wilfrid Laurier, included, Isaac Campbell, K.C., Edward Parnell, T. R. Deacon, L. E. Richards, K.C., W. A. Matheson, and many others.
> Heckled by "Reds."
>
> A few "Reds" gained admittance to the hall and attempted to heckle Mr. Calder, but were speedily silenced, and the Minister of Colonization, who made a spirited defence of his decision to stand with the new party, was given an ovation when he sat down.
> Introduced by the chairman as "the first son of Manitoba to rise to the Premiership of the Dominion," Mr. Meighen received a tumultuous reception, the audience rising almost as a body and cheering without restraint.
>
> The Prime Minister's speech was distinguished by the militant spirit and the definiteness which characterized most of his utterances.
> Wrecks King Charges.
> Evidently feeling that he should lay the foundation of his tour by disposing of the charges and insinuations levelled at the Ministry by Mr. King, he first took up the Opposition leader's claims in categorical fashion, and after describing them as "glaring examples of incomprehensible inexactitudes" (a phrase which brought down the house), dealt with them one after another with an array of official facts.
>
> On the tariff, Mr. Meighen's speech was the antithesis of pussyfooting. Indeed it was in every essential precisely the fiscal pronouncement which the Prime Minister has made over and over again in the east. He said: "I have said over and over again, and before every audience in this western country I will repeat, that we cannot abandon the principle of protection; that if we do so we will pay a sure and heavy penalty, and that every class will share in the calamity. There must be such a tariff as will make it pay Canadian industries to remain in Canada, and make goods within this country. Up to that point, and not beyond that point, the tariff in Canada on any class of goods should go. I believe the interests of Canadians of every class require that Canadian industries remain Canadian industries, and that Canadian industries, not American industries, grow with the growth of Canada.
> Impresses Audience.
>
> The courage of this unmistakable protectionist declaration, thrown almost as a challenge at the very gateway of the Cobdenite prairies, appealed to the audience, used to politicians whose tariff policies are too often regional. It was impressed by this clear-cut enunciation of a single policy for east and west.
> Toward the close of his address the Prime Minister struck a constructive note. Pointing out that the west was rich in coal and ore and mineral wealth, and that the coal resources of the country alone possessed immeasureable value, he urged that the "best energies of our people and government be centered for the next few years on plans to promote and extend the utilization of this latest wealth by the people and for the people of Canada."
> In an eloquent peroration, the Prime Minister pleaded against dividing our politics into "narrow grooves of political thought." "Man," he declared, "could not other than be profoundly moved by the "tragedies and the suffering of a scourged and bleeding world," and the result he hoped would be a greater sense of "political fraternity" and the avoidance of the "narrow mould of partizanship which crushes and warps and blinds."

Some American newspapers, the Rochester Post-Express, for instance, ought to be just as anxious as the Canadian press that Hearst's papers be excluded from the mails. JAPS IN CALIFORNIA

Hamilton Spectator

Diagrams in the New York Herald show that the Japanese population in the State of California has increased 111 per cent. in the last ten years, as against but 22.4 per cent. of whites. The difference in increase of minor population is more startling, being 18.5 for whites and 252 per cent. for the Japs. They hold a total acreage under lease and ownership of 458,065—an increase of 92,230 acreas in the past two years. The wily little Orientals evidently know the land of promise when they see it, no matter how their hold on it is "viewed with alarm" in the United States.

Down the highway past the fallows,
  Down the field path to the shallows,
Rides Goldenrod, his cuirass all a-gleam,

"Follow—faster, follow faster,"

Prince of wild flowers is this fellow,
  With his waving plume of yellow,
And every road is his that leaves the town;
  Poets sing his golden graces,
Lovers, lingering in quiet places,
  Approve him, while he captures hill and down.

Yet in spirit we are saddened,
  Though our seeing eyes are gladdened ((Grave the import when a prince comes riding by)

And the purple aster follows,
  Alas, the end of summer draweth nigh.

A WONDERLAND of invigorating pine-scented air, dazzling sunshine, freshly green trees, vivid blue water! No sound, but the song of birds!

Set on an elevation—the Muskoka Free Hospital for Consumptives, consisting of an infirmary for bed patients, with verandahs overlooking the lake, and many long, low, open-air pavilions, surrounding wide, green lawns. Here, in hospital cots, are the patients, all wonderfully happy. White-clad nurses and doctors pass to and fro. Peace and contentment reign. Convalescents bask on sunny lawns, or lie in shaded hammocks. Broken down through overwork, worry, under-nourishment they have nothing to do but get well.

"It's God's own spot," declared one young man reverently. Proper care, rest, pure air and good food had saved his life, the Samaritan Club providing for a bed-ridden father during the son's absence.

Center of Population Moving.

How many of us can tell off-hand the exact center of the population of the United States? Every ten years the government calculates with great accuracy just where this point lies. The center moves westward at the rate of about fifty miles every ten years. When the center was first calculated in 1790 it lay three miles east of Baltimore, Md. In the first ten years it moved forty miles westward. By 1890 it had reached the State of Ohio and is today crawling slowly across the State of Indiana. In 130 years, says Boys' Life, the point has traveled westward about 600 miles.

Woman's Greatest Achievement.

Fifty years ago this month the steamer Pewabic was sunk in collision with the steamer Meteor off Thunder Bay Island in Lake Huron. Her cargo of copper grew vastly more valuable as years went on, and many were the adventurers who dreamed of salvaging it and sought to put their dreams into action. What these male adventurers failed to achieve was left to a woman to accomplish. She is Mrs. Margaret Campbell Goodman, the only woman in the world in the deep sea salvage business. Mrs. Goodman, who is a daughter of the late John Burdett Campbell, a scion of a Scottish family, is described as "a trifle over five feet and slender and delicate of physique," but in courage and perseverance she is quite gigantic. It took three years of employment of these remarkable qualities to bring success in her first effort at salvage, but success came at last. With the raising of the first load of copper from a vessel submerged over half a century came the breaking of a world record in deep water salvage and the climax of a story that bordered on legend.

Zinc Deposits In Canada.

It has been stated that Canada could easily increase its production of zinc to supply one-tenth of the world's demand, which is estimated at over 1,000,000 tons annually. The Consolidated Mining & Smelting Co. is planning a 10,000-ton concentrator at Kimberley, British Columbia, to handle the output of milling from the Sullivan Mine, and it is expected that this unit will be ultimately increased to 20,000 tons a day.

"I ended corns forever in this scientific way"

Millions have said that about Blue-jay.

Others tried it and told others the same story. So the use has spread, until corn troubles have largely disappeared.

If you have a corn you can settle it tonight. And find the way to end every corn.

Apply liquid Blue-jay or a Blue-jay plaster. The pain will stop.

Soon the whole corn will loosen and come out.

Think what folly it is to keep corns, to pare or pad them, or to use the old harsh treatments.

Here is the new-day way, gentle, sure and scientific. It was created by a noted chemist in this world-famed laboratory.

It is ending millions of corns by a touch. The relief is quick, and it ends them completely.

Try it tonight. Corns are utterly needless, and this is the time to prove it.

FAIR RENTALS ACT FOR ONTARIO

Toronto, Oct. 28.—The Ontario Government has the draft of a "Fair Rentals Act" prepared, to be submitted as early as possible at the next session of the Legislature. The action follows the request of the deputation which met the Government recently for action against rent profiteers.

Hon. W. E. Raney, Attorney-General, explained yesterday that this will probably be the working basis for the real bill. According to the bill a standard rent will be set which will be the rent of some back date, and then the bill will fix a per centage which may be added to that standard rent to meet the increased costs etc., of maintainence. The standard and the per centage increase is left a blank in the draft bill.

Hon. Mr. Raney explained that the aim of the act will be to suppress oppression and profiteering. On the other hand, he said, landlords are entitled to a legitimate income, and nothing must be done which will have the effect of discouraging building operations. It was for that reason, he said, that the standard and the per centages hab been left blang until both the landlord and tenant classes had been given an opportunity to express their opinions.

A FAMOUS INTERPRETER.

Michael Basso Was Well-known In Canadian Courts.

In the death of Michael Basso, the Italian interpreter in the various courts of this country, the City of Toronto, in which he was so long a resident, has sustained a loss, compared with which the demise of many a widely known man has been trifling in comparison.

He was a man of sterling purpose, honest in all his dealings, of clear insight and the highest integrity, with a heart both generous and large, with a keen appreciation of humor, and knowing the strong as well as the weak points of human nature, more particularly as exhibited in his fellow-countrymen.

Mr. Basso was not only for many years the Italian official police court interpreter for Toronto, but his services as translator, during his later years, were in constant demand in the Courts of Assize and before other tribunals all over Ontario. On one occasion he went as far as Winnipeg to assist in an important criminal trial.

In the early part of this century began the vast and irresistible tide of emigration from Europe and into Canada poured the many inhabitants of the regions around the Arno and the Tiber rivers; the restless denizens from under the shadow of the Appenines Mountains and beside the waters of the Adriatic Sea. The Italian nature is proverbially hasty and emotional, and often during the past twenty years juries throughout Canada have been compelled frequently to adjudicate upon the guilt or innocence of exiles from the land of Cicero and Valentinian, whose sudden outbursts of temper have often brought the impetuous Italian into the criminal dock accused chiefly of crimes which were the result of sudden impulse. In these trials the late Mr. Basso frequently figured as an interpreter, and very often, when the offender was a stranger in the land or without funds, the large-hearted interpreter became a counsellor, protector and friend.

In no case did Mr. Basso's qualities shine clearer than in the course of the famous Capelli trial at Parry Sound about thirteen years ago. Indeed it was almost wholly due to the indomitable persistence of the interpreter that Capelli owed his life. The story is quite without parallel and would furnish abundant foundation for a thrilling novel.

Here are the merest outlines of the incident. On Christmas night of 1906 Francisco Capelli and a fellow-Italian, both under the influence of liquor, went to a party at the house of a settler named William Dow. While the merry-makers were dancing, suddenly the solitary lamp in the room was thrown to the ground and extinguished. In the darkness there were cries and revolver shots. When light was restored, Dow lay dying on the floor, while Capelli and his friend were flourishing smoking revolvers. The two men were tried for murder. As the trial was about to begin, Capelli's comrade, who alone of the two had engaged counsel, represented that his frend had no lawyer, and it was arranged that the one lawyer should defend both prisoners. The defences of the two men were conflicting, but this did not appear until too late to make any alteration in the arrangement. As a result Capelli was sentenced to the gallows, while his companion escaped with his life. Then commenced a fight on behalf of the doomed man, which is without parallel in Canadian judicial history. Behind the struggle which continued all through the summer of 1907 stood the unfaltering form of Michele Basso.

Twice the scaffold was erected within the walls of Parry Sound jail to hang the unfortunate Italian. Twice the ghastly instrument of doom was removed. At Mr. Basso's instance resort was had to the appellate tribunals. At this instance the trial judge became the prisoner's intercessor. At his instance Sir Wilfrid Laurier at the eleventh hour called a Cabinet council and commuted the death penalty. After a toilsome battle lasting for nearly a year, against what seemed to be insuperable obstacles, Mr. Basso's unwearying pertinacity was rewarded, and the prisoner was saved from unjust death upon the gallows.

Mr. Basso's integrity was undoubted. A lawyer in a case in which he was translating evidence, asked for another interpreter as a check upon Mr. Basso. The false and cruel principle followed in those days was that foreigners were proverbially prevaricators. "There is no need for a check," instantly interposed the judge. "Mr. Basso is believed before any interpreter who acts in that capacity in any court of our land."

He was well informed both with regard to Canadian history and the past vicissitudes of his own unfortunate country. He knew Garibaldi and admired him; he had met King Victor Immanuel, and loved him. Many were the incidents he was accustomed to relate of them both.

Mr. Basso had a perfect hatred of every form of cant, sham, imposition and deception.

Insuring a Welcome.

"Are you going to deliver many campaign addresses?"

"I dunno," replied Senator Sorghum. "Maybe I'll try a new plan. Everybody is making speeches out my way and I might make myself more popular by sending word on ahead that I'll be the audience."

HEAVIES TO FIGHT FOR HALF A MILLION DOLLARS

New York, Oct. 27.—Jack Dempsey and George Carpentier were matched here this afternoon for a bout for the heavyweight championship of the world. The contract will be formally signed to-morrow.

Under the terms of the contract, as agreed upon today, the boxers will meet some time between February 1 and July 1, 1921. The conditions stipulate a contest of between ten and fifteen rounds for a record purse and a percentage of the motion-picture receipts.

The number of rounds, the place of battle and the exact date are subject to discussion of the promoters, who are to inform the principals at least 60 days before the contest. Each boxer receives a 25 per cent. right in the motion-picture profits, the other 50 per cent. going to the promoters.

The bout will be conducted by Tex Rickard, Charles Cochrane of London and William A. Brady, the latter representing Cochrane's interests. The contract was agreed to after a long conference today, at which were present the joint promoters; Jack Kearns manager of Jack Dempsey and Francois Descamps, manager of Carpentier and four lawyers representing the various interests involved.

PURSE ALMOST HALF MILLION

While Tex Rickard and his fellow-promoters refused positively to disclose the amount of the purse to be given the boxers before the formal signing of the contract to-morrow it is known that, including percentages, it will approach $500,000.

This is far in excess of any previous purse, the record being held by Rickard's contract with Jess Willard and Jack Dempsey, whereby Willard received $100,000 and Dempsey $27,500 for their bout at Toledo on July 4, 1919. The division of the purse will show Dempsey receiving more than Carpentier in the role of challenger and holder of the European heavy-weight title.

While the promoters are understood to be planning to hold the bout here in Madison Square Garden, ample provision is made for the shifting of the contest to another city in case opposition aries from any source.

AGED OFFICIALS BEING RETIRED

Notices of the retirement of about three score of aged civil servants have been sent out to the persons affected within the past two days, superannuation to date from November 1st. While there is some disposition on the part of certain of the retiring employes to complain that the notice is unreasonably short, for the most part it finds the veterans expecting it. Several months ago it was made generally known that with a few exceptions, the bulk of the retirements would take effect at the end of the fiscal year.

Not all the long-service employes over the superannuation age are being released from service. There are a number, including the officials of the Legislature, who are being retained in office, partly because there are no younger men able to take their places and also because they are still quite capable of performing their duties.

GUARD AGAINST CHILLS

Simple Precaution Against Dangers of Cold and Damp.

Cultivate the habit of taking a cup of hot Oxo—a cube to a cup—before going out in the cold or damp. Such weather is a tax upon the system, and the strengthening and warming powers of the concentrated beef-goodness fortify you against the evils consequent upon exposure.

If the uses of Oxo are new to you, try a tin of four cubes. Oxo greatly improves gravies, stews, or soups, and is a delightful, sustaining and appetizing beverage. It is excellent for children.

Regular users of Oxo prefer the larger tins of 10 and 50 cubes, using them in many different ways in place of meat.

Teeth Shine

When the film goes—watch and see

Learn now how teeth look—how they feel—when you combat the film.

Get from your druggist, without cost, this ten-day test. Note the instant results, then look in ten days.

Millions have already done this. Leading dentists everywhere advise it. Now show your home folks what clean teeth really mean.

The war on film

Dental science, the world over, is fighting a war on film. Film is that viscous coat you feel. It clings to teeth, enters crevices and stays. And most tooth troubles are now traced to it.

Those troubles have been constantly increasing. The ordinary tooth paste does not end film, so the tooth brush has proved inadequate. Millions know how well-brushed teeth have discolored and decayed.

It is the film-coat that discolors, not the teeth. Film is the basis of tartar. It holds food substance which ferments and forms acid. It holds the acid in contact with the teeth to cause decay.

Millions of germs breed in it. They, with tartar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea. And, despite all brushing, few escape these troubles caused by film.

New ways to fight it

Now dental science has found ways to fight film, day by day. Able authorities have proved the methods efficient. Leading dentists everywhere now urge their application.

The methods are combined in a dentifrice called Pepsodent. To millions it has brought a new era in teeth cleaning. And to every home a ten-day test is offered free, so all may quickly know it.

Quick, visible results

Anyone can see and feel what Pepsodent is doing. No old method of brushing ever brought such effects. So we let this test convince you.

One ingredient is pepsin. Another multiplies the starch digestant in the saliva, to digest starch deposits that cling. The alkalinity of the saliva is multiplied also, and at once. That is to neutralize mouth acids which cause tooth decay.

Two factors directly attack the film. One of them keeps teeth so highly polished that film cannot easily adhere.

The effects of Pepsodent come with every application. We constantly combat, in efficient ways, the teeth's great enemies. And millions of teeth are given new protection and new beauty.

Millions now show the effects

In every circle nowadays you see glistening teeth. Ask the owners. You will find, we think, that they are using Pepsodent.

Go get this free tube and try it for yourself. Note how clean the teeth feel after using. Mark the absence of the viscous film. See how teeth whiten as the film-coats disappear.

Then let the children use it. Their teeth need it most. Very few children reach the age of 15 without some tooth decay.

Let the man who smokes see how it takes the stained film from his teeth.

Let all find out how much cleaner teeth feel, how much safer, when brushed in this new way. Then this ten-day test may bring to your home some lifetime effects.

"That's the way to buy heat —by the roomful!"

YES, the "roomful" is the practical way to measure heat. It does not matter how much fuel is bought, nor how much heat is produced, unless you get the full benefit of it in the room where you want it. A Perfection Oil Heater gives prompt heat on the spot.

If you could build your house over again

you would change a good many of the radiators and registers around, wouldn't you? Why not put a Perfection Heater near the window where the radiator ought to be? By using the Perfection Heater in this way you get both fresh air and comfortable heat. It throws out ten hours of clean, intense heat on a single gallon of coal oil.

JUST strike a match and light it—as easy as lighting the gas.

As cheerful as an open fireplace
The warm cheerful glow of the Perfection Heater makes it a favorite in many homes that have no open fireplaces. It is indispensable in Fall and Spring, because it saves running the furnace to heat one room. It is invaluable in Winter to give auxiliary heat in cold spots. It weighs but a few pounds and can be safely carried from room to room.

Hardware, Housefurnishing, and Departmental Stores everywhere sell Perfection Oil Heaters. Let your dealer show you how simple the Perfection Heater really is. Over four million in use, and the number is growing daily. Your dealer can also show you the New Perfection Oil Cookstove and Perfection Water Heater—models of convenience and economy.

Protect against fuel shortage
You can save a hod of coal every time you use your Perfection. That's worth money these days, and besides coal is scarce and it may be hard to get this Winter. Get a copy of our new Perfection Heater folder.

CANADA MUST HELP.

Urgent Appeal Made By the Red Cross Society.

The Canadian Red Cross Society has been informed of the appalling conditions of disease and distress in the war-stricken areas over a broad belt of Europe, extending from the Baltic to the Adriatic and the Black Sea. Some twelve nations, many of whom were either Allies or friendly to the allied cause during the war, are in dire distress and need outside help.

Under the patronage of H. M. the King, and with the approval and support of the leaders of all political parties and national organizations, arrangements have been made for the raising of a British Empire Relief Fund, to be administered by the British Red Cross Society in co-operation with the League or Red Cross Societies of the world—some thirty nations belonging to the League.

The Canadian Red Cross Society has been urged to take charge of the appeal in Canada, and to make it during Armistice Week. Though fully appreciating the changed attitude of the public towards campaigns and appeals in general since the end of the war, the Red Cross could not decline, under the relentless circumstances, to do its best to obtain, from the people of Canada, a substantial contribution to that fund in order to mitigate one of the most terrible and terrifying calamities of all times.

The conditions of disease and distress are all the more pitiful and appealing when it is remembered that there are over 10,000,000 children in Europe fatherless from the war; Poland has about 500,000; in Czecho-Slovakia, Austria and Hungary there are at least 1,000,000 war orphans of whom some 5,000 were recently found wandering almost like animals in the Ruthenian Mountains. No words could adequately describe the greatness and urgency of the need, the humanitarian nature of the appeal, some aspects of national safety to our own people, and the good they would get from extending a helping hand to those who are suffering under conditions of perhaps the worst calamity that has overtaken humanity since the days of the "Black Plague" in mediaeval times. It is an appeal that Canadians are too noble to overlook.

Hot Springs In the Arctic.

Several times during the past decade the men of the Royal Northwest Mounted Police have investigated what are known as "mastodon finds," in various parts of the frozen north. "The remains of several of the animals have been found so perfectly preserved that the flesh has been fresh enough to eat," says a contributor to World's Work, "and in the stomachs of at least two of them there have been found the undigested tropical foods upon which they fed.

"Supt. A. E. Snyder, commanding the Royal Mounted at Whitehorse, Yukon Territory," continues the writer, "reported to the commissioner in 1909 that from north of the Porcupine river there had come repeated rumors of the existence of a wonderful tropical region that was still inhabited by mastodons. 'The Indians,' continued Supt. Snyder, 'report having seen the gigantic tracks of these animals.' Little attention was paid to these stories until in November of 1912 Mr. C. J. McIntyre and two companions made an amazing discovery north of the Porcupine river. They were traveling by dog-sledge, with the thermometer at forty below zero, when to their astonishment the temperature began to rise so rapidly that within a space of two hours they had thrown off their warm garments and the snow was soft underfoot.

"'It seemed,' said McIntyre, 'as though we were suddenly passing from winter into spring.' They soon came upon the first of numberless hot springs. The snow disappeared entirely, and dense vegetation took the place of the stunted bush and timber of the plains. Because of necessarily slow travel on foot, the explorers were unable to determine the extent of the wonderful oasis in the midst of Arctic desolation, but they found several good-sized rivers, flowing with warm water and teeming with fish; the country was alive with bear, caribou, duck, pheasant, wild geese and other game, and they found gold in a number of the creeks.

"McIntyre was to have made a second trip into the mysterious country, but the outbreak of the war prevented him. Now that the force has been increased in numbers, exploration is to be resumed. For five hundred miles east and west of the Porcupine river and from two to three hundred miles north of it there is a vast unexplored region as little known as the planet Mars."

Society at Prayer.

Earl Grey's daughter tells the following story of her father and the late General Booth. As Governor-General of Canada, Earl Grey entertained the general at Government House. In the midst of a great dinner party, he unexpectedly came to bid his host and hostess good-bye, and suddenly announced that he was going to pray. "Then and there," says the narrator, "we all had to get up and kneel down at our chairs, while flunkeys in scarlet stood with dishes in their hands like so many statues looking down at us. I am afraid a great many people, overcome by the oddity of the situation, had to put their handkerchiefs to their mouths; but no sooner had we got up from our knees, the ladies in their silks and diamonds, and the men in their uniforms and Orders, than my father exclaimed with the greatest enthusiasm, 'Wasn't that a beautiful prayer? I think that was the most beautiful prayer I ever listened to!'"

GAS MASKS.

Trying to Make Them Useful In Peace Times.

When our soldiers came back from "over there" they were wildly enthusiastic on the subject of gas masks, and were convinced that they could be utilized to advantage in mines and in factories where poisonous gases are sometimes encountered.

The fire departments of our cities thought that they would afford protection to firemen, and were anxious to adopt them.

It was a mistake. In a big fire the chief danger, so far as gases are concerned, is from carbon monoxide. But the war mask is of no use against carbon monoxide. It has no value against ammonia gas or ordinary illuminating gas.

Furthermore, the conditions in a factory or a mine are very different from those of the open air of a battlefield. In open air a poisonous gas is so diluted that the atmosphere contains only a small percentage of it. Indoors or underground it may easily be so concentrated that the war mask affords no effective protection.

The chief constituent of the gases in a mine after a fire or an explosion is the deadly carbon monoxide, which the war mask will not filter out.

As a protection against smoke the war mask does first-rate service. So far as that goes, it is highly satisfactory, if fitted with a canister containing filter pads.

Experts are of the opinion that the final solution of the mask problem for firemen will be reached by the construction of a canister three times the war size, and containing, in addition to the war filling (charcoal, lime and filter pads), special absorbents for ammonia gas and carbon monoxide.

One should, of course, not confuse the war mask with the oxygen apparatus used in mines, which renders the wearer independent of any breathing supply from outside. In its latest development it is a highly scientific contrivance, and a man equipped with it could live for a while in an atmosphere of pure carbon monoxide.

Dogs of the North.

It is commonly believed that the typical Eskimo dog, the husky, is almost identical with the wolf, but this is not the case. The Eskimo dog is short and stocky, with broad head and pointed muzzle. Generally it is gray in color, says Mr. Diamond Jenness, the well-known traveler, and the hair is close and long, while the furry tail curls round over its back; the legs are short, very stout, and covered with fur. The shortness of its legs and the great natural strength that the animal possesses make it of excellent service on the hard sea ice but almost useless in the soft snowdrifts of the interior of the continent. (The Indian dog is taller and less stoutly built, with longer legs and a shorter coat of hair.) The Arctic wolf, on the other hand, is a dirty yellowish white, larger and heavier than the dog, and furnished with a jaw of tremendous size and power. Even our largest St. Bernards would find themselves overmatched by the wolf of that region. No doubt the husky is descended from a wolf, or at least from its first cousin; but the difference between them now is very great. Nor does the Eskimo dog possess the savagery of the wolf. Starved and abused, it can be savage enough, but under the most ordinary care and handling it is as docile and faithful as any dog.

"Bishop of the North Pole."

One of the most striking personalities at the recent Lambeth Conference was the Rt. Rev. R. J. Lucas, Bishop of the Mackenzie River diocese, known to his brother clerics as "Bishop of the North Pole." For the 600,000 square miles of his diocese stretch over the frozen wastes of the Arctic regions of Northern Canada to the farthest Eskimo settlements, and in visiting the seven mission posts every year he travels several thousand miles. It is a diocese of only 6,000 people, of whom 100 are whites, 900 half-breeds of Scottish and French origin, and the rest of Indians and Eskimos. Nearly all are engaged in fur trading or trapping, and hardship and adventure are the daily lot of the whites and the missionaries who are Christianizing the natives. The Eskimos, who have not yet come under Christian influence, are said to be filthy and treacherous. They practice polygamy and infanticide, and they kill off the aged and infirm when they are unable to hunt. But the Christian Eskimos are clean and self-respecting, and 75 per cent. of them can read and write in their own language as translated by the missionaries.

Fishing Through the Ice.

The Great Lakes of Canada yield millions of pounds of winter-caught or frozen fish every year. The lakes of northern Minnesota and Wisconsin also supply hundreds of thousands of pounds, the total yearly production of this food now approximately 125,000,000 pounds. The fishing is done through the ice, sometimes miles from the shore, the fishermen living for months at a time in the tents or houses that they have built on their fishing "grounds." Large holes, perhaps ten or twelve feet across, are cut in the ice and huge dip-nets set—nets that will bring out hauls of hundreds of fish at a time. Because of the intense cold the man in charge of the holes must keep going from one to another to prevent the ice from closing his "shaft." At certain intervals a "brailer" makes the rounds and with the net-man's assistance pulls up the net and empties the fish on the fresh, crisp snow that is spread on the ice to receive the catch. This snow is necessary to prevent the fish from freezing solid to the ice.

Ancient False Teeth.

False teeth of ivory, on plates of the same material, and held in place by gold wires, were used in the year 1000 B.C.

Miners present a fresh demand causing a hitch. British Cabinet called to meet early today.

VETERANS SERENADE

On Monday evening, October 25th, the Veterans' Band turned out to serenade one of their members, he having a short time ago, joined the ranks of the Benedicts. Although taken completely by surprise, Mr. and Mrs. Wonnacott opened wide their door and invited the members in. After an hour spent in social intercourse a dainty and substantial luncheon was served to which all present did justice. After lunch a few more selections were given by the Band, the boys then disappearing, all declaring that they had spent a most enjoyable evening, and well satisfied that "Bill" was in the right place, in his new home.

HONORABLY ACQUITTED

At Deseronto yesterday before Police Magistrate Bedford, Thomas Seth Maracle, a member of the Mohawk tribe was charged with having on September 7th, set fire to a building the property of Nancy Hill, who is an Indian woman. The accused through his counsel, Mr. W. C. Mikel, K.C., made no election as to his trial. The preliminary investigation showed that there was not sufficient evidence to commit Maracle for trial and he was acquitted. It is alleged that the accused made certain statements about the matter before the Indian Council, which caused the charge to be preferred agiinst him. Mr. Carnew represented the Crown.

A FOWL SUPPER

A number from this city were last night in attendance at a foal supper which was served by the ladies of Centenary Methodist Church, Sidney. FINED $200 AND COSTS.

Before Magistrate Masson this morning John Johnson, of this city, was charged with the following offence: "With having, in the city of Belleville, on October 25th, 1920, unlawfully in his dwelling on Benjamin street a still and mash tub for the manufacture of spirits without having obtained the permission required by the Inland Revenue Act, thereby acting contrary to said Act." Through his solicitor, Mr. E. D. O'Flynn, the accused pleaded guilty and in answer to an enquiry stated he did not make liquor for gain, but for his own use. Under the circumstances the officials of the inland revenue department were content with the minimum fine, which the Magistrate imposed, namely, $200 and costs. The still and mash tub were ordered to be turned over to the inland revenue officers. An effort is being made to secure the money to pay the fine; if not forthcoming Johnson will have to spend three months in jail. Mr. Carnew, County Attorney, represented the Crown in the matter.

STOLEN GOODS RETURNED

A carload of Government goods, stolen from the Kingston Penitentiary during the past few months has just been returned to the prison. Detectives traced the goods to the store of a second-hand dealer who offered to turn King's evidence and avoid prosecution. The theft of the goods is among the matters to be shortly dealt with in Police Court against certain officials of the Penitentiary.

Trades And Labor Council Formed

Belleville Labor Unions Unite in Trades and Labor Council.

Belleville Trades and Labor Council held their organization meeting on Tuesday evening when the following officers were elected:

President—Geo. E. Foster of Local No. 6 Steel Workers.

Vice President—A. E. Facer of Local No. 779 Machinists.

Treasurer—Geo. McDonald of Local No. 779 Machinists.

Secretary—John Holley of Local No. 811 Plumbers.

Trustees—Geo Giffin of Local No. 6 Steel Workers; D. Harrison of Local No. 799 Machinists; P. O. Pitney of Local No. 45 Letter Carriers.

Guide—Chas. E. Smith of Local No. 721 Boiler Makers.

Guard—E. Edwards of Local No. 617 Carmen.

Already a large number of the Local Unions have joined and it is expected that all Locals will soon be affiliated with the Trades and Labor Council, as it is composed of five members from each Trade or Labor Organization.

As this organization is affiliated with the Central Labor Body of Canada it is in a position to deal with many matters of importance of Dominion, Provincial and Local, such as Workmen's Compensation, Old Age Pension, etc., which can be dealt with more speedily than by individual Locals.

They meet twice monthly on the second and fourth Tuesdays.

To Releive Catarrh, Catarrhal Deafness And Head Noises

Persons suffering from catarrhal deafness, or who are growing hard of hearing and have head noises will be glad to know that this distressing affliction can usually be successfully treated at home by an internal medicine that in many instances has effected complete relief after other treatments have failed. Sufferers who could scarcely hear have had their hearing restored to such an extent that the tick of a watch was plainly audible seven or eight inches away from either ear. Therefore, if you know of someone who is troubled with head noises or catarrhal deafness cut out this formula and hand it to them and you may have been the means of saving some poor sufferer perhaps from total deafness. The prescription can be prepared at home and is made as follows:

Secure from your druggist 1 oz. Parmint (Double Strength.) Take this home and add to it ¼ pint of hot water and a little granulated sugar; stir until dissolved. Take one tablespoonful four times a day.

Parmint is used in this way not only to reduce by tonic action the inflammation and swelling in the Eustachian Tubes and thus to equalize the air pressure on the drum but to correct any excess of secretions in the middle ear, and the results it gives are nearly always quick and effective.

Every person who has catarrh in any form or distressing rumbling, hissing sounds in their ears, should give this recipe a trial.

Central District To Get More Power

Direct Appeal to Premier Meighen Productive of Results

The power scarcity in the Trent Valley district is being overcome as a result of the decision of the Dominion Government to permit a larger flow of water to the power houses from the storage lakes. Sir Adam Beck received word from Ottawa that instructions had been issued to the officials in charge to lower the logs at the dam and lower the levels of some of the upper lakes. As a result, it was stated the Hydro development plant for the Central Ontario district will now be able to generate sufficient power to meet present requirements.

The decision of the Federal Government comes in response to an appeal made by Sir Adam Beck directly to Right Hon. Arthur Meighen and is a vindication of the position taken by the Hydro engineers, who claimed that for some time past the levels of the lakes had been increasing and that a great flow of water was justified. In this claim they were opposed by Mr. Henry Holgate, the prominent Montreal engineer, whose attitude toward the Hydro caused the commission to object to his employment by the Department of Railways and Canals to report upon the matter Mr. Holgate strongly supported the officials of the Federal Department in their contention that the levels of the storage lakes were already lower than they should be.

GETTING IN TOUCH WITH THE BEST

Edward Everett Hale used to counsel young people to converse every day with some one older, better and wiser than themselves. We cannot all do that, but we can do the next best thing: we can get in touch with them through the printed page and enjoy the fruits of their wisdom and experience. Probably no publication contains so much from the writings of men and women distinguished in many ways as The Youth's Companion. A constant reading of the paper is a liberal education of mind and heart.

The Companion has no age limit. Professional men, business men and busy women prize it as highly as the young folks.

The 52 issues of 1921 will be crowded with serial stories, short stories, editorials, poetry, facts and fun. Subscribe now and receive:

Chicago Minister Shot By His Tenant

The Minister Had Been Charged by Tenants With Profiteering

CHICAGO, Oct. 28—The Rev. Frederick G. Ruff, pastor of the Memorial Methodist church and owner of an apartment building in Rogers Park, was shot and killed by Fred W. Sextro, one of his tenants. Sextro, the manager of a coal company, told police he mistook the minister for a burglar. He was arrested pending investigation of reports of trouble between the tenants and the preacher.

PRISONER'S STORY

Th Rev. Mr. Ruff was summoned before the council committee investigating rent profiteering several weeks ago on complaint of his tenants. Recently the tenants have posted signs in their windows bearing the wods "unfair landlord."

Mr. Ruff and his family occupied one of the first floor apartments in his building. The body was found lying on the second floor landing. Sextro told the police that he heard some one fumbling at his door and demanded to know who was there. Receiving no reply, he said, he opened the door and fired.

CITY AND COUNTRY GET TOGETHER

AT FOURTEENTH ANNUAL DINNER

Amazing Growth of a Progressive Idea Originating in the Brain of a Belleville Banker

ANNUAL GATHERING OF LEADERS OF INDUSTRY, RURAL AND URBAN, FOR EXCHANGE OF IDEAS AND CO-OPERATIVE COMMUNITY SERVICE GROWS TO IMMENSE PROPORTIONS AND GREAT USEFULNESS IN THE ANNUAL BANQUET GIVEN BY MR. JOHN ELLIOTT, MANAGER OF THE BELLEVILLE BRANCH OF THE STANDARD BANK OF CANADA.

MR. JOHN ELLIOTT, Originator of the Famous "City and Country" Banquets

"Today I am fully persuaded that Canada is the Gem of the British Empire. Here we enjoy Freedom, Prosperity and Happiness. In the midst of all these blessings let us not forget our responsibilities, but endeavor to promote not only the material, but the moral and spiritual welfare of Canada and make it a glorious inheritance for generations yet unborn." With these stirring words Mr. John Elliott, manager of the Belleville Branch of the Standard Bank of Canada, closed one of the most practical, interesting and informing addresses ever listened to by an audience in Belleville. The occasion was the fourteenth annual banquet tendered by Mr. Elliott to the leading men engaged in the farming and cheesemaking industries in the Bay of Quinte district. The great and increasing prosperity of Canada was shown by Mr. Elliott, who demonstrated by facts and figures that despite the vast increase in the national debt the assets of Canada had increased much more and Canada was better off by many millions of dollars than before the war. Mr. Elliott made special reference to the cheese industry of Belleville district, which is deservedly prosperous, and to the excellent quality of the output, which is known all over the world for quality, flavor and keeping properties.

In these days when a determined effort seems to be under way in some quarters to divide town and country into two distinct classes with antagonistic standards it is indeed gratifying to see a gathering representing town and country so harmonious and imbued with the one idea of co-operation in the upbuilding of a greater Canada as this annual event, which has become national in influence rather than local, and is an example which might well be copied in all parts of Canada with the best of results.

Fourteen Years Ago

Fourteen years ago when the idea first originated with Mr. John Elliott, the annual cheese dinner or farmers' banquet as it was variously termed, was a small affair, and that it should continue annually was hardly anticipated. From the germ of the idea that it was a good thing for the men of the country places and the towns to get together occasionally and talk over the questions of mutual interest grew the banquet of to-day when it grows increasingly difficult to find a place large enough to hold it in. Year by year, as the cheese industry and the general agricultural interests of Quinte district have expanded and prospered, the annual gathering at "John Elliott's dinner" as it is popularly called has been larger until last year an overflow banquet hall had to be arranged for in addition to the spacious dining room of the Hotel Quinte which has seating accommodation for two hundred guests. This year the attendance was even larger and the attendance on Thursday showed that the interest is greated than ever, and the splendid program always provided by Mr. Elliott leaves an appetite for more.

President of The O.A.C.

The principal speaker at this year's banquet was Prof. J. B. Reynolds, B.A. M.A., President of the Ontario Agricultural College, who succeeded Prof. G. C. Creelman, now Agent-General for the Province of Ontario, in London, England. Prof. Reynolds was born in Durham County, Ontario, was formerly on the staff of the Ontario Agricultural College at Guelph, which he left to become President of the Manitoba Agricultural College. When Prof. Creelman was sent overseas by the Ontario Government Prof. Reynolds was offered and accepted the position of President of the Ontario Agricultural College at Guelph, which he is eminently qualified to fill. He is a pleasing speaker and hits straight from the shoulder voicing opinions upon the leading questions of the day in a frank and candid way, convincing and interesting even to those who may not altogether agree with him. His address evidenced a keen insight into the causes for present conditions in world affairs and a close and intimate knowledge of everything pertaining to agriculture and business generally.

An Ideal Chairman

One of the out-standing features of these annual gatherings is the presiding officer who is always the well known, genial and eloquent solicitor for the Belleville branch of the Standard Bank of Canada, Mr. F. E. O'Flynn, who acted as chairman for the fourteenth time on Thursday and was never more witty nor resourceful, adding pep to the occasion and never permitting a wasted moment. The program included excellent speeches, chorus singing by the entire gathering and solos by Mr. John MacIntosh, while Prof. Hunt presided very acceptably at the piano.

Welcomed by Mr. Elliott

Mr. John Elliott heartily welcomed the guests and referring to former banquets mentioned the various speakers who from time to time have addressed these gatherings including Prof. G. C. Creelman, now Agent-General for the Province of Ontario at London, England; Hon. G. S. Henry, Minister of Agriculture in the Hearst Government, Honorable Mr. Cody, Minister of Education, and others, while this year the gathering was favored with the presence of President J. B. Reynolds, of the Ontario Agricultural College. Mr. Elliott referred to the local cheese situation, past and present, and predicted a brilliant future for the industry. The ninth Congress of the Chambers of Commerce of the British Empire, recently held at Toronto, and attended by Mr. Elliott and other delegates from Belleville, was referred to by the speaker, and the interest manifested by the overseas delegates in Belleville cheese particularly old cheese of high quality and flavor which was a welcome addition to their menus through the efforts of Mr. Elliott. Letters were read by the speaker from overseas delegates to the Empire Chambers of Commerce speaking in high terms of commendation of the Belleville district cheese furnished the visitors. The value of the home market and the best means of developing it were outlined and it was shown that the great prosperity of the Bay of Quinte district was largely due to the trade in cheese, hogs and cattle.

Bright Prospects

With the markets of Britain and Europe calling for her products the prospect of Canada's farmers were bright indeed, and to solve the question of labor a policy of selective immigration should be vigorously prosecuted.

A Notable Event

Mr. Elliott pointed out that the annual meeting of the Ontario Associated Boards of Trade and Chambers of Commerce will be held in Belleville on November 25 and 26, when the leading men of all progressive communities in Ontario will be here. The visitors should be given every opportunity of becoming acquainted with the excellence and variety of the products of this district, and the men of the farm and dairy should take as much interest in the gathering as the townspeople. The object of the Belleville Chamber of Commerce is to bring the Country and City together in the spirit of community service and promote the welfare of both. There are benefits to be derived by the farmers as well as the townspeople from the Chamber of Commerce, and the purchase of the Bay bridge is one example of community interest and service. Belleville, Hamilton and other cities have Farmers' sections in their Chambers of Commerce and they are proving very successful.

Canada's Progress

Mr. Elliott gave some very interesting figures relating to the progress and prosperity of Canada and the development of trade and commerce, showing that although the national debt had increased from $336,000,000 in 1914 at the beginning of the war to over two billion dollars, there was nothing to be alarmed about for the total increase in assets as represented by increased bank deposits and investment in War Loan bonds amounted to the vast sum of $3,064,000,000. He also showed the opportunities for expansion in the export trade of Canada in the fact that Canada is now only supplying one-fortieth of the beef imported annually by Great Britain and one-tenth of the pork and bacon. Of the three hundred and fifty-eight million acres of land available for cultivation in Canada only fifty-three million acres are now cultivated, and of the eighteen million horse power in electrical energy available for development from the water power of Canada only one million, eight hundred thousand horse power have been developed up to the present time. This shows the marvellous resources and opportunities of Canada and the need for a progressive spirit of hearty co-operation in building up the greater Canada which is to be.

Prof. Reynold's Address

The chief speaker of the occasion was Prof. J. B. Reynolds, M.A., B.A., President of the Ontario Agricultural College, and his address was listened to with rapt attention, being timely, interesting and informative. Prof. Reynolds spoke as follows:

NATIVE INDUSTRIES

Forty years ago Canada started out on a policy of encouraging industries. The purpose was to enable Canada not only to produce her own foodstuffs, and maintain her export trade in natural products, but to be self-sustaining in her manufacture as well. It was believed that a well-balanced citizenship and a progressive nationality could not be built or maintained on a population whose chief business was the production of natural resources only. It was believed that it was not enough to produce wheat and cattle, sheep and hogs, timber and fish and minerals, but that in our national economy these products should be

Violent Scene Over MacSweney's Body

Special Desptch to The Intelligencer
Cnadian Press, Limited

Holyhead, Wales, Oct., 29.—When day broke this morning over the Irish Sea the steamer Rathmore bearing the body of the late Terence MacSweney, Lord Mayor of Cork, who died Monday in Brixton Prison, London, was steaming southward off the Welsh Headland on its way to that city. Shipment of MacSweney's body direct to Cork was preceded by a violent scene in which blows were struck and members of the Lord Mayor's family were dragged from their railway carriage at Holyhead railway station. They refused to consent to the Government's plan to take the body to Cork instead of Dublin and it was only after they had been placed under virtual temporary arrest that the body was taken from the train and hauled to the dock where the Rathmore was waiting.

BULLETIN—Queenstown, Ireland, Oct. 29.—The body of MacSweney, late Lord Mayor of Cork, was landed here today from the Steamer Rathmore. It was received by the Urban Council and thousands of citizens. A draft of armed troops were present.

International Yacht Race

Halifax, Oct. 29.—The schooners Esperanto of Gloucester, and Delawana of Lunenburg, United States and Canadian contestants respectively for a series of races which will be sailed off this port for the Blue Ribbon of the North Atlantic, were both tried out today preparatory to the opening race to-morrow. Capt. Welch of the Eperanto got his charge under way shortly after ten o'clock and proceeded out to sea in a light breeze. The Esperanto breezed along in a surprising fashion and was soon lost to view.

Fire at Brandon

Brandon, Man., Oct. 29.—Fire which started shortly after 8 o'clock this morning and is still raging has caused the loss of forty-two horses, belonging to The Royal Canadian Mounted Police and destroyed the original winter Fair Building here with loss so far estimated at $600,000.

Past, Present, Future Linked In Navy League

THE NAVY LEAGUE ACTIVITIES WILL LINK THE THREE TENSES TO FORM A STRONG ANCHOR CHAIN FOR OUR NATIONAL PROSPERITY—BUT ONLY THROUGH INDIVIDUAL SERVICE AND SACRIFICE.

PAST

They answered the "Call of Duty" those men of the Merchant Marine, they sailed a submarine infested sea to carry more soldiers more guns, more ammunitions, more commissary supplies to stop that onrushing tide of barbarism. Besides they brought in the raw materials of commerce that were the very sinews of war. Did those 17,000 men hang around the docks in sight of a loaded vessel and say "No, we won't life a halyard until someone guarantees our dependents a self-respecting existence should the Hun get us" Suppose they waited until such a time as it takes a Government or a people to duly provide either by law or organization—in that very time the Clown Prince of Potsdam woul have been in Paris and then London But instead these men answered th immediate call actuated by the natur al impulse of patriotism, that impuls to render the greatest service of all—"that a man lay down his life for yo and for me." They gambled agains the odds that we in our gratitude an tribute to them would do humane right by those they would leave b hind. So are we going to even he tate or argue why this? or why did they do that? before we generou answer that little echo that hall back from that August of 1914? Unlike the other branches of our service they were not in existence before, they were not organized for what little rotection is afforded the others—so much more the glory they reflect—they took a chance upon you and saved you. Now, mates, let's have yo dollars for that debt of duty.

PRESENT

That emergency is past, but a war torn world must be restored to normal times, when people can once more strive in the pursuit of happiness and reap the prosperity of their labors unmolested by the acts of scheming weltconquerors. Yet there are men who constantly brave the perils of the seas to bring the articles of life's necessity from our shores where they are made or are grown to those who suffered the devastation of these very things. In a foreign port they represent us as a nation, are they not entitled to a few of the comforts and wholesome pleasures of life between voyages, with these in their possession will they not give a better impression of ourselves back here at home. Then when the anchor is "weighed up" they bring back to us those things which we ourselves cannot or do not produce. The tea of China, the spices of India, the rugs of Persia, the lemons of Italy, the cork of Spain, the rubber of Congo, the coffee of Brazil, the nitrates of Chili and the ores of Peru, etc. Is it worth a third of your contribution to provide the sailors of your ships with a clean, comfortable duplicate of their Canadian homes in the many lands where he carries your commerce, or will you abandon him to the low, dirty disease-infected dives and catch-alls of the world's ports? Give your answer in dollars to the Navy League workers.

FUTURE

Now gather around me mates, I am going to spin a yarn. "See yon ship, I sailed her once, she is a foreign reg stry, manned by a Portugese crew mostly, and captained by a Dane. We cleared this very Canadian port with a cargo of Canadian built locomotives andies, dried fish and a few other commodities. Those locomotives were carelessly stowed, the number two and four hatches were not properly bolted down when I reported this fact to the mate he paid no heed. Months later when I was in one of our reading rooms I saw a home paper and it spoke of the black eye Canada received because those locomotives needed constant repair even though they were new. And why, because they were mis handled in shipping by those who had no interest nor pride in delivering the best goods in the world in the best condition for the service they should render." Now are we going to leave the reputation of our Commerce in the hands of those who not only are not interested but would rather see others enjoy our hard won popularity? Then it is urgent that we train and equip our own lads to command the ships that will be manned by their own kin and folk, all imbued with the spirit of furthering Canada's glorious future. Prepare, then to act as commercial scouts for our fast growing industries, locating new markets, supplying us with accurate information as to the needs of those amongst whom they go and standing ready to again save our Empire should it be threatened. For naval training stations another third of our contribution must go, so that our boys who elect to follow the sea will be ranked as the best trained seamen and worthy citizens of a nation that 'would not let them pass.' Proud dividends are awaiting the disposition of your dollars.

Give says The Bosun's Mate.

Belleville Cadets Will Be Young Taggers For Navy League

UNDER COL. BARRAGAR CADETS WILL PUT ON TAG DAY SATURDAY—RESULTS OF TWO-DAY CANVASS OF NAVY LEAGUE WORKERS VERY ENCOURAGING.

Belleville is going to go over the top again, but not without a good strong last minute push, and that is what Col. Barragar and his cadets are going to give the Navy League campaign Saturday—a push right over the top that Belleville may maintain her place in the list of those cities that never "fall down" on a worthy cause.

Tomorrow is the official closing day of the Navy League campaign, and it has found a warm welcome in the hearts of most Belleville folk. One has but to look back to Trafalgar and Jutland, the two great naval battles of the world that made Britain master of the seas and ended with the dramatic surrender of the German fleet at Scapa Flow.

Yes, Belleville is going over the top. Three live organizations are going to make it go over the top, for the G.W.V.A., the Rotary and Lions' Clubs won't take No for an answer. Their slogan is "It must be did," and just while we are here it might be justly said that these three organizations are a credit to our city, and they are living up to their standard of "Service with Pep."

Don't let yourself be overlooked in this campaign. If perchance you are go to headquarters in the Chamber of Commerce building, go to any bank, call in and see Bob Gorman. They'll gladly accept your subscription. Yesterday a lady who does not boast of being wealthy came in to Mr. Gorman and voluntarily paid her tribute to the sailors in no mean manner.

Raymond Zufelt and Ernie Dickens invaded the Cheese Board banquet and raked in over a hundred good Canadian dollars for the Navy League.

Now altogether tomorrow. Help Col. Barragar and his cadets to go over the top.

LIKE A MAGNET

THE manner in which Zam-Buk draws disease and poison out of the skin has been aptly described as "magnetic." Sores and wounds are cleansed and soothed, new healthy skin grown, in a way which is a positive revelation in the art of skin-healing.

Even obstinate and long-standing sores yield in an astonishing way, for Zam-Buk has antiseptic and germicidal properties that cannot be found in any other preparation. Zam-Buk

Draws Disease out of the Skin.

The marvellous success of Zam-Buk is due to its rare herbal origin and the scientific methods employed in its blending, refinement and concentration. Then Zam-Buk is entirely free from the animal fats and mineral impurities which make common ointments and salves harmful and even dangerous to some skins.

Dr. Patterson Shibley of 1802, Wyoming Avenue, Washington, D.C. writes:—

"For sixteen years I have used Zam-Buk in my practice and know nothing to compare with it in skin trouble, from roughness and irritation to chronic skin disease. Zam-Buk, without doubt, has wonderful curative properties, and I always recommend it in preference to other remedies."

regarded as raw materials, and that Canada should sell not hides, but boots and shoes ready for the wearer, not wool, but clothing, not hogs, but bacon and ham cured for immediate consumption, not timber and pulpwood but lumber for building houses, and furniture ready to put in them, and paper ready for the printer, not minerals, but machinery. It was assured by our practical economists at that time that such a policy, if carried out, would result in the encouragement of agriculture by building up an industrial population which would provide a home market for the farmer and would furnish also cheap home manufacture of machinery and clothing for all the people. It was also promised that general prosperity would ensue, that the workers who did the work, should share that prosperity with the capitalists and the captains of industry.

Sir John A's Prophecy

I remember the vivid form in which that encouraging outlook was presented by the late Sir John Macdonald. During the first election after the National Policy was inaugurated, Sir John Macdonald and Hon. Edward Blake were billed to speak at Bowmanville, and as our horses were busy that particular day in June, I walked, a boy of fourteen, to Bowmanville and back, fifteen miles the round trip to hear these two political Nestors. I remember Sir John prophesying the glorious results which would flow from the N.P. when it got well under way. In the good time to come, he said, the maid would not need to seek the mistress but the mistress would seek the maid.

The maid would not need to give a reference for good character to the mistress, but the mistress would need to carry a recommendation to the maid.

Miracle Comes to Pass

The great Prime Minister spoke more truly than he knew, for obviously that prophesy was in a jocular vein, and the people laughed when they heard it. And yet, lo, the miracle has come to pass, and today mistresses with the best recommendations—no washing, no children, Sundays and Thursday afternoons off—can hardly induce maids to work in their homes. And some of the other predictions have come true also. For we have factories all over the land which convert our raw materials into finished producets, the great cities and thriving industrial towns have sprung up, providing a home market for the farmers' produce and making machinery and clothing and sugar and breakfast foods, canned fruits and vegetables, and klim and milk powder and oleomargarine to delight his appetite and to lighten his labors. We have great flour mills and greater packing-houses that are not only able to supply the home market but send their flour and bacon and hams to the markets of Europe. We have manufactories that not only can supply the Canadian farmers with self-binders, with the aid of a protective tariff, but can sell this same binder in Great Britain and Russia and even I am told, in North Dakota and Minnesota without the aid of the tariff. We have sugar refineries which not only manufacture the farmers' sugar beets into refined sugar, but are capacious enough to import raw sugar from abroad to keep their plants busy the year round.

Critics of Prosperity

Doubtless we have grown in forty years from a small people mostly engaged in Agriculture and Lumbering, to a larger nation with a large industrial output. Our purpose was a good one, and our achievements in industrial development have been noteworthy. Yet it is claimed by some that we have overdone it; that we have not only encouraged industry, we have pampered it; that the rewards of industry have gone not to the many who have worked, but to the few who schemed; that we have not only encouraged native industries which are native because their raw materials are native, or because having the natural resources of mechanical power we can manufacture these things better here than they can be manufactured elsewhere; but that we have encouraged exotic industries, attempting to make things in Canada which cannot be made here economically, or making all sorts of things which are of no particular use to anybody, and which the nation can very well do without. It is claimed that many of our towns and cities are overgrown, that in many the housing accommodation is inadequate, the streets ill-paved, schools insufficient, and the whole machinery and equipment far behind the needs of their population. It is claimed, also, that these towns and cities which have become industrial centres have grown at the expense of the villages and towns which have not established great factories. And it is claimed that while all this industrial expansion has been going on the open country has been gradually abandoned, land has been going out of cultivation, farm houses by the hundreds are vacant, and farming enterprise cannot pay wages to compete with industrial enterprise.

Agriculture Leads

Some of these criticisms of our industrial expansion are doubtless true. Many of the facts stare us in the face. But I wish to point out two facts which particularly concern this gathering of farmers and cheese-makers.

In the first place, in spite of the privileged place which town industries have enjoyed under our economic policy, Agriculture in its exports still leads over all the exports of Canadian manufacture.

In the fiscal year ended March 31, 1919, Canada's basic industries exported vastly more than did the manufacturers of the country. The following are some of the principal farm products exported during the year: Animals, living, valued at $50,026,000; butter valued at $9,844,000; cheese, $36,336,000; oats $9,844,000; wheat $185,044,000; other grains $25,511,000; hides and skins, $19,762,000; cream and milk $10,216,000; seeds $5,395,000; vegetables $11,656,000, or a total of $363,139,000.

In addition to that other products closely related to the farm such as bacon, beef, canned meats, and flour, also contribute very largely to the total value of our exports. Bacon was exported to the value of $70,123,000; beef $19,655,000; canned meats $1,102,000; pork $1,641,000 and other meats $3,655,000 or a total of $96,158,000. Wheat flour was exported to the value of $94,262,000. This makes a grand total of farm products in the raw or in a manufactured state of $553,560,000.

Export of Manufactures

The exports of manufactured goods amounted to $249,414,000 or considerably less than half the value of farm products exported. If to the farm products exported were added the values of the exports from the forest, fisheries, mines, and other basic industries, the value of the manufactured goods would be a very small proportion of what might be called our natural products.

That agricultural production has held its own and has increased with the expansion of trade in other pro-

MUSIC AND DRAMA

(What the Press Agents Say)

THE WANDERER

The Prodigal Son, so the story goes, didn't care a terrible lot about herding sheep and acting as official tick inspector for his tribe. Life with him was just one durned tick after another, not to mention an officious brother, who possesses about as much heart as the corner stone of a county jail.

When the prodigal son was at the stage of life wherein he thought it was time to grow a Charlie Chaplin, reports began to circulate about the wonders of a certain great but wicked city. It was over the sundown hills and far away, but interspersed with other things, they spoke of blushing peaches and red wine and temples devoted entirely to pleasure.

"Th bright lights for mine," said the prodigal to himself, as he scratched another sheep tick out of his hat band. "I'm sick of this small town stuff. It's Broadway or nothing for me." And away he went, sided and abetted by a certain sinister personage, who so well disguised himself that you would never take him for our old friend David Harum, the villain of the plot.

All of which will be beautifully shown and told at Griffin's Opera House this Monday night, November 1st.

NOTED ENGLISH ARTISTS TO VISIT BELLEVILLE

The distinguished English players, H. V. Esmond, and his wife, Miss Eva Moore, who opened a trans-Canadian tour at Halifax on October 25th are to appear at the Griffin Theatre for one performance only on November 8th. They will present a comedy that has met with great success in England during the past three seasons, "The Law Divine" of which Mr. Esmond is the author, and will bring with them their entire London company and scenery.

"The Law Divine" deals with the re-union of a soldier husband on his return from war service at the Front to a wife who has drifted away from her home and domestic duties during his absence, owing to the allurements of war work at home. Complications, very amusing and often embarrassing are finally brought to a happy ending at the conclusion of the play—in fact, the love scene between the husband and wife in the last act was the talk of London and is said to be the most beautiful piece of dramatic writing on record for the last decade; nothing like it has been seen by the present generation.

ducts, in spite of a diminishing rural population, is due to several causes. The great West has been opening up, and the wheat exports in 1919 were more than one-third of our total Agricultural exports. Machinery has replaced men on every farm. And the methods of farming are better today than forty years ago. Crop rotation is better understood, soil management has improved, better seed is used, superior varieties have been introduced, and better live stock is kept.

Butter and Cheese

Our butter exports last year reached nearly to the value of $10,000,000, and our cheese exports exceeded $36,000,000. If we add the enormously increased consumption of milk and butter and cheese by the home market, and the increasing amounts of milk used in the condenseries, it will be seen that our dairy industry is of the first magnitude. And the dairy industry is essentially one of our native industries. Our cheese factories and creameries have sprung up in response to a natural demand. There has been, so far as I know, no exploiting of that industry, no building of expensive plants and selling of watered stock by optimistic promoters. The financial control and the operation of the plants have remained pretty well in the hands of the producers. The factories are necessarily small, and they have not, therefore, been cursed by vexatious labor troubles. The nature of the raw material, milk, has necessarily confined the manufacture to the localities where the milk is produced. We have, therefore, a great number of small factories in the country or in villages or country towns, instead of huge mergers of factories operating in a few large centres, and the products used and manufactured, milk, cream, butter and cheese have given the utmost encouragement to good farming and stock-raising, and are above all necessary and wholesome foods. The manufacture of butter and cheese, therefore, stands as one of our best examples of our native industries, and in its development has avoided the evils which have attended the development of some other lines of manufacture in Canada.

Farm vs. City

Our industrial development—if I may be allowed to re-state what has already been said—has resulted in several serious economic and social evils. It has built up a few cities and towns at the expense of the villages and the farms. It has destroyed countless small industries which a generation ago, flourished in those villages—carpentering, Blacksmithing, weaving, shoemaking, and milling. It has transplanted labor from the farm and the country village to thebig factory in the city, where the division of labor has reduced the factory hand to a machine, and has engendered a discontent and a despair which is now showing fruit in the O.B.U. and a wide spread Bolshevism among the workers. And it has encouraged greed and money-lust in the captains of industry who saw their opportunity to make a great fortune out of the labor of the many workers.

Big Interests and Banks

Our banking institutions have too generally allied themselves with the big interests. The Canadian banking system lends itself to a partnership with large centralized concerns. The branch banks receives the deposits of the farmers and village people by millions of dollars. Under an equitable system of banking, local deposits would be available to aid local business, but I understand the authority to loan, except in small amounts, rests not with the local managers but with the chief in the head office which may be hundreds of miles away and almost invariably is situated in a large centre. The head office sees, not the farmer who wants to borrow $500 to carry him until he realizes on his crop, but the big manufacturer who is close at hand and who wants to borrow $50,000. Our host has shown that he understands this situation, and by his encouragement of the dairy industry he has not only helped a business of the most useful kind; he has also, by encouraging many small branches of a native industry, assisted in counteracting some of the evil effects of our industrial system, and has shown himself a wise business man and a patriotic citizen.

Other Speakers

Mayor Riggs extended a hearty welcome to the guests present and made a special plea for increased interest in good roads. Formerly the country roads were better than those of the twons but Belleville had taken a spurt this year and inaugurated work which should have been started years ago. The streets were being paved and our country friends should follow this example and make good highways everywhere.

Mr. W. H. Alderson, Vice-President of the Toronto Board of Trade, paid a high tribue to Mr. Elliott, the host, who he said was doing a wonderful work for the chese industry as well as the nation at large. Mr. Elliott is always thinking cheese and working for the interests of the cheesemen of Belleville district, said Mr. Alderson, who described how Mr. Elliott came to the rescue when the overseas delegates to the Congress of the Chambers of Commerce of the Empire becoming disgusted with the class of Canadian cheese served at Canadian hotels asked if it were not possible to secure Canadian cheese such as was served in England. Mr. Elliott at once secured a suply of Belleville cheese which was thoroughly enjoyed by the overseas delegates while on their tour of the country. Toronto Board of Trade with its 2,600 members was ready to help boost Belleville cheese interests in every way possible.

Mr. H. A. Coates, of the Robert Reford and Cunard Steamships Lines, gave an interesting talk on the steamship business, its difficulties and problems especially during the war when the Cunard line lost twenty-three vessels, the Donaldson eight and the Thompson seven. A steamship with capacity for 240 cabin passengers, which cost to construct and equip in 1912 $750,000 will cost today to replace $2,500,000. In view of the British coal strike Canadian steamships now load up with coal at $17.70 a ton on this side sufficient for the round trip sacrificing much valuable cargo space.

Mr. Fred Newman, Mayor of Picton Mr. R. M. Mitchell, President of the Belleville Cheese Board, spoke briefly and enthusiastically of Mr. Elliott's great service as a citizen of town and country and especially his assistance to the cheese industry.

Vote of Thanks

A hearty vote of thanks to the host Mr. John Elliott, for his hospitality and the splendid program arranged, was moved by Col. L. W. Marsh, and seconded by W. H. Ireland, M.P.P. and carried with cheers.

St. Catharines, Ont.:—"I was in a very miserable condition when I first started taking Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription sixteen years ago. MOTHERS' ALLOWANCES ARE NOT A CHARITY.

Nine applications have been received by the local board of the Mothers' Allowance Commission. The local board will deal with all applications for Mothers' Pensions, or allowances, as it should be known. This is the result of a great and necessary advance step in progressive legislation initiated by the Government of Sir William Hearst and implemented by the present Provincial Government.

The government of Ontario realizes that every child is destined to become an asset or a liability to the nation, and the government has a deep responsibility in seeing that every child has the care and training which will make for good citizenship.

Deprived of the supervision and support of a father the child is handicapped in the journey of life and a burden placed upon many mothers which should be shared by the citizens as a whole.

Mothers' allowances are not a charity, the mother in taking advantage o fthe provisions of the act merely becoming an administrator of the government's desire to promote good citizenship by ensuring the child of a mother's care and training.

The members of the local board give their services without any remuneration whatever in the spirit of community service, and are worthy of commendation and the hearty co-operation of all citizens.

HOW EDISON HELPED TO WIN THE WAR.

Thomas Alva Edison devised no marvelous electric machine to annihilate at one stroke the armies of our enemies, as credulous persons expected, at the outset of the war, that he would do. This sort of thing may be classed with the army of a million citizens "springing to arms overnight," and with other "wizardry" which fails to make good when put to the test of practise. What Edison did do, however, is set forth by a contributor to Engineering and Contracting (Chicago), and after perusing the account, the reader may not be blamed for adding the name of Edison to those of the numerous persons and organizations who are credited with "winning the war." Some of Edison's contributions were the device for detecting submarines by sound from a moving vessel; that for turning a ship quickly at right angles; collision mats for minimizing loss from torpedo attack; methods of camouflaging vessels; obstruction of torpedoes with nets; the under-water searchlight; water-penetrating projectiles; researches on the zigzagging of ships; production of nitrogen gas from the air; a hydrogen detector for submarines; protection of observers from smokestack gas; device for use in watching for periscopes; putting out coal-bunker fires; direction-finder for hostile airplanes; locating hidden guns by "sound-ranging"; and the preservation of submarine guns from rust. It will be acknowledged that this is a fairly comprehensive catalogue.

CHARACTER MORE ESSENTIAL THAN LEGISLATION.

This, says The Onlooker, an independent magazine of thought published at Toronto, is the golden age of the theorist, the uplifter, the man of empty words, and the end of all their evangel is that if certain legislation be put on the statute books Caliban will be metamorphosed into Prospero. It is the most dangerous fallacy that ever entered into the human mind. You may pile Pelion upon Ossa in the form of new laws and men will remain unchanged in their essential natures. Words are not things. If we could be made perfect by legislation, the race would have reached the summit long ago.

"What avail your laws without public morals to enforce them?" asked Horace in his ode to the covetous two thousand years ago. Have we supplied the answer?

This trust in legislation to transform the world is an indication, not of strength, but of weakness; not of superior morality, but of a lack of all true morality; not of essential goodness, but of inward effeminacy and decay. It is an attempt to shift burdens that ought to be considered personal to the shoulders of a vague something called The Government. For our own part, our trust in the continuance of our great and beneficent Empire is conditioned, not on any legislation that may hereafter be passed, but on our own noble stock, and, particularly, on those simple, honest gentlemen who look for a solution of their private problems to no other source than their souls, and who, in the hour of danger, trust their strong right arms. Weakness may not be a sin against the Holy Ghost, but it is a crime against the nation. Only those nations that strive and thrive and are prepared to defend against the whole world, by every weapon in their command (including tariffs), their inmost life and genius can possibly survive. This means that we must trust, not legislation, but character. The desire of universal domination is madness; but the aspiration towards grandeur, power and prosperity on the part of each separate nation is the salt that preserves society from decay.

CRISP COMMENT

Mr. H. G. Wells has been to Russia and reports conditions there as "horrible beyond description."

The Hamilton Spectator sapiently remarks: "A few years hence those exuberant Toronto students will be too busy raising food for their families to be engaged in spattering each other with decayed eggs and fruit." They won't want any eggs or fruit to decay either.

As to sugar, the Toronto Star sarcastically remarks: Canadian sugar refiners felt that we—that is they—ought to be protected against cheap sugar from over the border. The argument is that self-respecting Canadian peaches, plums, pears, et al, should not be compelled to lose their self-respect by being sweetened with foreign sugar. Let them rot on the trees rather than that should happen.

The Hamilton Herald says: "Iowa farmers have to pay $20 a ton for coal, and they get $15 a ton for their corn; therefore, they are threatening to use their corn as fuel. But would it pay them to do so? As a fuel corn is so much inferior to coal that it would be better business for the farmer to sell their corn and buy coal even at the prices mentioned."

INASMUCH

"Oh, hear us when we cry to Thee
For those in peril on the Sea."

Give to them of your Bounty,
Give for their need is sore,
And Christ Himself will repay you
Full measure and running o'er.

They are watching and drowning to save you,
Then will you not gladly give,
A dollar for food and comfort,
That their widows and orphans may live.

Out there he was fighting your battle,
For you he left friends and home,
Love and his own warm fireside,
Out on the Sea to roam.

That you might have warmth and shelter,
Love, freedom and peace to live,
Shall they die too for want of the dollar,
That you refused to give,

By their wounds and scars you are scathless,
By their blows and strips you are free,
By their hunger and thirst you have plenty,
By their blinded eyes you see.

Facing death bravely to save you,
Counting all but victory and loss,
They were dying for you just as truly,
As did your Lord on the Cross.

Can you. Will you refuse them,
Oh, I plead do not say them nay,
When a willing Navy League Worker,
Asks for your dollar that day.

Give lest in the day of judgment
The words that you hear shall be,
As you did it not to my helpless,
You did it not unto Me.

STEAMER KETCHUM ASHORE

Brockville, Oct. 29.—The steel steamer John B. Ketchum, of the George Hall Coal and Transportation Company, is ashore on the rocks in the channel of the St. Lawrence River near Morrisburg. The boat was in command of Capt. W. J. Jewett of Kingston, and the accident is attributed to low water in the river. It is not known how badly damaged the craft is.

Banquet Echoes

One of the guests at the dinner recalled that the first cheese factory in Belleville district was established about the year 1870 by Robert Reid (Senator) and Ketch Graham, (Father of R. J. Graham) about five miles west of Belleville as a farmers joint stock organization, every farmer investing the output of so many cows.

Ven. Archdeacon Beamish opened the banquet with prayers.

Among the notables present were T. H. Thompson, M.P., East Hastings, W. H. Ireland, M.P.P., West Hastings, H. K. Denyes, M.P.P., East Hastings, G. G. Publow, Chief Dairy Instructor, Dr. Baker, Principal of Albert College, Rev. D. C. Ramsay, Robert Bushell, manager Kingston Fair, and others, while regrets were read from a number of members of parliament and transportation chiefs that circumstances prevented their being present.

Called by Death

MRS. WILLOUGHBY WILKINS.

In the demise of Mrs. Willoughby Wilkins, which occurred this morning at the family residence, 83 Octovia street, a well known and much respected lady has entered into rest after being a sufferer for some months. Deceased lady was born in England, and on July 19th, 1873 was united in marriage to her now sorrowing husband. Later in the same year Mr. and Mrs. Wilkins came to Canada and settled in Belleville, where they had since resided. In 1874 Mrs. Wilkins joined Christ Church and had ever been active in church and philanthropic work. She was a member of the Parish Guild and Women's Auxiliary of Christ Church, was a member of West Belleville Women's Institute and War Workers. During the war she with a noble band of ladies did what it was possible to do for the comfort of our soldier boys. In her passing the Church and societies have lost a valued helpmate. In addition to the husband a family of two sons and five daughters survive. The sons are: Harry, of Toronto, and Merriam, of this city. The daughters are: Mrs. Hugh Hendricks, of Spokane, Wash.; Mrs. A. Middleton, of Cobourg; Mrs. A. R. Gibson, Mrs. Ernest Youker, and Mrs. Ernest Venner, all of this city. To those called upon to mourn the loss of a loved one will be extended the heartfelt sympathy of many friends.

A VOICE FRAM LONDON

The manager of the "Maid of the Mountains" production himself a member of the British Navy during the war, addressed the audience at Griffin's Theatre Thursday evening between the acts, urging support for the Navy League Campaign, and speaking very highly of his old London friend Chaplain Rev. S. Boal, who followed with the stirring appeal to the audience to stand by the campaign on behalf of the widows and orphans of the men of the Merchant Marine who gave their lives during the war for the Empire.

English Musical Comedy Pleasing

"The Maid of the Mountains" Well Presented at Belleville

Next to "Chu Chin Chow," the entertainment regarding which the returned men waxed most enthusiastic was "The Maid of the Mountains." This musical comedy ran along for over three years in London and the men in khaki saw it whenever they were on leave and there are very few Canadian homes which have not heard of its pleasing qualities or the charm of Jose Collins, who played the title role in the Old Land. Several seasons ago, the piece was tried in New York, but did not please the Broadway jury so that "The Maid of the Mountains" did not reach us via the United States, as was the case with "Chu Chin Chow." Why some astute American manager did not realize the value of "The Maid" as an offering in Canadian territory remains to be explained. However it was fortunate for the Trans-Canada Theatres Limited, that none of them did, and the piece was accordingly available as the first presentation to be made by the new Canadian organization, which aims to bring British stars and plays to the Dominion. The Trans-Canada Theatres doubtless wanted to start off with a sure-fire hit and there could be no doubt about "The Maid of the Mountains" scoring in this country on account of the sentimental interest surrounding it, if nothing else.

Theatregoers of Belleville and the surrounding district were so anxious to see "The Maid of the Mountains" that the house could have been sold out twice over, as it was every seat was sold as fast as the tickets could be handed out the day the plan opened. Picton, Trenton and the entire Belleville theatre district which in these days of fast automobiles and good roads embraces a lot of territory were well represented and every seat was filled from pit to roof, even the boxes overflowing.

"The Maid of the Mountains" is a typically English musical comedy. It tells a direct story of a maid who betrayed the chief of a robber gang because she was jealous of his love for another woman and then having repented of her action, she did her best to save him. The humors of the piece are as robust as the plot. There is a comic general and a comic robber with the general's funny servant for good measure. Either one or other of the trio and at times the whole three of them take part in every scene so that the laughter runs along side by side with the romance and the sentiment. Musical comedies of this description used to be common enough on our stage when the New York producers made more importations from London, but they have given place of late years to the "intimate" show, the revues and similar entertainments. That is one reason why "The Maid of the Mountains" proves a pleasant change back from the vapid modern to the slightly old-fashioned musical show. The music is bright and tuneful, even though the composers can hardly be credited with great originality and it contains no "jazz" or similar vulgarities of recent invention. Without being in any sense of the term a classic there is a great deal that proves decidedly attractive in "The Maid of the Mountains."

How the performance at Griffin's Theatre compares with that seen in London, the soldiers will have to tell, but the company that Mr. Percy Hutchison organized for the tour of the Dominion is a satisfactory one. Miss Viva Daron, who sings the title role, has a particularly pleasing soprano voice and sings with excellent taste. Miss Daron stands out as the best female vocalist heard here on the light opera stage this season and she scores with the interpretation of every number. Mr. Paul Plunkett, the baritone, is another competent singer in the cast, and the chorus, especially the male section, acquits itself with credit. Mr. Fred Wright, a broad comedian of the old school, has the role of the comic robber, Tonio, and proves that old methods will get new laughs and Mr. Edward D'Arcy and Mr. Bert Byrne second his efforts with good results. The offering is staged with plenty of brightness in scenic effects and costuming.

RICH BLOOD SECRET OF GOOD HEALTH

Here Is A Suggestion Along That Line

Thin, impoverished blood results in pale, sallow complexions, run-down anaemic conditions, and leaves one without strength, energy or ambition Lots of people here think that the one great remedy for this condition is Vinol, that non-secret, cod liver and iron tonic without oil, which with the beef peptones and glycerophosphates contained in it, acts very quickly in creating thousands of red corpuscles in the blood. It quickens the circulation, increases the appetite, aids digestion, and in this natural manner creates strength, vitality and energy. Hundreds of people in this vicinity have testified to its value.

RELIEVES PAIN

SEARCH OF 15 YEARS SUCESSFULLY ENDED

Quebec Man Finds Relief From Rheumatism Atter Having Abandoned All Hope --- Gives Tanlac Credit.

"There may be other medicines as good as Tanlac for troubles like I had but I have never been able to find them and I have been trying for fifteen years to get relief," said Francois Gignac, of 321 Prince Edward street, Quebec.

"For fifteen years I suffered with rheumatism in the left side of my body. It usuall startyed in the foot, which would become so sore and painful I couldn't bear it to touch the floor and so swollen I could not get my shoe on. Then my leg would get all cramped up so I couldn't move it without crying out from pain. Last fall and winter I was twice forced to quit work for over six weeks each time.

"Often at my work I was so overcome by these rheumatic pains that my fellow workmen had to call a cab and take me home, and not a week passed but what I had spent part of the time in bed. At times my arm was so cramped I couldn't comb my hair.

"One day when I was lying in bed suffering from one of my bad attacks I saw a statement amont Tanlac that impressed me so that I began taking the medicine myself, and the very first bottle did me good. My sleep was more peaceful and with my third bottle the rheumatic pains commenced to leave me.

"I have taken nine bottles now and feel altogether like a new man. I can move myself freely in any position and I never feel a sign of rheumatism any more. I have gained in weight and strength until I am working six days a week, something I had not been able to do in six long years. In fact I am now feeling as well as I ever did in my life and am enjoying perfect health."

Tanlac is sold in Belleville by Osterom's rug Store and by the leading druggists in every town.

Gas In The Stomach Is Dangerous

Recommends Daily se of Magnesia To Overcome Trouble. Caused by Fermented Food and Acid Indigestion

Gas and wind in the stomach accompanied by that full bloated feeling after eating are almost certain evidence of the presence of excessive hydrochloric acid in the stomach, creating so-called "acid indigestion."

Acid stomachs are dangerous because too much irritates the delicate lining of the stomach, often leading to gastritis accompanied by serious stomach ulcers. Food ferments and sours, creating the distressing gas which distends the stomach and hampers the normal functions of the vital internal organs, often affecting the heart.

It is the worst of folly to neglect such a serious condition or to treat with ordinary digestive aids which have no neutralizing effect on the stomach acids. Instead get from any druggist a few ounces of Bisurated Magnesia and take a teaspoonful in a quarter glass of water right after eating. This will drive the gas, wind and bloat right out of the body, sweeten the stomach, neutralize the excess acid and prevent its formation and there is no sourness or pain. Bisurated Magnesia (in powder or tablet form—never liquid or milk) is harmless to the stomach, inexpensive to take and the best form of magnesia for stomach purposes. It is used by thousands of people who enjoy their meals with no more fear of indigestion.

Food In Great Britain Dearer Clothes And Shoes Cheaper

OUTLOOK IN UNITED KINGDOM FOR COMING WINTER—AVERAGE CITIZEN CACULATING PURCHASING POWER OF EVERY PENNY — ECONOMY PRACTISED BY ALL CLASSES.

LONDON, Oct. 29.—Dearer food, but slightly cheaper clothing and shoes is the propect faced by the people of Great Britain for the coming Winter.

Not since the war began has the country witnessed such a wave of economy on the part of the public as that which recently had the effect of administering a general check to the continued rise in prices. From the date of the armistice up to this mid-summer, the people of this country engaged in an orgy of reckless spending due partly to the Government distribution of large war bonuses to demobilized officers and men. But now that this "easy money" has been mostly absorbed by the profiteers, the average Englishman and woman is calculating the purchasing power of every cent they receive.

How the old aristocratic families are practising economy is reflected in the formation of an accosiation for the sale and exchange of dresses, millinery, furs and articles of dress luxury. This is the protest of Mayfair and Belgravia against excessive charges. While only a small subscription for establishment expenses is asked, the association is limited to women of high social standing, and it enjoys the patronage of royalty and several peeresses.

Of a piece with this move to outwit profiteering tailors and jewelers is the recent action of families of good standing in drastically cutting down the strength of their domestic establishments. Valets, butlers, footmen and page boys are almost entirely disposed with, chauffeurs being almost the only men servants now being employed.

Another sign of the decline of the indiscriminate expenditure is the closing down of several night clubs in the West End of London. However, English people are not dispensing with amusements, as is shown by the fact that all theatres, vaudeville and movie houses with good shows are still drawing heavy receipts.

Carson Acquitted On Theft Charge

C. P. R. Conductor Found Not Guilty of Stealing Tickets

TORONTO, Oct. 30.—On Monday last, David J. Carson, a C.P.R. conductor was arraigned at the Sessions and charged with theft of C.P.R. tickets from his employers. The case lasted three full days and went to the jury only yesterday morning. After several hours' deliberation the jury returned a verdict of "Not guilty" on all counts.

The chief evidence for the Crown came from several Pinkerton detectives who had been employed by the Canadian Pacific Railway Company and who had been making investigations on the trains running between Hamilton and Toronto, and as a result of these investigations, Mr. Carson who had been in the company's service for many years, was arrested in Hamilton on August 21 last.

McAbbie, one of the operatives of the Detective Agency, was the chief witness for the prosecution and testified to having made an arrangement with Carson to meet him at the Royal Connaught Hotel on August 24, where he was to buy 20 tickets from Carson, and on that day, McAbbie had severa detectives in one of the rooms of the Royal Connaught Hotel to await the arrival of Carson.

Before his arrival, McAbbie was placed in an adoining room, where he testified he brought tickets from Carson and that after the transaction had taken place the other detectives on a given signal entered and searched both Carson and McAbbie. These detectives testified as to admissions of guilt made by Carson, but in the witness box Carson emphatically denied these admissions and protested his innocence, and claimed that he had been a victim of a frame-up and a conspiracy on the part of these police detectives. The jury acquitted Carson.

The Canadian Pacific Railway Company was represented by Mr. H. H. Dewart, K.C. Mr. Armour acted for the Crown. The prisoner was represented by T. J. Agar, who throughout the proceedings had the assistance of Cyril Carson, a son of the accused, who is in his final year as a law student at Osgoode Hall.

WOMAN SCIENTIST MAKES DRUG TESTS

London, Oct. 30.—Over 100 remarkable drug tests have been undertaken by a woman scientist, Miss May Smith M.A., and her colleague, William McDougall, F.R.S. at the psychological laboratory at Oxford. They were taken by way of experiments in opium alcohol strychnine and tea and the results have been reported to the medical research council.

Miss Smith, never before these tests had taken alcohol to her knowledge in any shape or form, and in order to obviate fore-knowledge of what drug was being taken and so possibly obscuring the true effects by suggestion, the drugs were disguised and "control mixtures" employed. The two scientists suggest as a result of their experiences that alcohol and chloroform fall into one group in their effects on the nervous system and strychnine, opium and tea into another group.

Geddes Doubts Wisdom Of U.S. Irish Inquiry

Fears it Will Lead to Mass of Statements Made for Propaganda Puposes

New York, Oct. 30.—In announcing that the "American Commission on Ireland" would meet in Washington to-day to plan its public inquiry into the conditions in that country, the "Committee of One Hundred on Ireland" today made public a letter from Sir Auckland Geddes, British Ambassador, in which he expressed doubt as to whether "the truth can be established until there has been a period of quiet in Ireland."

In his letter to the committee which selected the commission Sir Auckland said:

"I venture to say that no one who realizes what the present position in Ireland involves in the sorrow and suffering of men, women and children can fail to be anxious that a way should be found to bring tranquility to that country. The British Government has more to gain than anyone in ensuring that the truth is made known to the whole world.

"Any inquiry undertaken just now, more especially any inquiry, undertaken by persons of less than the greatest experience of the laws of evidence and without power to compel the productions of books, papers, records, etc., would, in my opinion, lead to a mass of statements, unsupported by veritable facts, being made for propaganda purposes."

MONTREAL "BOOZE" CAPTURED AT ERIE

Erie, Pa., Oct. 29.—The revenue officers stationed at this port put one over on the crew of the Canadian steamer Keybell, which was stopped and searched for whiskey in the harbor entrance channel yesterday. The officers found nothing then, but one of them secreted himself on board, and this morning surprised the crew while unloading a large number of cases of whiskey that had been hidden in the ballast tanks of the small steamer. The Keybell cleared from Montreal.

The local officers will give out no details, saying the Cleveland office, their headquarters, would do that.

It has been known that booze was being handled through this port for some time, but this is the first case of catching the smugglers red-handed.

CITIZENS ASK STOPPAGE O SHOOTING OF CRAPS

St. Catherines, Ont., Oct. 28.—A petition was sent in to the City Council largely sighed by residents near the foot of Berryman avenue, praying that the City Council take steps to stop the crap-shooting which they say, is going on in the neighborhood every Sunday. Last Sunday one man counted one hundred and sixteen "African golf" players in action. "It is against the comfort and dignity of the law-abiding citizens of the neigborhood to allow such things to go on," says the petition.

Says Pres. Hanna Barks Up Wrong Tree

Railway Conductors' Leader Denounces "No Politics" Edict as Undemocratic

Ottawa, Oct. 29.—L. L. Peltier, Canadian Deputy President of the Order of Railway Conductors, in an interview deals with the remarks of D. B. Hanna, President of the C. N. R., reaffirming his stand on the "no politics" order for the employes of his railway system. Mr. Peltier said:

"Mr. Hanna is barking up the wrong tree. Let the people beware that they are not beguiled into doing likewise.

"When we consider the task confronting Mr. Hanna, and the officers and employes of the Canadian National Railway in perfecting the railway and its service, we conclude that it calls for the co-operation and goodwill of all concerned in the management and operation of the railway. I believe that I am representing the true spirit of the employes when I assure the Canadian people that the employes are anxious that national ownership of railways shall succeed in Canada, and therefore we deplore anything that is liable to dissipate this spirit of goodwill and co-operation.

"Mr. Hanna has not heard the last word or act of protest if he persists in his undemocratic course, and he—as well as the others—should bear in mind that no representative of the employes has the power, right or authority to bargain away or compromise the citizen-rights of any other employe."

Hog Cholera In Wentworth

Government Inspector Says Outbreak is of a Mild Type

Hamilton, Oct. 29.—Following an outbreak of hog cholera in Barton, Inspector G. W. McDonald of the Veterinary Department, Ottawa, ordered a quarantine on all hogs in the county of Wentworth, but more especially South Wentworth.

INspector McDonald left for Toronto to obtain sufficient to inoculate every hog in the district. He will commence this on his return. It is believed that the outbreak of the disease is due to the fact that a hog raiser of Barton recently lost eighty hogs, but sold the young ones that survived in the open market. This has resulted in the disease manifesting itself at many points over a wide centre.

Several pens in Barton were inspected by Inspector McDonald. Some hogs were shot by the inspector. Two-thirds of the marketable value of the hogs will be allowed the owners.

Inspector McDonald was credited with saying that while the cholera is of mild type and he believes it can be effectively checked by the speedy use of the serum, the fact of affected by the eldemic in Oakland open market was a disturbing incident. Until the quarantine is lifted no hog in Wentworth can be slaughtered or marketed.

In Michigan, Too

Detroit, Oct. 29.—Hog Cholera has made its appearance in Michigan, and it is estimated that the value of hogs affected by the epibemic in Oakland county alone, is close to $14,000. Animals valued at $5,600 have already succumbed to the disease and herds worth $14,000 are reported affected fatally. The most violent outbreaks are reported from the section around Orion, Rochester and Oxford, about 25 miles northeast of Detroit. The situation at Eames Station is also declared to be severe.

Mining Companies Get Claims Back

Government Passes Order Relieving Them From Forfeiture

TORONTO, Oct. 30.—The properties of three mining companies—the Teck-Hughes, the Kirkland Lake-Hudson Bay and the Solid Silver Mines Company—which were forfeited to the Crown for non-payment of taxes were yesterday restored to their former owners by order-in-Council, but all other mining claims for which the taxes were yesterday restored to their former owners by order-in-Council, but all other mining claims for which the taxes were not paid and which were forfeited to the Crown as a consequence were, at noon, thrown open for restaking.

The action of the Department of Mines in declaring claims forfeited has caused a storm of criticism in the North Country where it has been called arbitrary and unfair, particularly to claim owners who for one reason and another did not get notice of the steps contemplated. On the other hand, Hon. Harry Mills, Minister of Mines, contends that the department has simply carried out the Mining Act and that, instead of acting arbitrarily, has given the claim owners every opportunity to comply with the Act.

Further Cut In Sugar Made By Refiners

TORONTO, Oct. 30.—New cuts in sugar prices were announced today by the Canadian refiners bringing the eastern refiners' wholesale price down 1.40 cents per pound to 15.83 net delivered in Toronto. Almost simultaneously with this reduction the Dominion Sugar Company broke away for a further underselling dash and announced a new price of 15.71 to the retail trade and of 14.93 to the wholesale trade.

These new low levels for sugar should result in almost immediate reduction in the retail price, to consumers. On the basis of the eastern refiners' new price, adding 2 cents per pound for full service of distribution and profits would mean a retail price of about 18¾ cents. But it is not likely that much sugar could be sold at this figure. The Dominion Sugar Company's quotation permits retail selling at any figure above 15.71 and it is more than likely that the general retail price will settle down to a figure not much in excess of this quotation.

Cash and carry retail stores here have been selling sugar recently at 17 cents and at one or two of the big down-town stores sugar may be had at this price. Whether or not further cuts are to be made was still problematical today.

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer Canadian Press Limited

OTTAWA, Oct. 30.—That of 111 cases of smallpox reported to the Department since October 1 there was not a single case in which the patient had been vaccinated during the past seven years was one of the outstanding statements made at a meeting of the Ottawa Board of Health held at the City Hall yesterday afternoon. Fish Hatcheries To Co-Operate

Three Governments Arrive At Agreement Over Areas of Operation

OTTAWA, Oct. 30—At a conference of representatives of the three governments engaged in fish cultural work on Lake Ontario, held at Belleville recently, satisfactory arrangements were completed for the definition of the areas in which the Dominion Government, the Ontario Government and the United States should operate and it was agreed that last year's prices for eggs would be paid, as follows: 50 cents a quart for eggs collected by fishermen, and 40 cents for those collected by government employes.

The Dominion Government was represented by J. A. Rodd, Superintendent of Fish Culture and A. Finlayson, Inspector of Hatcheries; the Ontario Department of Game and Fisheries by D. McDonald, Deputy Minister and A. W. McLeod, Provincial Inspector of Hatcheries, and the United States Service by J. P. Snyder, Superintendent of the Cape Vincent Hatchery.

CAR OF WHISKEY DARINGLY ROBBED

Bridgeburg, Oct. 28.—One of the most daring robberies of theshrdlu most daring of the many railroad robberies perpetrated here is that in connection with a carload of whiskey in transit to Quebec.

The car was received in the Grand Trunk yards at Bridgeburg several days ago, but was ordered returned in order to comply with certain Customs regulations on both sides of the border, especially in regard to the U.S. internal revenue stamps, thereon. The car was taken back to the Black Rock yards of the same road and kept under close guard.

Nevertheless, when detectives today inspected the car a large hole was found in the roof. The contents were checked over, but nothing apparently was amiss, until it was found that one of the cases was very light. Examination showed that the thieves had emptied the contents of fifteen cases, nailed back the boards in place and departed.

A similar car, one of five in transit through here, was left all night last night in front of an electric arc light so that detectives could watch it.

Rich Red Blood The Greatest Need

Nearly all Ills Are Due to Poor, Watery Blood—How to Improve Its Condition.

"To be in a healthy condition the human body requires a constant supply of new, rich blood. Nearly all the ills from which people suffer arise from one cause—poverty of the blood. If the blood is rich and red it absorbs nourishment from the food which passes into the stomach and distributes nourishment to the brain, nerves, muscles and all the organs of the body. When the blood is weak and poor in quality it cannot do its natural work of feeding the brain and body, and the result is weakness and disease.

Headaches and backaches, loss of appetite, poor digestion, nervousness, pimples and unsightly blotches on the skin, all indicated that the blood has become impure—that it is not doing its appointed work. If this condition is not remedied it will grow worse and worse, and a complete breakdown will eventually occur. To bring about a healthy condition of the blood no medicine can equal Dr. Williams Pink Pills. Their one mission is to make new, rich blood, which reaches every part of the body bringing with it new health and increasing vitality. Thousands have testified to the benefit they have found in the use of Dr. Williams Pink Pills when run down in health. Among these is Mrs. Bertha Kendall, Darling Avenue, Toronto, who says,—"In the summer of 1918 I was in poor health. My appetite was variable and I was weak and unfit for work and I suffered a great deal from nervous headache and palpitation of the heart. lady friend recommended Dr. Williams' Pink Pills which I used with splendid results, as by the time I had taken six boxes I felt like a new woman. I think Dr. Williams Pink Pills are worth their weight in gold to every nervous, sick woman, as they cure quickly and save big doctor bills."

Dr. Williams Pink Pills may be had from any dealer in medicine, or by mail at 50c a box or 6 boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Only Brotherhood Can Prevent War

Tom Sykes Outlines Principles of the Federation—True Christianity

"If we are to be spared from another war, we can't depend on the politicians and diplomats but on a true Brotherhod," was a statement made last night at Bridge Street Church by Rev. Thomas Sykes, National Secretary for the British Brotherhood Federation. The attendance was fairly representative of the various Evangelical churches of the city. Prof. Staples of Albert College presided over the gathering and after the singing of hymns, Rev. W. H. Wallace pastor of the Baptist Church offered up an appropriate prayer.

Mr. Sykes' address was an indictment of the Christianity practised by organized ecclesiastical institutions of Europe, past and present, and an emphatic statement of the urgent need of the adoption by society today of the simple principles of the Christian religion as shown by the life of Jesus Christ, if that society is to solve the industrial and social problems with which it is confronted. Great movements right down the ages have almost invariably been started by a few souls and often secretly. It was in this manner the Brotherhood was launched in Glasgow and it has grown. It has proved a great means of bringing men together for religious thought. It was not the purpose of Jesus Christ to save a few, but the whole world. In 1905 the neucles of a national movement was started. When the war broke out upwards of half a million men were linked up in the Brotherhood movement. Meetings were held in various churches and other places of worship. In London, England, sixty-five per cent. of the members of the Brotherhood in the great city joined the colors when the war broke out. A Brotherhood meeting was being conducted at Leige when the German guns were being trained upon that city. Since the war Brotherhoods have been formed in France. There came appeals from Serbia for help and the Brotherhood came forward and helped that nation in the way of assisting many of its children. In Austria the Brotherhood is being inaugurated. There is an appeal even from Germany for the Brotherhood and it will be a good thing for the world if the Brotherhood is inaugurated in that country. Whatever happens to the League of Nations there will be no universal peace until there is a universal brotherhood. Let the common people come together in creating a society that will bring peace and eliminate war. We cannot died to make the world better. We are going to be through their death either better or worse. There is a new challenge issued and we must meet the challenge of the times. Brotherhood is out to socialize religion, as it is the plan of life to be social.

At the conclusion of the address a hearty vote of thanks moved by Rev. D. C. Ramsay and seconded by Mr. P. C. McLaurin was tendered to the speaker.

APPENDICITIS

Warm Water Properly Applied Prevents Operations, and Has Cured Many Advanced Cases

Hundreds of operations for Appen- B. L. Cascade" and thousands of others who have had Stomach Trouble and Constipation for years have regained their health completely. Most troubles arise from poison accumulated in the Colon, which is absorbed into the system. Internal Bathing keeps the system clean, cures Constipation and the hundreds of ills which are directly traceable to it.

These letters from among thousands in our possession should convince you that Internal Bathing brings positive results. Mr. James McLaughlin, 91 Evanston street, Winnipeg, writes:

"I bought a 'J. B. L. Cascade' for the cure of a bad case of Appendicitis. My doctors told me I must have an operation at once. I had spent more than fifty dollars in doctor bills but the Cascade completely removed in a few days every trace of soreness and pain. I eat and sleep well now, have regained my former weight, and am now in perfect health."

A Mother from R.R. No. 1, Leamington, Ont., writes: "About two weeks ago our eldest son took sick with Cramps in the Bowels so bad he could not move. Our doctor gave him hypodermic injections and ordered him to the Hospital to be operated on at once. Before doing so, however, I induced him to use the 'J. B. L. Cascade,' and in less than a week he was up and around, and has been well ever since. It also cured me of severe Headaches and Constipation. I cannot praise the Cascade enough. It certainly is a wonderful invention."

If you have Constipation, Headaches, Appendicitis, or feel languid and not just right, don't drug yourself, bath internally. The "J. B. L. Cascade" is being shown and explained at J. S. McKeowan, Druggist, Belleville.

MUSIC AND DRAMA

LAVISH STAGING AND GOOD ACTING

The Brockville theatre patrons saw "The Wanderer" and were more than delighted by the splendid acting and scenic splendor of this wonderful stage spectacle of a Biblical parable. The Brockville Recorder speaks as follows of "The Wanderer" which will be presented at Griffin's Theatre Belleville, Monday evening.

"The first local presentation of the celebrated biblical play "The Wanderer," produced by Messrs. F. Ray Comstock and Morris Gest, was given at the New Theatre by a large company of distinguished players, headed by Mr. Frederick Lewis, creator of the title role.

"The play was given before an appreciative audience which enjoyed every moment of the production. The master hand of David Belasco was evident in the staging of the play, the lavish scenery and costumes, correct to the most minute detail, lending an admirable back ground to the action of the play which concerned the story of the Prodigal Son, with which all are familiar.

"The opening scene, near Hebron, about 1,000 years before Christ, a tranquil pastoral presentation of correct location, was a splendid setting, giving an impression of great distances, ripening fields, purple hills and a quaint old homestead. A large flock of sheep added a picturesqueness to the scene that will linger long in the memory of the spectators.

"The second act, the palace of Nadina in Jerusalem, was even more startling, an utter disregard of expense being manifested in the costumes and stage setting. A large ensemble of dancers, slaves, etc., was seen while the prodigal son was being fleeced of his shekel.

"The third and last act showed the return of the wanderer to his home and never has finer acting been seen here. The portrayal of the title role by Mr. Frederick Lewis was far above the average seldom seen outside of the larger cities and the supporting cast was excellent. Miss Eleanor Sandman, Richard Thornton, Frederick Mosley, Miss Helen Singer, Charles Cline, Miss Charlotte Winters and Miss Charlotte Deffry, were splendid in their respective roles.

"The ballet dancing, arranged by A. Kosloff, given by Miss Charlotte Winters and several young ladies, was appropriate to the action of the story and won merited applause. The Wanderer created a great impression on the audience with its fine moral lesson and at the close several curtain calls were accorded the principals."

LEADING ENGLISH PLAYERS IN A BRILLIANT COMEDY

Following the phenomenal success achieved by the all-Canadian tour of "The Maid of the Mountains" under the auspices of Trans-Canada Theatres, Ltd., the same organization now present for the entertainment of Canadian theatre-goers one of the most successful comedy hits known to the English-speaking stage of the last decade.

Mr. H. V. Ssmond, and Miss Eva Moore, who occupy today a unique position among the British players and who have scored a large number of comedy successes than any other actors known to the British stage, will present their latest war comedy success entitled: "The Law Divine" at Griffin's Theatre, Monday, November 8th.

This play which attracted thousands of men from overseas in addition to capacity audiences throughout a phenomenal London run, deals in a most entertaining manner with a domestic problem which has had its parallel in every British Dominion that contributed troops to the Great War.

"WOMAN IN ROOM 13" GRIPPING MYSTERY DRAMA

Pauline Frederick is appearing at Griffin's today, matinee and night in a gripping mystery drama "The Woman in Room 13".

In this, one of the finest screen vehicles of her career she portrays the very soul of a disillusioned woman, a haunted and harrassed woman, a woman whose honor menas everything and whose husband means more than her honor. Powerful emotional situations have confronted her in previous dramas but in this play she is given emotional opportunities which add new laurels to her career. Who was the Woman in Room 13? The dragnet is thrown out by the police. The evidence incriminating Laura Bruce (Pauline Frederick) is placed before Paul and the district attorney by Bruce. Laura's husband is placed on trial for murder. To testify to her presence in the room meant dishonor. To withold testimony meant her innocence in the eyes of her husband, the retention of his love, his death in the chair. Was she in room 13 or was it another one of Turner's victims. Charlie Chaplin appears on the same program in a funny 2-reel comedy, "The Fireman", a new chapter of "The Whirlwind" serial, and a beautiful travelogue are also being shown on the same program.

Called By Death

EDWARD METSALFE

Death came suddenly to a well-known Picton resident on Saturday morning last when Mr. Edward Metcalfe passed away from heart failure at his home on Mary street. Mr. Metcalfe had not been in good health for some months but was around as usual until his death. Saturday morning he went to the barn and was found shortly afterwards with life extinct.

Edward Metcalfe was born in the township of South Marysburg 74 years ago. As a young man he moved to Northumberland county where he lived about two miles east of the village of Colborne for some years. Later he resided for a time in Hastings county returning to Prince Edward several years ago, farming first in the Yerex neighborhood and more recently in Athol Tp. For the last few yeras he has resided in Picton.

He has been twice married. His first wife, Miss Emily Delmage of ago. The second wife was Miss Maggie Hamilton of Thurlow Tp. who survives him. The first wife had two daughters, one dying at 8 years of age The other is Mrs. James Walker of Detroit. Two sons were born of the second marriage, Carman of Cherry Valley and Charlton of Picton.

Mr. Metcalfe ahd five brothers, two of whom, William of Demorestville Road and George of Picton survive, also one sister, Mrs. Mary Reed of Alberta.

The deceased was a man of fine character and was most highly esteemed by all who knew him. He was a member of the Methodist church and a conservative in politics.

MISS ROSE GRIER

Miss Rose J. E. Grier, who was one of the best known of the former principals of the Bishop Strachan school, at Toronto, died Thursday at St. John's Hospital in that city. Miss Grier was eighty-eight years old and had been failing physically for the past year or so but up to the day of her death her mind was as keen and alert as during those days at Bishop Strachan's school when her great talents and noble character won her the love of a host of friends.

Miss Grier was born in Hastings County in 1832. She was largely instrumental in persuading her sister to come from England to found the present Sisterhood of St. John the Divine. After leaving Bishop Strachan school, Miss Grier went to live with her sister in the Convent of St. John and while there she wrote a number of poems of a religious and devotional nature which were subsequently collected under the title, "Alleviations." Miss Grier was always a very strong and earnest church worker and the latter years of her life were devoted, almost entirely to religious interests. The nobility of her life can best be judged from an article which one of her former pupils wrote at the time she resigned the principalship of Bishop Strachan School. "She was a principal who for a quarter of a century traced the indelible imprint of a saintly life, a gracious and kindly courtesy and a heaven-born forbearance upon the countless minds who came under her control. Hers was a life that was crowned with a humble Christlike piety."

The funeral service was held Saturday morning in the chapel of the Sisterhood of St. John the Divine and the body was then taken to Belleville for interment in the family plot. The services were conducted by the four nephews of the deceased, Dean Owen of Hamilton Cathedral; Dr. John Mockridge of Philadelphia; Dr. Grier of New York and Rev. Hamilton Mockridge of Toronto. The funeral was attended by the three surviving sisters, the Mother Foundress of the Sisterhood of St. John the Divine, Mrs. R. P. Jellett and Miss Isable Grier, all of Toronto.

At nine o'clock on Monday a memorial service will be held in the Chapel of Bishop Strachan School.

TAIL-TWISTERS DO NOT REPRESENT THE UNITED STATES.

Canada is part of the great British Empire and proud of being an important part of the greatest Empire in the world, an Empire upon which the sun never sets and which is founded upon liberty, truth and justice to all. The presidential election just closing in the United States has been featured as usual with the customary tail-twisting of the British Lion and mud-slinging which would be regarded as merely amusing were it not for its dangerous tendencies to mar the friendship cemented by the war, but when it is recognized that a presidential election in the United Stetes unlooses the tongues of all the agitators and fanatics, little attention need be paid to the contemptible vaporings of a class of people to whom the prospect of international strife holds no terrors, who when war breaks out retire hastily to their holes and pull the holes in after them.

That the great heart of the United States is in the right place and holds no fellowship with the agitators has been evidenced in many ways, the latest evidence being a publication recently issued by the Bankers Trust Company of New York City.

"The Land of Achievement" is what the Bankers Trust Company terms Canada in a study devoted to the resources, the trade, the financial and the physical development of the Dominion, which has just been published by the bank under the title "The Dominion of Canada."

"The characteristics of the Canadian people which most impress the observer," says the Bankers Trust Company, "is that of determination and achievement.

Vision and Courage.

"Vision and courage were necessary to bring the Canada of 1867 and the provinces of Nova Scotia and New Brunswick with their sparse combined population of less than three million into a confederation. It took courage, in 1870, to bring into the confederation the almost limitless territory stretching westward to the Pacific and northward to Hudson Bay and the Arctic Seas.

"It took courage to link together this empire, greater in square miles than our own United States, by railroads running into the untrodden wilderness, and bringing into full flower a representative government admirably adapted to meet the problems of a great democracy.

Canada Mighty in War.

"Then came the great war. Canada was ready. Immediately she set about mobilizing her man-power. Great armies were transported over the sea and at once they began "to do things." If there was a difficult position to be held, a hard battle to be fought, an important post to be taken, the Canadians made good. They had conquered the wilderness. By the use of the same quiet determination, the same habit of achievement, they could and would conquer the enemy.

"Not only did they fight for the empire, but Canada paid their bills. The war cost Canada nearly sixty thousand lives and over a billion and three-quarters in money. This gift of men and money in defence of the Empire came from a people of less than nine million.

A Wonderful Record.

"Needless to say," continues the Bankers Trust Company's study, "such a record of achievement as is afforded by the history of Canada during the fifty-odd years which have elapsed since "Dominion Day," 1867, is not due to chance. Canada has been fortunate during this period in having in political life and in business a group of able, resourcefull, morally strong, patriotic men who were not alone capable in action but capable in leadership.

"They could not have achieved if there had not been working with them a splendid body of intelligent, determined and resourceful citizenry, men and women of moral force and courage such as a new country alone seems to develop.

"As an evidence of Canada's phenomenal development the latest available figures indicate that the dominion in relation to nine other industrial countries now stands first in area, second in potential water power, third in total railway mileage, fifth in total exports, sixth in pig iron production, total exports and foreign trade and eighth in population.

Traditional Friendship.

"The friendship between the Canadian people and ourselves is traditional. Canada interchanges more business with us than with any other nation, not excepting the United Kingdom. We have only one greater customer than Canada and that one is the United Kingdom.

"Canada has scarcely begun to grow. Her friendship and her business will be increasingly worth while. We have nothing to fear from her efforts to develop her resources and her manufacturing enterprises. Such development will only increase her need for greater quantities of goods from outside and her ability to pay for them.

"As her nearest and most convenient market," declares the Bankers Trust Company, "we will have only ourselves to blame if we do not hold our present trade merely, but also add immeasurably thereto."

It is said that citizens of Irish ancestry, prominent in public life, in the professions and in the church, were conspicuous by their absence from the meeting held in Ottawa of the "Self-Determination for Ireland League." That being so it is not surprising to learn that useful and practical suggestions for the settlement of the Irish Question were also conspicuous by their absence.

A WONDERFUL WORK

St. John Telegraph

Labrador is a tough country to live in, says Dr. Grenfell; but he would rather lie there than in the poorer sections of London. In Labrador, he declares, is to be found a sturdy type of men and women who are "a valuable asset to humanity." He is right, and his appeal for assistance in providing for the comfort of the Labrador people should not fall on deaf ears. Dr. Grenfell is doing a wonderful work in the northland.

POETS' CORNER

WHEN THE FALL BEGINS

All Summer long
My world was wrapped away
In leafy folds of living green,
Which way you looked no house was seen,
No glimpse of curving gray
Where winds the road.

All Summer long
The valley seemed a well
Of seething green and depth untold,
Where sunbeams sunk their shafts of gold;
And not a bird would tell
What lay below!

Now thinning boughs
Reveal a hidden way—
A peering chimney-top—a roof;
No longer can I live aloof;
My neighbor's nearness calls,
And I must heed.

Through bronzing boughs
The chill white mists arise,
And soon from every chimney-throat
The smoke from evening hearths will float—
And I will turn my eyes
To watch the road.

"Dear little feller," he said. "Ow want to treasure it?" he continued, as want to treasur it?" he continued, as he fetched off a wiry bunch. "Do you wish to keep it, so that in years to come you may say: 'Be'old a lock of 'air from my parint's 'cad'?"

At the earnest request of the Canadian Red Cross, Mr. Herbert Hoover, Director-General of Relief for Europe on behalf of the Allied Nations, came to Canada to launch the appeal on behalf of the British Empire War Relief Fund. That fund is being raised throughout the British Empire to combat disease and distress in Europe. The Canadian Red Cross through all its provincial divisions, will make the appeal in Armistice week.

Mr. Hoover, who is recognized as the best authority in the world upon European conditions, spoke with the quiet conviction of one whose message was sufficient in itself. In commencing he said he felt some embarrassment lest his presence in Canada might be misinterpreted as urging the Canadian people to further sacrifice. He said he realized the sacrifice of the Canadian people, individual by individual, had been far in excess of that of his own people, but he said he knew that the charity of the Canadian heart was inexhaustible and he felt there would be no resentment against his coming to discuss with them the problem that confronts the western hemisphere towards the east.

THE GREATEST PROBLEM

"To me," Mr. Hoover said, "the greatest problem of the human heart in the world today is this problem of a myriad of waifs and orphan hungry children through Eastern and Central Europe. The slaughter of fifteen million men could not but have left millions of helpless hungry children in its track, and upon their well-being must depend the upbuilding of Europe. There are literally millions of children in those countries sunk so low in destitution that they cannot be absorbed. They must receive extra ordinary assistance.

$3.00 SAVES A CHILD

"We have found by experience that the cost of caring for a waif child is approximately $3.00 a month; that of the supplies that are required by imports about $1.00 is needed and therefore the dollar that we provide together with local support practically preserves the life of one child. It is not much of a sum—$1.00 per month per child—and although the calls may be very considerable upon your people and upon ours, we still have something after we have cared for our children and our neighbor's children.

"Our present problem over the forthcoming winter appears to be about 3,500,000 to 4,000,000 children. We feel that if we could find among all the nations $4,000,000 per month, we could solve this problem. Surely it is not much for a whole world to find. It is a heavy burden for charity but it is so appealing in its necessity that I have no doubt that charity will find it. These children are the obligation of every man and woman in the Western Hemisphere for we have suffered less, but beyond this they are a charge on the heart of the entire world. If we are to preserve the foundations for the future stability of Europe, if we are to keep open the love for humanity, our duty is clear before us.

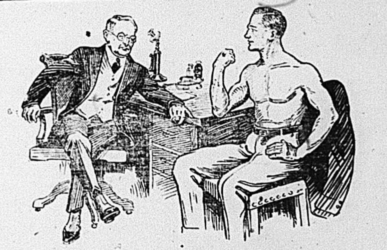
MODEL VILLAGE PLAN TO CONSERVE ITS CATS

Chicago, Oct. 29—Maywood, the model village of Illinois, launched a campaign to conserve the cat resources of the village and make Maywood a ratless town. Alarmed by the invasion of rodents in droves following the recent burning of the community garbage dump, a meeting was held which resulted in the plan for intensive cat culture to aid the fight on the rats.

School children, Boy Scouts, Camp Fire Girls, women's clubs, civic organizations and churches are enlisted in the movement. Tangible results are promised in the anti-bootjack ordinance that has been ordered framed by a Council committee. In accordance with the terms of this ordinance it shall be unlawful to throw bootjacks, wood alcohol bottles, paper weights or other missiles at any cat, kitten, grimalkin or feline within the village confines.

It is proposed also to offer bonuses for large cat families.



"But I Am Not Nervous, Doctor, See How Strong I Am"

"YES, you are strong, all right, and I find after a careful examination that there is no indication of organic disease."

"Then what does seem to be the trouble?"

"It is your nerves, the internal nerves which control the action of the vital organs such as the heart, the stomach, the liver, the kidneys, etc. This is called the sympathetic nervous system. It is not at all uncommon for strong, healthy-looking people to suffer from this form of nervous trouble."

"I never thought I was nervous."

"How do you act in the dentist's chair?"

"Well, I generally keel over in a faint."

"That is just it. Your sympathetic nervous system is affected by the thought that you are going to be hurt. Your digestive troubles are due to the run-down condition of your nerves."

"I never thought of that."

"No, and not many people realize the all-important part played by the nerves in the digestion of the food and the functioning of the vital organs. The flow of the digestive fluids in the stomach, the filtering of bile from the blood by the liver, the purifying of the blood by the kidneys—all these functions and many more are controlled by the sympathetic nervous system. Consequently when the nervous energy runs low all these processes are slowed up and you suffer accordingly.

"While examination shows that there is no organic disease, the action of these organs is weak because of the exhausted condition of the nerves. You need a good nerve tonic."

"What about Dr. Chase's Nerve Food?"

"There is nothing better that I know of. I find evidence everywhere I go of the exceptional restorative power of this popular treatment. But do not expect to get well in a day. It takes time to bring back strength and vigor to an exhausted nervous system."

"How long will I need to use the Nerve Food?"

"That is hard to say. Perhaps two or three months. But you will soon feel the benefit of this treatment and then keep right on using it until you are fully restored."

FIGURE OF SPEECH HAS BECOME A FACT

New York, Oct. 29.—"Carrying coals to Newcastle" is no longer a mere figure of speech according to J. W. Forgie, an exporter of that city, who arrived here on thee steamer Saxonia. Already, because of the British miners' strike, a shipload has been sent to Newcastle from China and until more coal is imported into the famous coal centre the fuel will be rationed, Mr. Forgie predicted, adding that the supply amassed against the strike will last only six weeks.

CHAPTER I.

Belgian and Arab.

Lieut. Albert Werper had only the prestige of the name he had dishonored to thank for his narrow escape from being cashiered. At first he had been humbly thankful, too, that they had sent him to this God-forsaken Congo post instead of court-martialing him, as he had so justly deserved; but now six months of the monotony, the frightful isolation and the loneliness had wrought a change. The young man brooded continually over his fate.

He regretted the gay life of Brussels as he never had regretted the sins which had snatched him from that gayest of capitals, and as the days passed he came to center his resentment upon the representative in Congo land of the authority which had exiled him—his captain and immediate superior.

The senseless hatred of the lieutenant grew at last into a form of mania. The captain's natural taciturnity he distorted into a studied attempt to insult him because of his past shortcomings. He imagined that his superior held him in contempt, and so he chafed and fumed inwardly until one evening his madness became suddenly homicidal. He fingered the butt of the revolver at his hip, his eyes narrowed and his brows contracted. At last he spoke.

"You have insulted me for the last time!" he cried, springing to his feet. "I am an officer and a gentleman, and I shall put up with it no longer without an accounting from you, you pig!"

The captain, an expression of surprise upon his features, turned toward his junior. He had seen men before with the jungle madness upon them—the madness of solitude and unrestrained brooding, and perhaps a touch of fever.

He rose and extended his hand to lay it upon the other's shoulder. Quiet words of counsel were upon his lips; but they were never spoken. Werper construed his superior's action into an attempt to close with him. His revolver was on a level with the captain's heart, and the latter had taken but a step when Werper pulled the trigger. Without a moan the man sank to the rough planking of the veranda, and as he fell the mists that had clouded Werper's brain lifted, so that he saw himself and the deed that he had done in the same light that those who must judge him would see them.

He heard excited exclamations from the quarters of the soldiers and he heard men running in his direction. They would seize him, and if they didn't kill him they would take him down the Congo to a point where a properly ordered military tribunal would do so just as effectively, though in a more regular manner.

Werper had no desire to die. Never before had he so yearned for life as in this moment that he had so effectively forfeited his right to live. The men were nearing him. What was he to do?

In despair, he turned and fled from the oncoming soldiery. Across the compound he ran, his revolver still clutched tightly in his hand. At the gates a sentry halted him. Werper did not pause to parley or to exert the influence of his commission—he merely raised his weapon and shot down the innocent black. A moment later the fugitive had torn open the gates and vanished into the blackness of the jungle, but not before he had transferred the rifle and ammunition belt of the dead sentry to his own person.

All that night Werper fled farther and farther into the heart of the wilderness, more fearful of the human huntsmen in his rear than of the wild carnivora ahead.

Dawn came at last, but still the man plodded on. All sense of hunger and fatigue were lost in the terrors of contemplated capture. He could think only of escape. He dared not pause to rest or eat until there was no further danger from pursuit, and so he staggered on until at last he fell and could rise no more.

And thus it was that Achmet Zek, the Arab, found him. Achmet's followers were for running a spear through the body of their hereditary enemy; but Achmet would have it otherwise. First he would question the Belgian. It were easier to question a man first and kill him afterward, than kill him first and then question him.

So he had Lieut. Albert Werper carried to his own tent, and there slaves administered wine and food in small quantities until at last the prisoner regained consciousness. As he opened his eyes he saw the faces of strange black men about him, and just outside the tent the figure of an Arab. Nowhere was the uniform of his soldiers to be seen.

The Arab turned and seeing the open eyes of the prisoner upon him, entered the tent.

"I am Achmet Zek," he announced. "Who are you, and what were you doing in my country? Where are your soldiers?"

Achmet Zek! Werper's eyes went wide, and his heart sank. He was in the clutches of the most notorious of cut-throats—a hater of all Europeans, especially those who wore the uniform of Belgium.

But in the very hatred of the man for Belgians, Werper saw a faint ray of hope for himself. He, too, was an outcast and an outlaw. So far, at least, they possessed a common interest, and Werper decided to play upon it for all that it might yield.

"I have heard of you," he replied, "and was searching for you. My people have turned against me. I hate them. Even now their soldiers are searching for me, to kill me. I knew that you would protect me from them, for you, too, hate them. In return I will take service with you. I am a trained soldier. I can fight, and your enemies are my enemies."

Achmet Zek eyed the European in silence. In his mind he revolved many thoughts, chief among which was that the unbeliever lied. Of course there was the chance that he did not lie, and if he told the truth then his proposition was one well worthy of consideration, since fighting men were never over plentiful—especially white men with the training and knowledge of military matters that a European officer must possess.

"If you have lied to me," said Achmet Zek, "I will kill you at any time. What return, other than your life, do you expect for your services?"

"My keep only, at first," replied Werper. "Later, if I am worth more, we can easily reach an understanding." Werper's only desire at the moment was to preserve his life. And so the agreement was reached and Lieut. Albert Werper became a member of the ivory and slave raiding band of the notorious Achmet Zek.

For months the renegade Belgian rode with the savage raiders. He fought with a savage abandon, and a vicious cruelty fully equal to that of his fellow desperadoes. Achmet Zek watched his recruit with eagle eye, and with a growing satisfaction which finally found expression in a greater confidence in the man, and resulted in an increased independence of action for Werper.

Achmet Zek took the Belgian into his confidence to a great extent, and at last unfolded to him a pet scheme which the Arab had long fostered, but which he never had found an opportunity to effect. With the aid of a European, however, the thing might be easily accomplished. He sounded Werper.

"You have heard of the man men call Tarzan?" he asked.

Werper nodded. "I have heard of him; but I do not know him."

"But for him we might carry on our 'trading' in safety and with great profit," continued the Arab. "For years he has fought us, driving us from the richest part of the country, harassing us, and arming the natives that they may repel us when we come to 'trade.' He is very rich. If we could find some way to make him pay us many pieces of gold we should not only be avenged upon him, but repaid for much that he has prevented us from winning from the natives under his protection."

"And you have a plan to make him pay?" Werper asked.

"He has a wife," replied Achmet Zek, "who men say is very beautiful. She would bring a great price farther north, if we found it too difficult to collect ransom money from this Tarzan."

Werper bent his head in thought. Achmet Zek stood awaiting his reply. What good remained in Albert Werper revolted at the thought of selling a white woman into the slavery and degradation of a Moslem harem. He looked up at Achmet Zek. He saw the Arab's eyes narrow, and he guessed that the other had sensed his antagonism to the plan. What would it mean to Werper to refuse? What was this woman to him, anyway? She was a European, doubtless, a member of organized society. He was an outcast. The hand of every white man was against him. She was his natural enemy, and if he refused to lend himself to her undoing, Achmet Zek would have him killed.

"You hesitate," murmured the Arab.

"I was but weighing the chances of success," lied Werper, "and my reward. As a European I can gain admittance to their home and table. You have no other with you who could do so much. The risk will be great. I should be well paid, Achmet Zek."

A smile of relief passed over the raider's face.

"Well said, Werper," and Achmet Zek slapped his lieutenant upon the shoulder. "You should be well paid and you shall. Now let us sit together and plan how best the thing may be done," and the two men talked together in low voices well into the night.

The Young Man's Best Recommendation

A Savings Account is more than a start towards financial independence—it is a mark of character.

One of the strongest recommendations in the world of business that a young man can present, is a Merchants Bank Pass-Book, showing a record of consistent savings.

A Savings Account may be opened with $1.00, which shows how highly we regard the accounts of those who desire to save.

They yield to any change of position and gently hold up the figure, assuring its greatest beauty, yet causing neither fatigue nor pain.

Haunted Men

Our Nerve-racked Ancestors "What must have been the dominant emotion which prevailed in earlier ages? It may be expressed by the one word—Fear. And the cause of the feeling of fear was the insecurity of wealth, liberty and life itself."

Fear Must Be Overcome The greatest bugbear of mankind is Fear. If we look honestly into our hearts we will find that most of our unhappiness is the product of some form of fear.

Two Kinds of Fear There is a selfish fear and an unselfish fear: the one is contemptible, the other praiseworthy. Fear for the welfare of those we love is much the more distressing. To dissipate fear on account of others is the function of life insurance.

Confidence and Cheerfulness When adequate insurance is obtained and the family thereby protected, fear is banished. Life insurance is the specific for life's greatest enemy—FEAR.

Each for All All for Each It is the feeling of "being alone" that induces fear. Where there is co-operation fear will vanish. Life insurance is co-operation.

FOUND DROWNED

Mr. Jos. Davis, son of the late Geo. Davis of Greenview, who resides near Combermere, Bangor Township, was found drowned in a small stream of water on his brother-in-law's farm about a mile west of Combermere at noon on Wednesday last. Mr. Davis left home in the morning to go to plough for his brother-in-law, and at noon, when the team returned without their teamster, Mrs. Davis at once became uneasy and started a search for her missing husband, finding him laying on his face in about a foot of water. Mr. Davis had been subject to fits and it is thought that he drove the horses into the creek to drink, where he suddenly collapsed. He leaves to mourn his loss a wife and six small children.

WANTED A JOY RIDE

Mr. Charles Gall, of Ameliasburg, last evening came to the city in his Chevrolet car which he parked on Bridge street. Later when he desired to return home the car was missing. The machine was evidently taken by some party or parties for a joy ride.

WHO OWNS THE COAT?

A Belgian named Miheff, a Jew named Albert and a Gentile named Howell, appeared in the Police Court this morning all claiming a coat. Albert claims he bought this coat from Howell, Howell says his wife got it in a deal with another party, and Miheff says he bought it in a store. The police say it is a case of a coat, not with many colors, but with many owners. As the weather is turning cold and the fur lining looks warm the contest will be keen. It was postponed on account of the illness of a material witness. W. Carnew appeared for the Crown and W. C. Mikel, K.C. for Howell.

CASE ENLARGED

The case of Frank Howell on a charge of theft of a sheep skin coat, the property of a foreigner, was this morning, by the Magistrate enlarged for a few days, owing to the illness of material witness for the defence.

AMELIA JANE DICKSON

On Thursday afternoon the funeral of the late Mrs. Amelia Jane Dickson took place from the family residence, Mountain View, Prince Edward County. Services at the house and grave at Mountain View cemetery were conducted by Rev. Mr. Gall. The floral tributes were beautiful including a large floral blanket. Six sons of deceased were bearers.

CHARLES T. H. HODGES

The funeral of the late Mr. Charles Hodges who died at Brockville took place Thursday afternoon from his late residence, 219 Albert street. At the house a brief service was held after which the body was conveyed to Christ church where the rector, Rev. Rural Dean Swayne conducted service and officiated at the interment at Belleville cemetery. Many were in attendance and the floral tributes were numerous. Bearers were relatives of deceased.

ELIZABETH F. WILBEE

After a service on Thursday afternoon at the family residence, 355 Bleecker Avenue, the body of the late Mrs. Elizabeth F. Wilbee was taken to the C.N.R. station and conveyed to Toronto for interment in Norway cemetery. Rev. Mr. Elliott of the Tabernacle church conducted services here. Many relatives were in attendance at the obsequies and a number accompanied the body to Toronto. The numerous floral designs were evidences of sympathy of many friends. Bearers here were intimate friends of the family.

PIMPLES, BLACKHEADS, ACNE AND OTHER ERUPTIONS

are very disconcerting to the individual and when appearing upon the face are especially annoying. Of course such symptoms indicate that the blood and other circulations of the body are in bad condition. What to do?

Suppose you had a pail of water which was impure. Would it be better to put some other poison into the water to purify it, or would it be better to eliminate the impurities and stop them at the source.

No, the blood stream would not contain impurities if there was not a reason or a cause for it so to do. If poisons cannot be eliminated normally from the body, they must remain in the blood stream and be excreted some other way. In the presence of the above symptoms it is obviously through the skin. Get your elimination up to par. Let your organs of excretion perform their accustomed duties. Your Chiropractor will remove the cause and Nature will cure it you will follow a series of Chiropractic adjustments.

HIS LIFE RUINED BY DYSPEPSIA

Until He Tried "FRUIT-A-TIVES"
The Wonderful Fruit Medicine

MR. FRANK HALL.

Wyevale, Ontario.

"For some two years, I was a sufferer from Chronic Constipation and Dyspepsia.

I tried every remedy I heard of without any success, until the wife of a local merchant recommended 'Fruit-a-tives'.

I procured a box of 'Fruit-a-tives' and began the treatment, and my condition commenced to improve immediately.

The Dyspepsia ceased to be the burden of my life as it had been, and I was freed of Constipation.

I feel that I owe a great debt to 'Fruit-a-tives' for the benefit I derived from them."

A GOOD MARKET

Market prices today did not show much change over those of a week ago. Butter was slightly lower in price, selling generally at 70 cents a pound, but eggs have advanced in price, selling in some cases at 75c per dozen. Some basket lots were procured at a lower figure. Dressed poultry was plentiful and was disposed of at remunerative prices. Chickens sold all the way from $1.50 to $3.00 a pair, according to size and quality. Ducks sold at $2.50 to $3.00 a pair. Geese and turkeys have not yet made their appearance. The prevailing price for potatoes was $1 per bushel and $1.50 per bag. Apples are plentiful, selling at $1.00 to $1.25 a bushel. There was a large offering of garden products and the greater portion was readily disposed of at fair prices. Pears sold at 75c per basket of ten quarts.
